"We had been working about three weeks in and around the crater, (and let me tell you it isn't a cool job to be walking over millions of tons of molten rock), when one morning the old volcano began to rumble and shiver, and I had a premonition that I was going to get some of the most realistic pictures of flowing lava and fleeing refugees ever taken.

"I had to work fast, as lava in a molten state starts to flow with great rapidity. We had to figure our locations so as to avoid those fiery rivers, and still be near enough to show the awe-inspiring torrent as it poured down the sides of Vesuvius, consuming everything within its path, vineyards, houses and animal life, leaving nothing be-

(Continued on Page 19)

News and Gossip About the Moving Throngs of Movieland

Guns Were Scarce

More than 800 torches, 1200 assorted mob weapons such as pitchforks, scythes, sickles and pikes, and 850 swords were manufactured at the Metro studio for use in depicting the storming of the Tuilleries for Rex Ingram's production of "Scaramouche." History tells us that so many people wanted to participate in the French Revolution that there were not nearly enough guns to go around.

Made Auspicious Start

Although Evelyn Brent has never appeared on the stage, her first few screen appearances were made with such stage favorites as Tom Wise, Mme. Petrova, Edmund Breese and Lionel Barrymore. Just at the present time, Miss Brent is portraying one of the leading roles in "Held to Answer," Metro's all-star picturization of the story by Peter Clark MacFarlane.

Jimmie is Now James

James Wood Morrison is the official new "program name" of Jimmy Morrison, well remembered featured player of the old Vitagraph company in the days of Anita Stewart, Corinne Griffith and Harry Morey. Mr. Morrison has grown, physically and histrionically, and is now enacting a leading role in "Held to Answer," the new Metro all-star special.

Association Changes Quarters

The Reliable Photoplayers Association have moved their offices from Sunset and Santa Monica boulevard to 1442 Beechwood drive, Hollywood, where they now have more spacious quarters and are in a position to give the best of service to producers. Betty Jean, manager of the association, has been confined to her bed for the past two weeks with illness, but it is expected she will be back on the job within the next few days.

Actress Expert Fisher

Margaret Morris, who has acted as leading woman for many of the screen's handsome male stars, and who is now playing opposite Pete Morrison in a new western feature at Universal, is enthusiastic over all outdoor games and back in Minneapolis where she was born and educated she spent nearly all of her leisure moments trout fishing, which sport she is particularly fond of. Because of the many big catches which she recorded in streams near her home she gained a great amount of fame as an expert angler.

English Star Here

S. Reve-Smith, the noted English actor who recently arrived in America, has been added to the cast for Elmer Harris' screen version of Frank R. Adams' Cosmopolitan story, "The Love Hater," which is being filmed by Associated Authors. Reve-Smith is one of the most prominent character men on the English stage and boast a histrionic experience that is both wide and varied. He was brought from New York especially for this role after a great deal of difficulty in finding exactly the right type.

Meakin Finishes Another

Charles Meakin, who for years was connected with many prominent theatrical organizations, on the spoken stage, and who lately has turned to the screen, has just closed with Edna Murphy, at the Hal Roach studio under the direction of Val Paul. He did the District Attorney, in Episode Number Seven of the series Miss Murphy is making for this company. Prior to his engagement at the Roach studio, he played a prominent role in the Arthur Somers Roche story, "A Day of Faith," for Goldwyn.

A Little Misunderstanding

It was right after the Willard-Firpo battle. Larry Trimble, producer of the Strongheart pictures, was discussing this particular fight and pugilistic encounters in general with his technical director, Fred McBan, whose son Mickey, well-known boy actor, was standing close at hand listening attentively to the conversation. Mr. Trimble was relating instances of the deadly effect of well-directed uppercuts. It seems that at one time Jess Willard, during a ring battle, killed his opponent with a terrific uppercut, and the subsequent autopsy revealed the tremendous power the giant Kansan had put behind the blow. "Yes, sir," concluded Trimble, "Willard killed the fellow with an uppercut." As Mickey and his father were walking away the little chap asked, "Daddy, how could that man kill the other one with an apricot?"

Stahl Completes "Wanters"

John M. Stahl has completed the filming of "The Wanters" as his next all-star special for Louis B. Mayer-First National presentation. The cast includes Marie Prevost, Robert Ellis, Norma Shearer, Huntley Gordon, Gertrude Astor, Richard Headrick, Louise Fazenda, Hank Mann, Harold Goodwin, Lilliam Langdon and William Buckley. The story deals with New York society life, and is treated in the humorous and rather cynical fashion that characterizes Mr. Stahl's last release, "The Dangerous Age." The picture is now being cut and titled under the supervision of the director.

O'Malley's Celebrate

Mr. and Mrs. Pat O'Malley recently celebrated the eighth anniversary of their marriage by declaring open house at their Hollywood bungalow and entertained a host of relatives and friends. Pat, who is one of the stars in Reginald Baker's new picture, "The Master of Woman," was up in the mountains on location when the great day approached, but by special permission and a little dare-devil work at the wheel of an automobile, he was able to reach home in time to serve as master of ceremonies at the celebration.

Cunningham Returns

Jack Cunningham of the Paramount scenario department arrived at the West Coast studio of this organization after several months as a member of the scenario staff of Paramount's Long Island studio. During his Eastern sojourn, Cunningham adapted Agnes Ayres' latest Paramount Picture," "The Heart Raider."

Christie Signs New Ones

Teddy Sampson and Patricia Palmer, both well known names in feature and comedy casts, have been engaged by Al Christie to support Bobby Vernon in the next picture which will go into production at the Christie studios. Miss Sampson has just finished a role in the production of "The Bad Man" starring Holbrook Blinn, a First National picture, and Patricia Palmer has just finished in "The Hellion" a

New Walton Story

Hugh Hoffman has just finished his latest scenario for Gladys Walton. It is a Cosmopolitan Magazine story, written by Frank R. Adams and is called "The Near Lady." In this picture Miss Walton will portray a manicure girl in a barber shop. The story is said to be full of the spontaneous "peppy" comedy for which Mr. Hoffman's scenarios are noted. Production starts July 23. Herbert Blache directing; Jack Sullivan assisting.

Buys Another Hit

"Lilies of the Field," the stage play which ran for seven months at the Klaw Theatre on Broadway, New York, has been added to the list of successful dramas which will be brought to the screen for Associated First National Pictures. The purchase of the screen rights of this play, which was as successful in Chicago as on the Broadway stage, is announced this week by First National. "Lilies of the Field" was written by William Hulburt and the cast of the New York production includes Marie Doro, Norman Trevor and Josephine Drake, Joseph E. Shea produced the stage play. Its popularity is ascribed not only to the clever dialogue but to the many exceptional situations.

In Victorville

Edwin Carewe, and the entire cast of "The Bad Man," which he is producing for First National, are now located at Victorville where all the bandit and cattle rustling scenes of the production will be taken. Holbrook Blinn, star of the picture, is the only absent member. All of his scenes have been finished and he has left for the East. Accompanying the company are Wallace Fox, assistant director and Louis Jerome, business manager. About 35 people were taken along and they will remain on location for the better part of the next three weeks. All of the interiors were finished before Blinn left for New York. The only remaining work to finish the picture are those scenes relating to bandit outrages

Entertains New Star

Mrs. Helen White, 689 South Bronson avenue, this week entertained twenty luminaries of the film world at dinner in honor of her guest, Miss Muriel Reynolds, who has had a meteoric rise in pictures since she won a beauty contest from five hundred other girls two months ago. Director Fred Caldwell, who has Miss Reynolds under contract for five years, and William Jenner, West Coast representative for Pathe releases, were among the guests.

Back From Elks' Meet

Tom O'Brien, recently engaged to play "Beauty" Smith in Jack London's famous dog story, "White Fang," on which Director Laurence Trimble will start work in a few days, has returned from the Elks' Convention at Atlantic City, which he attended as a delegate from the Santa Monica lodge, and has reported for work. O'Brien also had an important part in the Strongheart picture now in the cutting room, "The Love Master," which was made under the working title of "The Phantom Pack."

In Santa Barbara

Rowland V. Lee and the entire company of players in his production, "You Can't Get Away With It," a Fox picture, are this week on location in Santa Barbara, for scenes which will have for a background one of the most magnificent estates in California. Those who have invaded Santa Barbara, besides Mr. Lee and his assistant, Dan Keefe, are Percy Marmont, Betty Bouton, Barbara Tennant, Grace Morse, Clarissa Selwynne, William Haines and Charles Cruz.

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, JULY 21, 1923

CHAPLIN FILM GETS NEW TITLE

"A Woman of Paris" is the title finally decided upon for Charles Chaplin's first dramatic picture in which Edna Purviance is featured and which has just been completed at the Chaplin Studios.

During the making of this picture which has been in production for eight months it has been temporarily titled "Public Opinion," a title copyrighted by Mr. Chaplin and one which will be used on a subsequent picture.

Although Mr. Chaplin does not personally appear in "A Woman of Paris," there runs through it that same touch of humanness which has made him the acknowledged genius of the screen and its humor, pathos and tragedy are blended with supreme artistry.

Those who have seen the picture in unfinished state declare it will be a sensation when it is released during the month of September at which time it will have its premiere in New York City at a Broadway legitimate theatre.

Perhaps the most vital phase of the production is the new treatment of the subject matter and the finesse with which the various scenes are played by the actors; Mr. Chaplin having devoted more of his time to the acting in this picture than has ever before been given to a motion picture. Each scene was directed by him personally and on some of them weeks were spent on a single scene. The result bids fair to place Mr. Chaplin in the same position among directors that he has formerly held among actors.

The picture which will be released in eight reels will be handled for distribution by United Artists, the releasing organization for the personal productions of Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and D. W. Griffith.

Those in the cast supporting Edna Purviance are Adolphe Menjou, Carl Miller, Lydia Knott, Charles French, Betty Morrissey, Malvina Pole and Clarence Geldert.

The staff assisting Mr. Chaplin on the production of "A Woman of Paris" included, editorial, Monta Bell; assistant director, Eddie Sutherland; business, Alfred Reeves; photography, Rollie Tetheroh and Jack Wilson; and research, Harry D'Arrast and Jean di Limur.

Following a short vacation Mr. Chaplin will immediately begin work on the production of a new six reel comedy with himself starred and which will also be released through United Artists.

QUITS PLAYING TO FIGHT FOREST FIRE

Constance Talmadge's warriors of "The Dangerous Maid" cast stopped fighting each other long enough the other night to conquer what threatened to grow into a forest fire.

The company was working in a nearby valley on a wooded ranch supposed to be an old English highway. Constance, disguised as a boy, was darting back and forth across the road and behind trees with a squad of "Red-Coats" hot after her. Half a mile away a wall of flame shot up into the air and the cry of "Fire!" went up. Director Victor Heerman immediately called a halt and ordered Constance, Marjorie Daw and the other feminine members of the cast to safety.

Heerman then told off 200 men into squads under Conway Tearle, Lou Morrison, Philip Dunham, Eddie Brophy and Glen MacWilliams and the whole male force was rushed to the spot of the flames in motor trucks. There they joined with residents of nearby ranches who were hastily assembling, and in about two hours made a firebreak that prevented the flames from reaching the timber land. The blaze spread on through the brush but, cheated of its larger prey, finally burned itself out.

FLYNN SPECTACLE IS NOW NEARING COMPLETION

When the cameras click on long shots of the big palace set the latter part of this week, Emmett Flynn will have completed the filming of "In the Palace of the King," the period spectacle he directed for the Goldwyn studios.

Edmund Lowe, leading male player in the production is the only principal in the cast who is not yet finished with the picture. Other players, including Blanche Sweet, Hobart Bosworth, Pauline Starke, Sam de Grasse, Lucien Littlefield, William V. Mong, Aileen Pringle, Charles Clary, Harvey Clarke and others, have made their final scenes, and most of them are planning their summer vacations.

In order to confer with Richard A. Rowland, general manager of Associated First National Pictures, Inc., Earl J. Hudson, general production manager of that organization's own producing unit, has left Los Angeles for New York City.

LESSER WILL FILM "HIAWATHA" SOON

Sol Lesser announces an early beginning on the production of a spectacular and poetic screen version of Longfellow's "Hiawatha." For several months this poem has been in contemplation and for several weeks the scenario department has been busily engaged in research work attendant on the great enterprise of filming this American classic. The services of James Willard Schultz have been engaged in the preparation of the story, he being a full-fledged member of the Blackfoot Indian tribe of Montana with the fortunes of which, for more than twenty years he was identified in the field and chase. As an authority on Indian lore, Mr. Schultz is regarded without a peer in the United States, and his published works on Indian life are numerous and popular. He has been taking an active interest with the Principal Pictures scenario staff in the adjustments necessary to render the story of Hiawatha suitable for film translation.

"It is our plan," says Lesser, to emphasize the poetical elements of the work, or rather to attempt to give them complete visualization. This we hope to accomplish by the importance we shall give to the earlier episodes of the poem wherein the infancy and young boyhood of Hiawatha are treated. The poetic essence of the work is what we are after rather than "plot-values" and the usual "movie plot action." We shall boldly attack the problem of fixing upon the screen immortal poetic beauty of Longfellow's most widely known and popular poem. Of course we plan the engagement of typical Indians to give reality to our scenes and in the engagement of these we expect the authoritative advice and counsel of Mr. Schultz will guide us rightly. We believe we shall accomplish the production of a pageant-poem that will appeal with its beauty to every class of motion picture patron and every lover of romance and poetry."

AMERICAN AND TURK WRITE PLAY

An interesting collaborating affiliation, which promises to bring to the motion picture screen a story with a keen psychological analysis of the Oriental custom of plural wives, has just been announced.

Under the title, "Harem Love," a story is being jointly prepared by J. Stewart Woodhouse, well known local scenarist, and Gerjes Bey, recently arrived from Constantinople. Gerjes Bey was educated in the universities of the Turkish capital and knows Oriental life in all its phases. His uncle was Minister of War under Abdul Hamid, under which monarch he himself was knighted at the age of nineteen. Gerjes Bey was connected with the diplomatic service of his country for years.

When "Harem Love" is ready for production Gerjes Bey purposes to give personal technical supervision, bringing to the American screen, perhaps for the first time in its history, a true vivid picture of Turkish life, including the innermost secrets of the harem, and a revelation of social and political customs which make this domestic institution popular in that country. It is undoubtedly true that only a native, who has studied the Turkish people, can give a true insight into the mental attitude of the woman who is one of the many wives, and of the man who finds his better half has been divided into numerous infinitessimal fractions.

Just what conflict of emotions would be aroused in a father's breast when confronted with giving his own daughter as a part of another man's harem, equal in proportion to his own, is a sentiment an American would would find hard to conceive. Inasmuch as it is purposed the hero of the story shall be an American there will probably be a striking clash of love sentiment between the Anglo-Saxon and the Oriental temperaments. Mr. Woodhouse is working overtime, with the aid of black Turkish coffee, at his home 1832 North Normandie, Hollywood.

George Hackathorne has completed his role in Eddie Cline's First National production, "When a Man's a Man." Included in the cast were John Bowers, Marguerite de la Motte and June Marlowe.

VIOLA GETS A BIG SURPLUS OF DOGS

Enough is sufficient and sufficient is plenty.

Viola Dana has had another birthday and with it gifts from her sisters, Edna Flugrath Shaw and Shirley Mason, and from her father, Emil Flugrath.

Remembering how his daughter had grieved over the disappearance a month previous of her pet, a Chow dog named Pom-Pom, Mr. Flugrath proudly bought her a husky Boston bull terrior for a birthday present. It arrived while the little Metro star was breakfasting and she was overjoyed.

An hour later Miss Shaw and her director-husband, Harold Shaw, arrived with their gift. It was a beautiful Pekinese dog.

"To take the place of poor Pom-Pom," said Sister Edna. "His name is Sing-Sing."

Miss Dana said she guessed there would be room in the garaage for both the Bostonian and the descendant of Chinese dog royalty and expressed her appreciation.

But she was not quite as exuberant when Miss Mason came that afternoon with a young, but large and rough German police dog.

"His name is Count and he's to make you forget Pom-Pom, Vi," said Sister Shirley.

"Thanks," the little star replied weakly.

And if that is not enough it may be mentioned that the nice kind men who work at the Los Angeles dog pond have since located poor Pom-Pom and they returned him to his owner.

The situation has been alleviated somewhat by the return of the bull terrier to the dog store and of the police dog to Miss Mason.

Miss Dana still has Pom-Pom and Sing-Sing.

Walsh is Favored

That George Walsh is the most popular screen star in South and Central American countries was the opinion of a large group of ambassadors and other state officials from the Southern republics who recently visited the Goldwyn studios. Walsh is now playing in "The Magic Skin." Walsh was also selected by the statesman as their choice for the name part in "Ben Hur" to be filmed by Goldwyn. The diplomats who came from Washington to attend the Motion Picture Exposition, brought the interesting information that one of Walsh's films had been re-issued five times in South America.

Margaret Reid has finished her work in Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche."

PRODUCING OF "SPRING MAGIC" IS RESUMED

Production work is once more in full swing on "Spring Magic," William De Mille's production for Paramount, which was halted two weeks ago when Charles de Roche, one of the principals in the cast, suffered a broken toe while performing a difficult jump.

Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt are featured in this adaptation by Clara Beranger of Edward Knoblock's "The Faun" which Charles de Roche, Robert Agnew, and Mary Astor in support. De Roche plays the role of the Faun, and his injury, which confined him to his bed for a fortnight, brought the production to an abrupt halt.

With the introduction this week of Bertram Johns and Leo White, practically the entire cast is at work. Ethel Wales plays the only other important role. "Pal," the famous motion picture dog, also has a prominent part.

DOROTHY IS KEPT BUSY CHANGING HER WIGS

Dorothy Chase, former publicity writer, whose interesting work in ingenue and character roles has been attracting considerable attention lately, has worn so many wigs, hats, and other head-gear in recent pictures, that her screen friends have almost forgotten what her own hair looks like. It remained for Finis Fox to reveal the secret. Mr. Fox asked her to remove a hat for "close-ups" during the garden- party scene in "Bag and Baggage," his current production, and Miss Chase's own wavy, ashe-blond hair was revealed.

Miss Chase's various "disguises" were not all of her own choosing, and while she enjoyed appearing in the beautiful white wig worn in Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche," and in the voluminous aand becoming headgear appropriate to her costume in Jackie Coogan's "Long Live the King," the chance to be "herself" was greatly appreciated.

Miss Chase's latest characterization has been that of a kidnapped American girl, in the Mexican dance-hall sequence of Choice Productions' current picture, as yet untitled.

Dinner for Elinor Glyn

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Lehr entertained with a brilliant dinner in honor of Mme. Elinor Glyn, who has just arrived in Los Angeles to assist in the filming of her novel, "Three Weeks." Present were: Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Flynn, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Edington, June Mathis, Aileen Pringle, Cedric Gibbons and Carey Wilson.

HELENE TURNS TO THE RUPERT HUGHES UNIT

That Helene Chadwick will play the leading feminine role in Rupert Hughes' new production, "Law Against Law," is the interesting announcement from the Goldwyn studios.

The news is the more interesting in view of the recent differences between the beautious Helene and Goldwyn. But diplomatic arrangements of all issues have been effected and now everybody is happy, with Miss Chadwick's casting in the big role in the new Hughes' picture the culmination.

It will be remembered that Miss Chadwick won her greatest success in previous Hughes productions, including "Dangerous Curve Ahead," "Gimme," "From the Ground Up" and "The Old Nest."

Miss Chadwick is the first player to be cast in "Law Against Law."

ACTOR'S WORK IN FILM IS GIVEN HIGH PRAISE

David A. Dunbar, who is one of the newest, yet one of the most promising character artists in filmland, has the leading role in Paul Hurst's latest feature production, "The Man Who Would Not Die," which has just been completed at the National studios in Hollywood. The picture was previewed a few nights ago at the Burbank Theatre in Burbank, and Dunbar, in the character of a young Indian chief, won considerable praise for his brilliant performance and histrionic talents. He is winning great recognition as a master make-up artist and his characterizations are of such quality as to insure a most successful career for him in the film world.

BETTY IS KEPT ON THE JUMP BY FOUR JOBS

Betty Giles, who has made a pronounced success with her work in many productions during the past year, is now playing at the United in "The Dangerous Maid," starring Constance Talmadge and directed by Vic Heerman. Betty, however, further enjoys the added distinction of working in three other current productions, hopping from set to set and lot to lot in double-quick time to do her various bits in "Ponjola," also at the United, and in "Scaramouche" and "Long Live the King" at the Metro.

Paul Scarden, who is personally supervising the filming of "Chu Chin Chow," in Berlin, starring Betty Blythe, reports that this production contains some of the most beautiful scenes he has ever seen, and that Miss Blythe's role in it is giving her a much wider scope for acting than the "Queen of Sheba."

GRAND-ASHER CO. PLANS FILLING A NEED

Supplying a genuine need on the part of the exhibitors, providing reasonably priced and wholesome as well as thoroughly entertaining comedies and feature pictures, the Grand-Asher Corporation is preparing a schedule for the fall season which should prove decidedly interesting.

The comedies in which will be starred Monty Banks, Sid Smith and Joe Rock, are all of two-reel length, widely different in character and type and directed by men who know the comedy end of the films backward. Adequate settings, good casts, stories that are built solely to amuse and entertain, render them highly desirable from the exhibitor's point of view and should make them entirely acceptable to the public, as sauce, so to speak, with which to garnish the heavier fare provided by dramatic vehicles.

At present the features are being produced by Ben Wilson with strong cast headed by Bryant Washburn and Mabel Forrest. The first three were all written by Evelyn Campbell and adapted by well known continuity writers. There are seven more to be made by Mr. Wilson and all will be supplied with strong casts. Many of these stories, by writers of note, have been already selected and are now being adapted for the screen. Among these pictures will be several in which Billie Rhodes will appear in the stellar roles.

Later production plans for other productions in which famous screen luminaries are to appear will be announced no doubt of the return of Samuel V. Grand, head of the Grand-Asher organization, on his return from New York early in August.

Announcements in the trade papers contemplate some of the most attractive pictures imaginable from this newly formed releasing company. At least one new face has already been introduced in Mabel Forrest, who appears opposite Bryant Washburn in the Ben Wilson films.

Sargent Finishes

Lewis Sargent ,popular film juvenile artist, has completed his engagement at Universal, where he played the leading juvenile role in Gladys Walton's latest starring vehicle, "The Wild Party," and he is now trying to decide between offers which have been made him for important parts in other pictures. Meanwhile, he has taken a bungalow at one of the beaches near Los Angeles where he is enjoying his first vacation in three years.

BARKER STARTS ON HIS 3rd. MAYER SPECIAL

Reginald Barker has started the filming of "Pleasure Mad" as a Louis B. Mayer special for Metro release. This will be the director's third independent unit production at the Mayer studio following "Hearts Aflame," a current success, and "The Master of Woman," which will make its debut in the early fall.

"Pleasure Mad" was adapted from Blanche Upright's novel, "The Valley of Content." Dealing with the fortunes—and misfortunes—of a happy family of modern means which is split up by the affections and indulgences which follow sudden acquisitions of wealth, this book has proven to be one of the most popular novels of the past year.

Mary Alden, a favorite since the old Griffith days, and Huntly Gordon, who scored such a big hit in Fred Niblo's "The Famous Mrs. Fair," and who has just finished work in John M. Stahl's "The Wanters," will be seen in the two leading roles. Working with Mr. Barker, Irving G. Thalberg, vice-president of the Mayer organization, is now selecting the balance of the cast and will have the complete list ready within a short time.

With Alvin C. Wyckoff in charge of the photography, Mr. Barker is shooting scenes in the meantime, confining his activities to certain highly dramatic sequences in which only Miss Alden and Mr. Gordon appear. The company is now working on the covered stage at the Mayer studio.

While no definite announcement has been yet made as to the director's next picture following "Pleasure Mad," it is possible that he may make "The Train of Ninety-Eight," the Robert W. Service story which was purchased by Mr. Mayer some time ago for production by Barker.

George Ade Due

George Ade will arrive at Paramount's West Coast Studio next week to confer on his story, "All Must Marry," in which Thomas Meighan will be starred, according to an announcement made by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production. "All Must Marry" will be an Alfred E. Green production. Meighan will follow Ade in three or four days and production work will start immediately after the star's arrival. Thomas Geraghty will adapt the story to the screen.

Mary Carr is once again portraying the part of a mother. This time in C. C. Burr's production "Clipped Wings," which stars Constance Binney. The picture is being made in Glendale, L. I.

FORMER DISH-WASHER TURNS PLAYWRIGHT

Leopold Granitz, a Chicago restaurant man, has turned playwright. While figuring out the prices of meats, vegetables and fruits and planning menus, Mr. Granitz, for the past year, has been thinking out the plot of a romantic novel, and at night, after leaving the rattle of the dishes and his market figures, he started to write it. The novel is now complete. It is called "The Knights of the Dragon," a story filled with mystery, intrigue and romance, which Mr. Granitz has dramatized, and which will be seen on the screen in Chicago soon.

The story of the play goes back to 1850, and many of the scenes are laid in the turbulent Balkans, Russia, Monte Carlo and America. The hero is an American boy, whose mother left a good husband, a famous Russian surgeon, and became engaged to an exotic ruler of the Balkans, who promised to wed her as soon as she secured a divorce, but spurned her when she fled from her American home to the Balkan kingdom, disowned by her father. She is given into the power of a bandit chief-head of the Knights of the Dragon, and after his death she becomes the daring, fearless leader of the Knights, in the hope that she will be able to revenge herself on the king, who cast her aside. Failing, she committed suicide, and left a letter for her son by the king, to be opened on his twenty-fifth birthday, and requested him to avenge her honor. This he does, by capturing the kingdom with an army of his own, winning over the people, who put the king to death and made the American their ruler.

A diamond necklace, once the Crown jewels of Russia, of which two clever imitations were made, causes many exciting incidents, blunders, suffering and misery. It is around these royal gems that much of the mystery and romance of the play is woven.

Mr. Granitz started life as a six-dollar-a-week dishwasher, and worked his way up to a high executive position of one of Chicago's best known restaurants, reading and studying at night after his work was over. He came into prominence a year ago, when his paper on "Food Control" won first prize at the National Hotel and Restaurant exposition and convention in Chicago. Mr. Granitz has proven as much of an expert picturing romantic situations and mysterious episodes as he did in the more prosaic work of food control.

JEAN HERSHOLT EXHIBITS PAINTING IN FRISCO

The artistic ability of Jean Hersholt, who plays the role of Marcus Schouler in the Goldwyn picture, "Greed," which Erich von Stroheim is transposing from Frank Norris' "McTeague," is not confined to acting. He is a painter of note as well, having had exhibitions in Copenhagen, Denmark, his native city, and in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. The latest showing of his brush and pen work was held in the galleries of O'Connor, Moffat & Co., San Francisco.

The exhibition included oil paintings and pen and ink drawings. The former consisted of portraits, still life and landscapes; the latter were black and white studies, in the manner of etchings, of ZaSu Pitts, as the Trina of "Greed," Erich von Stroheim, the director, and himself as Marcus Schouler.

The exhibition was well attended and received excellent notices in the San Francisco newspapers.

McConnville Re-engaged

Bernard McConnville, who recently prepared a screen version of "Cape Cod Folks" for Louis B. Mayer, has been re-engaged by the producer to write the scenario of "The Volunteer Organist" which will be filmed in the near future with an all-star cast. The background of this famous old play is being revised to coincide with the conditions and environments of the present day.

ACTOR HAS BEEN NOTED AS POET FOR 20 YEARS

Frederick Truesdell, who plays the millionaire husband in "The Age of Desire," which Frank Borzage is directing for First National, is one of America's few actor-poets. Mr. Truesdell has made a study and a hobby of verse writing, and there is hardly a day passing but what he is writing something of this sort.

His poems have appeared for the past twenty years in various magazines. He is contemplating publishing a book of verse, poems that he has written during this period.

While working for Director Borzage, he has been writing quite a bit and has added several compositions to his lengthy literary record.

He plays the millionaire husband of Myrtle Stedman in the story, and appears with a really all-star cast comprising such notables as Mary Philbin, William Collier, Jr., Josef Swickard, Frankie Lee, Edith Yorke, J. Farrell MacDonald.

Miss Ulric Starts

Lenore Ulric has started work on the picturization of David Belasco's play, "Tiger Rose," which is being produced at the Warner Brothers studios in Los Angeles under the direction of Sidney Franklin. The supporting cast includes Claude Gillingwater, Joseph Dowling, Anders Randolf, Andre de Beranger, Jane Ferrell, Sam de Grasse and Theodore Von Eltz.

PSYCHIC CRYSTAL GAZER LAUDS TRILBY

Mlle. Inez Cover, youthful psychic crystal gazer and palmist of Los Angeles, who has gained fame through her many fulfilled predictions regarding the destinies of professional people who are famous in America and abroad, has launched a new art on which she has spent the past two years in deep study—an art which she terms "solestry," the science of foretelling one's fate by the soles of the feet.

Mlle. Andree Lafayette, the beautiful film actress who played the title role in Richard Walton Tully's screen version of the famous du Maurier's novel, "Trilby," soon to be released by Associated First National Pictures, Inc., and who is credited with the most beautiful feet in the entire world, has intrigued the interest of Mlle. Inez who gives herewith a few of her impressions and prophesies concerning the Parisian beauty.

"Mlle. Andree Lafayette has gracefully molded feet, creamy white, and tipped with shell pink nails. The soles are satin smooth, and bespeak sincerity of purpose, a thoughtful, unselfish character—emotional, impulsive and ambitious.

"I find from the lines of her foot," continued Mlle. Inez, "that she is a lover of music, art and all that is beautiful.

"First of all, Mlle. Lafayette is a born actress; but besides the enjoyment of this gift, she could easily develop into a musician of undreamed brilliance and intensity. Fortune will smile on her later in that direction.

"There is a great similarity between her feet and those of Mlle. Ida Rubenstein, famous dancer and the inspiration of D'Annunzio, Italy's fiery warrior-poet.

"The future of this gay little French Trilby, she of the golden hair, eyes of blue and incomparable feet, is destined to be one of bliss and contentment with attainment of the highest pinnacle of fame. She is truly fortune's favorite."

A wire from New York informs us that Laura La Plante has been cast in the new serial at the Universal and will be seen at her best in the characterization of Blackie's Mary, the daughter of crooked alley, in "The Heart of Boston Blackie," of the Red Book fame by Jack Boyle and under the direction of Bob Hill. Owen Gorine is the juvenile and more than usual interest lies in the fact of the possibility of William Desmond, Jack Mower or Herb. Rawlinson being featured in the stellar role of Boston Blackie.

HISTORIC BATTLE IN NEW INCE PICTURE

For the first time in the history of the motion picture, according to First National, the memorable sea battle between the Merrimac and the Monitor, the outstanding naval engagement of the Civil War, will be reproduced on the screen. This scene will be one of the dramatic episodes of "Barbara Freitchie," which Thomas H. Ince will produce for First National release.

"Barbara Freitchie" will be a screen adaptation of Clyde Fitch's play of the same name, the purchase of which by Mr. Ince was announced recently. Mr. Ince, after long consideration of the screen possibilities of the play, has announced that he will produce it on a scale equal to that of any production of the coming year. It will greatly exceed in magnitude any picture of recent date which has issued from the Ince studios.

The sea fight between the Merrimac and the Monitor, which marked the death knell of the wooden fighting ship and the birth of modern steel battle cruiser, will be reproduced with Government co-operation. A replica of the much-despised "Yankee Cheese Box" as the Monitor was called, is now being built. This will go out to sea and meet the Merrimac, considered the most formidable fighting machine of its time. No more dramatic incident in the history of naval warfare can be described. The Monitor was permitted to approach until within a range at which the fighting would apparently be all in favor of the Merrimac. Then the most powerful guns of the Confederate battleship were turned on it, but the revolving steel turret of the Yankee naval freak resisted the attack and soon rendered useless the pride of the Southern seas.

The United States Navy is enthusiastic over Mr. Ince's plans and has promised him all the support he desires in filming authentically the famous sea battle.

Mr. Ince will retain the dramatic love story of Mr. Fitch's play, which some critics have pronounced among the sweetest and most touching in the history of literature.

No cast has been announced as yet, but the producer is laying preliminary plans to make this picture an epoch in the field of historical productions.

Whittaker Moves Here

Another prominent member of the film colony has renounced New York and taken up permanent abode in Hollywood. This is Charles Whittaker, the eminent scenarist, whose most recent contribution to the screen is the adaptation of Balzac's story, "The Magic Skin," which George D. Baker is directing at the Goldwyn Studios.

EXHIBITORS WILL FIGHT FOR A CHRISTIE CUP

Exhibitors and exchangemen of Southern California will do battle on the baseball diamond July 26th as the main feature of a big picnic barbecue at Hermosa Beach, the winning team to receive the Al Christie trophy cup which has been put up by the well known comedy producer. For the time being hundreds of film exhibitors and exchange managers and salemen will cease battling over the price of moving pictures and devote their efforts toward beating each other at foot races, horse shoes and kindred sports, answering the oft-repeated cry for better co-operation between the producer and exhibitor."

Instead of the famous three-legged race, the committee for the affair intends to put on a six-legged race, a "bigger and better" event, in which each team will be made up of a producer, an exchange man and an exhibitor.

FOX PREDICTS QUICK SUCCESS FOR MISS GREY

When it comes to a director giving new players and new faces an opportunity to show what they can do and demonstrate how well they will look in a close-up, one who leads is Finis Fox, well-known author-producer who has just started production on a new series of personally directed and supervised features at the Hollywood Studios.

Finis firmly believes that the greatest builder in the life, art and progress of any nation is the one who helps to make it possible for any creative genius to give expression to what is in him, or her, and help them to build themselves.

"All great creative artists are naturally and fundamentally sensitive and timid," said Fox. "They need a little help from the outside to bring out the best that is in them. This is particularly true of the actor and actress, but is equally the case in any commercial line of endeavor.

"Had it not been for Carnegie perhaps Schwab would still be a factory worker," he continued. "The great Goethe did everything he could to assist Schiller. Socrates helped Plato attain greatness. Griffith developed Mary Pickford and Lillian Gish and Chaplin made possible little Jackie Coogan's rise to fame."

In Gloria Grey, who is playing the featured role in "Bag and Baggage," his latest production, Finis Fox said he felt confident that he had found a girl who is going to be one of the most adored actresses in the realm of the silent art within one short year. Miss Grey is only sixteen years old.

Oliver Follansbee has completed his role with Cecil De Mille in "The Ten Commandments."

SHE'S A VETERAN THOUGH STILL IN HER TEENS

Ynez Seabury, who enacts an important role in "Thundergate," a First National picturization of Sidney Herschel Small's "The Lord of Thundergate," was born an actress.

She is still in her teens yet her screen career dates back to the old days of one and two reelers. She played her first part for the films when she was only three years old, since then she has played in scores of photoplays as well as enacting numerous child roles in stage productions.

When she was five years of age she was appearing on the stage for David Belasco in "Madam Butterfly," and later was starred in her own company in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "Mary Jane's Pa," and many others. She also played Little Hal, the son of the Squaw Man with William Faversham and later played scores of child parts in stock productions in many principal cities.

Her screen career includes prominent parts in productions starring Dorothy and Lillian Gish, Henry Walthall, Wilfred Lucas and the late Robert Harron.

Her most recent notable parts were in "Little Sunbeam," Miser's Heart," "Trail of Books," and "The White Frontier."

CAVAN IS WINNING A HIGH PLACE IN FILMS

Allan Cavan is one of filmland's most distinguished players and always much in demand. He recently finished the part of Rowe, the consul, in "The Best Man Wins," a South Sea story starring William Russel which is being made at the Fox Studios under the direction of James Flood. He had as co-workers in this picture Dorothy Devore, Lloyd Whitlock, Frank Beal, Wade Boteler and Bert Sprotte and all rendered excellent interpretations. Mr. Cavan's other recent productions include "Singed Wings" with Bebe Daniels, "Making A Man" with Jack Holt, "The Rustle of Silk" with Betty Compson, "Danger Ahead" with Richard Talmadge and "Borrowed Trouble" with Carter De Haven.

Steve Clemento this week celebrated his thirteenth aniversary in pictures by signing a contract with the Fox Film Corporation to play an Indian character part in David Soloman's "A Man," featuring Dustin Farnum. Clemento, who is know as the bad man from Mexico, holds the championship on knife-throwing and his complete accuracy gained him this important part with Farnum. Bull-dogging, riding, roping and branding have made him popular with all western and out-door picture producers, and as a daring stunt man he holds top honors.

WHEN DOOR SLAMS EVEN EXPERTS JUMP

A door slammed in the projecting room at the Louis B. Mayer studio and proved that Fred Niblo's "Strangers of the Night" has the element of mystery and suspense that the director sought when he began to film the story from "Captain Applejack." The production has been months in the making and weeks in the cutting. It was ready to run the other night and Niblo invited a little group of keen motion picture executives to watch it.

Matt Moore, in the title role, faced Robert McKim, who appears as a sinister envoy of the Soviet. It was a tense moment in the dramatic progress of the story. Lights burned low in the magnificent drawing room of the mansion in which the action occurs. Outside a night storm beat at the casements. Those in the projection room could almost hear the wailing of the wind and the snapping of the curtains.

Then the door of the projection room banged open. The operators who have seen beautiful heroines nudged from cliffs in thousands of pictures; who are calloused to every thrill that scenario writers and directors have been able to inject into motion pictures for fifteen years, jumped from their seats.

"That's a great endorsement for the picture," said Louis B. Mayer—and it was. It indicated the dramatic tension and proved that the rollicking comedy of the stage play had been perfectly blended with the drama so essential to the screen.

With his second independent production for Louis B. Mayer and Metro successfully completed, Mr. Niblo is preparing for his third venture, "Man, Woman and the Devil," a colorful drama of Spain which Miss Bess Meredyth is writing in collaboration with the director.

Caldwell Starts "Hogan"

Alice Howell, well-known character woman, was this week selected by Fred Caldwell to play the leading feminine character part in J. Stewart Woodhouse's original comedy of Irish life, "Hogan in Hollywood." Charles W. Mack will interpret the male Irish character lead. Others in the cast are Violet Schramm, Charles Dale, Jean Metcalf, Victor Potel and Muriel Reynolds. Work on actual shooting was started Tuesday morning at Santa Fe Springs, the story of Mr. Woodhouse being a satire on the oil wealth in the west. George Crocker is turning the crank and Raymond Rounsaville is assisting. This is the first of a series of comedy stories by Mr. Woodhouse to be produced by Mr. Caldwell.

TOURNEUR TO FILM FRENCH HIT NEXT

"Two Little Vagrants," a screen adaptation of a favorite of the French stage, is to be Maurice Tourneur's next picture.

World screen rights to the play have been obtained for 840,600 francs, according to a cablegram received by M. C. pictures, from J. Wilk last night. Mr. Wil khas been in Paris for several weeks concluding negotiations begun in this country some time ago.

Anticipating successful conclusion of negotiations for the play, which Mr. Tourneur has wished for several years to film, an adptation has been completed by Fred Myton, Tourneur scenario chief, and practically all arrangements for work completed. Two prominent child players are awaiting a contract from Mr. Tourneur and as soon as the other principal characters have been cast the camera will begin to grind at the United Studios for First National release. Actual work on the production is expected to begin some time next week.

The play, which is to the French public what "Way Down East" has been to the American public for many years, is a melodrama of novel construction and the picture is to be thoroughly in accord with the Tourneur policy of "shorter and different." The completed photoplay is not expected to exceed six reels in length and will have that novelty and unusual character which have always marked the great French director's productions.

It is possible that Mr. Tourneur and some of the principal players in his new picture will go to France to shoot some of the important scenes, in order to obtain authentic atmosphere.

WILL FILM "TEMPORARY HUSBAND" IN FRISCO

John McDermott, who is to direct "Her Temporary Husband" for First National, is in San Francisco this week, making arrangements for this picture, which, for the most part, will be made in the Golden Gate city.

"Her Temporary Husband," is a screen version by F. McGrew Willis of William Paulton's famous stage comedy of the same title.

It is planned to film the play on a most elaborate scale. According to First National executives, it will be a comedy extraordinary, with a cast including several hundred persons.

Sidney Chaplin, brother of the famous Charlie, is to play the leading male role in this huge comedy production. Other members of the cast have not yet been chosen.

FIRST NATIONAL CONCENTRATES AT UNITED

In order to be in closer contact with the various independent producers who are making First National pictures, John McCormick, western representative of that organization, has removed his office from 5528 Santa Monica Boulevard ,to new and more commodious quarters at the United studios.

In his new offices Mr. McCormick will be on the same lot with Producers Joseph M. Schenck, Frank Lloyd, Edwin Carewe, Sam E. Rork and Arthur H. Jacobs.

With the establishment of McCormick's office at the United studios and the completion of the organization of First National's producing personnel at the same place, all west coast production is centered on the United lot with the exception of the Thomas H. Ince and the John M. Stahl-Louis B. Mayer productions.

The pictures now being made by First National at United are: "The Huntress," starring Colleen Moore and directed by Lynn Reynolds; "Thundergate," directed by Joseph de Grasse and interpreted by an all-star cast including Owen Moore, Sylvia Breamer, Tully Marshall and Virginia Brown Faire. Work on "Flaming Youth" and "Her Temporary Husband" is scheduled to start immediately.

The independent First National pictures now being made at United are: Edwin Carewe's "The Bad Man;" Joseph M. Schenck's Constance Talmadge production, "The Dangerous Maid;" Arthur H. Jacob's Frank Borzage production, "Against the Grain;" Sam E. Rork's Donald Crisp production, "Ponjola."

The personnel of First National's own producing unit, as announced today by McCormick, is: Earl J. Hudson, general production manager; Richard Walton Tully, general production counsel; David H. Thompson, production manager; Clifford Butler, comptroller and cost supervisor; William Ely, casting director; Arthur Fresnedo, chief auditor; Fred Booth, flying auditor; Harry Barnes, cost payroll accountant; Helen Hamilton, secretary to the western representative; Harry Hoyt, head of the scenario department; W. C. Dowlan, head of reading department. The publicity department is made up of the following writers and photographers: Jack Neville, director; Fred Stanley, Mort Blumenstock, Cleve Moore, Harold Matson and Charles Brown.

WEST POINTER DRILLS JACKIE'S GUARDS

Fifty six-footers compose the Palace Guard which is used in Jackie Coogan's forthcoming production of "Long Live the King," now in the making at Metro's Hollywood studios. Each man was chosen not only for his physique but also for his military experience, every one of them having seen service in the World War.

The Palace Guard was trained for the complex series of marching and manouvers by J. M. Fitzmaurice, who has just graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point and who is out in Hollywood with his parents on the customary three months' leave granted to the new officers. Finding time hanging heavy on his hands, Fitzmaurice is combining business and pleasure on the Coogan set and thus also keeping brushed up on his military technique. In the fall, Fitzmaurice will join his new command at Kelly Field, in Texas, since he has been assigned to the Air Service.

Every veteran in Jackie's palace guard has an interesting background. Jack William Votion, although still a youngster, has service medals from the Belgian and British armies and over a score of decorations for bravery on the battlefield. John Runsky, another "guard," spent twelve years as a captain in the Imperial Russian army. Most of the men, naturally, saw service in the A. E. F. or with the Canadians.

LADY WHO KNOWS "LITTLE" BIT" ABOUT PICTURES

Discovered!

Twelve-dollar-a-day carpenters who actually work fast!

When Elmer Harris of Associated Authors took his company to Santa Monica beach for some exteriors of his screen version of "The Love Hater," he selected a stately home under construction for "location." After taking a "long shot," the director, Lloyd Ingraham, moved his cameras up for a close-up, but by the time his cameras were placed in position, the carpenters had made radical progress in their work. After several futile attempts to beat the carpenters' hammers, the astonished director begged the workers to cease their labors until he completed his "shooting."

The lady for whom the house was being built acceded to the picture-makers' wishes, saying that she "knew a little bit about motion pictures." No doubt she did—she happened to be Mrs. Jesse Lasky.

The cast of players on this location included Madge Bellamy, Matt Moore, Kathleen Clifford, S. Reeve-Smith, Stanhope Wheatcroft and George Cooper.

Josephine Adair has just finished one of the major roles in Emory Johnson's "The Mailman" with Ralph Lewis. "The Third Alarm" and "In the Name of the Law" were the other two pictures in which she appeared with Ralph Lewis under Emory Johnson's direction.

POST WILL TOUR WITH "GOLD MADNESS"

Arrangements were completed this week for an extended tour of Guy Bates Post in conjunction with his stellar vehicle, "Gold Madness," which is being presented by William H. Bender. The tour is to be made under the auspices of the Principal Picture Corporation, Sol Lesser and Mike Rosenberg contracting with the star and his represen tative, Mr. Bender, to distribute the picture and back the bookings of the stage celebrity in conjunction with this independent production.

An unusual scheme has been approved by Lesser for the introduction of Mr. Post in a dramatic intermezzo," which will reveal the classic actor's eloquence of voice and gesture and his dramatic power in a unique manner. He will appear in three capacities in this interlude—first as a character in the story, then as an abstraction or cosmic being and then in his own person as Guy Bates Post. The material employed has been written expressly for Mr. Post by George Noel Baker, author, journalist and native of Constantinople where he was born of English parents but later espoused the spiritual philosophy of the East. There is a touch of mysticism, a firm foundation of ethical truth and a noble appeal in the lines assigned to Post that promise to fortify and emphasize the dramatic story of "Gold Madness" and impart an epic bigness seldom encountered in pictureland, says Mr. Lesser of Baker's "dramatic intermezzo." A musical score is being arranged by Constantine Bakaleinikoff.

LLOYD HUGHES FINISHES ROLE IN "HUNTRESS"

Lloyd Hughes, popular leading man for Mary Pickford in "Tess of the Storm Country" and other big successes, has just concluded his characterization opposite Colleen Moore in "The Huntress," a forthcoming. First National picture, soon to be released.

Mr. Hughes leaves this week for his first vacation in two years and will resume work before the camera in the near future. Hughes is one of the youngest leading men in Hollywood and a "local boy." He started his career as a butcher boy not many years ago, but soon acquired the movie bug and hung around studios until he received his chance. He is pointed out as the screen successor to the late Wallie Reid, by many "Wiseacres" in movie circles.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

Lucy Fox has been signed by Fox to play the leading feminine role in their production of "Around the Town with Gallagher and Shean."

Fredric Santley, who just closed as star of "Up She Goes," is going into vaudeville for the summer in an act called "How Do You Do," which was written by two well-known Lambs.

Henry Kolker, who is at present in England directing "I Will Repay," an Ideal picture, is expected to return to New York late in July, where he will start casting for a new production to be made there.

Edith Taliaferro has just completed "The Darkened Doorway," and will immediately start work on a new picture.

Mary Thurman has completed her contract with Famous Players, having played one of the leading feminine roles in "Zaza." Miss Thurman will start work on a new feature at once.

Although he appears nightly in "Helen of Troy, New York," Charles Lawrence is working on a series of comedies to be released in the fall.

Hedda Hopper, who is under contract to L. B. Mayer, has just completed her first picture, and will immediately start work on her next feature. Miss Hopper will probably remain here for about a year.

Dell Henderson, who has just completed "The Love Bandit," a Blaney production, has started casting for his next Blaney special.

Mary McLaren has left for location in Connecticut, where the exteriors of Murray Garsson's next production will be filmed. The title has not yet been decided upon.

Immediately upon his arrival in Hollywood, Ben Lyon was engaged to play the leading male role in "Pansy's Plot," in which he will be featured.

Boyce Combe, who just arrived here, will remain for some time to come, as she has signed a contract to appear in a series of special features.

Immediately upon the completion of "Dust in the Doorway," Miss Virginia Pearson was engaged to play the lead in "Aggie McGuire," in which she will be starred.

De Garcia Fuerberg, who appears as Maximilien Robespierre, "the little lawyer from Arras," in Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche," has mastered in German and Spanish the principal roles of all Shakespeare's plays and all of those of continental authors whose pens have produced classics. Now, together with his motion picture work, he devotes two hours daily to perfecting his English.

Gypsy Hart says her real name is just that, Gypsy Hart. She portrays the historical character of Theiorgne de Mericourt in "Scaramouche," Rafael Sabatini's novel of the French Revolution which Rex Ingram is directing for Metro.

Now that she owns a garage that sells gasoline and such things Viola Dana feels as though she is a real business partner of John D. Rockefeller, a young fellow who has done right well in the oil game.

Alice Terry, the leading feminine player in "Scaramouche," Rex Ingram's monster Metro production, has decided upon Ignatz II and Krazy Kat as the names of the two puppies surviving her pet Spitz dog, Ignatz, who died recently.

"Bull" Montana, curly eared Metro comedian playing in "Held to Answer," which Harold Shaw is directing, has been kept busy ever since the Jack Dempsey-Tom Gibbons July 4 fight explaining how it happened that the champion did not score a knockout. "Bull," who trained with Dempsey for several of the latter's battles, had freely predicted a quick victory for the Colorado mauler.

Rose Dione, well known French actress appearing in "Scaramouche," Rafael Sabatini's stirring story of the French Revolution, says she dislikes to admit she has been in the United States all of four years because she still speaks English with a decided Parisian accent.

Malcolm McGregor, young featured Metro player, has come to the conclusion that youth has its drawbacks. He is trying to grow a full sized beard so that the powers that be may see whether he will fit a certain role in a coming production. The alfalfa crop is making slow headway.

House Peters preached a real sermon and his "congregation" of several hundred persons sang real hymns to the strains of music produced by a real organ in "Held to Answer," which Harold Shaw is directing for Metro. In this picture Mr. Peters appears as a minister of the gospel.

Edwin Argus, the Louis XVI of France of Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche," formerly was social secretary for Zerdrshan, Crown Prince of Egypt during the latter's colorful tour of this country.

Camera! was in error last week in stating that Lorimer Johnston played this role.

John Davidson has been engaged by Famous Players to play the leading male role in "His Children's Children," now being made at the Paramount Long Island studios.

Warren Krech has started work on "The Tide," in which he will be featured. The production is being made in New York.

Cecilia Cameron has completed her role in "Alimony," the Robertson-Cole production starring Ruby Miller.

Mahlon Hamilton will shortly return to Hollywood from New York, where he appeared in the leading masculine roles in two Agnes Ayres productions.

Wyndham Standing is nearing the completion of his role in "The Gold Diggers," the Warner Brothers production, filmed under the direction of Harry Beaumont.

Shannon Day has been cast for the part of the Indian maid in "No More Women," an Elmer Harris Production for Associated Authors.

Harland Wood has completed his role in "The Master of Soul," his latest production filmed in New Orleans in the French quarter.

Jackie Saunders has completed work on "Alimony," Ruby Miller's first starring vehicle, for P. A. Powers.

Sarah Brown, famous as a dancer, has arrived in Hollywood from New Orleans. She will be a pupil of Ernest Belcher and the school of Ruth St. Denis for the teachers' summer session.

Al Martin, who directed the series of Alt and Howell comedies and just recently co-directed with Chuck Reisner at Universal, is now in the scenario department of Mack Sennett's.

Joy Winthrop is playing the part of an old maid in "Upside Down," under the direction of Wm. Parke at Universal.

Peggy Blackwood just finished a character role with the Finis Fox Production, "Bag and Baggage," at the Hollywood Studios.

Newton Hall ten-year-old juvenile, who recently scored a big success in his personal appearance at Loew's State Theatre with the picture "Penrod and Sam," is now under contract with Fox Studio for an important part in "The Temple of Venus," under the direction of Henry Otto.

Harry Burns, co-directing with Charles R. Seeling, has finished "Mysterious Goods," at the Horsley, featuring George Larkin and Charlotte Morgan.

Alton Brown, who recently finished in "Alimony" and "Nobody's Dog," has been cast in the juvenile lead in "The Yankee Counsel" as brother to Douglas MacLean, who is featured.

Billie Butts, the "Little Character Kid" is now with Sol Lesser in "The New Mail Man," directed by Al. Golding, at the Principal Picture studio, taking the part of the son of Harry Langdon.

Harry De Vere is now home, recuperating after an eight weeks sojourn at the hospital. Omit flowers, so says Harry, but give me a ring on the old phone and say, Hello.

A preview was held this week at the Alvarado Theatre of the Grand-Asher release, "One Dark Knight," featuring Joe Rock and Lois Scott. Unstinted praise was given the entire cast, especially the work of Miss Scott, whose future is assured as a comedienne of the first rank.

Charlotte Du Puis, a promising newcomer from the North, whos ework with Charles Brabin in "Six Days" and in Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche" attracted mor ethan usual attention, is considering a call to carry the ingenue lead in a new comedy production.

Peggy Mays, in addition to laurels already won in filmdom, was presented with a huge silver cup by John Steele at the Plantation, in a recent ball-room dancing contest, and but a few nights later won another at the Winter Garden, having been judged the best dancer among hundreds of others.

Jean Hersholt returned Thursday from San Frencisco, where he has been on location for the past four months in Von Stroheim's "Greed," taking the heavy role of Marus Schuler, and will again leave inside of the next two weeks for final location, first at Keeler and then Death Valley, which will spell finis for this production.

DANCE GENIUS HAS OPENED SCHOOL HERE

Mrs. Maude Putman, a pupil for four seasons of Pavley and Oukrainsky, Ballet Masters of the Chicago Opera Company, and for five years head of the dancing division at Stanley Hall and the Northwest Conservatory, Minneapolis, announces the opening of a School of Dancing in the Hollywood Conservatory of Music and Arts, on Western Avenue near Hollywood Boulevard, featuring the Ernest Belcher technique of dancing.

Two of Mrs. Putnam's Minneapolis pupils, who are rapidly climbing the ladder of fame in Hollywood's filmdom, are Eleanor Putnam and Margaret Morris Eleanor has recently finished in Charles Ray's "Courtship of Miles Standish," depicting the role of Mrs. Edward Winslow, playing opposite Thomas Holding, the latter portraying the role of Edward Winslow.

Margaret Morris, truly a star in the making, also attributes much of her wonderful poise and dancing ability to her training under Mrs. Putnam while attending Stanley Hall and while on a visit recently to Hollywood won the approval of the public and critics alike by her excellent dancing numbers at the Hollywood Bowl. Miss Morris' ascendency since joining the ranks of aspirants for supremacy on the silver-sheet has been, to say the least, meteories, she working from bits and small parts to leads in less than a year's time.

NORMA'S LATEST FILM TO GET N. Y. PREMIERE

"Ashes of Vengeance," Norma Talmadge's big 16th Century French spectacle drama, will have its world premiere at the Apollo Theatre, New York, August 6. Completion of arrangements for the showing were communicated to Producer Joseph M. Schenck by his Eastern representatives yesterday.

The Apollo Theatre is one of the big stage play houses of New York. Producer Schenck's move in booking the picture at other than a film theatre is based upon the vastness of the production. "Ashes of Vengeance" is in ten reels, cost about $1,000,000 to make and is said to be destined to rank as one of the biggest productions of 1923.

"Ashes of Vengeance" was directed by Frank Lloyd. The director is now completing the work of cutting the negative from 80,000 to 10,000 feet and supervising the editing and titling.

Jack Richardson has been engaged by Wm. Fox for his new special now being filmed in his New York studios.

DIRECTOR SAYS ACTOR'S THOUGHT IS VITAL

"The young woman who desires to embark on a motion picture career should learn the art of concentration," says Director-producer Chester Bennett. "The art of concentration is nothing more or less than the art of thinking deeply," he continued. "No actor or actress can register a powerful thought on the screen without first concentrating on that thought and feeling it deeply. The expression registers in exact proportions to the amount of thought process devoted to it.

"How many persons who attend motion pictures have not marvelled at the strong facial expressions registered on the screen by such film luminaries as Pola Negri, Pauline Frederick and Norma Talmadge. Take Bill Hart or Ralph Lewis, for instance, when they enact a role that role requires deep emotion, the audience literally feels every scene in every fibre of their being.

"The present age is becoming more and more intellectual and less physical," continued the well known director. "It was but a short time ago that any girl with a pretty face and charming smile could make success in pictures, but that day is gone. The present-day exhibitor and audience want no more screen dumb-bells. They demand intelligence.

"When a director asks an actress to register a deep emotion she has to concentrate and think that emotion with all her strength. If she has not developed her thought process and cannot think she had better quit pictures and do something else.

"The art of motion picture acting is gradually becoming more and more a study of psychology and intelligent thinking," concluded Bennett."

Director Bennett is now engaged in producing his sixth production starring bewitching Jane Novak, "The Lullaby." Fred Esmelton plays the role of the Governor.

STAR'S MOTHER DEFENDS HOLLYWOOD AS IDEAL

"Hollywood is the quietest and finest place to raise a family in the world."

That is the opinion of Mrs. Blanche Philbin, mother of the newly famous Mary Philbin, who is one of the attractive stars in "The Age of Desire."

"Two years ago we came here from Chicago," continued the bustling little mother of the talented little star, "and although we were dubious of the place after reading the scandal, we felt that we could protect our daughter when she entered the films, but our first 24 hours in the beautiful film city opened our eyes to the crime that has been perpetrated against Hollywood, the city beautiful, the city of churches, and homes and art."

"Yes, and there is more sin in one block in Chicago than in the whole of Hollywood," avers Papa Philbin, former railway man of the windy city who is here with his little family. "Why, we're almost afraid to say 'goodnight' after ten o'clock, so quiet is the neighborhood. It's a crime the way Easterners have been impressed as to the morals of this wondrous city."

Miss Philbin plays one of the leading roles in this Frank Borzage picture with Myrtle Stedman, Wm. Collier, Jr., Josef Swickard, Frederick Truesdell, Frankie Lee and others.

Chester Bennett, the producer and director, has signed Sam Kaufman on a two months' contract to make up Jane Novak for her starring role as the prison mother in his production, "The Lullaby." Kaufman's duties are to see that Miss Novak's make-up is letter perfect before stepping within the camera's focus.

BORZAGE STAGES AQUATIC PARTY FOR REALISM

In an effort to secure something new and different from the usual sterotyped atmospheric color in motion pictures, Director Frank Borzage staged a big water carnival for "The Age of Desire," his new pictures for Arthur H. Jacobs.

He found one of the most palatial estates in Southern California at Long Beach where a beautiful swimming pool, surrounded by drooping tress and sunken gardens, was the main scene.

The site is the most beautiful in this part of the state, with cobblestone buildings representing a castle and a grotto at the pool, where the nymphs sported in the water, hired for the event by the millionaire, played by Frederick Truesdell, while his charming wife, portrayed by Myrtle Stedman, looked on.

The whole Borzage troupe went to this location yesterday to work in the scenes with the beauties in bathing array.

The champions of the deep were on hand to register their dives and swimming skill before the camera. Among the stars were Marian Fletcher, Loretta Rush and Katherine Van Buren.

But the star of the day was Sammy Cohn, the eccentric diver who burlesqued all the classic tumbles into the water. His travesty on the aesthetic swan dive was one of the features of the day and was good for a lot of laughs.

Muriel Frances Dana is the latest star in Hollywood to take up the Chinese game, Mah Jongg. Baby Muriel has received a miniature set from a Chinese admirer and may be seen playing with her friends when not at the studio.

NORMAND FEATURE WILL SOON BE FINISHED

In a few days the clicking of cameras will cease on "The Extra Girl" set, and Mabel Normand will take a few weeks rest before starting with the production of her starring vehicle, "Mary Anne."

"The Extra Girl," under the direction of Dick Jones, has been practically completed to date in record time. Despite the fact that this latest Sennett classic was shot in much less time than any previous feature production, it is, nevertheless, considered by those qualified to judge, to be the greatest production ever produced by Mack Sennett and certainly the best vehicle Miss Normand has appeared in.

Although no special date has as yet been set for Miss Normand's next appearance on the screen, it is understood that a premiere will be given her new production in the Mission Theatre, Los Angeles, some time during the early fall, probably the first part of September.

Now that actual photographing of the picture is about over, the work of cutting and editing will begin under the supervision of Mr. Sennett, then will follow the titling preparatory to shipping it to New York for general distribution.

"The Extra Girl" is one of those big human interest stories of the real old homespun type. A story with a strong heart appeal and a good moral behind it and, without fear of contradiction, the producer, Mr. Sennett, claims for Miss Normand's lovable and inimitable personality, that it will never be seen again to better advantage. In this comedy drama, the little star of innumerable successes introduces a new character to the screen, charmingly irresistible, romantic and adventurous.

Nothing has been overlooked or undone which would have improved the picture in any way. When it is unfolded, "The Extra Girl" will cause a stir of excited interest, owing to the technical and artistic detail of its construction, plus its splendid cast of carefully chosen players, of whom Ralph Graves is the lead, with the names of George Nichols, Anna Hernandez, Vernon Dent, Ramsey Wallace, and Charlotte Mineau following, yet equally important.

To Write for Hart

Albert Shelby LeVino has been selected to adapt the original story by William S. Hart, which the veteran Western star will use as his initial starring vehicle on his return to the screen. LeVino returned to the West Coast a few days ago after four months at Paramount's Long Island studio.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, July 23

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	McGill	Cooke	Diltz	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	McGill	Cooke	Diltz	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Wilsor	All-Star	Linden	Stevens	Cullison	"Other Men's Daughters"	2nd Week
Motion Picture Production Co. S. S. Bates, Gen. Mgr.
Denver Dixon	All-Star	Jack Fuque	M. J. Andrus	Wm. Lester	"The Mystery Trail"	2nd Week
Dearholt Productions.
Dick Hatton	Edmund Cobb	Billy Nobbe	McGaugh	Whitcomb	5-Reel Western	1st Week
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Wilshire 4275
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.						313-14
	All-Star				Special Features	Preparing
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
Jack Blystone	Buster Keaton	E. Lessley-Thorp	Rose	Mitchell	"Hospitality"	5th Week
Lou Anger Productions.
Albert Austin	Clyde Cook	H. Thorpe	Robt. Hale		Untitled	2nd Week
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						593576
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Raymond Rounsaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"Hogan of Hollywood"	1st Week
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Rounsaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"Milkman of Hollywood"	Preparing
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 96
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al Herman	Buddy Messinger	Wm. Hyer	Herman		"Lead Pipe Cinch"	Editing
Al Herman	All-Star	Wm. Hyer	Herman	Herman	Untitled	1st Week
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 4070
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd.						439-764
Martin J. Heyl	All-Star	Ray June	Warren Fromme	W. H. Clifford	Feature Story	2nd Week
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 3100
Al Christie	Bobby Vernon	Nacy-Phillips	Hageman	Conklin	Untitled	2nd Week
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr.						Wilshire 2115
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd.
FOX STUDIO. Arthur Forde, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 3000
Buckingham	Stock	Sid Wagner	Jas. Tinling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Slim Summerville	Stock	Jay Turner	Arthur Cohn		Comedies	Schedule
Lambert Hillard	Tom Mix	Dan Clark	Eugene Forde	Zane Grey	"Lone Star Ranger"	9th Week
Eric Kenton	Lew Brice	Vic Scheurich	Max Gold		Comedies	Schedule
Henry Otto	Phylis Haver	Joe August	Hollinghead	Carr	"The Temple of Venus"	9th Week
Roland V. Lee	All-Star	Post	Dan Case		"You Can't Get Away With It	5th Week
Jas. Flood	Wm. Russell	Jos. Brotherton	Walter Mayo	Dorothy Yost	"The Best Man Wins"	5th Week
David Soloman	Dustin Farnum	Turner	Ed. Bernoudi	Dorothy Yost	"A Man"	5th Week
Wm. Wellman	Buck Jones	Don Short	H. Hough	Chas. Kenyon	"Second-Hand Love"	3rd Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 2632
Rocky Mt. Production Co.
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Wilshire 81
Metro Release.
GOLDEN WEST STUDIO. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	Snowy Baker	Edgar Lyon	Harry Tenbrook	Staff	"Dark Faces"	4th Week
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						761711
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStroheim	"Greed"	19th Week
Tod Browning	All-Star	Wm. Silden	Earl Taggart	Kavanaugh	"The Day of Faith"	12th Week
Geo. D. Baker	All-Star	John Boyle	A. C. Eddington	Whittaker	"The Magic-Skin"	10th Week
Victor Seastrom	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Chas. Lapworth	Paul Bern	"Master of Man"	8th Week
Cosmopolitan Productions.
Carlos Productions.
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 162
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
H. Edwards	Monte Banks	Bill Williams	L. Goodman	Staff	"Wedding Rings"	1st Week
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Archie Mayo	Sid Smith	Ken. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	"Husbands Wanted"	1st Week
Joe Rock Productions.
Reggie Morris	Joe Rock	Jerry Ash	Murray-Rock	Merris	2-Reel Comedy	2nd Week
INTERSTATE PICTURES CORPORATION. Jean Burt Calvert, Casting. Culver City, Cal.
J. B. Calvert Productions.
J. B. Calvert	All-Star	Joe Campana	Frank Cameron	Belmont-Woodhouse	Drama	Preparing

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6642 Santa Monica Blvd. J. Jasper, Mgr.						Holly 1431
Harold Llloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Finis Fox Productions. R. R. Beaty, Gen. Mgr.
Finis Fox	All-Star	Hal Mohr	Wm. Dashiell	Lois Zellner	"Bag and Baggage"	5th Week
Richard Thomas Productions.
Douglas McLean Productions. (Associated Exhibitors release). J. R. Crone, Prod. Mgr.
Irving Cummings Productions. Charles Woolstenhulme, Production Manager.
William P. S. Earle Picture Inc. Dick L'Estrange, Prod. Mgr.
Supreme Art Productions. Chas. J. Hall
Independent Art Productions. Richard Stanton, Producer.
Donald Magill	All-Star	J. J. Pasztor				Preparing
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive. Monte West, Studio Mgr.						438740
Horner	All-Star	Geo. Meehan	Middleton	Horner	"Midnight Limited"	Casting
Horner	All-Star	Meehan	Middleton	Horner	"Flame of the Sahara"	Preparing
World Educational Films.
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	"The Forty Niner"	Preparing
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Al Neitz	Big Boy Williams	Hughes		Nateford	"The Eagle Claw"	3rd Week
Seeling	Geo. Larkin	Elmer Dyer	Harry Burns		"Mysterious Goods"	3rd Week
Hercules Film Productions, Inc. P. Andrews, Mgr. 1442 Beachwood Drive.
	Arthur Paul	J. Charles	L. Feldman	Staff	"Fighting Blood"	Preparing
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Palmer Photoplay Productions.
Cortland Productions
Trimble-Murfin Productions.
Laurance Trimble	Strongheart	G. B. Dreyer	Cyril Gardner	Donna Barrell	"Phantom Pack"	23rd Week
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Lloyd Ingram	All-Star	Jos. Walker	Geo. Crone	Elmer Harris	"No More Women"	3rd Week
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	Preparing
LASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vi						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Herb. Brenon	Fola Negri	Jas. Howe	Harold Schwartz	Mathis-Dix	"Spanish Dancer"	7th Week
Wm. DeMille	All-Star	Guy Wilke	Geo. Hippard	Clara Beranger	"Spring Magic"	5th Week
Jas. Cruze	Featured	Karl Brown	Vernon Keyes	Tom Geraghty	"Ruggles of Red Gap"	5th Week
Cecil B. DeMille	Featured	Bert Glennon	H. Tate	J. McPherson	"The Ten Commandments"	7th Week
Geo. Melford	All-Star				"The Light That Failed"	3rd Week
Al. E. Green	Thos. Meighan				"All Must Marry"	Preparing
Jos. Henabery	Doug. Fairbanks, Jr	Chas. Schoenbaum	Dick Johnson			Preparing
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Lincoln 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star	A. Wyckoff	Harry Schenck	A. P. Younger	"Pleasure Mad"	2nd Week
Preferred Pictures Corp. B. P. Schulberg, Gen. Mgr. (Al Lichtman Release).
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	Joe Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
Tom Forman	All-Star	Harry Perry	Sam Nelson	The Leightons	"The Virginian"	5th Week
Gasnier	All-Star	Karl Struss	Joe Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"Maytime"	Preparing
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Harold Shaw	All-Star	Andre Barletier	Nat Watt	Winifred Dunn	"Held to Answer"	5th Week
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Rex Ingram	All-Star	John Seitz	Curt Rehfeld	Willis Goldbeck	"Scaramouche"	Editing
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Victor Schertzinger	Jackie Coogan	Frank Good	McDermott	Mary Rob. Rinehart	"Long Live the King"	12th Week
Allen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar					"The Human Mill"	Preparing
NEVA GERBER PRODUCTIONS. 6735 Holly Blvd.
Dearholtz-Dillon	Neva Gerber	Hutchinson	Wilbur McGough	Dillon	"Sante Fe Trail"	14th Episode
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	G. W. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	4th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford	O'Connell		Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	Preparing
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Eddie Cline	Bowers-De la Mott	Ned Van Buren	Geraghty		"When A Man's a Man"	7th Week
Alf. Goulding	Harry Langdon	Albert Breslau	David Smith	Harry Langdon	2-Reel Comedy	4th Week
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Eddie Hearn			Wyndam Gittens	"Flaming Waters"	1st Week
Lehrman	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"The Three Orphans"	2nd Week
Emory Johnson	Ralph Lewis	R. Fisher	Blystone	Emilie Johnson	"The Mail Man"	6th Week
Emile Chautard	Derelys Perdue			Beahan-Stillson	"Born of the Cyclone"	1st Week
	Geo. K. Arthur				"Jack of Diamonds"	Preparing
Chester Bennett Productions.
Chester Bennett	Jane Novak	Jack MacKenzie	Doug S. Dawson	Loring-Leighton	"The Lullaby"	7th Week
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. C. Walker, Mgr., 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Howe-Cedar	"Paul" Parrott	Frank Young	Henecke-Brandie		Comedies	Schedule
McGowan	All-Star	Harry Gerstadt	C. Morehouse		"Our Gang"	Schedule
Ralph Cedar
	Stan Laurel				1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Roy Clemens	Edna Murphy	Bobby Doran	McBurney		"What Should a Girl Do?"	Schedule
Lon Powers	Dippy Doo Dads	Hank Kohler	Bert Currigan		Animal Comedy	Schedule
Chas. Parrott	Will Rogers	Bob Dorrin	Chas. Oelze		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
Phil Rosen	All-Star	Kurrle-Broening	Al. Davis	Francis Marion	"Life of Abraham Lincoln"	Schedule
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSEL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945-6
B. D. Russell	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	Preparing
Logan-Baynham Productions.
Tom Gibson	Morante	MacManigal	Kane-Walsh		2-Reel Comedy	Preparing
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. B. Seitz	Ray-Miller	Walker-Moran	Wm. Bertram	Seitz	"Way of Man"	4th Week
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Wils. 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
F. Richard Jones	Mabel Normand	Homer Scott	Jim Wright	Mack Sennett	"The Extra Girl"	Editing
Roy Delruth	Ben Turpin	Wagner	Joe Bordeau	Mack Sennett	"Asleep at the Switch"	7th Week
Campbell	Johnnie Lucas	Staub		Mack Sennett	"Rough and Ready"	3rd Week
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Louis B. Mayer Productions, Clune's Studio, 5360 Melrose Ave.
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Edwin-Carewe	Holbrook Blinn	Sol Polito-Storey	Wallace Fox	Finis Fox	"The Bad Man"	7th Week
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Heerman	Constance Talmadge	Glen McWilliams	E. Brophy	Willard Mack	"The Dangerous Maid"	5th Week
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Rose of all the World"	2nd Week
Sam E. Rork Productions.
Donald Crisp	All-Star	Paul Perry	Jas. Ewens	Chas. Logue	"Ponjola"	5th Week
First National Productions.
Joe De Grass	All-Star	Boise	Perry Vrekroff	Wm. Dowlin	"Lord of Thundergate"	9th Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Maurice Tourneur	All-Star	Arthur L. Cobb	John Beal	Fred Myton	"Two Little Vagrants"	Casting
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig Casting.						570-081
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Wm. Parke	Herbert Rawlinson		Tinling	Harvey Gates	"Upside Down"	Editing
Brown	All-Star	Balbino	Dorian		"The Acquittal"	7th Week
Archainbaud	Priscilla Dean		McCarey-Wyler		"The Storm Daughter"	3rd Week
Herbert Blache	Gladys Walton		Sullivan	Hugh Hoffman	"The Near Lady"	Preparing
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson	Robinson	Clarke	Geo. Plympton	"The Steel Trail"	13th Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Baby Peggy		Wright		"Editha's Burglar"	4th Week
Edw. Lumley	All-Star		McDonough		"The Hog"	Preparing
Robt. Hill			Marchant-Kohner		"Crooked Alley"	Preparing
Robt. N. Bradbury			Nordlinger		"The Moon Rider"	Preparing
Wm. Craft			Taylor-Ricks		"Beasts of Paradise"	2nd Week
Leon Lee Productions. Leon Lee Manager.
Dinky Dean Productions. Lew Lipton, Production Manager.
Andy Gump Productions.
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen Mgr.						598131
Dave Smith Productions.
Smith	All-Star	S. Smith, Jr.	Wm. Caldwell		"The Pioneer"	Editing
Larry Semon Productions.
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 418!
Warner Brothers Productions.
Johnny Hines	Johnny Hines	Chas. Gilson			"Conductor 1492"	Scheduled
Wm. A. Seiter	Til-Star				"How to Educate A Wife"	Scheduled
Harry Beaumont	Marsh-Gillingwater		Dave Abel	Frank Strayer	"Daddies"	Scheduled
Wm. Beaudine	Wesley Barry	Dupar	Roth-Webster	Julien Josephson	"The Country Kid"	4th Week
Harry Beaumont	All-Star	Abel	Strayer	Grant Carpenter	"The Gold Diggers"	Editing
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Sidney Franklin	Lenore Ulric	Chas. Rosher	Wm. McGann	Edmund Goulding	"Tiger Rose"	2nd Week
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernest Lubitsch	All-Star					Preparing
Harry Rapf Productions.
Jack Conway	All-Star			Sada Cowan	"Lucretia Lombard"	Scheduled
	Blue-Rich	Dave Abel		Edmund Goulding	"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WILNAT STUDIO. 6070 Sunset Blvd. Al. Brandt Mrs.						Holly 7940
H. Mitchell	All-Star	King Grey	Geo. E. Reehm	Joe Brandt	"Forgive and Forget"	2nd Week

DR. W. I. SCHUSTER
Palmer Graduate Chiropractor
"WHERE THE SICK GO TO GET WELL"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

Hours 2 to 5 Night Calls Accepted
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Post Graduate Chicago and New York
Holly 102-82; 57288 6702 Hollywood Blvd.

INCE ROACH $2 GOLDWYN STUDIOS
578-280 SUNSET TAXI 578-307

Volcano Times Eruption

(Continued from Page 7)

hind except the bubbling lava, like a scene from 'Dante's Inferno.'

"The fumes and gasses accompanying the eruption made us all sick; and a husky Italian cameraman, Fernando Recci, fainted from the effects of the gasses. One camera became so hot that the emulsion melted off the film and we lost about fifteen hundred feet of some very fine pictures.

"The terrific whirlwinds and gales, created by the coming together of hot and cold air currents, enabled us to get what were equivalent to actual photographs of tornadoes In fact, the velocity of the winds was so great that at one time one of my cameras was blown over and one of the photographers had his back strained. Fortunately, he was not seriously injured, and the films in this case were saved."

Mr. King said that he considered himself fortunate to get some of the best action pictures ever taken in the motion picture industry, for his volcanic scenes in "The White Sister," and said that even now it made him feel uncomfortable when he thought of the heat and risks he and his photographers had to take in order to utilize the latest up-heaval of Vesuvius.

Eric Von Ritzau arrived in San Francisco on Friday to join the cast of "Greed," in which he will play the part of the traveling dentist. He has quite a bit of work in the sequences still to be made in San Francisco, and still more in the part to be filmed after the company goes to Colfax the latter part of July. Von Ritzau has the distinction of being not only one of the oldest and best friends of Eric Von Stroheim's early days in America, when they lived together, but also of perhaps as many years' experience before the camera as any actor in the business.

HELLMAN BANK
IS NOW
IN
HOLLYWOOD

Temporary location
6621 Hollywood Blvd.
Permanent home
Hollywood and Cherokee

THANKS-----

I desire to take this means of extending my thanks and appreciation to the many friends who wished me success in the establishing of my new office.

To those members of the motion picture profession who have signed contracts with me to handle their publicity and to personally represent them—I promise to give the best in me—and to those members of the profession who are held back in their efforts to go ahead I welcome you to join my already large number of clients. Let me prove my statements—I know that I can make good for you.

HOWARD
LICHTENSTEIN
COMPANY

Purveyors of Publicity, to Their Majesties
The Kings and Queens of Movieland

6047½ Hollywood Blvd.
Suite One, Conlon Bldg.

Phone 432-030
Hours 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.
Sundays 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Tom Santschi, who has successively been a western star, a high salaried "heavy" and a straight leading man, has been chosen to play opposite Priscilla Dean in her new Universal-Jewel starring vehicle, "The Storm Daughter."

"The Storm Daughter" was written for Miss Dean's use by Leete Renick Brown of the Universal City scenario department and is a sea story involving largely "rough-cut" characters.

Santschi's role will be that of a brute of the ships, yet with some redeeming qualities from the start, and the story is so written that the audience will not know until the last sixty seconds of the picture whether Santschi or William B. Davidson hold trump-hearts. Davidson, formerly a stage player of high repute in New York City, shares with Santschi both the leading role and "heavy" honors.

Pat Hartigan, Cyril Chadwick and Owen Gorine, the latter a newly imported European actor under contract with Universal, are other players cast in the forthcoming Dean production, which George Archainbaud, director of "The Midnight Guest," "The Power of a Lie" and other pictures of note, will guide the filming.

BRUNO
6412 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3821
. . . . for your casting director photos . . . . .

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS GET RESULTS

FOR RENT—High-grade still outfits, $5.00 per week, Little, The Big Photographer, 5874 Hollywood Boulevard. Phone 437-902.

Malamute Pups, pure blooded, look like bear cubs. $50 each. Phone Hollywood 6310 or address Box FRW, "Camera!"

LADIES' WIG—Beautiful brown natural curly hair—parted on side. Good as new. Reasonable. 1118 S. Gramercy Dr. Phone 758-37.

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law
JACK P. LEONARD
340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

MAKE-UP POWDERS
Pure Rice Base
All shades made to order at
YE RUB SHOPPE
621 West 8th St., Los Angeles, Calif.
Phone Metropolitan 1566

Hugh Hoffman
Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip," "Crossed Wires," "The Town Scandal," "Sawdust"

"HAIRGONE"—permanent cure for superfluous hair on arm, limbs, face and body—also wonderful for men who have shaving troubles.
$2.50 the bottle—manufactured at
ORCHID BEAUTY SHOPPE
808 So. Hope St. Phone 16596
All lines of beauty culture.

CHORUS GIRLS
Wanted for stage production
Must not be over 22. Apply
REHEARSAL HALL, 955 SO. OLIVE

WE MOVE THE MOVIES
and Shine on Service
Hollywood 2677 • SAMUEL C. SHINE • 6568 Santa Monica Blvd.

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography
LITTLE
Commercial Photographer
Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

Animated Cartoons—Original Title Ideas
Clay Animation—Miniature Sets and Animated Figures
Cinema Arts Studio
ELMER H. YOUNG, Manager
612 Lissner Building Phone 644-42

Frank The Shoe Doctor
"We save your sole and heel you, too"
6666 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3752

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660
KWIK LUNCH
SERVES U RITE
1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

. . . since they've changed those seats at the stadium I've been able to see every move as though I'd been in a ringside seat. Sure is great now, isn't it? . . . . . .
American Legion Stadium
Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

Living Doubles

(Continued from Page 5)

Mr. Coulson is unknown to screen followers. Mr. Ingram simply recognized the man's likeness to the real Marat and his ability to play the part.

The director thought he found an excellent King Louis XVI but when he saw Edwin Argus in a large group of French aristocrats he changed his mind. The first man was deposed and from that moment until the scenes in which appeared were completed Mr. Argus was Louis XVI.

The young director refused to worry about finding a woman for the role of Marie Antoinette. He simply kept his eyes open, watched faces, and two days before she made her first appearance as Queen of France, Clotilde Delano was selected from a crowd of "extras." She has the same high forehead, prominent eyes, the same mouth, nose, and carriage that marked Antoinette.

It is Mr. Ingram's belief that in seeking to duplicate historical figures facial structure is most important, providing the stature is of the right proportion. He does not permit himself to be misled by mannerisms, the way in which a person's hair is arranged or a person's manner of dress. He looks at the construction of the forehead, breadth and length of face, the position of eyes, nose, cheekbones and mouth.

One of the reasons for Mr. Ingram's unusual ability here is made clear to a large extent by the fact that he made an extensive study of sculptoring under Lawrie at Yale and at the Art Students League in New York. This explains why he secured death masks of Danto, Robespierre and the others. It was necessary to cable to France for some of them. The director would not only rely on portraits of the famous men in the story in his search for their living replicas.

The historical characters in "Scaramouche" bear silent witness to his skill.

Frank Currier, who remembers stage history from personal experience back to 69 and who was stage manager for Julia Marlowe's first stage success, is one of the veteran artists selected by the Universal Pictures corporation to support the diminutive Baby Peggy, aged three-and-a-half years, in her next Universal-Jewel special, "Editha's Burglar." The Frances Hodgson Burnett story will be filmed under the direction of William A. Seiter, director of "The Beautiful and the Damned" and other pictures.

Imported Oriental
Art Goods and Bric-a-Brac
Oriental Costume Co.
6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

Highest Title Efficiency
Our Aim

We secured the services of Mr. Irving W. Bunze from Craftsmen Laboratories, New York, who is the Greatest Hand Letter Artist in the country.

Also introduce the Lane Patent Process for 100% Printed Titles.

"Give Us a Trial"

Quality Title & Film Co.
1442 Beechwood Dr. Holly 4850

Doctors
FORD & FORD
Palmer Graduate
Scientific Spinal Adjustments
Individual Rest Rooms

Anna Mae Ford D.C., Ph. C.
Office Ground Floor
G. Henry Ford D.C., Ph.C.
CHIROPRACTORS
5911 Hollywood Boulevard
10 to 12—2 to 5
Mon., Wed., Friday Evenings, 6 to 8

Hollywood Scenario Exchange
5617 Hollywood Blvd.
Phone 431-420
EXCLUSIVE CALIFORNIA REPRESENTATIVES for THE AMERICAN AND CONTINENTAL COMPANY, Paris, France, agents for well known French plays and published works, including the late Bernhardt's successes.

Studio Space Cheap; Open and Covered Stages!
The Bronx Studio on Glendale Boulevard offers an unusual opportunity for independent producers to save big sum on space renting overhead. Investigate this today!
H. and B. FILM COMPANY
Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275

AN OIL PAINTING

costs quite a sum of money, but you can have your photograph colored to look just as beautiful at a much lower price. My specialty is portrait paintings of the finest type. Special rates on fan pictures.

Emma G. Hoffman
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38

Walter Frederick Seely
Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset)
Telephone 439-774

MARION WARDE

Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films

Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing

423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

Hardee Kirkland's
Phone Number
is
Hollywood
6298

YOUR PHONOGRAPH
will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a

Deflexograph

Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles

Play after hours—will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.

GOLD PLATE $1.50 (see Cut)
NICKEL PLATE $1.00
VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

Young lady—SCRIPT CLERK—desires position. Recently with Fred Niblo. Call Capitol 1698 between 2 and 4 or evenings.

COLBURN'S
Taxidermy Studio
Phone 643-13
1033-37 Broadway Place

---excells in mounting of fish----trout our specialty---
---see samples at our studio

AMERICAN MEN ARE NON-SHIEK, RUBY SAYS

"Paradise, that is the only word which expresses my feeling toward Southern California," said Ruby Miller, the famous actress of the English stage and screen, who has just recently arrived in Los Angeles after a lengthy tour of Australia and the African Orient with her own dramatic organization.

"During my travels, I heard from the lips of excursionists the beauties of this wondrous land. Sonthern California is known everywhere for its unsurpassed beauty and comfort," continued Miss Miller. "All along the way of this advent of mine—in India, in Africa, Rhodesia, Hong Kong, Siam and in Hawaii—I heard of your exquisite climate, your wonderful drives and your haze-softened hills.

"As yet I have seen only Beverly Hills and Pasadena, but it seems as though I were in wonderland. Your people are so sincere and sociable, your women wear the finest clothes in the latest styles, and your men—God bless 'em—are known in Europe as 'Shieks,' but they are very handsome.

"The motion picture 'The Shiek,' caused such a furore in England and the Continent, that the people have an idea that Hollywood is a veritable desert filled with Shieks and harem dancing girls. The 'wild' Hollywood orgies, which are publicized in such a featured fashion by the English and Continental papers, had led persons to believe that they are a daily routine. It has been a revelation to me. Hollywood is one of the most likeable, homelike places in which I ever lived. During my travels, covering a period of many years, I have never seen a place which I would call 'home' in preference to Hollywood.

"I have just been in Hollywood a few weeks and by working both night and day I have just completed my first American-made production, 'Alimony,' for P. A. Powers. I have been starred in a number of English film productions, including 'The Mystery Road,' by the Famous Players-Lasky organization and have been starred in a number of my productions. Paul Powell, the well-known American director, produced 'The Mystery Road' in which another American, David Powell, played the leading role opposite me.

"I will star in the first production to be staged in the new Hollywood Playhouse, now in the process of construction. My producer has made arrangements with the English director, Walter Hast, to produce my starring vehicles, some new plays and we hope 'Three Weeks.'"

Miss Miller created discussion in English stage and society circles with the first passionate kiss ever seen on the English stage. She is also known as the best dressed womna in Europe, and has her own dressmaker in Paris in No. 2 Rue de la Paix, who fashions her gowns six months before being released in this country.

Coy Watson, Jr.
Age 10. Wilshire 3616
No Luck.
You Never Know.
The Right of the Strongest.
Featured in Campbell Comedies

Overweight? Underweight?
Weigh what you want to! Overweight? Underweight? Hard to maintain your normal weight? Something absolutely new! No drugs! No. starvation! No. strenuous exercises. Be well and weigh what you should. Endorsed by physicians. Bring your diet problems to "THE DIET SHOP."
MRS. A. METZNER
Consultant
5621 Hollywood Boulevard

Publicity Engineer
Tamar Lane Holly 737

Wonderful Bargains in Exclusive Clothes, Shoes, Hats for every occasion. These garments worn by Screen Stars and Society Matrons. A trial will convince. Call anytime.
Also disposing of complete wardrobes on a commission basis. See me before you buy or sell
Mrs. James J. Craig
Apartment Shop
Broadway 1258 1206½ Sunset Blvd.

Especially for Motion Picture People.
THE HILLVIEW GRILL
Hillview Apartments Bldg.
Hollywood at Hudson
Holly 7980 Holly 6626
MERCHANTS LUNCH 11:30 to 2
DINNER 5:30 to 8

SCREEN SERVICE
(formerly The Service Bureau)
1036 South Hill
Phone 821-071

Selected Antiques
Turton's Antique Shop
5611 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Cal.

Rainbow Valley

with
RAINBOW VALLEY CLUB
All club privileges with a large cabin site for $198, $298, $398, $498, $10, $15, $20, $25 DOWN and $10.00 per month.

From Glendale—through Montrose, along Michigan Ave., to Tujunga, Sunland, RAINBOW VALLEY.
For further information call or write office of

RAINBOW VALLEY

100 East Colorado St. Phone Glendale 1702 Glendale, California

A Pretty Face, Plus

A pretty face isn't all that is needed to win film fame. A pretty face without the ability to act wouldn't get any girl very far, but, of course, it helps.

Beauty has been the free ticket of admission to movie land for hundreds of would-be actresses, but few of them get beyond the first few rungs of the ladder of fame because they lack the histrionic talent that must go with it to assure success.

It was a pretty face that brought Virginia Brown Faire into filmdom. She got her first part through the winning of a beauty contest and she might still be playing extra and bit parts but for an ability for acting which, fostered by clever direction and ambition on the part of the young player, has brought her finally to within easy grasp of the highest honors that screenland can offer.

Recently Miss Faire signed a contract to play leading and feature parts in a series of First National pictures. Her first appearance under the new contract is in "Thundergate," a thrilling drama with a Chinese and American background, in which Miss Faire is playing opposite Owen Moore.

In this powerful story of the Orient and Occident the talented young actress plays the part of a young white girl who is reared as a Chinese and meets romance when a young American is forced by circumstances to masquerade as an Oriental over-lord.

This same pretty face that brought Virginia into films used to get her into all kinds of trouble back at Public School No. 15 in Brooklyn.

In those days the actress-to-be was a genuine tom-boy. She enjoyed boys' games; she loved to climb fences; play ball—yes, and even fight. Add to these proclivities an unusual supply of physical pulchritude and it is easy to understand why she was looked upon as one of the class' "disturbing elements."

Virginia recalls how, on one occasion, she was punished in school for no other reason than she had a pretty face.

One day she was hard at work over a problem in mathematics, she relates, when out rasped the command of her teacher: "Virginia will change places with William Smithers." This meant that she must take a seat in the back row.

The girl, who was later to become famous on the screen, couldn't understand why she should be asked to make the change. She had been especially attentive to her studies that afternoon. And "banishment" to the back row meant punishment.

Virginia asked the reason.

"Well, there isn't a boy in the whole class who had his eyes on his work," the teacher explained.. "Every boy sits gazing at you instead of doing his lessons. From now on you are going to sit in the back row where they can't see you."

Sheldon Lewis and William J. Quinn, members of the cast supporting Baby Peggy in "Whose Baby Are You?" her recently completed starring vehicle directed for Universal by King Baggot, held a "revival" of stage jokes and anecdotes that occupied all their leisure time.

Ten years ago both appeared in the William A. Brady stage production of "Life" in Chicago. So many things were associated with this period that on the Baggot set all Lewis and Quinn talked about was "who did which and why." This was their first meeting at work in ten years.

Other members of the Baggot cast were Carl Stockdale, Gladys Brockwell, Pat Hartigan, Betty Francisco, Anderson Smith and Leong Duck.

Otto Matiesen

The screen today has no finer character actor than Otto Matiesen. Though young in years he has had a great deal of experience and when on the stage played in the foremost cities of the world. He is a Dane by birth and his countrymen rate him as peerless in the interpretation of Shakespeare and Ibsen. A natural born actor and an artist of magnetic personality he is rapidly gaining widespread recognition on the shadow stage. His most recent portrayals were in "Vanity Fair" and "Scaramouche." Rex Ingram has expressed great faith in Matiesen, predicting big things for him. He is a firm believer in publicity—GOOD PUBLICITY. It is significant that he has placed his publicity with this agency. It speaks well for him and for us.

Fred W. Fox

Motion Picture News and Advertising Service

6318 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, California

Marguerite La Mont

Vermont 5780

Watch For Further Announcement

of

"PG" SMITH PRODUCTIONS

2nd Floor, California Bank Bldg., 6548 Hollywood Bldg.

"Camera!"

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

Los Angeles, California | Saturday, July 28, 1923 | Price 10 Cents

CALIFORNIA

EDITH JOHNSON

CO-STARRING WITH WILLIAM DUNCAN
IN "DANGEROUS SMILES" AT THE HIPPODROME

UNO

AUTHENTIC DETAILS AND PHOTOGRAPHS OF FOREIGN INTERIORS AND EXTERIORS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A.HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

Charlotte Du Puis

INGENUES AND CHARACTERS

Specializing in French, Italian and Spanish roles.
Under Personal Management of Mrs. Harriet C. Higbee.

Holly 9787

MARIA LOREDO

Heavies

Just finished the part of Dolores Mendoza in "The Santa Fe Trail" with Neva Gerber.

Broadway 1205

"Make-Up Headquarters of the Motion Picture Industry"

We have an unsurpassed selection of quality hair goods of all descriptions. Made to order on the shortest notice with painstaking care and to suit each individual requirement. For more than a decade the Zan shop has served the discriminating people of the profession. It has increased in strength, size and service with the passing of the years.

ZAN MAKE-UP SHOP
819 South Hill ····· Pico 498

"Camera!" [The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

ESTABLISHED 1918—A FILM MAGAZINE AND A FILM NEWSPAPER IN ONE
Entered as second class matter, August 11, 1918, at the postoffice at Los Angeles, Cal., under act of March 3, 1879.

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON.....Publisher and Manager
JOHN CORNYN.....Advertising Manager
DELBERT E. DAVENPORT.....Editor
FRED W. FOX.....Advertising Copy
GENE WOOLWAY.....Studio Representative

H. H. CONGER COMPANY, National Advertising Representatives
Marbridge Building NEW YORK CITY
First Nat'l Bank Building CHICAGO
Holbrook Building SAN FRANCISCO

Price 10 cents per copy, $3.50 per year in Los Angeles County. Outside Zone, $4.00 per year. Canada, $4.50, Foreign, $5.00.
Issued on Saturday afternoon of each week at 6318 Hollywood Boulevard, in Los Angeles, California. Phone 439-869
Address All Communications to Camera!

Vol. VI. SATURDAY, JULY 28, 1923 No. 15

The Editor Comments and Opines

Confidence is a great asset, but too many promoters have nothing else to offer.

If big pictures become the rule, a lot of "little" men in the producing game will certainly fail to measure up. Oh well, perchance 'tis just as well.

An unusual increase in the amount of new eastern money being invested in Hollywood film projects is noticeable. Here's hoping the noticing continues to be warranted.

Foreign pictures are conspicuous for their absence in the U. S. A. On the contrary, foreign countries are flooded with American pictures. It's great for us even though it does grate on foreign nerves.

The prospects for a gasoline war should have a soothingly peaceful effect on the long-suffering motorist. Ten cents a gallon is an ample price for "gas" and there is no reason why the gasoline trust should have more than plenty.

Los Angeles bids fair to become the foremost premiere city for big photoplays. It also seems assured of becoming the foremost city for most everything else. Forsooth its future is far more stupendous in promise than its past in actual achievement, which is saying a lot.

The east and middle-west continue to be in the grip of a heat wave and a wave of indignation over the accompanying "dryness." In the meantime, despite the total absence of rain, Southern California continues to be the "wettest" spot in the whole country and everybody is very cool about it.

Many experts agree it is more difficult to make audiences laugh than to cry. Ah yes, after seeing some of the latest two-reel comedies, one is inclined to concede it is far too easy for some comedians to make people weep in boredom. Indeed, the screen could use a few more real comedians who are not so prone to mis-use it.

As time goes on the whole country is getting back to normalcy in a business way, but the wearing on of the same time does not seem to influence the masses and classes of people to manifest more respect for abnormal laws such as that decreeing Prohibition. The solution is simple of course—abolish abnormal laws and replace them with sane ones.

The price of screen rights to successful novels and stage plays is going up amazingly. The sum of $200.000 seems to be a minimum as a price and even this amount was refused recently by the owner of "Lightnin'," the late Frank Bacon's hit. Need there be any reason other than the pecuniary one for encouraging original screen stories more and more?

We predict a nation-wide uprising against blue laws and all the principles actuating those reformers who elect to dictate what the majority shall do. In view of the fact that it is sure to be a bloodless uprising, the sooner it comes the better it will be for the general welfare. Humanity has been burdened with an excess of reformers' zealous delusions long enough and is ready for a shortage thereof.

One New York newspaper attaches great importance to the report that Jack Pickford intends to make his future pictures in Gotham, inferring it to be another sign of that city depriving California of its majority percentage as the producing center. The absurdity of the notion is made perfectly apparent in the mentioning of the fact that Marilynn Miller, Jack's wife, will be back on the New York stage soon and that Friend Husband naturally desires to be wherever his charming wife may be.

It is foolish to expect the motion picture industry to "stay put." Primarily, it is a gigantic business which cannot be easily confined to stipulated limitations. Secondly, it is young and just in the midst of growing into its maturity. So, when anyone calls this industry volatile, the insult intended so strongly is really a compliment—an admission of marvelous expansion. Anyway, some of the literary critics of the film industry deserve much ignoring.

Still another boom in theatre-building activities is under way right now. It is estimated there are more than 3,500 new playhouses under the course of construction at this time with many more planned throughout the nation. Hollywood is to get its share too, having three big ones assured already and a strong possibility of a couple more ere long. One thing certain is no one need worry about the future so far as having some place to go is concerned.

One producer claims there are only eighty-six photoplayers whose names possess box office value. If this estimate is correct, the talent market needs extensive replenishing since there are more than eighty-six producers constantly striving to have those eighty-six players in their pictures. Meanwhile there are definite indications of a veritable public clamor for new faces. Nor is it so easy to find new faces to equal the standard set by the old ones from a histrionic standpoint. The only plausible answer is the establishing of a cinema conservatory at which latent talents may be developed on a scientific and artistic system. Why not such an institution sponsored by all the producers?

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"Dulcy"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

Tom Moore
in
"Dust of Erin"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

Wm. Duncan, Edith Johnson
in
"Dangerous Smiles"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

Hoot Gibson
in
"Shootin' For Love"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

Herbert Rawlinson
in
"Fools and Riches"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Ivan Miller-Elise Bartlett
in
"The Man Who Came Back"

Mission Play
San Gabriel

with
Monroe Salisbury

Exposition

Motion Picture Revue

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

Charles Ray
in
"Alias Julias Caesar"

This Week's Theatre Notes

Jack London's "Call of the Wild," now at the California, is thrilling thousands who love adventure.

Harold Lloyd continues to entertain the throngs that visit Miller's with his latest laugh-provoker, "Safety Last."

"Salome Jane," a story of early California days; Sid Grauman's specialty act, "Thirty Minutes Around Los Angeles" and Herman Heller's orchestra, make up the programme at the Metropolitan this week.

The north woods—its glamour, adventure and risks, are said to live unforgetably and beautifully in Warner Bros.' screen classic, "Where he North Begins" in which Rin-Tin-Tin, the emperor of police dogs, is introduced, to the Loew's State Theatre audiences this week in a world premiere.

"Human Wreckage" held for another record week at the Rialto has in its cast Mrs. Wallace Reid, James Kirkwood, Bessie Love, Geo. Hackathorne and Robert McKim, who display a sensative understanding of the tremendous theme, and a sincerity that is making it an outstanding production of the year.

"Temptation," which comes to the Million Dollar Theatre this week is one of the season's most gripping plays with an all-star cast, including Bryant Washburn, Eva Novak, June Elvidge, Phillips Smalley and Vernon Steele.

Richard Barthelmess and Dorothy Gish are returning to the Alhambra this week in Joseph Hergesheimer's romantic photoplay, "The Bright Shawl," with a supporting cast including Mary Astor, Andre de Beranger, Margaret Sedden, Lois Alberni, Andres Randolf, William Powell, Jetta Gondal and Geo. Humbert. The story deals with the love of a young American who had pledged himself to the aid of Cuban heroes fighting for independence, many scenes of which were filmed on the actual locations in Cuba.

"Legally Dead," a Universal all-star production with Milton Sills in the leading character part, opens the Kinema this week. Adrenalin, the life-restoring drug with which dead people have apparently been brought back to life, is the theme of the story.

The Symphony's offering of Buster Keaten's "The Balloonatic," has proven so popular with local audiences that the management has consented to hold the bill another week .

Lee "Bud" Harrison, favorite black-face comedian of the Hi-Jinks musical comedy company in "Frivolous Maidens" at the Burbank Theatre, will entertain audiences this coming week in a character part that will startle his followers to the nth degree of nothing short of sensation.

This week's offering at the Mission Theater is Rupert Julian's Universal Super-Jewel production of "Merry-Go-Round," presented by an all-star cast including Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry. "Merry-Go-Round" is a story of gay Vienna in the days before the war, with a love story interwoven which takes in both the royal throne of Hungary and a poor peasant girl. This is the western premiere of the production. Ben Turpin's latest Mack Sennett comedy, "Where is My Wandering Boy This Evening," is on the same program.

Pantages offers for the lovers of out-door sport, Hoot Gibson in his hair-raising thriller, "Shootin' for Love," along with a bill of headline vaudeville acts.

Tom Moore, popular screen and legitimate star, comes to the Mason Theatre in person this week in T. W. Gibson's romantic drama, "Dust of Erin." Mr. Moore will be seen at his best in this play, that affords him an opportunity to show his wonderful personality, which has made him such a popular local favorite.

Elise Bartlett, in private life Mrs. Joseph Schildkraut, of the New York Theater Guild, makes her debut to Los Angeles at the Majestic Theater this week in "The Man Who Came Back," a comedy drama written by Jules Eckart Goodman and founded on the story by the same name from the pen of John Fleming Wilson. Ivan Miller is seen in the principal male role. Miss Bartlett comes to Los Angeles after a series of successes in New York, where she appeared in "Lilliom" with her husband, "Peer Gynt," "The Adding Machine," and others.

Charles Ray comes to Tally's this week in "Alias Julius Caesar" and promises a laugh from start to finish. Mr. Ray is seen in an entirely new character which affords him an opportunity to pack his audience with merriment.

Popular William Duncan and pretty Edith Johnson will entertain the film fans at the Hippodrome this week in their latest offering, "Dangerous Smiles." A well selected group of vaudeville acts rounds out the bill.

Roberta de Bergen has finished her role as Harry Langdon's mother in the Principal Pictures, "The New Mail Man," under the direction of Al. Goulding.

California
Main at Eighth

Jack London's
"Call of the Wild"

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Harold Lloyd
in
"Safety Last"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

Jacquelin Logan
in
"Salome Jane"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Rin-Tin-Tin
in
"Where the North Begins"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

Mrs. Wallace Reid
in
"Human Wreckage"

Kinema
Grand near Seventh

Milton Sills
in
"Legally Dead"

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

Bryant Washburn and Eva Novak in
"Temptation"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

Richard Barthlemess
in
"The Bright Shawl"

Hollywood Egyptian
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden

"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mary Philbin
and Norman Kerry in
"Merry Go Round"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

Milton Sills
in
"The Last Hour"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

Buster Keaton in
"Balloonatic"

Anti-Blue and Colorful in Hopes

The vitally fundamental fabric of all human liberty is more at stake in free America than in any absolute monarchy of all history. Unfortunately, the motion picture is a convenient mark for the unscrupulous fusillades of unscrupulous sharp-shooters, who hold that any injustice a reformer may inflict is immersed in righteousness and therefore worthy of approval.

Luckily, there is a counteracting force at work. Glorious in the espousal of the principle of any man's right to be right, this force arises with promising might under the name of the Libertarian League, and, as might be expected, it is a Los Angeles creation.

The league proposes to oppose legislation designed to suppress Sunday newspapers, close news-stands on Sunday, close gasoline and oil stations on Sunday, close postoffices on Sunday, restrict the right to work on Sunday, provide for censoring motion pictures or the spoken drama, forbid concerts, theatrical performances, picture shows or entertainments on Sunday, forbid games, sports, amusements and picnics, and the operation of boats, automobiles, trolley cars, railway trains or excursions on Sunday.

In addition, the heads of the league declared that the nation is threatened with laws which would close drug stores, soda fountains, confectionery stores and cigar stores on Sunday.

The sale and use of tobacco is threatened, and the prohibition of social and interpretative dancing may be expected momentarily, it was said.

All such laws as the foregoing will be combatted by the league wherever proposed, whether in town councils, or congress, according to the announced program, as well as laws sanctioning sectarian or ecclesiastical teaching in the public schools.

The first step in the campaign proposed by the officers of the league calls for an immediate "census of all known Libertarians." A libertarian is defined as "one who upholds the principles of liberty, especially liberty of thought and action."

The proposed campaign for nation-wide education, organization and action against "blue-lawism," has three phases:

Diffusing a knowledge of the principles of liberty and the asserted menace of "blue" laws, and the enrollment of acknowledged libertarians.

Organization of these signators to the principles of the league into political fighting units.

Direct action in the legislative halls of the nation.

In justification of the organization of the league, C .C. Vincent asserted that Sunday closing laws prevail quite completely throughout twenty-one states and censorship in varying degree throughout forty-eight states.

The result is, he said, that on Sunday one cannot go to a ball game in Pennsylvania, or to a dramatic performance in New York state. Soda-water is unpurchasable in Philadelphia on one day in the week, and the delivery of a quart of ice cream in Omaha on Sunday is against the law.

The sale of cigarets on that particular day is unlawful in North Dakota and Kansas, while one may be jailed in North Carolina and other states for working in one's garden on the Sabbath. Sunday dancing and dancing after midnight is prohibited in the city of Los Angeles.

Proponents of the league claim that the majority of people living under the so-called blue laws are opposed to them, but cannot combat them because of lack of organization. It is this needful organization which the Libertarians propose to accomplish, they say.

Charles T. Sprading, president of the league, is declared to be the author of many books and pamphlets dealing with the subject of personal liberty under the law. He has charge of the general direction of the national campaign, and is expected to speak soon on the purposes of the league in the principal cities of the country.

Other officers and directors include H. F. Rossner, national secretary; Charles Lee Swarts, treasurer; John A .Wilson and Alfred W. Lumm, vice presidents; John Martin of Denver and S. Silberberg of New York, directors.

John D. Bradley of Washington, D. C., is to represent the organization before congressional committees, and George Wright is one of the organizers in Los Angeles.

The organization appears to be well financed and today issued Volume 1, No. 1 of "The Libertarian, an Anti-Blue-Law magazine." In this magazine of 40 large-sized pages the purposes of the league were outlined comprehnsively. It will be issued quarterly.

Mr. Delbert E. Davenport,
Editor, Camera!,
Hollywood, Califonria,

Dear Sir:

Your article in "Camera-" referring to motion picture censorship, has attracted my attention. You say: "It is to be hoped some method can be discovered for arousing the public of the whole country to the menace and farce of most censorship". . . . We have discovered the "method"—a lecture service bureau to be used wherever necessary to arouse public opinion and coordinate the efforts of those whose interests are involved, and menaced through Blue-lawism. Our members are enrolled from every state in the Union, and are fighters for liberty on the ground of PRINCIPLE.

No one pays the Blues to work for Blue laws (apparently) yet they work diligently twelve and eighteen hours a day. They believe they are right and they put it over. Our anti-blue law program was originated with this fact squarely before us. Our members will work just as diligently to arouse public opinion and influence legislation against Blue-lawism as the Blues work for it.

Our lecture service bureau is now ready for action. We are alive to the fact that the Blue law advocates are well organized and well financed, and must be met with superior forces, so we have secured the services of the ablest speakers and organizers of the Irish fight for Freedom as the first unit to open the campaign.

From your article, we recognize that you are alive to the danger of the mental paralysis that has been steadily and stealthily creeping over America, and your advice will be helpful to us. The writer will be very glad to discuss it with you at your convenience, and will take the liberty to call you for an appointment in the near future.

CHARLES T. SPRADING.

Chaplin's Champion

Before coming to Hollywood to enter motion pictures George Bookasta was used by Kansas City exploiteers when Charlie Chaplin's pictures were in town. He used to appear in prologues preceding the screening of the comedies and his imitations of the comedian were so clever he soon won wide renown as Kansas City's "miniature Charlie Chaplin." His natural ability as a clog-dancer enabled him to give almost perfect renditions of the famous hop-and-skip Chaplin employs when turning corners.

He has been in pictures only a little over six months and during that time has played in about fifteen productions, including "The Law of the Lawless" with Dorothy Dalton, "Gigi" with Dinky Dean, "The Day of Faith" with Corinne Griffith and with Baby Peggy in "Whose Baby Are You?" His most recent part was with Mary Pickford in "Rosita" and his work was of such high caliber he was immediately selected to play one of the page boys in Douglas Fairbanks' "The Thief of Bagdad," now in production.

He has a younger brother, Baseal, who is playing the other page boy. Inasmuch as they are similar in all respects, they have become very popular as a team, and are rapidly winning their way to cinema recognition.

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., July 23rd.—The days of work on Eric Von Stroheim's production of "Greed" still to be completed in San Francisco grow less and less and they think now that another ten days will see them done here, and on their way. Little Hughie Mack, all the three hundred and sixty-eight pounds of him, has finished his part in the picture, and left for his home in Los Angeles on last Thursday evening. Dale Fuller is also through, has got her O. K., and departed for the South on Tuesday. All the company seems to leave San Francisco with real regret, for they have been here so long that they feel like old residents.

Max Graf, head of the Graf Productions of this city, and his brother, Louis Graf, president of the organization, have both gone to Los Angeles within the past two or three days to complete their cast, and make other arrangements for the production of their next picture. It will be made at the Pacific Studios at San Mateo, with some work at sea off San Francisco, as it is a big sea picture called "Half-A-Dollar Bill."

Victor Fisher, head of the Fisher Productions, left for New York last Tuesday with a print of "Youth Triumphant," first picture made by the organization, to complete arrangements for its release.

Grace Inglis, of the Film Booking Office of Hollywood, arrived in San Francisco on Monday for a few days' stay on business.

The West Coast Productions of Los Angeles have opened a branch office here with headquarters in the Phelan Building, and expect to make a picture at the Pacific Studios at San Mateo in the very near future. As announced, it will be called "Nobody's Child." The story was written by James Calnay, who will also direct its making, and the cast will include such well-known names as Lew Cody, Rosemary Theby, Niles Welch, Doris May, and Dot Farley, it is reported.

Ernest Traxler, production manager for Goldwyn with the Von Stroheim outfit, went to Los Angeles Saturday morning for a four days' stay on business connected with the organization.

Cecil B. DeMille, and about forty of the company engaged in the filming of "The Ten Commandments," arrived in San Francisco Sunday morning. They will spend some four or five days here working on a sequence that is part of the seventh commandment. The list of stars who are among those present includes such well known names as Richard Dix, Robert Edeson, James Neill, James McPherson, Rod LaRocque, Leatrice Joy, and Nita Naldi, and others.

Chester Gore and E. E. Davis of the Lasky forces came to town the middle of last week to get locations, and make preparations for the work of "The Ten Commandment" outfit.

Directors Please Note.—An extra man from the South, pretending to be a director, masquerading as Crain Wilbur, and claiming to be casting for Metro, arrived in San Francisco a couple of weeks ago, and caused many a flutter in the hearts of the local would-be screen stars, by trying out a lot of girls for what he claimed was going to be a big production. As a real proof that he was all he pretended to be, he pointed out the fact that he wore a large gold star on one sleeve, which he said was the badge worn by all good directors. Some idea? A telegram to the Metro Studios, and a few well directed questions, soon showed him up as a rank imposter, and we hope the town is now well rid of him.

Charles A. Logue, now of the First National forces, and his wife, spent most of last week in San Francisco on a holiday trip, and to celebrate their wedding anniversary. Oddly enough, while they were in town the picture playing the Strand Theatre was "The Tents of Allah," which Mr. Logue made, and when you say made in this case you mean it, for he wrote the story, did the continuity, directed it, and was the production manager; in fact, did pretty much everything except act in it.

William Fox was host to a thousand people at the invitation performance given at the Columbia Theatre last Friday night as the feature picture made from A. S. Hutchinson's best-seller. The first night audience enjoyed the picture highly, and its regular showings began on Saturday afternoon, to be continued for a limited time only.

Theodore Roberts, grand old man of the silver screen, comes to the Orpheum for a single week as headliner in William De Mille's absorbing little drama, "The Man Higher Up."

Trixie Friganza headed the bill at the Golden Gate Theatre twice last week. That is, she was there in person with her skit, "My Little Bag o' Trix," and she was there as star in the filming of Mary Roberts Rinehart's story, "Mind Over Matter," Miss Friganza's first picture

LOVE

By Eric Mayne

Love is the most wonderful word in any language!

* * *

And yet there is no word that suffers more from misuse and from misinterpretation than Love.

* * *

Love is the greatest mystery in life, and the greatest power.

* * *

The mystery of Love makes it the greatest power, and that very power makes it a mystery.

* * *

Love has always been, and is, the inspiration of man's greatest work.

* * *

Love is the spiritual expression of the higher life.

* * *

Love inspires the Poet; that is why he is more spiritual than the theologian.

Love is the great theme of the Song's of Solomon, of Dante, of Goethe, of Shakespear, and they live because they inspire man's spiritual imagination.

* * *

The Pious are not always Spiritual, because creeds often mean more to them than Love.

* * *

The man who would send men to eternal punishment because they do not believe as he does; has no Love for God, or anyone else.

* * *

The measure of a man's Love of God is the treatment of his fellow-men.

* * *

"Greater Love hath no man than this, that a man should lay down his life,—not necessarily die, but give his life, in the broader, greater sense,—for another."

* * *

To live for another, for a friend; of if need be for an enemy; is often a greater, and a more useful proof of Love than to die.

* * *

Love does not demand, but where there is Love there is no alternative.

* * *

To live without Love is the greatest tragedy of living.

* * *

To live with Love is the great Hope of humanity.

* * *

We may have Leagues of Nations, and Peace Conferences, at the Hague—or elsewhere—but until Love permeates the heart, and dominates the life of man, we still have our sounding brass and clanging cymbals.

* * *

We have the knowledge of Good and of Evil, but we have the Serpent also, only Love will give us the strength to crush that enemy and dwell in the freedom of Truth.

* * *

While there is Love there is Hope. We may speak Love in feeble accents but we are learning the language of Paradise.

* * *

They, who for Love have undergone,
The worst that can befall,
Are happier thousand fold,
Than those who never loved at all.

MOVIE ART ON PAR WITH NOVEL

By Maurice Tourneur

The press has been filled recently with attacks on "the motion picture," as if the motion picture was a distinct entity, with no variation in its quality. But there are good pictures, as well as bad pictures and indifferent pictures. To attack all for the sins of omission and commission of the few is unfair. No conscientious writing man can adequately defend the modern novel from attack. There are bad novels and indifferent novels as well as good novels. Yet all do not suffer in the esteem of the critics for the sins of the few.

Of course, hte motion picture has not risen to the height to which Cabell, Machen, Hudson and others have raised the novel. But there are many, many pictures which excel in artistic value the works of Harold Bell Wright, Gene Stratton Porter and other novelists of the popular school. And the motion picture art is newer by generations than that of the novel.

Rose Dione, French actress who is in "Scaramouche," Rex Ingram's monster Metro picture, served as a nurse during the world war. She entertained at camps and hospitals during the day and did active nursing duty each night.

One of the Real Romances of Romantic Hollywood

By Lucile Erskine

A hushed group was listening to a young violinist playing not more than a decade ago. His name was Haroldi and he was of the race of Paderewski and enough like him to pass for his brother. About them was the exotic beauty of Hollywood, that even then with the amber light of after sunset back of its hills and its flowering courts resembled those of Greek cities still a-bloom along the shores of the Mediterranean like imperishable lilies.

Among the listeners were Gertrude Ross and others who have proved to the world that California can be another Italy in her nurture of the arts. From the strings of the violin came a Polish melody, melancholy, exquisite. For what this crushed race has learned in suffering, they are able to tell in song. Listening intent too, but probably unnoticed by the older ones in the group was a little girl, Kascia, the daughter of the genius with the violin.

But at the early age of thirty-three death stilled the hand of the gifted young musician. He had time, however, before going, to tell his little daughter his wish; that she was to devote her life to some art.

At seven little Kascia was a successful child actress in pictures. Then she was whisked away to be educated, but that completed, Hollywood and the pictures proved too strong a lure. She returned.

And now in an apartment softly colored in one of Hollywood's villas in that quiet hour when the same amber light assembles back of the hills, she plays one of her father's compositions for the piano. Watching the flash of her hands in the half-light, they reminded me of a cast I once saw of Duse's; the same narrow palm and fingers like slender petals, hands not made for any manual work, but only for gesture and expression.

She has followed her father's wish and chosen that art towards which her spirit directs her pictures. And what a preparation her Polish blood has already made for her! Defeated politically for centuries, the Pole has turned to art for surcease, his very spirit has breathed in that sphere alone. Chopin's music was the cry of his country's pain. And it's in Bertha Kalisch's sad, beautiful face and in her sombre art. Kascia Haroldi has an Italian strain besides, added artistic wealth in her veins. This shows in her midnight eyes, full of expression and revealing a quick mind back of them. They and her aureole of gold-dust hair give her the look of a Florentine painting.

Already she has two possessions that ought to make for success in her chosen career, youth and maturity of mind. At an age when the American girl is apt to be a flapper and is occupied mainly with jazz, this student is using every minute in serious preparation for her life work. The time not spent at the studios is devoted to music. She writes too, and is skilled in interpretative dancing. In the last picture in which she appeared at Goldwyn's, her dancing was especially praised by the director. She never attends parties. And this sixteen-year old girl knows nothing of love. But then Mary Anderson was able to give all the fire of Juliet when she was just out of the convent.

Kascia gives me the impression of a beautiful, even dawn. I feel stilled, at peace in her presence. Being on the threshold of success is as wonderful in a way as success itself. A certain atmosphere of confidence, of power is felt in those whose spirit tells them they have something to give the world and that it is going to listen. Part of her poise of course comes from lack of financial worry. The commercial side therefore does not obscure the spiritual.

Kascia Haroldi.

"I love everything connected with the moving pictures," she said, speaking in the soft modulated tones that suited the room, the music, the hour. "The smallest part gives me a thrill. And I have no preference. Until I can do the big things, I am content to do supremely well whatever is offered me." "No," she replied to a question I put to her, "I don't exactly study a part. I rely on my emotions to guide me. They and the inspiration I get on the set produce the psychological moment. Then I lose my own identity and become the character. I live it. I am it."

Pola Negri, Nazimova and Norma Talmadge are the three greatest artists on the screen she thinks. "I went to see 'Smilin' Through' five times and each time Norma Talmadge's work was as surprising as the first. Her art is so rich, so abundantly creative that she has something new to offer you every time you repeat a visit. I felt I could never exhaust her."

The temptations and the obstacles which make the precipice of success so steep in Hollywood have not daunted her. She believes the will is given to everyone for the battle against circumstance.

"My imagination pictures me a success. My will is to be its servant and build that pictures in the tangible brick of achievement."

And already, a mere novice as it were, her career has started enviably. She has been in all the big pictures of the last year from "Omar the Tentmaker" to "The Ten Commandments." And always the unique quality of her art has marked her for notice.

Kascia has an American mother, but she seems to have that passionate consecration to art that is Slavic. It is from her people in Eastern Europe, from Russia and Poland that the art of tomorrow, one might almost say of today, is to come, if the furor the Russian players produced in New York is an augur of the future.

Her preference is for foreign artists. "Because," she puts it with the candor, that characterizes everything she says, "they have not as a rule that affectation and those mannerisms that so often cling to the American woman on the stage and on the screen, even when she has reached a height in her art that demands absolute sincerity."

But there is little that is critical coming from her lips. She is happy, free, her foot already securely placed on the steps that lead to the heights. Hollywood is a garden to her, full of beautiful memories. She is never happy away from it. To others it is a fierce and bloody arena where so many go down. And success when won takes its toll in compromise.

But Kascia Haroldi's art will open as serenely as a flower. It's delicate and exotic and it belongs to Hollywood.

GYPSY HART RE-DISCOVERED BY REX INGRAM IN "SCARAMOUCHE"

While young motion picture artists such as Gypsy Hart are available there is no need to worry about a lack of new screen faces, is the opinion advanced in a recent article by a leading screen magazine writer.

Miss Hart has an important historical role in "Scaramouche," Rex Ingram's monster picturization of Rafael Sabatini's novel of the French Revolution, but when the picture started she was merely "among those present." Mr. Ingram selected her from the hundreds of aristocrats who appeared as spectators in the National Assembly scenes.

Miss Hart must have potential screen qualities, for although the young director did not discover the fact until later, she is the same girl whom he caused to enter motion pictures while he was directing at Universal City some years ago. She had been a visitor and Mr. Ingram, whom she met at the studio, told her that if she wanted to be an actress he would give her a part in his next picture.

She played ni two of Mr. Ingram's pictures, "The Reward of the Faithless" and "The Flower of Doom," following which she appeared in other productions. Miss Hart was just becoming well known when she retired to private life. A year ago she returned to the screen.

"I decided to start at the bottom of the ladder and try to climb up again," she said. So she did "extra" work and when she first appeared before the camera in "Scaramouche" she was still just "atmosphere." Then Mr. Ingram saw her and as a result of her excellent work at Theiorgne de Mericourt she appears to be on the road to success again.

Miss Hart spends a total of several hours every year explaining that Gypsy is her real first name and that she is not related to Bill Hart, although like him, she rides a horse unusually well. Gypsy Hart comes from the center of a cattle country, Temple, Texas.

"It's near Waco," she always explains, which indicates the size of the metropolis of Temple.

"Bull" Montana is portraying a crook role in "Held to Answer," Peter Clark MacFarlane's story which Harold Shaw is directing for Metro. Mr. Shaw told "Bull" it would not be necessary for him to put on any make-up. Now the burglar faced comedy star is trying to decide whether he was complimented or otherwise.

News and Gossip About the Moving Throngs of Movieland

Entertains Frohman

Carmel Myers, now playing in George D. Baker's production of "The Magic Skin," gave a luncheon at the Goldwyn studios in honor of Daniel Frohman, President of the Actor's Fund, who is in Los Angeles to promote the interests of this charity. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Lehr, George D. Baker, Conrad Nagel, King Vidor, Rupert Hughes, Josephine Quirk, Carey Wilson, Gilbert E. Gable, June Mathis, Mrs. Myers, Mae Busch, Herbert Howe, George Walsh and Bessie Love.

Lefty Flynnn Is Hurt

Maurice (Lefty) Flynn is taking an enforced vacation. It seems that during the filming of "Salomy Jane," in which he played the lead, his arm was badly wrenched in a fight with the villain. Rather than delay work, Lefty went on without telling anyone about his arm, which pained him terribly. After the completion of the picture he had his arm examined by a doctor, with the result that he is now confined to his bed with a badly lacerated and broken arm. The patient is doing very nicely, and the members of the cast, out of gratitude, keep him well supplied with fruit, candy, flowers, etc.

Australian Notables Meet

It was all Australia the other day when Sidney Herschel Small, the author of "The Lord of Thundergate," visited the United studios, Hollywood, to see the filming of First National's "Thundergate," which was adapted from his novel. Mr. Small is an Australian and he felt right at home when the studio guide introduced him to Sylvia Breamer, also an Australian, who is playing a leading part in his picture, and later introduced him to Enid Bennett, another Australian, who is playing the leading feminine role in "The Bad Man," also a First National picture.

"No More Women" starts

"No More Women" is the intriguing title chosen by Elmer Harris for the Associated Authors production of his story, work upon which commenced this week. This is the third Authors production following the Frank Woods production of "Richard the Lion Hearted," and the Thompson Buchanan production of "Loving Lies," a film version of Peter B. Kyne's sea story, "The Harbor Bar," which was recently completed. "No More Women" features an all-star cast including Madge Bellamy, Matt Moore, George Cooper, S. Reeve-Smith, and Stanhope Wheatcroft. It will be directed by Lloyd Ingraham under the supervision of Elmer Harris.

Sylvia Repeats

Sylvia Breamer, who is now playing one of the leading feminine roles in "Thundergate," a First National picture, has been cast to play an important part in "Flaming Youth," a First National picturization of Warner Fabian's widely discussed novel of modern life. Miss Breamer portrays the role of "Dee Fentriss," one of the three ultra modern sisters whose multitudinous love affairs form the basic plot of the highly dramatic play. "Flaming Youth," goes into production at the United studios, Hollywood, within the next two weeks. John Francis Dillon is to direct it. An all-star cast will interpret the several roles including Colleen Moore, in the leading part, Milton Sills, Myrtle Stedman and Elliott Dexter.

Chimes of Dumb-bells

Gale Henry, popular comedienne, who is now playing one of the principal roles in "Held to Answer," an all-star production being made under the direction of Harold Shaw at Metro, strolled over to a soft drink stand the other day between scenes in the picture to enjoy a cold lemonade. "Please put some shaved ice in it," said Miss Henry. The new clerk hesitated. He had never heard of such a thing. In his attempt to be obliging, however, he reached for a safety razor blade underneath the counter and thereupon tried diligently to provide his customer with "shaved ice."

Resurrects Old Autos

Cliff Bowes and Virginia Vance, comedians, doing their stuff under the Cameo brand of Educational Pictures, are appearing in a one-reel comedy, "Wrecks," which has for its locale a boneyard for worn-out automobiles of all descriptions. Hundreds of cars, waiting to be junked, are shown in the picture. Many of them are of models which date back to the early days of motoring and there are a few of last year's model that tried to climb trees or beat trains to the crossing, all waiting their call to be broken up and sold for junk.

New Mermaid Comedies

Work on the first of a new series of twelve Mermaid Comedies for distribution through the Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., has been started by Jack White, the young producer-director of Educational-Mermaid Comedies. Lige Conley is in the leading role, and Hughie Fay directing. Lillian Hackett, Jack Lloyd, Otto Fries and Spencer Bell, the inimitable colored comedian are in the cast.

"Bad Man" Near Finish

Two more weeks and Edwin Carewe will be finished with "The Bad Man," which he is filming for First National. The entire company, with the exception of Holbrook Blinn, whose scenes have all been taken, is now located at Victorville, where the concluding scenes of the production will be taken. These include all the bandit outrages and cattle rustling scenes along the American-Mexican border.

Doug, Jr., Starts August 1st

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., will start production work in his initial starring picture for Paramount about August 1 under the direction of Joseph Henabery, according to an announcement by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice president of the Paramount organization. Richard Harding Davis' famous story "The Grand Cross of the Crescent," will serve as the thirteen-year old star's first vehicle. According to the Paramount production authorities this title will be changed before the picture is released. Theodore Roberts will be featured with the young star, with Noah Beery in support. Elfred Bingham adapted the Davis story to the screen.

Uses Famous Characters

"William S. Hart in Wild Bill Hickock" is the way the famous Western star's name and title of his first picture will appear in electric lights when his initial Paramount Picture following his retirement is released. The story is an original by Hart and deals with the stirring period of Western history from 1866 to 1872. As characters in his story the star has used many of the vivid personalities of the period including William B. ("Bat") Masterson, Wyatt Earp, Chalk Beeson, Charlie Bassett, Bill Tighlman, Luke Short, Doc Holliday and the outstanding feminine personage of the time—Calamity Jane. Albert Shelby LeVino is adapting the story to the screen.

McGowan Uses Logic

Bob McGowan, who has made a name for himself directing the "Our Gang" comedies at the Roach studios, figures the best way to make kid comedies is to become one of the boys yourself, and make the tots feel that you are with them heart and soul and don't make work out of their play. There is a whole lot of logic in this, and one has just to journey down to the Culver City plant and watch Director McGowan work with his charges, and see how "unconscious" the little actors and actresses are as the cameraman is filming their every move.

Wilson Prepares Another

Ben Wilson is preparing for the start of "Leave It to Gerry" in which Billie Rhodes will star for Grand-Asher, some time next month. Among the scenes to be constructed and locations arranged, are a palatial home in Chicago, a girl's school dormitory, a humble home in a small mid-west town, a beautiful lake for a school regatta, a back-yard menagerie, etc. The matter of cast is also important because there are a number of very complex roles and the best players obtainable will be selected. The story, by Adam Hull Shirk, is now being put into continuity form. Miss Rhodes is studying the role assiduously, and everything points to a very successful picture which will mark the return of Billie Rhodes to feature films.

As Filming Goes

Ten trips across the bay from San Francisco to Oakland and back were required to get certain scenes for a Ben Wilson production in which Bryant Washburn and Mabel Forrest are featured for Grand-Asher. Only Miss Forrest, the assistant director, Webster Cullison and the cameraman went North for the scenes, but as Miss Forrest says, they did enough work in one day for a whole company. Besides the ferry scenes were others at the St. Francis Hotel and all in all, the flying visit to the bay city was a strenuous one. The company now making "Other Men's Daughters" under Ben Wilson's direction, is working very hard to complete certain important scenes, and several night sequences have kept the players and staff busy at all hours.

Rock Makes Animal Film

Reggie Morris, Grand-Asher comedy director, believes in animals in pictures—despite that he has almost turned gray in the last few days. What with dogs, a baby and a big brown bear, the set for Joe Rock's newest comedy which he is directing, has been one of the busiest spots at the Grand studios. John Brown, the noted wrestling bear from the Canadian Rockies, is in the picture and it is rumored there are still more animals to come. The comedy has not yet been titled.

Jack Curtis In It

Jack Curtis, character actor, who recently distinguished himself by his handling of a role in "The Spoilers" at the Goldwyn studios, has been added to the cast for Tod Browning's production of "The Day of Faith." Curtis is to play the difficult part of Red Johnson in the Arthur Somers Roche story.

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, JULY 28, 1923

KOSLOFF HEADS A GREAT FILM PROJECT PLANNED TO AID FAMISHING RUSSIA

The first announcement of a $5,000,000 international film corporation was made in Los Angeles this week by Theodore Kosloff, who will have a prominent part in the organization. This motion picture corporation, which will have stockholders from almost every nation in the world, is organizing with the specific intent of bringing peace and plenty to war-torn, famine ridden Russia.

Kosloff, who is a Lasky motion picture star, will give up his own promising career in American and return to his own country to help with what he feels is the most momenteous project of modern times.

Kosloff has still four months of unexpired contract with the Lasky-Famous Players which he will fulfill. He expects to leave soon after that for Paris to confer with his brother--in-law. His family will remain in America, where he will maintain a home for a time, at least.

The corporation will have its headquarters in Paris and its releasing field will be centered in Russia exclusively.

E. Altswang, brother-in-law of Kosloff, who was known before the Russian revolution as the "richest man in Russia," is the promoter and the president of the corporation. Altswang is now in Paris completing the plans of the organization. He has just returned from Russia where he made a complete canvass of the situation and signed up 320 Russian cities, each city pledged to support two theatres. Kosloff, himself will have the unique association as director, actor, producer and exhibitor.

"To me," says Kosloff, "this is the biggest thing in the history of the world, because it is the first real step toward the brotherhood of man. Young children of all nationalities can play harmoniously together, because their desires are the same. It is only when men begin formulating creeds and imposing duties that they go to war. We are going to produce pictures that will demonstrate the kinship of the human race and Russia, through her own amalgamation, is going to be a factor in cementing the brotherhood ties of the world.

"Russia today needs two things, bread and happiness. The motion pictures will help to bring both. We will exhibit American made pictures and German made pictures, we will have English actors, French designers, Russian directors, and in our corporation we have Russians, Americans, French and Germans.

"While pictures that will divert, that will amuse, that will give joy to the pleasure-starved millions of Russia will be shown, we are setting out definitely with the intention of re-awakening the soul of a people and helping that soul attain its highest expression."

FILMS TO REVIVE BYGONE SONG FAVORITES

What promises to be a unique and novel addition to the present-day theatre program is contained in an announcement from E. W. Hammons, President of Educational Film Exchanges, Inc.

Educational has just completed arrangements to distribute a series of one-reel pictures to be known as the "Sing Them Again Series," production work on which will start at once under the supervision of Norman Jefferies who has been associated with moving pictures and theatrical enterprises for the past thirty years.

This series will be designed as a modernized revival of old favorite songs which any gathering will welcome the opportunity to sing again. While the house musicians play the score, the verse and scenes and characters of the song will be pictured in motion on the screen. Then the familiar words of the chorus will be thrown on the screen for everybody to join in while accompanied by the house musicians.

It is hoped that the series will be confined to such old favorites as "Silver Threads Among the Gold," and "When You and I Were Young Maggie," and that no attempt will be made to picturize "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

Mae Marsh in "Daddies"

Mae Marsh has signed a contract to star in the Warner Brothers picturization of David Belasco's play, "Daddies." Miss Marsh will portray the part of Ruth Atkins.

"KID" FINISHES HIS BIGGEST PICTURE

This week marked the conclusion of filming on Jackie Coogan's "Long Live the King," the Mary Roberts Rinehart story which will be his first release for Metro. Director Victor Schertzinger and Jack Coogan, senior, who supervised the entire production, handled the "shooting" of the final episode, in which the newly-crowned boy king grows drowsy in the midst of the long-winded reading of his coronation proclamation and, just like any eight-year-old after a hard day, falls asleep right on his throne.

The simplicity and naturalness of this appealing bit of action in the gorgeous surroundings of the great Throne Room are typical of the entire production. Dramatically adapted by Eve Unsell and C. Gardner Sullivan, superbly acted by Jackie and a talented supporting cast, the story has been mounted at a cost actually exceeding $650,000-.00.

"Long Live the King" is by far Jackie's most ambitious and costliest screen offering. Its plot is filled with adventure, romance, intrigue and homely boyish pranks and escapades. Among the larger sets is the capital city of Lavonia, for which more than 2500 people were employed during the carnival sequence and which contained 38 buildings, streets, fountains, and other structures, representing an outlay of $250,000.00, including the extras' paychecks.

Supporting Jackie in this picture are such tried and true favorites as Rosemary Theby, Ruth Renick, Vera Lewis, Alan Forrest, Alan Hale, Robert Brower, Walt Whitman, Raymond Lee, Monti Collins, Sam Appel, Larry Fisher, Alan Sears, William Machin, Ruth Handforth and Loretta McDermott. Frank Good was chief cinematographer with Robert Martin, second camera-man. J. J. Hughes was art director, Walter Israel, costumer, Irene Morra, editor, and W. V. Brincken, director of research. E. A. Biby, studio manager, assisted Jackie Coogan in all branches of the production.

GOLDWYN WILL FILM NOTED GULLIVER

"Gulliver's Travels" is to be filmed on a magnificent scale by King Vidor, Goldwyn director, according to announcement last night by Vice-President Abraham Lehr.

Probably no recent communique from the screen front has caused so much interest. The Jonathan Swift classic is as well known as "Ben Hur" and it presents marvelous pictorial possibilities.

It was learned that Mr. Vidor and the Goldwyn company have been making secret preparations for the production for the last month. Elaborate and detailed photographic experiments have been completed. The ingenuity of director and cameraman will be tested in showing Gulliver's visit to Lilliput, where he is a giant in comparison to the natives, and to Brodbingnag, where the size of the inhabitants makes him the smallest dwarf.

"Camera tests at the Goldwyn laboratories have proved that these things can be shown on the screen with absolute fidelity," said Mr. Vidor last night. "The motion picture is the ideal medium for the telling of 'Gulliver's Travels,' much better than the printed work, although I am not saying that we shall do a better job than Swift did.

"I have long wanted to film this classic, which appeals to the young by its fantasy and to the adult by its satire. It has been in the back of my head for a long time and I have just been waiting for the opportune time to do it. My association with Goldwyn gives me the facilities for such a production.

"I believe there is a crying need for more imaginative and fanciful productions on the screen. Our growth has been retarded by our worship of realism. Most people get their fill of realism in their own lives and they seek escape into the realm of imagination for their entertainment. The cinema is ideally suited to portray fantasy and myth."

Mr. Vidor will not direct "Gulliver's Travels" until after he has finished "Wild Oranges," Joseph Hergesheimer's novel. He and his staff will leave in a few days to film the story in the exact spot described by the novelist, thirty-five miles from Savannah, and on St. Simon's Island, off the Georgia coast. The cast, not yet announced, will follow later.

MEETS ZULU MAN HE KNEW 20 YEARS AGO

The world's a small place!

Randall Faye, technical director assisting Donald Crisp in the filming of "Ponjola," Cynthia Stockley's story of South African life which Sam E. Rork will present through First National, has a remarkable memory for faces.

Recently he had occasion to visit an office in a tall building in Los Angeles. The elevator operator was a negro. All the way up to the tenth floor Faye tried to remember where he had seen this man before. But he couldn't.

Several days later a large number of black men were used on a "Ponjola" set at the United studios. Among them was the negro elevator operator. Again the face caused Faye to wrack his brain.

But it was not until the negro appeared before the camera in South African costume—or rather lack of costume—that the technical director identified him.

He was a full-blooded Zulu who had been a servant in Faye's family in Rhodesia twenty years ago!

Just to prove to Anna Q. Nilsson and James Kirkwood, leading players of "Ponjola," that the negro was a Zulu, the two held an animated conversation in the dialect of that tribe and exchanged reminiscences of the Matabelle rebellion.

NAGEL LAUNCHES BIG REAL ESTATE PROJECT

Conrad Nagel, Goldwyn screen player, has announced his plans for the subdivision of his two ranches in Monrovia, California.

One ranch, devoted to the raising of watermelon, honeydew and canteloupe, is 40 acres, and valued at $65,000. This section Nagel intends to sell in tracts of five lots to a purchaser, for residences.

The second Nagel ranch is 25 acres and is covered with orange trees. As the location of the smaller tract is much nearer the business section, Nagel intends to subdivide it and erect apartment houses.

The selling and handling of the ranches will be entrusted to Nagel's foreman, who, with a crew of several men, has been working the ranches for several years.

Nagel is now working in Victor Seastrom's production of "The Master of Man" at the Goldwyn studios, but will find time to supervise the subdivision of his land.

Vincent Coleman has started work on a series of specials in which he will be starred. All of the pictures will be made in New York.

LEADING MAN MUST LEAD IN WORK, TOO

That the leading man has greater obstacles to overcome in registering with the public and that he must work harder for success than any other member of the acting profession in motion pictures, is the contention of Lloyd Hughes, leading man for Mary Pickford, Colleen Moore and other celebrities.

"The character man has his bag of tricks in the way of striking make-ups that go a long way toward helping him put over his part," says Hughes. "This also applies to the character woman, of course. An effective make-up to the character actor is what the voice is to the stage actor. The leading man has neither to rely upon when working in films.

"The leading lady too, has a big handicap over the leading man. An attractive girl always has more appeal to the public. That's why the pictures of women in newspapers are always the majority and the pictures of men, the minority. An attractive girl, whether she's attractive in personality or looks, has the appeal to her own sex as well as to the opposite sex. A handsome man does not get much attention from his own sex.

"A child always has that universal appeal that registers with all ages. A child will always draw sympathy—a talented child wins immediate acclaim.

"The villain, while never winning sympathy, wins recognition by his sheer villainy. The more startling his deeds the greater success he is.

"The leading man, however, is shorn of most of the aids to success that are enjoyed by the others. If he is good looking he will have a certain amount of fundamental appeal to the flappers, of course. This is his only aid. He is pictured as he is. He must realy solely upon his training, his talents. He has 'nothing up his sleeve.' Whether he is a born actor or a developed actor, he has a harder row to hoe than his brothers and sisters in the profession."

FILMS BATTLE WITH 2 BIG CALIFORNIA LIONS

H. A. Snow, of "Hunting Wild Game in Africa" fame, just returned from Tuolumne County, where he has been making a picture of hunting lions in California. With Snow's party was his son, "Sidney," as cameraman, also J. C. Bruce, State Lion Hunter of the State Game Commission.

Picking a spot where reports have come of the large loss of cattle this season, the party had a most successful hunt. Two very large lions, or cougars, were rounded up and the battle was on. While both Snow and Bruce were closing in on the largest of the two animals, and Sidney Snow getting action with the crank, the smaller one was so close to the camera it was necessary to move back in order to get a good shot.

Just as this move was made the larger one came into view and sprung at Sidney Snow, catching him on the left arm, and inflicting several deep scratches. At this moment two shots rang out, hitting the large animal, who was so close the blood struck Sidney Snow and the tripod legs. The picture shows action every minute and is full of real thrills and excitement. Snow states he will have this production finished about the last of September.

Ned Holmes, well known showman, has been engaged by Inspiration Pictures to direct the premiere showing of the photoplay, "The White Sister," soon to take place on Broadway. Lillian Gish is the star in the film version of F. Marion Crawford's famous novel produced by Henry King in Italy.

CARMEL AND BESSIE AS SISTER ACT MIGHT WIN

Carmel Myers and Bessie Love are staging a little Damon and Pythias act all their own.

When they first entered high school they became inseparable companions and they planned planned their studies and free moments together. Without any preliminary planning they were suddenly swept into motion pictures, both getting their first work at the old Griffith studios. And when Bessie was given her first big part, Carmel got hers and they were in the same picture, "The Flying Torpedo." Bessie played the ingenue lead, and Carmel the dark-eyed siren.

Ten years have gone by and during all that time they have continued their friendship but had never played together, not even so much as at the same studio. Then, almost to a day from the time they played together in "The Flying Torpedo," they were both cast in "The Magic Skin," the Balzac story, which George D. Baker is directing at the Goldwyn studios. And their parts are the same as before. Bessie is the young girl heroine and Carmel wrecks havoc with her irresistible eyes as the Countess Fedora.

Among the players engaged by David Smith to support Cullen Landis in "The Pioneer," which picture is now in production at the Vitagraph Studios, is little Phillippe deLacy, popular film starlet. Phillippe has the only child part in the picture and those familiar with the story believe that his part is of greater importance than the part he played in "Divorce," which won him the unstinted praise of photoplay critics throughout the country.

ENTERTAINS 11 OF WORLD'S GREAT LADIES

Mrs. Harriet C. Higbee, well-known in Los Angeles and Hollywood society circles, and personal representative of screen and stage celebrities, was hostess last Saturday evening at a dinner party given by her at her home, 4933 Rosewood Avenue. It was strictly a man-less affair, even the butler being temporarily dispensed with lest his presence cast a gloom o'er the tranquil serenity and harmonious associations of eleven of our most professionally and commercially successful women of the present day.

The guests of honor were Zoa Beckley, special correspondent for the New York Mail, who is stopping at the Christie Hotel, Miss Beckley being credited for having niterviewed more celebrities than any other newspaper woman, and Helen Rowland, of the Hearst syndicate, famous the world over for her epigrams, under the title "Bachelor Girl."

Guests also were Madame Anna Sprotte, internationally famous contralto, who has made an enviable reputation throughout America as a contralto of unusual ability.

Rena McDonald, affiliated with L. E. Behymer, impressario of the Western Coast, and who last year successfully handled the Chicago Grand Opera on this coast, and, incidentally, made it pay—big.

Dora Stearns, ex-president of the City Club and political worker, who recently spent three weeks in Sacramento in the interest of the city charter. She is also on the Executive Board of the National Republican Committee of Los Angeles.

Idah McGlone Gibson, best known and best beloved newspaper woman and syndicate writer in the United States, and author of "Her Husband's Wife."

Gertrude Comstock, who has made a phenomenal success in Los Angeles real estate, having a borrowed capital of some $200 less than a year ago and is now rated as owning property valued at $50,000, owns a new "Cad" and a nice nest-egg in the bank—some speed.

Dr. Amy Schoonmaker, renowned osteopathic diagnostician, from Denver, Colorado.

May McDonald, an expert accountant, connected with the First National Bank of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Helen West, supremely happy and successful in life's most uncertain venture—matrimony. Mrs. West, who is prominent in Los Angeles society, fearlessly admitted that she had never earned a dollar in her life, but as the wife of Dr. Frederick West was as contented as the world's greatest financier.

VON STROHEIM TO INVADE DEATH VALLEY

Erich von Stroheim has almost finished the San Francisco scenes of "Greed," his first Goldwyn production, and will soon take his company into the torrid heat of Death Valley.

"Our next stretch of work will be at the Big Dipper mine up near Colfax. That's where our brutal, stupid dentist toiled in his penurious youth shoving an ore car.

"But that will be paradise to what we shall expect toward the end. The story closes in Death Valley at the foot of the Panamint range. And we shall get there about the middle of August.

"That will be a venture in Dante's Inferno for us. The temperature will be 172 degrees in the shade. Our supplies will be conveyed in a 22-horse team, with four mules besides. One mule comes in the story, and if it dies from the heat, we shall have reserves.

"The spot is a hideous sink of alkali, iniquitous and malignant, in which a single clump of sagebrush would fascinate the eye. Marcus Schouler, played by Jean Hersholt, has to sink through the crust.

"I wish we had an artesian well there. We shall have to supply nine gallons of water daily for each man, and 15 for each animal. Cars will be built with special axles, so the grease won't run out like water."

SYRIAN CHILD ARTISTS WINNING WAY IN FILMS

Among the latest recruits to the ever-growing ranks of child players are George and Baseal Bookasta, who recently completed interesting parts with Mary Pickford in "Rosita." They are both about four years of age and similiar in appearance. Although they have been in pictures only six months they have already played in many good productions and give every promise of blossoming forth into two of the finest child character artists on the silver-sheet.

The high caliber of work they did in the Pickford film, coupled with their dark complexion, black hair and black eyes, was instrumental in their selection for principal roles in Douglas Fairbanks' forthcoming "The Thief of Bagdad," in which they will enact the part of the page boys. Furthermore the fact they are of Syrian descent and possess the natural expression necessary for the interpretation of the characters described in Fairbanks' story should add a touch of realism to the film, and will be a great factor in drawing the attention of the audience to them when the picture is shown.

INCE SIGNS "BIG THREE" FOR "ANNA CHRISTIE"

After weeks of careful consideration, Thomas H. Ince has signed up one of the most remarkable trios of actors ever appearing in one picture for the leading roles in his screen adaptation of "Anna Christie," Eugene O'Neill's big stage success. Blanche Sweet has been selected for the title role. George Marion, who created the role of "Chris," the old "Squarehead" father, for the stage play, has been brought back from London, where the play had a sensational run, to play the same part on the screen. William Russell has been cast for the part of "Matt Burke," the Irish stoker lover of the drama.

Miss Sweet, who has been entrusted with the role for the screen which Pauline Lord has made famous on the stage, is considered one of the most able emotional actresses of the silver-sheet. She has been a "fan" favorite since the old Biograph days and recently made a triumphant "come-back" after several years absence from the screen in "Quincy Adams Sawyer." She has just finished work in the leading role of "In the Palace of the King."

Marion's characterization of "Chris" which he will immortalize on the screen, has been declared by critics both in this country and in London, to be one of the finest stage delineations of the past two years. After purchasing the screen rights for the play, Mr. Ince opened negotiations with Marion to play the same role in the film adaptation and finally won his consent to return to this country for that purpose from London. The actor has consistently refused offers to work for the screen, but after hearing the producer's plans for "Anna Christie" and after reading the script of the production, he was eager to appear in the screen cast.

Marion has been an actor, a producer and a student of the drama all his life. In addition to countless stage characterizations he has played, he has produced some of the biggest stage attractions ever shown in this country, including "The Merry Widow"; "The Prince of Pilsen"; "Excuse Me"; "Zhari"; "The County Chairman"; "Pom Pom"; "Madame X"; "Every Woman"; "The College Widow"; "The Little Duchess"; "Peggy from Paris"; "Gypsy Love"; "A Fool There Was" and "Tangerine." He produced "Head Over Heels" with Mitzi, playing the role of an old Italian and scored such a success that he decided to give up producing and return to the stage.

A seven minute scene which he played in "Gold," one of Eugene O'Neill's first Broadway productions was so marvellously done that the author declared Marion was the star of the piece and offered him the role of "Chris" when "Anna Christie" was put on at the Vanderbilt Theatre two years ago. No one else has appeared in the role since then, so successful was his interpretation.

William Russell, who plays the part of the young Irish stoker in the picture, has been such a favorite with the film world that he has been idle only three and a half days in eight years. After completing a long contract with the American, he went to work the following day as a Fox star and had just finished a four year starring contract when he was signed by Mr. Ince for the new role.

John Griffith Wray, who directed Ince's "Hail the Woman" and "Her Reputation" and who just recently completed work on Mrs. Wallace Reid's production of "Human Wreckage," is megaphoning "Anna Christie."

Bradley King, chief of the Ince staff of editors, made the screen adaptation.

AUBREY FOLLOWS RUSSIAN FILM WITH CHINESE ONE

Jimmy Aubrey is doing "The Lobbygow," a Chinese tale that calls for all sorts of exciting and thrilling stunts and many comedy situations. The story was written by Leon Lee and is being directed by Marcel Perez, while Phyllis Byrne is signed as the girl in fun-making that Fred De Silva, the villain, tries to force his attentions on, and "Joimes," that fellow with the saddest pair of eyes in pictures, attempts to rescue Phyllis and causes no end of trouble to all concerned.

This is the second subject Jimmy Aubrey has made since he signed his contract to make one a month for the next two years for the Chadwick Releasing Corporation of New York City. The first was "The Buttiniski," a story of Russia.

CAMERA ARTIST WINS MANY HIGH HONORS

Artist photographers are these days taking the place of the former "camera boys." Karl Struss, for three years artist photographer with Cecil De Mille, and now with Gasnier, has proved his high rank as a camera artist by winning prizes in a recent London exhibit, where his prints were shown. Four of his art prints were also chosen to hang in the Pittsburg Salon, and another group was displayed in the exhibition at the Albright Art Gallery in Buffalo.

Struss also won a prize in the American Photographer's Annual Competition held in Boston and was awarded another prize in the annual exhibit of photography held at the Frederick and Nelson Company of Seattle. Before joining the moving picture colony in Hollywood.

MARY MAKES TEST FOR "DOROTHY VERNON"

A pink brocaded costume, a Priscilla cap and a few clicks of the motion picture camera have virtually settled the immediate professional future of Mary Pickford. She made her first test for "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" early this week, which means she has just about decided on this as her next feature production. She has long contemplated transcribing the Charles Major story to the screen, but this is the first tangible evidence that she proposes to carry out her intention in the near future.

Tests are to be made with various other Elizabethan sartorial creations in the next few days. In fact, all the preliminaries for the making of the picture are being carried out; sets will probably be under construction soon, as plans are now being drawn. Miss Pickford has in mind a director, but is not yet ready to announce his name.

Immediately after completing "Rosita," which will soon be shown as a road show attraction, Miss Pickford considered several other stories and for a time thought of giving up the contemplated "Dorothy Vernon."

The recent test was made under the supervision of Mary's mother, Mrs. Charlotte Pickford, with Douglas Fairbanks as an audience, and was surrounded with more ceremony than such things usually are, owing to the pretentiousness of the picture as planned.

The probabilities are that actual camera work will begin in about a month or six weeks, as there still remain the details of casting.

VIOLA DANA TO DO PARISIAN STORY NEXT

Paris, from the gilded elegance of the Ritz-Carlton down to the lowest dives of the Apaches of the underworld, will be filmed in exact detail in Viola Dana's next starring vehicle, "The Spirit of the Rose," which Oscar Apfel will direct for Metro.

Apfel will not have to consult Baedeker's Guide or French architectural magazines to know how to reproduce Paris in all its colorful atmosphere, for less than a year ago he spent several months there while carefully studying film production methods abroad.

Apfel recently completed his first starring vehicle for Miss Dana, "The Social Code," which featured the smart set of fashionable Long Island, and it was so well liked that the Metro management decided to entrust him with the making of a continental production.

RENALLES TO AID ORIGINAL FILM WRITERS

Renalles, Inc., having fully incorporated under the California laws with an authorized capital stock of $250,000 and having obtained permission from the Commissioner of Corporations to place same on the market, have opened their headquarters and business offices at the studio, 6529 Venice Blvd., Culver City, where they are now busy preparing for their first production of a big feature picture, with an all-star cast of an original romantic comedy drama of the great outdoors.

The main purpose of this corporation is to enter the cinema and legitimate field of amusement productions with the view of presenting vehicles that will prove entertaining and pleasing to seekers of good, legitimate, clean amusement equal to the best productions upon the market at the present day.

There will be no set policy of any one special kind of picture; their range will be good clean comedy, high class melodrama, social problems of universal interest and productions of popular classics. Preference will be given to stories written expressly for the screen, but consideration will also be extended to original plays of all descriptions suitable to the legitimate stage with a view of possible production.

The initial board of directors consists of individuals carefully chosen for their connection in the field of art and the business world.

Clark Renalles, President and General Managing Director, is a man of 30 years' experience in the legitimate field, having been connected in both an advisory and active capacity as producer, playwrigh,t performer and director.

Lieutenant T. G. Berrien, U.S. N., First Vice-President, is well known, not only as an author of several successful screen stories, but also has acted as Naval Technical Director to many of the larger producing units.

Ralph M. DeLacy, Second Vice-President will be remembered as the technical art director for Griffith's "Intolerance" and other standard pictures.

Dalles Fitzgerald is a well known director of successful high class photoplays, while H. S. Walter, Secretary and Treasurer, is a well known figure

To Attend Convetion ..

Ralph Lewis, starring in "The Mailman," is getting to be the regular convention kid. He will soon depart for Providence, R. I., to attend the convention of the National Association of the Letter Carriers. Since he started the series of commercial heroes, husky Ralph has participated in the Fire Chiefs' Convention and the recent convention of Police Chiefs in San Francisco.

EDUCATIONAL TO ENTERTAIN

True, the term "Educational Film" as a rule rests lightly in the minds of a large proportion of an average motion picture audience at the present time, invariably failing to arouse the enthusiastic reception usually accorded the flashing on the screen of the title of most anything else from a mediocre comedy to a super-feature. which state of ennui on the part of the audience has apparently been caused by the fact that in the past many of the so-called "Educationals" have been so little educating and even less entertaining.

Which brings us to the point of this story—for after having attended a private preview of four of a series of twenty-five educational films produced by Capt. M. McKenzie, Production Manager for the Balmac Educational Film Company, it was apparent beyond all reasonable question of doubt that the truly entertaining Educational has arrived.

The four films shown at the preview were entitled, "The Land of Everlasting Snow," "From Forest to Mill," "The Land of Burned Out Fires," and "Modern Whaling." All were most excellently photographed, including truly marvelous cloud effects, which entailed, at times, delays of many days awaiting the supreme moment of the greater beauty, and the unique manner of handling each and every scene and situation on the actual historical spot, together combined with the thread of a dramatic plot running through the picture, reflects their interesting thoroughness.

The "Modern Whaling" is in every sense of the word a "whale" of a picture. It was taken some eighteen miles at sea, near Trinidad, California, and one's blood must surely be as sluggish and cold as an Arctic stream not to be intensely thrilled by the sensational episodes depicting the stalking and shooting of the giant eighty ton mammals, and thoroughly interested in the modern methods shown of bringing the whale to shore and cutting it up for commercial use—"everything saved but the odor."

Capt. McKenzie, in the combined capacity of director and production manager, has certainly shown rare ability in the selection of subjects so diversified in their character and portrayed with authentic historical atmosphere and in an intensely dramatic manner.

NO AUTUMN SLUMP EXPECTED BY LEVEE

There will be no fall slump in motion picture production.

That is the prediction of M. C. Levee, president of the United Studios, based on contracts he has made.

"With the unprecedented production of the Spring and Summer everyone has expected that there would be a decided falling off by October, or before," he said. But every one of the eleven companies housed on the United lot has a schedule calling for continued work clear through until winter. That means that there will be seven companies busy before the camera every day at United, with four either editing or preparing pictures.

It is the demand of the public for pretentious productions, which take much time and money to make, in place of the so-called program-pictures, made quickly and at little expense, which has prevented the expected slump, according to Mr. Levee.

Viola Dana reports unusual success on her venture as the owner of a perfectly nice Hollywood garage. The only difficulty seems to be keeping up with the ever-changing price of gasoline. "Playing the stock market has nothing on selling gas for excitement," the little Metro star declares.

3 SCHENCK STARS MAKING COSTUME PICTURES

All three of the Joseph M. Schenck stars—Norma and Constance Talmadge and Buster Keaton—are making costume pictures.

Norma is now supervising the final cutting of "Ashes of Vengeance," a drama of the year 1572 in France. Constance is in the midst of the filming of "The Dangerous Maid," a romantic serio-comedy of the year 1685 when England was torn wide open by the Monmouth rebellion. And Buster is now at Truckee filming an American costume picture of about the year 1830.

Incidentally, this is the first time that the three Talmadge sisters have all appeared in costume pictures at the same time. Natalie, Buster Keaton's wife, appears in a poke bonnet of early American type and very long skirts. Constance's gowns of the days of James II of England are of velvet and brocade while Norma wears wide-hipped gowns which were the forerunners of the crinolines of 1860.

Victor Heerman is directing Constance in "The Dangerous Maid." Jack Blystone is Buster Keaton's director while Frank Lloyd did both the continuity and directed Norma Talmadge's "Ashes of Vengeance."

INVITATIONS COME HERE FROM CHINA

A novelty which is creating comment throughout the local film colony came as a distinct surprise this week when hundreds of motion picture people received invitations to attend the formal opening of the new Chung Chow Inn, now being completed in Hollywood and which will take place August 9th. The novelty of it was, the invitations came direct from Shanghai, China, bearing Chinese postage stamps and all. They had been mailed from that far-away metropolis in such advance as to reach the addresses nearly two weeks before the date set for the event and it is probably the first time in the history of Southern California that invitations to a local affair have come from such a great distance.

This was the unique idea of A. H. and A. L. Rabin, proprietors of the Chung Chow Inn and as a publicity stunt it rivals the most brilliant feat of the most expert press agent.

The new eating rendezvous promises to be one of the most popular resorts for the elite in all Los Angeles. There will be cabaret entertainment and dancing and a general contribution to the gayety of night life in Hollywood. Mah Tom, one of Shanghai's most famous chefs, will have charge of the cuisine and he is expected to arrive from China the early part of next week.

HIRES AMBULANCE FOR RECORD DISTANCE TRIP

What is said to be one of the longest ambulance trips on record was taken last week by Mrs. Phyllis Lorraine, mother of Louise Lorraine, now being featured in the leading feminine role in H. C. Witwer's "Fighting Blood" pictures, in course of filming at the Powers studios under the direction of Henry Lehrman.

Mrs. Lorraine, who was visiting friends in San Diego, was motoring up a steep hill when the engine stalled, and the woman friend who was driving, finding herself unable to control the swift backing of the machine, called to the other occupants to jump for their lives. Mrs. Lorraine promptly did so, and her leap resulted in a fractured limb.

Confronted with the prospect of remaining in the San Diego hospital for a number of weeks, she sent no word of the accident to her daughter, but after spending only two days under the doctor's care, chartered an ambulance for the long journey home, and made the trip to this city with the injured limb encased in a plaster cast.

It is expected Mrs. Lorraine will be confined to her bed for almost two months.

HERSHOLT'S WORK IN "GREED" PRAISED

According to well-founded reports emanating from the Goldwyn Studios and also from San Francisco, Jean Hersholt has assured himself of stardom as a result of his extraordinay performance in the role of Marcus Shouler in the Von Stroheim production of Frank Norris' "McTeague," which will be released under the title of "Greed." As those who are familiar with this unique story know, Marcus is the villain and a most picturesque one, he being a tin-horn sport of the type not lacking in a peculiar sense of humor in the midst of all his mis-deeds.

"This picture will make Hersholt," is a common expression around the Goldwyn lot now and seldom has any official of that company been so enthused over a forthcoming feature as all of them are now over "Greed."

"It will prove Von Stroheim's masterpiece," is a statement heard on every side.

One of the interesting features of Mr. Hersholt's performance in this super-special is, he uses no make-up whatever and yet by his manner of combing his hair and his ability to control the muscles of his face, the "stills" show that he is in no way recognizable as himself.

It is said he stages a mortal combat in one sequence that will go down in screen history as the master fight of any actor.

Mr. Hersholt is enjoying a brief rest at his Hollywood home prior to going to Death Valley, where Von Stroheim will film one of the most important episodes in his story. It is stated that this picture will not be completed until in September and meanwhile there is a lively bidding for Hersholt's services.

MARJORIE DAW HOSTESS TO THREE FAIR HIKERS

Marjorie Daw, appearing with Constance Talmadge in "The Dangerous Maid," is acting as hostess to Misses Ina and Daisy Lipton and Charlotte Ames, three New York girls who hiked from Manhattan to Los Angeles to see the movie stars in person.

The girls are New York stenographers whose lack of the necessary wherewithal to make the trip by rail, did not effect their enthusiasm to meet the stars in the flesh.

Miss Daw is acting as escort to the young ladies and is showing them the movies in the making as well as introducing them to their favorites.

The hikers will start back shortly via San Francisco, Seattle and the northern route.

ZEIDMAN TO FILM PECK'S BAD BOY SERIES

Everybody remembers the hit little Jackie Coogan made in "Peck's Bad Boy," the first picture he ever made after leaving Charles Chaplin. Sol Lesser presented Jackie in this story. At the time of its production, Lesser purchased the rights to all of the Peck series, eight volumes.

Principal Pictures Corporation, of which Lesser is president, now announces their intention of filming the remainder of the series of Peck stories.

By special arrangement with that organization, Bennie Ziedman will produce the Peck series, beginning with "Peck's Bad Boy and His Pa." According to Zeidman, the pictures will be made on a lavish scale and in feature length. The cast has not yet been selected but will be completed early in the week.

Edward F. Cline has been "loaned" Zeidman by Principal Pictures Corporation. Cline will direct the first of the Peck stories at the studios of Principal Pictures Corporation, Hollywood.

An interesting feature of the new production is in the fact that three well-known writers will work together on the story. Heretofore, it has been the custom for one person to compile a scenario. "Peck's Bad Boy and His Pa" will, therefore, have the minds of Harry Carr, John Grey and Walter Anthony on the script. These three men are recognized as topnotchers in their line. They are now hard at work on the initial story.

The Peck series follows close on the heels of two other productions Zeidman has made for Principal Pictures consumption. These are "The Spider and the Rose" and "Bright Lights of Broadway," both of which have been released and to great success wherever exhibited.

"There is abundance of story material in the Peck series," said Lesser in speaking of the new productions. "Zeidman intends giving the screen a big picture in 'Peck's Bad Boy and His Pa.' He will surround the story with the best artists possible and with the direction of Edward Cline, who has had years of comedy training, I am sure this will be one of the outstanding pictures of the coming season."

The picture will be started this month at Principal Pictures Corporation studios. Sets are now being planned and erected and actual filming should begin not later than the first of August.

HALLOR IS FINISHING A BIG ROLE FOR CONNIE

Ray Hallor is just finishing the portrayal of one of the most important characters in support of Constance Talmadge in "The Dangerous Maid," now in course of production at the United Studios. Mr. Hallor is fast gaining recognition as one of the foremost juvenile men in pictures and it is reported that he has recently rejected two different offers to go back to New York to resume his dramatic work there. His reason for refusing such engagements is, he says, he is completely won over by Southern California and intends to remain here.

Among Mr. Hallor's forthcoming appearances on the screen will be in a leading role in Charles Ray's "The Courtship of Miles Standish," in which he is said to have given an exceptionally fine performance.

Dixon Completes Feature

Denver Dixon and M. Sid Andrus of Feature Pictures, Berwilla studios, have completed the production of a feature written by William Lester, a Western melodrama, days of 1860-1870. All-star cast including Kathryn McGuire, Pete Morrison, Virginia Warwick, Spottiswood Aitken, Les Bates, William Merrill McCormick, Madge Loreae Bates and an excellent supporting cast. Photographer Jack Fuqua. F. S. Bates is manager.

BARTHELMESS TO STAR IN "WILD APPLES" NEXT

Having completed "The Fighting Blade," Richard Barthelmess will do as his next picture, a film adaptation of the celebrated novel "Wild Apples." After six months research work, Inspiration Pictures have decided that Mr. Barthelmess will bring to the screen Nathan Hale, portraying the character of the American patriot who died in the cause of liberty. This was decided upon as a result of many requests to see this favorite star in the role of the revolutionary hero.

"Wild Apples" is a human interest story of today, in which Mr. Barthlemess is given plenty of opportunity to display his versatility as a creator of roles.

Coal Barge to "Star"

After weeks of search, John Griffith Wray, who has been chosen by Thomas H. Ince to make the picturization of "Anna Christie," the New York and London stage hit, has found a suitable twin-screw coal barge, which is so vital to his picture. He located it at San Diego, where it has been lying since the war. It is now being reconditioned and will be brought to San Pedro, where the water scenes will be made. The principals in this picture are Blanche Sweet, William Russell and George Marion, the latter a member of the original company. Bradley King wrote the continuity for "Anna Christie."

LASKY HAS BOTH TORRENCES NOW

The professional careers of Ernest and David Torrence are revolving most progressively in harmonious circles upward like a spiral route. Both are very extraordinary cinema artists and therefore both are much in demand. For instance, no sooner had Universal engaged Ernest to play a leading role in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" than the same company signed David to play a featured role in "The Power of a Lie." Now Ernest has only started a year's engagement with Lasky under contract and the same Lasky has already assigned David to a featured role in the George Melford production of the Rudyard Kipling classic, "The Light That Failed." In short, being prominent on the same lot is becoming a habit with these distinguished brothers.

Although there is a close resemblance in the physical appearance of these two stars, thus far they have been drawing vastly different characterizations for the screen. David Torrence has established himself as one of the most virile of interpreters of characters of men of distinction such as millionaires, jurists and statesmen. A shining high-light of histrionic achievement for him came in Mary Pickford's second screen version of "Tess of the Storm Country" although he had previously won his high niche in the Cosmopolitan production of "The Inside of the Cup." More lately, his work in "The Power of a Lie" was so brilliantly excellent that Universal voluntarily featured him although this had not been the original plan.

Just as Ernest stepped from musical comedy stardom to the screen, David had twenty years of most distinguished performance on the dramatic stage back of him when he transferred his allegiance to the silver-sheet. For eight years he was with Maude Adams and he was also with Jane Cowl in "Smilin' Through." In fact there are few great stage stars that he has not appeared with and he made his debut in a play in which the late Richard Mansfield was starred.

Now that Lasky has a corner on the Torrences, it is being freely predicted that the brothers will have a right merry race for top honors.

Lubitsch Signs Hale

Creighton Hale has just been signed by the Warner Brothers for one of the leading roles in a picture of Viennese setting which Ernest Lubitsch will direct.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

Belasco Productions, a well known film producing organization, formerly located in San Francisco, has transferred its production equipment to Hollywood where its future activity in the film-making field will center. Preparations are now being made to start the actual filming of a new feature story within the next two weeks, or as soon as an all-star cast for the picture is assembled.

Peggy Cartwright, who played the part of Virginia Valli as a child in the star's latest Universal starring vehicle, "A Lady of Quality," was a guest of the company last week when "Universal Night" was celebrated at the Historic Revue and Motion Picture Exposition at Exposition Park.

George Melford has started work on his production of Rudyard Kipling's "The Light That Failed." Jacqueline Logan, Percy Marmont, Sigrid Holmquist, David Torrence, Mabel Van Buren and Luke Cosgrove are the featured players. F. McGrew Willis adapted the story.

Doris Stone just finished playing the lead with Neal Hart in "Beyond the Rio Grande" at Universal.

Edwin L. Hollywood, the director, is considering an offer to direct one of our biggest stars in all her future pictures. Details will be announced in the near future.

Helen Gardner, the original Cleopatra of the screen, has been engaged to play the lead in a new production. Incidently the title is "A Modern Cleopatra."

Zena Keefe is playing the lead in "Hearts of the Range," for which she was engaged immediately upon her arrival here.

Tyrone Power has just completed "The Pilot," an independent production which will shortly be released.

Corinne Griffith has arrived in New York from the coast and will shortly start work on her new starring contract.

Templar Saxe has just signed a contract to make a series of special productions for the independent market.

Robert Edeson has been engaged by Famous Players to play one of the leading male roles in their forthcoming production "The Ten Commandments," which is being made on the coast.

Edith Taliaferro is a busy little lady these days spending her spare time acting before the camera in "The Love Light," in New York and rehearsing daily with "Fashions of 1924."

Matthew Betz has started work on his second picture under his Universal contract.

Betty Gallagher, one of the most accomplished students of Ernest Belcher, ballet master, was selected to do the solo dance number in the big stage scenes of "The Gold Diggers," which Warner Brothers are producing with Hope Hampton in the leading role.

Wallace MacDonald, appearing in Tod Browning's production of "The Day of Faith" at the Goldwyn studios, has been a hero for eighteen feminine stars. He declares that only one took him seriously, and that was Doris May, who is now his wife.

Melville Burke, who is at present directing at the Cox Theatre, Cincinnati, has written a play and scenario which he intends to produce within the next four weeks. He will make the picture version first, taking most of the scenes in and around Cincinnati.

"Husbands Wanted" is the title of a Sid Smith comedy for Grand-Asher which Archie Mayo is doing. Duane Thompson is the leading woman.

Robert Murrell and Miss Mazie Keppler were married last week in St. Cecelia Oratory at the Mission Inn, Riverside.

Clarence H. Geldert is spending his vacation in a unique way. While enjoying the natural beauties of the Giant Forest, Mr. Geldert is utilizing his time writing the denouement of the novel which he began several years ago.

King Baggot is busily engaged at Universal preparing the script for a special production featuring Baby Peggy, famous starlet.

Charles "Buck" Jones is finishing his latest thrill-o-drama, "Second Hand Love," on the Fox lot in Hollywood. The big fellow will enjoy a brief vacation following the completion of the picture.

Another child has entered the ranks of coming screen starlets. "Boofie" Savin, eight-year-old pupil of Theodore Kosloff, will soon make her initial appearance on the screen. She hails from Pine Bluff, Arkansas, and is the daughter of that town's foremost physician.

James Woods Morrison upon completing his role in "Held to Answer" at Metro Studios, will depart for New York to take part in a special production to be made by Eastern capital.

Eulalia Jensen has finished work in "The Magic Skin," a George D. Baker production, and will shortly begin the interpretation of a featured role in another big picture.

Dorothy Phillips is considering two offers to make pictures in Europe in the near future. Should she reject both of these contracts the dainty star will resume production activity in Hollywood.

Al St. John, Fox funster, is editing his most recent production, "Full Speed Ahead," in which he enacts the stellar role. He will prepare a new story upon completing his present task.

Allen Holubar will leave Hollywood shortly for the Southland to film location scenes for his forthcoming big special production for Metro. He will be absent from the city about three weeks.

Dale Fuller, of "Foolish Wives" fame, has just completed a complete character role in "Greed" Von Stroheim's conception of "McTeague" for Goldwyn. She expects to start work soon in another big Goldwyn film.

H. C. Hutchinson, veteran camerman, is the only man who ever photographed the members of the House of Representatives while in official session. It took Hutchinson two weeks to properly place the necessary electrical equipment. He is at present photographing a series of Ashton Dearholt productions.

Helene Rosson has just finished the first piece of screen work she has done in four years. Miss Rosson will be remembered as the dainty blonde star of Mutual and American film fame, when she starred in the famous series of "Mustang Girl" westerns. She is co-starring with Edmund Cobb in the Ashton Dearholt series of five-reelers. The second picture is scheduled to start this week.

Ernie Hickson, well known art director, is perfecting plans in an endeavor to eliminate shadows that are cast across "sets" from objects situated on the sides of the stages. Shadows on "sets" has long been one of the most bothersome handicaps to directors, and Hickson's solution will no doubt be heartily welcomed throughout the film colony.

Alice Day is playing second lead with Phyllis Haver and Mary Philbin in "The Temple of Venus" at the Fox studio, under the direction of Henry Otto. Dame rumor whispers that a prominent C. D. has his eye on Alice for an important role in a current production, so watch your step Alice.

Gus Womack, who recently finished in Harold Shaw's "Held to Answer" at the Metro, has completed his role as the ranch foreman in the "Virginian," with Kenneth Harlan, directed by Tom Forman at the Mayer-Schulberg studio.

Billy Burt, Sr., is with Tod Browning, who is directing "The Day of Faith," having just finished thirty-nine consecutive weeks in "Scaramouche," except for a short period in which he was loaned by Rex Ingram to Oscar Apfel to do a part with Viola Dana in "The Social Code."

Mickey McBan has just signed for his fortieth picture. The four-year-old actor will play one of the principal roles in "Born of the Cyclone, a Gypsy story which is being filmed at the R-C Studios under the direction of Emile Chautard. This is the fourth time Mickey has been under Chautard's direction and special arrangements have been made with the Fox studios to rush to completion Mickey's scenes in "The Temple of Venus," which Henry Otto is making. In the meantime, negotiations are under way for two more productions for Mickey after he has finished with Chautard.

Marion Nixon lightly hopped up one more rung of the old, and yet ever new, ladder of fame and has been cast for the part of Ann Turley, the Love Interest of the picture, "A Man," featuring Dustin Farnum and directed by David Solomon, and has left for location at Victorville.

"A Man," is a Fox Costume play of the period of 1849 ,and is the third picture in which Miss Nixon has portrayed the role of an old-fashioned girl since Christmas—in fact, all of them have been such — prominently of which might be mentioned her work in "The Girl I Love," which characterization won for her a good part with Charles Ray in "The Courtship of Miles Standish." Miss Nixon also scored in "Rosita" with Mary Pickford, directed by Ernest Lubitsch, and there certainly can be no guess work about it—Marion is going up, going up the ladder fast, and apparently nothing can stop her.

LAURETTE TAYLOR SIGNS FOR TWO MORE FILMS

Laurette Taylor is going to leave Broadway and the stage for a season and devoted all her time and talent to motion pictures. The noted actress has been signed by Metro again to make two pictures for release during the coming season.

Miss Taylor made her debut before the camera last year in "Peg O' My Heart" for Metro, and this picture proved one of the outstanding features of the season.

According to present plans plans Miss Taylor will star in two of the plays by J. Hartley Manners, her author-husband, in which she has appeared on the stage. The first will be "Happiness" and the second will be "A Night in Rome."

Miss Taylor, with Mr. Manners, is scheduled to arrive in Hollywood early in October and will start work immediately at the Metro studios in Hollywood.

During the past season Miss Taylor starred in "Humoresque" on the stage in New York. Rumors have been circulating for some time regarding her appearance before the camera again for Miss Taylor admitted that she was fascinated with motion picture work following her success in "Peg O' My Heart."

STARTS NEW FILM WITH UNUSUAL CEREMONIES

Blanche Sweet made her debut in the role of "Anna Christie" and incidently, at the Thomas H. Ince studio in Culver City, this week when she appeared before the camera in her first scene in this picturization of the noted stage success.

The part of "Anna Christie" is undoubtedly Miss Sweet's most ambitious characterization to date, affording her the greatest early days as theshrdlucmfwyp acting opportunities since her early days as the "Biograph Girl."

On the eve of her appearance in "Anna Christie" Miss Sweet was tendered a banquet by her many friends in filmdom, who wished her success in her new characterization. The feature of the occasion was a long distance speech by her husband, Marshall Neilan, in New York, which at midnight was communicated to those present over the telephone and magnified by a loud-speaker so that all those present could hear.

Finis Fox used more than two hundred dancing girls in the big, elaborate underwater scenes showing a big dance in the submarine gardens of the ocean. The girls were made up to represent cat-fish with Gloria Grey, the featured player, as the sand dab. This was for "Bag and Baggage."

REEVES-SMITH WINS MANY LONG ENGAGEMENTS

Now that the long distance dancing mania has joined the procession of forgotten things, here comes H. Reeves-Smith, the noted English actor, claiming the long distance acting championship of the world. Mr. Reeves-Smith, who is in Hollywood playing an important role in the Associated Authors production of "No More Women," by Elmer Harris, played a leading role in the stage production of "Charley's Aunt" for three years and ten months at the Globe Theatre, London, without a day's layoff excepting Good Fridays and Christmas Days when the British theatres close.

Reeves-Smith also appeared in "The Private Secretary" and "Our Boys," each an engagement of over two years in London. Eighteen months in "Sweet Lavender," also in London, just about gives him the self-inking tooth-brush for long distance acting.

Hamilton Starts New Series

Lloyd Hamilton, starring in Educational-Hamilton Comedies, has started work on his first production of the fall series. He will be supported by Ruth Hiatt, who played with him in many of the past season's successes. Others in the cast are Dolores Pembroke and R. Hildebrand. Gill Pratt is directing and Lloyd Bacon, son of the late Frank Bacon, heads the scenario staff.

BRADLEY KING FINISHES THIRD YEAR WITH INCE

The third anniversary of her connection with the Thomas H. Ince studio as Scenario Chief, will be celebrated by Bradley King on August 1. During this period she has adapted every production Mr. Ince has made—in fact she declares she has lost exact count of the number of stories which have gone to the screen bearing her name.

"The peculiar part of this work is that I haven't a friend outside of the business, who thinks there is any work to adapting or writing originals for the screen," she says. "No one considers the almost endless reading of novels, manuscripts and plays, which is necessary. No one thinks it is aught but a pleasure to sit in the projecting room daily, to view the rushes, do this, that and the other thing which comes up inevitably in the course of each day.

"No, there are a great many easier jobs in the world, I think. But I have never enjoyed work as well as in the three years I have spent with Mr. Ince—nor ever learned as much in a similar period."

Marceline Day has finished her part in the Fox Comedy, "Second Hand Love," directed by Wm. Wellman and featuring Buck Jones.

"HALF-A-DOLLAR BILL" TO BE NEXT GRAF FILM

Max Graf, Supervising Director of Graf Productions of San Francisco, has purchased the motion picture rights of "Half-A-Dollar Bill," a sea story by Curtis Benton, which is to appear shortly in the Saturday Evening Post, and will put the story into production at the San Mateo studios as soon as the adaptation, which he is personally supervising, is completed.

Late this week Graf will leave for Hollywood to engage a director, production staff and cast of players. He considers "Half-A-Dollar Bill" an exceptionally fine screen vehicle and will give it an elaborate presentation.

Among the other screen stories written by Benton is "Mighty Lak a Rose," which was produced by Edwin Carewe for First National.

"Six Days" Near Completion

"Six Days," Elinor Glyn's story, which was directed at the Goldwyn studios by Charles Brabin, is now in eight reels, and the process of cutting and editing is almost complete. The feature in which Corinne Griffith and Frank Mayo have the leading roles, has never been longer than nine reels, an unusual thing, as most pictures, when the photographing is complete, numbers at least eleven or twelve reels. "Six Days" will be released in September.

"BUCK" ENTERTAINS HIS OLD WAR "BUNKIE"

During the days when General Fred Funston was hunting down Aguinaldo in the Philippines, Charles (Buck) Jones, Fox star of Western films, had a "bunkie" by the name of William R. Sherman, who hailed from "Down East" way. The two were together in the fights of the Sixth U. S. Cavalry with the Moros and they became such fast friends that the years which have intervened between their army service and the present have served but to strengthen their ties of affection.

So there was a happy reunion last week at the Fox studios when Sherman arrived there after a trip all the way from Providence, R. I., to see his old "bunkie." Ever since his arrival the two have been talking over their army days and swapping stories about their experiences since they left the Philippines.

Sherman is the guest of Jones and his wife, Mrs. Odille Jones, at their home, 1425 Hayworth Street, Hollywood.

Ada Frank, for an eight-year-old, has sure been stepping on the gas, having last finished in "Hail the King," and previously, in consecutive order. "Scaramouche," "Ponjola," Sante Fe Trail" and with Sid Smith in "On the Job."

DEARHOLT STARTS HIS FIRST PICTURE

Actual camera work on the first of a series of twelve five-reel westerns to be released as the Ashton Dearholt Productions, was started this week at the Ben Wilson Studios under the direction of Dick Hatton.

Helene Rosson, former Mutual and American film beauty, will be co-starred with Edmund Cobb, who recently completed a series of two-reel westerns at Universal.

Wilbur McGaugh, protege of Ben Wilson and Dearholt, has been given the leading character role and will also assist Mr. Hatton with direction.

H. C. Hutchinson, veteran cinematographer, who has been signed for the series, is cooperating with Ernie Hickson, art director, in the matter of securing the desired effects.

The first of the series is scheduled to reach the New York offices of the Aywon Distributing Company by August 15.

Kathleen Kirkham in "Other Men's Daughters," a Ben Wilson production for Grand-Asher, is doing her first screen work in nearly a year, following a long rest and a lot of outdoor hiking and general relaxation.

HELENE "TRAINING" FOR RETURN TO SILVERSHEET

Helene Chadwick, who has been absent from studios for eight months as a result of her law suit against the Goldwyn company, which has just been settled, is in training for her return in Rupert Hughes' "Law Against Law."

This is to be taken literally for the fair Helene is walking five miles before breakfast daily, riding before lunch and doing her daily dozen before dinner. In between times she plays tennis and golf.

Her part in the forthcoming Goldwyn film will demand much of Miss Chadwick, it is whispered and after the long lay-off, Helene feels the time now ripe to get in condition.

"The Fog" Scores

"Broke all records," is the interesting report on "The Fog" a Graf super production which had its Eastern premiere at Loew's State, Washington, D. C., last week. The Western premiere of the picture will take place beginning Saturday at Loew's Warfield in San Francisco, while the local showing of the film recently given a fine send-off by New York critics who saw it in preview, will take place in August. The cast includes Cullen Landis, Louise Fazenda, Ethel Wales, Mildred Harris, Ralph Lewis, David Butler and others.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, July 30

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	McGill	Cooke	Diltz	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	McGill	Cooke	Diltz	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Wilson	All-Star	Linden	Stevens	Cullison	"Other Men's Daughters"	2nd Week
Feature Pictures Co.
Denver Dixon	All-Star	Jack Fuque	M. S. Andrus	Wm. Lester	"The Mystery Trail"	3rd Week
Dearholt Productions.
Dick Hatton	Edmund Cobb	Billy Noble	McGaugh	Whitcomb	5-Reel Western	Editing
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Wilshire 4275
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
	All-Star				Special Features	Preparing
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
Jack Blystone	Buster Keaton	E. Lessley-Thorp	Rose	Mitchell	"Hospitality"	6th Week
Lou Anger Productions.
Albert Austin	Clyde Cook	H. Thorpe	Robt. Hale		"Pony Express"	2nd Week
HARRY KEATON PRODUCTIONS. 302 Luckenbach Bldg.						148-55
Harry Keaton	Harry Keaton	Elmer Edwardson	H. Fruthom	E. White	2-Reel Comedy	2nd Week
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						593576
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Raymond Rounsaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"Hogan of Hollywood"	2nd Week
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Rounsaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"Milkman of Hollywood"	1st Week
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 96
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al Herman	All-Star	Wm. Hyer	Herman	Herman	Untitled	2nd Week
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 4070
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd. Martin J. Heyl, Prod. Mgr.						439-764
W. H. Clifford	All-Star	Ray June	Warren Fromme	W. H. Clifford	Feature Story	3rd Week
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 3100
Al Christie	Bobby Vernon	Nicky Phillips	Hageman	Conklin	Untitled	3rd Week
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr.						Wilshire 2115
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General.
	All-Star			Staff	"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd.
FOX STUDIO. Arthur Forde, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 3000
Buckingham	Stock	Sid Wagner	Jas. Tinling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Slim Summerville	Stock	Jay Turner	Arthur Cohn		Comedies	Schedule
Lambert Hillard	Tom Mix	Dan Clark	Eugene Forde	Zane Grey	"Lone Star Ranger"	Editing
Erle Kenton	Lew Brice	Vic Scheurich	Max Gold		Comedies	Schedule
Henry Otto	Phylis Haver	Joe August	Hollinghead	Carr	"The Temple of Venus"	10th Week
Roland V. Lee	All-Star	Post	Dan Case		"You Can't Get Away With It	6th Week
Jas. Flood	Wm. Russell	Jos. Brotherton	Walter Mayo	Dorothy Yost	"The Best Man Wins"	Editing
David Soloman	Dustin Farnum	Turner	Ed. Bernoudi	Dorothy Yost	"A Man"	6th Week
Wm. Wellman	Buck Jones	Don Short	H. Hough	Chas. Kenyon	"Second-Hand Love"	4th Week
Roberts-Foy Co.
Roberts-Foy	Stock	Jay Turner	Bob Tansey		"Nothing But the Truth"	1st Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 2632
Rocky Mt. Production Co.
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Wilshire 81
Metro Release.
GOLDEN WEST STUDIO. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	Snowy Baker	Edgar Lyon	Harry Tenbrook	Staff	"Dark Faces"	4th Week
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						761711
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStroheim	"Greed"	20th Week
Tod Browning	All-Star	Wm. Silden	Earl Taggart	Kavanaugh	"The Day of Faith"	13th Week
Geo. D. Baker	All-Star	John Boyle	A. C. Eddington	Whittaker	"The Magic-Skin"	Editing
Victor Seastrom	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Chas. Lapworth	Paul Bern	"Master of Man"	9th Week
Cosmopolitan Productions.
Carlos Productions.
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 162
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
Herman Raymaker	Monte Banks	Bill Williams	Goodman	Staff	"Home Cooking"	2nd Week
H. Edwards	Monte Banks	Bill Williams	L. Goodman	Staff	"Wedding Rings"	Editing
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Chas. Lamont	Sid Smith	K. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	"The Midnight Watch"	2nd Week
Archie Mayo	Sid Smith	Ken. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	"Husbands Wanted"	Editing
Joe Rock Productions.
Reggie Morris	Joe Rock	Jerry Ash	Murray-Rock	Morris	"It's A Bear"	2nd Week

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6642 Santa Monica Blvd. J. Jasper, Mgr.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Finis Fox Productions. R. R. Beaty, Gen. Mgr.
Finis Fox	All-Star	Hal Mohr	Wm. Dashiell	Lois Zellner	"Bag and Baggage"	5th Week
Richard Thomas Productions.
Douglas McLean Productions. (Associated Exhibitors release). J. R. Crone, Prod. Mgr.
Irving Cummings Productions. Charles Woolstenhulme, Production Manager.
William P. S. Earle Picture Inc. Dick L'Estrange, Prod. Mgr.
Supreme Art Productions. Chas. J. Hall
Independent Art Productions. Richard Stanton, Producer.
Donald Magill	All-Star	J. J. Pasztor				Preparing
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive. Monte West, Studio Mgr.						438740
Horner	All-Star	Geo. Meehan	Middleton	Horner	"Midnight Limited"	Casting
Horner	All-Star	Meehan	Middleton	Horner	"Flame of the Sahara"	Preparing
World Educational Films.
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	"The Forty Niner"	Preparing
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Al Neitz	Big Boy Williams	Hughes		Nateford	"The Eagle Claw"	3rd Week
Seeling	Geo. Larkin	Elmer Dyer	Harry Burns		"Mysterious Goods"	3rd Week
Hercules Film Productions, Inc. P. Andrews, Mgr. 1442 Beachwood Drive.
	Arthur Paul	J. Charles	L. Feldman	Staff	"Fighting Blood"	Preparing
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Palmer Photoplay Productions.
Cortland Productions
Trimble-Murfin Productions.
Laurance Trimble	Strongheart	Leezer-Gano	Cyril Gardner	Joe & Donna Barrel	"Phantom Pack"	Editing
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Lloyd Ingram	All-Star	Jos. Walker	Geo. Crone	Elmer Harris	"No More Women"	3rd Week
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	Preparing
LASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vi						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Herb. Brenon	Fola Negri	Jas. Howe	Harold Schwartz	Mathis-Dix	"Spanish Dancer"	8th Week
Wm. DeMille	All-Star	Guy Wilke	Geo. Hippard	Clara Beranger	"Spring Magic"	6th Week
Jas. Cruze	Featured	Karl Brown	Vernon Keyes	Tom Geraghty	"Ruggles of Red Gap"	Editing
Cecil B. DeMille	Featured	Bert Glennon	H. Tate	J. McPherson	"The Ten Commandments"	8th Week
Geo. Melford	All-Star				"The Light That Failed"	4th Week
Al. E. Green	Thos. Meighan				"All Must Marry"	1st Week
Jos. Henabery	Doug. Fairbanks, Jr	Chas. Schoenbaum	Dick Johnson		"Stephen Steps Out"	1st Week
Albert S. Lebino					"Wm. Hart in Wild Bill Hicko	Preparing
Zane Grey Productions.
Victor Fleming					"The Call of the Canyon"	Preparing
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Lincoln 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star	A. Wyckoff	Harry Schenck	A. P. Younger	"Pleasure Mad"	3rd Week
Preferred Pictures Corp. B. P. Schulberg, Gen. Mgr. (Al Lichtman Release).
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	Joe Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
Tom Forman	All-Star	Harry Perry	Sam Nelson	The Leightons	"The Virginian"	6th Week
Gasnier	All-Star	Karl Struss	Joe Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"Maytime"	Preparing
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Harold Shaw	All-Star	Andre Barletier	Nat Watt	Winifred Dunn	"Held to Answer"	6th Week
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	John Arnold	Chas. Watt	Basil Dickey	"In Search of a Thrill"	1st Week
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Rex Ingram	All-Star	John Seitz	Curt Rehfeld	Willis Goldbeck	"Scaramouche"	Editing
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Victor Schertzinger	Jackie Coogan	Frank Good	McDermott	Mary Rob. Rinehart	"Long Live the King"	Editing
Allen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar					"The Human Mill"	Preparing
NEVA GERBER PRODUCTIONS. 6735 Holly Blvd.
Dearholtz-Dillon	Neva Gerber	Hutchinson	Wilbur McGough	Dillon	"Sante Fe Trail"	14th Episode
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	5th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford	O'Connell	Alex Gower	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	2nd Week
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Eddie Cline	Bow ers-De la Mott	Ned Van Buren	Geraghty		"When A Man's a Man"	7th Week
Alf. Goulding	Harry Langdon	Albert Breslau	David Smith	Harry Langdon	2-Reel Comedy	4th Week
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Eddie Hearn			Wyndam Gittens	"Flaming Waters"	Preparing
Lehrman	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"Fighting Blood" Series	3rd Week
Emory Johnson	Ralph Lewis	R. Fisher	Blystone	Emilie Johnson	"The Mail Man"	7th Week
Emile Chautard	Derelys Perdue	L. Hughes		Beahan-Stillson	"Born of the Cyclone"	1st Week
	Geo. K. Arthur				"Jack of Diamonds"	Preparing
Chester Bennett Productions.
Chester Bennett	Jane Novak	Jack MacKenzie	Doug S. Dawson	Loring-Leighton	"The Lullaby"	7th Week
Al Santel					"Not for Publication"	Preparing
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr., 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Howe-Cedar	"Paul" Parrott	Frank Young	Henecke-Brandie		Comedies	Schedule
McGowan	All-Star	Harry Gerstadt	C. Morehouse		"Our Gang"	Schedule
Ralph Cedar
	Stan Laurel				1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Roy Clemens	Edna Murphy	Bobby Doran	McBurney		"What Should a Girl Do?"	Schedule
Lon Powers	Dippy Doo Dads	Hank Kohler	Bert Currigan		Animal Comedy	Schedule
Chas. Parrott	Will Rogers	Bob Dorrin	Chas. Oelze		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
Phil Rosen	All-Star	Kurrle-Broening	Al. Davis	Francis Marion	"Life of Abraham Lincoln"	Schedule
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSEL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945-6
B. D. Russell	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	Preparing
Logan-Baynham Productions.
Tom Gibson	Morante	MacManigal	Kane-Walsh		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. B. Seitz	Ray-Miller	Walker-Moran	Wm. Bertram	Seitz	"The Way of a Man"	5th Week
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Wils. 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
F. Richard Jones	Mabel Normand	Homer Scott	Jim Wright	Mack Sennett	"The Extra Girl"	Editing
Roy Delruth	Ben Turpin	Wagner	Joe Bordeau	Mack Sennett	"Asleep at the Switch"	Editing
Campbell	Johnnie Lucas	Staub		Mack Sennett	"Rough and Ready"	4th Week
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Louis B. Mayer Productions, Clune's Studio, 5360 Melrose Ave.
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Edwin-Carewe	Holbrook Blinn	Sol Polito-Storey	Wallace Fox	Finis Fox	"The Bad Man"	8th Week
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Heerman	Constance Talmadge	Glen McWilliams	E. Brophy	Willard Mack	"The Dangerous Maid"	6th Week
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Rose of all the World"	1st Week
Sam E. Rork Productions.
Donald Crisp	All-Star	Paul Perry	Jas. Ewens	Chas. Logue	"Ponjola"	6th Week
First National Productions.
Joe De Grass	All-Star	Boise	Perry Vrekroff	Wm. Dowlin	"Lord of Thundergate"	10th Week
Jack Dillon	All-Star		Jimmy Dunn	Dowlin	"Flaming Youth"	3rd Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Maurice Tourneur	All-Star	Arthur Todd	Scott R. Beal	Fred Myton	"Two Little Vagrants"	1st Week
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig Casting.						570-081
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Brown	All-Star	Balbino	Dorian		"The Acquittal"	8th Week
Archainbaud	Priscilla Dean		McCarey-Wyler		"The Storm Daughter"	4th Week
Herbert Blache	Gladys Walton		Sullivan	Hugh Hoffman	"The Near Lady"	Preparing
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson	Robinson	Clarke	Geo. Plympton	"The Steel Trail"	14th Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Baby Peggy		Wright		"Editha's Burglar"	5th Week
Edw. Lumley	All-Star		McDonough		"The Hog"	Preparing
Robt. Hill			Marchant-Kohner		"Crooked Alley"	Preparing
Robt. N. Bradbury			Nordlinger		"The Moon Rider"	Preparing
Wm. Craft			Taylor-Ricks		"Beasts of Paradise"	3rd Week
Leon Lee Productions. Leon Lee Manager.
Dinky Dean Productions. Lew Lipton, Production Manager.
Andy Gump Productions.
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen Mgr.						598131
Dave Smith Productions.
Larry Semon Productions.
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 418!
Warner Brothers Productions.
Mal St. Clair	Wesley Barry	E. B. Dupar	Geo. Webster		"George Washington, Jr."	Scheduled
Johnny Hines	Johnny Hines	C. Hines-Roth			"Conductor 1492"	Scheduled
Wm. A. Seiter	All-Star				"How to Educate A Wife"	Scheduled
Harry Beaumont	Marsh-Gillingwater		Dave Abel	Frank Strayer	"Daddies"	Scheduled
Wm. Beaudine	Wesley Barry	Dupar	Roth-Webster	Julien Josephson	"The Country Kid"	Editing
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Sidney Franklin	Lenore Ulric	Chas. Rosher	Wm. McGann	Edmund Goulding	"Tiger Rose"	3rd Week
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernest Lubitsch	All-Star					Preparing
Harry Rapf Productions.
Jack Conway	Monte Blue-Irene Rich		David Abel		"Lucretia Lombard"	Scheduled
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WILNAT STUDIO. 6070 Sunset Blvd. Al. Brandt Mrs.						Holly 7940
H. Mitchell	All-Star	King Grey	Geo. E. Peeling	Joe Brandt	"Forgive and Forget"	3rd Week

DR. W. I. SCHUSTER
Palmer Graduate Chiropractor
"Catering to Members of the Motion Picture Profession"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

WHEN YOU NEED A DOCTOR
Phone 572-88; 436-205, or Holly 102-82.
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Formerly of New York City
6548 Hollywood Blvd. Near Armstrong & Carlton's.

INCE $2 GOLDWYN
ROACH STUDIOS
578-280 SUNSET TAXI 578-307

Film production from the standpoint of the school teacher was the order of the day at Universal City with the arrival of Dr. Ernest L. Crandall, director of visual education in the New York public schools, and one of the foremost educators in America, who will consult on the final chapters of "In the Days of Daniel Boone," historic chapterplay starring Jack Mower and Eileen Sedgwick. Dr. Crandall will pass three weeks at Universal City, in consultation with Fred J. McConnell, director of serial productions, who supervises the details of the work at Universal City.

Following the final scenes of "Daniel Boone," Dr. Crandall and McConnell will outline details of the next historic play, the work ahead to be principally along the line of research. McConnell has amassed a valuable collection of old records and volumes from which the forthcoming historical play will be arranged, and he and the director will arrange this information.

"The historic play is perhaps the most valuable adjunct I know to the teaching of this subject," said Dr. Crandall. "And I believe that the future will develop the picture into the most valuable all-around factor in the field of education. The historic play as developed by Mr. McConnell at Universal City has reached the maximum of efficiency in the schools—because while it portrays history, it still keeps the human interest. One cannot simply set forth historic events in pictures and succeed with them—they look like lessons in such a case. But by taking personal entities, putting them thru interesting episoles in which the historic facts are a background, one impresses the lesson on the mind forever.

"I believe some day there will be a historic chapterplay starting with Columbus and finishing with the present day that will take in all of America's history, and will form a course, the value of which will be inestimable.

Announcing the Removal of Our Offices to

5507 SANTA MONICA BLVD.
(Cor. Western)

To Producers, Directors, Players

Our studio edition, published monthly, contains many absolutely original, copyrighted plots, both drama and comedy. It is a gold mine—dig in it.

We revise and copyright scenarios and are scenario brokers.

UNIVERSAL SCENARIO CORPORATION
5507 SANTA MONICA BLVD.,
(Cor. Western)
Publishers

Scenario Bulletin-Digest
(Sample Copy on Request)

They'll be there:

Mary Pickford
Douglas Fairbanks
Norma Talmadge
Constance Talmadge
Lois Wilson
Madge Bellamy
Thomas H. Ince
B. P. Shulberg
Joseph Schenck
Tully Marshall
Frank Keenan
J. Warren Kerrigan
Ernest Torrance
Rupert Julian
Reginald Denny
Irvin Willat
Johnnie Walker
Jack Mulhall
Lionel Belmore
Charlie Murray
Niles Welch
Antonio Moreno
Buster Keaton
Carter DeHaven
Cullen Landis
Theodore Roberts
Lloyd Ingraham
Hoot Gibson
Larry Semon
Truly Shattuck
Bull Montana
Jack Dillon
Lottie Pickford
Irving Cummings
Viola Dana
William Farnum
Francis Ford
Lew Cody
William H. Crane
Art Acord
Monte Blue
Clyde Cook
Edwin Carewe

at the

Boxing Carnival Benefit for the Crippled Children's Guild of the Orthopaedic Hospital-School of Los Angeles

at the

Legion Stadium, Hollywood

on the

First of August

—this Wednesday evening—

The biggest night of the season, both for fight fans and film fans. Better be there than sorry.

PLAYER IN "HELD TO ANSWER" ONE OF FEW HERO-VILLAINS

A villain one day, a hero the next and then a vallain again. That is the life of John Sainpolis, one of the leading players in "Held to Answer," Peter Clark MacFarlane's story which Harold Shaw is directing for Metro.

Mr. Sainpolis' ability to appear either as the villain or the hero of the picture places him in a peculiar position. There are few persons on the screen possessing such a dual personality.

Eric Von Stroheim is a villain from the crown of his bullet-shaped head to the soles of his feet. He has been nicknamed the "best hated villain." Robert McKim, Sam De Grasse, Walter Long, Clarence Burton and Raymond Hatton are always evil-doers on the screen. It would not seem right to look upon them in any other role.

On the other hand Douglas Fairbanks, Ramon Novarro, Rodolph Valentino, Richard Barthlesess are always heroes.

Mr. Sainpolis, however, is alternately the hero and the "heavy." In Rex Ingram's "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" he had a sympathetic role. In "Shadows" he was a scoundrel. In "The Hero" he had the title role. In "Held to Answer" he is a narrow minded and stone hearted man.

"It's all in the way a person looks at it," said Mr. Sainpolis. "I feel that people don't believe I'm quite as good as I'm sometimes made to appear and I hope they don't think I'm quite as black as I'm painted. I'm just an everyday average man."

Others in the cast of "Held to Answer" which is headed by House Peters, include Grace Carlyle, James Morrison, Evelyn Brent, "Bull" Montana, Gale Henry, Thomas Guyse, Lydia Knott, Robert Daly, Charles West and Charles Mailes.

. . . mighty fine card, alright! It's not unusual for them, however; they always have a good line-up. Surprising how many ladies were there. It shows they enjoy boxing when it's put on right . . .

American Legion Stadium
Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

KING TUT FACE POWDER
in light and dark shades. Suitable for street or studio. Attractively priced at $1.00 Box.
YE RUB SHOPPE
621 West 8th St., Los Angeles, Calif.
Phone Metropolitan 1566

Hugh Hoffman
Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip," "Crossed Wires," "The Town Scandal," "Sawdus"

"HAIRGONE"—permanent cure for superfluous hair on arm, limbs, face and body—also wonderful for men who have shaving troubles.
$2.50 the bottle—manufactured at
ORCHID BEAUTY SHOPPE
808 So. Hope St. Phone 16596
All lines of beauty culture.

WE MOVE THE MOVIES
and Shine on Service
Hollywood 2077 - SAMUEL C. SHINE - 6508 Santa Monica Blvd.

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography
LITTLE
Commercial Photographer
Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

Animated Cartoons—Original Title Ideas
Clay Animation—Miniature Sets and Animated Figures
Cinema Arts Studio
ELMER H. YOUNG, Manager
612 Lissner Building Phone 644-42

Frank The Shoe Doctor
"We save your sole and heel you, too"
6666 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3752

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660
KWIK LUNCH
SERVES U RITE
1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law
JACK P. LEONARD
340 Douglas Bldg. Los Angeles, Cal. Consultation Free Telephone 659-42

GRACE CARLYLE WASTES NO TIME MAKING GOOD IN SCREEN CAREER

Rumors are beginning to emanate from the Metro studio that a new emotional actress is about to make a very definite bid for success in "Held to Answer," an all-star picturization of Peter Clark MacFarlane's most successful novel.

According to report, those who have seen the "rushes" from this picture in which Grace Carlyle appears are enthusiastically proclaiming a brilliant screen future for her.

Although Miss Carlyle is making her screen debut in "Held to Answer," she has had splendid dramatic training as a leading woman in Charles Frohman productions for the past seven years. She came to Los Angeles a short while ago for a rest, but soon after her arrival was induced to play the leading role in Oscar Apfel's "Morphine"—now called "The Dangerous Road"—at Egan's Little Theatre.

At that time Harold Shaw was casting "Held to Answer," but was encountering considerable difficulty in selecting the actress who could portray the leading feminine role. When the director saw "Morphine" he instantly made up his mind that Miss Carlyle was just the one for the part. The subsequent screen test confirmed his judgment, and her name was soon placed on the dotted line.

The cast for "Held to Answer" also includes such favorites as House Peters, Evelyn Brent, James Morrison, John Sainpolis, Gale Henry, Lydia Knott and "Bull" Montana.

LLOYD HUGHES IS NOT—

The son of Rupert Hughes.

Related to Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes.

An Australian, member of the same family as Sir Thomas Hughes.

"I'm just a picture actor, son of an Arizona locomotive engineer," he says. "I started life, after leaving high school, as a butcher's delivery boy."

Twenty-six persons were considered for the historical role of Maximilien Robespierre in Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche" for Metro. The man selected was Curt Fuerberg, who bears an uncanny resemblance to the noted French patriot.

Several of the costly costumes worn by Lewis Stone in Rex Ingram's French Revolution production, "Scaramouche," became rags and tatters during the filming of the Paris street battle scenes in which Mr. Stone suffered many attacks by the blood-thirsty mobs.

Among the other implements used in Rex Ingram's monster French Revolution production, "Scaramouche," are a pair of twin cannon. One was manufactured in 1620 and was used in the revolution. The other was made 300 years later, in 1920. About half of the hundreds who looked at the guns were able to tell which was older.

RARE IMPORTS AND THINGS ORIENTAL
Oriental Costume Co.
6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

Highest Title Efficiency Our Aim

We secured the services of Mr. Irving W. Bunze from Craftsmen Laboratories, New York, who is the Greatest Hand Letter Artist in the country.

Also introduce the Lane Patent Process for 100% Printed Titles.

"Give Us a Trial"

Quality Title & Film Co.
1442 Beechwood Dr. Holly 4850

WHY BE FAT

When the Marshelle Method will reduce your weight a pound a day safely, inexpensively and permanently.

Consultation free.
Phone 593-262
for appointment

Home Office:
1733 Maltman Ave.
Los Angeles, Cal.

Have your figure permanently Marshelled NOW

BRUNO
6412 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3821
. . . . for your casting director photos . . . . .

Good Studio Space on Glendale Boulevard!
Here's a snap, independent producers! The Bronx Studio has some good space for rent at a give-away. Save a big sum on your overhead and put it in the picture! Look into this . . . TODAY!
H. and B. FILM COMPANY
Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275

Colored Portraits!

You can transform your ordinary photographs into colored portraits of the most beautiful kind at a very reasonable cost. There are special rates on fan pictures.

EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38

Walter Frederick Seel y
Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset)
Telephone 439-774

MARION WARDE
Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films
Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing
423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

Hardee Kirkland's
Phone Number
is
Hollywood
6298

YOUR PHONOGRAPH
will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a
Deflexograph
Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles
Play after hours —will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.
$1.00 Post-paid
GOLD PLATE $1.50 (See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE $1.00
VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

FOR SALE
Pathe camera, magazines, and Precision ball bearing tripod. Automatic dissolving shutter. Bargain for cash. Box ROF, "Camera!"

FROM U TO YOU

Sheldon Lewis, arch-villain, has reformed!

He's emerged from his dark ways as "The Clutching Hand" and his malignant menace as "The Iron Claw"; forgotten "Mr. Hyde" and his malevolence—and has played a part where he for the first time in his long screen career wins sympathy from the audience.

And a little girl did it-

Sheldon plays the first sympathetic role in his history in "Whose Baby Are You?" Baby Peggy's Universal-Jewel starring vehicle, which King Baggott directed.

"I consider the part 'Givoanni' in the Baby Peggy picture the best acting role I have ever had," the famous "heavy" asserts. "Perhaps it's because down in our hearts we villains like a sympathetic role once in a while, and the lovable Italian is a wonderful character as the author has written him and as King Baggott directs him. Baggott always sounds the human note, and no matter how 'high-brow' the director may be, the simplest and most direct method of doing this is always the solution of his problem. Baggott knows this from years of acting and directing.

"I am confident of a great success for Baby Peggy's first starring vehicle for this reason—it is primarily life."

Sheldon Lewis has played over 300 roles on the stage and screen. His first big role was "The Clutching Hand" in the first big serial ever made in pictures; followed "The Iron Claw"; then other notable villain parts. His "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" is one of his outstanding successes- he played "Jacques Fouchard" in D. W. Griffith's "Orphans of the Storm," played with Virginia Pearson in "The Bishop's Emeralds," and has "villained" other successes such as "Jacqueline" and "The Little Red Schoolhouse."

His "Giovanni" is the principal male role in the new Baby Peggy picture; the portrayal of a lovable Italian of New York's little Italy, rich in character and vivid portrayal of the volatile emotions of the Latin people.

Universal City will be the scene next Monday of an elaborate outing of the Retail Clother's Association of Los Angeles, preparations for which are now under way. A barbeque will be staged on the setting of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," largest picture scene in the history of the industry, where giant pits will be utilized to prepare the roast meat, under the direction of a Spanish barbeque expert, and several hundred guests will be served.

The details of the affair are in the hands of a committee headed by William Stansbury and G. E. Nagel. An elaborate program will follow the barbeque, and also a tour of the four-hundred acre picture city. The association, composed of retail merchants of Los Angeles, is one of the important mercantile organizations of Southern California.

Another noted actor of the legitimate stage has hearkened to the siren song of the celluloid. This latest arrival in the army of film stars is Harry Mestayer, for years one of the best known figures on the legitimate stage. He is now at Unirersal City, playing the part of the District Attorney in "The Acquittal," a Jewel production hinging around a trial more dramatic than even the celebrated trial scene in the stage version of "Madame X."

Harry Mestayer has long been a featured player in New York, with David Belasco, Charles Frohman and George W. Cohen. He has also been a producer in his own right; having launched a number of successful plays. As the district attorney, he has one of the most vigorous character roles in the big play, adapted from Rita Weiman's Broadway stage success.

Coy Watson, Jr.
Age 10. Wilshire 3616
No Luck.
You Never Know.
The Right of the Strongest.
Featured in Campbell Comedies

Overweight? Underweight?
Weigh what you want to! Overweight? Underweight? Hard to maintain your normal weight? Something absolutely new! No drugs! No. starvation! No. strenuous exercises. Be well and weigh what you should. Endorsed by physicians. Bring your diet problems to "THE DIET SHOP."
MRS. A. METZNER
Consultant
5621 Hollywood Boulevard

Publicity Engineer
Tamar Lane Holly 737

COLBURN'S
Taxidermy Studio
Phone 643-13
1033-37 Broadway Place
. . . excells in mounting of fish . . . trout our specialty . . . see samples at our studio . . .

Especially for Motion Picture People.
THE HILLVIEW GRILL
Hillview Apartments Bldg.
Hollywood at Hudson
Holly 7980 Holly 6626
MERCHANTS LUNCH 11:30 to 2
DINNER 5:30 to 8

SCREEN SERVICE
(formerly The Service Bureau)
1036 South Hill
Phone 821-071

Selected Antiques
Turton's Antique Shop
5611 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Cal.

And May Return Ye Olden Sport

Because she believes the Maryland tournament is the most romantic outdoor sport in America, Dorothy Phillips, star of "Slander the Woman" and numerous other photoplays, plans to introduce this last surviving spectacle of the days of chivalry into Southern California, where she expects it to rival polo as a great society event.

"I was born in Baltimore, you know," Miss Phillips said in telling her plans, "and I remember, when a girl, how I was thrilled whenever I saw a tournament, for the romance which surrounds the malways brought back to my mind the days when knights were bold. So far as I know, these tournaments are not held anywhere else but in parts of Maryland and the Valley of Virginia.

"They are a gorgeous spectacle, beginning with a parade of the knights, every one of whom must be in uniform, with his own particular colors floating in pennons from his lance and streaked across his breast in a sash. Sometimes, if he is riding for a 'ladye faere,' he wears his sweetheart's colors on his left arm. And, whenever a knight rides for some particular girl, she always fashions his sash and decorates his lance.

"After the parade behind a band, the knights assemble at the tilting ground and hear a 'Charge to the Knights' delivered by some orator who knows all about the romantic days of chivalry and can tell about them in flowery phrases. The knights then pass in review before the judges' stand and are marshalled at the head of the lists. Each rides under some selected name, generally that by which the home place of his family is known, for the estates in Maryland have names like 'Carrollton,' where the famous Charles Carroll lived; 'My Lady's Manor" and 'My Lord's Gift,' where tournaments are held every year; 'Chesterfield,' 'Shellburne,' 'Corsica' and such names, and the knights title themselves in this way.

"When the tilting begins, each knight has three scoring rides at rings that are placed in arms suspended from arches that are 75 feet apart. If he gets three rings, the music plays as he gallops up to the judges' stand, surrounded by the heralds and pages, also in uniform. If he misses all the three rings, he must gallop around behind the stand. If two or more knights tie, they have to ride until the tie is broken, which sometimes takes quite a while.

"After the tilting is finished, the champion knight selects his Queen of Love and Beauty and the next four knights in order pick the maids-of-honor. Then they escort their ladies to the stand, place flowery crowns on their heads and hear the 'Coronation Address' delivered by another flowery-tongued orator.

"The next event of the tournament is the ball at night and these dances are real social events of importance. The 'Tournament Ball' is opened by the champion knight and the Queen of Love and Beauty occupying their thrones while the other winning knights and the maids-of-honor dance the royal quadrille. Upon its completion, the champion and queen descend from their dais and the dancing becomes general.

"All this may sound rather tame, but the sight of a uniformed knight dashing madly down the lists on a horse that must run 125 yards in not more than ten seconds is a sight that will make any girl's heart thrill to the glow of romance and chivalry. And it takes an expert horseman to sit firmly in the saddle while his eyes are glued to the holes in little rings 1¼ inches in diameter that knights tell me look almost as small as the eye of a needle. The lance used must not be less than eight feet long and it is balanced solely by the forefinger as it lightly rests in the curved palm of the hand.

"I want Southern Californians, especially the motion picture folk, to see a Maryland tournament staged here and I expect to see knights charging down the lists once again before the Fall is over. And I'll promise any girl who attends that she will be enraptured by the chance to become some dashing victor's Queen of Love and Beauty."

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS GET RESULTS

FOR RENT—High-grade still outfits, $5.00 per week, Little, The Big Photographer, 5874 Hollywood Boulevard. Phone 437-902.

Marguerite LaMont

Vermont 5780

Educationally Entertaining

Intensely Dramatic

INTRODUCING

BALMAC

EDUCATIONAL FILM COMPANY

Capt. M. McKenzie, Production Manager

Historically Authentic

Diversified in Character

LORRAINE EASON

who portrayed the role of "Echo" in the William Fox late offering, "The Temple of Venus," under the direction of Henry Otto.

575-91

Charles Cruz

who has just finished the Juvenile lead in a four weeks' engagement in "You Can't Get Away With It," under the direction of Roland V. Lee—one of a special series being produced by William Fox.

RENALLES, INC.

WE DO WHAT WE SAY WE DO (NEER FAIL!)

Clarke Renalle

President and General Managing Director

"THE ELK'S TOOTH"

An Eloquent Plea for the Preservation of America's Favorite Monarch of the Forest

Told in a Beautiful Romantic Comedy Drama of the Great Outdoors

A Feature Production with an All-Star Cast

Now in Preparation

Culver City Studio

6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City, Calif.

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

"Camera!"

Los Angeles, California Saturday, August 4, 1923 Price 10 Cents

ALEC FRANCIS IN "THREE WISE FOOLS" AT THE CALIFORNIA THEATRE

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A.HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

Marguerite LaMont

Vermont 5780

RENALLES, Inc.

CLARKE RENALLES
General Managing Director

Distinctive Cinema and Legitimate Productions

"The Elks Tooth"
Now in Preparation

General Offices:
Culver City Studio, 6529 Venice Blvd., Culver City.—Take P. E. Cars.

"Make-Up Headquarters of the Motion Picture Industry"

THE service of this shop is unusual in its scope and completeness. Here the discriminating artist can find all of the foremost imported and domestic manufactures of fine make-up accessories, and among those people not of the profession this shop has gained equal renown as the guild of expert wig-makers. We deal exclusively in make-up preparations and hair goods. They are the best that can be made.

ZAN MAKE-UP SHOP
819 South Hill ····· Pico 498

"Camera!" [The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

ESTABLISHED 1918—A FILM MAGAZINE AND A FILM NEWSPAPER IN ONE
Entered as second class matter, August 11, 1918, at the postoffice at Los Angeles, Cal., under act of March 3, 1879.

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON.....Publisher and Manager DELBERT E. DAVENPORT.....Editor
JOHN CORNYN.....Advertising Manager FRED W. FOX.....Advertising Copy
GENE WOOLWAY.....Studio Representative

H. H. CONGER COMPANY, National Advertising Representatives
MARBRIDGE BUILDING NEW YORK CITY | FIRST NAT'L BANK BUILDING CHICAGO | HOLBROOK BUILDING SAN FRANCISCO

Price 10 cents per copy, $3.50 per year in Los Angeles County. Outside Zone, $4.00 per year. Canada, $4.50, Foreign, $5.00.
Issued on Saturday afternoon of each week at 6318 Hollywood Boulevard, in Los Angeles, California. Phone 439-869
Address All Communications to Camera!

Vol. VI. SATURDAY, AUGUST 4, 1923 No. 16

Incidentally, Hollywood Grows, Just Like the Movies

When a man is downright simple, he is simply not upright.

Another foolish fad has gone by the boards—they've quit maligning Hollywood so unmercifully.

It's about time a new genius leaped into the cinema limelight—a Babe Ruth or a Firpo—explicitly, a boy with a wallop, not a "knock."

Some expositions may be all right, but most people hereabouts seem to think the motion picture one just ended after five weeks was all wrong.

Carl Laemmle spends most of his money at Universal City, but he spends much of his time in Europe, which is fair enough for this community!

But then, of course, the people have had no opportunity to pass judgment on the effects of Prohibition in America as yet since there has been so little of it to judge.

Somebody should start a campaign to end the fulsome campaigns of back-biters within the film industry. The time has come when the whole motley lot of them should be forced to go.

"The whole world has gone movie-mad," complains an eastern fanatic who holds down a job as pastor of a prominent church. Granting the complainant is correct, is it anything wrong?

"Satisfactory business," is the report from most motion picture theatres throughout the country thus far this summer. That means more satisfaction for Hollywood since increased production is thus assured.

Now that Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., has decided to launch himself in the Los Angeles field as a full-fledged publisher of a daily newspaper, may we not expect to see Edsel Ford start another "weakly" here like the Dearborn Independent?

Now that Charlie Chaplin has nearly finished his new palatial home in Beverly Hills, Pola Negri has completely finished her engagement with him, which leads countless of interested admirers to wonder just what the grand finish will be.

According to present indications Douglas Fairbanks will not be able to complete "The Thief of Bagdad," his current film production, until some time next December. Obviously, he's not going to let this thief be robbed of anything by haste.

"The Rendezvous of Beautiful Women," is what one observer calls Los Angeles. A Frisco critic calls that observer a liar. And, we, being prone to be mild and charitable, call the Frisco critic frank although we understand his Christian name is Bill.

There is now under way a rather unusual exodus of film magnates to Europe, all bent on business missions. Evidently there has come authoritative information of the early return of better conditions across the pond. Surely so many American picture kings would not be making blind jumps if the European situation really is as bad as it seems.

If they have a second World War soon, it will be neither surprising or reprehensible if there are millions of slackers among the masses of common people, because there is no longer even a passive susceptibility to the wiles and stirring tirades of munition manufacturers and unscrupulously aspiring diplomats. It is high time for everybody to be tired enough of war to abolish it.

Camera! doubts that there ever was any city in all history to make such strides of progress as Hollywood is making these days. The transformation of this film-making center into a bustling metropolis of gigantic proportions in three short years has been absolutely amazing and surely unprecedented. That this same Hollywood will be a cosmopolitan community of a half-million population in a record-breaking short space of time seems to be a foregone conclusion. Anyone who advises an out-of-town relative or friend to move to this superb city among the world's most picturesque foot-hills and to invest his or her bank-roll here is doing a double good turn—one for the relative or friend and one for Hollywood.

The quality of photoplays is being improved reassuringly, but we doubt the possibility of perfecting the cinema as a distinct and independent art until a revolutionary change is made in tchnique and general manner of presentation of story. Many of the highest authorities seem to hold such an opinion, too. Why not a little curtailing of expenditures on studio improvements in order to have some cash to divert to the cause of intelligent, scientific experimenting with some of the more reasonable ideas of a few so-called radicals who try so much in vain to get a hearing? We personally know of one new technique which we are confident has at least the nucleus of a truly great idea. There are other notions available. Indeed it seems a pity there is only lethargy among those whose interest in the subject would be most beneficial to the photoplay.

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Broken Wing"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

Margaret Anglin
in "A Woman of No Importance"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

Jack Livingstone, Mary Winn
in
"The Power Divine"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

Richard Talmadge
in
"Cyclone Jordan"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

Shirley Mason
in
"Pawn Ticket 210"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Ivan Miller-Elise Bartlett
in
"The Man Who Came Back"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

Douglas Fairbanks
in
"Robin Hood"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

Tom Mix
in
"Stepping Fast"

"M" Is Her Mascot

Just as the street car lines of Los Angeles are distinguished by certain letters, so has a certain initial almost invariably appeared in the ride through life of Dale Fuller ,character star, who has just finished a big role in Von Stroheim's "Greed." The letter "M" has been Miss Fuller's talisman since school days. She was graduated from Mills College, near San Francisco. All three of her big film roles have started with an "M." She was christened "Marischa" in "Foolish Wives," She was "Marincka" in Rupert Julien's "Merry-Go-Round" and in "Greed" she appeared as "Maria Miranda Macaipa"—a bevy of "M's." And to top it all her own name really is Marie Dale Fuller. At present, Miss Fuller is enjoying a much-needed rest after several weeks of character complexes in San Francisco.

Uses 2,500 "Extras."

To Herbert Brenon's production of "The Spanish Dancer," starring Pola Negri with Antonio Moreno featured, goes the honor of having the largest set constructed in recent years by Paramount's West Coast studio. Approximately twenty-five hundred minor players attired in the colorful costumes of Spain of the seventeenth century were used in conjunction with this mammoth structure. The famous "Square of the Galloping Charger" in Madrid was reproduced in its entirety at the Lasky ranch as a background for the lavish military and religious celebration in which Pola Negri and most of the members of the cast appeared.

Burdened With Phantoms.

Phantoms seem to run in Harold Austin's family. After working for over six months with Strongheart and Director Laurence Trimble as leading man in "The Phantom Pack," which has been re-titled "The Love Master," Austin was invited to take a cruise of a few days' duration with a party of friends. On reaching the harbor, Austin discovered the name of his friend's boat to be "The Phantom Poodle." Now, Austin is afraid the cruise will last for another six months, although the destination was supposed to be Catalina Island.

Title Is Selected.

"Stephen Steps Out" has been chosen as the title of Douglas picture from Richard Harding Davis' famous story, "The Grand Cross of the Crescent," according to an announcement from the office of Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production. Theodore Roberts is featured with the thirteen-year-old star with Noah Beery and Harry Myers heading the list of supporting players. Although the full cast has not been named, Frank Currier and Bertram Johns are also included to date. Edfrid Bingham adapted the Davis story and Joseph Henabery will direct the boy star.

Warners Sign Louise

Louise Fazenda has signed a long term contract for featured roles of stellar significance with the Warner Brothers. Miss Fazenda occupies a most unique place on the screen, where, for eight years, she has won fame as one of the cleverest comediennes in the business. For nearly a year now, she has appeared in numerous dramatic productions where she played straight comedy roles. In "The Gold Diggers," where her excellent work won her a starring contract, Miss Fazenda played the role on highly dramatic lines, demonstrating that she is both comedienne and dramatic artist.

Chapin to Assist.

Associated First National Pictures have engaged James Chapin to assist John McDermott in the direction of "Her Temporary Husband," which he will start shooting on August 5. The story is adapted from the stage play of the same name and the exteriors will all be taken in Long Beach. Sidney Chaplin, Tully Marshall and Chuck Reisner are among those present in the cast, which has not been completed as yet.

C. B. Is Back.

Cecil B. DeMille and a number of the featured players in "The Ten Commandments," the story of which was written by Jeanie Macpherson, returned this week from San Francisco where an important sequence of scenes in the modern story of this Fairmount picture was filmed on and about the structural work of a new church now under construction there. In addition to Leatrice Joy, Richard Dix, Nita Naldi, Rod LaRocque, Edythe Chapman and Robert Edeson of the cast of featured players, Mr. DeMille was accompanied by his production staff, including Jeanie Macpherson, author and scenarist; Paul Iribe, art director, Bert Glennon, chief of the camera staff and Cullen Tate, assistant director.

Going to Arizona.

Zane Grey and Victor Fleming will leave for Flagstaff, Ariz., within a few days in search of locations to be used in filming the Zane Grey production of "The Call of the Canyon," which Fleming will direct for Paramount. "To the Last Man," the preceding Zane Grey production featuring Richard Dix and Lois Wilson, was recently completed under the direction of Fleming.

Hart Starts Soon.

William S. Hart will start work on his first Paramount picture since his announced return to the screen next week, according to the star and Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production. "William S. Hart in Wild Bill Hickock" is the title of the initial Hart picture. The story is an original by the star and has been scenarized by Albert Shelby LeVino.

California
Main at Eighth

Alec Frances, W. H. Crane,
Claude Gillingwater
in "Three Wise Fools"

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Harold Lloyd
in
"Safety Last"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

Thomas Meighan
in
"Homeward Bound"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Corinne Griffith,
Conway Tearle
in "The Common Law"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

Mrs. Wallace Reid
in
"Human Wreckage"

Kinema
Grand near Seventh

Nell Shipman
in
"The Grub Stake"

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

William Desmond
in
"Shadows of the North"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

Marion Mack
in
"Mary of the Movies"

Hollywood Egyptian
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden

"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mary Philbin
and Norman Kerry in
"Merry Go Round"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

Elaine Hammerstein
in
"Broadway Gold"

Making Luck

By DONALD H. CLARKE

During a general conversation about motion pictures the other day King Vidor's name was mentioned. Someone recalled that, although recognized as one of the most successful of directors, he is only twenty-nine years old. Someone else observed, "Some people are born lucky."

"Wait a bit," exclaimed a man who has been closely associated with pictures for many years, and who had been active hitherto only as a listener. "Vidor wasn't born any luckier than thousands of other chaps who are lots older and lots poorer than he is now. The only difference between him and them, as nearly as I can see it, is that he fixed on a definite objective early in life and started plugging for it to the exclusion of everything else. The more obstacles he had to overcome, the harder he plugged. There is a great lesson for young men, and women, too, for that matter, in Vidor's career.

"Vidor always had the idea he could write, and while he was in high school in his native state of Texas, and later when he was at Tome Institute, in Maryland, he kept grinding out short stories and articles. Then, just about the time he left the institute he made up his mind definitely that motion pictures were his career, and he started in to write scenarios. He wrote fifty before one was accepted, and he didn't get much reward for that. But his ardor, instead of being dampened, was increased by disappointment.

"He was away off from the beaten track of motion pictures—in Galveston, Tex. There weren't any studios there, or any players, or experts in any branch of his chosen field. But he decided to make his own pictures, nevertheless. He furnished the stories; the players he recruited from visiting vaudeville acts, whose services he secured for practically nothing. His sets were homes and business buildings already built. His two reelers were made in four or five days.

"During this period he passed an unusually pretty girl on the street. He sought an introduction because he wanted her for a leading lady. Her family wouldn't hear of such a thing, so Vidor married her. No one who knows anything at all about pictures doesn't know about Vidor's wife, Florence Vidor.

"Well, the Vidors made a few more two-reelers in Texas, after which they went to New York for experience. They worked as extras, and in all sorts of other capacities in different studios, after which they went back again to picture making in Galveston. But they weren't satisfied with the results, due to their poor facilities, so finally they made the big plunge, gave up everything, and motored to Los Angeles. They took any work they could get in the studios, the first good break finally occurring when Vidor got a position in the scenario department of Vitagraph. That was in 1914-15. From then on his rise was rapid. He soon became a director, and clinched his future in 1918 with "The Turn in the Road," which he adapted and directed. It was one of the first big successes with a spiritual theme.

"Now he is one of the big directors engaged by Goldwyn, his first picture for them being an adaptation of the stage success, 'Three Wise Fools,' which is said to be one of the best photodramas he ever has made, and which will be seen on the screen this Fall.

"It would be a fine thing," concluded the speaker, "If every young man and woman who sees 'Three Wise Fools' could look back of the screen at the life of Vidor, and not see only his beautiful home, and his motor cars, and yachts, and things like that, but also the everlasting stick-to-it-iveness, the hammer-at-one-thing-until-you-get-there spirit, that taking him through all barriers, brought him success at the age of twenty-nine. He wasn't born lucky. He made his own luck."

Days of Pretty Girl Parts---Are They Over?

The wide-spread practice of holding beauty contests in the selection of new screen material has given many followers of motion pictures the idea that all one has to have to achieve movie fame is good looks.

Evelyn Brent, pretty English actress now appearing in American productions, hits upon an important truth that should be of interest to all film aspirants, when she declares that the day of "pretty girl parts" is over and that beauty contest winners must work as hard as extra girls to achieve lasting success.

"Beauty contests are valuable in that they afford opportunities to those who might otherwise, never attempt a screen career," says Miss Brent. "However, there is no doubt but that these contests have tended more than anything else, to give 'fans' generally, the impression that good looks is the prime requisite to screen success.

"Every day I receive letters which read in effect: 'My friends say I am beautiful and should be in the movies.' A large percentage of beauty contest winners who come to Hollywood are subjected to sad disappointments. Because they won the contest they feel they should be allowed to walk right into the star part. When they find they must start at the bottom, just like extra girls and must work just as hard as anyone else to get ahead, they feel they have been disappointed. Most of them return home. A few of them stick and some of them, after years of hard work, reach their goal—just like anyone else.

"Hazel Keener won a Chicago contest two years ago. Today she is beginning to play important parts. She has studied hard and learned the art of acting. In another year she will perhaps be playing leading parts. She is one of the few who have seriously taken to the art. At first she was disappointed, but she soon found that she must 'deliver' before she could get ahead.

"There are no longer stars who get by on their beauty alone, as was the case some years ago. One girl, who was made a star immediately upon entering the business, met with a sad fate. She was beautiful, but could not act. She had back-bone, however, and instead of bewailing her inability to 'get over', she stepped down from starring parts to small 'bits'. Now, after four years, she is again playing leading characters, but this time she has the training and the ability to do her parts justice.

"Looks are important, but they do not begin to cover the demands of a film player. To be an actress in films, one must be able to act. Acting and beauty are two distinct and separate qualifications. The latter is more important than the former. Acting, like painting, takes years of training and study.

"If those who enter beauty contests will only remember that all they can expect if they win, is a chance to learn, there will be many less heart aches."

Bradley King, who does most of Thomas H. Ince's screen adaptations. Her latest is "Annie Christie," from the play by Eugene O'Neill.

Walter McGrail, who has just completed one of the leading roles in Edwin Carewe's First National Production of "The Bad Man."

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., July 30th.—Edward Belasco, head of the Belasco Production Corporation of this city, and his general manager, A. H. Sebastian, are in Los Angeles making preparations for the filming of the organization's next picture. The picture will be shot in one of the Southern studios, and the full plans will be given out at an early date.

Milton Gardner, Vice-President of Goldwyn came to San Francisco Friday and spent several days looking over the last of the work on "Greed," to be made in this city.

San Francisco is taking great interest in the first showing here of "The Fog," which is the attraction of the week at the Warfield Theatre. "The Fog" is the second picture to be made by the Graf Productions, and was made with San Francisco money at the Pacific Studios at San Mateo, released through Metro. But quite aside from its local interest, it's a corking good picture, directed by Paul Powell, with a cast that includes such well-known names as Cullen Landis, Mildred Harris, Louise Fazenda, Louise Dresser, Ethel Wales, Ralph Lewis, and Eddie Phillips.

Eric Von Stroheim and the company making "Greed" under his direction are almost through with their work in San Francisco. They have been here long enough to feel almost like old residents. In fact, Ernie Traxler, production manager, has been here long enough to vote, and it's four months and a half since they began actual shooting on the picture, but now they expect to finish here on Wednesday, and leave for the South on Thursday. The original plans have been changed a bit, so the company will go from here to Los Angeles, and after a stay there of only one day, on to Keeler, where a short sequence will be shot. Then from there, equipped for the great heat, they will go into Death Valley to film the final scenes of the picture. After that is finished Gibson Gowland as "McTeague" can shave his beard, and the company will leave for Colfax, to make the early part of the story, and the scenes of his boyhood as a miner in the Great Dipper Gold Mine. Zasu Pitts has just about finished her part in the picture, and expects to leave in the near future for New York, where she is engaged for a picture soon to be filmed by the Famous-Players.

Hal Reed, well known publicity man, and former press agent of the First National Productions in San Francisco, has been appointed Director of Publicity for "If Winter Comes," the latest picture of the Fox Film Corporation. He is also handling all the San Francisco publicity for Warner Brothers.

Cecil DeMille and the company making the "Ten Commandments" did four very strenuous days of work in San Francisco last week. They were working at the partly finished great new Church of St. Peter and St. Paul, on Washington Square, as part of the story in the modern sequence required the use of a half-completed Cathedral, it was ideal for their purpose. A few scenes were shot on the ground outside the building, but two whole days' work was done on the very top of the scaffolding between the two steeples. The company not only had to ride up and down on dizzy freight elevators made only for the hauling of material, but as a high wind was blowing, and hundreds of feet in air they had no possible shelter, they nearly froze to death. But in spite of difficulties DeMille almost made a record, shooting twenty-one scenes in one day. Jeannie McPherson, who wrote the scenario, was with the company, also Al Wilkie, publicity man for Lasky.

Louis Graf, President of the Graf Productions, returned from Los Angeles last Friday, and as he and Hesser Walraven, business manager of the organization, are very busy these days lining up a four-masted schooner to be used in their next picture, "Half-A-Dollar Bill." During the making of the picture the company will go to sea for two weeks in a schooner, and shoot a lot of other scenes with the boat tied up to the wharf. The studio work is to be done at the Pacific Studio at San Mateo. Max Graf is still in the south engaging his cast and director.

Goveneur Morris, well known to the screen as the author of the stories from which several successful pictures have been made, came up from his home in Carmel to spend most of last week in town as a guest at the Plaza Hotel.

"If Winter Comes," the big Fox Production that had its world premiere here in San Francisco last week, is playing to crowded, and delighted houses at the Columbia Theatre. The picture is made from A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel, which was the most widely read book of last year, and in its filming they have been wise enough to follow the novel almost exactly, with the result that they have made a picture interesting, human, and artistic. Percy Marmont as Mark Saber gives a very fine performance, and all the other parts are well played. Most of the picture was made in England, and the scenes have the quiet and dignity of real English country. A special film of the picture was sent by pretty Peggy Chamberlain to Seattle, to be delivered to President Harding, and was shown to the President and his party en route from Seattle to this city, as their special train is fully equipped with a car fitted for the showing of moving pictures.

Eddie Burns, well known leading man of the cinema drama, spent part of last week in San Francisco on a little holiday trip.

And Fate Has Many Such Toys

It may be

"Fate or Chance or God,
Or that which made us clod—" that sends us along the heights—and then topples us down. Occasionally Fate grapples with someone who possesses a never-say-die determination, and thereby hangs a tale.

Ralph Faulkner was born 28 years ago in the thriving hamlet of Aberdeen, Wash. Nineteen years later he graduated from the University of Washington as honor man in forestry. He then went into the Indian forest service and served as a guide in the Canadian Rockies and in the woods of Washington and Canada. During three years he was champion canoeist of the Northwest, winning many medals for his prowess.

The outdoor work developed a powerful pair of lungs and it was not long before he was studying voice under David Bispham and Percy Rector Stephens. Then followed two years as juvenile lead for Yvette Guilbert in "Guibour" at the old 39th St. Theatre, New York; concert work as a baritone of operatic promise; then into light opera, singing the leading male role in the No. 2 "Tangerine" company.

During the lull of New York's summer theatrical season he found his way into pictures. He played a leading male role in "Anne of Little Smoky," which starred Winifred Westover. In this he portrayed a shell-shocked veteran that excited no little admiration from the critics. Following this Faulkner was "discovered" by an independent producer and signed as a star for six features, the first being "The Man From Glengarry."

For weeks everything was going along smoothly. "The Man From Glengarry" was being relived by Ralph Faulkner—then inexorable Fate stepped in. While handling a peavey in a log boom he missed his footing and was crushed between the onrushing timber. He sustained a badly torn knee and was laid up for a year.

After he recovered from his injuries, Faulkner once again began his fight upward. In that one year he had been forgotten, but his persistency won for him the role of Pierre, opposite Mary Astor in "Hope," then he came to Hollywood in a leading role in "April Showers," a Schulberg special. Associated Authors saw in him the re-incarnation of Jack Ellis in "Loving Lies," Thompson Buchanan's screen version of Peter B. Kyne's sea story, "The Harbor Bar," and only recently he completed his work with them.

Casts of the Week

Joseph M. Schenck
Presents
NORMA TALMADGE
in
"DUST OF DESIRE"
(First National Release)
Direction by Chester Franklin and Frances Marion.
David Fischer, Assistant Director
Tony Gaudio, Cameraman.

CAST

Norma Talmadge	Arthur E. Carewe
Earl Schenck	Albert Prisco
Joseph Schildkaut	Mario Carrillo
Jas. Cooley	Laurence Wheat

Hector V. Sarno

LILLIAN'S LAUGHING LINES

By Lillian Rich

* * *

Love and golf are very much alike. They both ruin a man's business.

* * *

Every day seems to be Independence Day for some people.

* * *

It takes a woman to make a millionaire feel like thirty cents.

* * *

The word chaperon is not in the modern young girl's dictionary.

* * *

These traffic policemen certainly have "fine" calling cards.

* * *

Some married couples get along swimmingly at the beach.

Into the Lecture! Big Film Goes East!

Details of the making of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," Universal super-Jewel spectacle starring Lon Chaney, and employing a cast of four thousand people in the largest settings ever built in the motion picture industry's history, are to be the topic of a lecture before the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences of New York.

Miss Marjorie Weirich, institute lecturer and head of the arts and science department of the Erasmus High School of Brooklyn, passed an entire day at Universal City going over the details of the making of the picture and inspecting its settings, in preparation of her lectures.

"I compared every detail of the Universal replica of the Cathedral of Notre Dame with the cathedral itself, which I visited not six months ago," said Miss Weirich. "And the fidelity with which the artists reproduced it for the picture astounded me.

"I was particularly interested in the historic statuary and the fidelity to types in costumes and in depicting the customs of the day. Aside from its value as a picture spectacle and an entertainment, I really believe that it is the biggest thing the motion picture has ever given to the world of culure, and a striking demonstration of what the pictures can do toward education. The picture is one that will be of value to the whole world for centuries."

Los Angeles newspaper folk were extended the unique honor of being the first persons in the world to see the completed film of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," when, on the eve of its departure for New York, where the first public showing will be held, the management of Universal City held a luncheon and preview for the writers and several film experts visiting the studio.

"I've seen Catalina, Mount Lowe, Yosemite and other things—but this is the biggest kick I've had in California!"

This is the comment of Edwin Marcus, internationally famous cartoonist, following his visit to Universal City, where, as the guest of James Spearing, former dramatic editor of the New York Times and now the "pre-critic" at Universal City, he visited the big sets and saw the making of "The Acquittal," "Beasts of Paradise" and other photoplays.

Marcus, whose political cartoons on the New York Times are known throughout the world, was specially interested in the mammoth settings of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." He had recently been in Paris and had visited the Cathedral, and proclaimed the replica at Universal City a remarkable duplicate of the celebrated structure.

"The bigness of everything amazed me," he said. "I knew they used big settings, but I imagined they were just scenery—I had no idea of the structural detail; of the solidity of the buildings and the remarkable attention to detail that marks the making of pictures. I think without a doubt my visit to Universal City is the most interesting thing I have experienced on my California trip."

The famous "loud speakers" which were first developed for practical outdoor use on the gigantic set of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" have been offered by the Universal Pictures corporation for use when President Harding speaks at the Motion Picture exposition.

Scientific experts were interested all over the country by the remarkable results achieved in the construction of the "loud speakers," thru which Wallace Worsley directed the filming of the mob scenes in which an army of people took part. The voice of the director could be heard over a half mile, clearly and distinctly. The electrical engineer used it and the assistant directors.

Since the Coliseum at the Exposition grounds seats 70,000 people, it is problematical if a human voice could be heard at one time by the entire gathering. Julius Bernheim, general manager, and William Koenig, business manager, offered the services of the electrical department in installing its voice magnifying apparatus.

Work will start Monday at Universal City on "The Texas Ranger," screen adaptation of the novel by William McLeod Raine, noted writer of Western tales, and starring Roy Stewart and a picked cast. Nat Rose, who directed "The Six-Fifty" in its screen form, and has made several other Universal pictures, will direct the new offering.

The story deals with the work of the famous Texas state police, and tells the conflict between two rangers sent to bring to prison from another state a woman accused of a crime. Both love her; one seeks to aid her to escape, and the other, holding his duty higher than his love, seeks to bring her to justice.

Spectacular episodes cram the last section of the drama, and some scenic locations of special interest have been arranged for by Jack Lawton, location director, for the outdoor scenes of the picture.

Isadore Bernstein wrote the screen adaptation of the novel, and the interior settings were designed by Elmer E. Sheeley.

Allan Cavan is a Westerner by birth and was educated at Berkeley, and naturally reflects many of the qualities of the country of his birth. He is a true devotee of the great out-of-doors and a real lover of every living thing. He has evolved a philosophy of live and let live, yes even live and help live, that is both refreshing and hopeful. At the present time, between his varied and many engagements, he is collaborating with a prominent New York dramatist on several interesting scenarios which may be the forecast of an interesting announcement in the near future. Mr. Cavan's most recent productions have been for Lasky, most of them society dramas, and while he is much in demand in this type of role he believes he is particularly qualified to portray roles depicting the virile Westerner and would relish a chance to discard the full-dress for the corduroy and other paraphernalia essential to the perfect interpretation of these roles.

One by one actors of the legitimate stage have succumbed to the call of the celluloid—but now its tentacles have reached into vaudeville, too. William Gould, one of the best known figures in present day vaudeville, is the latest screen villain. Gould has started work on his part as the villainous sea captain in "Beasts of Paradise," new Universal chapter play starring William Desmond and Eileen Sedgwick. The story, opening as a sea adventure and carrying its characters through the perils of a jungle in a search for a fortune seized by a submarine, is one of the most pretentious plays of its kind in years.

Gould, latest screen villain, is known as the sailor in "The New Chief of Police," a nationally-known vaudeville sketch which played "big time" all over America for several seasons. He has been on the speaking stage for the past seventeen years, starting in an Eastern stock company, thence entering vaudeville.

Some time ago he entered pictures, playing character roles, such as his part in "Lust of the Ages," but William Craft, director of "Beasts of Paradise," discovered in him what he believes is the premier villain of future photoplays. Gould was a personal friend of the late Morgan Robertson, noted author.

"Pictures offer the actor many opportunities the speaking stage does not," says Gould. "But I believe the vaudeville stage is an invaluable training for the celluloid. You learn in vaudeville condensation which is an important thing in registering the maximum of impression with the minimum of footage." Gould assisted in the production of several pictures prior to acting in them.

"Hold the pose!"

The instruction issued from the electrical amplifier overhanging the massive setting of the courtroom in "The Acquittal" at Universal City—and the crowd of five hundred in the "Audience" of the big trial scene stopped, hesitated and looked confused. For the voice of Clarence Brown, the director, as it issued from the loud-speaking device, echoed and eddied until its meaning was lost.

"It's a fright!" mourned the director. "We can't reach 'em all by megaphone, and in these interiors a magnavox echoes awfully. I don't know just what to do."

"Maybe I can help," volunteered a shortish, diffident man, who was looking at the scene with a publicity-man. Brown smiled, "If you can make 'em all hear when I want them to hold their pose, you'll be a wonder!" he said.

The visitor grinned, and nonchalantly opened his mouth.

"Hold the pose!" rumbled forth in a deep bass that shook the set like a low organ-pipe. Further directions were issued and relayed by the owner of the stentorian pipes, until the scene was completed.

"Gee! These are some pipes!" marveled the director, in thanking the visitor. "What kind of a man are you, anyhow?"

The visitor smiled and extended his card.

"Frank Figone, operatic basso," it read. The opera singer, possessed of one of the most remarkable bass voices in the world, had come to Los Angeles to sing in the Motion Picture Exposition, and paid a visit to the studio during his engagement. "The Acquittal," in which he helped direct, is a spectacle based on Rita Weiman's famous stage play, featuring Norman Kerry, Claire Windsor and

(Continued on Page 20)

The Allurement of Athletics

Mickey McBan, who is now at work on his fortieth picture, is also training for the swimming exhibition to be held in Los Angeles very soon. His father has built a small gymnasium in the McBan home in Laurel Canyon and here the budding starlet spends most of his time these days when he's not at the studio or in the swimming pool. He in learning to box, wrestle, fence, chin the bar and perform acrobatic dances, and it's a certainty if he's called upon for any athletic stunts during the aquatic show, he'll be ready. He is playing one of the principal roles in "Born of the Cyclone," the Gypsy story Emile Chautard is filming at the R-C Studios, and as the contract was signed during the last of Mickey's scenes in Henry Otto's "The Temple of Venus" at the Fox Studios, these were rushed to completion with all possible speed to enable him to join Chautard promptly. This is the fourth time the youngster has been under Chautard's direction, and further evidence of his growing popularity is reflected in the fact negotiations are well under way for another production to follow this one. Young Mr. McBan is keeping up the pace even during what is generally considered the slack cinema season, and statements relative to his future come in never-ending procession.

CHARACTER MEN

Getting right down to "brass-tacks" it would indeed be difficult to select a more capable, a more conscientious and successfully seasoned character actor than Bert Sprotte, who is now enjoying a few days of recreation before again getting into the eternal grind of portraying any one of a possible thousand roles for which he is admirably fitted.

The character artist is at a disadvantage, to a certain extent, with the motion picture audience unless they be the real dyed-in-the-wool fan who carefully studies the casts and associates the various character portrayals with the well-known name of the actor, otherwise, simply the "character" gets the applause and approval and not the individual.

Bert Sprotte first associated himself with the motion picture industry in 1915 at which time he was cast in a prominent role in "Mother O' Mine" at the Universal, directed by Rupert Julian, and since that period he has worked quite continuously in possibly more than a hundred productions, prominent among the more recent ones are, "The Fighting Streak" and "For Big Stakes", William Fox productions; "The Soul of a Beast", a Thomas Ince; "Conquering the Woman", a King Vidor; "Thelma", a Chester Bennet; "The Purple Dawn", a Charles Seeling; two Universals, "Trimmed in Scarlet" and "The Prisoner", and the R-C production, "The Miracle Baby."

Critics, however, who have carefully followed bert Sprotte's very spectacular career, are quite in accord with the fact that even though his wide range of versatility lends itself to practically any type of a characterization, his portrayals of Western roles back in 1918 to 1920 with the William S. Hart productions stands out ahead, if possible, of all others and that his characterization of Eliphalet Moss in "White Oak" and that of the Sheriff in "O'Malley of the Mounted," working opposite "Bill" Hart, were among the best of his extensive repertoire.

COMEDY CAMERAMEN

The work of a cameraman in a comedy studio is indeed strenuous, for about fifty percent of the work is "trick stuff," as it is called. The Grand Studio has three experts—Jerry Ash, Kenneth MacLean and William Williams. Everyone of them possesses an instinct for comedy photography,, else they would not be in the business—that part of it, at least.

Animals afford some of the hardest work. In Joe Rock's new picture, "It's a Bear!" directed by Reggie Morris, the efforts to get even a well trained bruin to work just right were productive of much strenuous and persistent application. Then there was a scene wherein a dog had to jump into a picture frame and fit himself into a cut out of a dog beside the hunter. It was amazing that the result was obtained at all, but they got it and Jerry Ash, as the camera, had to grind and grind with infinite patience.

A trained goose in Monty Banks' picture, "Home Cooking," was also a source of "innocent merriment," but also of hard and patient striving on the part of all concerned. Herman Raymaker directed .

Sid Smith has a lot of animals in his picture, "The Midnight Watch," directed by Charles Lamont. But they were all stuffed.

"That's the kind I love to work with," sighed MacLean, the lens expert.

The cutting room can do wonders with the film, but after all, there must be a scene to cut—and there is where the cameraman must be on the job!

Several trained lions in a recent Sid Smith comedy for Grand-Asher caused much excitement, but the results are amazingly good, it is said. Yes, the cameraman in a comedy studio has his work cut out for him!

HERE IS INFORMATION ON CAREER OF THE SECRETIVE HOUSE PETERS

Born in Bristol, England, educated all over the world, featured on the stage in New York, Hong Kong, Pekin, Johannesburg, Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Melbourne, Sydney and Mexico City, and now starring in motion pictures in Hollywood—such is a brief resume of the colorful history of House Peters, headlined member of the all-star cast of Metro's production of "Held to Answer."

Few screen players have had so varied a career as this popular free-lance star and few have made known so little of their personal life.

On the stage, House Peters has done everything from "East Lynne" to "The Squaw Man" and had the leading role in the original productions of "Everywoman" and "Bought and Paid For." While he has never appeared on the stage west of Chicago he has never made a motion picture in the East. His entry into pictures was made opposite Mary Pickford in "The Bishop's Carriage," and his more recent successes have been in "The Storm," "Human Hearts," "Lost and Found" and "Don't Marry For Money."

Six feet one and one-half inches tall and weighing 190 pounds, Mr. Peters recently learned from his tailor that his measurements were identical with those of Jack Dempsey.

A splendid actor and a he-man, Mr. Peters admits to having recently celebrated the ninth anniversary of his wedding. Two of "the most wonderful children in the world" assisted in making the celebration an unusually joyful one.

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, AUGUST 4, 1923

Plans Film With Only Ghost Roles

Conan Doyle invaded literature with his spirit theories and now Dorothy Phillips has been called upon to transfer the land of the hereafter to the screen, in a production in which every character will be the ghost of a famous figure in history.

The entire production is to be filmed by means of mirrors, with the scenes "shot" through a scrim dipped in phosphorus, thus securing the spectral effects.

The scenario being prepared for the play in which Miss Phillips has been selected to star, if she accepts the terms offered her, will tell of the career of the beautiful queen of Scotland from the time she entered Caledonia with David Rizzio, the Italian musician who had been her secretary in France. The assassination of Rizzio before her eyes and her romance with Henry Darnley, the man she married as her consort only to bring about his murder, will be portrayed in the new shadow photography, which makes the players seem like ghosts flitting about a scene of astral glory.

Another angle of the play will be the jealousy which Mary aroused in Queen Elizabeth of England—a jealousy that led to the execution of the beautiful rival of the Virgin Queen. Sir Walter Raleigh, the Earl of Essex and other masculine favorites of Queen Bess will appear in the play, which is to be a historical romance built about the rivalry between Mary and Elizabeth in the days that preceded the end of the House of Tudor and the ascendancy of the House of Stuart to the throne of England.

A scenario has been written based on Schiller's famous drama "Mary Stuart" and all of the characters of that period will show only as spirits. An eastern syndicate plans to make the picture and have wired Dorothy Phillips an offer to play the title role of the luckless queen of the Scots.

Art Director Turns Artist.

Ernie Hickson, art director for the Ben Wilson Studio, has just started drawing full pose portraits of Helene Rosson and Edmund Cobb, who will co-star in the forthcoming Dearholt productions, of which Mr. Hickson is in charge of the art direction. Hickson will follow these portraits with one of Mr. Dearholt, Wilbur McGaugh, assistant director, and H. C. Hutchinson, cinematographer. Before turning his attention to studio art direction, Mr. Hickson devoted most of his time to free hand drawing.

MISS NOVAK HONORED IN AFRICA

Jane Novak has just had a theatre named in her honor in Capetown, South Africa.

Sir Richard Edmonton, President of the British-Africo Theatrical Syndicate, controlling a big chain of motion picture theatres in British South Africa, has completed the building of a big playhouse seating two thousand persons in the South African metropolis, and dedicated it to Miss Novak. He cabled the Chester Bennett star, wanting her to be the guest of honor at the dedication ceremonies when the theatre was formally christened The Jane Novak Picture Palace, but she was too busy filming her latest starring vehicle, "The Lullaby," to take several weeks off to go to Africa.

Sir Richard Edmonton wrote that when the directors of his theatrical syndicate decided to dedicate the new theatre to a film star, they were almost a unit in naming Miss Novak, because she represented their ideal of womanhood.

Director-Producer Bennett is making a special film of Miss Novak, in which she speaks a number of sub-titles thanking the distinguished magnate for the high honor, and is shipping it with all possible speed to Capetown, where it will be shown on the screen together with "Divorce," Bennett's latest production starring Miss Novak.

As the opening attraction in the new playhouse Sir Edmonton stated that a special Jane Novak Waltz had been composed for the opening ceremonies, and that more than a thousand pictures of the Chester Bennett star were placed in the shop windows of Capetown. On the opening night of the theatre every person in the audience is to receive an autographed photograph of Miss Novak.

Sir Richard Edmonton stated that it was probably not generally known in America that Capetown had a population of approximately a quarter of a million, the most of whom were rated as "movie fans."

Eastern Genius Joins Schenck Forces

David G. Fischer, actor-producer-director, who for the past ten years has confined his activities to Eastern studios, has been signed by Joseph M. Schenck Productions. Fischer will start his activities with the Schenck organization by assisting Frances Marion and Chester Franklin, who will co-direct Norma Talmadge'e next picture, "Dust of Desire," which is due to be started within a week at the United Studios, Hollywood.

Fischer is one of the pioneers in picture making, having served with the now defunct Essanay and American companies. His picture work was not continuous, as on a number of occasions he turned to stage acting and producing. He wrote and produced for the stage, "Lavender and Old Lace," which Lloyd Ingraham recently transferred to the screen.

For five years after leaving the Coast, Fischer produced films in the East, among them being "The Law of Nature," "Where Bonds Are Loosed," "Dixie Lee," and "Dad's Girl," starring Jackie Saunders. Just before coming West he staged two plays for Broadway presentation.

Mary Carr has arrived from New York, having signed to appear in two special features.

Tourneur's New Film Under Way

Maurice Tourneur started "shooting" on his third production for M. C. Levee at the United Studios this week when he filmed the opening scene for "Jealous Fools," an original Tourneur story.

Contrary to the general practice, Tourneur's first scene to be photographed proved to be the opening scene of the production. Laid in California, the story discloses Jane Novak, through the courtesy of Chester Bennett Productions, and Earle Williams, popular Vitagraph star for twelve years, as the wife and husband around whom the plot revolves.

This marks the first appearance of both Mr. Williams and Miss Novak under Tourneur's direction. Bennie Alexander, now under contract with M. C. Levee, will also appear under this director in "Jealous Fools" for First National this week. The latest acquisition to the cast is Carmelita Geraghty in the part of a Spanish girl, one of the leading characters in the piece. Other popular players will be signed this week, when it is expected the cast will be completed.

Assisting Mr. Tourneur in this production is Scott R. Beal, with Arthur L. Todd in charge of the photography.

Hamilton Secures Role Jolson Quits

Lloyd Hamilton, the motion picture comedian, has left Los Angeles for New York, where he will immediately begin production at the D. W. Griffith Studios in Mamaroneck, of his first five reel comedy. The story in which he will appear is to be called "Black and White," and is the same production in which Al Jolson was rehearsing when he fled without notice to Europe.

Jack Noble will direct Hamilton, and the latter is bringing with him a personal staff, including Lloyd Bacon, son of the late Frank Bacon, and Hugh Fay. Bacon and Fay have been associated with the comedian in several of his recent productions.

Arrangements for Hamilton's appearance were made through the courtesy of E. W. Hammons, president of the Educational Film Corporation, who has Hamilton under a long term production contract. Hamilton's short comedies have been released through the Educational company.

Several of the original cast selected by D. W. Griffith to appear with Al Jolson will be included in the cast with Hamilton.

Production work is expected to begin next week.

IT SURE LOOKS LIKE AN INDEPENDENT YEAR

This is an "Independents' Year," says Harry Cohn, by which the general manager of the C. B. C. studios means that the big production companies will have considerable opposition this year.

Activity is reigning supreme at the C. B. C. Studios on Sunset and Gower. Edward J. Le Saint has just completed "Yesterday's Wife" with Eileen Percy, Irene Rich, Josephine Crowell, Philo McCullough, Lewis Dayton, Lottie Williams and William Scott. The negative was shipped to New York this week.

Director Howard Mitchell is just completing "Forgive and Forget" with Pauline Garon, Wyndham Standing, Philo McCullough, Josef Swickard, Lionel Belmore, Estelle Taylor, William Scott and Vernon Steel.

Le Saint is making ready to start work on "The Marriage Market," a big sex drama by Evelyn Campbell, which appeared in a well known magazine. Pauline Garon [illegible] this product [illegible] "Temptati[illegible] feature, whi[illegible] a sensation [illegible] is having its [illegible] Grauman's [illegible] theatre this [illegible]

Doug's New Game Plays Havoc With Noses

Raoul Walsh, well-known director, who is now wielding the megaphone on Douglas Fairbanks' latest costume-romance, "The Thief of Bagdad," is today carrying his distinguished probiscis in a sling and at the same time facing a charge of self-mutilation as the result of a powerful but misdirected bash at the "dougle" with his tennis racquet in a game of "Doug" played on the Pickford-Fairbanks Studio courts.

Jimmy Townsend, assistant production manager for the same company, is facing a similar charge because of an inch long cut received from himself on his upper lip. If this scar fulfills the promise which it now holds forth, young Townsend will have the distinguished look of a veteran pugilist.

Following the mishap, the raquets were rushed to the prop shop for repairs, where it was discovered that Walsh would need a new one if he considered continuing this type of recreation. Townsend, however, will be able to use his raquet within the week, providing it does not suffer a relapse.

At the present moment it is considered indelicate and by some unhealthful to speak of injuries sustained in the new game of "Doug," which is described as a cross between tennis and Badminton.

SCENTS WEALTH, IT'S LESS THAN A CENT

"Bull" Montana may hail from Voghera, Italy, but he is now rich to the extent of 2,600 German marks.

This sudden wealth flowed in upon him recently via his far mail Hamburg, Germany, which and accompanied a letter from couched a request that the Metro comedian send the writer an autographed photograph of himself. The enclosed money was to cover the cost of the picture.

"The Bool" was greatly excited over this great generosity of his unknown admirer until he began figuring the value of 2,600 marks in American money.

According to the rate of exchange at the time, his anticipated wealth amounted to the munificent sum of three-fourths of a cent.

Trimble Adds Scenes.

After spending two weeks in the cutting room editing the next Strongheart starring vehicle, "The Love Master," Director Laurence Trimble has decided to make some added scenes, which he is now taking at the Thomas H. Ince studios. Those who have seen the first cut of this new picture declare Trimble has secured some thrills never before equaled on the screen. One of the punches of this new picture is a dog race between twelve teams over the glaciers at Lake Louise, Canada.

WHEN CONNIE WAS A SCHOOL-GIRL

Here's a true one:

Eight years ago a school girl of fourteen came to the old Vitagraph studio out in Flatbush, Brooklyn. Her name was Constance Talmadge. J. Stuart Blackton, ever on the lookout for budding talent, gave the school girl a small part in a picture.

Glen MacWilliams was the cameraman on the production. The school girl was more interested in the camera than anything else in the studio, and a friendship sprang up between the cameraman and the Erasmus Hall student.

MacWilliams explained all the details of picture making to Miss Talmadge who, when she went back to school, gave him her picture. MacWilliams wrote on the back of it:

"Some day you will be a star, Miss Talmadge, and when that time comes, I hope that I will be your cameraman."

This week at the United Studios where Constance Talmadge is appearing in "The Dangerous Maid," a Joseph M. Schenck attraction, Cameraman MacWilliams, who is filming Constance in the picture, rapped on her dressing room door. "Do you remember this?" he asked Constance, handing her a much battered "still."

Constance looked long at the photograph. "I'm sure I do," she said, "and before I turn it over and look at the writing I'm sure is on the back, I'm going to quote word for word just what you wrote on it. You were the first to predict that I would some day become a star and it was to make your prophecy come true for both of us that I asked Mr. Schenck to let you be my cameraman."

OUTDOORS IS FAVORED "SET"

The greatest set ever built, the most stupendous and the most enduring, is being used by Jack Pickford in his present production, "Valley of the Wolf," which is now in the making.

The set is the great out-of-doors. More than two-thirds of Jack's picture will be made on location—in the mountains, valleys, and other natural sets.

The initial scenes of the picture have been taken. The preliminary interior sets have been photographed at the Pickford-Fairbanks studio.

The Jack Pickford company is now ready to use the biggest of all sets—the out-of-door country. In this set there is no artificiality. Realism is the theme.

When "Valley of the Wolf," which is being directed by George Hill, is shown to the screen world, applause will be given to the young brother of Mary for the portrayal of true life back in the Kentucky mountains more than two decades ago.

A story that gets away from jazz-age specials, risque ball room scenes, and the like, is Jack's "Valley of the Wolf." A story that is wholesome, clean, and fine is this latest picture written for the young star by himself, his sister, Mary, and Marion Jackson.

Lucille Ricksen is supporting Jack as leading woman. Frank Leigh and Ralph Yearsley are in the cast. L. William O'Connell is handling the photography. The interior sets were designed by Harry Oliver, assisted by George Underdale.

Having just completed an important role in James Cruze's production of "Ruggles of Red Gap," Ernest Torrance will travel to New York to play a featured role in support of Glenn Hunter in "West of the Water Tower," which Paramount will produce in the East.

In roaming around at the various studios in Hollywood it is surprising to observe how many different accomplishments some of the photoplayers possess in addition to their histrionic talents.

Some are beautiful dancers; some talented singers and others bear accomplishments along other lines.

Now fast rising to the forefront of popularity is Jeannette Lajaunesse, who is a professional apache dancer and who before entering motion pictures three years ago toured the Orpheum circuit in a special dancing act.

Although an expert dancer, she has seldom been called upon to demonstrate her terpsichorean ability before the camera. Her mother was one of the most popular interpretive dancers in Paris and it is perhaps from her that Miss Lajaunnesse inherits her love for classical dancing.

Among a number of notable screen successes in which she has played a small but important part are "Robin Hood," "The Four Horsemen," "If You Believe It It's So" and others.

New "Find" Has Had Extraordinary Experience

Joan Lowell, one of the latest screen "finds" of the year, was taken aboard her father's ship at the age of three months in a desperate effort to stem the tide of death which medical men forecasted. Suffering from malnutrition, the little infant was nursed by her sea-captain father on the usual ship rations.

Today, at the age of seventeen, she is considered a sturdy example of American girlhood and is on the brink of receiving the highest of screen honors through her work in the Associated Authors production of "Loving Lies," Thompson Buchanan's screen version of Peter B. Kyne's story, "The Harbor Bar."

He'd Never Be Safe in L. A. Traffic

Ninety-two years between trains!

Thomas Finch, 104 years old, who came to California during the first gold rush, saw his second railroad train at Truckee, California, this week, where Buster Keaton is making his latest comedy, "Hospitality." Finch saw his first railroad train in 1831.

The aged miner left Kentucky in 1850 and has lived in the mountains near Truckee for more than sixty years. Four years ago he saw his first automobile, a flivver, and marveled much at its ingenious mechanism.

This week Buster showed him his "Rocket" engine of the type used on American railroads about 1825, with the primitive wood, water and baggage tenders and six-passenger coaches.

Finch looked long at the engine and coaches. "So that's the latest railroad machinery," he mused. "Well, it do beat all what wonderful improvements human nature is making. Things ain't changed much since I was a boy, howsomever. I remember travelin' over the B. & O. railroad on a train of cars just like that, back in 1831 when I was about twelve years old."

Finch much enjoyed his ride on Buster's replica of the type of train which our great-grandfathers used to ride on.

"I ain't afraid to ride on this here train," said Finch, "but them there things they call flivvers sure do beat all helandamnation, don't they?"

Meighan in Third Ade Film.

Thomas Meighan returned to Paramount's West Coast studio after a ten months' absence, to begin work at once on George Ade's original screen story, "Woman-Proof," which had been announced previously under the title, "All Must Marry." Mrs. Meighan accompanied her husband and they expect to make their home in California for some time. Lila Lee, who will play the leading feminine role in "Woman-Proof," also arrived from New York. Alfred E. Green will direct this Paramount picture and Thomas Geraghty scenarized Ade's original story. Meighan, Green, Geraghty and George Ade, who arrived in California several days in advance of Meighan, have been in daily conference on this, the third original Ade story to serve as a starring vehicle for Meighan.

James Cruze has completed "Ruggles of Red Gap," his production for Paramount of Harry Leon Wilson's popular novel, with Edward Horton, Ernest Torrance, Lois Wilson, Fritzi Ridgeway, Charles Ogle and Louise Dresser featured. Anthony Coldeway adapted the Wilson story to the screen and Walter Woods served as production editor.

...western premiere at ...ird and Broadway ...ek.

Pioneer Trouper Passes Away Here

Charles Ray Smart, professionally known as Charles Ray Archer, late technical director for the John P. McCarthy Productions, died Monday morning, July 23rd, at his home in Bunker Hill street, Los Angeles.

Mr. Archer was born in London, England, in 1845, the son of Dean Smart, known in his day as one of the greatest artists in all Europe. When a young man, Mr. Archer came to this country, first settling in Denver, Colo., afterwards traveling throughout the country with one of the first minstrel troupes ever organized.

Of a wonderful personality, combined with a musical talent that was rare and extraordinary, he soon became a favorite in the amusement world and was much sought after by the most prominent theatrical managers of his time. In the course of his travels, Mr. Archer made many trips across the plains; saw the Colorado metropolis grow from a small mining camp of a few log shanties and tents to a magnificent city. The greater part of his life after he saw the West was spent on the frontier. For some years he lived in Deadwood, South Dakota, where he was intimately acquainted with "Wild" Bill Kickock, then Marshal of Deadwood, and was an eye-witness to the assassination of this famous character.

Mr. Archer was a gentleman and a genial-hearted fellow. He was always sociable and ever ready to lend a helping hand whenever the occasion arose. In later life, he found much comfort and solace in his writings, becoming well known as an author and poet. His productions had great merit and were widely exploited in the various magazines throughout the country.

Looking back far into the years of hope and cheer, he felt no pangs of regret, having never wronged anyone, leaving a name that is gilt-edged with honor in all his life's dealings with mankind.

Real Mother and Son Play Together in Reel Play

Mother and son in the same picture!

And both playing youthful parts!

Grace Parker and Jack Parker, who are members of the cast of "Flaming Youth," a First National picture, in which Colleen Moore plays the leading role, are more often taken for brother and sister than for mother and son.

Miss Parker's youthful appearance would belie the fact that she is the mother of a nineteen-year-old boy, but it's true

"Flaming Youth" is Jack's first picture. He has just come out to the coast, from school in Philadelphia. Miss Parker has been a screen favorite for several years.

CHARLES CHRISTIE TO EUROPE

Charles H. Christie, general manager of the Christie Film Corporation, left Los Angeles this week for his second trip to London and Paris. Mr. Christie's journey comes right on the heels of his brother's vacation trip to Europe, but the present tour will be more in the nature of business visits to the firms which are handling the well-known local product abroad.

Charles Christie has not visited these foreign offices for a little more than two years, and during his present tour of about eight weeks, will be in consultation with John H. Taylor, managing director of Christie Film Sales. Ltd., of London, the office which distributes the comedies throughout the continent. He will also hold conferences with Messrs. Bromhead, owners of Gaumont Films, Ltd., the firm which is now entering the eighth years as exclusive distributors of Christie Comedies in the British Isles.

"London is the largest distributing point for films for world consumption outside of New York," states Mr. Christie, whose foreign department has secured representation in every civilized country where films are shown. "Therefore it is an extremely important world-center in the film mart. It is generally estimated that the sales for the United Kingdom constitute 50 per cent of American film valuation outside of the United States and Canada. Also from London rights are sold for practically all countries except Australia and the Orient, marketing for which is generally done through the New York agent.

"Since the establishment of our own offices in London, under the direction of Mr. Taylor, we have made many important connections with film distributing firms for other European countries and most of these contracts will be renewed for present series of pictures now being made, pending negotiations which will be completed by the time of my arrival abroad."

In addition to visiting the film centers, Mr. Christie will also visit in Spain and Portugal, two important countries which Mr. Al Christie was unable to visit on his last trip owing to pressure of time. Thus, between the two heads of the Christie firm, practically all European nations will have been visited this year and valuable data gathered for the preparation of the new pictures, which, according to Mr. Christie, must continue to answer the demand for an International appeal.

BARKER ADDS THREE MORE STARS TO CAST

Three more notable stars have been added to the cast of "Pleasure Mad" which Reginald Barker is now filming at the Louis B. Mayer Studio for Metro release. They are: William Collier, Jr., son of the famous stage star, Norma Shearer, famous Montreal beauty who has just completed an important role in John M. Stahl's "The Wanters," and Joan Standing, the youngest of the celebrated Standing family that has contributed seven leading lights to the thespian hall of fame. Huntly Gordon and Mary Alden were previously selected for the main characters in the story.

"Pleasure Mad" was adapted by A. P. Younger, from the popular novel by Blanche Upright. Work on the picture is going along rapidly at the studio, where the company is busily engaged on interior scenes.

Weil is Promoted.

Harry Weil, for many years assistant to Director Frank Lloyd, has been promoted to production manager of Frank Lloyd Productions for First National. William Reiter will replace Weil on the set and Norbert Brodin will be head cameraman for this First National unit. The Lloyd organization has moved into newly appointed quarters at the United Studios, where the initial Frank Lloyd Production will be made. Lloyd directed Norma Talmadge in some of her most startling successes, notably: "The Eternal Flame," "Within the Law," and "Ashes of Vengeance,"

LLOYD HUGHES STARTS "BORN OF A CYCLONE"

Lloyd Hughes, following his appearance with Colleen Moore in "The Huntress," started his characterization in "Born of a Cyclone," under the direction of Emile Chautard at the Robertson-Cole studio this week .

In the picturization of G. Marion Burton's play, Mr. Hughes plays the part of Francois, philosophical student of the parish priest, whose life is torn asunder by his love for a gypsy maid who comes to his quiet little Louisiana village in the midst of a cyclone.

This marks Mr. Hughes' first appearance before the camera under the direction of Mr. Chautard. The actor's work in "The Huntress" is said to be one of the outstanding histrionic achievements of the year by persons in the know around the United Studios.

Kirkwood With Vidor.

James Kirkwood, noted stage and screen actor, will play the leading role in Joseph Hergesheimer's "Wild Oranges," which King Vidor is to film for the Goldwyn studios. It will be the first Goldwyn picture in which Kirkwood has been cast since he signed a long-term contract with the company. Kirkwood is the second player chosen for parts in Vidor's production. Ford Sterling, noted film comedian, who recently has turned to dramatic work, was the first player selected by Vidor. The entire cast includes only five players. The picture will be made on the coast of Georgia, the exact spot where Hergesheimer laid his novel.

Mary's New Film Opens in New York

The first showing of Mary Pickford's new picture, "Rosita," will be at the Lyric Theatre in New York, where it will open September third for an indefinite run.

This announcement was made this week by Miss Pickford, who with Waldemar Young, is now at work on the titling and final cutting of the film.

Extensive preparations are being made for the Metropolitan premiere of "Rosita." The presentation will be in charge of Edward Manson, special representative of the United Artists Corporation, who left the studio recently for New York with a brief case full of special orders from Little Mary

Following the run of "Rosita," the new Charlie Chaplin play, said to be the most sensational celluloid ever to be put out by the Comedy Knig, will enter the Lyric for its introduction to the picture public. One of many things which make the film unique is that Chaplin does not appear in it. Instead, he is the author and director of the piece, and Edna Purviance is the star. After many changes the title has finally been fixed as "A Woman of Paris." This represents Charlie's first offering for United Artists.

In all probability this feature, as well as Mary's new film, will be presented in the key cities as a road show attraction. Miss Pickford is launching the most stupendous exploitation campaign that she has ever undertaken in connection with this picture.

Their Honeymoon Will Be Much Deferred

James Kirkwood and Lila Lee are on their honeymoon—but not together.

Four hundred miles separate them. Jim is in Los Angeles playing the principal role in Sam E. Rork's First National picture, "Ponjola." His bride is spending her lonely honeymoon doing her camera stuff for "Woman Proof," in San Francisco .

Beginning next week and continuing for quite a spell a whole continent is going to divide the honeymooners, for Kirkwood leaves for Georgia following the completion of "Ponjola," to appear in a picture to be made in that state.

But when that picture is finished there is going to be a real honeymoon, with sea trip and everything, the newlyweds declare.

James and Lila were married in Los Angeles, Wednesday, July 25th. It is Kirkwood's second trip on the sea of matrimony. His first venture with Gertrude Robinson ended on the rocks of divorce at Reno, six days before he and Lila were married.

Lila was married on her 18th birthday. It is her first trip to the altar.

Pola Negri Takes Some Dancing Lessons

Another star of the first magnitude in the motion picture world has enrolled under Ernest Belcher, of the Celeste School of Dancing, for dance instruction

This time it is Pola Negri, world famous star and dancer who is now filming "The Spanish Dancer" at the Famous Players-Lasky Studio.

After inquiries regarding all the dancing instructors in Los Angeles, Miss Negri decided to place herself in the charge of Belcher.

"I am delighted with Mr. Belcher's method of teaching," said the star. "He is a master of the dance and despite the fact that I am called upon to do a very intricate dance in my new production, I have had no difficulty in learning the steps and movements under Mr. Belcher's direction."

Miss Negri is being coached at the Celeste School of Dancing. She is taking private lessons and Belcher devotes two hours a day to her three times a week.

In the production Miss Negri is called upon to do several dances of Old Spain.

No list of screen kiddies could be complete without the name of Maxine Tabnac, for she has appeared in many notable productions. While heretofore she has had no parts of great magnitude she has of late come into considerable prominence through her fine work in recent pictures, and the general prediction is that it will be a matter of only a very short time until she finds her place among the recognized child artists of the shadow stage. She is gifted with a mass of blonde hair, unusual almond-shaped eyes of a dark gray color and an exuberant personality that will go far toward making her universally loved. Her most recent engagements were with Dustin Farnum in "A Man" at the Fox Studios, and with House Peters in "Held To Answer," which is being filmed at the Metro Studios.

FROM ALL WALKS THEY WALK

Interesting, possibly above all other facts relating to the cinema industry, are the actual circumstances attached to the manner by which the various actors, from those simply enacting "atmosphere" to the loftiest of stars, came to enter the ranks of filmdom; which is, truly, a "melting pot" in every sense of the term, drawing its material from all walks of life.

An outstanding example of this latter circumstance can easily be found in Kenneth Gibson, who recently finished his role as "Captain Harrington," the juvenile lead with Constance Talmadge in "The Dangerous Maid," a First National release being made at the United Studios by the Joseph M. Schenck Productions, under the direction of Vic. Heerman.

Mr. Gibson was educated in France, at Sorbonne, the University of Paris and the Alliance Francaise. Returning from Paris, he accepted a temporary political position which brought him to San Francisco in 1920, expecting to shortly return to Washington to take up his career in the diplomatic service for which he had been educated. On the way back, however, he stopped off in Los Angeles for a visit and to recuperate after being gassed while at Chateau Thierry, he having enlisted in the World War six days after war was declared, when but eighteen years old, and it is interesting to note in this connection that four of his great great grandfathers were in the army of the Revolution and that he has had ancestors in every American war that has been fought, thus truly comes he of fighting stock.

Simply as a means for temporary support while on his visit he decided to try to get in the motion picture game and succeeded in getting cast in the "atmosphere" of a current production. He found the work so much to his liking that he stuck to it and in but three months secured a leading role at the Fox Studio playing opposite Miss Eileen Percy, and in quite rapid succession played important roles in "The Masquerader", "Broad Daylight", "Daytime Wives", "Ashes of Vengeance", "The Dangerous Maid," and others.

Kenneth Gibson is now looked upon by producers and directors alike as being one of the younger men with a brilliant future in the realm of the silent drama.

STALLINGS JOINS MAYER

Chas. P. Stallings, former Production Manager for Universal on over fifty productions, has joined the Louis B. Mayer forces, where he will have charge of production for units under the Mayer banner. Stallings has just completed the management of the "Hunchback of Notre Dame" for Universal which speaks for itself as this picture taking over five months to film and having bigger crowds and sets than any picture heretofore filmed anywhere presented production difficulties greater than any recent picture in this country. Stallings has been through every branch of the business for the last twelve years and has filled nearly every capacity in the studio from property boy to directing, and has shot second camera as well, but is one man in the business who has no desire to direct which probably accounts for his success in the production and technical end of the game. Irving Thalberg, General Manager of the Mayer organization, under whose directing Stallings handled so many successful productions at Universal is responsible for bringing Stallings into the Mayer organization.

DULCIE COOPER PRAISED

In his criticism on the initial opening of Marjorie Rambeau's latest stage play, "The Valley of Content," which opened at the Capitol theater, San Francisco, Monday night, Walter A. Rivers, dramatic critic for the San Francisco Bulletin, extends wonderful praise to the dramatic and emotional talents of Miss Dulcie Cooper, a local girl and the daughter of Ashley Cooper, well known character and screen actor. "The Valley of Content," in which Miss Cooper essays one of the leading roles, promises a great future, and in it, this rising young star is bound to achieve triumph success in her characterization of the role Elinor Benton. "Dulcie Cooper," writes the famous critic, "is charming and emotionally a revelation in her part, possessing every dramatic requisite which forecast a brilliant future in her profession."

Miss Cooper is a protege of Clara Kimball Young.

Stanley Orr, recently business manager for the Dallas Fitzgerald Productions, is now filling the chair of assistant business manager for the Associated First National Pictures Corp.

Gets Job Offer 6 Months In Advance

Alberta Vaughn, who is approaching the half-way mark in the fulfilling of her year's contract with Mack Sennett, this week won the distinction of being offered a contract with an advance bonus to start with another company more than six months hence. Seldom has a producer seen fit to make an arrangement of this sort, the usual custom being to start such negotiations a few weeks or even days before the expiration of an old contract.

Miss Vaughn's rise to popularity as a comedy leading lady has been meteoric, she having advanced herself to a cinema position of pre-eminence in two short years or since she made her advent on the William Fox lot. Of course, she has been in pictures about four years, but her initial work was done in dramatic pictures in which she did not gain the proper chance.

Although she owes her present enviable position to her aptitude at comedy interpretations, her forte is really drama after all, it is said, and she probably will get into that field eventually with every possibility of early stardom.

Miss Vaughn has rejected the unusual offer which has just been made to her on the ground that it would be unwise for her to tie up her future so far in advance.

McKENZIE HERE TO ARRANGE FOR RELEASE

Capt. M. McKenzie, production manager for the Balmac Educational Film Company of San Anselmo, Calif., made a flying trip to Hollywood this week to arrange for the release of the first four of his films entitled, "The Land of Everlasting Snow," "From Forrest to Mill," "The Land of Burned Out Fires" and "Modern Whaling," having just returned from location at three widely separated points on the North Coast, at which he is filming three more, "Gold Mining, Past and Present," "North Coast Sea Lion Story" (including the modern glazier period).

All who have attended the previews of Capt. McKenzie's productions have been unanimous and unstinted in their praise of the results which he has obtained and have unhesitatingly predicted that his films will become as popular with the motion picture loving public as are the feature films. The remaining eighteen entertaining and dramatic educational productions, comprising the total of the first series of twenty-five which Captain McKenzie will produce are scheduled for action immediately.

Hughes Corners Many Stars Again

An all-star cast which rivals that of "Souls for Sale" in well-known names has been selected by Rupert Hughes, the Goldwyn director, for his next production, "Law Against Law."

Lew Cody, who played in Rupert Hughes' latest picture, and George Walsh, who just finished work as leading man in George D. Baker's "The Magic Skin," will have the leading male roles

Cody will play "Guy Tappan," the man with three wives, and Walsh is cast as "Walter Heath," the man with one.

Carmel Myers, alluring screen "demi-vamp" and also a member of 'The Magic Skin" cast, and Helene Chadwick, will play the leading feminine roles. It will be Miss Chadwick's first part since her return to the Goldwyn studios after several months' absence. Miss Myers and Miss Chadwick appear as wives of the much-wedded Tappan. The third is yet to be selected.

Kathleen Key, Goldwyn stock player, will enact the role of Yvette, sly nurse maid, and William Orlamond, another Goldwyn player, famous for his character roles, will be a prominent member of the cast. Miss Key has just finished work in Marshall Neilan's "The Rendezvous."

The story, "Law Against Law," an original photoplay by Major Hughes, deals with the divorce problem in America, where a man may be legally married in one state, and a bigamist in another.

"Little Doug" Will have Rival in Young Laemmle

Another scion of a noted motion picture figure promises to blossom as a juvenile star. This time it is young Julius Laemmle, only son of Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, who with King Baggot as his sponsor, is beginning to glitter on the cinema horizon as a rising rival of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., the first child of a famous film father to aspire to stardom.

Young Laemmle has literally steeped himself in books that tell of boyish adventurers. He knows the Horatio Alger series from cover to cover and this writer of juvenile thrillers is the lad's author of authors. He wants to interpret Alger's clean, wholesome stories on the silver sheet and has won King Baggot, noted Universal director, as his ally in persuading "Dad" to give him a chance.

Baggot, who recently completed "Whose Baby Are You?" starring Baby Peggy, and who will direct her next feature, strongly backs young Laemmle in his ambition to become a star in Alger pictures. Baggot made a hit with his first Baby Peggy picture and the Universal executives agree that he is an adept at handling youngsters.

AND HIS GREATNESS SHINES ON

A true veteran of the screen is Owen Moore, who plays the principal role in "Thundergate," a thrilling story of Chinese and American life which is being produced by First National with Joseph De Grasse directing.

Owen Moore is perhaps the best known male star actor in the business, for his name has been associated with motion pictures almost since their inception.

Going into films in the days when an actor was almost ashamed to admit that he was working for the silver sheet, Moore gradually became endeared to the growing army of film fans until he reached the zenith of popularity, a position he still retains today.

Stars have come, stars have gone, but Owen Moore seems to go on forever.

It was many, many moons ago when Moore played his first part in the movies. Born in Meath, Ireland, he came to the United States while in his teens. With him came his two brothers, Tom and Matt, both of whom later became famous as screen actors.

Early manhood found Owen on the stage. Then came the dull season—the bane of every legitimate actor's life. He besieged every producer's office in New York for a part, but in vain.

Over on 14th street were the old Biograph studios. He would try his hand at the new profession. He got his first film job. His pay was $5 a day, the salary paid to every movie actor in those days, be he star or extra. But he hid the fact that he was working in films from his former associates on the Rialto, for to be a movie actor those days was anathema in the eyes of the "legits."

For the first few years he played comedy and dramatic roles in scores of one and two reelers, which were turned out by the Biograph company at the rate of one, two or three a week. Then he went with the I. M. P., later with the Morosco Company and when Lasky merged with Sennett and Keystone, Owen went over to the new company as the leading star.

Then he went to the old Triangle company and later played in his first five reeler when he joined the Majestic Company, which came into being with the merging of the Sennett, Griffith and Ince interests.

Since then he has played leads under every banner in the industry. Famous Players starred him in comedy; Goldwyn starred him in dramatic roles and he headed his own productions under he Selznick trade mark.

A list of plays in which he has appeared in lead and star parts would fill a column of newspaper type. Mention of a few of his most recent successes must suffice. These include Goldwyn's "Crimson Gardine," Selznick's "Refunded Money," "Love Is An Awful Thing," and "Modern Matrimony," and Famous Players "Under Cover," "Rolling Stones" and "A Coney Island Princess."

LEHRMAN STARTS FIFTH FIGHTING BLOOD FILM

"The Taming of the Shrewd," the fifth of the new series of "Fighting Blood" stories now under production at the Powers studios in Hollywood, has just been started under the direction of Henry Lehrman, with Louise Lorraine, leading feminine player of the organization, appearing as a boy.

Miss Lorraine stumped the principal costume emporium of the film capital when she tried to secure a boy's costume that was small enough to accommodate her rather limited proportions. The clothes fell in folds, and bagged in such a manner that while they might be ideal for Charlie, they would never do for Louise. So at length she was forced to visit the boy's department of a local store devoted to clothing for the male sex, and purchase a suit intended for a boy eleven years old.

Tom O'Brien has been signed to play the heavy in the Robertson-Ole feature picture, "Born of the Storm," and has secured permission from Laurence Trimble, to whom he is under contract to do "Beauty" Smith in Jack London's "White Fang." O'Brien expects to finish in time to start work with Trimble on his new picture.

LESSER IS GOING TO EUROPE ON BUSINESS

Sol Lesser, president of Principal Pictures Corporation, and vice-president of the West Coast Theatres, Inc., plans to leave Los Angeles for New York and thence for Europe, early this month. The film executive sails for England late in August on the steamer Leviathan.

The purpose of Lesser's European visit is to establish relationships between the film officials in England, Germany, France, Italy, Spain, Denmark, Russia and other foreign countries, for a giant foreign film selling office to be organized in Los Angeles. This marks one of the biggest steps of the motion picture industry and will bring for the first time to Los Angeles a definite foreign sales office of the greatest magnitude. This is but another step in Lesser's campaign to give this city each and every department pertaining to picture making.

Ernest Butterworth, Sr., is a unique parent in that he has given three talented children to the screen. They are: Frank, Ernest, Jr., and Joe. All of them are now busy working on big productions, playing leading roles. Butterworth, Sr., will be recalled as a scenario writer, his best known script being "Mr. Fixit," for Doug Fairbanks.

Viola Will Be An "Apache" For a While

Viola Dana is going to enact the role of a little Apache in her newest Metro starring picture, "In Search of a Thrill," which Oscar Apfel will direct. "In Search of a Thrill' was adapted by Basil Dickey from Kate Jordan's magazine story, "The Spirit of the Road."

The entire action of this story takes place in Paris and Miss Dana in the role of the ragged little gangster has a part entirely different from anything she has done since she made the "Cossacks Whip" several years ago.

Warner Baxter has been signed to enact the leading male role in "In Search of a Thrill." Mr. Baxter has recently appeared in "Divorce" and "Blow Your Own Horn." He will portray the part of a struggling author who differs from a great many young struggling typewriter punishers in that he finally achieves success.

"In Search of a Thrill" is Miss Dana's third picture for the coming season. The first was "Rouged Lips" and the second was "The Social Code."

Miss Dana is looking forward with great zest upon the two months or more of apaching she will have during the filming of "In Search of a Thrill." During the past year or so she has appeared as a society girl, orphan girl, chorus girl, dancer, country girl, shop girl, maid, but this will be the first opportunity she has had to get away and do a character role.

Arthur Bernstein Rejoins Jackie Coogan's Forces

After an absence of several months, Arthur Bernstein has rejoined Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc., as production manager for the pictures that will be produced at the Metro Studios in Hollywood. Bernstein was associated with the Coogans during the period when they were producing pictures for Associated First National. At the dissolution of that company, Bernstein went with the Principal Pictures Corporation, where he has been installing his systems of accountancy and production management.

After a two weeks' vacation, during which he will play the host to his mother, who is coming out for a visit from New York City, Bernstein will be permanently located with Jack Coogan, senior, at Metro.

It isn't surprising that Betty Blythe isn't in any particular hurry to return to the United States, after being wined and dined by royalty. We'll have to excuse Betty, though, for we're quite sure that such proceedings would undoubtedly turn our foolish old heads, too. Nevertheless, our minds won't be entirely at ease until Betty sets foot (or is it limb) on good old U. S. A. again.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

Richard Dix, Lasky featured player, is spending his spare moments when he is not on C. B. DeMille's set, working on "The Ten Commandments" in a most enjoyable manner — reclining at ease? in the dentist's chair.

George Marion, who is playing the part of Chris in "Anna Christie," Eugene O'Neil's New York stage success which is being picturized by John Griffith Wray for Thomas H. Ince, has crossed the Atlantic more times than any actor in Hollywood. Marion, a member of the original cast which recently closed in London, has made fifty trips across the Atlantic, his last being to play the part in Wray's picture.

Eddie Phillips, well known juvenile, is one of the busiest young actors in Hollywood. He is working nights under the direction of Paul Powell on added scenes for his recent Cosmopolitan picture, "Daughter of Mother McGinn" and his days are devoted to playing the sympathetic lead with Wesley Barry in the George M. Cohan hit, "George Washington, Jr.," for Warner Brothers. Mal Saint Clair is directing.

Recently an Anthony J. Bruno fell afoul of the law on a charge of peddling drugs, it is said, and in view of the similarity of this name to his own, J. Anthony Bruno, the popular photographer of 6412 Hollywood Boulevard, says some people seemed to think he was the man accused and he asks Camera! to impress it upon the public that he has never been under arrest in his life, on any charge.

Joe Rock is completing "It's a Bear!" this week for Grand-Asher, with Reggie Morris at the helm and starts his ninth picture next week.

Joe Butterworth, who recently played the part of "Sam" in "Penrod and Sam," has been signed by Sol Lesser to portray the leading role in "Peck's Bad Boy and His Dad," a Principal Pictures production. It is planned to star the promising boy actor in a series of pictures depicting the life of American childhood.

"Broken Nose" Murphy is playing the character part of a hard-boiled "bo'sn mate" in "The Storm Daughter," Priscilla Dean's next starring vehicle for Universal, being directed by George Archainbaud.

Immediately upon the completion of the picture he is now making, Ben Lyon will return to New York to start rehearsing for "The Crooked Square," which will open at the Hudson Theatre in September.

Mary McLaren has returned from location, where she has been playing the lead in Murray Garsson's latest production, the title of which will be announced in the near future.

Buzzel has just completed his second screen comedy, and will shortly start rehearsing for his new show which opens on Broadway his fall.

Joseph Schildkraut, who is at present playing opposite Norma Talmadge, likes the west coast so much that he is building a beautiful California home, and will in all probability remain on the coast for the next two years.

Alma Rubens may head her own producing company if plans now being made are completed. Miss Rubens will shortly announce her decision.

Frances Hatton, character actress, now interpreting a part in Tod Browning's production of "The Day of Faith" at the Goldwyn studio, is the wife of Raymond Hatton ,one of the screen's best actors.

Ina Anson, who danced her way from a stage career to a long-term contract with Goldwyn, has been in pictures six months—and has played in six pictures.

Madge Bellamy, recently starred in "Soul of the Beast," Thos. H. Ince's screen novelty featuring Oscar, the elephant, has been loaned to play the lead in "No More Women," an Associated Authors production which is being filmed at the Ince studios.

Thomas H. Ince has completed the cutting and editing of "Her Reputation," an unusual drama built around the power of the modern day press, which will be released by First National this fall. Ince, who is famous in the industry for the fast action of his productions, claims that this is one of the fastest moving productions he has ever put out. May McAvoy is starred with Lloyd Hughes in the chief male role.

Montague Love, who is in Rome with the George Fitzmaurice company, filming "The Eternal City," was the guest of honor at a dinner given in the home of Count Raspezi.

Maurice (Lefty) Flynn has started work on "The Tempest," in which he will be featured. The entire production will be made here.

Ruth Renick has started work on her new production, "Back to Back," in which she will be starred. Miss Renick will remain here for a few years to come.

Having completed "Girl O' Mine," in which she will be featured, Alyce Mills will immediately start work on "Below the Mason-Dixon Line," which will be filmed in Savannah.

Marguerite Courtot has arrived here and was immediately engaged to play the lead in "Desires," a special production in which she will be featured.

Lucy Fox is with Fox, playing the leading feminine role in the Fox special, "Around the Town With Gallagher & Shean." "She is clever, Mr. Gallagher." "She's a peach, Mr. Shean."

R. Wm. Neill, the director at present here, is on the finishing scenes of a big special feature, and will return shortly to New York to start work on a new feature.

Norma Shearer has started work on her third special under her Mayer long-term contract. Miss Shearer will remain here for the next two years.

Evelyn Brent, who has been signed by Metro for one of the important roles in "Held to Answer," made her screen debut in a Metro picture several years ago when she appeared opposite Lionel Barrymore in "The Millionaire's Double."

Edward C. Thomas, formerly West Coast Manager of Exhibitor's Trade Review, and erstwhile publicity director for Monte M. Katterjohn and the Henry Lehrman Studios, has again entered the film industry in the role of free lance publicity writer. Thomas "enjoyed" a long vacation from his labors through the medium of an extended sick spell, followed by a rousing automobile accident which almost brought on a total eclipse.

Tom Kennedy and Kala Pasha, well-known heavyweight boxer and wrestler respectively, and equally well-known as featured Mack Sennett comedians, lent their diversified artistic abilities to the production of Rex Ingram's visualization of "Scaramouche" during some important mob scenes.

Malcolm McGregor, Metro featured player, recently made a personal appearance at the Metro bungalow at the Motion Picture Exposition in Los Angeles, and is now suffering from an attack of writer's cramp as the result of being forced to autograph hundreds of the several thousand photographs of himself which were given away at the time.

When the umpire called "play ball" down Mack Sennett's way, on Bill Campbell's set, Baby Muriel MacCormac took the mound and is reported "threw a mean ball, and nothing else but"—

After the game the young celebrities were feasted on ice cream and cake, followed by a short speech by Johnnie Lucas the feature player.

Director Campbell promises something different in the way of amusement when "Rough and Ready" is released.

Virginia Foltz is visiting her mother, Clara Shortridge Foltz, 153 So. Normandie. Since retiring from professional life Miss Foltz, who is Mrs. J. W. Catron, has been living on their 7000-acre ranch near Sante Fe, New Mexico. Miss Foltz is well known professionally having sang in the revival of the "Mikado" with Ferris Hartman and Frank de Shon. She also sang the lead in "Madame Sherry" and other big musical productions, beside playing leading roles in local cinema productions.

Harry Keaton is now working on "Circumstantial Evidence," his third two-reel comedy. Keaton is directing as well as starring in his production. The cast includes Billie Baird, a new find in the picture field, Harold Prudham and Lee Parker. Elmer Edwardson is behind the camera as usual.

Count up another one for Josephine Adair! Now she's over at the Fox Studios, playing in Buckingham's current comedy. She got over there right after completing one of the major roles in Emory Johnson's "The Mailman," and is centainly working hard. Day by day she she seems to be gaining in favor and prominence, and those who are in a position to judge say that when Frank Borzage's "Children of Dust" is released she will find her place among the tiny satellites of filmdom's sky. Insofar as age goes Josephine can count six, but her intelligence is certainly way beyond her years. We thought she was going strong by getting one of the six featured roles in Borzage's pictures but that seems to have been only the beginning.

George and Baseal Bookasta are playing parts with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in his first starring venture at the Lasky Studios while awaiting their camera call for Douglas Fairbanks' "The Thief of Bagdad." They recently completed interesting parts with Mary Pickford in "Rosita" and both Miss Pickford and Mr. Fairbanks have evinced the greatest interest in these five-year olds. They are of Syrian descent,

Busy Boys Are on Mayer's Lot

With three big pictures, representing an investment of close to a million dollars, now being completed for early fall release, Louis B. Mayer is now preparing to inaugurate a schedule of production which will result in an expenditure of over three million dollars during the coming year. Approximately $100,000 of this amount will be spent in stage and equipment improvements.

Two of the three pictures now being finished, Fred Niblo's "Strangers of the Night," adapted from "Captain Applejack," and Reginald Barker's "The Eternal Struggle," based on "The Law-Bringers," are about ready for the theatres, while John M. Stahl's new special, "The Wanters," is in the cutting room.

Reginald Barker is now shooting on his next production, 'Pleasure Mad," adapted from Blanche Upright's novel, "The Valley of Content." Later he will film "Cape Cod Folks," and Robert W. Service's great epic of the North country, "The Trail of Ninety-Eight," also for Metro release.

"The Name Is Woman," adapted by Bess Meredyth from the stage play of the same name, will be Fred Niblo's next picture. Following that he is scheduled to produce an original story entitled, "Man, Woman and the Devil," written by Bess Meredyth. It is a colorful and romantic story dealing with the expulsion of the Moors from Spain in 1483

Three important vehicles are now being scenarioized for production by John M. Stahl. The first will be "Why Men Leave Home," adapted from the Avery Hopwood play by A. P. Younger. A fascinating story entitled, "Women Who Pass in the Night," and an original by Paul Bern, are being prepared for filming by Mr. Stahl as soon as he finishes "Why Men Leave Home."

SCREEN TO PRESENT NEW PLAYERS

The public's cry for new types, new faces is being answered by motion picture directors. Actors and actresses whose names have heretofore been practically in oblivion in the film world are now "coming into their own." It is now difficult to find a studio or company in Hollywood that does not have a newcomer playing one or more of the leading roles in the picture being produced.

Of course it must not be understood that these players are inexperienced artists. The majority of them have had years of training on stage or screen but they have failed to reach any great heights in the cinematic world because they have never been given a chance to demonstrate their histrionic talents.

DIRECTOR WRITES SOME ADVICE

Every girl who aspires to be another Mary Pickford or youth who is eager to outdistance Valentino will find interest in a new angle of direction expounded in a series of articles on "The Science of Movement" which are being written by John Griffith Wray, Thomas H. Ince director.

Wray is trying out his theories in the making of "Anna Christie," Ince's screen adaptation of Eugene O'Neill's big stage success. One of his ideas is that the quickest way in which an actor can throw himself into a mood or emotion is by going through the physical action which accompanies the emotion. Following Spencer's axiom that "every idea tends to discharge a motor effect," he is rehearsing every scene for the O'Neill drama at least a dozen times before the cameras get into action.

Blanche Sweet, George Marion and William Russell, who play the leading roles in the production, are required to "walk" their scenes four or five times before they even think about the emotions they are to portray. When they have thrown themselves into the proper "moods" by going through the physical action required, they then begin to act, naturally and spontaneously. Incidentally, they are covering miles with their rehearsal "walks" but their work is said by critics who have witnessed early rushes, to be unusually fine.

The hours of time which are being spent in rehearsal mean that production costs of the drama will run into a fabulous sum, in view of the high salaries being drawn by every member of the trio of leading characters. Ince has O.K'd the experiment, however, in the belief that the success of this unusual play is dependent upon fine shades of emotion resulting from the drama's remarkably tense situations, rather than upon fast action and colorful backgrounds which "put over" weaker stories.

"Anna Christie" will be released by First National this fall.

CLUB TO CARE FOR THE "MOVIE-STRUCK" GIRL

A new club composed of artists from the Hollywood film colony is now in the process of formation under the direction of Margaret Morris, one of the newest and most promising leading women in filmland. The purpose of the club is to provide for the care of the hundreds of girls who come to Hollywood in the course of a year to seek work in motion pictures. Turned away from the studios because they are not suitable types, the girls are often left penniless and unable to get back to their homes out of town. Naturally, they face a most distressing situation and on more than one occasion they have been tempted to commit some unlawful act. The club plans to take care of the girls until arrangements can be made to transport them back home. Many influential women of Hollywood have pledged their support to the venture and from every indication it will be a great success. Miss Morris is now arranging for club quarters.

Kelly Joins Chaplin.

Arthur Kelly, assistant business manager of First National's own producing unit at the United Studios, has tendered his resignation in order to become Charlie Chaplin's personal representative. He will make his headquarters in New York, but will spend a good part of his time in London, Berlin and Paris. In his new capacity he will represent Chaplin on the board of directors of United Artists. Kelly, who has been assisting John Francis Dillon in the making of "Flaming Youth," in which Colleen Moore plays the leading role, is a brother of Edith Kelly Gould and was a brother-in-law of Frank J. Gould, famous capitalist and sportsman.

UNUSUAL CAST ENGAGED FOR "FLAMING YOUTH"

"Flaming Youth," Warner Fabian's delightful expose of modern social life, is to be filmed by First National and interpreted by one of the most remarkable all-star casts assembled this year.

Miss Colleen Moore, First National's newest star, and who has just completed the stellar role of "The Huntress," is to enact the role of Patricia, the naive and curious flapper; Milton Sills, popular veteran of the screen, Elliott Dexter, known as one of the best actors on the screen of today; Myrtle Stedman, the original "American Beauty" and who has the distinction of being one of the most finished actresses of filmdom; Sylvia Breamer, who played "the girl" in "The Girl of the Golden West"; Walter McGrail, who has just completed the role of "Morgan Pell," in Edwin Carewe's "The Bad Man"; Ben Lyon and Edith Hallor who is also popular with film fans.

"Flaming Youth" is being directed at the United studios by John Francis Dillon, and is scheduled for fall release.

Youthful Player Starts New Part

Due to the bigger opportunity which will be given him in enacting two parts in the elaborate Fox production, "The Temple of Venus," little Walter Wilkinson was released from his contract with Mack Sennett in "Rough and Ready" Saturday, so that he might start work on the Fox picture this week. Walter, who has already interpreted 77 different characters before the screen during his five and one-half years of existence, will enact the part of Cupid as well as that of a little prince in the Fox production.

House Will Not Remain With One House

Found! A motion picture star who refuses to sign a long-term contract!

In up-to-the-minute film circles, the signing of contracts that would bind a star to one company for a lengthy period has been quite the fashion.

But at the expense of being considered unfashionable, House Peters refuses to sign on the dotted line for more than a single picture at a time. Rumors were circulated recently that this distinguished film player was about to star in a series of pictures to be known as House Peters Productions, but they were vigorously denied by Mr. Peters. At the present time he is enacting the leading role in "Held to Answer," a Metro all-star special, and he has no intention of departing from his usual custom upon its completion.

"I find it far more satisfactory to be able to choose the roles in which I appear." Mr. Peters states in explanation of his unusual attitude. "This would hardly be practical if I were under contract to one company. It would then be a case of securing a role to fit the star instead of securing a star to fit the role. The triumph of pictures with all-star casts over the so-called star pictures is ample proof of the value of my contention."

VERNON AND CHRISTIE ARE CO-WORKING AGAIN

Boby Vernon was seen working on Hollywood Boulevard the other day with Al Christie directing, and one couldn't help but admire the duo, for they worked so smoothly and quietly that one couldn't help but appreciate that they knew their business from every point of getting the proper results.

After three months vacation, Director Christie should have stored up a world of new ideas, for he isn't the kind of man that forgets his business, but actually is thinking and working things out no matter where you meet him.

Bobby loves to use his thinking cap. When one sees him in a scene, you notice he is figuring everything down to the smallest detail, just how he can appear in a funnier light, and how he can help those that work with him to get their "stuff over."

Ernest Butterworth, Jr., has been signed to play principal roles in Educational Pictures. He started production on his second picture last week. Gil Pratt will direct. Butterworth, Jr., is a brother of Joe Butterworth and both are known as among the cleverest child actors on the screen.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, August 6

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	McGill	Cooke	Diltz	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	McGill	Cooke	Diltz	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Wilson	All-Star	Linden-Stevens	Geo. Carter	A. Statter	"Leave It to Gerry"	1st Week
Wilson	All-Star	Linden	Stevens	Cullison	"Other Men's Daughters"	Editing
Feature Pictures Co.
Denver Dixon	All-Star	Jack Fuque	M. J. Andrus	Wm. Lester	"The Mystery Trail"
Dearholt Productions.
Neva Gerber Productions
Dearholtz-Dillon	Neva Gerber	Hutchinson	Wilbur McGough	Dillon	"Sante Fe Trail"	14th Episode
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Wilshire 4275
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
	All-Star				Special Features	Preparing
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
Jack Blystone	Buster Keaton	E. Lessley-Thorp	Rose	Mitchell	"Hospitality"	6th Week
Lou Anger Productions.
Albert Austin	Clyde Cook	H. Thorpe	Robt. Hale		"Pony Express"	Editing
HARRY KEATON PRODUCTIONS. 302 Luckenbach Bldg.						148-55
Harry Keaton	Harry Keaton	Elmer Edwardson	H. Prudhom	E. White	"Circumstantial Evidence"	3rd Week
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						593576
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Raymond Rounsaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"Hogan of Hollywood"	4th Week
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Rounsaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"Milkman of Hollywood"	2nd Week
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 96
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al Herman	All-Star	Wm. Hyer	Herman	Herman	Untitled	2nd Week
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 4070
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd. Martin J. Heyl, Prod. Mgr.						439-764
W. H. Clifford	All-Star	Ray June	Warren Fromme	W. H. Clifford	Feature Story	4th Week
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 3100
Al Christie	Bobby Vernon	Nagy-Phillips	Hageman	Conklin	Untitled	4th Week
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr. Wilshire 2115
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General.
	All-Star			Staff	"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd.
FOX STUDIO. Arthur Forde, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 3000
Buckingham	Stock	Sid Wagner	Jas. Tinling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Sam Summerville	Stock	Jay Turner	Arthur Cohn		Comedies	Schedule
Edw. Kenton	Lew Brice	Vic Scheurich	Max Gold		Comedies	Schedule
Henry Otto	Phylis Haver	Joe August	Hollinghead	Carr	"The Temple of Venus"	11th Week
Roland V. Lee	All-Star	Post	Dan Case		"You Can't Get Away With It	Editing
David Soloman	Dustin Farnum	Turner	Ed. Bernoudi	Dorothy Yost	"A Man"	Editing
Wm. Wellman	Buck Jones	Don Short	H. Hough	Chas. Kenyon	"Second-Hand Love"	Editing
Roberts-Foy	Stock	Jay Turner	Bob Tansey		"Nothing But the Truth"	2nd Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 2632
Rocky Mt. Production Co.
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Wilshire 81
Metro Release.
GOLDEN WEST STUDIO. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	Wm. Fairbanks	R. Price	Harry Tenbrook	Staff	"Blind Bargains"	1st Week
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						761711
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStroheim	"Greed"	21st Week
Tod Browning	All-Star	Wm. Silden	Earl Taggart	Kavanaugh	"The Day of Faith"	14th Week
Victor Seastrom	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Chas. Lapworth	Paul Bern	"Master of Man"	9th Week
Rupert Hughes	All-Star	John Mescall	Albert Kelly	Rupert Hughes	"Law Against Law"	2nd Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 162
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
H. Edwards	Monte Banks	B. Williams	Goodman	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	2nd Week
Herman Raymaker	Monte Banks	Bill Williams	Goodman	Staff	"Home Cooking"	Editing
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Chas. Lamont	Sid Smith	K. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	"Built on a Bluff"	2nd Week
Chas. Lamont	Sid Smith	K. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	"The Midnight Watch"	Editing
Joe Rock Productions.
Reggis Morris	Joe Rock	Jerry Ash	Murray Rock	Morris	"The Bill Collector	2nd Week
Reggie Morris	Joe Rock	Jerry Ash	Murray-Rock	Morris	"It's A Bear"	Editing

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6642 Santa Monica Blvd. J. Jasper, Mgr.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Finis Fox Productions. R. R. Beaty, Gen. Mgr.
Finis Fox	All-Star	Hal Mohr	Wm. Dashiell	Lois Zellner	"Bag and Baggage"	5th Week
Richard Thomas Productions.
Douglas McLean Productions. (Associated Exhibitors release). J. R. Crone, Prod. Mgr.
Irving Cummings Productions. Charles Woolstenhulme, Production Manager.
William P. S. Earle Picture Inc. Dick L'Estrange, Prod. Mgr.
Supreme Art Productions. Chas. J. Hall
Independent Art Productions. Richard Stanton, Producer.
Donald Magill	All-Star	J. J. Pasztor				Preparing
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive. Monte West, Studio Mgr.						438740
Horner	All-Star	Geo. Meehan	Middleton	Horner	"Midnight Limited"	Casting
Horner	All-Star	Meehan	Middleton	Horner	"Flame of the Sahara"	Preparing
World Educational Films.
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	"The Forty Niner"	Preparing
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Al Neitz	Big Boy Williams	Hughes	De Long	Staff	"The Eagle Claw"	Editing
Seeling	Geo. Larkin	Elmer Dyer	Van Pelt	Staff	"The Gentleman Unafraid"	1st Week
Seeling	All-Star	Elmer Dyer	Van Pelt	Seeling	Society Drama	Casting
Hercules Film Productions, Inc. P. Andrews, Mgr. 1442 Beachwood Drive.
	Arthur Paul	J. Charles	L. Feldman	Staff	"Fighting Blood"	Preparing
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Palmer Photoplay Productions.
Cortland Productions
Trimble-Murfin Productions.
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Lloyd Ingram	All-Star	Jos. Walker	Geo. Crone	Elmer Harris	"No More Women"	4th Week
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	Preparing
LASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vi						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Herb. Brenon	Pola Negri	Jas. Howe	Harold Schwartz	Mathis-Dix	"Spanish Dancer"	Editing
Wm. DeMille	All-Star	Guy Wilke	Geo. Hippard	Clara Beranger	"The Marriage Maker"	Editing
Cecil B. DeMille	Featured	Bert Glennon	H. Tate	J. McPherson	"The Ten Commandments"	9th Week
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Ernest Haller	John Boland		"The Light That Failed"	5th Week
Al. E. Green	Thos. Meighan	Chas. Clark	Fred J. Robinson		"Woman-Proof"	2nd Week
Jos. Henabery	Doug. Fairbanks, Jr	Chas. Schoenbaum	Dick Johnson		"Stephen Steps Out"	2nd Week
Albert S. Lebino					"Wm. Hart in Wild Bill Hicko	Preparing
Zane Grey Productions.
Victor Fleming					"The Call of the Canyon"	Preparing
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Lincoln 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star	A. Wyckoff	Harry Schenck	A. P. Younger	"Pleasure Mad"	4th Week
B. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
Tom Forman	All-Star	Harry Perry	Sam Nelson	The Leightons	"The Virginian"	7th Week
Gasnier	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"Maytime"	1st Week
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Harold Shaw	All-Star	Andre Barletier	Nat Watt	Winifred Dunn	"Held to Answer"	7th Week
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	John Arnold	Chas. Watt	Basil Dickey	"In Search of a Thrill"	2nd Week
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Allen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar					"The Human Mill"	Preparing
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	8th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford	O'Connell	Alex Gower	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	4th Week
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Eddie Cline	Bowers-De la Mott	Ned Van Buren	Geraghty		"When A Man's a Man"	7th Week
Alf. Goulding	Harry Langdon	Albert Breslau	David Smith	Harry Langdon	2-Reel Comedy	4th Week
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Eddie Hearn			Wyndam Gittens	"Flaming Waters"	Preparing
Lehrman	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"The Three Orphans"	4th Week
Emory Johnson	Ralph Lewis	R. Fisher	Blystone	Emilie Johnson	"The Mail Man"	Editing
Emile Chautard	Derelys Perdue	Joseph Dubrey		Beahan-Stillson	"Born of the Cyclone"	2nd Week
					"Jack of Diamonds"	Preparing
Chester Bennett Productions.
Chester Bennett	Jane Novak	Jack MacKenzie	Doug S. Dawson	Loring-Leighton	"The Lullaby"	8th Week
Al Santel					"Not for Publication"	Preparing
Douglas MacLean Productions
Jimmy Horne	Douglas MacLean					2nd Week
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr., 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Howe-Cedar	"Paul" Parrott	Frank Young	Henecke-Brandie		Comedies	Schedule
McGowan	All-Star	Harry Gerstadt	C. Morehouse		"Our Gang"	Schedule
Ralph Cedar	Stan Laurel				1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Roy Clemens	Edna Murphy	Bobby Doran	McBurney		"What Should a Girl Do?"	Schedule
Leo Powers	Dippy Doo Dads	Hank Kohler	Bert Currigan		Animal Comedy	Schedule
Chas. Parrott	Will Rogers	Bob Dorrin	Chas. Oelze		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
Phil Rosen	All-Star	Kurrle-Broening	Al. Davis	Francis Marion	"Life of Abraham Lincoln"	Schedule
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSEL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945-6
B. D. Russell	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	Preparing
Logan-Baynham Productions.
Tom Gibson	Morante	MacManigal	Kane-Walsh		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. B. Seitz	Ray-Miller	Walker-Moran	Wm. Bertram	Seitz	"The Way of a Man"	Schedule
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Wils. 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
Roy Delruth	Ben Turpin	Wagner	Joe Bordeau	Mack Sennett	"Asleep at the Switch"	Editing
Campbell	Johnnie Lucas	Staub		Mack Sennett	"Rough and Ready"	5th Week
Del Lord	All Star	Blake Wagner	Mack Sennett		Comedy	2nd Week
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Louis B. Mayer Productions, Clune's Studio, 5360 Melrose Ave.
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Edwin-Carewe	Holbrook Blinn	Sol Polito-Storey	Wallace Fox	Finis Fox	"The Bad Man"	Editing
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Heerman	Constance Talmadge	Glen McWilliams	E. Brophy	Willard Mack	"The Dangerous Maid"	7th Week
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Rose of all the World"	2nd Week
Sam E. Rork Productions.
Donald Crisp	All-Star	Paul Perry	Jas. Ewens	Chas. Logue	"Ponjola"	Editing
First National Productions.
Joe De Grass	All-Star	Boise	Perry Vrekroff	Wm. Dowlin	"Lord of Thundergate"	11th Week
Jack Dillon	All-Star		Jimmy Dunn	Dowlin	"Flaming Youth"	4th Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Maurice Tourneur	All-Star	Arthur Todd	Scott R. Beal	Fred Myton	"Jealous Fools"	2nd Week
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig Casting.						570-081
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Brown	All-Star	Balbino	Dorian		"The Acquittal"	8th Week
Archainbaud	Priscilla Dean		McCarey-Wyler		"The Storm Daughter"	5th Week
Herbert Blache	Gladys Walton		Sullivan	Hugh Hoffman	"The Near Lady"	Preparing
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson	Robinson	Clarke	Geo. Plympton	"The Steel Trail"	14th Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Baby Peggy		Wright		"Editha's Burglar"	6th Week
Edw. Lumley	All-Star		McDonough		"The Hog"	2nd Week
Robt. Hill	Desmond-Percy		Marchant-Kohner		"Crooked Alley"	Preparing
Robt. N. Bradbury			Nordlinger		"The Moon Rider"	3rd Week
Wm. Craft	All-Star		Taylor-Ricks		"Beasts of Paradise"	4th Week
Leon Lee Productions. Leon Lee Manager.
Dinky Dean Productions. Lew Lipton, Production Manager.
Andy Gump Productions.
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen Mgr.						598131
Dave Smith Productions.
Larry Semon Productions.
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 4181
Warner Brothers Productions.
Mal St. Clair	Wesley Barry	E. B. Dupar	Geo. Webster		"George Washington, Jr."	2nd Week
Johnny Hines	Johnny Hines	Chas. Gilson	C. Hines-Roth		"Conductor 1492"	2nd Week
Wm. A. Seiter	All-Star				"How to Educate A Wife"	Scheduled
Harry Beaumont	Marsh-Gillingwater	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Daddies"	Sept. 1st
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Sidney Franklin	Lenore Ulric	Chas. Rosher	Wm. McGann	Edmund Goulding	"Tiger Rose"	4th Week
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernest Lubitsch	All-Star					Scheduled Aug. 14th
Harry Rapf Productions.
Jack Conway	Monte Blue-Irene Rich	David Abel	Sutherland-Hawkes		"Lucretia Lombard"	2nd Week
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WILNAT STUDIO. 6070 Sunset Blvd. Al. Brandt Mrs.						Holly 7940
H. Mitchell	All-Star	King Grey	Geo. E. Reehm	Joe Brandt	"Forgive and Forget"	4th Week

DR. W. I. SCHUSTER
Palmer Graduate Chiropractor
"Catering to Members of the Motion Picture Profession"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

WHEN YOU NEED A DOCTOR
Phone 572-88; 430-205, or Holly 102-82.
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Formerly of New York City
6548 Hollywood Blvd. Near Armstrong & Carlton's.

From Hollywood to Down-Town Hotels
$2
or Shopping District
578-280 SUNSET TAXI 578-307

THE ERSTWHILE USHER

Several years ago, when the motion picture industry was in swaddling clothes, John Francis Dillon, the well-known director, was an usher in the old American theatre on Broadway, New York, and Elliott Dexter, prominent screen leading man, was a member of that theatre's stock company.

Naturally, there was quite a bit of reminiscing when these two met recently at the United Studios, Hollywood, on the stage where "Flaming Youth" is being produced for First National, with Dillon directing and Dexter playing one of the principal parts.

"The Spirit of the Road," a story by Kate Jordan, has been purchased by Metro as a starring vehicle for Viola Dana. It will serve as her next production, but will be known as "In Search of a Thrill" on the screen.

Charles West, who has been engaged as a gangster in Metro's all-star production of "Held to Answer," will be recalled as a popular leading man of D. W. Griffith's famous Triangle Fine Arts company.

Gypsy Hart, who is portraying an historical role in Rex Ingram's Metro picturization of "Scaramouche," made her motion picture debut several years ago in "The Reward of the Faithless," one of the first pictures ever directed by Rex Ingram.

Among the many interesting paintings in Rex Ingram's splendid art collection is one called "The Lady and the Swan," which was painted by Slavko Vorkapitch, a young Servian artist whom Rex Ingram induced to portray the role of the young Napoleon in his Metro production of "Scaramouche."

Mr. Gerard is the only villain in "The Social Code." Others who appear in this picture include Malcom McGregor, Edna Flugrath, John Sainpolis, William Humphrey and Huntly Gordon.

HELLMAN BANK
IS NOW
IN
HOLLYWOOD

Temporary location
6621 Hollywood Blvd.
Permanent home
Hollywood and Cherokee

Wardrobe Buys
Of Superlative Quality

We are now showing a new and unusually fine selection of hats, wraps, furs, suits, shoes, riding habits, afternoon and evening gowns, and feminine apparel of every description at our shop at 1060 North Western Avenue.

Your early inspection of our offerings is cordially invited. This does not obligate you in any respect.

Screen Stars
Wardrobe Exchange

EDAH B. ARTHUR
Proprietress
Telephone 435-677
1060 North Western Ave.

. . . mighty fine card, alright! It's not unusual for them, however; they always have a good line-up. Surprising how many ladies were there. It shows they enjoy boxing when it's put on right . . .

American Legion Stadium
Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

KING TUT FACE POWDER
in light and dark shades. Suitable for street or studio. Attractively priced at $1.00 Box.
YE RUB SHOPPE
621 West 8th St., Los Angeles, Calif.
Phone Metropolitan 1[illegible]

Hugh Hoffman
Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Neon Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip," "Crossed Wires," "The Town Scandal," "Sawdust," "The Untamable," "The Wild Party."

"HAIRGONE" permanent cure for superfluous hair on arm, limbs, face and body also wonderful for men who have shaving troubles.
$2.50 the bottle manufactured at
ORCHID BEAUTY SHOPPE
808 So. Hope St. Phone 16596
All lines of beauty culture.

WE MOVE THE MOVIES
and Shine on Service
Hollywood 2672 - SAMUEL C. SHINE - 6308 Santa Monica Blvd.

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography
LITTLE
Commercial Photographer
Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

Animated Cartoons — Original Title Ideas — Clay Animation — Miniature Sets and Animated Figures
CINEMA ARTS STUDIO
ELMER H. YOUNG, Manager
[illegible] Building Phone 61142

Frank the Shoe Doctor
"We save your sole and heel you, too"
6666 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3752

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660
KWIK LUNCH
SERVES U RITE
1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7[illegible] Sunset Blvd.

INTO THE LECTURE!

(Continued from Page 7)

other well known artists. The big trial scene, showing a huge courtroom, contains five hundred people.

South America, vast storehouse of wealth, is also a vast virgin field for motion picture development, according to Julien Rivero, director of Argentine Photoplays, producing in Buenos Aires, and a visitor to Universal City on his tour of study of American picture methods. Rivero expects to direct a picture in this country before returning to his own land, and is making an exhaustive survey of the work as done here. He passed hours at Universal City, watching the filming of pictures and studying the gigantic settings of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "A Lady of Quality," "Merry-Go-Round," and other recent Universal spectacles.

"South America has gone picture mad," said Rivero, "and American productions have the biggest call. There are eight hundred theaters in Argentina alone devoted to the pictures, and these feature plays from the United States above all others. American stars have their fans, as ardent ones as in the United States—perhaps some of your stars are more popular in South America than even in their own land."

The South American, who received his picture training in the United States, and has made a series of feature plays in his native land, says that the continental product does not please the audiences there, but that they prefer the snap and dash of the American story. "Universal City is well represented there," he said. "Stars such as Priscilla Dean, Gladys Walton, Hoot Gibson, Jack Hoxie, William Desmond, Norman Kerry, Mary Philbin, all are beloved of thousands there, and their every new picture is awaited with interest. All South America is awaiting 'Merry-Go-Round' and 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame' and talking of little else in the way of film topics at present."

A million and a half dollars left for New York last week—in a can. This occurred when the Union Pacific train, eastbound, carried J. B. Bryson and several guards on their way to New York, bearing, locked and sealed in an American Express Company treasury-box, and protected with the heaviest insurance ever placed on celluloid, the negative of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

The long strip of film in the can is the master-key to the mammoth picture production on which more than a year's work was passed at Universal City, in which the massive Cathedral of Notre Dame, and twenty acres of old Paris was reconstructed; in which Lon Chaney, seventy-five principals and four thousand extras acted. From this print the "positives," or prints to be shown in the theaters of the world, will be made, when the can reaches New York. It is the boiled-down work of a year, and a boiled-down investment of hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash.

Before being started on its way to New York from Universal City in charge of Bryson, appointed by Carl Laemmle to bring the film to the eastern laboratories for the making of prints, the picture was covered with a policy for $1,500,000 insurance against all risks on land and water until safely delivered. Fire, theft, derailment, earthquake, floods, and all forms of disaster are provided for in the policy, as issued by the Firemen's Fund In-

RARE IMPORTS AND THINGS ORIENTAL
Oriental Costume Co.
6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

Put RIENE RALEIGH in the cast 'cause she's progressin' fast. Don't wait . . . till it's too late. Call Hollywood 1098.

BRUNO
6412 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3821
. . . . for your casting director photos . . . . .

ART LEE
SPECIALIST ON MAKE-UP
Will teach you how to Make Up Correctly. Read my references
Telephone 598-207
1712 St. James Court, Hollywood, at Western

Doctors
FORD & FORD
Palmer Graduate
Scientific Spinal Adjustments
Individual Rest Rooms

Anna Mae Ford D.C., Ph. C.
Office Ground Floor
G. Henry Ford D.C., Ph.C.
CHIROPRACTORS
5911 Hollywood Boulevard
10 to 12—2 to 5
Mon., Wed., Friday Evenings, 6 to 8

Good Studio Space on Glendale Boulevard!
Here's a snap, independent producers! The Bronx Studio has some good space for rent at a give-away. Save a big sum on your overhead and put it in the picture! Look into this . . . TODAY!
H. and B. FILM COMPANY
Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275

surance Company, through the offices of Behrendt, Levy and Company in Los Angeles. The insurance company also arranged for the guarding of the expensive film in transit.

The departure of the precious negative from Universal City was marked with an interesting occurrence. The negative was taken in its cans from the big film vault at the studio by Bryson, who personally handed it, reel by reel, to C. N. Thomas, chief messenger for the American Railway Express Company, who placed it, after inspection by checkers, in the heavy treasury safe assigned to carry it to the Universal offices in New York.

As each reel was handed the messenger it was checked off on the policy by Sam Behrendt and Harry Woodruff, representing the insurance company, and Julius Bernheim, general manager of the studio, and William Koenig, assistant general production manager, as representatives of the studio, and Leon Schlessanger, film expert. In the presence of the witnesses the heavy portable vault was locked, sealed and taped, and placed on the truck with the guards who escorted it to the Union Pacific deport.

On the journey guards watch the vault in the express car day and night, and Bryson, the Universal representative, inspects the vault several times daily.

Should anything happen to the negative in the vault, the work of the entire production would be gone. "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," adapted as a Universal Super Jewel spectacle from Victor Hugo's classic, is the largest picture, in point of actual size of casts and settings, in the history of the film industry. Its settings include the Cathedral of Notre Dame, built to scale inside and out and complete in every detail; the great Place Du Parvis, nineteen acre courtyard lined with medieval Paris buildings, the Bastile, built in detail, forts, palaces, dungeons, torture chambers, and in fact practically the whole city of Paris of the days of the story.

The cast is the largest ever assembled for a single picture. Lon Chaney stars as Quasimodo the hunchback, and Patsy Ruth Miller plays Esmeralda. Principals in the cast include Norman Kerry, Ernest Torrance, Tully Marshall, Gladys Brockwell, Winifred Bryson, Kate Lester, Eulalie Jensen, Brendon Hurst, Nigel de Brulier, Nick de Ruiz, Raymond Hatton, John Cossar, Bert Roach, and many others.

In the sensational midnight attack on the cathedral, when the Paris mobs storm the great doors of the church, to be dispersed by armored horsemen, four thousand people are seen in the gigantic setting.

Wallace Worsley directed the massive production, which was adapted to the screen by Perley Poore Sheehan, with continuity by Ed. Lowe.

On the arrival of the negative in New York, "prints," or finished films for exhibition will be made and sent to the various places where it will first be released.

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS ©GET RESULTS©

LADIES' WIG — Beautiful brown natural curly hair—parted on side. Good as new. Reasonable. 1118 S. Gramercy Dr. Phone 758-37.

FOR RENT—High-grade still outfits, $5.00 per week. Little, The Big Photographer, 5874 Hollywood Boulevard. Phone 437-902.

EXPERT MASSEUR — Massages given at your home at any time by European-American masseur of many years' experience. For appointment phone Hollywood 3523 after 6 in the evening or communicate with William Schorsch, 1254 Beachwood Dr.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE — Comedy vaudeville sketch, two men and lady. Modern. Time fifteen minutes. Value $400, or would consider trade for auto, household goods, rugs or what have you? Address Box AA, care Camera, 6318 Hollywood Blvd.

Colored Portraits!

You can transform your ordinary photographs into colored portraits of the most beautiful kind at a very reasonable cost. There are special rates on fan pictures.

EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38.

Walter Frederick Seely
Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

MARION WARDE
Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films
Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing
423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

Hardee Kirkland's
Phone Number
is
Hollywood
6298

YOUR PHONOGRAPH
will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a
Deflexograph
Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles
Play after hours —will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.
$1.00 Post-paid
GOLD PLATE $1.50 (See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE $1.00
VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law
JACK P. LEONARD
340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

Coy Watson, Jr.
Age 10. Wilshire 3616
No Luck.
You Never Know.
The Right of the Strongest.
Featured in Campbell Comedies

Hollywood Scenario Exchange
5617 Hollywood Blvd.
Phone 431-420
EXCLUSIVE CALIFORNIA REPRESENTATIVES for THE AMERICAN AND CONTINENTAL COMPANY, Paris, France, agents for well known French plays and published works, including the late Bernhardt's successes.

COLBURN'S
Taxidermy Studio
Phone 643-13
1033-37 Broadway Place
. . . excells in mounting of fish . . . trout our specialty . . . see samples at our studio . . .

Especially for Motion Picture People.
THE HILLVIEW GRILL
Hillview Apartments Bldg.
Hollywood at Hudson
Holly 7980 Holly 6626
MERCHANTS LUNCH 11:30 to 2
DINNER 5:30 to 8

SCREEN SERVICE
(formerly The Service Bureau)
1036 SOUTH HILL
Phone 821-071

Selected Antiques
Turton's Antique Shop
5611 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Cal.

HOOVER HAS NEW CHIEF

Considerable interest has been evinced in the appointment of Albert, noted Russian photographer, as the head of the Hoover Art Studios, which recently established new headquarters at 1616 Vine street. He formerly had a photographic studio in the city of Sebastopol, Crimea, which is one of the noted recreation centers of Russia, and while conducting this salon photographed many of the royalty of old-time Russia, including the late Czar Nicholas and the Czarina.

He is also talented as an artist, being a graduate of the Russian Academy of Art. One of his most notable works is an oil painting of Maxim Gorky, which is declared to be an exceptionally fine life study. Without a doubt the technique of Albert is vastly different than that of our American artists.

He has a distinct aversion to what he terms "jazz lighting" in the preparation of portraiture, and all of his work has the stamp of very keen artistry in lighting effects and in the posing of th esubject. His style is similar to that of Nickolaus Muray, the renowned Russian photographer, who now has a studio in New York City, and he is an adept in the use of futuristic effects in photography, but fortunately he does not carry them to extremes. Already he has been called upon by some of our most famous cinema folk, and the results of the work he has done for them is declared to be amazing in its perfection. Kosloff and Pola Negri were two of his recent subjects.

Renee Adoree, the little French emotional actress who has lately achieved favorable mention throughout the film colony for her dramatic ability, is enacting the feminine lead in the Universal all-star production, "The Six-Fifty," now being made under the direction of Nat Ross.

HIGHEST TITLE EFFICIENCY OUR AIM

We secured the services of Mr. Irving W. Bunze from Craftsmen Laboratories, New York, who is the Greatest Hand Letter Artist in the country.

Also introduce the Lane Patent Process for 100 per cent Printed Titles.

"GIVE US A TRIAL"

Quality Title & Film Co.

1442 BEECHWOOD DRIVE HOLLY 4850

Harold Shaw Sets Precedent by Never Using Megaphone to Direct

---

Every now and then someone shatters motion picture traditions, literally smashes them to pieces while those who surround the catastrophe look on with mingled feelings of horror and hurt dignity.

Therefore, consider Harold Shaw, Metro director, who has recently completed the direction of "Rouged Lips," starring Viola Dana, and is now engaged in transplanting Peter Clark MacFarlane's "Held to Answer" to the screen.

Although for the past eight years Mr. Shaw has been producing pictures abroad, he is in reality one of the pioneer motion picture directors of America. He directed one of the first pictures in which Viola Dana appeared in the old Edison days. All of which goes to prove that Harold Shaw is no newcomer to the world of kleig lights and cameras.

But in all of the time he has been directing pictures, not once has Mr. Shaw used a megaphone!

Nor does he need one. He is perhaps the quietest director of the studios. A visitor to the set while he is directing a scene of "Held to Answer," would never know that he was the all-important director. He has a method of gripping the attention and reaching the understanding of one actor or a whole crowd that frees him from ever having to shout his instructions to anyone.

It is an unusual fact that Grace Carlyle, who is making her screen debut in "Held to Answer," secured her greatest triumphs on the stage in "Pollyanna," "Enter Madam" and "The Storm," all three of which were later acknowledged motion picture successes.

Educationally Entertaining Historically Authentic Diversified in Character Intensely Dramatic

Excerpts from letters received by Capt. M. McKenzie, from the Department of the Interior, Office of Indian Affairs:

"Pursuant to your informal request, permission is hereby granted you to go upon the Hoopa Valley and Mission Indian Reservation . . . for the purpose of taking motion pictures and photographs of natural scenery and Indian life, it being understood that you wish to feature the native industries of the Indians."

INTRODUCING

Completed Films Now Ready for Release:

"The Land of Everlasting Snow,"

"From Forrest to Mill,"

"The Land of Burned Out Fires,"

"Modern Whaling."

Films Under Production:

"Gold Mining" — past and present.

"North Coast Sea Lion Story," and modern glazier period.

"The Guardian of the Golden Gate"—historical.

Capt. M. McKenzie, Production Manager

SAN ANSELMO., CALIFORNIA

LLOYD HAMILTON

CLEO RIDGLEY

JAMES W. HORNE

Three Wise Investors

LANDERS STEVENS

Wise because they bought lots in the beautiful hillslopes of Bellehurst Park, overlooking forward-marching Glendale, and so did 597 others.

Wise because they know that these charming homesites at present prices are way below surrounding values, and that the wild-fire growth of Glendale, the fastest growing city in America, assures rising values here for years to come.

You will be doing yourself a good turn by seeing me as soon as possible. I will call whenever it is most convenient for you. Write or phone at once.

Landers Stevens

Associate

WALTER H. LEIMERT COMPANY

Phone Glendale 3098 or 354-W 246 So. Brand Boulevard, Glendale

ANNOUNCING

with the greatest satisfaction that we now have associated with us . . .

Mr. Alfred R. Linstedt

Mr. Linstedt's artistic creative ability needs no introduction to the professional public, and we feel, that coupling his qualifications with our studio, which is the finest equipped in the United States - e will be able to produce photographs and portra- of unusual quality and artistic distinction.

We wish to assure our patrons that we are better prepared than ever before, to give them the utmost in artistic photographic creations, as well as prompt and efficient service.

Portraits Fan Photos

Publicity Photographs

---at our regular prices

Stop in and see our new samples

Evans Studio

LYMAN A. POLLARD RUTH A. DOWDALL

Holly 2560

6039 Hollywood Blvd.

"Camera!"

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

Los Angeles, California Saturday, August 11, 1923 Price 10 Cents

HARRY CAREY in "CRASHIN' THRU"
AT THE HILLSTREET THEATRE

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A.HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

Have You a Commercial Value?
Are You Well Represented?
Are You Working?
If Not,
Why
?

HOWARD LICHTENSTEIN COMPANY

Purveyors of Publicity

To Their Majesties
The Kings and Queens of Movieland

6047½ Hollywood Boulevard

Second Floor 432-030

HELEN ANDRUS

recently with the Famous-Players in the East under the direction of Victor Fleming.

Ingenues Dancing Characters

579-979

"Make-Up Headquarters of the Motion Picture Industry"

We have spared no effort to provide the professional people with an unusually fine selection of make-up and accessories. One of our standard items is make-up kits attractively priced from five dollars upward, which can be replenished at our shop at any time.

ZAN MAKE-UP SHOP
819 South Hill ····· Pico 498

"Camera!"
[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

ESTABLISHED 1918—A FILM MAGAZINE AND A FILM NEWSPAPER IN ONE
Entered as second class matter, August 11, 1918, at the postoffice at Los Angeles, Cal., under act of March 3, 1879.

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON.....Publisher and Manager
JOHN CORNYN.....Advertising Manager
GENE WOOLWAY.....Studio Representative
DELBERT E. DAVENPORT.....Editor
FRED W. FOX.....Advertising Copy

H. H. CONGER COMPANY, National Advertising Representatives
Marbridge Building, NEW YORK CITY
First Nat'l Bank Building, CHICAGO
Holbrook Building, SAN FRANCISCO

Price 10 cents per copy, $3.50 per year in Los Angeles County. Outside Zone, $4.00 per year. Canada, $4.50, Foreign, $5.00.
Issued on Saturday afternoon of each week at 6318 Hollywood Boulevard, in Los Angeles, California. Phone 439-869
Address All Communications to Camera!

Vol. VI. SATURDAY, AUGUST 11, 1923 No. 17

As Eventful Time Passes On

All honor to the late President Warren G. Harding. In his passing, all mankind has lost a loyal friend and the world is deprived of a great leader. He was particularly partial to the cause of photoplay uplift and was one of the most consistent of movie fans. He had expressed happy anticipations of visiting the motion picture studios of Los Angeles and Hollywood and had indicated a desire to be of service to the industry. The Grim Reaper intervened on the very eve of his intended visit here and just as the whole nation became a heavy loser thereby, the film world became a heavy loser. Verily, as long as the annals of man are preserved, the name of Warren Harding will always shine forth in the brilliance of countless good qualities and utterly devoid of elements reprehensible. He was a great, good man. Everlasting peace is his lot, now. Forever shall his memory be cherished.

The word "star" is a futile one in its application to cinema folks. Most all recognized photoplayers are called "stars" nowadays. And how much better it is to be recognized as simply an artist!

Mary Miles Minter is determined to press her suit for a million dollars against her mother, despite the latter's illness, which the famous screen star declares to be feigned, insofar as seriousness is concerned. It looks like a merry old family feud, just like the merry old Kentuckians used to stage, and it does not screen well. However, if what Mary says in an interview this week is true, she deserves her full share of sympathy, for she declares she did not fare so well as a meal-ticket, and when the meal-ticket does get the worst of it, same is more deserving of pity than censure. Meanwhile, if the mother is critically ill and there is no pretending, there's justification for some sympathizing in the other direction. By all means, and above all, it is to be hoped a basis of compromise can be found and that a happy family reunion will result with the cleverly charming Mary replenished with incentive to return to the screen she has graced so successfully.

The cloud of tragedy descended upon and enveloped several film folk this week, notably Gloria Swanson, who is seriously ill in New York, and Mabel Normand, now in a hospital suffering from serious injuries sustained in a fall from a horse. It is only one more proof that life in Filmland is the same as in any other sphere of human endeavor, despite all the defamers have said and written.

Good luck to President Coolidge! May he succeed in performing great services for his country. His is a trying ordeal and to him all should deal the utmost co-operation.

Whenever a slight lull comes in picture production, you'll generally find Douglas Fairbanks in the role of Salvation, spending a cool million or so and depleting the ranks of the unemployed thereby. He saved hundreds from actual poverty when he made "Robin Hood," and he is more than duplicating the good turn now in the filming of "The Thief of Bagdad." Congratulations are always due the enterprising Doug.

We sincerely hope there is some improvement in the dope situation, but we can still observe sickening evidences of the continued prosperity of many implicated in the vicious drug traffic. Hang a few higher-ups and impose life sentences on a few common dope peddlers, and there will undoubtedly be a greater degree of improvement. Severe punishment is the only one remedy, of course, but let us have that one!

Fewer but more expensive pictures is in prospect for the coming fall and winter production here. Quality has superseded quantity in the mental workings of most producers and it is a promising change. They still "grind out" two-reel comedies in factory style and get away with it more or less, but they cannot make features pay on that basis any more, because the public refusal is too overwhelming.

Liquor is becoming so plentiful that drunkenness is decreasing. It is natural logic that if human beings can have all they want of a thing, their craving becomes less insistent, so far as booze is concerned. In the old "wet" days there was not half as much intoxication as there is in these prohibition days. Of all the legislation most needed for the conservation of morale in America, it is a modification of the Eighteenth Amendment. Why deny so obvious a fact? Why permit boot-legging as such a Midas-like occupation, when it is so easy to obliterate the whole bane by simply legalizing light wines and beer?

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Broken Wing"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

Margaret Anglin
in "A Woman of No Importance"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

Olive Tell-Montague Love
in
"The Wrong Woman"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

Charles (Chic) Sale
in
"His Nibs"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

Harry Carey
in
"Crashin' Thru"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Goldfish"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

Dorothy Phillips
in
"The White Frontier"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

Norma Talmadge,
Eugene O'Brien, in
"Her Only Way"

This Week's Theatre Notes

Jackie Coogan as the star of a five ring show under the "big top," in "Circus Days," will play at Loew's State Theatre all week. At last the famous Otis story of "Toby Tyler," the most popular book of circus life for twenty years, has been screened amid the atmosphere and glamor of the greatest game in the world.

"Circus Days" was directed by Eddie Cline. It is a First National picture and supporting Jackie are Barbara Tennant, Russell Simpson, Claire McDowell, Ceasare Gravini, Peaches Jackson, Sam De Grasse, De Witt Jennings, Nellie Lane and William Barlow.

Jaskie plays the stellar role of "Toby" who runs away from an unhappy home to join a circus, becomes a peanut salesman and then, in an entirely unsuspected manner, the star clown of the show. Jackie has an exceedingly lovely little leading lady in the person of Peaches Jackson, and his efforts to aid this little lady in her distress results in his suddenly being projected into fame and success "under the big top." The fanfare of trumpets, the screeching note of the caliope, and the prancing of horses, the screaming of monkies and the roaring of lions will all seem real when Jackie Coogan stirs our emotions in this production, which is said to be his greatest picture to date.

Loew's State Theater, in addition to "Circus Days," presents the first of the new Mack Sennett-Pathe comedies, "Nip and Tuck," in which an all-star cast of comedians is featured.

Continuing its remarkable sensation, Rin-Tin-Tin in "Where the Nortth Begins," is playing at the Alhambra Theater to the biggest crowds in the history of that house.

Having closed a record week during its first showing, this famous police dog picture has been demanded for an immediate continuation of the run and thousands of theatergoers have thronged the Alhambra ever since it has been returned there. The production is a Warner Brothers' screen classic, directed by Chester M. Franklin under the personal supervision of Harry Rapf. Its leading character is the wolf-dog, Rin-Tin-Tin, lost in the snowy wastes of the northland when a pup and reared by his wild ancestors into a splendid specimen of a wild animal. The meeting between this wild dog and a man brings to the screen one of the most absorbing episodes screen fans have ever beheld.

"The Broken Wing," a comedy-drama by Paul Dickey and Chas. Goddard, ranks as one of the biggest successes to be presented the Morosco play goers, and offers the most spectacular scenic effect ever seen on a local stage.

Margaret Anglin and her well selected supporting cast, enter into a second week at the Mason in Oscar Wilde's brilliant comedy, "A Woman of No Importance."

"Getting Gertie's Garter," Avery Hopwood's speed farce, which opens its eighth consecutive week at Egan's Theatre, bids fair to set a new mark in comedy offerings.

Harry B. Carey, probably the most popular western man of today, comes to the Hillstreet theatre in a feature photoplay, "Crashin' Thru," a volcanic drama of the Golden West. Eva Shirley and Al Roth, with Oscar Adler's orchestra, head the vaudeville list.

Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien will be seeen in a revival of "Her Only Way," a Sidney Franklin production, which opens the Symphony Theatre

---

"Cordelia, the Magnificent," Lercy Scott's fascinating story of New York society life, a startling and enthralling romance of a girl who becomes the target of intrigue and blackmail, is this week's Kinema offering.

Clara Kimball Young portrays the title role, which encompasses the whole range of human emoions, and these emotions the beautiful star interprets with perfect realism. Miss Young in the role of the society girl involved in a thrilling series of adventure of love and blackmail brings into play every phase of her artistry.

The part played by the wife in rescuing the wrecked family financial barque, is the theme of "The Silent Partner," featuring Leatrice Joy, Owen Moore and Robert Edeson, at Grauman's Metropolitan theatre this week.

The picture is an adaptation of Maximilian Foster's Saturday Evening Post serial of the same ttitle, and Charles Maigne is the producer.

Miss Joy plays the role of the wife of a broker's clerk (Owen Moore) who first proceeds to make a fortune and then plunges recklessly to ruin only to find, after the crash, that his helpmate, while apparently spending extravagantly, has been putting aside about half of what she spent, saving enough to again put them on the road to success.

Perhaps no more popular announcement could have been made by Producer Thomas Wilkes than that of the presentation at the Majestic Theatre of Miss Marjorie Rambeau in her latest New York success, "The Goldfish," a three act comedy by Gladys Unger.

As a starring vehicle for this popular local favorite, it is claimed by many to be even better than "The Sign on the Door," in which she made her last appearance in this city.

California
Main at Eighth

Alec Frances, W. H. Crane,
Claude Gillingwater
in "Three Wise Fools"

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Harold Lloyd
in
"Safety Last"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

Leatrice Joy, Owen Moore,
Robert Edeson, in
"The Silent Partner"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Jackie Coogan
in
"Circus Days"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

Mrs. Wallace Reid
in
"Human Wreckage"

Kinema
Grand near Seventh

Clara Kimball Young
in
"Cordelia The Magnificent"

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

"Michael O'Halloran"
by
Gene Stratton Porter

Alhambra
731 South Hill

Rin-Tin-Tin
in
"Where the North Begins"

Hollywood Egyptian
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden

"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mary Philbin
and Norman Kerry in
"Merry Go Round"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

"The Queen of Sin"

Looking Into Picturedom's Futute

By HARRY M. WARNER

The future of the motion picture industry is full of great possibilities. And these possibilities are not impossible of achievement. When the pendulum swings toward a finer realization of the immensity of our industry, and its manifold undiscovered possibilities, the making of productions will not entail the helter-skelter tactics being used today. I look forward to the day when the production of a motion picture will be as stable a product as anything that is being consumed by the public.

I do not mean to infer that pictures will be standardized, nor do I intend to infer that they can be formulized to meet great success. The trend will be to get out of our swaddling clothes into a more fitting and becoming attire. There is no denying the fact that no one person or group of persons can ever hope to have a monopoly of this great educational and entertaining factor. It is too big and too vital a public commodity, and we are growing so fast that there is little if any time to look back and compare the past, present and future.

Nevertheless, within the very near future there will be no such thing as the star system, more pains will be taken by directors with production, the unscrupulous producers who resurrect old films because some member happens to be in the limelight today will be eradicated, and the showmen of tomorrow will be those men who show a keen sense of motion picture values and an appreciation of public taste, popular books and famous plays will also continue to be produced and the original story will also come into its own with the greater development of the photodramatists.

Of primary importance will be the fact that the production of motion pictures will be car-on a sane business-like basis. In this connection the star system will become a thing of the past. Exorbitant salaries will no longer be paid. Experienced actors and actresses will be more than content to carry good stories to their conclusion. For the story will be the main factor, first, last and all the time.

Furthermore, more pains will be taken by directors with production. The conscientious director will be the director who knows story values, the artist in the sense that he will direct only the biggest stories containing a theme of vital importance to humanity. They will not pander to cheap clap-trap—the hokumized and impossible stories. In this connection our series of eighteen classics being made from popular plays and widely read books have been chosen primarily because they contain the things that interest human beings; stories that are a living, breathing part of humanity itself.

Now a great injury is done to the industry as a whole, not to mention the insult that is thrown bodily at motion picture audiences, when unscrupulous producers resurrect old and time-worn films just because a member of the company happens to be at present in the public limelight. The moment we signed up David Belasco, the moment the word was spread that the great theatrical producer had become definitely identified with the industry, the unscrupulous producers immediately dug up anything and everything that was labeled with the name of David Belasco. As a result, motion picture audiences will be fed cheap imitations of this great man's work—pictures that he has had nothing whatever to do with, in any way, shape or manner.

In the final analysis this tends to ruin the industry, and the theatre owner who stoops to buying the imitations will suffer in prestige. Once an exhibitor loses the confidence of his patrons, he may as well go out of business. You can fool the public once in a while, but you can't fool them all the time.

Today the trend seems to be toward the adaptation of popular books and plays. This will continue for a long time. In fact, I think it will always exist. Published books, especially those in the "best seller class," are a known commodity. They usually strike at a big theme, and they furnish the groundwork for an assured audience appeal. Plays also are of this calibre. After all, if exhibitors are assured of established audience by booking a popular play or novel made into picture form, they would be foolish to book something that is not as well known. Of course, the story is the thing, and I believe that in time great stress will also be placed on the story written directly for the screen.

The exhibition of motion pictures will assume greater and more dignified proportions. Exhibitors will exploit only those pictures that are worthy of being exhibited and publicized. In other words, the showmen of tomorrow will be those who use considerable discrimination in what to exploit and exploit properly. An overdose of medicine is always fatal. Once you take too much, you're in the throes of oblivion. The same thing applies to showmanship. The man who puts his pictures over week after week is the man who is planning a short business career. He cannot possibly get fifty-two exploitable pictures a year, and all cannot be treated alike. Therefore, the wise showmen will be those who have a keen sense of public appreciation, and can mix this with true and tried business ability.

Adolphe Menjou, whose most recent screen performances prove he is one of the most brilliant actors France has ever sent to the American filmland. He has just finished an important role in support of Pola Negri in "The Spanish Dancer" and he will also be seen in a leading part in Charlie Chaplin's production made under the title of "Public Opinion."

BELIVES IN TRAINING ASSISTANTS TO DIRECT

Chester Bennett is a great believer in training and developing young assistant directors to the point where they can step into the shoes of, and become full fledged directors when the opportune time arrives.

Chester, perhaps as well, if not better than any of the foremost megaphone wielders, knows the processes of education required to become a motion picture director. He served an apprenticeship as an assistant camera man; then later was promoted to his chief's place. Bennett also acted as property man and for two years was assistant director to James Young.

"The motion picture is the greatest of all educators," stated Bennett, "and in order to keep pace with its marvelous development we've got to place the best men we can find in jobs of assistant directors, and then train and educate them to be directors just as lawyers, dentists and professional men are educated and developed at college."

Bennett was one of the organizers and charter members of the Assistant Directors' Association, and is now an honorary member of that organization.

"To be a successful director one has to be the combination of an artist and a practical detail man at the same time," he continued. "The training of an assistant director better fits him to take over a directorial job than the training in any other branch of motion pictures. Every director owes it to himself and to the future of motion pictures to give his assistant every possible advantage for learning all the details in connection with directing a big film play. There is no greater joy than in helping other people develop themselves, and in training an assistant director to become a full fledged director, who may at some future time be a Shakespeare, a Booth, a Garrick or a Mansfield of the films, one can feel that he has done something really worth while."

Bennett has almost completed the training of Douglas Dawson, his chief lieutenant for the last three years, and expects to soon start him directing a series of productions on his own hook.

Bennett is adding the finishing touches to his production of "The Lullaby," starring Jane Novak, with Fred Esmelton in the role of the Governor. It is said to make a great new note in the acting of Miss Novak, who appears as a prison mother.

FILM PLAYS BETTER IN MANY WAYS

"The Bad Man," which has just been completed by Edwin Carewe for First National, is a graphic illustration of the forward strides being taken in the production of motion pictures. Carewe believes, and always has believed, that better pictures should be produced and that the only way they were to be produced was to give directors a free hand.

Carewe thinks film plays are "day by day getting better and better," and all his ideals for better film plays have been incorporated in his latest screen offering.

"Film plays had to improve," said Carewe. "The public has been more than fed up on what we call the 'program picture'—five reels of the same old thing done in the same old way against new backgrounds.

"One of the reasons for the betterment, I think, is that when the producers began to lose money on the program trash they realized they would have to give their directors a free hand. Before that the director could do his best, but his finished produce was frequently butchered by interference on the part of all manner of business-office attaches, who knew nothing of drama and less of directing.

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Aug. 6th.—A. L. Jaffe, president of the Fisher Productions of this city, left for New York last Tuesday, to assist Victor Fisher, who went East ten days ago ,in the closing of the deal for the release of "Youth Triumphant," the first picture made by the organization. They expect to complete their releasing arrangements in the very near future, and on their return to this city will at once begin preparations for the filming of their next picture. David N. Chapman, assistant manager of the company, will also leave for the East this coming week, to attend to some business, and visit his family, and relatives.

Max Graf, supervising director of Graf Productions of San Francisco, has engaged Anna Q. Nilsson, Mitchell Lewis, Raymond Hatton, George McQuarrie, and five-year-old Frankie Darrow for the picturization of Curtis Benton's story, "Half-a-Dollar Bill." W. S. Van Dyke will direct, with Leigh Smith as assistant. Andre Barlatier will be cameraman, with H. L. Selander as his assistant, and Kathryn Craig will hold the script. Graf himself adapted the story for the screen, and the continuity was written by Hope Loring, and Drury Lighton. Camera work will start at once at the Pacific Studios at San Mateo and part of the action will be shot at sea on a large four-masted trading schooner.

Eric Von Stroheim and the company engaged in the filming of "Greed," the screen version of Frank Norris' famous classic, "McTeague," finished the San Francisco part of the story this week, after four months and a half of actual shooting in this city, and left for the South on Friday. They will spend Sunday in Los Angeles, and start out again on Monday, this time to brave the terrible heat of Death Valley. They will carry special equipment, and supplies, and with the single exception of the script girl, all women will be left behind. After the desert sequence is filmed the company, with the addition of a few people to play some small parts, will go to Colfax, where the picture will be completed at the "Great Dipper" gold mine. Eddie Eberle, auditor for Goldwyn, and Louis Germompre, assistant director, will be in San Francisco several days longer, finishing up some of the business of the organization. Local people will wait with deep interest for the release of the picture, for it is not only a story of this city and neighborhood, but such a large part of the population have seen at least some bits of its filming.

The Gerson Picture Corporation will begin active production again August 15th, with the first of a series of five-reel program pictures. They will be melodramas of life, and action, and will be made at the organization's own studio at 1928 Page street, with exteriors in and near San Francisco. Tom Gibson will direct, and the cast will be announced within a few days.

Earl Metcalf, well known to the world of the screen, came to town this week to assist Nance O'Neil when she opens her special starring engagement at the Capitol theatre, on August 12th. The play will be "The White Villa," which has been a startling success in the East.

The San Francisco branch of the West Coast Productions expects to start work at the Pacific Studios at San Mateo, on Wednesday, August 8th, on their first locally made picture. The title is "Nobody's Child," and Norbert Myres will direct.

Daniel Frohman, former noted theatrical producer, and now president of the Actors Fund of America, spent several days in San Francisco last week in connection with a proposed Actors' Fund Benefit here next winter.

Marjorie Rambeau has added one more success to her career with her opening last Monday night at the Capitol Theatre in "The Valley of Content." The play is from the pen of Blanch Upright, and is done from her novel of the same name, and is of special interest to San Francisco people as this is Miss Upright's home town, and she and Marjorie Rambeau have been lifelong friends. Friendship was much in evidence on the opening night, as the play was warmly received by a crowded and friendly house, and the star and author made curtain speeches nearly hidden in a bower of flowers that had been sent up over the footlights. Although the play in places shows a certain lack of dramatic knowledge in its author, still it is very interesting, and in several scenes most charmingly human. Miss Rambeau gives a beautiful and masterly performance, and Richard Tucker, who plays opposite her, is absolutely everything that he ought to be in the role of the husband, and Lawrence Grant plays a finished villain. Miss Rambeau will go to the Majestic Theatre in Los Angeles on August 13th, where she will open in "The Goldfish," her great Broadway success, supported by the same company who have played with her here.

Little Mary Philbin came to town last week to make personal appearances for a few days with "The Merry-Go-Round," the wonderful picture in which she has made her fame as a screen star. The picture is in its fourth week at the Imperial Theatre, and still playing to crowded houses.

San Francisco has never been known to brag about its famous fog, but it gave a tumultous reception to "The Fog," which was made in the Golden Gate City by the Graf Productions, and which had its western premiere at the Warfield Theatre last week. The run enjoyed capacity business and the critics heaped praise on the production as a whole. Daniel Frohman saw "The Fog" while in town and wrote a letter of felicitation to Max and Louis Graf, congratulating them on the picture, and predicting great success for it.

Sol Lesser is in San Francisco, this time come to witness the world's premiere of "The Meanest Man in the World," made under his Principal Pictures Corporation banner, which took place in the Warfield Theatre last Saturday. The picture is made from George Cohan's stage play of the same name and Bert Lytell plays in it the most important part of his screen career, supported by such well known stars as Blanche Sweet, Bryant Washburn, Ward Crane, Forrest Robinson, Francis Raymond, Carl Stockdale, and others.

Casts of the Week

Metro announces the following cast and organization for "In Search of a Thrill," Viola Dana's newest starring picture.

VIOLA DANA
in
"IN SEARCH OF A THRILL"
From the story, "The Spirit of the Road,"
by
Kate Jordan.
Adaptation and Continuity by Basil Dickey.
Directed by Oscar Apfel.
Photographed by John Arnold, A.S.C.

CAST:

Ann Clemance	Viola Dana
Adrian Torrens	Warner Baxter
Lila Lavender	Mabel Van Buren
Sir George Dumphy	Templar Saxe
Tommy Perkins	Robert Schable
Rene de Farge	Walter Wills
Jeanne	Rosemary Theby
Percy, the valet	Billy Elmer
Dancing Professor	Leo White

Benny Zeidman Production
"THE GOOD BAD BOY"
Principal Pictures Corp.
Direction of Ed. Cline.
Frank Gerahty, Assistant Director.
Wm. Marshall, Cameraman.

CAST:

Forrest Robinson	Richard Wayne
Lucy Beaumont	Arthur Hull
Joe Butterworth	Edwin Davis
Mary Jean Irving	Percy Hemus
Brownie, the dog

Fred Caldwell Presents
"MILKMAN OF HOLLYWOOD"
Story by J. Stewart Woodhouse.
Directed by Fred Caldwell.
Photographed by George Crocker.

CAST:

Chester Conklin	Alice Howell
Victor Potel	Gail Henry
Muriel Reynolds	Violet Schram

Do Women Get Their Share of Credit?

Bradley King, chief of the scenario staff at the Thos. H. Ince studios, was talking recently on the feminine mind in motion picture production. In these days of big productions the male of the species usually grabs off all the fame, while the female, who in a large number of instances, has had as great a part in the production, is left unmentioned.

Miss King, for instance, occupies one of the most important positions on the Ince staff. Her duties consist of taking such well known stage successes as Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie," and whipping it into shape for screen production. Such a job is one that taxes all of one's capabilities. And her work is usually the foundation of the finished product.

"Take, for instance," said Miss King, "June Mathis, of the Goldwyn forces. Miss Mathis is one of the mainstays of the Goldwyn forces. She is a thorough film-woman, and she knows every angle of the business. A lot of the success of Goldwyn productions can be traced to her. Right now she is engaged on the scenario of "Ben Hur," which is a difficult job, but the Goldwyn people entrust it to her with full confidence in her ability.

"I could name a dozen. There is Lois Weber, who is a writer, a director and a producer. She is one of the first women to direct a motion picture. There are many more women who have left their mark in the motion picture world. Hope Loring is well known as a writer of scenarios and so is Frances Marion, Marion Fairfax both writes and directs."

Miss King believes that as interest becomes keener in better motion pictures, woman will play a more important part. She thinks, and rightly so, that there are many things connected with a motion picture that a woman can do better than a man. The rising tide of feminine employment in responsible positions in the studios seems to bear out her opinions.

Goldwyn Starts Some "Excitement"

Samuel Goldwyn's remarkable "cry to America for freshly creative imagination," uttered in a New York newspaper (the Times) recently, created a turmoil in film producing circles. That the man who, a few years ago, pinned his faith and a great deal of capital to the practice of filming published works of famous writers should come out in open condemnation of the practice, is an appeal to the unknown authors of America for fresh story material, is a fact calculated to startle many other producers.

"I have looked heretofore to established authors because they are believed to be trained in the instincts of drama and story telling," says Mr. Goldwyn in the article mentioned. "But now I feel that the unknown author is the one I, and the rest of the motion picture industry, need. The novice, whose plot sense far exceeds his feeling for words, will be the giant of the cinema of the future."

Another producer, Roy L. Manker, president of the Palmer Photoplay Corporation, while endorsing Mr. Goldwyn's sentiments, declares that he has overlooked one vitally important point in his appeal to unknown authors. Two things only have kept the screen from having a fresh, virile literature of its own, Mr. Manker declares. The first, of course, is the practice of filming published works for an alleged advertising value, and the second, the lack of training and encouragement for the unknown author.

"Mr. Goldwyn appeals to the unknown authors of America to supply him with screen plays of real merit, but he does not make clear the real fact that those unknown authors must spend months learning the technique," declares Mr. Manker. "Talented writers who do not know screen technique—the technique Mr. Goldwyn admits is so difficult that his eminent authors declined to learn it—have not been able to sell their attempts at screen play writing until they have taught themselves the art.

"I venture to state that Mr. Goldwyn would be as ready as any other producer to reject the first attempts of the many authors who potentially are talented screen playwrights, for the simple reason that these stories would be absolutely valueless to him. The point I wish to make here is that the unknown author must be encouraged, and these facts must be put before him, if he is to persist and succeed.

"The talented author of our production, 'Judgment of the Storm,' succeeded only after studying screen technique for months, and then writing four stories and many revisions of those stories under expert instruction. Mr. Goldwyn would not have accepted the stories we rejected, yet that author, Ethel Styles Middleton, would have quit trying after having written them if we had not encouraged her and urged her to persist. Not one author in a hundred will write as many as five screen plays before giving up the game, in the face of a constant fire of printed rejection slips.

"We admit that Mr. Goldwyn's statement that 'a scenario writer with one flash of originality and true feeling for cinematography can earn anywhere from one thousand to a hundred thousand dollars yearly,' is true in part, but such writers have trained themselves in the different technique of the screen. While Mr. Goldwyn does not speak of the need for training unknown authors in screen technique, he emphasizes the fact that novelists and story writers must learn it if they hope to succeed in writing for pictures. This is a point which the layman may not grasp. The established novelist, with his years of experience in literary technique, has almost as much to unlearn as to learn, and moreover, he has to overcome the handicap of superiority complex with which he approaches screen writing. I must concede, therefore, that the unknown writer has far less in the way of a task confronting him in conquering screen technique, than the famous writer. It is significant that staff writers of original stories were in the studios before the famous authors came, and they still are in the studios, while the famous authors have departed!

"Encouragement! That is the need. There are the 'freshly creative imaginations' which Mr. Goldwyn asks for—an army of them—available in America. But unless they can see encouragement awaiting them at the end of their months of hard work spent in learning technique, and in writing screen plays that are rejected, they will not persist, and they will never be discovered.

"'I await you eagerly, and upon finding you I shall act like a famed gentleman who had a high mountain and all the kingdoms of the world at his command,' says Mr. Goldwyn to the unknown author. Yet can a writer submit his first or second or third story to Mr. Goldwyn, and receive, instead of a printed rejection slip, a note of friendly encouragement, of constructive criticism? If so, Mr. Goldwyn is to be praised for this as well as congratulated for his excellent and feerless article. More producers should write such articles, and every scenario department should do its bit to encourage talented authors who are striving to 'break in.'"

Lorraine Eason, who, after enjoying the distinction of refusing an attractive offer from Florenz Ziegfeld, is now climbing the ladder to motion picture fame, via the route of such productions as James Young's "Wandering Daughters," and Mary Pickford's "Rosita."

Days of Easy Access to Stardom are Over?

As a result of the many reports that have been broadcasted regarding the present prosperous and busy status of the coast film studios, Hollywood is fairly overflowing with girls who are anxious to break into pictures. Always more or less in a state of siege by beautiful aspirants for a screen career, this much-publicified community, now more than ever before, is filled with girls who have felt the cinema urge. It is believed that most of them are girls who are combining their summer vacations with an attempt to win photoplay fame.

In discussing this condition, John M. Stahl, director of "The Dangerous Age," who is now completing "The Wanters" for early Mayer-First National release, was anything but optimistic in his views on the beginner's chances for meteoric stardom. Basing his statement on the belief that most girls hope for Cinderella-luck, rather than hard work and a steady climb when they enter a studio, Mr. Stahl said:

"The girl just starting in pictures faces overwhelming odds, with proven ability and experience holding the balance against her. How many girls who enter pictures, or who think of entering pictures, wish to study and learn to be real actresses and work toward the top? I venture to say that nine out of ten expect to get star roles any day. That Mary Pickford, Lon Chaney, Norma Talmadge, Lewis Stone, Marie Prevost, Huntly Gordon and others of like caliber worked years acquiring the priceless experience that qualifies them as stars, never seems to occur to the beginner.

"This is the age of characterization in pictures and consequently the age of technique and finished artistry. The beauty star and the matinee idol are on the wane and now the rising individual favorites on the screen are those players who possess unusual talent and who have the ability to mold themselves into perfect harmony with the role they portray. Whether or not they are good looking is a secondary matter.

"Because of the exacting demands of the public, this is a good time to learn the acting profession, for the training will be more thorough. But the girl who contemplates going into pictures to take a hop, skip and jump to money and popularity will do better to try some other line of endeavor. Those days are over in motion pictures."

One interesting feature of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," which was recently completed at Universal City after four months' research work and seven months' actual production, with Lon Chaney in the featured title role and seventy-five important artists in support, is that two of its players are two who in the opinion of critics contributed largely to the success of "The Covered Wagon."

They are Ernest Torrence and Tully Marshall. Each has a relatively more important role than in "The Covered Wagon," Torrence as Clopin, king of the fifteenth century Parisian underworld, and Marshall as King Louis XI. Each is a historical role, because the great classic was written by Victor Hugo from notes about actual personages of the fifteen century which he gathered four centuries later in several years' hard study of historical documents.

THE UNIVERSAL NOSEGAY

"The Signal Tower," a dramatic story of railroad life, has been assigned to Clarence Brown, who has just finished directing "The Acquittal," an adaptation of Rita Weiman's stage play, at Universal City. The cast is not announced yet. Work on the script has commenced under the direction of Raymond L. Schrock.

Photography has been completed on "The Acquittal," spectacular screen adaptation of Rita Weiman's stage play at Universal City, and the film is now in the hands of Clarence Brown, the director, and a staff of experts for cutting.

The task of cutting will consume several weeks, as the footage taken was considerably over the proposed length of the production, and many episodes will have to be edited and shortened.

Stars of the celluloid are to turn to the speaking stage for the nonce, and stage a vaudeville show that is expected to be the talk of Hollywood, when the chapterplay department at Universal City entertains the rest of the studio on August 15th. The theater at the studio will be the scene of the affair, the show to be staged under the direction of the serial directors and serial stars and executives at the studio to appear as performers.

Among the big features will be William Desmond in a dramatic scene from "Quo Vadis," and William Duncan in a Scotch monologue. Eileen Sedgwick will sing her brother's new song, "Just Remember," and Fred J. McConnell, serial production head and Arthur Shadur, chief engineer, will appear in a fistic divertisement entitled, "The Leather Pushers." Margaret Morris and Joe Bonomo will stage their Tango dance from "Beasts of Paradise," and Bonomo, assisted by Ruth Royce, will appear in a "Strong Man" set. Bill Craft, the director, will present "Slim" Coles and Gordon McGregor in "The Lion Tamer," and Mrs. Lily Shadur, a gifted violinist, will contribute numbers. Pete Morrison will do roping tricks with chatter, C. A. Locan will present a sleight-of-hand act, and Norman Sprowl, business manager of the big show and an old-time minstrel man, will present his own "Cowboy quartet." William H. Gould will portray the drunken sailor from his vaudeville engagement in "The New Chief of Police" and William Desmond has been impressed as master of ceremonies. The affair is to serve as a social reunion for the folk of the big studio.

Enthusiasm over the dramatic Universal-Jewel feature that Harry Garson directed, "Thundering Dawn," is evident at Universal City. The production is highly pleasing to Julius Bernheim, general manager, and William Koenig, business manager.

J. Warren Kerrigan, Anna Q. Nilsson, Winifred Bryson, Richard Kean, Tom Santschi, Edward Burns, Winter Hall and other favorite artists of the screen have principal roles.

One of the outstanding features of "Thundering Dawn" of interest to newspaper and magazine writers is the performance of Richard Kean, which is exceptionally good. The interesting angle is that although Kean is one of the best known Shakesperean actors and legitimate stars, this is his first motion picture role .

George Archainbaud is duplicating past successes at Universal City, in the opinion of studio executives.

"The Power of a Lie" and "The Midnight Guest," past Universal productions of his, were five reels in length and as such were exceptional box office attractions. Now he is directing Priscilla Dean in a Universal-Jewel production of seven or eight reels in length, "The Storm Daughter," and it is believed with the material on hand he will make the best picture of his career. It is a sea story, nine-tenths off terra firma.

William B. Davidson, Tom Santschi, Bert Roach, Cyril Chadwick, Pat Hartigan, Alfred Fisher and George Kuwa are among the supporting players of Miss Dean. Leete Renwick Brown wrote the story and Edward Montaigne the scenario. Production is going along at full swing.

"Beasts of Paradise," new chapterplay being filmed at Universal City, has, in the words of the star, "got Bill Desmond's goat." Desmond, with eileen Sedgwick, heads a notable cast in the lively story of hidden gold, the broad Pacific and tropical jungle.

They started with an office scene; thence followed a quick dash to the Universal City zoo, where Desmond passed a day in the den with trained lions who, he was assured, were tame, but whose amiability he doubted sincerely, although he was close enough to touch them all day and performed some of the most daring work ever done with animals.

Then he was hurried to San Pedro, where he was taken aboard a windjammer to stage a desperate fight with two burly sailors; then hurried back to Universal City for more animal scenery; thence back to San Pedro to sail on the schooner—for the scenes which will be taken on a month's voyage which the entire company will take down the Mexican coast and to an island.

"This isn't a serial!" says Desmond. "It's an endurance contest."

The picture, directed by William Craft, has a notable cast. Eileen Sedgwick plays the heroine, and William H. Gould, famous vaudeville star, is the male villain. The "villainess" is Ruth Royce, noted "feminine" heavy at Universal City. Clarke Comstock, veteran character actor, William Welsh, Margaret Morris the noted dancer, Joe Bonomo, the famous "Strong Man," Gordon McGregor and "Slim" Coles are others in the cast.

The story, from the pen of Val Cleveland, is a thrilling recital of a chase for treasure, captured by a submarine and lost in a tropical island. Thrilling sea scenes, jungle adventures, and other sensations mark its rapid plot.

Baby Peggy is famous as a diminutive comedienne—but no one ever accused her of tragedy parts until William Seiter commenced direction of "The Burglar's Kid," at Universal City. Baby Peggy played tragedy for the first time in her brief but eventful screen career—just a flash of tragedy—but she got by with it.

The tragedy was only a stubbed toe—but that's plenty of tragedy for a little miss not much over four. The play called for it, and Baby therefore counterfeited a perfect mishap. Frank Currier, veteran of the screen, carefully picked her up, as per script.

"Now cry, Baby!" directed Seiter through his megaphone.

The cameras ground as Baby Peggy cried and cried—and she's just as cute when she cries as when she laughs. Real tears, after the approved fashion of stars and their press-agents, welled from her eyes and streamed down her cheeks. Finally the director called "Out!" and the cameras stopped.

Baby Peggy looked at the director, a roguish smile peeping through the still-fresh traces of tears.

"And you didn't think I could play emotional roles, did you?" she inquired. Which, Seiter avers, wins the galvanized iron bathrobe!

"The Burglar's Kid," adapted from Frances Hodgson Burnett's famous story, "Editha's Burglar," surrounds Baby Peggy with a big cast, including Gladys Hulette, Frank Currier, Edward Earle, Cesare Gravina, and other well known players.

"Props" in a motion picture usually are insured and all precautions taken against the loss of anything valuable, but seldom is anything used in scenes the loss of which would be irreparable.

Roy Stewart, who starts work at Universal City immediately under the direction of Nat Ross in "The Man Trackers," a Texas ranger story, will use one "prop" with the understanding that no one but himself will touch it.

(Continued on Page 20)

Lillian Leighton, playing Ma Pettingill, in "Ruggles of Red Gap."

Ralph Cloninger, photoplayer, temporarily playing the lead opposite Nance O'Neill, in "The Passion Flower," a spoken play, in Frisco.

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, AUGUST 11, 1923

MISTAKEN FOR BURGLAR IN OWN HOME

To be mistaken for a burglar in your own home!

Anna Q. Nilsson, famous motion picture actress, has had that experience and she blames it all onto a pair of trousers—the trousers she wore during the production of "Ponjola," a picturization of Cynthia Stockley's famous story in which she plays the role of a young woman who masquerades as a man.

Here is how it all happened:

Anna was returning to her Hollywood home late, following the shooting of night scenes for the Sam K. Rork-First National picture.

Mr. "Anna Q." had retired early and was hitting the hay soundly when the fair one arrived at the domicile.

Anna rang the bell incessantly; then she pounded on the door. But hubby slept on.

There was only one thing to do—that was to break in, and Anna did just that. She broke a pane of glass in a rear window, in true burglar fashion, put her head through the broken window, turned the catch, opened the window and began to climb in.

Mr. "Anna Q." had awakened by now. With the vision of burglars he crept down the back stairway, revolver in hand. He saw a trouser-covered leg come through the window. He waited until the form climbed through the window, took a dive for the legs of the intruder and together the two fell in a heap on the floor.

Naturally, Anna thought that she was in the grasp of a bold, bad burglar, for often screen bad men lie in wait for their victims just that way—and so she fought back.

It was a great tussle while it lasted. But why continue—history will never know what Anna Q. said to "Mr. Anna Q," or what "Mr. Anna Q." said to Anna Q. But one can guess the substance of it, perhaps.

Hampton to New York.

Jesse D. Hampton, well known film producer, left Sunday for New York City, to confer with the Goldwyn exploitation forces regarding his picture, "The Spoilers," which has just opened in the Eastern metropolis. Hampton is making preparations for his next picture, to be made at the Goldwyn studios. It is likely that he will film another Rex Beach story, as he has the rights to several.

ANOTHER CHILD WINS STARDOM

According to reports current in filmland this week, Muriel Frances Dana, the petite four-year-old star who has distinguished herself in several recent important productions, will head her own company very soon and will make a series of super-features for one of the biggest releasing organizations in the country. The initial story selected for her has been approved and financial arrangements are being completed and attention is being given to considering directors.

Foremost wiseacres and critics seem to class little Miss Dana as the third in rank among child artists of the screen with only Jackie Coogan and Baby Peggy ahead of her. She has attained this position without any of the advantages of appearing in stories prepared especially for her, all of her previous engagements being in support of prominent stars against whose work she has been able to "stand out" by dint of sheer ability and striking personality.

Her best recent performances are in such outstanding successes as "Can a Woman Love Twice," in which Ethel Clayton is the star, and "Sunshine Trail," starring Douglas McLean. She has won high praise in several of Thomas H. Ince productions and it is said this producer has been negotiating to sign her up to a long-term contract with starring guarantees.

During the last few months Baby Muriel has developed to a marvelous degree, both in dramatic ability and personal beauty and she is heralded by many as the most charming little artist on the screen. Her versatility is quite unusual, she being equally adept in emotional and vivacious scenes. Much is expected of her efforts during the coming fall and winter season.

Jackie Goes On a Hunting Trip

Jackie Coogan's folks are firm believers in the wisdom of the old adage that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

This week, the Coogan party left in their automobile for their ranch in the Nevada mountains. In addition to Jackie and his father and mother, the party also includes the starlet's uncle George, and Raoul and Julie Steinon, respectively chef and maid, as well as the two Wortley brothers, famous guides.

The party will be gone about a month, and during their stay Jackie and Jack, senior, both expect to catch a number of golden trout for which this district is famous, and also to do a little game shooting.

It is a full two days horseback ride from the edge of the desert to the Coogan camp, because they are leaving their car at the desert's edge. Jackie specially insisted upon this because he wanted to get astride "Diamond" as soon as possible. This was Jackie's trail horse last year when on a similar vacation he caught his full limit of trout within 45 minutes. He and his father have each determined to beat this record in the present trip, and Jack Coogan, senior, expects to get his deer when the season opens.

Jackie has just completed filming "Long Live the King," his first Metro production, directed by Victor Schertzinger from Eve Roberts Rinehart's book.

Barthelmess Has New Leading Lady

John S. Robertson announces that Miss Dorothy Mackaill has been selected to play opposite Richard Barthelmess in his next picture "Wild Apples," which follows his picture in the Cromwellian period in English history "The Fighting Blade." Miss Mackaill was Mr. Barthelmess' leading lady in that picture and she achieves the distinction of being the first leading lady to play opposite him in two pictures since he became a star, two years ago. Mr. Robertson, who will direct this picture as he did "The Bright Shawl" and "The Fighting Blade" declares that Miss Mackaill has a most promising future on the screen. She is in constant demand.

Work on this picturization of the successful novel by Grace MacGowan Cooke and Alice MacGowan, will be started at the Fort Lee studio in about two weeks. The story teems with romance, love being the big theme, and the struggles of a young man brought up under circumstances calculated to make him a genuine snob, but who finds himself and achieves his goal in life—the girl of his heart.

Boyce Combe has been signed for the lead in "Until We Meet." Mr. Combe has not had an idle moment since his arrival here, for he immediately started work on "The Spider," in which he played the lead.

TEN NATIONS AT FILM PLANT

Ten widely separated regions of the world are today compressed within the twenty or more acres of the Pickford-Fairbanks studio lot, bearing out the oft-expressed philosophy of poets and sages—that the world is embodied in a grain of sand or a rose blossom.

Spain was requisitioned for Mary Pickford's newest superfilm, "Rosita." Olde Englande and Mediaeval France, which recently furnished the setting for "Robin Hood," are represented by huge castle walls and quaint villages. Numerous backwoods cabins proclaim themselves Jack Pickford's next scene of action, while Arabia, Mesopotamia, Persia, China, and India represent the territory which Douglas Fairbanks romps in his next shadowplay, "The Thief of Bagdad."

Every available square foot of space has been carefully considered in the placing of the huge sets. In several instances they overhang or one forms the back wall of another. The huge covered stage, one of the largest in the world, houses a half dozen different parts of Asia as well as a pair of cabins in the old blue grass region.

At the present time open season holds on both the Douglas Fairbanks and Jack Pickford sets, while sister Mary's company is doing a little camera target practice, preparatory to their film season, opening soon, on "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall."

ADA MAE IS ENGAGED FOR LARRY SEMON FILM

Ada Mae Vaughn has been engaged for an importan role in "The Girl in the Limousine," which will be Larry Semon's first starring vehicle under his new contract with Cosmopolitan. Preparations are being rushed to make it possible to start actual "shooting" activities on this production within the next three weeks and it is said this will be the most ambitious picture the popular comedian ever made.

Miss Vaughn, who is a sister of the popular Alberta Vaughn, now in the galaxy of Mack Sennett stars, has been making splendid headway in her march to cinema fame, notably in her histrionic achievements in support of Charles Ray, her last engagement with this star having been in a principal role in "The Courtship of Miles Standish," soon to be released as his greatest and most costly production. Great things are predicted for Ada Mac's future.

Picture Finished at Bedside of Star

Motion picture paraphernalia, director, electricians and cameramen were transferred from the studio to the bedside of Evelyn Brent, popular English star, in Hollywood last week in order to prevent further loss of time and expense brought about by her illness.

A week ago Miss Brent suffered a nervous breakdown following months of continuous work before the cameras of different producers. Her absence from the Metro studio, where "Held to Answer" was under production, has held up the completion of this picture involving many thousands of dollars. Further delay would not only have brought about cancellations of many bookings already made throughout the country on this film, but would have upset the general releasing schedule of forthcoming pictures.

When Miss Brent was confronted with the situation, she volunteered to leave her bed and take a chance with her health by going to the studio to complete her work for the production. Her physician, Dr. Leo Schulman of Hollywood, however, would not permit this.

Miss Brent then suggested that if she could not go to the studio, the studio be brought to her bedside. There were only a half dozen close-up scenes of her face necessary to complete the film and these could be taken in her bedroom.

Director Harold Shaw and Milton Brown, head photographer of Metro, accompanied by electricians and other assistants, accordingly moved their paraphernalia from the studio into Miss Brent's boudoir at the Hillview Apartments in Hollywood, where under the nurse's watchful eye they obtained the missing scenes for the production.

"Cuddles" is Careful.

"Cuddles" Stern is one of the many little child actresses that work on the screen, who has gotten over the days of needing things to amuse her when she isn't actually employed in a picture, for she has a great ability to find her own amusement, and it isn't the kind that worries "Ma Stern," because she can leave "Cuddles" with anyone and warn her not to muss her makeup, and return an hour later, and still find her little one intact as far as wardrobe and makeup is concerned, and in a very happy state of mind.

May Foster is rapidly coming into her own, and in her recent characterizations in "Thundergate" her work is said to have stood out very prominently. Miss Foster as "Mrs. Purdy" in "45 Minutes From Broadway," with Charles Ray, and as "Nancy Sibley" in "Milestones," proved her real ability as a character actress.

TO PUBLISH FILM STORY

Clarke Renalle, president and general managing director of Renalles, Inc., who is assembling an all-star cast for his forthcoming feature, "The Elk's Tooth," which will be filmed at the Culver City studios, will publish his story in book form for distribution to all exhibitors throughout the country. This production deals with the elk as an eloquent plea for the preservation of this monarch of the forest and will be made in the form of a comedy-drama of the great outdoors.

Mr. Renalle is a showman of many years' experience, and for more than four decades staged many big productions in various parts of the country. Evidence of his originality is found in an unusual publicity angle he has evolved in issuing this book for exhibitors. The back outside cover of each copy will be devoted to the players in his picture, and he will use thereon pictures of his entire cast, together with a short resume of the film and information of value to the exhibitor.

The book itself will be identical in appearance with current novels on sale at the bookstores and will therefore be able to pioneer for the subsequent film among the booklovers of the nation, to whom it will undoubtedly be passed on when the exhibitors have found full use for it.

VIDOR TAKES COMPANY TO GEORGIA SWAMPS

With the selection of Virginia Valli and Nigel de Brulier for prominent roles, King Vidor, Goldwyn director, left last week for the swamps of Georgia, where he will film "Wild Oranges," the Joseph Hergesheimer novel.

Miss Valli will play the leading feminine role in the picture, opposite James Kirkwood. Other members of the cast already announced are Ford Sterling and Charles A. Post. Only five players appear in the entire picture.

With the exception of one interior set, the whole story will be filmed in the exact locale described by Hergesheimer in his novel. The company will make headquarters at Jacksonville, and from there will make trips to location.

One of the most dangerous spots in America has been chosen by Vidor as a setting for his production. The bayous and swamps of Georgia are infested with poisonous snakes, flies and insects, and are thickly populated with alligators.

At "Black Folly," one of the densest of morasses, Vidor plans to make many scenes. This particular bog, into which none of the negroes of the section can be induced to enter, has been the scene of many unsolved tragedies, for natives and surveyors from time to time have attempted to chart its depths.

None of the adventurous surveying parties have ever returned to tell of their discoveries, nor has any trace been found of them.

Burch's Pets.

Two years ago, Johnnie Burch was a perfectly good electrician. Today, he is known throughout Western Canada and in the Hollywood picture colony as "the wolf boy" or "the shepherd of the wolves." He takes care of the Trimble-Marfin pack of eighteen timber wolves which are used in Strongheart's next picture, "The Love Master," and to Johnnie they are just eighteen pals and pets. The reason, according to Director Laurence Trimble, is that Burch has no fear of them, treats them as dogs, and they respond as such.

NEW ARTISTS' AGENTS OPEN OFFICES HERE

Meaney and Nehls have opened offices at 430-431 Markham building as motion picture representatives for artists, producers and authors.

R. R. Nehls has been identified with the picture industry since 1899 in sales and distribution and for twelve years as general manager of a production company.

Don Meaney has been well-known to the industry for more than fifteen years.

The two men make an ideal combination for real service to their clients.

WINS RECOGNITION ON SCREEN IN JIG TIME

After twenty-five successful years on the legitimate stage and then to enter the field of motion picture players and achieve instant success, is the result obtained by Oliver Eckhardt.

Eckhardt, who has appeared with every leading stock company in the United States and Canada, in addition to heading his own traveling organization, completed recently two important parts in a similar number of important productions, namely, as "The Marshal of France" in "The Ashes of Vengeance," a Norma Talmadge production, directed by Frank Lloyd, and the important role of the butler in "The Man Between," a Finish Fox production.

Tolley Progresses Rapidly.

From within the corridor of a banking institution and then to war—and after participating in the battle of Champagne, France—wounded and in the hospital and then after being discharged from the army—joined the ranks of the motion picture industry—is the story in a nutshell of Stanley Tolley, filmland's latest find in the portrayal of distinctive heavies and characters. Tolley, who did some very fine work in "Trilby" and repeated his success in the Richard Thomas production, "The Silent Accuser," and in his latest effort with Harry Langdon under the direction of Alf Goulding, received special mention for his splendid portrayal of the he-vamp heavy.

Another "Three Keatons" on the Job

Like father like son.

About twenty years ago, Joe Keaton, father of Buster Keaton, organized a vaudeville act known as "The Three Keatons." For sixteen years that act played every city, town and hamlet in the United States, the United Kingdom and the British colonies. The "Three Keatons" were "Dad" Joe Keaton, little Buster and his mother, Myra Keaton.

And now at Truckee where Buster's latest comedy, "Hospitality," is being filmed a new "Three Keatons" company has been formed. But this time it has Buster as the Dad of the family while Natalie Talmadge Keaton, his wife, and Baby Buster, now thirteen months old, are the other members of the trio.

Baby Buster doubles for his father in "Hospitality." That is, he represents Buster as he is supposed to have looked when a baby in the first reel of "Hospitality."

"Dad" Keaton, Buster's father, celebrated the launching of the new "Three Keatons" trio last week with a little dinner in Truckee.

"Dad" recalled Buster's first appearance on the stage when as a baby in arms, during the Spanish-American war, "Dad" carried him before the footlights and yodeled a Swiss "go-to-sleep-baby" song. "Dad" sang the old song over again, bringing tears to the eyes of both Buster and his wife, and wild yells of approval from little Buster Junior.

Completes Another Milestone.

Dorothy Chase has just finished playing the interesting role of "Caroline," an unfortunate heiress unjustly confined by her mercenary uncle in a psycopathic sanitarium of bad repute, in an episode of "The Danger Trail," starring Edna Murphy, at the Hal Roach studios. Miss Chase's part, while small, is replete wtih tragic and dramatic situations, which it is reported she put over in a sympathetic and realistic manner. This marks another milestone in the unusual progress of this young actress, who turned from professional writing to the screen some time ago, and has been advancing steadily ever since.

Buys New Wardrobe.

"Goldie" Fessendo has been buying a complete new wardrobe, all on account of some promises which have been made to her that she is soon to receive an opportunity to play a very good part in a big production, calling for a number of different costumes, which must be of the very best quality, and be right up to the minute, as far as style is concerned.

Chart Shows the "Original" is Favored

A composite production chart in the office of Geo. M. Mitchell, president of Choice Productions, Inc., reveals a number of interesting facts, heretofore unrevealed. Mr. Mitchell prepared this chart during a short period of production inactivity for his guidance when the time came for resumption of work.

One of the bits of information disclosed through Mr. Mitchell's survey is that the original screen author is again coming into his own. This does not necessarily mean, as the chart shows, that the "six best sellers," and probably the "six worst sellers," will not be transposed to the screen. The chart does show, according to information from the Choice studios, that many books are being filmed, but these are the most popular sellers on the market today. The days when a novelist could sell a mediocre story for film adaptation merely because it has been published in book form has apparently passed. Independent producers are demanding original screen stories, says Mr. Mitchell, because the screen as a medium for expression is far different than the printed page and therefore needs entirely different treatment in construction, development and climax. Occasionally a producer can film a novel without any great mutilation and revision, but this is seldom the case. It was for the foregoing reasons that Choice Productions, Inc., rejected a great number of published novels to film William H. Clifford's "In Satan's Service," which is now in its final week of production at the Choice studios on Sunset boulevard. An all-star cast is portraying the ten principal roles.

RING LARDNER FEATURE REACHES SCREEN AT LAST

At last the famous baseball stories of Ring W. Lardner, "You Know Me, Al," a Busher's letters, have been adapted to the movies, and the first of these, "The Busher," will soon make its appearance as an Educational-Mermaid comedy, released through the Educational Film Exchange, Inc.

Lee Moran will portray the "Busher," Jack Keefe, the demon pitcher of the Snipeville Katydids. Mike Donlin, famous big leaguer, has a prominent part in the picture. These two will be supported by Lillian Hackett.

A number of the scenes were taken at Catalina, while the Chicago Cubs were in training there last spring. Grover Cleveland Alexander, and a number of the Cub players, will be seen in the picture.

The company also journeyed o Texas to secure scenes with the Giants during their training there. The picture was supervised by Jack White.

CORINNE IS NOW FIRST NATIONAL STAR

Under the terms of one of the biggest starring contracts ever written ,Corinne Griffitth has become a First National star. Negotiations were concluded this week for the distribution of a series of Corinne Griffith productions over a period of years through Associated First National Pictures, Inc.

The new unit has been organized by Edward Small, who has guided the destinies of many famous stars and directors; E. M. Ascher, New York representative of the Mack Sennett Comedies and Chas. R. Rogers, formerly manager of distribution of two of the largest producing companies.

The new star, who takes her place with Norma and Constance Talmadge, Richard Barthelmess and Colleen Moore as a First National star for the season of 1923-24 and for seasons thereafter, is regarded as one of the most consistently popular and firmly established players in the industry.

Miss Griffith has been starred in several series of pictures and more recently has been playing featured roles in important productions as an independent player.

The new First National producing unit will be known as Corinne Griffith Productions, Inc., and has adopted a policy of filming only the proven successes of fiction and the stage.

Her initial starring vehicle under the new First National contract will be "Lilies of the Field," a recent stage success, production of which will begin about October 15th .

"Negotiations have been under way for some time," stated officers of the Corinne Griffith unit, "and Miss Griffith has studied the distribution situation in every detail. Our aim was the production of high class first run specials and naturally we sought the releasing organization which would give us the best first run representation. Consequently, the offer from Associated First National Pictures was given our first consideration and the arrangements for a series of pictures have made us content with the feeling that Corinne Griffith Productions are assured of the widest distribution possible."

The contract was signed after telegraphic conferences between Richard A. Rowland, general manager of First National and John McCormick, western representative, Earl Hudson, production chief of First National units at the West Coast studios and officials of Corinne Griffith Productions, Inc.

"Without attempting a mutual exchange of bouquets," announced Mr. Rowland, "First National is happy to welcome Miss Griffith to its fold as one of the most delightful screen personalities of filmdom. We are producing and releasing other than simply 'star' pictures, and we therefore are obliged to keep our list of stars small in number. Miss Griffith will have every facility for the production of such pictures and she will not be hurried by an arbitrary time limit."

Mr. Ascher stated that the new affiliation in no way affected his association with Mack Sennett.

BAKER TO CELEBRATE A "100TH CENTENNIAL"

The George D. Baker Centennial will be celebrated on the Goldwyn lot with the final cutting under the director's supervision of Balzac's "The Magic Skin." Not that the dean of the directorial world has attained the century mark in age, but "The Magic Skin" makes the hundredth production that Baker has directed.

After many years on the stage as an actor, director and manager, he started to direct John Bunny and Flora Finch for Vitagraph in the old one-reel days, and later when Vitagraph started multiple reel features he was chosen to handle Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno. "Tarantula" was the biggest hit of these two stars which he wrote and produced.

Lester Baker joined Metro and rose to the rank of director general of the west coast studios, where Nazomova's "Revelation" was considered his supreme achievement.

More recently he has been in the East and traveling in Europe. He came to the coast for Achievement Films, Inc., to make the Balzac story for Goldwyn release at the Goldwyn studio,

HELENE, ALL TRAINED, RESUMES CAMERA WORK

Helene Chadwick has been declared physically fit by her trainer, "Pep" Kerwin, and has left for Yellowstone Park to start work in Rupert Hughes' "Law Against Law."

Miss Chadwick recently created considerable interest among feminine film stars in Hollywood when she retained the services of Kerwin, well known physical culture teacher, to supervise her in a siege of intensive training stunts to fit her for months of hard work before the camera.

Her appearance in "Law Against Law" marks her first portrayal on the screen in eight months as a result of a lawsuit against the Goldwyn company.

The services of Kerwin have been retained permanently by Miss Chadwick, who plans to continue her physical training to keep her fit for her film work. Her routine includes boxing, rope jumping, weight pulling and other stunts generally employed by prize-fighters to keep in condition.

Miss Chadwick is the first feminine star to do this, although a number of male celebrities of the cinema have their own trainers to supervise their physical condition.

Cowan & Higgin Form Writing Team

Sada Cowan, for years recognized as one of the leading writers for the screen, and Howard Higgin, for seven years director and co-director for Cecil B. DeMille, have joined forces and will henceforth collaborate on originals and adaptations.

Miss Cowan, since she joined the Famous Players five years ago, has been credited with scores of leading photoplays. Among her recent adaptations for Famous were "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," and "The Silent Partner."

In New York, at the moment, "Peter the Great," an original which Miss Cowan wrote in Germany and which was made by a German company, is being presented at the Rivoli theatre by Paramount, and is scoring a great success, having been held over for a second week.

Miss Cowan and Mr. Higgin titled "Brass" for Warner Brothers, and "Thundering Dawn" for Harry Garson. They have recently completed the adaptation of "Lucretia Lombard" for Warner Brothers.

In speaking of the partnership, Miss Cowan says: "Collaboration is a synonym for better scenarios and stories. For years I have worked alone. Now I will have another viewpoint, and Mr. Higgin, through his long and unique experience, can visualize a written situation in picture form. That is the real secret in writing scenarios."

The many and varied experiences which Miss Cowan had in her recent year's trip around the world, will be incorporated in her future writings.

LOOKS FOR NEW THRILLS TO CONQUER

Caesar looked for new worlds to conquer.

"Buck" Jones looks for new thrills to conquer.

The daring Fox star in his three years' work, has "done his stuff" amid the clouds in an aeroplane, near the bottom of the sea in a submarine and in a diver's suit, and has driven one of Jimmy Murphy's fastest racing cars 112 miles per hour around the Beverly Hills speedway. And way back before he entered pictures, he used to stop cattle stampedes on the range with hundreds of immense steers dashing towards him; while serving as a soldier in the Philippines he twice fought in hand-to-hand struggle with a Moro to wrestle a machete out of his hand.

He has just completed "Second Hand Love" at the Fox studio, and is now resting while the script is being prepared for his next production. "The Eleventh Hour," from the famous old Lincoln J Carter melodrama, will be his next feature to be released.

This Newcomer is Worthy of a Chance

When beautiful Eugenia Feiner came to Hollywood to make her debut in a feature picture under the title of "Grandpap" at Universal City, she realized full well the obstacles which Fate would place in her way in her efforts to achieve cinema success, but she came with plenty of determination to stand the gaff and consequently her prospects of attaining her goal become brighter each day. Those who are familiar with her work and with her rare talents are enthusiastic over her prospects and it is certain that if she is given the necessary opportunity, she will distinguish herself and soon reach a place of eminence in the ranks of stellar photoplayers, according to those who are acquainted with her.

Miss Feiner hails from St. Louis, where she had wide experiences as a dramatic artist and dancer. She was engaged for her first motion picture work while still at home and came all the way to Hollywood to fill that engagement. Since completing that feature she has been devoting her time to study and preparation for further histrionic endeavor in the field of silent drama and she will no doubt find a prominent place in a cast of the early future, as she is at present negotiating with several studios.

Miss Feiner is an unusually striking blonde, still in her teens. Her hair is golden and her eyes are brown, which is a combination considered ideal from a photographic standpoint. In the way of talent, she is a natural dramatic ingenue and capable of a wide scope of portrayal of vital characters. In short, she is one of the newcomers to the screen who looks like an unusually good bet, and who should be given a fair chance to show her dramatic worth and possibilities of development.

Jinx on His Trail

Richard Talmadge, starring in "Fast Freight," a Carlos production in the making at Universal is not complaining, but he has been the victim of eleven accidents since the picture's beginning, one laying him up for four weeks and suspending all work on the production. As a stunt man doubling for many famous stars, Mr. Talmadge passed through everything unscathed. His program thus far in "Fast Freight" has included a jump from house to house, four stories high, on Hollywood boulevard, a dash on a motorcycle, twenty feet high through a twenty-four sheet, a jump from the Fourth street viaduct, thirty-five feet high, to a box car, where a loose board displaced his pad and gave him a sprained ankle. His physician has forbidden him to work, but Mr. Talmadge was on the job Monday, when calls were issued to the rest of the cast.

SPONSOR AND PROTEGE GO EAST

Eugene B. Branford, who will be remembered for his excellent rendition of the leading aristocrat role in Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche," left Hollywood the early part of the week for the East, combining a pleasure and professional trip, the itinery including Washington, D. C., and New York, via Chicago and Marion.

Mr. Branford is a protege, and under the management of the illustrious Susie C. Clark, author of many beautiful plays and books, one of the latter of which has attracted world-wide interest is a biography in novel form of "John McCullough, as Man Actor and Spirit"—who in all three capacities gained universal recognition in the annals of fame. Miss Clark is likewise leaving for the East and she and Mr. Branford expected to arrive in Marion, Ohio, in time to attend the funeral of our late president, whom Mr. Branford knew in earlier days.

While in Washington they will be the guests of the well-known Dr. H. Holla, and will also visit the grave of the much beloved John McCullough, in Philadelphia. While in New York, Mr. Branford will deliver a lecture at the Hotel Astor on psychology, likewise while in Boston, and will then enjoy the distinction of being the guest of honor at a large house party to be given by Miss Clark at Cambridge, where she maintains a beautiful summer home.

Each added year of Miss Clark's more than three score and ten seems to brighten rather than diminish her wonderful intellect and the fact that she has pinned her faith on young Brandford's histrionic ability, based to a certain extent on his many years training and experience on the legitimate stage, seems to have already born fruit for on his return to Hollywood he will resume his duties at the Bob Horner studios.

CONTINUE EXPANSION AT UNITED STUDIOS

Plans for the construction of a new properties storage building, to contain a restaurant and five stores on the ground floor, on the Melrose avenue frontage of the United Studios were announced today by M. C. Levee, president of the studio company. Furniture, draperies, "hand props" and electrical fixtures are all to be housed under one roof. The original property room in charge of Tom Little has long been outgrown and various other rooms around the lot have been utilized for storage. Now all properties are to be gathered under one roof.

A modern barber shop and various retail establishments, as well as the restaurant, will cater not only to studio employees, but also to the residents of the rapidly growing Melrose avenue neighborhood.

Aubrey Back From Trip.

Jimmy Aubrey, refreshed from a trip to the mountains where he and his manager, Leon Lee, spent a week, has returned to Hollywood feeling full of "pep" and vigor, and ready to go back to work on his third fun-film under his new contract. "Joimes," who totes about the saddest pair of orbs of any funster in the profession, especially when the villain starts making it hot for him, and getting him into all sorts of troubles, just seems to shed dry tears. In "The Buttiniski" and "The Lobbygow" he was terribly abused by Fred De Silva, the villain, who always wanted the hand of Phylis Byrne, the girl in love with "Jimmy," and there the trouble started and finally ended, with the comedian, of course, winning out, but not until he had undergone quite a bit of grief at the hands of the villain.

WALKS 40,000 MILES IN THREE YEARS' TIME

Forty thousand miles on foot over the American continent in the last three years is some record! That is what George E. Sachs, pedestrian photographer, who is today resting at the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A., preparatory to a record breaking 19-day race to New York, his home, has done.

Immediately upon reaching Hollywood, coming from San Francisco, he visited the Pickford-Fairbanks studio where he obtained the signature of Douglas Fairbanks as "The Thief of Bagdad" upon a letter given him by the manager of the United Artists representative in each town he passes through on this letter, and will then return it to the San Francisco office. He is also carrying a letter of greeting from Governor Pierce of Oregon to Governor Al Smith of New York. In his travels, Sachs, who is only 22, has covered all of the 48 states, Alaska, Canada, Nova Scotia, Mexico, Cuba, and British Columbia, crossing the continent six times, taking pictures as he went to illustrate his travels.

Bobby in Lady Role.

Bobby Vernon makes the cutest kind of a girl when he dresses for such a part in his comedies. But he just hates to portray such a role. There is something about girls that "Bobby" just can't get used to, when it comes to appearing on the screen in such a makeup. But he did a picture once that was called "Petticoats and Pants," and the exhibitors have been crying ever since for another like it, and Al E. Christie, when he was enroute to Europe, struck on the idea and developed it all the more on the way home. Here he has his star funster, right in the midst of a screamingly funny situation, comedy that causes Mister Vernon to make three changes.

Necessity, Mother of Invention, Proven

Something new in the way of clothes or novelties has been introduced in motion pictures from time to time by different stars of the silent drama. To Dorothea Wolbert, at one time Universal's premiere comedienne, however, must go credit for the introduction of striped stockings, which until a short time ago proved to be a popular item in nearly every screen comedienne's wardrobe.

Miss Welbert struck upon the idea one day while making up for work in one of her comedies. She had misplaced her stockings and with the director calling frantically for her to come on the set she grabbed a piece of striped canvas which was reposing in the studio trash can and winding it around her legs she hurried to the stage.

When the director saw her he let out a burst of laughter that could have been heard from one end of the studio to the other. Miss Wolbert then decided if striped stockings had such an effect upon a director they surely would arouse the greatest humor among motion picture audiences and thus it came about that striped hosiery was as important to her as the cane, hat shoes and mustache is to Charlie Chaplin.

CINEMA TROUPE TO YELLOWSTONE

With two Pullman coaches of screen celebrities, and two baggage cars with motion picture equipment, Rupert Hughes, famous author and motion picture director, left Sunday for Yellowstone Park, where he will film scenes for his new picture, tentatively titled, "Law Against Law."

Several Goldwyn stars, Lew Cody, Helene Chadwick, George Walsh, Carmel Myers, Dale Fuller and William Orlamond, accompanied the author as part of his cast. Rush Hughes, son of the author-director, Robert de Vilbiss, child actor, and baby Virginia Loomis, also were with the troupe.

With Hughes went a staff of twenty-five technical men.

A staff of eight cameramen, headed by John Mescall, who filmed "Souls for Sale" for Hughes, accompanied the unit. James Hogan went as production manager.

The story of "Law Against Law" deals with the divorce question, and is said to be one of Hughes' best satires. In his story Hughes shows how it is possible in the United States for a man to have three wives.

The company expects to be on the location trip for nine weeks. A stormy time will be enjoyed by all, as in a few days, another car of rain and wind machines leaves for the famous park.

Schertzinger to Make Special For Metro

"The Man Whom Life Passed By," an original screen story by Victor Schertzinger, is announced as the next Metro all-star special by Milton E. Hoffman, Metro production manager. By special arrangements with B. F. Schulberg, Mr. Schertzinger will direct his own story.

Victor Schertzinger recently completed the direction of "Long Live the King," Jackie Coogan's first production for Metro. He was scheduled to start the production of "The Boomerang" for Schulberg, to whom he is under contract.

But Metro felt that no one was quite so fitted to direct "The Man Whom Life Passed By" as its author, and so arrangements were made whereby Schulberg kindly consented to postpone the filming of "The Boomerang" so that this might be accomplished. According to those who have read Mr. Schertzinger's story, he has avoided every one of the stereotyped characters of screen drama and has built his plot around an entirely new and human theme.

Mr. Schertzinger, aside from being one of the long established directors of the industry, is also a concert violinist and composer of note. He is credited with the music score for Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood," as well as for a number of other big producions. "Just An Old Love Song" and "Marcheta," two of the biggest song hits of the day, are this director's compositions.

"The Man Whom Life Passed By" is being adapted to the esreen By" is being adapted to the screen cast is now being assembled and production is scheduled to begin August 18th.

SCENARISTS GIVE THE MAILMAN EXTRA WORK

The police officer and the postman covering Sunset boulevard near Gower street have served an ultimatum on Harry Cohn, general manager of the Waldorf studios that hereafter he must not let it be known through the public press when he is in the market for scenarios.

A few days ago Cohn sent out an S.O.S. call for scripts that could be used under the titles, "Pal O' Mine" and "Innocence," and since that time the postman has had to make extra trips to bring in the ambitious scenarios through the mail, while autos have been lined up in Sunset boulevard three deep with the over-efficient writers who believed the best bet would be to bring the script in in person.

"Forgive and Forget" is just being finished at the Waldorf studios by Howard Mitchell, while Edward J. Le Saint is making ready to start production on "The Marriage Market," from the novelette by Evelyn Campbell.

LLOYD GETS "BLACK OXEN"

The much discussed question as to who will produce "Black Oxen" has been definitely settled by an announcement from Associated First National Pictures, Inc., to the effect that this organization has turned over the screen rights of Gertrude Atherton's famous novel to Frank Lloyd Productions, Inc.

Since First National secured the film rights of this widely-read story, the entire picture industry and its followers have been speculating as to who will make this "best-seller."

First National's refusal to dispose of the film rights of "Black Oxen" at a profit of $100,000, led to the popular assumption that the story would be produced by this organization's own producing unit.

Continuous search for the initial vehicle for Frank Lloyd Productions since the consummation of a contract between Lloyd and First National for a series of Frank Lloyd Productions is said to have suddenly terminated when Richard A. Howland, general manager of First National, witnessed a private showing of Norma Talmadge's "Ashes of Vengeance," which Lloyd directed.

The masterly way in which this mammoth production was handled by Lloyd convinced this official that Lloyd is the one man in filmdom to produce and direct a story of the calibre of "Black Oxen."

"When we obtained the screen rights to 'Black Oxen,'" says Rowland, "we realized that in this sentimental story we had secured one of the greatest prizes of a literary decade. Naturally, it has been our desire to have it produced by a man in every way big enough to handle the greatest story the screen has ever had. Mr. Lloyd's continuous success in the directing of First National pictures, has qualified him to produce this picture."

"In my search for an ideal vehicle for my initial production," says Lloyd, "I have read more than fifty famous books and plays, but not one of them would approach 'Black Oxen' for unusual screen appeal and dramatic values.

"I believe that in this volume I have secured the prize vehicle of the year and realizing its wide popularity as a book, I shall endeavor to produce the film in conformity with the published story."

Commenting on First National's decision to turn over the film rights of "Black Oxen" to Frank Lloyd Productions, John McCormick, western representative of First National, says: "This is a most happy combination. Gertrude Atherton's story is generally recognized as the biggest story of the year and the acquisition of Frank Lloyd as a producer of First National pictures is held in equally high regard. We confidently expect 'Black Oxen,' under Mr. Lloyd's personal supervision, to be the screen masterpiece of the year."

Among Lloyd's most recent First National successes have been the following: Jackie Coogan's "Oliver Twist," and Norma Talmadge's "The Eternal Flame," "The Voice From the Minaret," "Within the Law," and her recently completed film, "Ashes of Vengeance."

GATES WORKED WHILE HE TOOK VACATION

Typewriter and fishing kit shared equal honors in the vacation of Harvey Gates, who wrote the scenario for "Merry-Go-Round" and who cut short his outing in order to return in time for the premiere.

Most of his vacation was spent in northern Utah on the ranch of D. P. Howells, European representative of Associated First National and the largest film exporter in New York. While Howells and Gates spent most of the time fishing, the latter found time in his spare moments to knock out an original story for the screen on his trusty Corona.

"Merry-Go-Round" is the latest of a series of scenario triumphs for Harvey Gates, including "Legally Dead," which played at the Kinema last week. "Hurricane's Gal," starring Dorothy Phillips, that started the vogue for sea stories, and "Chicago Sal," an Irving Cummings-Sol Lesser feature.

Gates has the distinction of having written vehicles that sent two actresses to stardom, namely, "Hell Morgan's Girl," which made Dorothy Phillips, and "The Wild-Cat of Paris," which put Priscilla Dean into the stellar realms.

MARJORIE AND EDDIE TO HONEYMOON NOW

Marjorie Daw is getting ready for her honeymoon.

As soon as she finishes her owrk in "The Dangerous Maid," the Schenck production in which she appears with Constance Talmadge, Miss Daw—now becoming known as Mrs. Eddie Sutherland—will leave filmdom flat for a few weeks and leave no forwarding address. That is, providing she does not have to start another picture before she leaves, as has been the case in the past.

Married to Mr. Sutherland, who is Charlie Chaplin's assistant, several months ago with Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford participating in the ceremony, Miss Daw was promptly called to work at the studio. Thus were her honeymoon plans cast aside. Upon completion of the film she was preparing for the big event when she had to start work in another production. And thus it has been ever since.

Friend Husband is about to take a few weeks off at the Chaplin studio, and if the gods do not decree otherwise, the newlyweds will soon be sailing to parts unknown, where not even the radio will reach them.

Mae Murray Acts As Godmother to Kiddies

If you want to know who is the very best actress on the screen just ask any one of some 12,000 Los Angeles youngsters who recently attended a free children's concert by the Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra. They will give Mae Murray as their choice—unequivocally.

One of the most popular summer institutions in Los Angeles is the Hollywood Bowl, a mammoth open air natural stadium in the Hollywood foothills. Concerts by an eighty-piece symphony orchestra are held in this inspiring setting nightly.

Miss Murray, always a lover of good music, conceived the idea of offering one of these concerts, especially arranged for children, in the afternoon. The famous little screen star not only took the time off from her production of "Fashion Row" for Metro, to arrange and finance this concert, but she also had the children from every charitable institution in Los Angeles as her guests, providing transportation for them as well.

Miss Murray insists that the ovation she received when she addressed the thousands of smiling youngsters more than repaid her for her efforts. In appreciation of her kindness and thoughtfulness she is now known as "The Fairy Godmother of the Bowl."

CROSLAND ARRIVES TO DIRECT "THREE WEEKS"

Allan Crosland will direct the film version of Elinor Glynn's famous novel, "Three Weeks."

That is the announcement from the Goldwyn studios, where the picturization of the popular story is to be made.

Crosland has arrived in Los Angeles from New York, where he had just completed the direction of Cosmopolitan's feature, "Under the Red Robe."

Mme. Glynn herself is now at the studios in Culver City, and will assist in the filming of her noted story. The adaptation of the novel to the screen has just been completed by Carey Wilson in close association with Mme. Glyn. Crosland has been in conference with the authoress and adapter since his arrival.

Crosland, though one of the youngest directors in motion pictures, has made a number of great pictures. His recent production, "Enemies of Women," is regarded by critics and public as one of the outstanding pictures of the year.

Some of his other pictures have been: "The face in the Fog," "Slim Shoulders," "Why Announce Your Marriage," "Room and Board," "Shadows of the Sea," and others.

Crosland is very enthusiastic over the possibilities of "Three Weeks" as a motion picture, and declares that he prefers the romantic, colorful type of photoplay.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

Jane Mercer, child character actress with Tod Browning, Goldwyn director, in "The Day of Faith," by Arthur Somers Roche, is a direct descendant from the famous General Hugh Mercer of Civil war fame.

John Arnold is photographing Viola Dana in "Search of a Thrill," her newest Metro starring picture which Oscar Apfel is directing. Mr. Arnold has turned the camera on every foot of film for all of Miss Dana's pictures for Metro.

House Peters, who is enacting the leading role in Metro's production of "Held to Answer," recently learned from his tailor that he requires the same measurements as Jack Dempsey, who is also a patron of said tailor.

Malcolm Waite, who was commissioned a captain in the Seveney-first Regiment, Twenty-seventh Division, during the beginning of the war, and later served overseas as a private with the Canadian forces, being cited for bravery, is playing a part in Jack Pickford's "Valley of the Wolf."

During his recent tour along the Pacific Coast, Dr. Ernest L. Crandall, president of the Board of Visual Instruction in the state of New York, and his party, was a guest of Jack Pickford at the Pickford-Fairbanks studio in Hollywood. Dr. Crandall and his party saw Jack make several scenes for his new picure, "Valley of the Wolf."

Rex Ingram and his star-wife, Alice Terry, have returned to the Metro studios after spending a few days at Catalina Island, following the completion of the actual filming of "Scaramouche," Mr. Ingram's newest production for Metro. Mr. Ingram expects to spend several weeks editing "Scaramouche" before he goes to New York for a visit.

Jean Del Val, who besides being one of the foremost French screen actors, is also a sculptor and has just completed modeling a bust of himself, which will be put on exhibition in one of the foremost galleries of Paris. Monsieur Jean has just completed his contract with Famous Players, having played one of the leading male roles opposite Gloria Swanson.

Wm. N. Bailey has completed his work on "Clipped Wings," the C. C. Burr special in which he played opposite Constance Binney. Mr. Bailey will immediately start work on his next Burr feature.

Zena Keefe has just completed "Dusk to Dawn," which was made here, and which will shortly be released.

FURTHMAN LEAVES "U" SCENARIO DEPARTMENT

After serving for eighteen months as associate editor in the scenario department of Universal, Charles Furthman resigned his week and for the present he is undecided whether he will resume his free-lancing activities or accept one of several offers he has received from other large film companies. During his affiliation with Universal, Mr. Furthman did some brilliant continuity work, not only on "Legally Dead," one of the current screen triumphs, "Out of Step," "The Purple Stripe," "Girl Shy" and "Once a Thief" are some of the other important productions he has worked on.

He is the author of several original screen stories and one of his best forthcoming efforts is "Pirate of New Orleans." He is also responsible for many other well-known successes.

Finishes Her Debut.

Grace Carlyle, former Broadway leading woman, who negotiated the important role of "Marion Dounay" in Metro's "Held to Answer," which marked her screen debut, had her last scenes this week in the production where her work was most significant. Miss Carlyle in her stage experience has enacted 150 different roles, but never before interpreted a character who seemed an utterly destructive force. In only two scenes did the actress give vent to a semblance of tender emotion, so in "Marion Doumay" something different in femininity is given to the screen.

Director Initiates Heir.

The demand for new faces on the screen will have its response from Fred Caldwell in his latest production, "Hogan in Hollywood," which he has just completed from an original story by J. Stewart Woodhouse. The new cinema luminary is Cecil Fred Caldwell, the three months old son of Mr. Caldwell, who makes his debut by riding stately before the camera in a perambulator. Caldwell, Jr., performed so well in his initial appearance that the proud director father predicts for him a brilliant career. This newe cinema star is supported by such well known players as Alice Howell, Charles Mack, Violet Schram, Muriel Reynolds, Victor Potel, Charles Dale and Jean Metcalf.

Arthur Housman, at present playing one of the leading male roles in "Around the Town With Gallagher and Shean," is in receipt of an offer which, if accepted, will take him to England.

Sara Mullen has returned to New York from Maine, where she has been filming "Evidence." Miss Mullen will be featured in the picture, which will be released on the Independent market.

AUSTIN IS HAILED AS THE LATEST "FIND"

Laurence Trimble, noted producer of dog stories and head of the Trimble-Murfin Productions, has a new film find! This time, however, it's not a canine find, but a young leading man named Harold Austin, who has just finished the title role in "The Love Master," the forthcoming Strongheart feature which was produced under the working title, "The Phantom Pack."

In this picture Austin was called upon to caress wolves of a rather wild variety, but as he was familiar with the characteristics of the animals, there was no undue excitement in the filming of the scenes. Prior to assuming this role, Austin was featured in comedies at Fox and Universal, but when he was advised he would be afforded greater opportunities and a location trip to Lake Louise, Banff and the Canadian Rockies country, he readily abandoned the comedy field and undertook the portrayal in the Trimble picture.

Those who know, say that this production will place this young man well on the road to recognition as one of our foremost leading men, and certainly he could not desire a more able sponsor for his introductory drama than Trimble.

Eileen Percy is suffering from a newly discovered affliction. She calls her trouble the "werbal wows," while her highbrow friends claim she has articulatum suspensodum. Miss Percy, who is now being filmed in the Choice Productions, Inc., current "special," "In Satan's Service," dates her difficulty back to her appearance on the set with Norma Talmadge during the filming of "Within the Law." She says she was called upon by the director to say, "Oh, I'm so fwightened," so many times that the letter "r" has ceased to exist for her.

George Beban is at present busy engaging his cast for his next production. He will start working early in September.

The Westlake Presbyterian Church, one of the largest and most exclusive churches in Los Angeles, furnished the setting for many of the exterior scenes of "Held to Answer," the second of the Metro all-star specials for the coming season.

Mabel Van Buren, who is appearing in support of Viola Dana in "In Search of a Thrill," her newest Metro picture, enacted the part of the German mother in Rex Ingram's production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" for Metro.

More than ten thousand orphan and school children of Los Angeles were the guests of Mae Murray at a special matinee concert of the Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra recently in the Hollywood Bowl. Not only did Miss Murray donate the concert, but she supplied transportation to and from the Bowl for the children.

E. M. Saunders, General Sales Manager of Metro Pictures Corporation, has returned to New York following a short visit to the Metro studios in Hollywood.

Seymour Zellif, who directed "The Mysterious Witness," a current Film Booking Office release, has turned towards writing original screen stories. Mr. Zellif is the author of "Hook the Woman," a six-reel special production recently completed by the Choice Productions, Inc.

Monte Blue and Irene Rich are to be featured players in the Warner Brothers picturization of Kathleen Norris' novel, "Lucretia Lombard," which will be produced by Harry Rapf. Marc McDermott, one of the pioneer film players, is also a member of the cast. Jack Conway will direct the picture.

Wesley "Freckles" Barry recently completed his latest picture, "The Country Kid," at the Warner Brothers studios. His next film is announced as "George Washington, Jr.," an adaptation of George M. Cohan's play. Included in the supporting cast are Otis Harlan, Edward Philips and William Courtleigh. Mal St. Clair has been engaged to direct the film.

"How to Educate a Wife," the Elinor Glyn story to be made into a film by the Warner Brothers, will be directed by William A. Seiter. The players to be seen in this picture have not been made known.

Dávid Belasco's play, "Daddies," in which Mae Marsh will be the featured player, is to be produced at the Warner Brothers studios under the direction of Harry Beaumont.

Ray's Film East for Brief Visit

Covered by an insurance of $50,000 during its journey, the first print of Charles Ray's ten-reel historical production, "The Courtship of Miles Standish," started on a 6,000-mile trip this week. It is on its way to New York to appease the impatience of Associated Exhibitors, through which it will be released in October, to have a view of it. Then it is to be immediately returned to the Ray studio.

Fred Niblo, the director, after seeing "The Courtship of Miles Standish" at a private preview, had telegraphed Arthur S. Kane, president of Associated Exhibitors, that "nothing on the screen ever thrilled me so much; it is the greatest production of recent years, and I predict for it a sensational success."

The picture cost $700,000. There are more than sixty principals in the cast, which has the largest number of name-parts ever appearing in a picture. Each of the Mayflower voyagers is portrayed. Charles Ray plays John Alden, Enid Bennett of "Robin Hood" fame is Priscilla; E. Alyn Warren is Miles Standish; Joseph Dowling is Elder Brewster, and other leading roles are filled by Norval MacGregor, Sam De Grasse, Thomas Holding, Stanton Heck, Tom Wilson, William Sullivan, Gertrude Pedlar, Charlotte Pierce, Max Asher and Frank Farrington.

TURPIN'S CROSS-EYED DOG RETURNS HOME

Gloom has given way to happiness in Ben Turpin's homestead, since Bob, the zig-zag orbed comedian's canine pal, reappeared.

About three weeks ago Bob found the door to his enclosure unlocked, and decided to take a little walk around the neighborhood. Let it be understood that Bob inherits his master's expressive features, in fact he is just as cross-eyed as is Turpin himself. It was feared when the animal made its appearance on the streets for the first time, it would become so bewildered that it would be impossible for it to find its way home.

It is a certainty that if Bob followed the direction in which his eyes were looking, he must have had a long, long walk before fate accidentally guided him near enough to pick up the scent of home, and thus steer him back to his kennel.

Dorothy Vernon seems to have struck upon a character that casting directors just love to have her do, an Irish Biddy, both sympathetic and stern, and a sort of little busy-body that should never be started in argument, if one wants to win from her, for if she had to, she could just talk your best hand off of you, as quick as looking at you.

Peggy's Picture Pleases.

Even though King Baggot exceeded the original estimate of $125,000 in the making of Baby Peggy's first multiple reel feature, "Whose Baby Are You?" the Universal-Jewel executives were so pleased with the results that they authorized an additional $8,000 to be spent for added scenes, inserts, close-ups, etc., and assigned one of the highest salaried title experts in the business to do the sub-titles under King Baggot's direction.

Son to Carry On For Famous Director

The name of Tourneur will be identified with the production of successful motion pictures of the next generation, according to all present indications.

Jack Tourneur, eighteen-year-old son of Maurice Tourneur, made his debut as a motion picture producing factor last week when he started to work for his father as assistant to Scott R. Beal, Tourneur's assistant director.

An exact physical likeness of his famous father, Jack is determined to become a motion picture director. At the United Studios, where Jack is now doing "leg-work" for the assistant director, young Tourneur is beginning at the bottom with the ambition to learn all there is to know about the production of a picture.

Young Tourneur was born in Paris and lived there until he was ten. For the last three years he has attended Hollywood High School, where he is not a senior.

STAR GETS OFFER TO RETURN TO OLD HOME

Henrik Ibsen and the city of Baltimore are calling to Dorothy Phillips to come east and play a season of fall stock at a new legitimate theatre which has been created out of the famous old stock house, where the noted screen star first appeared before the footlights.

The management which is opening the house in September, wants Miss Phillips to play a three months' engagement at the head of an all-star stock company in Ibsen roles, primarily. They want her to play "Hedda Gabler," "Ghosts," "The Wild Duck" and other dramatic classics. The proposal to back the high-brow plays in the new theatre comes from several Baltimore millionaires who knew Miss Phillips when she used to frolic around as a youngster in pinafores under her real name of Dorothy Gwendolyn Streible, not so many years ago.

A husband (the famous Allan Holubar), a palatial Hollywood home on Laurel avenue, and more offers for screen work than she has time to consider, will probably keep Miss Phillips from accepting the offer.

"Spanish Dancer" Finished.

"The Spanish Dancer," Herbert Brenon's elaborate Paramount picture starring Pola Negri, will be completed Saturday, after many weeks of actual production work. Antonio Moreno is featured in this adaptation by June Mathis and Beulah Marie Dix, of the novel "Don Caesar de Bazan," by Adolphe D'Ennery and P. S. T. Dumanoir, wih Wallace Beery, Kathlyn Williams, Gareth Hughes, Adolphe Menjou and Robert Agnew in support.

Barbara Le Marr Returns from Italy

Arthur H. Sawyer, supervisor of productions for S-L Pictures, will leave Hollywood for New York next week, for the twofold purpose of heading a reception committee which will greet Barbara La Marr upon her return from Italy, and to confer with his partner, Herbert Lubin, concerning the future plans of Miss La Marr.

Barbara La Marr is under the personal management of the Sawyer-Lubin supervisor and was loaned by him to Samuel Goldwyn to enact the leading role in "The Eternal City," produced in Rome.

Following her sensational rise to stardom in "Quincy Adams Sawyer," "Souls for Sale" and "The Brass Bottle," Sawyer has been besieged with starring offers for his "find," but up to date has accepted only one contract which provides for Miss La Marr to star in a Universal Special upon her return to California.

It is believed that during his visit to New York, Sawyer will arrange for a starring contract covering a series of pictures involving Miss La Marr with one of the leading national distributors.

To Have Greenhouses.

Everything from dandelions to orchids, from horse-chestnuts to mangoes, will be in full bloom and fruit constantly in magnificent greenhouses, construction on which has just been started at the United Studios. There is a constant demand from the eleven companies making pictures on the United lot for plants and shrubs and trees for scenes from Tahiti to Greenland, and the studio company has determined to fill it.

Mickey Keeps Busy.

Mickey McBan, four-year-old film starlet, is now hard at work on his fortieth picture, "Born of the Cyclone," which Emile Chautard is producing at the R-C Studios. This youngster has been appearing in many big pictures of late, including Emile Chautard's "Daytime Wives," Louis J. Gasnier's "Poor Men's Wives." with Dustin Farnum in "The Man Who Won" and in Henry Otto's "The Temple of Venus." He is fast coming into prominence throughout the country as one of the screen's ablest child actors.

English Village is Built for Connie

For Constance Talmadge's latest picture, "The Dangerous Maid," an entire English village has been built in the Hollywood hills. Overlooking the village on a high knoll a substantial Norman castle with two round towers and 112 rooms was constructed.

This castle can be seen for miles and tourists from the East sometimes mistake it for a ruin dating from the days of the Spanish occupation of California.

The English village was designed by Stephen Goosson, the Joseph M. Schenck art director who designed the castles and gigantic sets for Norma Talmadge's "Ashes of Vengeance." The actual building of the village was done under the direction of Eugene Hornbostel.

The furnishings and ornamentations for the village homes and other buildings filled eleven box cars which were sidetracked at a point near the village and their contents loaded on a fleet of motor trucks. Hundreds of costumes for the villagers were furnished by the Joseph M. Schenck costume departments.

"The Dangerous Maid" is being directed by Victor Heerman for future First National release. Constance Talmadge has an all-star supporting cast, consisting of Conway Tearle, Morgan Wallace, Tully Marshall, Marjorie Daw, Charles Gerrard, Ann May and Kate Price, and many others.

TENNIS CHAMPS LOSE IN GAME OF "DOUG"

Bill Tilden, national tennis champ, and Manuel Alonso, Spanish Davis cup star, who are now in Los Angeles for the Southern California tournament, may be the gopher's gizzard on a tennis court, but in a game of "Doug" they aren't so much. Early this week Doug Fairbanks and his director, Raoul Walsh, trimmed the tennis stars in a game of "Doug," staged on an interior set for Doug's new picture, "The Thief of Bagdad." The scores were 6—2, 6—0, 6—2. Sandy Weiner, Tilden's protege, umpired.

Fairbanks originated the game, which is a cross between tennis and Badminton. Tilden and Alonso are practicing for a return match.

Vola Vale Honored.

Vola Vale has been selected by Fujiama, the famous Japanese artist, to pose for a series of oriental drawings to illustrate the Pacific-American girl. Mr. Fujiama will exhibit the drawings at the big Japanese exhibition to be held in Tokio in October, and selected Miss Vale as the ideal type of the virile American girl, only after he had looked at scores of photos of the most beautiful young women in Hollywood.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, August 13

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Wilson	All-Star	Linden-Stevens	Geo. Carter	A. Statter	"Leave It to Gerry"	1st Week
Feature Pictures Co.
Denver Dixon	All-Star	Jack Fuque	M. J. Andrus	Wm. Lester	"The Mystery Trail"	Editing
Dearholt Productions.
Neva Gerber Productions
Dearholtz-Dillon	Neva Gerber	Hutchinson	Wilbur McGough	Dillon	"Sante Fe Trail"	Editing
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Wilshire 4275
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
	All-Star				Special Features	Preparing
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
Jack Blystone	Buster Keaton	E. Lessley-Thorp	Rose	Mitchell	"Hospitality"	7th Week
Lou Anger Productions.
HARRY KEATON PRODUCTIONS. 302 Luckenbach Bldg.						148-55
Harry Keaton	Harry Keaton	Elmer Edwardson	H. Prudhom	E. White	"Circumstantial Evidence"	3rd Week
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						593576
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Raymond Rousaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"Hogan of Hollywood"	4th Week
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Rousaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"Milkman of Hollywood"	2nd Week
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 96
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al Herman	All-Star	Wm. Hyer	Herman	Herman	Untitled	3rd Week
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 4070
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd. Martin J. Heyl, Prod. Mgr.						439-764
W. H. Clifford	All-Star	Ray June	Warren Fromme	W. H. Clifford	Feature Story	5th Week
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 3100
Stacey	Dorothy Devore	Gus Peterson	Jim Clemens	Graham	2-Reel Comedy	2nd Week
Al Christie	Bobby Vernon	Nagy-Phillips	Hageman	Conklin	Untitled	Editing
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr. Wilshire 2115
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General.
	All-Star			Staff	"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
Irving Cummings Productions. Holly. Sec. Bank Bldg.
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd. E. H. Allen, Gen. Mgr. Scotty Cleethorpe, Casting.						598-165
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Mermaid Comedies)
Fay	Conley	Corby	Lukoff	Staff	"High Life"	Editing
Lustig	Conley	Meehan	Taylor	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Kerr	All-Star	Meehan	Lukoff	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Hibbard	Lee Moran	Corby	Sharpless	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Novelty Juveniles)
Taurog	All-Star	Corby	Al Alt	Staff	"Yankee Spirit"	Editing
Pratt	All Star	Meehan	Dewar	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Lloyd Hamilton Corp. (Educational Release)
Gil Pratt	Hamilton	McGill	Dewar	Staff	"The Optimist"	Editing
FOX STUDIO. James Ryan, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 3000
Edmund Mortimer	John Gilbert	Don Short	McKenzie	John Russel	"The Exiles"	1st Week
Mayo	Stock	Sid Wagner	Jas. Tinling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Jim Summerville	Stock	J. A. Schmidt	Arthur Cohn		Comedies	Schedule
Ed. Kenton	Lew Brice	Vic Scheurich	Max Gold		Comedies	Schedule
Henry Otto	Phylis Haver	Joe August	Hollinghead	Carr	"The Temple of Venus"	12th Week
Roberts-Foy	Stock	Jay Turner	Bob Tansey		Comedies	Schedule
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 2632
Rocky Mt. Production Co.
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Wilshire 81
Metro Release.
GOLDEN WEST STUDIO. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	Wm. Fairbanks	R. Price	Harry Tenbrook	Staff	"Blind Bargains"	2nd Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 162
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
H. Edwards	Monte Banks	B. Williams	Goodman	Staff	"Kids Wanted"	Editing
Herman Raymaker	Monte Banks	Bill Williams	Goodman	Staff	Untitled	1st Week
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Chas. Lamont	Sid Smith	K. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	Big Game	1st Week
Chas. Lamont	Sid Smith	K. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	"Built on a Bluff"	Editing
Joe Rock Productions.
Reggis Morris	Joe Rock	Jerry Ash	Murray Rock	Morris	Comedy	1st Week
Reggie Morris	Joe Rock	Jerry Ash	Murray-Rock	Morris	"The Bill Collector	Editing

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						761711
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStroheim	"Greed"	22nd Week
Tod Browning	All-Star	Wm. Silden	Earl Taggart	Kavanaugh	"The Day of Faith"	Editing
Victor Seastrom	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Chas. Lapworth	Paul Bern	"Master of Man"	10th Week
Rupert Hughes	All-Star	John Mescall	Albert Kelly	Rupert Hughes	"Law Against Law"	2nd Week
King Vidor	All-Star	John Boyle	James Dugan	King Vidor	"Wild Oranges"	1st Week
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6642 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Finis Fox Productions. R. R. Beaty, Gen. Mgr.
Finis Fox	All-Star	Hal Mohr	Wm. Dashiell	Lois Zellner	"Bag and Baggage"	Editing
Richard Thomas Productions.
William P. S. Earle Picture Inc. Dick L'Estrange, Prod. Mgr.
Supreme Art Productions. Chas. J. Hall
Irving Productions. W. H. Carr, Production Manager.
Jack O'Brien	All-Star	D. Jennings	Cy Clegg	Frank Beresford	"Trapped"	Preparing
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.						438-740
Horner	All-Star	Geo. Meehan	Middleton	Horner		Casting
World Educational Films.
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	"The Forty Niner"	Preparing
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Al Neitz	Big Boy Williams	Hughes	De Long	Staff	"The Eagle Claw"	Editing
Seeling	Geo. Larkin	Elmer Dyer	Van Pelt	Staff	"The Gentleman Unafraid"	1st Week
Seeling	All-Star	Elmer Dyer	Van Pelt	Seeling	Society Drama	Casting
Hercules Film Productions, Inc. P. Andrews, Mgr. 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Arthur Paul		J. Charles	L. Feldman	Staff	"Fighting Blood"	Preparing
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Palmer Photoplay Productions.
Cortland Productions
Trimble-Murfin Productions.
Lawrence Trimble	Strongheart	G. B. Dreyer	Cyril Gardner	Donna Barrell	"White Fang"	27th Week
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Lloyd Ingram	All-Star	Jos. Walker	Geo. Crone	Elmer Harris	"No More Women"	Editing
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	5th Week
LASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vine St.						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Cecil B. DeMille	Featured	Bert Glennon	H. Tate	J. McPherson	"The Ten Commandments"	10th Week
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Ernest Haller	John Boland	Tom Gerahty	"The Light That Failed"	6th Week
Al. E. Green	Thos. Meighan	Chas. Clark	Fred J. Robinson	Edford Bingham	"Woman-Proof"	3rd Week
Jos. Henabery	Doug. Fairbanks, Jr.	Chas. Schoenbaum	Dick Johnson		"Stephen Steps Out"	3rd Week
Albert S. Lebino					"Wm. Hart in Wild Bill Hicko	Preparing
Zane Grey Productions.
Victor Fleming					"The Call of the Canyon"	Preparing
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Lincoln 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro Release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star	A. Wyckoff	Harry Schenck	A. P. Younger	"Pleasure Mad"	5th Week
B. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
Tom Forman	All-Star	Harry Perry	Sam Nelson	The Leightons	"The Virginian"	Editing
Gasnier	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"Maytime"	1st Week
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Harold Shaw	All-Star	Andre Barletier	Nat Watt	Winifred Dunn	"Held to Answer"	Editing
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	John Arnold	Chas. Watt	Basil Dickey	"In Search of a Thrill"	3rd Week
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Allen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar					"The Human Mill"	Preparing
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	9th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford	O'Connell	Alex Gower	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	5th Week
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Alf. Goulding	Harry Langdon	Albert Breslau	David Smith	Harry Langdon	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Benny Zeidman Productions.
Ed Cline	Joe Butterworth	Wm. Marshall	Frank Gerahty	Grey Carr	"The Good Bad Boy"	2nd Week
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Eddie Hearn			Wyndam Gittens	"The Sand Pile"	Preparing
Lehrman	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"Taming of the Shrewd"	Schedule
Emile Chautard	Derelys Perdue	Joseph Dubrey		Beahan-Stillson	"Born of the Cyclone"	2nd Week
					"Jack of Diamonds"	Preparing
					"Drucilla With a Million"	Preparing
					"Alex the Great"	Preparing
Chester Bennett Productions.
Chester Bennett	Jane Novak	Jack MacKenzie	Doug S. Dawson	Loring-Leighton	"The Lullaby"	9th Week
Al Santel					"Not for Publication"	Preparing
Douglas MacLean Productions
Jimmy Horne	Douglas MacLean					2nd Week
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr., 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
	"Paul" Parrott	Frank Young	Henecke-Brandie		Comedies	Schedule
	All-Star	Harry Gerstadt	C. Morehouse		"Our Gang"	Schedule
	Stan Laurel				1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
	Edna Murphy	Bobby Doran	McBurney		"What Should a Girl Do?"	Schedule
	Dippy Doo Dads	Hank Kohler	Bert Currigan		Animal Comedy	Schedule
	Will Rogers	Bob Dorrin	Chas. Oelze		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
Phil Rosen	All-Star	Kurrle-Broening	Al. Davis	Francis Marion	"Life of Abraham Lincoln"	Schedule
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSEL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945-6
B. D. Russell	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	Preparing
Logan-Baynham Productions.
Tom Gibson	Morante	MacManigal	Kane-Walsh		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. B. Seitz	Ray-Miller	Walker-Moran	Wm. Bertram	Seitz	"The Way of a Man"	Schedule
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Wils. 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
Campbell	Johnnie Lucas	Staub		Mack Sennett	"Rough and Ready"	6th Week
Del Lord	Ben Turpin	Blake Wagner		Mack Sennett	Comedy	2nd Week
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Louis B. Mayer Productions, Clune's Studio, 5360 Melrose Ave.
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Heerman	Constance Talmadge	Glen McWilliams	E. Brophy	Willard Mack	"The Dangerous Maid"	8th Week
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Rose of all the World"	3rd Week
Sam E. Rork Productions.
First National Productions.
McDermott Chaplin	All-Star		James Chapin	Wm. Dowlin	"Temporary Marriage"	2nd Week
Joe De Grass	All-Star	Boise	Perry Vrekroff	Wm. Dowlin	"Lord of Thundergate"	Editing
Jack Dillon	All-Star		Jimmy Dunn	Dowlin	"Flaming Youth"	5th Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Maurice Tourneur	All-Star	Arthur Todd	Scott R. Beal	Fred Myton	"Jealous Fools"	3rd Week
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig Casting.						570-081
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Brown	All-Star	Balbino	Dorian		"The Acquittal"	Editing
Archainbaud	Priscilla Dean		McCarey-Wyler		"The Storm Daughter"	6th Week
Herbert Blache	Gladys Walton		Sullivan	Hugh Hoffman	"The Near Lady"	Preparing
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson	Robinson	Clarke	Geo. Plympton	"The Steel Trail"	15th Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Baby Peggy		Wright		"The Burglar's Kid"	7th Week
Edw. Lumley	All-Star		McDonough		"The Hog"	3rd Week
Robt. Hill	Desmond-Percy		Marchant-Kohner		"The Heart of Boston Blackie"	Editing
Robt. N. Bradbury			Nordlinger		"Riders of the Moon"	4th Week
Wm. Craft	All-Star		Taylor-Ricks		"Beasts of Paradise"	5th Week
Ed. Sedgwick	Hoot Gibson	Miller	Cummel	Sedgwick-Schrock	"The Extra Man"	1st Week
Nat Ross	Roy Stewart	Asher	Webb		"The Man Tracker"	2nd Week
Leon Lee Productions. Leon Lee Manager.
Dinky Dean Productions. Lew Lipton, Production Manager.
Andy Gump Productions.
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen Mgr.						598131
Dave Smith Productions.
Dave Smith	All-Star	D. Smith, Jr.	Bill Dagwell	J. P. Smith	"Man From B"	1st Week
Larry Semon Productions.
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 4181
Warner Brothers Productions.
Mal St. Clair	Wesley Barry	E. B. Dupar	Geo. Webster		"George Washington, Jr."	2nd Week
Johnny Hines	Johnny Hines	Chas. Gilson	C. Hines-Roth		"Conductor 1492"	2nd Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Marsh Gillingwater		Tenny Wright		"Daddies"	Scheduled Sept 1st
Harry Beaumont	John Barrymore	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Beau Brummel"	Sept. 1st
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Sidney Franklin	Lenore Ulric	Chas. Rosher	Wm. McGann	Edmund Goulding	"Tiger Rose"	5th Week
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernest Lubitsch	All-Star	Homer Scott	Flood Blanke		Untitled	Scheduled Aug. 14th
Harry Rapf Productions.
Jack Conway	Monte Blue-Irene Rich	David Abel	Sutherland-Hawkes		"Loveless Marriages"	2nd Week
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WILNAT STUDIO. 6070 Sunset Blvd. Al. Brandt Mrs.						Holly 7940
H. Mitchell	All-Star	King Grey	Geo. E. Reehm	Joe Brandt	"Forgive and Forget"	Editing

DR. W. L. SCHUSTER
Chiropractor—Nerve Specialist
"Where the sick go to get well"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

WHEN YOU NEED A DOCTOR
Phone 572-88; 430-205, or Holly 102-82.
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Formerly of New York City
6548 Hollywood Blvd. Near Armstrong & Carlton's.

From Hollywood to Down-Town Hotels
$2
or Shopping District
578-280 SUNSET TAXI 578-307

ummings State-Rights.
With newly established offices t 1540 Broadway, New York, rving Cummings, well known in- ependent producer-director, is haugurating a new departure in is field, by distributing his own roduct throughout the state ight market himself His most ecent special production, "Broken Hearts of Broadway," a colorful rama of America's greatest av- nue, will be his first release and erritorial rights for this feature re now being disposed of at a apid rate. Cummings' venture nto the distribution field will in o way interfere with his produc- ion activities in Hollywood, it is nnounced, and the producer-direc- or has already returned to Cali- ornia to begin work on a second icture to be released through his ew offices.

Muriel Reynolds, new star un- er contract to Director Fred Caldwell, is on location at Santa Fe Springs, playing Patricia Ho- gan, feminine comedy lead, in Caldwell's latest production, Hogan in Hollywood." Others n the cast are Victor Potel, Alice Howell and Violet Schram.

Richard Headrick, the curly-headed little fellow who made such a hit in John M. Stahl's "The Child Thou Gavest Me." will again be seen under Stahl's direction when "The Wanters" is released in the early fall as a Louis B. Mayer-First National special. Playing the part of a precocious youngster who has the knack of always telling the family secrets to the wrong person, Richard plays an important part in the development of the story's humorous complications.

Carmelita Geraghty, that vivid young actress, has just finished a leading role in "Bag and Baggage," a Finis Fox Production in which she portrays a modern society wife to whom is alloted many dramatic scenes. She has now begun work in "Two Little Vagrants," a Maurice Tourneur Production in which she is cast as a Spanish girl of great wealth, and, as usual, will be beautifully garbed. Since her advent in pictures, Miss Geraghty with no single exception, is always wealthy and magnificently garbed!

Receives Present from Cowboy.
Upon learning that Helene Rosson, former Mutual and American film star, had signed with the Ashton Dearholt Productions for a series of five-reel westerns, Harry Bronson, a cowboy living in Montana, sent the little blonde beauty an expensive riding whip. Miss Rossom is the favorite cow-girl-role delineator among all the boys on the ranches. She won fame first in cow-girl roles when she starred in the old "Mustang Girl Westerns."

Norma Shearer is on the finishing scenes of her third picture for L. B. Mayer. The title will be announced later.

Anne Luther is working on the finishing scenes of "The Governor's Lady," but upon the completion will make another feature for Fox.

Expands Magazine's Scope.
So many inquiries have come in to Thomas H. Ince from readers outside the motion picture industry who are eager to obtain copies of "The Silversheet," the Ince studio publication, that Mr. Ince has decided to make his studio magazine a national publication. The initial number of the new magazine, carrying the most interesting material available on the "inside of the picture-making game," will be issued in September.

Arthur F. Statter, well known scenarist and secretary of the Screen Writers' Guild, has been engaged to write the continuity for "Leave It to Gerry," the first feature to be produced by Ben Wilson in which Billie Rhodes will be starred. The original is by Adam Hull Shirk. Mr. Statter also adapted "Mine to Keep," a Ben Wilson picture for Grand-Asher in which Bryant Washburn and Mabel Forrest are featured. It was written by Evelyn Campbell. Mr. Statter says the Billie Rhodes story promises a great deal of pleasant and very human action.

Matthew Betz has just completed "Yellow Jergins," and will immediately start work on a new feature.

Photoplayers Embrace Radio as Pastime

—Radio Journal Photo

. . . yes, they've got a new phone number. Hereafter, when you want reservations for the Friday night fights, phone Hollywood 0102. You bet, they're getting better right along . . .

American Legion Stadium
Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

KING TUT FACE POWDER
in light and dark shades. Suitable for street or studio. Attractively priced at $1.00 Box.
YE RUB SHOPPE
621 West 8th St., Los Angeles, Calif.
Phone Metropolitan 1566

Hugh Hoffman
Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip." "Crossed Wires." "The Town Scandal." "Sawdust." "The Untameable." "The Wild Party."

HAIRGONE permanent cure for superfluous hair on arms, limbs, face and body. Also wonderful for men who have shaving troubles. $2.50 the bottle, manufactured at
ORCHID BEAUTY SHOPPE
808 So. Hope St. Phone 16596
All lines of beauty culture.

WE MOVE THE MOVIES
and Shine on Service
Hollywood 2677 • SAMUEL C. SHINE • 6568 Santa Monica Blvd.
General Trucking and Hauling

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography
LITTLE
Commercial Photographer
Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

Animated Cartoons — Original Title Ideas — Clay Animation — Miniature Sets and Animated Figures
CINEMA ARTS STUDIO
ELMER H. YOUNG, Manager
6615½ SANTA MONICA BOULEVARD

Frank the Shoe Doctor
"We save your sole and heel you, too"
6666 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3752

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7060
KWIK LUNCH
SERVES U RITE
1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

THE UNIVERSAL NOSEGAY

(Continued from Page 8)

It is a pony express dispatch bag given to Stewart by his brother, H. B. Stewart, who rode the pony express between Phoenix and Fort McDowell, Arizona. Before his death his brother was superintendent of the Belt Line railroad and became a leading figure in modern western progress, but his early days were spent along the barren trails of the old West, carrying the mail from East to West and West to East. Stewart values the old dispatch bag at more than all other old possessions he might have.

Norman Kerry, the handsome young Count von Hohenegg of "Merry-Go-Round," who was the victim of a blood poison attack six weeks ago when a trivial injury to a finger became infected, is making fair progress toward a state of complete health. His doctor and nurses believe that his determined spirit in starting to work again in "The Acquittal" as soon as possible kept him from more serious illness following his ten days in the hospital.

Kerry managed to be at the studio two or three hours a day during the filming of "The Acquittal," the all-star Universal-Jewel screen version of Rita Weiman's play, which has just been completed. Claire Windsor, Barbara Bedford, Harry Mestayer, and other well known players worked with him in this, directed by Clarence L. Brown.

Now he will take a complete rest for some time and allow his physicians full sway over whatever he does. If the medics give their O.K. he'll fly to Catalina and stay there for a time. The finger in which the infection originally started will be in normal shape in six weeks or so.

Josef Swickard, noted character actor, whose work in "Bavu" and other big Universal productions, is nationally known, and his brother, Charles, noted opera singer, met at Universal City for the first time in months. Charles Swickard, the first man to produce "The Love Tales of Hoffman" in America, and some years ago the head of a noted light opera company, retired from the stage to embark on a career as a rancher at Fresno, California's raisin center. After establishing a large property there he longed for life as an actor again, and came to Universal City to arrange to enter pictures.

Josef Swickard met him on the picture lot when he arrived by motor from Fresno, and the two held a reunion in the production manager's office.

Charles Swickard will be remembered as "Dr. Miracle" in the original "Love Tales" presentation. In California he is best known for his work in the old Tivoli company in San Francisco, and later as head of a company featuring Tom Persse, the tenor, since dead, Edith Mason, and other comic opera stars of a decade ago.

William Gould, playing the villainous Clegg in "Beasts of Paradise" at Universal City, claims the record for sea captain roles. This is the fifth consecutive time he has been cast in pictures as a master mariner.

Artie Artigues, who plays heavy villains at Universal City, has another and less known job. He "doubles" for almost any daring stunt, in horsemanship or acrobatics put up to an actor. "My best acting I don't get credit for—when I double for the other fellow," he complains. "But I get paid for it," he adds.

Authentic and Unusual Oriental Properties
Oriental Costume Co.
6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

WHY BE FAT
When the Marshelle Method will reduce your weight a pound a day safely, inexpensively and permanently.
Consultation free.
Phone 593-262
for appointment
Home Office:
1733 Maltman Ave.
Los Angeles, Cal.

Have your figure permanently Marshelled NOW

LOCAL — SEMI-NATIONAL — NATIONAL — INTERNATIONAL
YOUR PERSONAL PUBLICITY AR-EXCELLENT
POSITIVELY PUTS PICTURE PEOPLE IN PERMANENT PUBLIC FAVOR
STARS WANT TO BE STARS FOR STARS
Write for particulars, OR see
GENE WOOLWAY
P. O. Box 176, Hollywood Station
Or, in care of
Camera!
2nd. Floor, 6318 Hollywood Blvd.,
HOLLYWOOD Calif.
PHONE 439-869

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS
GET RESULTS

TYPIST—Young man with switchboard and general office experience. Studio work only. Chas. Mc Navin. Broadway 240.

PHOTOS *painted in oil. Special rates for profes*sionals. E. Clifton. Phone 556-300, evenings.

FOR RENT—*Bell Howell Camera, 170 shutter. Tel*ephone 599-464. 1317 N. Normandie.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE—Comedy vaudeville sketch, two men and lady. Modern. Time fifteen minutes. Value $400, or would consider trade for auto, household goods, rugs or what have you? Address Box AA, care Camera, 6318 Hollywood Blvd.

Wanted: Productions From $50,000 to $100,000
I have just returned from New York and am in the market for some real pictures. I can sell your productions outright. See me for quick release.
H. and B. FILM COMPANY
Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275

FAN PICTURES

beautifully colored at very low cost. I have special rates for this type of work and the greatest care is taken to insure absolute perfection. Investigate this now!

EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38.

Walter Frederick Seely
Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

MARION WARDE

Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films

Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing

423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

KIRKLAND, Hardee,

Holly
6298

YOUR PHONOGRAPH
will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a

Deflexograph

Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles

Play after hours—will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.

GOLD PLATE $1.50
(See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE $1.00

VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law

JACK P. LEONARD
340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

HOUSE PETERS HAS EDWIN BOOTH'S BUCKLE

Stage and screen stars are so used to the compliments of an admiring public that they often become more or less calloused to personal praise.

While House Peters, who is enacting the leading role in Metro's production of "Held to Answer" is no exception to this rule, he has just received what he considers one of the most sincere compliments of his long and successful career.

The compliment in question came in the form of a somewhat rusty buckle, on the face of which was carved the profile of Julius Caesar. It had been originally used to fasten the toga of Edwin Booth, whom many consider the greatest actor in the history of the theatre, when he was appearing in Shakespearian plays.

With the buckle was enclosed the following note:

"Presented by Edwin Booth to Cecile Rush in the year of 1857—who was then starring through the country.

"Later it came into the possession of her niece, Mrs. Julia Jackson, who presented it to Mr. House Peters with sincere regard."

House Peters, who is enacting the leading role in Metro's all-star picturization of "Held to Answer," has appeared on the stage in everything from "East Lynne" to "The Squaw Man." Although he has never appeared on the stage west of Chicago, he has never appeared in a motion picture produced in the East.

Every time the sewing circle at the Congregational Church back in Columbus, Ohio, needs a new chair in the church parlor, or whenever the pipe organ needed fixing, Warner Baxter put on a show and raised the money to supply the need. And that's how Warner started on a theatrical career. At the present time he is appearing opposite Viola Dana in "In Search of a Thrill," her new Metro picture.

"Bull" Montana, who portrays the role of a crook in Metro's all-star production, "Held to Answer," is the proud owner of two new trick suits direct from an exclusive San Francisco tailor.

Grace Carlyle insists that she was not chosen to enact a leading role in Metro's all-star picturization of "Held to Answer" because she once testified in court, any more than she was once selected for an important role in the stage production of "The Warrens of Virginia," because she was born in Richmond.

Billy Elmer, well known lightweight boxer, portrays the role of an Apache in "In Search of a Thrill," Viola Dana's new Metro picture.

Doctors
FORD &
FORD
Palmer
Graduate
Scientific
Spinal
Adjustments
Individual
Rest
Rooms

Anna Mae Ford
D.C., Ph. C.

Office
Ground Floor

G. Henry Ford
D.C., Ph.C.

CHIROPRACTORS
5911 Hollywood Boulevard
10 to 12—2 to 5
Mon., Wed., Friday Evenings, 6 to 8

Coy Watson, Jr.

Age 10 Wilshire 3616

No Luck.
You Never Know.
Right of the Strongest
Featured in Campbell Comedies

HOLLYWOOD PERMANENT WAVE SHOPPE
5164 HOLLYWOOD BLVD.
All over head wave, $15.00. The permanent waving done at this shop is most wonderful. Their special method of wrapping produces a marcel effect on top with ringlet curls in back, without any additional water waving. Mrs. Ella Connor's ten years' experience makes her an expert in this work. A guarantee with every wave. Phone. 432-927.
Former owner Hotel Alexandria Beauty Parlor

CHIROPODIST
FOOT SPECIALIST
Dr. Earl A. Davis
6514 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD
Hours 9 to 5. Holly 0259.

—for good photos for the casting director, consult BRUNO, at 6412 Hollywood Boulevard, whose telephone number is 431-929.

COLBURN'S
Taxidermy Studio
Phone 643-13
1033-37 Broadway Place

. . . excells in mounting of fish . . . trout our specialty . . . see samples at our studio . . .

Especially for Motion Picture People.
THE HILLVIEW GRILL
Hillview Apartments Bldg.
Hollywood at Hudson
Holly 7980 Holly 6626
MERCHANTS' LUNCH, 11:30 to 2
DINNER 5:30 to 8

SCREEN SERVICE
(formerly The Service Bureau)
1036 SOUTH HILL
Phone 821-071

Selected Antiques
Turton's Antique Shop
5611 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Cal.

Dick Discusses Discomforts

After being compelled to let his hair grow since last November, Richard Barthelmess, the famous motion picture star, says he believes now that Samson, the originator of hair-cutting, felt it was worth while to suffer the penalty of being delivered over to his enemies in order to enjoy the comforts of shorn locks. The young screen artist says he never realized what a joy and pleasure a hair cut can be to anyone. Heretofore he always thought only the barber obtained any satisfaction out of a har cut.

"Modern civilization certainly has it all over the past," declares Mr. Barthelmess. "Hair cutting in the olden days was not considered a prime requisite, and now I understand why in ancient times barbers were chums of kings. They had to have royal backing in order to live, as the populace was not kindly disposed to the barbers.

"In selecting my next picture I will make certain that the character I have to portray will be an up-to-date man who patronizes barbers. When I acted the role of Charles Abbott in 'The Bright Shawl,' I discovered that it was necessary to let my hair grow long, as the Beau Brummels of 1850 prided themselves on long hair.

"I thought that as soon as that picture was finished I could go to the barber, but not so. My character in my present picture, 'The Fighting Blade,' required even longer hair than in 'The Bright Shawl."

Mr. Barthelmess also declares that he has learned that women get their styles from men, not the Parisian dressmakers or milliners, but men from the old ages.

"In the sixteenth century, in order to show that they were different from the rest of the people, the followers of Cromwell abandoned the pig-tail effect with their hair," said Mr. Barthelmess. "They wore their hair just as the flappers do today, except they had no temporary or permanent wave."

As a result of the length of his hair, Mr. Barthelmess was compelled to shun society and had to become almost a recluse, because men of today don't wear their hair that way, and he knew he would have to stand no end of joshing if he tried to mingle with his fellow men. Invitations came pouring in on the young star, but the event he was thinking of most was the reunion of his alma mater at Trinity College. He could not go to it unless he had his hair cut. Came the night before the reunion.

"I think we can finish with you in about two hours in the morning," said John S. Robertson, who is directing "The Fighting Blade."

Time tables were consulted. There would be no chance of going to a barber shop, so telephone calls were sent out. One Italian answered he would be on the job.

"I cutta the hair of the great Caruso," he proudly declared.

No sooner had the director announced that the set was finished, than Barthelmess dashed for a chair, and before he left the studio and took the train for Hartford, Conn., he was so changed in appearance that the doorkeeper was not going to let him out until someone came to identify the packages he had under his arm.

"I not only seized time by the forelock, but by the whole head of hair and I caught the train by a close shave," concluded Mr. Barthelmess.

As They Look and As They Are

Ruby Miller, famous star of the English stage and screen, who is known as the best dressed woman in London. Miss Miller declares that American men look like shieks and aren't, and that the English do not look like shieks, and are!

RENALLES, INC.

Clarke Renalle
President

Culver City
Studio

100 PER CENT TITLES, 100 PER CENT SERVICE AT THE RIGHT PRICE

Dress up that next production with artistic Hand Lettered Titles made by IRVING W. BUNZE.
If you want Perfect Symbolic Art Backgrounds, let us make them. Neil E. McQuire, formerly with Ince & Prizma, does our art work.
For perfect black and white titles, try our PROCESS SYSTEM.
A telephone call will bring our representative with samples.

Quality Title & Film Co.

1442 BEECHWOOD DRIVE HOLLY 4850

Brown,
Caldwell
& Ladd

Photo Engravings

317 South Hill St.
Phone 635-51

Educationally Entertaining | Historically Authentic | Diversified in Character | Intensely Dramatic

INTRODUCING

Releasing Exclusively to Schools and Churches. One and Two-Reel Educational Films

Completed Films Now Ready for Release:

"The Land of Everlasting Snow,"

"From Forrest to Mill,"

"The Land of Burned Out Fires,"

"Modern Whaling."

Films Under Production:

"Gold Mining" — past and present.

"North Coast Sea Lion Story," and modern glazier period.

"The Guardian of the Golden Gate"—historical.

Capt. M. McKenzie, Production Manager

Temporary Offices:

1614 Cahuenga Avenue Hollywood, Calif.

KING TUT FACE POWDER

IN LIGHT AND DARK SHADES

A new and exceptionally fine powder, especially appropriate for summer use. While principally designed for street use, it can also be used in the studio. We have the light and dark shades which are so popular at the present time. Used and endorsed by some of the foremost film stars.

Attractively priced at $1.00 the box, either by mail or at our store.

A TRIAL WILL CONVINCE YOU.

You may now obtain King Tut Face Powder at Mutual Drug Co., 749 S. Broadway; Westlake Beauty Parlor, 2011 W. 7th St.; Hollywood Beauty Shoppe, 5164 Hollywood Boulevard.

or at

YE RUB SHOPPE

621 West Eighth St. Los Angeles, Cal.

An Unusually Interesting and Timely Announcement

In response to the many urgent requests of his friends and patrons, and in an endeavor to provide the motion picture people of Hollywood with an unsurpassed photographic service, J. ANTHONY BRUNO has acquired the services of eminent cinematographer, as director of a new department to be devoted to the production of screen tests. Those desirous of procuring an exceptionally well-made test are invited to confer with him, without obligation. Efficient management will enable us to make these tests at the moderate rate of twenty-five cents per foot.

Mr. James Talbot Gibney

This department is supplementary to the regular portrait-photography service, and does not supplant any other phase of our work.

Bruno Studios

J. ANTHONY BRUNO, Proprietor

6412 Hollywood Boulevard Telephone 431-929

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

Camera!

Los Angeles, California Saturday, August 18, 1923 Price 10 Cents

FRED A. KELSEY, ACTOR - AUTHOR - DIRECTOR

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A. HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

New York Washington, D. C.

52220 54847

Hepner
INCORPORATED

1001-1005 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles California

Permanent Waving Hair Coloring Bleaching
Hair Dressing Scalp-Facial Massage
Marcel Waving Water Waving Shampooing
Manicuring
Wigs Toupees Switches Transformations
Wig Rental Beards and Moustaches
Cosmetics
Professional Makeup Service

Special Attention to Theatrical and Motion Picture Profession

No Parking Restrictions

AGNES RAY

Ingenue

596-656

REEKA ROBERTS

—EMOTIONAL ROLES—

Holly 5335

"Camera!"
[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

ESTABLISHED 1918—A FILM MAGAZINE AND A FILM NEWSPAPER IN ONE
Entered as second class matter, August 11, 1918, at the postoffice at Los Angeles, Cal., under act of March 3, 1879.

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON.....Publisher and Manager
JOHN CORNYN.....Advertising Manager
DELBERT E. DAVENPORT.....Editor
FRED W. FOX.....Advertising Copy
GENE WOOLWAY.....Studio Representative

H. H. CONGER COMPANY, National Advertising Representatives
Marbridge Building NEW YORK CITY
First Nat'l Bank Building CHICAGO
Holbrook Building SAN FRANCISCO

Price 10 cents per copy, $3.50 per year in Los Angeles County. Outside Zone, $4.00 per year. Canada, $4.50, Foreign, $5.00.
Issued on Saturday afternoon of each week at 6318 Hollywood Boulevard, in Los Angeles, California. Phone 439-869
Address All Communications to Camera!

Vol. VI. SATURDAY, AUGUST 18, 1923 No. 18

Just a Few Editorial Citations

Is it true that there are few places in the motion picture industry for big-calibre men of brains, education and experience? The fact that many high positions are filled by low-calibre men, some of whom cannot even converse with any grammatical accuracy, indicates there is some reason for the oft-repeated claim that quality and class do not constitute the main requisites to getting into the game in all cases. We know of instances wherein men of brilliant ability have failed to get opportunities to serve important and exalted purposes in the industry because powerful though incompetent cliques have blocked the courses leading to the installing of such in pivotal positions. We also know that if fate suddenly shifted us into a position to select the executives of large studios, very few names on the roster would be familiar ones. What they have done in the past would not count nearly as much as would what they could possibly accomplish in the future. Most of the best brains available for the motion picture industry are outside only looking in, vainly. The reason is, real brains do not seek places with the tenacity characteristic of the "yes man.' and button-hole expert. Unfortunately, producers do not seem prone to seek the new brains. Forsooth, if a really brilliant man is honest in his admission of no previous achievements in the industry, he is generally laughed at, instead of being considered seriously. "I never heard of you," is the rock upon which many high hopes are dashed ruthlessly. Of course, this is all wrong, and doubly so since it must be admitted that fully fifty per cent of the present studio executives could be replaced easily, to a distinct advantage, by "new blood." There is much to think about in this proposition and it would be a boon to the film industry if some of those in control of things cinema would start something immediately. Give the brainy man more chances!

Photoplayers are becoming more and more inclined to ban "doubles," and to literally drive the stunt man out of pictures by personally performing the hazardous feats heretofore regarded as entirely inadvisable. It is difficult to ascertain the real reason for this new tendency. Could it be possible the artists have come to the conclusion that the stunt men are falling down on the job?

When the recent Motion Picture Exposition broke up, it seemed several of its financial backers "broke up" with it. At any rate, let's not have any more such expositions.

What will follow "The Covered Wagon" at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theatre? This has become as interesting a question as was that which caused speculation as to the identity of the successor to "Robin Hood." If Sid Grauman escapes running into snags in keeping the playhouse supplied with long-run pictures of record-breaking qualities, he will be a truly invincible showman and Hollywood will be a world-beating show town.

The marked influx of more or less deluded girls into the Hollywood film colony has developed into a problem justifying deep concern. Casting directors report that they are at times all but overwhelmed by crowds of unsophisticated aspirants to screen honors. They hail from all parts of the country and many of them are not only away from home, but penniless as well as hopeless in film possibilities. Some effective method for checking this inexplicable rush "from distant towns to Filmland" should be devised without delay, to spare the many from heartaches and bitter disappointments. It is likely the Chamber of Commerce could help in this matter by causing to be published the facts on the opportunities (or lack of them) for unschooled girls and young men whose ambitions lead them astray. Certainly, the abundance of sad cases of disillusionment has brought about an intolerable condition. Action is necessary for mere humane reasons.

We do not profess to understand the mental workings of most producers. However, we do know that in the main the general tendency among the majority of them is to make good pictures and to make good money thereby, which is entirely laudable and which precludes the possibility of there being one iota of justice in most of the attacks made upon them by censors and reformers.

Incidentally, the Mary Miles Minter case has taken a turn for the worse, so far as helping the film industry is concerned. It is regrettable that family linen has to be aired so publicly and there will be many who will cling to the notion that this family could have, and should have, settled their difficulties privately in their own house, without any publicity.

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Broken Wing"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

Margaret Anglin
in
"The Charming Conscience"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

G. M. Anderson-
Frank Campeau, in
"The Greater Duty"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

Vaudeville
and
"Has the World Gone Mad?"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

Katherine MacDonald
in
"The Woman's Side"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Goldfish"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

Mariam Cooper-
Kenneth Harlan, in
"The Girl Who Came Back"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

Marcia Manon-
Ed Sutherland, in
"TheWoman He Loved"

This Week's Theatre Notes

Jack Powell Sextette, one of the sensational vaudeville developments of the year in Eastern vaudeville, comes to the Pantages as the headliner this week. The feature photoplay, "Has the World Gone Mad?" has in its cast, Robert Edeson, Chas. Richman, Elinor Fair, Mary Alden, Hedda Hopper, Lydia Lalo, and Vincent Coleman.

Richard Dix, Frank Campeau, Lois Wilson, Noah Beery, head the all-star cast in this week's Metropolitan Theatre offering, "To the Last Man."

By special request and popular demand, Clune's Theatre has made it possible for the hundreds of disappointed theatre goers who were unable to see the wonder dog, "Buck," in Jack London's "The Call of the Wild," to see this marvelous drama of the screen, at their play house for one week only, starting August 20th.

The high expectations raised by the advance word of "The Broken Wing" from the east have been fulfilled here at the Morosco. The attraction has every necessary component of entertainment success with its quick succession of laughs, thrills, romance and scenic effects. In the cast are Francesca Cappellano, Harland Tucker, Gayne Whitman, Harry Garrity, Joseph Eggenton, Mary Worth, Lloyd Corrigan, Arthur MacDonald, Frieda Sterling, and Chas. Buck.

"The Gold Fish," which opens the Majestic this week, with Marjorie Rambeau in the stellar role, will have in the supporting cast Robert Adams, Lawrence Grant, John Steppling, and Richard Tucker. The play, scheduled to open last Monday, was postponed on account of a serious illness to Miss Rambeau, necessitating her removal to St. Vincent's Hospital.

Pearl Regay, who holds the reputation of being able to do nearly any kind of dance ever done, will head the Hillstreet theatre program this week. With her will be Lester Sheehan and company, another famous aggregation of steppers. Del Chain and Lou Archer, a pair of competent comedians, will add the comedy to the bill with their new act, "Not Now." "A Friend in Need," with Mann Holiner and Nicholas Joy in the featured roles, will also add some comedy to the bill. Paul Murray and Gladys Gerrish will offer their dainty little act, "Studying Stars," which embraces impersonations of all the famous musical comedy stars. Jack Roshier with "Muffs," the famous dog contortionist, will also be on the bill. The exclusive photoplay showing will be Katherine MacDonald in "The Woman's Side." A chapter-play, "The Eagle's Talons," a comedy, "The Old Fashioned Flapper," International News and Aesop's Fables

"Drifting."

That's what a white woman's soul was doing in a yellow man's country. But a great sacrifice for love and honor brought to the fore, the innate goodness of Cassie Cook's nature and brought about her regeneration.

Mystery? All of it in China! Drama? What else could there be in the shadows of the opium trade in the heart of China! Romance? Well—if a white man and a white woman were suddenly forced to defend themselves against a thousand drug-mad natives of the poppy hills, could anything but romance be the outcome of these desperate hours?

These are a few of the highlights of "Drifting," Priscilia Dean's latest starring vehicle which is at Grauman's Million Dollar Theatre.

Continuing its remarkable sensational impression, "Where the North Begins," the Warner Brothers' screen classic featuring Rin-Tin-Tin, the famous police dog here, at the Alhambra Theater, the production is rapidly becoming the talk of all the southland. Rin-Tin-Tin is the prize of dogs. He is fierce in an attack and lovable when he crouches 'neath the feet of his master. The production is playing to the biggest crowds in the history of the Alhambra. Those in the cast include Claire Adams, Walter McGrail, Pat Harrigan, Myrtle Owen, Charles Stevens and Fred Huntley. Chester M. Franklin directed under the personal supervision of Harry Rapf.

More than unusual interest attaches locally to the current premiere of Richard Walton Tully's production of "Trilby," the George Du Maurier novel which has been read by millions. The concentrated curiosity centers about the girl, Mademoiselle Andree Lafayette, whom Tully brought from France to portray title role. The production also marks the famous playwright-producer's first screening of a play other than his own. The production was directed by James Young and the cast is one of the most notable of the year. Those in the cast are Creighton Hale, Arthur Edmund Carewe, Philo McCullough, Wilfred Lucas, Francis McDonald, Maurice Cannon, Max Constant, Gordon Mullen, Gertrude Olmsted, Martha Franklin, Evelyn Sherman, Gilbert Clayton, Rose Dione, Edward Kimball and Robert De Vilbiss.

As a special added attraction, Loew's State Theater is presenting Hal Roche's latest "Our Gang" comedy, "Giants vs. Yanks," one of those inimitable youngster pictures with Micky Daniels and the rest of the famous Hal Roach juvenile comedians in the cast.

California
Main at Eighth

Rex Beach's
"The Spoilers"

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Harold Lloyd
in
"Safety Last"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

Richard Dix-Lois Wilson
in
"To The Last Man"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Andree La Fayette
in
"Trilby"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

"Hollywood"

Kinema
Grand near Seventh

Dark

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

Priscilla Dean
in
"Drifting"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

Rin-Tin-Tin
in
"Where the North Begins"

Hollywood Egyptian
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden

"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mary Philbin
and Norman Kerry in
"Merry Go Round"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

Jack London's
"Call of the Wild"

Aeroplane Plus Camera Spells Speed

By an unexampled feat combining foresight d co-ordination of all departments, Pathe ews enabled all theatres in eastern cities to een Harding's death and funeral train enes filmed as far east as Omaha, at their esday shows.

Negatives rushed from Omaha by special plane service were developed and printed at e Pathe News Jersey City factory late Mon- y night and prints delivered to New York eatres at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Other nts reached Washington, Baltimore, Phila- lphia and Boston by noon of the same day.

Pathe News claims for this feat credit for e biggest news reel service "scoop" in the story of camera news reporting. It was ac- mplished by means of swift airplanes which tdistanced the fast air-mail service.

Not only theatres in the eastern cities, but roughout the middle west as far as Chicago, lined at least 24 hours in their presentation the all-absorbing news event of the week.

Pathe News had screened on the previous riday all of the Presidential touring party enes up to the arrival at San Francisco, companied by a resume of the late Presi- nt's career. Negatives covering the scenes the great tragedy were speeding eastward h the Overland Express, due at Omata a few hours earlier than the funeral train.

On Sunday morning Pathe News Staff Cameraman C. C. Chapman—an expert flyer—received long distance phone orders from Acting Editor Albert J. Richard to engage a fast plane, meet those two trains at Omaha, receive all negatives and rush them by the air route to the Jersey City factory. Chapman was at the Chicago office.

He had already prepared plans in anticipation of such orders, which included a small, fast plane to be piloted by Nimmo Black. The flight from Chicago to Omaha was made in ample time to intercept the Overland Express and take off the negative film shipped from San Francisco. A short delay enabled Chapman to secure also from the incoming funeral train all of the scenes taken en route.

As far as Chicago the return flight was made on the same plane, driven by the same pilot. At Chicago a larger plane was waiting for the long leg of the flight eastward. This was piloted by Eddie Stinson—Chapman continuing in charge of the film.

This flight, made at an average speed of more than 100 miles an hour, was uneventful up to about 7 p.m. Monday. Then occurred the only mischance of the whole flight enterprise. Reaching Dingman's Ferry, Pa., the plane was compelled to descend, owing to the development of a thick haze.

After communicating with the home office by phone, Chapman transferred his film to a fast touring car, instructing his pilot to proceed to the Curtis Field on Long Island as soon as possible.

Driving at break-neck speed, Chapman reached the New York office with his negatives at about midnight, and at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning the negative had been developed and titled and the making of an extra number of prints was under way.

Prints for Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago and all the middle West were shipped early Tuesday morning.

Prints for all the big eastern cities, as above stated, were delivered in time for the Tuesday afternoon shows—in New York City by 9 in the morning.

The Pathe News Harding Special contains more than a score of graphic scenes. Beginning at San Francisco, crowds are seen waching as the casket is borne from the hotel to the funeral train; it is placed in a hearse under guard of the 11th U. S. Cavalry; the Navy, Marine and National Guard representatives board the train; the pall-bearers are pictured—

(Continued on Page 20)

The zeal with which photoplayers have embraced the radio as the latest indoor sport, has become so general that practically every "film folk home" is equipped with a receiver. —Radio Journal Photo

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Aug. 13th.—Cullen Landis, one of the most popular young stars of the screen, spent a few hours in San Francisco on Saturday, on his way South, after a trip to the mountains.

Alec Francis, grand old man of the silver sheet, came up from Los Angeles for a few days' visit with Max Graf, head of the Graf productions, and after he got here was induced by Graf to stay and play the part of the attorney, in their current production, "Half-a-Dollar Bill."

The Pacific Studios at San Mateo is a busy place these days, for the Graf Productions started actual shooting of their big sea picture there on Monday morning. There are about two weeks of studio work to be finished first, then the whole company go to sea in a four-masted schooner, to be gone several weeks.

The West Coast Production Company also start a company working at the San Mateo studios this week, so for the first time in quite a little while both big stages will be scenes of activity.

Marjorie Rambeau, Richard Tucker, Lawrence Grant, and other members of Miss Rambeau's company left for Los Angeles on Sunday morning. The company completed a most successful engagement here at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday night, and opened at the Majestic Theatre, Los Angeles, on Monday night in the big Broadway success, "The Goldfish."

The Intrepit Company, who are preparing to make a fifteen months' trip round the world in a sailing vessel, making moving pictures en route, have bought in Seattle a fine big three-masted schooner. Captain Lyon, who is the head of the organization, has gone to Seattle to superintend the installing of the auxiliary engine, and the general refitting of the boat for the purposes of the company. Their passenger list is almost full, and if the present plans are carried out, the expedition will set sail on their long voyage October first.

Ethel Barrymore, looked on as the foremost actress of the American stage today, is the headline attraction at the Orpheum Theatre this week, in Sir James Barrie's one-act play, "The Twelve-Pound Look." The playlet was first used by Miss Barrymore as a curtain raiser some twelve years ago, and was so good, and such a popular favorite, that she has played it from time to time since. It's a short play with a big theme, and gives some wonderful opportunities for emotional acting. She will be supported by a capable company.

Jack Brehaney has resigned as manager of the Capital Theatre here to handle the superfilm, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

"The Fog," feature picture made by the Graf Productions at San Mateo this spring, opened a week's engagement at the Pantages Theatre, Oakland, on Sunday. Appearing with the picture in a specially written prologue are the three clever children of the cast. Little Oliver Hyde, the boy wonder, and a native of Oakland, who in "The Frog" is Nathan Forge, as a child; Cullen Landis is the grown up Nathan. Rose Cugini, who is the child played in later years by Anna May, and Grace Johnson, the younger edition of Mildred Harris, and off the screen a child prima-donna. The little playlet is being received with great interest, and "The Frog" itself is receiving highest praise on every side.

When Eddie Eberle, auditor for Goldwyn with the company making "Greed" under the direction of Eric Von Stroheim, left San Francisco for the South last Wednesday, it marked the close of the local work on the picture. It has been one of the longest locations on record, as actual filming of the picture has been in progress for four months and a half, and part of the organization was here making preparations three months before the camera work began.

DIRECTOR IS A KODAK FIEND.

Despite the fact that he spends at least 300 days each year behind a camera in pursuit of his profession as a motion picture director, George D. Baker, dean of Hollywood's megaphone wielders and producer of many screen classics, is an ardent, if not rabid, kodak fiend.

At work and at play, Baker always has at least one of his twenty cameras with him, loaded and ready to "shoot" any incident or scene that he believes might enhance the artistic value of his amazing collection of over 23,000 kodak prints.

"It's my one greatest vice, this non-professional 'shooting' of off-stage pictures," explained the eminent director when taunted about his hobby, recently. "I presume it is my great interest in motion picture photography that first led me to take up amateur camera work and since that time—many, many years ago—I have pursued the elusive in woods, mountains and at sea with a picture box."

Baker is credited with owning the greatest and finest collection of small photographic prints in America. His views include unusual scenes "shot" at various angles and often times at a great risk of life. The director has endeavored to put "life" in all of his still subjects and that he has succeeded is attested to by publishers and collectors of various portions of the world who have sought to exploit the amateur work of the camera wizard.

Although Baker is naturally greatly interested in motion picture photography, he has never evidenced the desire to "shoot" a movie camera for pleasure. Motion pictures are his business, he says, while still photographs are his hobby and he has drawn a sharp line between the two arts.

At the present time Baker is exploring the wonderous nooks and caves of California's great Yosemite in search of new studies to record with his camera. He expects to remain in the governmental park for a week, during which period he anticipates "shooting" all of nature's wonders contained in that vast area, that have not already been filmed.

Casts of the Week

The Graf Productions Present
"HALF-A-DOLLAR BILL"
Metro Release.
Directed by W. S. Van Dyke.
Leigh Smith, Assistant Director.
Andre Barlatier, Cameraman.
R. L. Selander, Assistant Cameraman.
Story by Curtis Benton, adapted for the screen by Max Graf.
Continuity by
Hope Loring and Drury Lighton.
CAST:

George McQuarrie	Anna Q. Nilsson
Alec Francis	Raymond Hatton
William Carleton	Mitchell Lewis
Frankie Darrow

Being shot at the Pacific Studios, San Mateo.

"MYSTERIOUS GOODS"
Story by Jeanne Poe.
Directed by Charles R. Seelig.
Elmer Dyer, Cameraman.
Harry Burns, Assistant Director.
Scenario by
Jeanne Poe and Charles R. Seelin.
CAST:

Johnny Walker	George Larkin
Daniel Moore	Jake Abram
Nan, His Daughter	Charolette Morgan
Jim Harding	Arthur Morrison
Billy Evans	Billy Quinn
Dummy Spiffins	Jack House
Sheriff Crawley	Bob McKenzie

"THE EAGLE'S CLAW"
Story by Buchanan.
Directed by Alvin J. Nietz.
Morrie Hughes, Cameraman.
Charles DeLong, Asst. Director.
Scenario by
Charles R. Seelin and Al. Nietz.
A Charles R. Seelin Production..
CAST:
"Big Boy" Williams
Virginia Warwick

Heavy	Lew Meehan
Father	Lafe McKee
Indian	Karl Silveria
Sheriff	Fred Hank
Attorney	P. E. Longstreet

THE SPIRIT OF DETERMINATION.

Lorraine Eason is a thorough believer of consistency and perseverance, and not only believes in it, but conscientiously lives up to it, and while but eighteen years old, she made up her youthful mind to become a motion picture star, and though opposed by her parents, did not swerve one iota from her original plans, even after traveling the country over, as her father was an official in the Engineering Department of the Government service and his duties took him to all principal cities of the United States, also to Panama, always being accompanied by Lorraine and her mother.

Even as late as in the fall of 1922 she enjoyed the distinction of refusing the great Florenz Ziegfeld's offer to join the Follies, he having seen her while engaged in modeling at a fashionable Fifth Avenue modiste's as she had practically perfected her plans to "break into the movies"; and break in she did, with a vengeance. Possibly it will be remembered that a beauty contest entered into the scheme of things about this time, and while Lorraine refuses to discuss the matter, it is the consensus of opinion of many, who not only participated, but were officially connected with it, that she came out with flying colors, only to have the powers that be to decree otherwise.

Nothing daunted, however, she at last succeeded in getting the consent of her parents to make the supreme attempt, they agreeing, at the same time, to give her only a few short weeks in which to see the folly of her long years of well laid plans. Then the unexpected happened—she was almost immediately cast in James Young's "Wandering Daughters" and followed by important bits and parts in productions such as "Daughters of the Rich," with Mary Pickford in "Rosita," Roland V. Lee's "You Can't Get Away With It," and others, and her recent portrayal of the role of "Echo" in "The Temple of Venus" has caused favorable comment.

Muriel Frances Dana, who will soon head her own unit as a star, will be the third child to win such an honor before reaching the age of five years. She is regarded generally as a cinema genius.

How Much is Acting Worth?

"Acting for motion pictures, no matter how great the actor, is not worth a larger salary than $500 per week."

This, coming from Conway Tearle, one of the highest paid actors in films, offers a starting remark at this time when the salaries are shooting skyward.

"By this I do not mean that those actors who receive large salaries are not in practically every instance, entitled to every penny they receive—and more," says Mr. Tearle. "I do mean, however, that acting itself is not worth more than a weekly salary of $500, no matter who the actor may be.

"No motion picture player receiving a large salary in pictures, obtains this amount because of his or her acting ability. The idea that this or that player receives a tremendous monetary remuneration for his or her 'art' is to my mind, silly. I cannot imagine any piece of acting that warrants a magnificent salary.

"However, the drawing power of the actor or actress does warrant a full share of the profits on a photoplay. It is this drawing power that makes a player worth much more than $500 weekly to the producer.

"The public hears of gigantic salaries paid to players in pictures. Some of these salaries are actually paid performers, not, however, for what the public is lead to believe to be the value placed upon the individual's histrionic talents, but what the player's name means to the box-office.

"I might be a wonderful actor, but if I have no drawing power, if my name does not help bring in the sheckels at the theatre, then my services are worth no unusual salary, no matter how great my acting may be.

"There is no such thing as a $3,000 a week actor. There is such a thing as a $10,000 a week drawing power in the person of an actor.

"Motion picture acting is an art worthy of the calling. As an art it deserves a fitting return to the artist. After that it is purely a matter of business. It might be inferred that a great piece of acting will automatically result in making an actor a great box-office attraction. This is no more unversally true than is the belief that to be a powerful box-office power, one has to be a great actor.

"Sometimes there are players in a supporting cast whose work far excels that of the star. Yet they do not have the drawing power of the star, and consequently do not earn, nor do they get, a salary equal to that of the star. On the other hand, there are stars whose box-office power is tremendous, yet whose acting ability is far exceeded by others of less salary.

"If a player's name in connection with a film is worth $10,000, he or she deserves every penny of it. Producers generally are not paying the much discussed 'fabulous salaries" unless they know the players are worth every cent and more, paid in salaries. Despite all talk of tremendous salaries paid for 'acting talent,' few players are really receiving what they actually earn."

J. Warren Kerrigan, whose come-back on the screen after a long absence, has been one of the sensations of recent cinema times. "The Covered Wagon" and "The Girl of The Golden West" are two features which served to re-establish him.

ACTOR THINKS ALL ACTORS SHOULD BE WELL POSTED

Bryant Washburn, featured in Ben Wilson productions for Grand-Asher, says he has no patience with the actor who becomes, so to speak, insular. That is, who lives in his own little world of the studios and doesn't even know whether there is a Democratic or Republican president, or whether France is still in Ruhr.

"It is very easy to get this way," says Bryant. "There is a continual activity in film circles which might easily engross all the attention of the people in it. Their own little problems, squabbles, rumors, and so on, can very easily become the horizon of their thoughts and engross them to the exclusion of the great affairs of the world, the new discoveries in science, the political or educational activities of the people outside.

"The mistake in this is that such people become limited in their mental outlook. How can they successfully portray characters supposed to be entirely apart from the screen world if they know nothing of their ways of thought or action? The result is that the portrayals become "actorish,' to coin a very crude term. Instead of being John Jones, a world financier, the individual is So-and-So, playing his own character.

"I believe an actor should, above most people, be a reader and keep thoroughly abreast of the times. He would do better work if he had little to do with the affairs of the screen world outside his work, though he should know all about the technic and the developments of the art.

"I have studied everything from laboratory to sets; I am familiar with lighting requirements and camera technic. By this means I know at once how to play a role to gain the best results. This is not to boast of my particular skill, but only to show that any actor may, if he takes the time and trouble, gain a clearer insight into the thing he is doing for a livelihood. Far better to devote one's spare moments to this and to gaining a general idea of the world's work than to idly gossip about studio and studio people.

"There are many players who follow the ideas I have suggested and most of them are at the top. The really sincere man in any line of endeavor has little time for the trivialities of his field. True, all work and no play is bad business, and I am a firm believer in enjoyment. Outdoor sports, gatherings in which minds of intelligence meet to discuss topics of value or interest, afford me relaxation and recreation. These, with my work, and reading, give me plenty with which to occupy my mind."

News and Gossip About the Moving Throngs of Movieland

Jeanette Lajaunesse is another actress who came to the cinema via the vaudeville route. For four years prior to her entry into motion pictures she was one of the headlining features on the Orpheum Circuit, billed as J. Lajaunesse, "The Apache Dancer," which was a male impersonation. This has been recorded as one of the best acts of its kind that has ever gone over this particular vaudeville circuit, and enjoyed a continuous success. The most important parts she has portrayed in pictures were in "The Trail of The Lonesome Pine" and Goldwyn's "Hearts and Flowers," which was filmed in New York. Believing that her own name is too long, she has assumed the cognomen of Jeanette Hood and will hereafter be known under this name in her film work. Miss Lajaunesse, or rather Miss Hood, was born in Chattanooga, Ten., of French descent. She has hazel eyes, brown hair, and is 5 feet 7 inches. She has been in pictures three years.

Entertains Brother.

Howard Hughes, brother of the famous author and motion picture director, Rupert Hughes, accompanied his brother on a location trip to Yellowstone Park, where the author is filming scenes for his new picture, tentatively titled, "Law Against Law." Howard Hughes will stay a week in the Park, and from there make a trip through the northern part of the state. He is a wealthy oil man.

Swimming Ability Wins.

Is ability to swim essential to success in motion pictures? In the case of Virginia Valli, who portrays the heroine in King Vidor's version of Joseph Hergisheimer's novel, "Wild Oranges," it's one of the factors that won her the role. James Kirkwood as the hero gets his first glimpse of her in the costume of Eve as she sportively buffets the waves.

Benshoff Promoted.

Edward Benshoff, for three years master of properties for the Mary Pickford Co., and for several years in a like capacity at the Thomas H. Ince studios at Culver City, has been promoted to assistant director for John Griffith Wray, now occupied in the filming of Eugene O'Neill's great stage triumph, "Anna Christie." Blanche Sweet, George Marion and William Russell are the featured players of "Anna Christie," which will be a First National release.

Mary Lee Wise has been signed by Lasky to play an important part in "Woman-Proof," starring Thomas Meighan, under the direction of Al. Green. This is Mrs. Wise's fourth engagement with Lasky-Famous Players this year.

Bruce Enjoys Vacation.

Having recently completed a prominent role as Wesley Barry's little brother in "The Country Kid," Bruce Guerin is enjoying a well-earned vacation, the first for more than a few days' duration since he began camera work, a little over a year and a half ago. During this time he has played featured roles in nine films. "Drifting," in which he worked for ten weeks with Priscilla Dean, will soon be released. Numerous offers have been received by the Warner Brothers, with whom he is under long-term contract, for his services pending the commencement of another Warner film with a role suitable to his age and talents, but they have decided that such a little fellow needs a rest once in a while. After his vacation he will return to the screen in another Warner Brothers picture and it is said that stardom is in store for him.

Publicists Become Motorists.

Joseph A. Jackson, Goldwyn manager of publicity, and his housemate and co-worker, Tom Reed, left yesterday by motor over the vacation route for a trip north which may not stop short of Portland, or even Puget Sound.

The carefree pair refused to issue any itinerary or wire address and referred all matters of mere business to Tom Engler, who will be in charge of the department during Jackson's absence of two weeks.

Meighan is Popular.

In addition to working in "Woman-Proof," the George Ade story which is serving as his present starring vehicle, Thomas Meighan has been holding daily receptions at Paramount's West Coast studio. Reputed to have the largest list of personal friends of all the screen luminaries, Meighan's long sojourn in the East has prevented his Western friends from seeing him for nearly a year. Hence their rush to his home and to the studio during his few spare moments following his recent return to Los Angeles.

Mae Marsh and Claude Gillingwater will head an all-star cast of players in "Daddies," Warner Brothers' forthcoming production, which has been scheduled to face the cameras September first. Harry Beaumont will handle the megaphone for this special.

Mix Gets Scraped.

Tom Mix is recovering from a pair of badly scraped shins which he suffered while making a scene in his newest William Fox production, "A Flyin' Fool." The horse which Mr. Mix was riding —not the sure-footed Tony—managed to get its foot caught in a tree root and fell heavily to the ground, pinning the star beneath.

Any person less stalwart than Mr. Mix probably would have been seriously injured, but as it was, the western star was not sufficiently hurt to stop work.

Monte Blue and Harry Myers have been added to the cast of "Daddies," the David Belasco play, production of which is shortly to be started at the Warner Brothers studio under the direction of William Seiter.

Vera Lewis has been engaged by Harry Cohen for his production, "The Marriage Market," under the direction of Edw. Le Saint. Miss Lewis has just finished her engagement with Jackie Coogan in "Long Live the King," playing the part of Archduchess Annunciata.

A-U-G-U-S-T doesn't spell vacation for Walter Wilkinson, screen starlet. It spells work. Walter now has a dual role, as Cupid and as a prince, in William Fox's "The Temple of Venus," being directed by Henry Otto. In addition, he is playing the part of a bootlegger's son in Larry Semon's current comedy production

Angry mobs have been chasing Billie Butts, "character kid" of the screen, all over the lot the past few days, at Mack Sennett's. Billie is the "heavy" in "Rough and Ready," the kid-and-animal picture being directed by Bill Campbell, and featuring Jackie Lucas.

Return From Lake.

After a happy week of ideal weather and amid the scenic glories of Arrowhead Lake, the Associated Authors' "No More Women" players have returned to the Thomas H. Ince studios to complete the interiors of Elmer Harris' scintillating comedy. The reluctantly returning troupers include Madge Bellamy, Kathleen Clifford, Matt Moore, Shannon Day, Clarence Burton, Stanhope Wheatcroft, H. Reeves-Smith and Director Lloyd Ingraham.

Noted Actor in Hollywood.

A newcomer to the motion picture colony in Hollywood, is John Webb Dillion, who comes from New York with a Fox contract in his pocket. Mr. Dillion is an actor of much renown in both the world of spoken and the screen drama, and has to his credit upwards of four hundred different roles in stock production. Mr. Dillion was the original "Inspector Burke" in "Within the Law," and played with such well known actors as James O'Neill, Viola Allen, Ethel Barrymore, John Drew and many others. He is considered an authority on "make-up" and specializes in strong character roles.

Bobbie Forges Ahead.

Bobbie Gordon, juvenile star, is rapidly coming to the front in filmland after his splendid work in "Penrod and Sam" and "Fighting Blood" productions. For the past two weeks Bobbie has been playing a feature part in one of Jack White's comedy productions, and is now busy with Bennie Zeidman at the Principal Pictures studio, where he was selected out of a score of applicants for a part that called for initiative ability to portray.

Definite announcement comes from Sid Grauman that an entire change of policy will soon be adopted at his famous Million Dollar Theatre at Third and Broadway. A complete transformation will be effected, both in the appearance of the house and the program presented.

Only the very biggest of special productions will be shown, which will be accompanied by elaborate stage presentations, musical settings and skillfully contrived lighting effects. There will be two performances daily—one in the afternoon and one in the evening. All seats will be reserved and on sale two weeks in advance for each picture. The prices will be 82 cents, $1.10, and $1.65.

Additional features will be installed within and outside of the theatre and it is predicted that Third and Broadway will be the most brilliant spot on the coast.

According to Mr. Grauman, he is now negotiating for all of the big pictures in the market and he plans to make his Million Dollar Theatre the home of the finest in photoplays, music and stage presentations.

Florence Vidor and Creighton Hale have been engaged to play the two leading roles in Ernst Lubitsch's first production for the Warner Brothers. Lubitsch has just completed directing "Rosita" for Mary Pickford. The new Warner production is from the pen of Paul Bern, and it is reported to be something out of the ordinary, with a Viennese setting

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, AUGUST 18, 1923

COLLE'N MOORE MARRIES TODAY

Colleen Moore, popular motion picture star, was married today to John Emmett McCormick, Western Representative of Associated First National Pictures, Inc. The ceremony took place at St. Thomas' church. The Rev. M. J. Mullin officiated.

Carmelita Gerraghty, screen actress and a close friend of the bride, was the maid of honor. The groom was attended by Earl J. Hudson, of New York, production manager for the organization with which Mr. McCormick is associated.

The ceremony, a quiet one, was attended only by the intimate families of the bride and groom, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Morrison, the bride's father and mother; Cleeve Morrison, her brother; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McCormick of San Francisco, the groom's parents; Mrs. Mary Kelly, Miss Moore's grandmother; her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mitchell, and Mrs. E. J. Hudson.

The marriage is the culmination of a romance which had its inception two years ago when the winsome Colleen met Mr. McCormick while playing in her initial First National picture. Three months ago Miss Moore signed a long term starring contract with First National.

The bride, who in private life was Kathleen Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Morrison of Los Angeles, is one of the most popular film stars on the west coast, both professionally and socially.

McCormick is one of the best known film executives on the west coast, and one of the youngest executives in all filmdom to hold such a responsible position.

The couple are unable at this time to take but a brief honeymoon, due to the bride's engagement in the feature roles of "Flaming Youth," now in production, and in "The Swamp Angel," soon to be filmed and on account of the extensive production activity of the company, which necessitates the groom staying at his desk at this time.

The wedding trip has been postponed until after the completion of "The Swamp Angel," in October, when the couple will go East to New York and other Atlantic coast cities for a protracted stay.

Mr. and Mrs. McCormick will be at home at 689 South Bronson Avenue, Los Angeles, after September 1st.

Percy Visits Here.

Percy Bronson, of Orpheum circuit fame, is vacationing in Los Angeles, and renewing his acquaintance with Eulalie Jensen, now a featured player in such films as "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and George D. Baker's version of Balzac's "The Magic Skin." Percy and Eulalie were show mates in musical comedy, both having principal roles in the famous road show, "Peggy From Paris." Percy is also considering entering the films on his own account.

STAR SCALDED BY GEYSER WATER

Helene Chadwick and an assistant director were badly burned when the Giant Geyser at Yellowstone Park unexpeectedly spouted and drenched them with hot water, according to a telegram received this week by Pete Smith, Miss. Chadwick's representative.

Acids and other chemicals in the water added to the seriousness of their injuries, but it is expected that they will be able to return to work within a day or two. Meantime, production on the Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan production, "Law Against Law," on which they were working, has been held up.

Though "Old Faithful" erupts daily, the Giant Geyser is active but two or three times a year. Believing it safe the production company, which is spending two weeks in Yellowstone on location shots, was working around the pool in which the geyser is located, according to the telegram.

Then, without warning, an enormous column of steaming water leaped from the center of the pool and fell on the players. Miss Chadwick and the assistant director were the only ones to be seriously burned, however.

Pola to Vacation.

Having completed the stellar role in Herbert Brenon's production of "The Spanish Dancer" for Paramount, Pola Negri is contemplating a "seeing America first" trip. The Grand Canyon, Yosemite, Yellowstone National Park and Del Monte are among the scenic points which she hopes to visit, but it is doubtful if she will be able to visit more than one of them during the present vacation. According to the famous Polish star's present plans, the Grand Canyon at least will be visited at this time, perhaps accompanied by Kathlyn Williams, who also played an important role in "The Spanish Dancer."

Dillon to Start.

Edward Dillon, of the Dillon Productions, starring Elaine Hammerstein, in Harold McGrath's "Drums of Jeopardy," will take up the megaphone for the picture in about two weeks at the Goldwyn studios. In the meantime, he is lining up his sets, which will be most elaborate. The action of the story in which Miss Hammerstein is cast as dramatic critic, transpires in Russia and modern New York, the former sequence to take place in a palace, now under construction.

GENERAL GETS CLOSE-UPS OF SELF

A new vogue of "motion picture portraits" will be introduced to Paris upon the return of General Henri Gouraud, newly appointed military governor of Paris, and his staff, who have been visiting America as the guest of the Rainbow Division of the American Legion.

The general, during his visit to Los Angeles, was the guest of Thomas H. Ince at the Ince studios in Culver City. He became so interested in the process of making "close-ups" of Blanche Sweet, William Russell and George Marion, who were working in scenes of Ince's screen adaptation of "Anna Christie," that he readily consented when Mr. Ince suggested that some intimate "portrait studies" of him be made as a souvenir of his visit. A number of close-ups were made of the World War hero in addition to the "news" shots taken of him with his staff. They will be forwarded to the general before he sails for France, so that he can carry back a vivid memento of his initiation to the motion picture colony, which the general gratefully told Mr. Ince was one of the most pleasant and interesting experiences of his American tour.

Among the guests at Mr. Ince's reception for the general were: Lieutenant de Vibraye, -aide -de camp to the general; Lieutenant L. A. Hellec, secretary to the general; Col. G. A. L. duMont, attached French embassy at Washington; M. Jules Henry, secretary to French embassy; M. A. S. Tourneaux, American representative World Illustrie, Paris; W. W. Bodine, Major John Mangin, and Major W. H. Budd, of the U. S. Army; Major H. J. Brady, Rainbow Division; M. Louis Sentous, Los Angeles French consul; M. Charles Winsel, Los Angeles Belgian consul; L. J. Christopher, Pres. Alsace Lorraine Club and Pres. Colonie Francaise of Los Angeles.

INSECTS SCORE SENSATION IN FILMS

The premier showing at the Ambassador Theatre, Los Angeles, recently, of three of Sol Lesser's "Secrets of Life" series packed the playhouse to the doors with an audience that overflowed into the lobby. And the beholders were as notable in enthusiasm as in numbers, each picture, the Bee, the Ant and the Spider, being followed by prolonged applause, and finally by calls for Louis H. Tolhurst, the young Los Angeles scientist, whose processes and inventions have made microscopic motion photography completely revealing and adequate.

It was explained that the pictures were not addressed to the technical mind, but to the average layman; that a series of classroom non-theatrical pictures on the same subjects was in contemplation, but that the purposes of Principal Pictures Corporation and Mr. Lesser in introducing and presenting this series was to entertain and excite popular curiosity in a new world opened up by the marvels of the Tolhurst light and microscopic motion photography.

The audience in attendance was representative of all classes of theatre-goers and of all grades of life and employment. Among the invited guests were members of the Academy of Sciences, local Board of Education, professors of Entymology, Zoology and Biology from the University of California, Southern Branch, and the speaker of the occasion was Dr. Mars Baumgardt, a local astronomer. Dr. Baumgardt said he would reserve his remarks until he had seen the pictures, which when he had, inspired him in his opening phrase to say, "What I have just seen staggers me. The screen has never revealed anything so marvelous as this."

Mr. Lesser has taken these three pictures East with him to arrange for distribution and he will also take them to Europe, there also to effect their distribution. Mr. Tolhurst was the recipient of a flood of congratulatory comments and was assured that the motion picture public will reward his eight long years of experiment, research, study and patient, hard labor.

A quality frequently remarked in the pictures was the human interest and humor that attached through the manner in which they have been titled by Walter Anthony.

Resorts to Paper Work to Save Prestige

Patience and perseverance always will be rewarded, even if the outlook sometimes grows dark and dreary.

This is the opinion of Jack Prendergast, who several months ago gave up a promising career on the legitimate stage in San Francisco, to enter motion picture work in Hollywood.

Jack could have done almost unlimited work as an extra, or bit player. He felt, though, that his years of experience on the stage and his success as a juvenile, in legitimate, entitled him to something better than apprenticeship works, and didn't accept it.

Several days ago Jack's friends along the boulevard and in the studios began to wonder where he had gone; for some time they didn't see his smiling face.

His father came to Hollywood from the Bay City—Dad is Thomas F. Prendergast, a prominent judge of the northern city—and finally succeeded in locating the son, who had been working on a newspaper, for a small salary, rather than lower his prestige by accepting cheap work in pictures.

Now Jack and his dad are chumming around together, and the boy feels sure that within a very short time arrangements will be made, perhaps through the organization of an independent producing company, if necessary, whereby he will get the chance to do screen work commensurate with the thespic experience he has had, as well as his acting ability.

COMEDY STAR TO FILM AT FAIR IN HOME TOWN

Al St. John has beeen presented with the keys of the city of Santa Ana, his own home town, for the week when the Orange County fair is in session there this fall.

His fellow townsmen want their cinema prodigy to come there and make a comedy built around the annual fall festival, and Al has already taken the matter up with General Manager Sol Wurtzel of the Fox studios, and it looks as if the entire St. John company would be camping out at the Orange County metropolis during the run of the exposition.

Fox is gradually acquiring quite a menagerie and Al is planning to take a number of four-footed stars with him to his home town for the "County Fair" film.

Extremes of Fashion.

While Ralph Lewis is wearing some very dilapidated and shop-worn clothes in his featured role in "Born of a Cyclone." Vera Lewis, who in private life is Mrs. Ralph Lewis, is appearing in stunning creations valued at thousands of dollars in her role of the fashionable society woman in "The Marriage Market."

TRYING TO SPARE THE DELUDED ASPIRANTS

Each year thousands of young people leave their homes and journey to Hollywood, California, in the hope that they will find opportunities in the motion picture industry. Some are successful, but the majority are not suited to the work and spend their money in vain.

It remained for an advertising man, Frederick F. Paul, of 521 Hollingsworth Building, Los Angeles, to see that screen aspirants could be put in touch with motion picture directors, before coming to the film colony, and to bring this about, the Motion Picture Intelligencer was established.

In this publication, which is circulated among the motion picture directors, are reproduced the photographs and qualifications of screen aspirants from all over the country. If any of these seem to afford likely material for casting in any forthcoming productions, they are notified that there may be an opportunity for them; but, as only a small number can possibly interest the directors, those that seem to have little in their favor are notified that it would be useless for them to come to Hollywood, and thus are saved the expense and disappointment that would otherwise be theirs.

YOUNG "SLAVED" ON HIS VACATION TRIP

Richard P. Young, whose main purpose in life is to write comedies and titles, recently took several days off to make a short trip into the Big Bear country with Bob Dillon, now writing a forthcoming serial. Their purpose was to secure some location stills.

"I looked on the photographic work as a man-sized job," said Young, back in Hollywood, "but when Bob's Ford balked on a mountain grade, we did more than labor—we slaved.

"And the worst of it: My friends still ask me if I enjoyed my vacation."

Barrymore Coming Soon.

To portray the leading feminine role in the John Barrymore picture, "Beau Brummel," the Warner Brothers, through an arrangement with Paramount, secured the services of Mary Astor. Mr. Barrymore is expected to arrive from New York about September 1st, at which time everything will be in readiness to film the Clyde Fitch play. Harry Beaumont, who recently completed the picturization of Belasco's play, "The Gold Diggers," will direct the Barrymore film. Dorothy Farnum is preparing the screen story.

Archie Mayo at Fox.

Archie Mayo is a new addition to the comedy directorial staff of the William Fox West Coast studios, Hollywood. Mr. Mayo's first work will be to complete a Sunshine comedy commenced a week ago by Director Tom Buckingham, who was suddenly called to New York to finish a picture started by Bernard Durning, suddenly incapacitated by illness.

MULHALL AND PAULINE LEAD IN COHN'S NEXT

With Jack Mulhall and Pauline Garon in the leading roles, Harry Cohn, general manager of the Waldorf studios, has completed the cast for "The Marriage Market," an Evelyn B. Campbell novelette which will be made into a six reel feature for C. B. C. release. Among the notables chosen are Shannon Day, Vera Lewis, Marc Robbins, Kate Lester, Mayme Kelso and Jean de Briac. "The Marriage Market" will be produced on a lavish scale under the direction of Edward J. Le Saint.

"Forgive and Forget" has just beeen completed at the Waldorf studios under the direction of Howard Mitchell, with Wyndham Standing, Pauline Garon, Philo McCullough, Josef Swickard, Vernon Steel, Lionel Belmore, Estelle Taylor and William Scott.

Harry Cohn is conducting a nation wide scenario contest to get scripts which can be released under the titles "Innocence" and "Pal o' Mine." The production of these two will follow "The Marriage Market."

FORMER OPERATIC STAR IN GRAF PRODUCTION

William T. Carleton, who was noted for years as a leading operatic baritone, both in this country and abroad before he gave up his career to become a motion picture player, has been engaged for an important role in "Half-a-Dollar Bill," which is to be made by Graf Productions of San Francisco. Camera work will start at the San Mateo studios on Monday. Other members of the cast already engaged by Supervising Director Max Graf, are Anna Q. Nilsson, Mitchell Lewis, Raymond Hatton, George McQuarrie, and five-year-old Frankie Darrow.

Andre Barlatier, who photographed "Earthbound," and other important productions, has been engaged as chief cinematographer, and R. L. Selander will handle the second camera. Richard E. Sibley will be technical director for the production.

Director W. S. Van Dyke and Assistant Director Leigh Smith, have already arrived here from Hollywood and the members of the cast are expected momentarily.

LA MOTTE BECOMES AN EXECUTIVE OF HEPNER

Ira J. La Motte, manager of the Shubert-Belasco Theater in Washington, D. C., for the past two seasons, and one of the best known men in the United States, has severed his connection and moved to Los Angeles, where he has accepted a very attractive offer from Wm. Hepner, Inc.

He will have direct charge of the company's business in California with the Motion Picture and Theatrical Producers. Mr. La Motte will be the secretary and treasurer of William Hepner, Inc., of California, which as a result of studio work in Hollywood and other California points, has rapidly outgrown the original New York offices.

This Newcomer Learns Auto Laws

Another motion picture player comes from the East to find that autoists can't speed over the California highway and get away with it.

Bebe Daniels discovered that fact and went to jail for ten days. Then Maurice Canon, the French actor who went to the coast to play in "Trilby," ran afoul the same judge who put Bebe in durance vile.

The latest film celebrity to get nailed by John Law is Ben Lyon, well known stage and screen portrayer of juvenile roles, who came west last week to play an important role in First National's "Flaming Youth."

On his first Sunday in California, Lyon motored to Riverside. Driving past a hotel there he was held up by a United States Army officer, a member of the reception staff of the French general, Henri Joseph Gouraud, who requested the actor to drive the famous general to the railroad station.

The general's chauffeur was missing, the officer explained, and it was necessary for the visitor to make a train leaving in a few minutes. Lyon was told to forget all speeed laws, and he did.

Leaving the general at the train, Lyon continued toward Los Angeles. Having got the spirit of the thing, he kept his foot way down on the accelerator and then ran smack into a motorcycle cop. Explanation and excuses were useless. Lyon was handed before a magistrate and ponied up to the tune of $25.

NEW COMPANY TAKES OVER JACCARD STUDIO

Jack Glavey and his associates in the newly formed Hollywood Enterprises have taken over the studio on Lankershim Boulevard, directly opposite Universal City, which has formerly been used by Jacques Jaccard. The studio will henceforth be known as the McNamara studio, after J. J. McNamara, well known ex-detective of Los Angeles, who is vice-president of the concern, and it will house the units which are now in the shaping.

Already plans are under way to broaden the scope of activity as recently announced by the concern. In addition to the comedy unit which will star Eddie Gribbon in 2-reelers, a feature company is now projected.

Negotiations are under way looking toward signing Mary Anderson as leading woman for the first production. Charles O. Cecil has been engaged as art direcor. George D. Gould, former trade paper editor, will direct the advertising and publicity for the new concern.

"Trilby" Scores Big in New York

The hard-boiled critics of the New York dailies were apparently swept off their feet at the opening of Richard Walton Tully's latest screen drama, "Trilby," which opened at the Strand Sunday. Not only do they laud Mr. Tully to the skies for producing so thoroughly worth-while a play in such a delightful and commendable manner, but they hail Andree Lafayette as the find of the season, and call Arthur Edmund Carew's interpretation of the role of Svengali, a masterpiece.

The Times says in part: "This photoplay is wonderfully good. Mr. Tully is a man who is eager to give the public sensible and wholesome pictures. It is far ahead of most productions presented on Broadway."

The Tribune: "Lafayette delights us. She is fascinating, beautifully unusual and clever, and has a magnetic personality."

The News: "You'll enjoy it enough to see it again."

The World: "Trilby is one of those films we wouldn't want to say we had missed."

The American: "Tully is to be congratulated upon the execution of the production—an unusual presentation."

The Mail: "It is a moving picture drama at its best. The people and incidents all appear real. Lafayette is to be congratulated for her interpretation. Carew, as Svengali, was finished, artistic and sincere."

WILLIAM FOX HAS NEW CASTING DIRECTOR HERE.

James Ryan, for many years casting director in the New York studios of the Fox Film Corporation, has arrived in Los Angeles, and henceforth will cast all pictures made at the William Fox West Coast Studios, Hollywood.

The new casting director has a wide acquaintance among film folk and has to his credit the selection of players in such great screen successes as "Over the Hill," "If Winter Comes," "The Silent Command," and all of the big Fox "specials" shot in the East and in Europe.

The new executive is thoroughly grounded in the art of picture making, having commenced his studio career as a "grip," climbing then by successive stages to assistant director, director, and finally casting director.

Mr. Ryan is a civil engineer by profession, and as such commanded a company for two years in France during the great world war.

Walter McGrail, who plays one of the featured roles in "The Bad Man," Edwin Carewe's First National production, is known as the "good bad man" of the screen

P. A. MUST HAVE DOZED

"Boy! page a press-agent."

Didja ever before in all of your life hear a real, honest-to-goodness, motion picture actress, who after experiencing a perfectly good robbery, failed to publish it?

This is, however, what has actually happened. A number of weeks ago Miss Charlotte Du Puis left her home on North Wilton Place, Hollywood, for the Metro studios, and returning in the late afternoon, found the house in a topsy-turvy condition, dresser drawers upturned, carpets rolled back and valuables missing totaling nearly $5,000, among which were included evening dresses, silken lingerie, a diamond ring, seal coat and a Kolinsky fur cape, of which the latter alone was valued at $1,000.

Officers Niece and Page of the Hollywood police station are on the trail of the robbers and report that arrests are due at any moment.

Miss Du Puis, who literally rolled into fame, when in her first part with Charles Brabin, in "Six Days," at the Goldwyn studio she was called upon to dramatically hurl herself down a long flight of steps, has received a more than attractive offer to be featured in a new production which is to be staged in a local Hollywood studio by Eastern capital.

"Extra" Gets a Promotion Early

She played all the leading male roles at school, but—she couldn't wear trousers.

Rosalind Byrne, who came on the set of First National's "Flaming Youth," in which Colleen Moore has the leading role, in the capacity of an "extra," made such good progress the first day of her film experience that a small part is being developed for her benefit.

Eighteen years old and just out of the Immaculate Heart Convent, Rosalind shows remarkable ability as a picture actress. Director John Francis Dillon predicts that she will ultimately become one of the best known artists of the screen.

Miss Byrne is a tall brunette, with dark green eyes, suggestive of the Orient. Her hair is jet black and bobbed with a Dutch cut that makes her one of the most distinguished types of the many young girls who appear in Warner Fabian's frank and daring story.

"I always wanted to be an actress," says the charming young woman. "In school I played all the leading male roles in our amateur theatricals—but the sisters made me wear skirts, except one time when I appeared as Pan in a pageant. If there had been a possibility of Pan wearing skirts, I suppose I would have worn them in that play."

Bennett Plans a Busy Film Year

In his newly formed production organization, in which he will produce two series of big features, Chester Bennett will act as director general of the organization, and personally direct the pictures in which Jane Novak will be starred.

In addition to directing the Jane Novak pictures, Bennett will supervise a series of six western productions starring Eddie Hearn. Negotiations are pending for securing one of the best known directors of westerns for Hearn, and his name will be announced within the next few days. He will work under the direct supervision of Bennett.

Within a short time Chester will also begin supervising a third series of features, starring a famous light comedian, whose name for the present is being withheld.

Bennett is now negotiating for a number of well known books and plays to serve as vehicles for Miss Novak and Hearn. Hawthorne's immortal "Scarlet Letter" may be Miss Novak's next starring vehicle.

Mary Beth Milford, who plays the leading feminine role in "Fighting Blood," was formerly a member of Irving Berlin's world famous Music Box Review in New York. Miss Milford has just recently received an offer to return to the New York stage and play the featured role in one of the touring companies in "Sally."

Aileen Will Play Lady in "3 Weeks"

Aileen Pringle, popular screen beauty, will play "The Lady" in "Three Weeks," the Elinor Glyn novel to be filmed by the Goldwyn studios, Abraham Lehr, vice-president of the company, announced this week.

Miss Pringle, who has been appearing on the screen for less than two years, gets her first leading role in the famous love story, and will play opposite Conrad Nagel, who has been chosen for the part of Paul, the blonde English hero with whom hundreds of thousands of readers are familiar.

Alan Crosland, who made "Enemies of Women" and other film successes, recently arrived from New York especially to direct the feature, and expects to begin filming the story within the next two weeks.

Miss Pringle's early training and environment before joining the film colony have fitted her remarkably well for the role of the mysterious queen, Goldwyn officials believe.

Miss Pringle has been declared the exact type for the role by no less an authority than Mme. Glyn herself, who is now at the Goldwyn studios to assist in the production of her novel.

A member of one of the wealthiest and most aristocratic families in California, Miss Pringle received her education in exclusive private schools in San Francisco, London and Paris. She lived in Europe for several years, and lived in most of the places where the romantic adventures of Paul and The Lady occurred. She is the wife of Sir Charles Pringle, son of a former English governor of Jamaica, and one of the largest landholders in the world.

Other pictures in which Miss Pringle has appeared are: "In The Palace of the King," "Souls for Sale," "The Tiger's Claw," and others.

ENGLISH STAR BUYS "FOOLS FOR LUCK"

Ruby Miller, the famous star of the English stage and screen, who has just completed the leading role in "Alimony," has purchased the screen rights to an original story by Theodore Spangler, "Fools For Luck." The story deals with the adventures of a young girl captive on a pirate ship in the Mediterranean Sea. Her captors, two of the most notorious pirates of their time, are in love with her. One is young and handsome, the other is a brute with no sense of respect for the female of the species. The development of the story, during which the pirates dig for buried treasure, is one of the most dramatic of costume stories.

Miss Miller will film the story upon her return to Europe, as she desires the production to be filmed in its exact location, the Spanish Main.

NEWCOMER LOOKS LIKE A FUTURE OLD FAVORITE

Oliver Follansbee, one of the newcomers to the film world, makes his screen debut with the all-star cast in "The Ten Commandments," Cecil de Mille's latest production.

Follansbee began his dramatic career in Chicago as a member of the Actors Guild, and appeared in a number of productions with that organization, namely, "The Lion and the Mouse," "La Tosca," "The Faun," "Come Out of the Kitchen," "The Little Cinderella" and many others.

His first important role was in support of Marjorie Rambeau in "The Sign on the Door." He later appeared with Lenore Ulric, in "The Son-Daughter," at the Belasco theatre.

During a performance of "The Thief," in which Eugene O'Brien was starred, O'Brien became ill and Follansbee, who had understudied the title role, assumed the part for a period of three weeks. His performance was such that he was at once offered contracts by leading producers.

The late Wallace Reid, one of Follansbee's stage associates, persuaded him to come to California and begin his screen career. Already Follansbee has received great praise for his work in the de Mille production and his future is being watched by a great many producers.

Mortimer Now Fox Director.

Edward Mortimer is now wielding a megaphone at the William Fox West Coast studios, Hollywood, directing John Gilbert in a screen translation of Richard Harding Davis' "The Exile," with scenario by John Russell. Betty Bouton has the role opposite Mr. Gilbert and in the cast are Margaret Fielding, who made a screen name for herself by her excellent characterization of "Mabel" in "If Winter Comes"; John Webb Dillion, who essays the "heavy," Fred Warren and others. Don Short is the cameraman.

Nothing But the Truth.

Bryan Foy, son of Eddie Foy, who recently reached directorial honors at the William Fox West Coast studios, is making his first Sunshine comedy, with Stephen Roberts as co-director. The laugh-maker will be captioned "Nothing But the Truth," and has as its three principal characters three famous truth-tellers, Ananias, Baron Munchausen, and Diogenes. Foy is also the scenarist.

Fred Kley a Rider.

Fred Kley, general studio manager of the big Fox studio, Hollywood, has become a horseback enthusiast and recently purchased several very fine saddle horses. Early any morning he can be found in the vicinity of the "Uplifters' Club," on one of the many attractive bridle paths of that section.

Doris May is soon to make her bow under the Warner Brothers' banner, as she has been selected to play opposite Johnnie Hines in the star's second Warner picture, tentatively titled, "Conductor 1492," adapted from F. Scott Fitzgerald's story.

PLAYER OF MOTHER ROLE SCORES IN "LULLABY"

The best work ever done by "Nan Connor" is the tribute being paid her by those who have seen the rushes of "Lullaby," the Chester Bennett production, starring Jane Novak, in which this talented actress just finished playing.

Following a few years of legitimate stage and operatic experience, Miss Connor, like many other legitimate players, turned her eyes toward the silver screen, where she has since played with such famous celebrities as Dorothy Phillips in "The World's a Stage," Leatrice Joy in "Minnie," Mary Pickford in "Pollyanna" and Suds," Madge Kennedy, "The Blooming Angel" and Clara Kimball Young in "The Forbidden Woman." Mother and nurse characterizations have been her specialty. Miss Connor has until recently also been a member of the Hollywood Players, but due to the pressure of her screen work she was forced to withdraw her support.

SEELING OFFERS PRIZES

Kathryn Parker of Baltimore, Maryland, was the lucky lady who won the prize on her original idea for "Big Boy," Williams' last production, entitled, "The Midnight Rider."

Mr. Seeling offers another prize for the best submitted idea in this same amount of words for a George Larkin feature. The contest will close September 15th. Mr. Seeling's studio address is 1442 Beachwood Drive, Hollywood.

Elinor Fair, who is at present under contract to Universal, will shortly return to New York for a brief vacation, prior to starting work on a new feature.

WHO IS THIS WRITER? MYSTERY

An amusing little mystery has sprung up in Hollywood and has caused considerable buzz of speculation along the Boulevard. It is rumored that one of the younger popular short story writers has become a motion picture actor under the name of Stanley Stoles. Rumor has it that this is not the author's real name and the local colony is busy speculating as to the author's real name and the name under which his magazine stories appear.

Although Stanley Stoles admits he has had stage experience, playing "Preece" in "Milestones" and "Ralston" in "Nothing But the Truth" under the direction of Marie Wainwright on the legitimate stage in the East, he insists that his venture as a motion picture actor is primarily to get the "motion picture angle" on stories. One of the directors with whom the young man has recently worked is predicting that Stanley Stoles may have a doubly successful career, some day playing the lead in film versions of his own stories.

BRUNO HITS UPON A WIDELY POPULAR IDEA

J. Anthony Bruno reports that his announcement published in last week's Camera!, to the effect that he had acquired the services of the eminent cinematographer, Jas. Talbot Gibney, Esq., and had opened, in addition to his already well-known portrait photography service, a new branch of his business entirely devoted to the commercial production of screen tests, at a most moderate price and under the personal supervision of Mr. Gibney, has created quite an interest, to say the least, and that they had shot thousands of feet of the celluloid during the course of the week in satisfying the demands of dozens of screen aspirants who were attracted by his timely announcement.

Irving Starts.

The Irving Productions at the Hollywood Studios started shooting this week on location at the fishing village at Monterey. I. W. Irving, who wrote the story, entitled "Trapped," promises to announce the all-star cast in a few days and that it will be a regular humdinger, from the box-office viewpoint. W. H. Carr is production manager and Jack O'Brien director, with Cy Clegg assisting. The scenario is by Frank Beresford and Harold Shumate, with D. Jennings at the camera.

Another Newcomer.

Helen Andrus, who recently portrayed important roles with the Famous-Players in the East, under the direction of Victor Fleming, has arrived in Hollywood seeking new laurels. Miss Andrus, who is a blonde type, augments the blonde division of the Hollywood film colony in a manner pleasing to the eye and being an heiress in her own right, has two mighty powerful weapons with which to pry open the portal of supremacy on the silversheet.

William DeMille Editing.

William DeMille, assisted by his scenarist, Clara Beranger, is now cutting, titling and editing "The Marriage Maker," his latest Paramount picture featuring Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt, supported by Charles de Roche, Mary Astor and Robert Agnew. The screen story was adapted from Richard Knoblock's stage success, "The Faun."

Cast is Completed.

The cast for Lloyd Hamilton's first five-reel comedy, "Mammy's Boy," will include Irma Harrison, Tom Wilson, Lucille LaVerne and Edna May Spurl. Director Jack Noble began photographing the action last week at the Mamaroneck Studios, where the picture is being produced. The cast is largely the same as that selected for Al Jolson before he tendered his abrupt resignation from motion pictures

Title is Changed.

"The Master of Man" has become "The Judge and the Woman." The latter is the release title announced from the Goldwyn studios for Sir Hall Caine's famous novel which is being brought to the screen by Victor Seastrom, the noted Swedish director, as his first American production. The change was made necessary by the fact that several pictures have recently been released with titles similar to "The Master of Man." The cast of "The Judge and he Woman" includes: Conrad Nagel, Mae Busch, Patsy Ruth Miller, DeWitt Jennings, Aileen Pringle, Hobart Bosworth, and others.

After enjoying her first taste of working on location in the wilds of Yosemite Valley, Lenore Ulric returned to the Warner Studios to film interior scenes for the Belasco production, "Tiger Rose." During her absence the Warner sudio staff had built interior sets which were replicas of the exteriors of Yosemite.

Holubar Tells Of This Year's Plans

For the first time since he switched his directorial allegiance from First National to Metro, Allen Holubar this week gave out complete details concerning his coming year's work under his new million dollar contract.

Holubar's first picture will be "The Human Mill," to be adapted from the novel, "The Bishop of Cottontown," by John Trotwood Moore. The novel, which deals with the picturesque South during the reconstruction period following the Civil War, has been one of the season's best sellers and according to Joseph Engle, general manager of Metro, Holubar is to be given every opportunity to make it into a sure fire box office attraction.

"Life's Highway" is the release title chosen for Holubar's second picture, to be produced from the story "East of Suez," by E. Lloyd Sheldon, which as a stage play had a successful run in New York. This is a rapid fire story of love, romance and intrigue.

Holubar's third production will be "Robes of Redemption," from the story by Jane Hurrle. Holubar is personally preparing the adaptation.

Holubar began his directorial career with Carl Laemmle at Universal, where his "Heart of Humanity" was acclaimed as one of the greatest of the war period. He directed Dorothy Phillips in other big specials for the "U," and then became an independent producer, making the mammoth spectacle, "Man, Woman, Marriage" for First National release.

Later he made "Hurricane's Gal," the first of the sea stories that have come into so much vogue of late, which he followed with "The White Frontier," both starring Dorothy Phillips. "The White Frontier" was released in some territories as "Slander the Woman."

BUSTER COLLIER SIGNED TO SUPPORT MISS RHODES

The signing of Buster Collier to play the leading male role opposite Billie Rhodes in her first Grand-Asher feature, "Leave It to Gerry," indicates the character of the casts which Ben Wilson is supplying for his productions. Buster Collier, besides having the distinction of being the son of the veteran stage star, Willie Collier, Jr., is also a talented juvenile actor, with personality and individuality all his own. He plays a college youth in this production and plays in a genuine football game, besides doing some other stunts that are common to the campus. Aside from that, he makes love to Miss Rhodes and altogether has a very pleasing part.

Others in the cast include Claire McDowell, Kathleen Kirkham, Joseph W. Girard, Virginia Merwick, etc. Ben Wilson is personally handling the megaphone.

NIBLO ESPOUSES ROMANCE

Romance, like theeidelweiss, blossoms on the heights. Motion picture directors, like the psalmist, are lifting up their eyes unto the hills from whence cometh an answer to their prayers for romance.

Altameters are being installed on cameras. Directors are wearing feathers in their derbies and short-winded dramaturgiss with Alpine staves can be heard wheezing through the Hollywood hills at almost any hour.

Fred Niblo seems to have started it. He is going to the Pyrenees for his next production for Louis B. Mayer and Metro. The story is "Thy Name Is Woman," a stage play enacted by two men and a girl, against a background as majestically beautiful as ever took form in the Hand of the Mountain Maker.

There will be no art director. Creation took care of that. In settings designed by the Infinite Mind will be told a story of the emotions of three infinitesimal humans; all important to themselves, yet without the power to mould a pebble in the crucible of ages nor wither a leaf 'till winter comes.

Fred Niblo seems to be the unintending dictator of screen fashion. Toreadorial dramas followed his "Blood and Sand," domestic situations became the vogue after his "Famous Mrs. Fair," and pirate pictures are now being made to join his "Captain Applejack" when it is screened as "Strangers of the Night."

That other mountain stories will accompany his production of "Thy Name is Woman" is indicated. In fact, one producer was restrained with great difficulty from buying the rights to "Swiss Family Robinson."

HIZZONER MAY STAR IN PEGGY'S NEXT FILM

Judge Summerfield's famous divorce court will be one of the featured locales in "The Custody of the Child," which is to be Baby Peggy's next multiple reel starring vehicle to be produced by King Baggot. Baggot and the famous marital relations judge have been personal friends for a number of years and it is possible that "his honor" may appear in the film personally.

The story was written by King Baggot in collaboration with Ray Schrock, scenario editor at Universal City, and the preparation of the working script has beeen turned over to Lois Zellner. Actual production will start as soon as Baby Peggy finishes work on "The Burglar's Child," an adaptation of Frances Hodgson Burnett's "Editha's Burglar."

After King Baggot finishes work on the new Baby Peggy picture, it is possible he may be sent to England to film "Ivanhoe," or be placed in charge of young Julius Laemmle, who is said to have ambitions to star in the juvenile roles of Horatio Alger's famous novels of boyhood days.

ANOTHER NEW YORKER ENTERS LOCAL FIELD

Martin J. Heyl, who produced "The Little Red Schoolhouse" and acted as production manager for Madge Kennedy's "The Purple Highway," has come to Hollywood.

Mr. Heyl is one of the east's film production notables and this is his first trip to the coast.

He has associated himself with Choice Productions, Inc., as supervisor of production for "Satan's Secret," a six-part all-star special, now being filmed under the direction of William H. Clifford.

Arthur L. Todd, chief photographer for Maurice Tourneur productions, is the first to sport one of the new 1924 Rickenbacker coupes in Southern California.

THE FAMILY THREE

Dan Crimmins is the railroad construction boss in "Hospitality," the new Buster Keaton special, now in production.

Rosa Gare is doing a character part with Graf in Frisco in "Half-a-Dollar Bill," while Dannie Hoy (the son) is finishing his ninth week as a half wit Chinese boy in "Lord of the Thundergate," a First National production being directed by Joseph de Grosse at United.

Betty Wins Laurels.

As a result of the "find a motion picture star" instituted by local cameramen at the recent exposition, little Betty Lou Krause has attracted considerable attention among the producers. Selected from hundreds of children who were seeking screen tests, this petite little miss was awarded high honors, and possesses talent seldom found in a child of four.

Andrew Arbuckle Joins White Forces

By the signing of Andrew Arbuckle, noted screen and stage actor, Jack White has acquired one of the best known figures of the dramatic silver-sheet to appear in many future Mermaid productions.

What brother Maclyn has done for the Texas family of Arbuckles on the stage, brother Andrew is doing on the screen. His long list of screen characterizations in support of such stars as Mary Pickford, Wm. S. Hart, Charles Ray, and in many of the biggest feature successes, has brought the name of Andrew Arbuckle to film prominence.

Andrew Arbuckle finds in his return to the Fine Arts studio an unusual coincidence. Eight years ago he made his film debut at this studio under the direction of none other than D. W. Griffith. The picture was "Old Heidelberg." Andrew's success in this picture and subsequent Griffith productions, established him on the screen.

Brother Andrew began his stage career considerably before brother Maclyn. They were born in Galveston, Texas, and as the stage world knows, Maclyn was for many years a lawyer. At the age of fifteen Andrew, possessing a rich baritone voice, began a grand opera career. Eventually he essayed musical comedy and vaudeville, but finding the dramatic stage more lucrative, he wooed the thespic muse many years. It is a matter of brotherly love record that Andrew's greatest stage success was "The Sheriff's Christmas," written for him by brother Maclyn.

Andrew Arbuckle will make his first appearance this season on the Educational program with Lloyd Hamilton in "The Optimist." He will next be seen in the second Mermaid comedy produced by Jack White.

UNIT IS FORMED TO STAR EDDIE GRIBBON

John J. (Jack) Glavey, writer and producer, in conjunction with several well known local men, has formed Hollywood Enterprises and will shortly start upon the production of a series of comedies.

Eddie Gribbon, for years Sennett headliner, and who has recently had important roles in "Alias Julius Caesar," "A Tailor Made Man," "Crossed Wires" and "The Fourth Musketeer," has been signed to star in 12 two-reel comics.

Associated with Mr. Glavey in Hollywood Enterprises are Ray Gilliland, O. C. Monihan and James J. McNamara, former widely known detective, who was known as the "camera eye" of the Los Angeles force.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

John Griffith Wray kept Blanche Sweet, William Russell and George Marion, the three principal actors in "Anna Christie," which he is directing for Ince, rehearsing all one day for a scene which is probably the longest continual emotional scene in the films. They were then too tired for the filming, so Wray sent them home for a night's rest before using the camera.

Richard Dix has joined the pick and shovel gang, and it is no new task for him, either—all in the modern version of C. B. De Mille's "The Ten Commandments." As a school boy, Dix spent two summers working on a road gang, rising the second year to boss of his crew.

Eddie Phillips has started work as a young college boy, a leading role in "George Washington, Jr.," for Warner Brothers, before completing his underworld part of the Glad-Rags Kid in "The Daughter of Mother McGinn," for Cosmopolitan. However, the remaining scenes in the latter are night ones, so by strenuous work he can handle both at once.

Tom O'Brien has been loaned by Trimble-Murfin to Robertson-Cole for the leading character role of "LeMoyne," in "Born of the Cyclone," the adaptation of "Daughter of the Storm," the successful stage play, being directed by Emile Chautard.

Alyce Mills, who just completed "Below the Mason-Dixon Line," in which she will be featured, will make a number of personal appearances in conjunction with the picture. She will appear in Boston, Buffalo and her home town, Pittsburgh. Immediately upon her return to New York she will start work on "On a Side Street," her next feature for the independent market.

Joseph Schildkraut celebrated a birthday by giving a party at the studio, and was the guest at a dinner given that evening in his honor, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Schenk. Mr. Schildkraut is playing opposite Norma Talmadge in her latest feature.

Maurice (Lefty) Flynn is once again a football player, having signed to play the lead in "The Touchdown."

Following her remarkable work in "Loyal Lives," a Whitman Bennett production, Faire Binney has signed a two-year contract to make six special productions in the east.

Robert Edeson has just completed "Red Courage," in which he will be starred. Mr. Edeson will shortly leave for New York, where he will make two special features.

Bill Francy has been added to the cast of Joe Rock's latest Grand-Asher comedy, as yet untitled. Reggie Morris is director and Betty Gallagher is leading woman. Tom Murray, well known woman comedian, is also in the cast as the heavy.

Ben Lyon has been signed by First National for a series of pictures to extend over a period of five years.

Robert Edeson has been signed by Martin Hlye for a series of special productions. Mr. Edeson recently completed "The Silent Partner," which will shortly be released, and in which he will be featured.

The life of Charles Cruz, debonair juvenile leading man, seems to be made up of a series of "11's." He was born on the 11th of July, has 11 letters in his name, made his theatrical debut when he was 11 years old, has played important parts in 11 screen successes, was with the 11th Infantry in Kansas during the World War, and—oh, yes, the name of his favorite brand of cigarettes has the figure 11 in it.

Dorothea Wolbert, popular screen comedienne, who has just finished a twelve weeks' engagement at Universal as one of the principal players in Virginia Valli's latest picture, "A Lady of Quality," is the daughter of the late Capt. William A. Mintzer of the United States Navy, who figured so prominently and heroically in the historic battle between the Merrimac and the Monitor.

Peggy Cartwright, eight-year-old film artist, whom critics are prone to predict will become one of the brightest stars in the cinematic world, due to her remarkable ability to portray difficult dramatic roles, is to play the featured role in a new Jack White production.

Having recovered a mahogany makeup box and several other valuable things which were stolen from his home recently during his vacation at one of the Los Angeles beaches, Lewis Sargent is more at ease. He is now preparing to start work as one of the principal players in a new feature to be produced by Universal.

David J. Dunbar is the recipient of an offer to return to the legitimate stage. The producer of a stock company in Sydney, Australia, having viewed the actor's work in a recent film production, has become seriously impressed with Dunbar's magnetic personality and ability to meet difficult roles and has offered him one of the leading roles with his company. Dunbar, however, declares that he intends to concentrate his talents for the next few years at least on film work, where he has made an auspicious start and has every chance of becoming a featured player in the near future.

Ruby Miller, famous English stage and screen star, is the delighted possessor of a native Hawaiian costume, the gift of Princess Panga Panga of Hawaii.

Virginia Fox, one of the featured players in "Itching Palms," has just purchased a California bungalow in Laurel Canyon. A swimming pool will be one of the features of the property upon its completion.

Grace Darmond, one of the featured players in "Alimony," is spending a vacation of three weeks at Carmel-By-the-Sea, in company with Jean Acker.

When a director is in need of a real comedian to portray special character parts in his production, he usually sends out the call for Floyce Brown, one of the best known funsters of the silver-sheet. Miss Brown has portrayed over a hundred different parts in a similar number of features and has created many striking characters for the screen.

Von Eltz Celebrates.

Theodor Von Eltz is fittingly celebrating the third anniversary of his arrival in the film colony by playing the male lead in a picture, "The Tiger Rose," starring Lenore Ulrich, which promises to be one of the most notable of the Warner Brother classics. The young actor has played a variety of roles since he came to Hollywood, but as the manly engineer in "The Tiger Rose," he has an opportunity he has long coveted. For here is a splendid he-man role, brilliant and brainy, and since Mr. von Eltz is negotiating it with such credit, it bound to put him forward as stellar material.

Taurog Back With White.

Norman Taurog, one of the leading comedy directors in pictures today, made his start with Jack White several years ago when the latter rose to screen fame overnight as the director of the first "lion" comedy. Today Norman Taurog has rejoined Jack White to direct comedies under his supervision.

For three years he was responsible for the direction of many of Larry Semon's greatest film successes, and more recently he directed a series of Universal comedies which bring to the screen "Andy Gump" and the Gump family, of cartoon fame.

Taurog was first entrusted with the production of "Yankee Spirit," the initial Jack White production of a juvenile series of pictures for Educational release. He is now directing the second Mermaid comedy.

Moran With White.

Lee Moran, one of the leading comedy stars of the screen, has been signed by Jack White to play the featured role in a current Mermaid comedy under the direction of Fred Hibbard. The comedian has just completed a series of eight comedies in which he was starred by Universal. Jack White is surrounding Moran with an exceptionally strong cast in the comedy which marks his debut on Educational release. These include Ruth Hiatt, erstwhile Lloyd Hamilton's leading lady, Hank Mann, Andrew Arbuckle, Sunshine Hart, Robert McKenzie and Brownie, the dog.

Dangerous Days Ahead.

Vola Vale has received an offer to go to Mexico City and play the leading feminine role in an elaborate screen production glorifying the late bandit chieftain, Villa, which a group of Mexican financiers are planning to produce. Miss Vale is fearful that the screen players might all get killed off by Mexican rebels before the drama could be completed.

Phonographic Inspiration.

Finis Fox is using a phonograph in his editing room while cutting and editing his latest production, "Bag and Baggage," featuring Gloria Grey. Finis says the music from the phonograph acts as an inspiration to him, while editing the film, but it is more or less of a handicap when he is directing. Finis runs records of heavy operas when editing the tragic scenes, but puts on jazz records when cutting the comedy episodes.

Frankie Darrow Starring.

Talent wins out. This might with truth apply to the recent announcement issued from the Graf Productions Company offices that Frankie Darrow will be starred in their forthcoming play, "Half-a-Dollar Bill." Although Frankie is young in years, he has already packed a noteworthy lot of screen triumphs into his life under producers of national repute. However, it was Max Graf who capped them all with his offer to star the youthful actor on the merits of his screen work. Being the possessor of parents who were not forcing him into parts that were unsuited to his dynamic little personality for exploitation purposes, he has been somewhat slower in arriving, considering his talent, but the reward, his parents feel, is most gratifyin.

Returns to Filmland.

After a successful plunge into the financial world, where he has managed many campaigns, Doctor Roberts, well known member of the local film colony, has returned to filmland once more, ready to answer the director's call. Doctor Roberts is a distinct type of leading man and is also a clever delineator of character roles.

Christie to Make 20 Comedies This Year

The Christie organization will concentrate its efforts on but twenty two-reel comedies during the 1923-24 season, all productions to be released through Educational. Al Christie has outlined a program of variety that promises to outdo the preceding series which embraced themes varying from the bull rings of Mexico to the igloos of Alaska. The coming productions will deviate from stereotype locales and will be made in settings which heretofore have never been associated with comedy.

Walter Graham and Robert Hall have returned to assist Frank Conklin in the scenario department and the entire Christie staff has been strengthened in an effort to produce the best comedies in the market.

Christie announced that in the twenty pictures, Bobby Vernon will be starred in six, Jimmie Adams and Neal Burns in five each, and Dorothy Devore in four. Supporting these stars will be Vera Steadman, Charlotte Merriam, Teddy Sampson, Patricia Palmer, Babe London, Natalie Joyce, and Jimmie Harrison. Those who have been playing character parts will be retained; they consist of: Earl Rodney, Lincoln Plumer, Ward Caulfield, George French, George Burton, Bob North and Roy Weston.

Al Christie, Harold Beaudine and Scott Sidney will assume the directorial responsibilities of the new series, the first of which, "Navy Blues," directed by Harold Beaudine, is at the present time receiving its final polishing in the editorial department. "Done in Oil" is now in production and will soon be ready for the cutting room.

NEWCOMER FINDS SOME BIG THRILLS HERE

Lela Sue Campbell, just cast for an important role in "Born of the Cyclone" at Robertson-Cole studio, is almost a newcomer in Hollywood. She admits that her greatest thrills in the film capital since her arrival a few months ago includes:

The time she saw Bull Montana walking down the street, dressed in his loudest clothes, and thought he was a fire alarm.

The time she thought publicity would help her get into the movies and decided to get lost. After two days she gave it up, because no one knew she was missing.

The time she talked with the one and only Charlie Chaplin, only to learn a few minutes later that she had been conversing with one of four hundred and ten Chaplin imitators who roam Hollywood streets.

OFF FOR GRAND BANKS

Robert Fraser, popular leading man who was recently placed under contract by Louis B. Mayer, has been selected by the producer for the star role in "Women Who Wait," a screen version of the old New England classic, "Cape Cod Folks," which is to be made by Reginald Barker as a big film spectacle.

Accompanied by Percy Hilburn, who has been chief cameraman for Reginald Barker for the past six years, Mr. Fraser recently left for the East, where all of the atmospheric shots as well as many of the thrilling scenes will be made. After a brief stop in New York, where Hilburn will choose his corps of cameramen, equipment and a supporting cast of prominent players, they will proceed to Boston. There, boats will be chartered and a number of scenes made, and then the company will go on to the famous Grand Banks off Newfoundland, where the big water episodes will be shot.

The securing of these scenes is principally a matter of patience and courage on the part of the cameraman and the star. Among the episodes to be filmed at Grand Banks are a storm at sea, photographed from aboard ship, action scenes on the deck with the fishing fleet at Grand Banks as background, and the harpooning of a huge swordfish as it leaps from the water. With luck, these shots might be gotten in a few weeks, but, allowing for the incompatibility of the lordly swordfish and the uncertain temperament of the elements, it will probably be months before the necessary scenes are obtained.

Mr. Barker is busily engaged at the present time on the filming of "Pleasure Mad" for future Mayer-Metro release, but he will take the production of "Women Who Wait" actively in hand as soon as the Atlantic Coast scenes have been filmed, according to a statement of Irving G. Thalberg, vice-president and production head of the Mayer organization.

BERNARD DURNING ILL IN NEW YORK CITY

Bernard Durning, well known Fox director, is now in a New York hospital dangerously ill with typhoid fever.

Mr. Durning left Hollywood a short time ago to direct a new William Fox picture in New York, which has as its stars the famous Gallagher and Shean, and captioned "Around the Town wih Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean."

The director's illness has assumed such a sreious aspect that Director Tom Buckingham was hurriedly rushed to New York from the Fox Hollywood studios to finish the picture.

Miss Shirley Mason, diminutive Fox star, who in private life is Mrs. Durning, is in New York with her husband.

PRESS AGENT'S SON IS SERIOUSLY BURNED

William E. Thomas, fourteen-year-old son of Edward C. Thomas, publicity representative for Louise Lorraine and Henry Lehrman, was seriously burned this week through the ignition of a large package of flashlight powder. The sudden burst of flame struck him full in the face, and also did considerable injury to his hands.

A traffic officer at Western Avenue and Pico street called an ambulance and the injured boy was rushed to the Receiving Hospital, where preliminary treatment was given by the surgeons in charge. He was afterward taken to his home at 1262 Fifth Avenue.

At last reports William was resting easily, although it is impossible to tell at this time what effect the flame has had on his eyesight.

FRANCIS FORD STUDIO SOLD AT BIG PROFIT

The Francis Ford studio, located at 6044 Sunset Boulevard, between Gordon street and Beachwood drive, Hollywood, has been sold to Morris R. Schenck, film distributor.

The price paid has not been made public, but it is understood that the consideration was six times greater than Mr. Ford paid William Horsley for the plant about three years ago.

The property is at present being used by Choice Productions, Inc., to produce a series of "special" photoplays, and according to Geo. M. Mitchell, president of Choice, his firm will retain possession of the plant until the Choice lease expires, or about another year.

GRIFFITH AND CHAPLIN WIN IN ENGLAND

D. W. Griffith and Charlie Chaplin are the favorites of the British film going public, according to cable reports of a popularity contest completed last week by The Sunday Pictorial.

"Way Down East" was declared the most popular picture by the voting which was carried on throughout the British Isles. "Orphans of the Storm" was named the second most popular picture. The British film goers selected Charlie Chaplin's "The Kid" as the third favorite.

"Orphans of the Storm" has received the highest honors ever given to a picture, having been declared the best picture of last year through a vote of the motion picture critics throughout the country.

The voting in the British Isles included every important American picture which had been shown in this country prior to March.

Plans Comedies Like Drews Made

E. W. Hammons, president of Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., is about to introduce to the public a new brand of comedies, bearing the Educational trademark. These will be known as Tuxedo Comedies, and they will be six in number.

Mr. Hammons believes there is a distinct place on motion picture programs for a series of polite comedies such as were made by the late Mr. Sidney Drew and his wife. Tuxedo Comedies will fill that place, he believes.

These comedies will be designed as situation comedies and will occupy a place in the amusement scale between the light farce and slapstick. The comedy situations will be built up carefully and logically to a comedy climax. It is intended to use sets built upon the same scale used in big feature productions, and as much careful attention will be given these short pictures as is given to making the longer features.

Ned Sparks and Harry Tighe will make their debut in the first release of this series, which will be called "Easter Bonnets." Sparks has had the leading parts in a number of farces produced by Al Woods and has appeared in support of Constance Talmadge in a number of her late comedies. Tighe is best known as a member of the vaudeville team of Tighe & Clifford, and is making his initial appearance before the camera. "Poodles" Hanneford, famous Hippodrome riding clown, has been engaged and will appear in a number of later releases.

The Tuxedo Comedies are being produced by Reel Comedies, Inc., here.

CLEMENCEAU PICTURE READY FOR RELEASE

The film version of "The Veil of Happiness," an exceptionally novel and gripping story, written by Georges Clemenceau, former Premier of France and commonly known as the "Tiger," has been completed and a print of this new feature has been received by Edward L. Klein, of the Edward L. Klein Company, New York City, who will arrange for the distribution of it.

The story, which has an Oriental background, is intensely interesting and out of the ordinary, with exceptional exploitation possibilities. The picture opens with a view of the "Tiger" visiting the studio, and supervising the sets during the filming of his story, and the shots of this "grand old man of France" are followed by his first filmed story.

Clemenceau, who is as well known in America as he is in France, at one time lived in New York, in Greenwich Village, on the site now occupied by the Sheridan Theatre.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, August 29

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr. Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Wilson	All-Star	Linden-Stevens	Geo. Carter	A. Statter	"Leave It to Gerry"	2nd Week
Dearholt Productions.
Arthur Rosson	Ed Cobb-Helen Rosson	Al. Gosden	W. McGaugh	L. Whitcomb	5-Reel Western	2nd Week
Neva Gerber Productions
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave. 598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr. Wilshire 4275
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting Holly 2814
Jack Blystone	Buster Keaton	E. Lessley-Thorp	Rose	Mitchell	"Hospitality"	8th Week
Lou Anger Productions.
HARRY KEATON PRODUCTIONS. 302 Luckenbach Bldg.
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd. 593576
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Raymond Rounsaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"Hogan of Hollywood"	4th Week
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Rounsaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"Milkman of Hollywood"	2nd Week
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting. Holly 96
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al Herman	All-Star	Wm. Hyer	Herman	Herman	"My Pal"	1st Week
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave. Holly 4070
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd. Martin J. Heyl, Prod. Mgr. 439-764
W. H. Clifford	All-Star	Ray June	Warren Fromme	W. H. Clifford	Feature Story	Editing
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr. Holly 3100
Sidney	Dorothy Devore	Gus Peterson	Jim Clemens	Graham	2-Reel Comedy	3rd Week
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr. Wilshire 2115
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General.
	All-Star			Staff	"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
Irving Cummings Productions. Holly. Sec. Bank Bldg.
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd. E. H. Allen, Gen. Mgr. Scotty Cleethorpe, Casting. 598-165
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Mermaid Comedies)
Taurog	Conley	Meehan	Taylor	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Kerr	All-Star	Meehan	Linkoff	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Hibbard	Lee Moran	Corby	Sharpless	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Novelty Juveniles)
Pratt	All-Star	Neehan	Dewar	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Lloyd Hamilton Corp. (Educational Release)
FOX STUDIO. James Ryan, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr. Holly 3000
Edmund Mortimer	John Gilbert	Don Short	McKenzie	John Russel	"The Exiles"	2nd Week
Mayo	Stock	Sid Wagner	Jas. Tinling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Jim Summerville	Stock	J. A. Schmidt	Arthur Cohn		Comedies	Schedule
Eric Kenton	Lew Brice	Vic Scheurich	Max Gold		Comedies	Schedule
Henry Otto	Phylis Haver	Joe August	Hollinghead	Carr	"The Temple of Venus"	Editing
Roberts-Foy	Stock	Jay Turner	Bob Tansey		Comedies	Schedule
Lambert Hillyer	Tom Mix	D. Clark	Manter	Robt. T. Lee	"A Flyin' Fool"	3rd Week
Jack Ford	All-Star	Don Short	W. Mayo	John Russell	"Hoodman Blind"	2nd Week
Wm. Wellman	Buck Jones	Schoenberman	H. Hough	Fred & Fanny Hatton	"Big Dan"	2nd Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd. Holly 2632
Rocky Mt. Production Co.
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 81
Metro Release.
GOLDEN WEST STUDIO. 4011 Lankershim Blvd. Lankershim 132-J
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	Wm. Fairbanks	R. Price	Harry Tenbrook	Staff	"Blind Bargains"	Editing
Duke Worne	Snowy Baker	Price	Harry Tenbrook	Staff	"Castles in Spain"	1st Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager. Holly 162
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
H. Edwards	Monte Banks	B. Williams	Goodman	Staff	"The Golf Bug"	2nd Week
Herman Raymaker	Monte Banks	Bill Williams	Goodman	Staff	Untitled	Editing
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Chas. Lamont	Sid Smith	K. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	Big Game	Editing
Chas. Lamont	Sid Smith	K. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	"Make It Snappy"	2nd Week
Joe Rock Productions.
Reggis Morris	Joe Rock	Jerry Ash	Murray Rock	Morris	Comedy	1st Week

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						761711
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStroheim	"Greed"	23rd Week
Victor Seastrom	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Chas. Lapworth	Paul Bern	"The Judge and the Woman"	11th Week
Rupert Hughes	All-Star	John Mescall	Albert Kelly	Rupert Hughes	"Law Against Law"	3rd Week
King Vidor	All-Star	John Boyle	James Dugan	King Vidor	"Wild Oranges"	2nd Week
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6642 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Finis Fox Productions. R. R. Beaty, Gen. Mgr.
Richard Thomas Productions.
William P. S. Earle Picture Inc. Dick L'Estrange, Prod. Mgr.
Supreme Art Productions. Chas. J. Hall
Irving Productions. W. H. Carr, Production Manager.
Jack O'Brien	All-Star	D. Jennings	Cy Clegg	Frank Beresford	"Trapped"	1st Week
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.						438-740
Horner	All-Star	Geo. Meehan	Middleton	Horner		Casting
World Educational Films.
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	"The Forty Niner"	Preparing
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Seeling	Geo. Larkin	Elmer Dyer	Van Pelt	Staff	"The Gentleman Unafraid"	3rd Week
Van Felt	All-Star	Elmer Dyer		Seeling	Special	Casting
Hercules Film Productions, Inc. P. Andrews, Mgr. 1442 Beachwood Drive.
	Arthur Paul	J. Charles	L. Feldman	Staff	"Fighting Blood"	Preparing
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Palmer Photoplay Productions.
Cortland Productions
Trimble-Murfin Productions.
Lawrence Trimble	Strongheart	G. B. Dreyer	Cyril Gardner	Donna Barrell	"White Fang"	27th Week
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	5th Week
LASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vine St.						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Cecil B. DeMille	Featured	Bert Glennon	H. Tate	J. McPherson	"The Ten Commandments"	11th Week
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Ernest Haller	John Boland	Tom Geraghty	"The Light That Failed"	7th Week
Al. E. Green	Thos. Meighan	Chas. Clark	Fred J. Robinson	Edford Bingham	"Woman-Proof"	4th Week
Jos. Henabery	Doug. Fairbanks, Jr.	Chas. Schoenbaum	Dick Johnson		"Stephen Steps Out"	4th Week
Albert S. Lebino					"Wm. Hart in Wild Bill Hickok	1st Week
Zane Grey Productions.
Victor Fleming	Dix-Wilson			Doris Schroeder	"The Call of the Canyon"	2nd Week
McNAMARA STUDIOS. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Lincoln 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro Release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star	A. Wyckoff	Harry Schenck	A. P. Younger	"Pleasure Mad"	Editing
B. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
Gasnier	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"Maytime"	2nd Week
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	John Arnold	Chas. Watt	Basil Dickey	"In Search of a Thrill"	4th Week
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Allen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar					"The Human Mill"	Preparing
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	10th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford	O'Connell	Alex Gower	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	6th Week
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Louis Tolhurst				Walter Anthony	Microscopic Motion Pictures	Schedule
Alf. Goulding	Harry Langdon	Albert Breslau	David Smith	Harry Langdon	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Benny Zeidman Productions.
Ed Cline	Joe Butterworth	Wm. Marshall	Frank Geraghty	Grey Carr	"The Good Bad Boy"	3rd Week
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Eddie Hearn			Wyndam Gittens	"The Sand Pile"	Preparing
Lehrman	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"Wages of Cinema"	Schedule
Emile Chautard	Derelys Perdue	Joseph Dubrey		Beahan-Stillson	"Born of the Cyclone"	3rd Week
					"Jack of Diamonds"	Preparing
					"Drucilla With a Million"	Preparing
					"Alex the Great"	Preparing
Chester Bennett Productions.
Chester Bennett	Jane Novak	Jack MacKenzie	Doug S. Dawson	Loring-Leighton	"The Lullaby"	Editing
Douglas MacLean Productions
Jimmy Horne	Douglas MacLean				"The Yankee Consul"	Preparing
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr., 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Howe-Cedar	"Paul" Parrott	Frank Young	Henecke-Brandie		Comedies	Schedule
McGowan	All-Star	Harry Gerstadt	C. Morehouse		"Our Gang"	Schedule
Ralph Cedar	Stan Laurel				1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Roy Clemens	Edna Murphy	Bobby Doran	McBurney		"What Should a Girl Do?"	Schedule
Lon Powers	Dippy Doo Dads	Hank Kohler	Bert Currigan		Animal Comedy	Schedule
Chas. Parrott	Will Rogers	Bob Dorrin	Chas. Oelze		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
Phil Rosen	All-Star	Kurrle-Broening	Al. Davis	Francis Marion	"Life of Abraham Lincoln"	Schedule
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSEL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945-6
Al. Nietz	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	1st Week
Logan-Baynham Productions.
Tom Gibson	Morante	MacManigal	Kane-Walsh		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. D. Seitz	Ray-Miller	Walker-Moran	Wm. Bertram	Seitz	"The Way of a Man"	Schedule
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Wils. 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
Campbell	Johnnie Lucas	Staub		Mack Sennett	"Rough and Ready"	7th Week
Del Lord	Ben Turpin	Blake Wagner		Mack Sennett	"The Extra Man"	3rd Week
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Louis B. Mayer Productions, Clune's Studio, 5360 Melrose Ave.
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Heerman	Constance Talmadge	Glen McWilliams	E. Brophy	Willard Mack	"The Dangerous Maid"	9th Week
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Dust of Desire"	4th Week
Sam E. Rork Productions.
First National Productions.
McDermott Chaplin	All-Star		James Chapin	Wm. Dowlin	"Temporary Marriage"	3rd Week
Jack Dillon	All-Star		Jimmy Dunn	Dowlin	"Flaming Youth"	6th Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Maurice Tourneur	All-Star	Arthur Todd	Scott R. Beal	Fred Myton	"Jealous Fools"	4th Week
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig Casting.						570-081
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Archainbaud	Priscilla Dean		McCarey-Wyler		"The Storm Daughter"	7th Week
Herbert Blache	Gladys Walton		Sullivan	Hugh Hoffman	"The Near Lady"	Preparing
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson	Robinson	Clarke	Geo. Plympton	"The Steel Trail"	10th Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Baby Peggy		Wright		"The Burglar's Kid"	Editing
Robt. N. Bradbury			Nordlinger		"Riders of the Moon"	5th Week
Wm. Craft	All-Star		Taylor-Ricks		"Beasts of Paradise"	6th Week
Ed. Sedgwick	Hoot Gibson	Miller	Cummel	Sedgwick-Schrock	"The Extra Man"	2nd Week
Nat Ross	Roy Stewart	Asher	Webb		"The Man Tracker"	3rd Week
Wm. Parke	Herbert Rawlinson		Dorian		"The Noblest Roman"	Preparing
Leon Lee Productions. Leon Lee Manager.
Dinky Dean Productions. Lew Lipton, Production Manager.
Andy Gump Productions.
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen Mgr.						598131
Dave Smith Productions.
Dave Smith	All-Star	D. Smith, Jr.	Bill Dagwell	J. P. Smith	"The Man From Brodneys"	2nd Week
Larry Semon Productions.
L. Semon	L. Semon	Konekamp	Joe Basil	Semon	Comedy	2nd Week
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 4181
Warner Brothers Productions.
Mal St. Clair	Wesley Barry	E. B. Dupar	Geo. Webster		"George Washington, Jr."	3rd Week
Johnny Hines	Johnny Hines	Chas. Gilson	C. Hines-Roth		"Conductor 1492"	3rd Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Marsh Gillingwater		Tenny Wright		"Daddies"	Scheduled Sept 1st
Harry Beaumont	John Barrymore	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Beau Brummel"	Sept. 1st
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Sidney Franklin	Lenore Ulric	Chas. Rosher	Wm. McGann	Edmund Goulding	"Tiger Rose"	6th Week
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernest Lubitsch	All-Star	Homer Scott	Flood Blanke		"The Marriage Circle"	Scheduled Aug. 14th
Harry Rapf Productions.
Jack Conway	Monte Blue-Irene Rich	David Abel	Sutherland-Hawkes		"Loveless Marriages"	3rd Week
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WILNAT STUDIO. 6090 Sunset Blvd. Al. Brandt, Mgr.						Holly 7940
E. J. Le Saint	All-Star	King Grey	Geo. E. Reehm		"The Marriage Market"	2nd Week

DR. W. L. SCHUSTER
Chiropractor—Nerve Specialist
"Where the sick go to get well"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

WHEN YOU NEED A DOCTOR
Phone 572-88; 430-205, or Holly 102-82.
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Formerly of New York City
6548 Hollywood Blvd. Near Armstrong & Carlton's.

From Hollywood to Down-Town Hotels
$2
or Shopping District
578-280 SUNSET TAXI 578-307

"Phon-O-Grams"

Edited by Gene Woolway

Charles Cruz

Juvenile Leads

Holly 5146

Alice Day

Ingenue Leads

Holly 7111

Marceline Day

Ingenue-Comedienne

Holly 7111

Charlotte DuPuis

Ingenue-Characters

Holly 2570

Lorraine Eason

Ingenue Leads

575-91

Kenneth Gibson

Juvenile Leads

578-311

Margaret Morris

Leads-Ingenues

437-815

Bert Sprotte

Characters

741-64

MAY McAVOY DOUBLES FOR HER OWN DOUBLES

Doubling for her doubles is the latest feat performed by May McAvoy, the star of "Her Reputation," Thomas H. Ince's latest production, which will be released by First National this fall.

While the Ince film company was on location at Yuma, Arizona, where some spectacular scenes of a great river flood were made, Director John Griffith Wray took the precaution of having two doubles for Miss McAvoy—a boy and a girl—for some of the dangerous shots of the flood sequence.

For one shot the star was supposed to drive a pair of horses across a narrow neck of land through surging waters. Director Wray arranged to have a flood gate of the Yuma dam opened so that about two feet of water came flooding over the neck of land which had been chosen. the girl double was tried out first and the rush of water made her so dizzy she fainted. The boy was hastily costumed and tried next but he didn't know how to handle the nervous horses which nearly ran away with him.

The director was wracking his brains how to make the script complete without that particular shot when Miss McAvoy appeared, costumed and in screen make-up and calmly got into the buggy driving across through the rising waters as nonchalantly as if she had been handling horses all her life.

Yes, He Had No Bananas.

Antonio Guiseppe Dannaninzio, an Italian peanut vender, enjoyed a prosperous day at the Goldwyn studios, when he worked in Tod Browning's production of "The Day of Faith." The Italian was not content with his salary check alone, for he brought his popcorn and peanuts along. Between scenes, he sold popcorn and peanuts to such notables as Eleanor Boardman, Tyrone Power, Raymond Griffith, Ford Sterling, Jane Mercer, Wallace MacDonald, Charles Conklin, Edward Martindel, Winter Hall and Jack Curtis. Dannaninzio said he might have made even more money, but he had no bananas.

SUGGESTS MOVIE TEST FOR "TRUTH SERUM"

In the interests of science, Edmund Lowe, Goldwyn leading man who is now playing in Emmett Flynn's "In The Palace of The King," suggests that the following tests be made with scopolamin, the "truth serum." He wants injections of the serum made:

To all assistant directors when they agree with the chief.

To all motion picture "yessers" when they have replied in the affirmative for the nth time.

To all actors when they tell the director they are ill just when night work is scheduled.

To all visitors who tell the actor they have just met that they "think he's the greatest hero on the screen."

To all publicity men when they say "there's nothing to the rumor."

His Waiting Wins.

John R. Ralesco is one of the strongest believers in that well-known saying "everything comes to him who waits," so he took things easy hereabouts for about six months before he even tried to get a job at any of the studios. After he learned the ways and means through which juvenile actors were given opportunities to disport their real acting wares, and he became acquainted with directors and producers, alike, he landed his chance at the Principal Pictures studios, with Harry Langdon in a two-reel situation comedy.

Eddie Dippy Dennis did one of his funny characters in a Roy Stewart picture at Universal City the other day, and while cutting up, he did a fall down 18 steps and turned his ankle, and is hobbling around now, and funny as it may seem, the next role he had to play was one where he was supposed to be a cripple.

Ernest Traxler, production manager, Eric von Stroheim Productions, left for Death Valley, where von Stroheim expects to take some of the very dramatic scenes of "Greed."

UNUSUAL PROPOSITION

I have a hillside plot of about one acre not far from Grauman's, and in a good section. Its approach is practically level from Hollywood Blvd., but you have a fine view of the city and ocean from the house site. Think of it! an acre plot IN Hollywood, with a grand view and level approach. This is the BEST buy IN Hollywood, not only as to price, but as to site as well. This is your OPPORTUNITY. Grab it. Phone 578-826.

. . . yes, they've got a new phone number. Hereafter, when you want reservations for the Friday night fights, phone Hollywood 0102. You bet, they're getting better right along . . .

American Legion Stadium
Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

KING TUT FACE POWDER
in light and dark shades. Suitable for street or studio. Attractively priced at $1.00 Box.
YE RUB SHOPPE
621 West 8th St., Los Angeles, Calif.
Phone Metropolitan 1566

Hugh Hoffman
Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip," "Crossed Wires," "The Town Scandal," "Sawdust," "The Untameable," "The Wild Party."

HAIRGONE—permanent cure for superfluous hair on arms, limbs, face and body. Also wonderful for men who have shaving troubles. $2.50 the bottle, manufactured at
ORCHID BEAUTY SHOPPE
808 So. Hope St. Phone 16596
All lines of beauty culture.

WE MOVE THE MOVIES
and Shine on Service
Hollywood 2672 • SAMUEL C. SHINE • 6568 Santa Monica Blvd.
General Trucking and Hauling

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography
LITTLE
Commercial Photographer
Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

Animated Cartoons — Original Title Ideas — Clay Animation — Miniature Sets and Animated Figures
CINEMA ARTS STUDIO
ELMER H. YOUNG, Manager
6615½ SANTA MONICA BOULEVARD

Frank the Shoe Doctor
"We save your sole and heel you, too"
6666 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3752

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660
KWIK LUNCH
SERVES U RITE
1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

Aeroplane Plus Camera

(Continued from Page 5)

Secretaries Hoover, Work and Wallace, and Attorney-General Daugherty.

Harding is pictured, tired and ill, on his arrival at San Francisco; there are views of the hotel suite in which the President died, of the sick room staff; crowds watching bulletin boards.

There are many scenes en route, with crowds awaiting the funeral train at stopping points. Scenes at Marion, O., show the Marion Star building draped in black. The reel also contains scenes in Washington and New York, following news of the President's death.

Blanche Sweet Looks Her Worst as "Anna"

Not a few of even her devoted admirers among film fans, will fail to recognize in the "Anna Christie" of the screen, the fair person of Blanche Sweet.

As the bedraggled heroine of Eugene O'Neil's celebrated play created on the stage by Pauline Lord, Miss Sweet appears at her worst—as far as looks are concerned.

For over a month she studied the character of "Anna Christie" before she started work on the play at the Ince studio. Her make-up is the result of considerable experiment and offers a striking contrast to that which she discloses in "In the Palace of the King," her last film just finished, wherein she portrrays the beautiful and exquisitely gowned queen of ancient Spain.

"Shooting on "Anna Christie" is now well under way. According to the predictions of the newspaper and magazine critics, "Anna Christie" will prove Miss Sweet's most notable contribution to the screen since her "Judith" for D. W. Griffith.

Henry Kotani, for some years cameraman at Lasky Studio, Hollywood, is now president of the Henry Kotani Productions, with home office at 3 Chome Naniwacho Dairen, branch office at 4 Maruyacho Kyobashiku, Tokyo, with studios at Manchuria, China.

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS
GET RESULTS

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell Camera. Carl Zeirr Lenses. Full studio equipment. $25.00 per week. Ralph Yarger, 13098 or 582-062.

MOVING PICTURE ACTORS—For ten days go to 428 South Grand. Phone 19282. Large selection Character, Dress and Business Clothing. Miscellaneous articles. Must sell immediately.

TYPIST—Young man with switchboard and general office experience. Studio work only. Chas. McNavin. 578-182.

Authentic and Unusual Oriental Properties
Oriental Costume Co.
6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

LOCAL — SEMI-NATIONAL — FULL NATIONAL — INTERNATIONAL
OUR PERSONAL PUBLICITY AR-EXCELLENT
POSITIVELY PUTS PICTURE PEOPLE IN PERMANENT PUBLIC FAVOR
STAR FOR A STAR
Write for particulars, or see
GENE WOOLWAY
P. O. Box 176, Hollywood Station
Or, in care of
Camera!
2nd. Floor, 6318 Hollywood Blvd.,
HOLLYWOOD Calif.
PHONE 439-869

SCREEN TESTS
Don't let blue eyes worry you. Some blue eyes photograph dark—yours may be that kind. A screen test will tell you, and it only costs 25c a FOOT. Call 431-929.
BRUNO STUDIOS
6412 Hollywood Blvd.

ART LEE
SPECIALIST ON MAKE-UP
Will teach you how to Make Up Correctly. Read my references
Telephone 598-207
1712 St. James Court, Hollywood, at Western

Wanted: Productions From $50,000 to $100,000
I have just returned from New York and am in the market for some real pictures. I can sell your productions outright. See me for quick release.
H. and B. FILM COMPANY
Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275

FAN PICTURES

beautifully colored at very low cost. I have special rates for this type of work and the greatest care is taken to insure absolute perfection. Investigate this now!

EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38.

Walter Frederick Seely
Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

MARION WARDE

Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films

Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing

423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

Hollywood Scenario Exchange
5617 Hollywood Blvd.
Phone 431-420
EXCLUSIVE CALIFORNIA REPRESENTATIVES for THE AMERICAN AND CONTINENTAL COMPANY, Paris, France, agents for well known French plays and published works, including the late Bernhardt's successes.

YOUR PHONOGRAPH
will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a

Deflexograph

Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles.

Play after hours—will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.

GOLD PLATE.....$1.50 (See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE....$1.00
VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law
JACK P. LEONARD
340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

FAME EASIER TO ATTAIN IN U. S. THAN IN ENGLAND

Motion picture players have an easier road to fame in the United States than in England, according to Evelyn Brent, popular English actress born in this country.

"American motion picture artists have much greater opportunities for achieving fame than those in England," says Miss Brent. "By this I do not mean that American players do not have to work as hard as English artists to achieve success, but that the scope afforded American players is greater than that offered our English colleagues.

"In the first place, the technical aids afforded the acting profession here are greater and much further advanced than those in England. there are many camera and technical tricks employed in this country that considerably assist the player in achieving a great work.

"The method of exploitation in the United States makes it possible for a player to become known practically over night. It is nothing unusual for an actor or actress to become a popular favorite in less than a year. In England this is not possible. At the end of several years the player may reach the top, but never does he or she attain that position of worship among the fans accorded American celebrities.

"By this I do not mean that the English movie fans do not appreciate the efforts of their players. Far be it. However, the fact that the stars who are the greatest favorites in England are Americans in American made pictures, illustrates more clearly than anything else, the situation.

"Americans in England with American ideas of exploitation are constantly strengthening the popularity of American stars.

"Just as in the old days in this country, many American film players, though popular with the fans, were not known by name, so in England are many players whose names are hardly known to the public ,yet whose personalities are popular.

"The entire situation hinges itself upon the fact that England is far behind America in motion pictures in their every branch. This must not be considered in the light of discredit to English filmdom. The war killed film making in England for a long time, while Americans were able to improve themselves. England had no such opportunity. When the war was over England started again where she left off and found America, naturally, had progressed in the meantime, not only in the production of pictures, but in every branch of the industry."

"BEFORE THE WAR"—DO YOU RECALL THE DAYS WHEN—

Frank Mayo played his first bit in Selig's "The Lure of the Windigo";

Richard Stanton did "True Irish Hearts" for Kay Bee;

Frank Grandon directed Kathlyn Williams in "The Adventures of Kathlyn";

Charles Ray, Raymond Cannon and Frank Borzage spent weeks threading perilous, horseback ways through the cactus on the Kay Bee ranch, later Inceville, in Burton King's ancient westerns;

Lillian Leighton was "knocking 'em dead" in split reel comedies for Selig;

Victor Potel and Harry Todd were Slippery Slim and Mustang Pete in Essanay's Snakeville series;

Charlie Chaplin, minus the moustache and makeup, was supporting Ford Sterling in Keystones;

Cecil Holland was assisting "Walnuts" Ed Martin;

Mildred Harris, Winifred Westover, Pauline Stark, Alma Rubens, Colleen Moore, and Zasu Pitts were vestal virgins in the King's court of "Intolerance";

Al Green was assistant director on the first "Spoilers?"

Coy Watson, Jr.
Age 10 Wilshire 3616
No Luck.
You Never Know.
Right of the Strongest
Featured in Campbell Comedies

CHIROPODIST
FOOT SPECIALIST
Dr. Earl A. Davis
6514 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD
Hours 9 to 5. Holly 0259.

—for good photos for the casting director, consult BRUNO, at 6412 Hollywood Boulevard, whose telephone number is 431-929.

COLBURN'S
Taxidermy Studio
Phone 643-13
1033-37 Broadway Place

. . . excells in mounting of fish . . . trout our specialty . . . see samples at our studio . . .

Especially for Motion Picture People.
THE HILLVIEW GRILL
Hillview Apartments Bldg.
Hollywood at Hudson
Holly 7980 Holly 6626
MERCHANTS' LUNCH, 11:30 to 2
DINNER 5:30 to 8

SCREEN SERVICE
(formerly The Service Bureau)
1036 SOUTH HILL
Phone 821-071

Selected Antiques
Turton's Antique Shop
5611 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Cal.

IT has been our privilege to witness the growth of the motion picture industry from its earliest days. Many of the famed artists who numbered among our first patrons have gone, and a myriad new faces have come to the cinema since our inception. Yet passing time has not dimmed our enthusiasm, nor the insistence that every article that goes out of our shop shall be of the utmost quality. The confidence the professional people have reposed in us demands that we continue to contribute our best efforts in increased measure. We shall keep faith with our steadfast friends, whose loyalty has been the means of our progress.

ZAN MAKE-UP SHOP
819 South Hill ····· Pico 498

RENALLES, INC.

Clarke Renalle
President

6529 Venice Blvd.
Culver City

100 PER CENT TITLES, 100 PER CENT SERVICE AT THE RIGHT PRICE

Dress up that next production with artistic Hand Lettered Titles made by IRVING W. BUNZE.
If you want Perfect Symbolic Art Backgrounds, let us make them. Neil E. McQuire, formerly with Ince & Prizma, does our art work.
For perfect black and white titles, try our PROCESS SYSTEM.
A telephone call will bring our representative with samples.

Quality Title & Film Co.

1442 BEECHWOOD DRIVE HOLLY 4850

HERE'S A WORLD OF STRANGE HISTORIES

Even the players of the secondary roles in support of Jackie Coogan in his first Metro production, "Long Live the King," possess uniquely interesting background and experience. Take Monti Collins, for example, he confesses that his childhood desire was to see the world and he has spent fifty years satisfying this ambition. Sam Appel was born in Mexico—that's enough adventure for any man. Sidney D'Albrook is an old-time trouper by heredity— his father was a well-known musical director, his mother dancer in her day. George Bax was born in Natal, Africa, and has played on the stages of every civilized country—and a few not so very civilized. Will Machin is English, the son of two generations of theatrical managers, who preceded his stage experience abroad with service as an officer in the British army. Ruth Handforth is an alumna of the original D. W. Griffith's stock company; Loretta McDermott is vaudeville's latest offering on the altar of film fame.

Add these experiences to those enjoyed by Jack Coogan senior, director Victor Schertzinger, studio manager Ed. A. Biby, art director J. J. Hughes, research director W. van Brincken and the principal players of Jackie's cast—and you have a wealth of anecdotal background that would have delighted Balzac or our own O. Henry.

General Lauds Picture.

"The Covered Wagon" has received the unqualified endorsement of General Henri Joseph Eugene Gouraud, French war hero who visited Los Angeles recently, accompanied by his staff officers, American War Department representatives, officials and members of the Rainbow Division veterans. A special showing of this James Cruze production for Paramount was arranged at Grauman's Hollywood Theatre for General Gouraud and a party of forty. Frequent applause interrupted the picture and mounted to an ovation at the conclusion. In congratulating Charles Eyton, Paramount's Western general manager, General Gouraud said: "Ever since I came to America I have been trying to see 'The Covered Wagon.' Everywhere I have heard of it. Often what one hears about motion pictures is deception, but in this case there was no deception."

Betty Blythe has left Berlin where she recently completed "Chu Chin Chow," and is journeying to England to attend the premiere showing of the production. Miss Blythe will make one more English feature before returning to the U. S.

We wish to announce that

Lichtig & Rothwell, Inc.

have dissolved by mutual consent.

The business is to be continued by

H. H. Lichtig

and his associates at their present offices

424-6-8 Markham Bldg.

6372 Hollywood Blvd.

Hollywood, California

For the information of advertisers, we wish to announce that the

FALL ISSUE

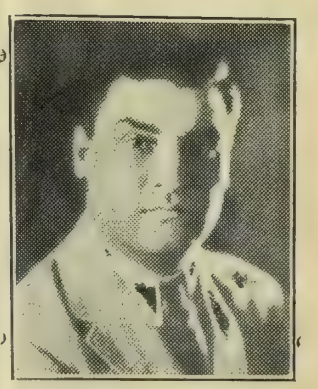
of the Studio Directory will be out September 1st. All copy must be in not later than August 20th.

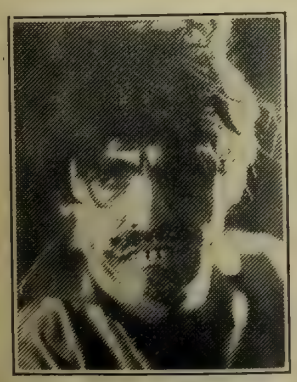
Don't miss this issue!

Studio Directory

1852 Hillhurst Avenue

Phone 594-783





Doctor Roberts

Character Actor

Phone Holly 5335

LOIS WILSON IN "THE COVERED WAGON"

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

Camera!

Los Angeles, California Saturday, August 25, 1923 Price 10 Cents

John Harron

NOW APPEARING IN "DULCY" AT LOEW'S STATE THEATER

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A. HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

New York Washington, D. C.

Phone 52220 Phone 54847

Hepner INCORPORATED

1001-1005 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles California

Permanent Waving Hair Coloring Bleaching
Hair Dressing Scalp-Facial Massage
Marcel Waving Water Waving Shampooing
Manicuring
Wigs Toupees Switches Transformations
Wig Rental Beards and Moustaches
Cosmetics
Professional Makeup Service

Special Attention to Theatrical and Motion Picture Profession

No Parking Restrictions

MARTHA FRANKLIN
Characters
Current Release
. . . as Mme. Vinard, in Richard Walton Tully's "Trilby."
Recent Engagements
. . . in "Ponjola," direction of Donald Crisp.
. . . in Ben Wilson's production, "Other Men's Daughters."
Hollywood 10103

Latest Plays—Latest Books—Latest Stories—Representation New York, London and Paris. Have exclusive rights to Louis Joseph Vance's latest book, "Baroque," which is having a tremendous sale; also "The Wren," by Booth Tarkington, and "The Vow," by Paul Trent. Immediate arrangements can be made.

Call or phone 437-653
Emmett Corrigan, Manager

The Hollywood Play Bureau
6404 Hollywood Blvd.

"Camera!"
(The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry)

ESTABLISHED 1918—A FILM MAGAZINE AND A FILM NEWSPAPER IN ONE
Entered as second class matter, August 11, 1918, at the postoffice at Los Angeles, Cal., under act of March 3, 1879.

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON.....Publisher and Manager
JOHN CORNYN.....Advertising Manager
DELBERT E. DAVENPORT.....Editor
FRED W. FOX.....Advertising Copy
GENE WOOLWAY.....Studio Representative

H. H. CONGER COMPANY, National Advertising Representatives
MARBRIDGE BUILDING NEW YORK CITY
FIRST NAT'L BANK BUILDING CHICAGO
HOLBROOK BUILDING SAN FRANCISCO

Price 10 cents per copy, $3.50 per year in Los Angeles County. Outside Zone, $4.00 per year. Canada, $4.50, Foreign, $5.00.
Issued on Saturday afternoon of each week at 6318 Hollywood Boulevard, in Los Angeles, California. Phone 439-869
Address All Communications to Camera!

Vol. VI. SATURDAY, AUGUST 25, 1923 No. 19

Editorial Observations

We are glad to note the daily papers are devoting more space to news of the activities of our industry, inasmuch as the industry is largely responsible for putting the Angel City firmly on the map.

Gas down to thirteen cents and a threat of us having a new telephone company, bring back memories of "those good old days."

Headline in paper quotes Jack Dempsey as saying "The Wild Bull of the Pampas will be my meat." The meet may prove a tough stake.

Now that we have a new police chief, and have done away with the fire horses, we are wondering when the Second street tunnel will open.

The talk of million-dollar theatres for Hollywood may not be "all talk."

Now that the war is on with the gasoline companies, we are wondering when the war will start among the bootleggers.

At present Los Angeles seems swarming with fortune hunters. Could it be they were attracted by our climate?

Day by day studio activities become more intensely active. The past week finds several new independent companies at work, which predicts the fall harvest will be a bumper crop.

Evidently Miss Philbin put the Mary in Merry-Go-Round.

With the announcement by the West Coast Theatres, Inc., that the Kinema will soon be reopened as the Criterion on the two-a-day plan, it seems evident that the big plays pay.

Additional evidence of the motion picture industry's progress and prosperity is brought forth in the recent departure of some of our foremost film magnates for Europe and other foreign parts. American films still maintain their supremacy and the demand for the Hollywood output is increasing so rapidly as to necessitate greater distribution facilities abroad. All in all, Mr. and Mrs. World are still interested in what Hollywood can do with a camera.

Even the traction companies have been forced to recognize the healthy growth of Hollywood, and now a score or more of big, luxurious motor busses buzz along Western Avenue toward filmland.

The cinema capital is fast assuming a metropolitan aspect. Hollywood is destined to be a big city in its own right. Each day new projects of great magnitude are announced for this community. Railroad companies have established ticket offices here to serve the residents of this section; the smart shops of the city proper, the foremost industrial and commercial concerns are locating branches here. Great hotels and apartment buildings, million-dollar theaters, art galleries and cafes are being constructed; financial institutions, churches, clubhouses, the Y.M.C.A. and other worthy enterprises have come to boost filmland and its people. The note of Hollywood's progress is saneness; the money earned here is not being thrown to the four winds, it is not being spent on extravagant frivolities—it is going back into continued expansion. Evidence of this is found in the construction of fine homes by Hoot Gibson, William S. Hart, Lynn Reynolds, Ralph Lewis, Charles Ray, Will Rogers, Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and many others. The ideal of the professional people is to live happily and to help by living. True happiness is, of course, never found in addiction to wild parties, booze, dope and other forms of impaired living. The spirit of fraternity in the film colony is without parallel; life in Hollywood in reality reaches well nigh the zenith of perfection.

Morosco
744 So. Broadway
"The Broken Wing"

Mason
127 So. Broadway
Eugene O'Brien
in
"Steve"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa
"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main
Wyndham Standing-
Margaret Marsh, in
"The Lion's Mouse"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway
Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh
Harry Carey
in
"Desert Driven"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth
Mary Miles Minter
in
"Drums of Fate"

Burbank
Main near Sixth
Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway
Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Goldfish"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway
Eva Novak-Bryant Washburn
in
"Temptation"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth
Lew Cody
in
"Jacquelin"

This Week's Theatre Notes

It is only in fairy tales that a high-born count and a peasant girl can love—unless there is a sudden change in their social standing. "Merry-Go-Round," the dramatic and spectacular Universal super-Jewel photodrama at the Mission Theatre, is not a fairy tale—it pictures the collapse of the whole decayed social structure of pre-war Austria, and it is through that utter destruction of caste and social barriers that Count von Hohenegg and a little organ-grinder of Vienna find the open road to love.

Robert W. Chambers' famous novel, "The Common Law," which recently created a sensation during its first showing here, has been booked for the Alhambra Theater. This production, filmed by George Archainbaud, is one of the most ambitious cinema efforts of the season.

The Robert W. Chambers novel has been one of the most widely read in American fiction history and its perpetuation on the silver screen has been one of the most ambitious undertakings of the present year. The cast includes Corinne Griffith, Conway Tearle, Elliott Dexter, Bryant Washburn, Harry Meyers, Hobart Bosworth, Phyllis Haver, Wally Van and many others of note.

The story of "The Common Law" deals with the love for each other of a famous painter and his model, and the obstacles placed in the way of their marriage by the difference in their social standing. The girl, refusing to give him up, consents to be his common law wife and how this interesting situation is brought to a happy conclusion forms the thrilling climax of this production.

Constance Talmadge is seen at Loew's State Theater this week, presented by Joseph M. Schenck in "Dulcy," her first production since "East is West." "Dulcy" was written by George S. Kampman and Marc Connelly. It was adapted for the screen by Anita Loos and John Emerson. The scenario was written by C. Gardner Sullivan and the direction was by Sidney A. Franklin.

With such talents contributed towards the success of this First National picture, it remains a foregone conclusion that "Dulcy" cannot be anything else but a delightful comedy romance, stepping along on all six cylinders towards a complete haven of laughter.

In "Dulcy" Constance Talmadge plays a wife who would drive many a husband to a lunatic asylum and all because she is trying to assist her husband in his business. "Dulcy" means well, but her mistakes nearly drive her husband and others involved to the madhouse. Connie has never been given a role more suitable for her exceptional talents.

"Hollywood" brings her namesake's choicest treasures to view at Grauman's Rialto. Here is a dramatic story, enlivened with many comedy touches, built against the colorful life of Hollywood, which has furnished more entertainment to the world than any other city.

The cast of stars is a record one and every film favorite shines forth on the screen during the unfoldment of the story of a little country girl's struggle to enter pictures, and a diversity of amusement is offered.

Theodore Kosloff and Vera Fredowa set the pulses beating with a picturesque dance, the famous Russian Mazurka, which has brought applause for Kosloff during his world tours. The Kosloff Dancers, too, bring their art of toe dancing to a dream sequence, which is thoroughly effective. Other stars that dazzle in "Hollywood" are Lois Wilson, Leatrice Joy, Thomas Meighan, Cecil De Mille, William DeMille, Alfred Green, Elliott Dexter, Bryant Washburn, Gloria Swanson, Robert Cain, Pola Negri, Anna Q. Nilsson, Agnes Ayres, Nita Naldi, Owen Moore, Jack Holt, Jack Pickford, Betty Compson, Bull Montana, William S. Hart, J. Warren Kerrigan, Robert McKim, T. Roy Barnes, Anita Stewart, George Stewart, Sigrid Holmquist, Julia Faye, Estelle Taylor, Baby Peggy, George Fawcett, Jacqueline Logan and twenty other celebrities.

The bill opening at the Hillstreet theatre Monday matinee, August 27, shows possibilities of being one of the season's best yet offered there. Headlining the bill will be Ben Bernie and his orchestra. Bernie, who formerly told funny stories and played the violin all by himself, has surrounded himself with a clever bunch of musicians this year, and has a "jazz" band which is a delight to hear. Gus Fowler, who is on his first American tour as an English illusionist who works solely with clocks and watches, will also be on the bill. Jack "Rube" Clifford, one of vaudeville's greatest character actors, will be present in his comedy sketch, "Camera-Eye Carter." Joe Lane and Pearl Harper will appear in "Bits of Wit," which is intended solely for laughter and is said to always get it. Willa and Harold Browne will be on the bill in their act, in which they draw all sorts of pictures in colored rags. Victoria and Dupree, two clever dancers and tumblers, will complete the vaudeville. The feature photoplay showing will be Mary Miles Minter in "Drums of Fate." Miss Minter is supported by a strong cast, including "Lefty" Flynn, George Fawcett, guson.

California
Main at Eighth
Rex Beach's
"The Spoilers"

Miller's
Main at Ninth
Rex Beach's
"The Spoilers"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill
Gloria Swanson
in
"Blue Beard's Eighth Wife"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway
Constance Talmadge
in
"Dulcy"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth
"Hollywood"

Pilgrimage Theatre
Cahuenga and Highland
Life of the Christ

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway
Wyndham Standing-
Grace Darmond, in
"Daytime Wives"

Alhambra
731 South Hill
Corinne Griffith
in
"The Common Law"

Hollywood Egyptian
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden
"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth
Mary Philbin
and Norman Kerry in
"Merry Go Round"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth
Thomas Meighan
in
"Homeward Bound"

Two New Units For Grand-Asher

Two new production organizations have made their appearance on the lengthy horizon of the film horizon, according to Samuel V. Grand, president of Grand-Asher Distributing Corporation, who announced today that the Elliott Dexter Productions, Inc., and the Bryant Washburn Productions, Inc., would each produce five features for his releasing company this season.

These pictures will be made at the Grand Studio, Hollywood, and naturally each star will head his own unit, engaging the best possible supporting casts and technical crews obtainable.

The first Elliott Dexter picture will be started approximately August 27th, with R. William Neill as the producer. It is an original story with the tentative title, "The Man Who Forgave," and was written for Mr. Dexter by Adam Hull Shirk. Florence Hein is, now completing the scenario. Miss Hein has recently done several pictures for Katherine MacDonald and others and was for several years associated with June Mathis, doing research work on "The Four Horsemen." Adam Hull Shirk has been for years a fiction writer and publicity expert and is now scenario chief for the Grand-Asher organization. R. William Neill, born in Dublin, Ireland, for years an actor of note and later a director of pictures, did most of the Dorothy Dalton early successes for Ince and also practically directed "Civilization." He recently completed several pictures in Italy and was for a long time associated in directorial capacity with Paramount.

Mr. Washburn will have as his director Cullen B. Tate, who for years has been associated with Cecil B. DeMille at the Famous Players-Lasky Studio and is regarded as one of the most competent men available. The first Washburn story is tentatively titled, "Try and Get It," and is being adapted by a well known scenarist from the Saturday Evening Post story, "The Ring-Tailed Gallawampus," by Eugene P. Lyle, Jr., who supplied the ideas for two of Douglas Fairbanks' best stories for the screen, "The Americano" and "A Modern Musketeer." It is a high powered comedy with many romantic passages and splendid characterizations. Hundreds of other stories were considered before the choice was made.

The settings will be superior for all productions and the full facilities afforded by the big Grand Studio stages will be supplied. For the ensuing pictures arrangements have already been made both for Mr. Dexter's and Mr. Washburn's productions with publishers and authors, so that a number of popular stories have been contracted for, for later use.

"I am highly pleased," said Mr. Grand, "to be able to announce this affiliation, for I believe that Messrs. Dexter and Washburn represent the most popular types of stars in the screen world today, and that they individually have a wonderful following among the screen patrons of the world. The whole arrangement is a happy one, and we look forward to the most pleasant association that could be desired. We are following common sense methods in these pictures; there will be no loopholes left for criticism that can be humanly avoided. We have facilities for production and distribution that are unparalleled and my associates in the East, especially Mr. Harry Asher, vice-president, are all experienced men in the distribution field. They, like myself, are delighted with the arrangements effected."

Jack Mulhall---Popular Leading Man Who Will be Seen in "Dulcy"

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, August 20th, 1923.—Harry Weil spent last Friday and Saturday in San Francisco, looking up locations for the filming of part of "Black Oxen," Gertrude Atherton's famous novel soon to be filmed by the Frank Lloyd Productions, Inc. Work will begin at an early date, and the picture will be one of the outstanding productions of a year of big pictures.

Maurice Tourneur was expected in town Sunday to arrange for locations for early use, but on account of illness his arrival has been postponed for another week.

Director Paul Powell, well beloved in San Francisco, who spent many weeks here directing the making of "The Fog" for the Graf Productions, will arrive here this week, with several members of his cast, for the making of some special scenes in a Cosmopolitan production.

The Gerson Picture Production Corporation are off with a rush on the start of their new series of pictures. Actual shooting began on the first picture, "Waterfront Wolves," bright and early Monday morning, August 13th. As the title indicates, it's a story of San Francisco's own waterfront, and Chinatown, a melodrama of life, action, love, and laughter, both the story and continuity are from the pen of Victor Gibson. Ora Carew and Jay Morley, both with a long list of screen successes to their credit, are co-starred, and the cast includes other well known names, as Hal Stevens, S. J. (Tiny) Sandford, Emma Muncy, Dick LaReno, Edward Galvez.

Tom Gibson is directing, and Frank Capra, formerly of the "Plum Center" forces, is assistant director, with George Crocker behind the camera. So far the making of the picture has been full of adventure, some of it not in the script, for the whole company spent three days working on a three masted brigantine off Hunter's Point, and once between the roll of the vessel and the wind, the cameraman was barely saved from going overboard. Some of the native crew of the trader rescued George and the camera just in time, and although most of the cast did have to jump in the bay in the plot of the story, they didn't seem to mind, in spite of the fact that San Francisco Bay is icy cold, even in mid-summer.

Inquiring at the St. Francis the other day if they had any professionals in the house, we learned that Rin-Tin-Tin was staying there, with his dog-wife, and his friend and master, Captain Lee Duncan. The beautiful and clever dog-star has been in town for the week, making personal appearances at the Warfield Theatre with "Where the North Begins," the first picture in which he was starred. Crowded and delighted audiences greeted the picture at every performance, and Rin-Tin-Tin won all hearts, not only by the tricks he did, but by his gentlemanly and natural behavior.

Sometimes you hear of people seeing snakes in San Francisco, but when last week the Graf Productions were getting ready to shoot a scene in "Half-a-Dollar Bill" that called for a snake coiled up in a mail box, they had all the grief in the world. Thinking it would be easy to get a garter snake or a king snake, they started two men out on a hunt, who after three days returned without a sign of a snake. Then someone remembered a Snake Drug Store down by the waterfront that had snakes in the window for a sign, and dashed down, only to find that prohibition agents had closed the store for selling moonshine. At last a revenue officer was induced to unseal the door so a snake could be borrowed, and the scene was shot. The really funny part of the story is that it is absolutely true; now and then truth is stranger than fiction, but nobody will believe it.

The city of San Mateo has purchased the famous Kole estate. The wonderful grounds are to be used by the city as a park, while the beautiful mansion is to be preserved just as is, for use entirely as a location for moving picture companies, working at the Pacific Studios at San Mateo.

Gordon Michie, production manager for the Rellimeo Films of this city, and his wife, Grace Sanderson Michie, scenarist for the organization, will leave for the South this week, to prepare for the production of the company's next picture. It will be filmed at a Southern studio, and work will begin within a few weeks. The company's first picture, "Heartstrings," will be released in September.

Earl Olin, of the Monte Banks, Joe Rock and Syd Smith productions, was in San Francisco two or three days last week looking up locations for future productions, and went from here to the Yosemite, also on a hunt for good spots to shoot.

Mrs Leigh Smith arrived at San Mateo Sunday from Los Angeles. Leigh is acting as assistant director on "Half-a-Dollar Bill," now being filmed at the Pacific Studios by the Graf Productions, under direction of W. S. Van Dyke.

Raymond Hatton, now playing in the Graf picture, made a personal appearance at the Coliseum Theatre last Thursday night in connection with the showing of the picture, "Pilgrims of the Night," in which he plays a leading role.

Robert Warwick, star of both the screen and stage, is trying out a new play at the Fulton Theatre in Oakland, which if successful, he hopes to use on Broadway next season. "Gypsy Jim" is the title and is from the pen of Oscar Hammerstein, Jr., and Milton H. Gropper, both of whom came west for the opening.

Some people can't even take a peaceful vacation, so thinks Bill Sullivan, electrician from Universal, who came here on a holiday and went down to visit the Pacific Studios, only to be caught by Danny Rogers, chief electrician, who was short handed, and put to work. So instead of getting a rest, he is hard at it, helping light "Half-a-Dollar Bill."

GALE HENRY DESERTS SLAPSTICKS FOR DRAMA

One by one the slapstick ranks are being deserted by the comediennes of the screen. A recent announcement foretold of the permanent graduation of Louise Fazenda from comedies to more serious roles.

And now Gale Henry has signified her intention of appearing only in dramatic features. Coincident with such an announcement is that of her engagement to portray a semi-serious role in "Held to Answer," the new Metro all-star special being directed by Harold Shaw.

Gale Henry is perhaps one of the best known slapstick comediennes in picturedom. She has to her credit the remarkable record of having starred in 138 two-reel comedies, twenty-four of which she also produced.

But her histrionic ability is not confined to such portrayals, as those who recall her appearance on the stage several years ago will attest. So it was only natural that she should desire to turn her screen talents into more serious channels.

Miss Henry has appeared with Gareth Hughes in "The Hunch" and in "Night Life in Hollywood," but it was her clever portrayal in "Quincy Adams Sawyer" that caused her to make the decision to permanently desert the comedy field, and at the same time caused Metro to sign her for her present role in "Held to Answer."

Casts of the Week

Gerson Picture Corporation Presents
"WATERFRONT WOLVES"
Directed by Tom Gibson.
Frank Capra, Assistant Director.
George Crocker, Cameraman.

Emma Muncy	Ora Carew
Dick LaReno	Jay Morley
Fernando Galvez	Hal Stevens
S. J. (Tiny) Sandford

INCE SIGNS CONKLIN

Chester Conklin, a favorite comedian of the screen, has been signed by Thomas H. Ince for an unusually interesting bit in Ince's screen adaptation of "Anna Christie." The role, while it offers comedy relief from some of the tensest emotional scenes of the drama, nevertheless requires some fine dramatic touches. Conklin has just completed his first dramatic-comedy role of his career in Eric Von Stroheim's "Greed," and played the part so successfully that he was chosen by Ince for the exacting role of "Tommy" in "Anna Christie," which will be released by First National this fall.

INGRAM SAYS ACTORS WHO CAN WEAR VELVET BREECHES SCARCE

It might be surmised, from the evidenced popularity of golf suits in Hollywood, that the mere male of the movie metropolis possesses extremities well worth displaying.

That such a surmise is altogether without foundation has been established by Rex Ingram since he began the filming of "Scaramouche," his Metro picturization of Rafael Sabatini's adventure-romance of the French Revolution.

Numerous were the difficulties encountered by Mr. Ingram in re-creating Eighteenth century France for the screen. But one of the most troublesome was the securing of players who could wear the velvet breeches and square coats which were part of the costume worn by members of the French nobility at the time of "Scaramouche."

This proved to be a far greater difficulty than it would seem, for it appeared that the men in the world who can wear knee breeches and square coats and look romantically attractive in them are few and far between.

Metro is authority for the statement that only by diligent combing of the casting agencies were the necessary players finally secured—and there was not one assistant director or ex-cameraman in the cast.

However, it was only histrionic ability and fitness to portray their respective characterizations that caused Mr. Ingram to choose for the cast of "Scaramouche" such popular male players as Ramon Novarro, Lewis Stone, Otto Matiesen, Lloyd Ingraham, James Marcus

Los Angeles Awaits Opening of Criterion

The Kinema Theater in Los Angeles, one of the first run houses in the chain of West Coast Theaters, Inc., closed its doors on Friday, August the 17th, and ceased to be known by that name. It will not cease, however, to remain in the limelight for, following weeks of negotiations, locally and nationally, executives of West Coast Theaters, Inc., have concluded plans for the transformation of the Kinema into a national premiere long run house, to stand on a pinnacle as the most remarkable theatrical edifice of its kind.

Long weeks of planning were necessary towards the final consummation of the deal. With the new season springing the biggest line-up of multiple-reel features in the history of motion pictures, and with the dearth of houses suitable for their deserved presentation causing some apprehension in distribution circles, the proposition to transform the Kinema into a two-a-day house along luxurious lines was entertained and finally brought to a realization. To carry out the new finished plans it will be necessary to keep the house closed for a period of several weeks in order to allow armies of laborers to install the various changes.

The theater will be gutted from top to bottom, only the walls and balcony remaining. New decorations and magnificent effects are to be installed. The lower floor will be transformed entirely, over 500 luxurious divans having been ordered to occupy one-half of the capacity of the entire house.

When the theater is again opened—and it will throw wide its doors to the motion picture and fun world with what is undoubtedly the greatest and most unique attraction the screen world has ever known—but two performances are to be given daily, at 8:15 2nd 8nd 8:15 p.m. Reserved seats will be sold for every performance, and tickets may be purchased two weeks in advance. It is planned to provide several downtown offices in various West Coast houses in order to preclude any possibility on the part of ticket speculators in traffic in tickets for the opening and following weeks.

The executive offices of West Coast Theaters, Inc., are keyed up to a tremendous pitch in anticipation of the reopening of the house. It will hereafter be known as the new Criterion Theater, and every memory of the word Kinema is to be obliterated, starting tonight. A fortune is being expended on the contemplated changes.

The arrangements which the Gire Bros., Adolph Ramish and Sol Lesser have with the prominent producers of the motion picture industry call for long run premieres of only those cinemas which will have a fitting place on the Criterion screen. Already several notable productions, completed and under completion, are lined up and final contracts are being consummated for playing dates. The new theater is to be the national long run premiere house of the world's biggest attractions. In order to surround these pictures with presentations worthy of the efforts expended upon their completion, the best available talents are being signed up. The seating capacity will naturally be somewhat cut down with the installation of the hundreds of loges and the construction of a new stage, which is to house living preludes and atmospheric prologues on a plane somewhat higher than has heretofore been known in the elaboration of motion pictures. To this effect one of the most noted stage producers in America is being sought for the personal supervision and production of presentation of each new premiere. This man will come from New York several weeks prior to the gala openings in order to whip the show into shape.

An orchestra of symphonic proportions will occupy the pit, under the direction of a conductor whose name will create a sensation when announced.

A complete new projection room equipment is on the way from the East, and when the new Criterion Theater opens it will be the proud possessor of the first double set of high-speed projectors in the country. These four machines are being installed in order to do away with the possibility of any mishap to the presentations, two complete sets of film being run at one and the same time and whenever it should so happen that a film breaks, shutters on the second set of film will be immediately withdrawn and the show goes on without interruption. Various other features also are estimated to add to the efficiency of the theater.

The opening and the opening attraction will be announced within a short time.

Doris Dare, who has been confined to her home for the past three weeks as the result of a serious illness, is once more taking an active part in filmland's doings. Her most recent engagement was as ingenue lead in Charles R. Seeling's "The Tango Cavalier."

NIBLO SOON TO CAST "THY NAME IS WOMAN"

Fred Niblo's next picture for Louis B. Mayer and Metro will be "Thy Name Is Woman." It is from a stage play. Spanish and modern. He is collaborating with Bess Meredyth in writing the continuity. A cast has not been chosen. He will again use the Melrose Avenue studio. That, according to the laconic publicity director, is sufficient until something happens worth writing about.

Readers who thirst for sensational details will be glad to know that soul-staggering cast of internationally famous stars will not be signed. A few good actors and actresses, however, will be hired. Perhaps some of them will be famous. It depends largely upon whether or not they can act.

The settings will be magnificent, most of them designed by Creation with a simplicity not yet attained by supervising cinema architects with goatees and enormous incomes.

Anyone who wants to may freely predict that the production will startle, enchant, shock, thrill and mystify the world; setting brothers at variance and luring old men from their chimney corners. Fred Niblo hopes it will be a creditable picture, shown more or less as he made it, and that it will add to his reputation as a director with a rare knack for not hoodwinking himself.

ANENT THE "ART" OF TRYING

Alton Brown, beyond a reasonable question of doubt, has passed the first line trenches in the never-ending battle for supremacy on the silversheet and is pounding effectively on the doors of the citadel, featuredom.

He is now playing the important role of brother to the featured Douglas MacLean, the juvenile lead in the play made famous on the legitimate stage by Raymond Hitchcock, "The Yankee Consul," under the direction of Jimmie Horne, at the Powers studios.

Alton Brown's fight, step by step, up the ladder of fame, has never been what could rightfully be termed a struggle, for from the time he played his first important role some four years ago in "La Belle Rouge," with Theda Bara at the Metro in New York, he has climbed steadily and consistently and his will, combined with clean living and true histrionic ability, forms a combination, that with continued effort is bound to place him on the much sought pinnacle of success in Filmdom.

News and Gossip About the Moving Throngs of Movieland

WESTERN PREMIERE SOON

Fred Niblo's "Captain Applejack," now known as "Strangers of the Night," will probably have a long Los Angeles run prior to its international release in September. Exhibitors are bidding for the production in the Los Angeles territory. The tremendous popularity of the cast in the film colony adds to its colloquial value. The players are Enid Bennett, Matt Moore, Barbara La Marr, Robert McKim, Emily Fitzroy, Otto Hoffman, Thomas Ricketts and Mathilde Brundage.

INCE LOT RESEMBLES SHIP YARDS.

Thomas H. Ince has gone into the shipping business. Already known up and down the Pacific Coast as a yachting enthusiast and owner of the "Edris," one of the fastest pleasure boats on the coast, he has now acquired two old scows from a San Francisco shipping company, in addition to renting an old time coal barge.

The scows which put Ince in the ship owning class are doomed for the depths of the ocean, however. They have been purchased for the making of some spectacular scenes in Ince's screen adaptation of "Anna Christie," which is being filmed by the producer on the biggest scale of any picture offering which has ever left his studios. John Griffith Wray, who is directing the picture, has been appointed to scuttle the boats with the assistance of several naval experts.

Director Wray is now in San Francisco with Blanche Sweet, William Russell, George Marion and other members of the "Anna Christie" company. After the two ships have been sunk outside the San Francisco harbor and William Russell, who plays the role of an Irish stoker, is rescued from the briny waters, a number of scenes will be made on the rented coal barge.

In the meantime, the "lot" of the Ince studios has been transformed into a ship-building yard. A completed reproduction of the coal barge is being built by Ince technicians for the making of closer shots of the dramatic scenes. It will be floated on the mammoth swimming tank of the lot so that Miss Sweet, Russell and Marion will have plenty of "atmosphere" to assist them during the filming of their difficult scenes. "Anna Christie" will be released by First National this fall.

VIOLA DANA GETS STYLES FROM PARIS

Those members of the fair sex who are interested in feminine apparel—and that includes all of them—will have an opportunity to see the "later than the latest" in Paris styles when they view Viola Dana in her newest Metro starring picture, "In Search of a Thrill," which Oscar Apfel is directing.

The locale of the story is laid in Paris and it follows naturally that the frocks and gowns worn by Miss Dana are truly Parisian. She also wears the makeup and garb of an Apache in one episode of the story, but the Apache part of her wardrobe, while colorful and accurate in detail, is scarcely as interesting.

She sought the help of a leading Los Angeles modiste who wrote a New York importer. He in turn wrote a long letter to one of the Paris style czars, asking the required knowledge and pledging strict secrecy. At about the time the precious knowledge was finally transmitted to Los Angeles, Miss Dana was ready to begin work on "In Search of a Thrill." Work on the gowns was rushed and they were completed, one at a time, as she had need for them in the picture.

HOLLYWOOD "OUT-LURES" N. Y.

From Broadway, New York, comes word that James Morrison, who recently left the kleig lights of Hollywood for the brighter lights of the Gay White Way, where he is to enact the leading role in the screen version of the one-time popular ballad, "On the Banks of the Wabash," is turning down all offers for future engagements in the metropolis in anticipation of a speedy return to his California home. And this despite the fact that the handsome young leading man is an Easterner by birth!

Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, who is directing "On the Banks of the Wabash" for Vitagraph, after scanning the list of available juvenile leading men in New York, wired Morrison a flattering offer to come on to New York, but it was not until several wires had been exchanged between the star and director that Morrison accepted the proposition.

In his contract with Vitagraph Morrison stipulated that he was to be free to return to California immediately upon completion of the Blackton production, as he is in great demand at local studios, where he has been engaged for the past two years.

GAUDIO'S REWARD NEW CAMERA

Among the unsung heroes who take their risks quietly and without flourish are the cameramen of the movies. Tony Gaudio is an apt illustration. Last week the story of Tony's heroism came out, of his incurring the injury in facing the leap of a light-blinded horse to save the lives of others.

Tony was grinding a night scene for Norma Talmadge's Arabian romance, "Dust of Desire," a Joseph M. Schenck production. It was a native street scene during an uprising of Arabs. Behind Tony sat Frances Marion and Chester Franklin, the directors, Maude Wayne, Joseph Schildkraut and others of the cast. Up the street came the charging Arab horsemen. Ten feet from the camera the leading horse was struck full in the eyes by a battery of side bank lights. The rider attempted to turn his mount aside, but the blinded horse leaped high through the air and straight upon the camera.

Tony saw the leap. But to dodge aside with his camera would have exposed those behind him to the hurtling hoofs. So he stuck to his post. The horse struck the camera and splintered it, knocking Tony to the ground. The force of striking the camera, however, broke the plunge. Miss Marion received a kick in the side after the horse struck the ground and Franklin and the others were knocked aside as it came rolling into their midst. Ray Binger, second cameraman, was knocked unconscious. Tony's knee was wrenched when the camera knocked him aside.

President Coolidge is a farmer. He proved it by grabbing the reins of the government.

* * *

On his first Sunday the President appeared in a tail coat and silk hat. In other respects he is a likeable man.

* * *

Los Angeles man sues for divorce. Says he came home late for dinner and all he got was a roast.

* * *

Luther Burbank is said to be a great scientist, but he can't be blamed for turning Jess Willard into a lemon.

* * *

New chief of police says something must be done to relieve the prison jam. If the prisoners continue to escape, that will relieve the jam automatically.

MUSIC ARRANGED FOR "THE WHITE SISTER"

The preparation of the music score to be used for the premiere at the Forty-fourth street theatre of "The White Sister," in which Lillian Gish plays the stellar role in this film version of F. Marion Grawford's novel, is well under way. Joseph Carl Breil has been given charge of the music for the premiere of Miss Gish's latest vehicle, the production of which required her presence in Italy for seven months.

With the sequences leading up to the smashing climax in "The Judge and the Woman" practically completed this week, Victor Seastrom, who is directing the Goldwyn adaptation of Sir Hall Caine's "The Master of Man," is filming spectacular mob scenes in which hundreds of extras are used.

One of the thrilling bits of action that take place in the spacious courtyard of towering Castle Rushen, is when Conrad Nagel, as Victor Stowell, rescues a small child from under the hoofs of onrushing cavalry, while Fenella Stanley, played by Patsy Ruth Miller, gazes frozen with fear.

With the Continental director's flair for handling huge mobs, Seastrom demands that every extra put real emotion into his or her bit of work, moulding the mosaic into a convincing whole.

The grim prison scenes where Creighton Hale, as Alick Gell, comes to Bessie Collister, played by Mae Busch, in her cell, have been completed, and next week Seastrom expects to take the company to San Francisco to film important scenes. Players besides those mentioned in the cast include Hobart Bosworth, Aileen Pringle, DeWitt Jennings, Evelyn Selbie, Lucien Littlefield, Cecil Holland, Anna Alexander, Mark Fenton, Winter Hall, Jack Murphy, Andrew Arbuckle, William Orlamond, Charles Craig, and Charles Mailes.

WRAY TO DIRECT NEW INCE PICTURE

Thomas H. Ince is preparing to put a screen adaptation of Vaughan Kester's popular novel, "The Just and the Unjust," into production as soon as screen work on "Anna Christie" is completed. The continuity for the story which Mr. Ince is planning to tell from a novel angle is being written by Bradley King. John Griffith Wray will direct it.

Flynn on Vacation.

With final cutting of "In the Palace of the King" completed, Emmett Flynn, who directed the production for the Goldwyn studios, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation in the mountains near Los Angeles. He will begin work on his next Goldwyn picture immediately on his return.

Cody Injured Ankle.

Lew Cody, just returned from location in Yellowstone National Park with Rupert Hughes' Goldwyn company filming "Law Against Law," is nursing a badly wrenched ankle, token of a spectacular fight with George Walsh, staged on the edge of an erupting geyser for a big scene in the picture. Cody also sustained injuries to his right arm, but careful medical attention has prevented his being incapacitated for work and he is now working at the studio.

I.W.W. at work in Washington ask for bath tubs. This is the first hopeful sign we've seen.

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, AUGUST 25, 1923

NEW RELEASING COMPANY IS HERE

Motion picture production by independents will receive a decided stimulus on September 1 with the starting to function on that date of a big new releasing and distributing organization, whose general sales manager, William Alexander, arrived here last week.

Temporary headquarters have been established at the Christie Hotel in Hollywood until suitable office accommodations can be secured.

The new outlet for Los Angeles-made pictures will be through the Anderson Pictures Corporation, which has established thirty distribution centers in the various key centers of the United States, as well as arranged for distribution abroad.

Carl Anderson, the president of the company, is well known in California. He was the first manager of the Lasky Company and remained with them until Paramount was formed, when he joined the latter organization in the same capacity. He remained with the Paramount until the war, during which he entered the service of the Government. At the conclusion of the war, Mr. Anderson became identified with the Educational Film Exchanges, resigning from that organization a few months ago. Since then, he has been in California completing arrangements for production.

Mr. Anderson has probably been identified with more successful distribution of motion pictures than anyone else in the field. He has always been an exponent of intensive distribution, preferring to supply a large number of theatres at a moderate price, rather than a small number of theatres at a large price.

In the announcement of the new corporation, Mr. Anderson says:

"These successes have been due to the creating of a distributing organization and personnel that succeeded, because they gave the exhibitor good service and good pictures.

"Today nearly all companies give good service; prints are delivered in good condition, advertising helps are plentiful so that the only thing that really interests the exhibitor are good pictures.

"We will specialize in pictures of definite exploitation merit, to which we will give intensive selling, wide distribution, with certified accounting to the producer and 'cards on the table' policy.

"The national quota on features will be arranged on a sound business value and not on motion picture figures."

CUMMINGS TO DIRECT FOR UNIVERSAL

Irving Cummings, well known independent producer, has signed a contract with Universal to make a super-Jewel production as a fitting companion piece for "Merry-Go-Round," and to star little Mary Philbin, whom Carl Laemmle believes has touched the stellar heights in the Rupert Julian photoplay just recently released.

Cummings just returned from New York, where he accomplished an unusual feat of salesmanship, marketing his "Broken Hearts of Broadway" direct on the state rights market, without the aid of the middleman. While there, eastern Universal executives negotiated for his services for this one production, and upon his arrival here, the papers were signed.

"My Mamie Rose," by Owen Kildare, has been chosen as the worthy successor to "Merry-Go-Round" and Harvey Gates, who wrote the scenario for the Viennese panorama of life, has been chosen to handle the script for the production.

HOLUBAR HAS BUSY YEAR AHEAD

For the first time since he switched his directorial allegiance from First National to Metro, Allen Holubar this week gave out complete details concerning his coming year's work under his new million dollar contract.

Holubar's first picture will be "The Human Mill," to be adapted from the novel, "The Bishop of Cottontown," by John Trotwood Moore. The novel deals with the picturesque south during the reconstruction period following the Civil War, and has been one of the season's best sellers.

"Life's Highway" is the title chosen for Holubar's second picture, to be produced from the "East of Suez," by E. Lloyd Sheldon, a stage play which had a successful run in New York.

Holubar's third production will be "Robes of Redemption," from the story by Jane Hurrle.

Holubar began his directorial career at Universal, where his "Heart of Humanity" was acclaimed as one of the greatest of the war period. He directed Dorothy Phillips in other big specials for the "U," and then became an independent producer, making the mammoth spectacle, "Man, Woman, Marriage"

Later he made "Hurricane's Gal," the first of the sea stories that have come into so much vogue of late, which he followed with "The White Frontier," both starring Dorothy Phillips.

With the signing of Alice Lake, former Metro star, the cast for "The Marriage Market," which Harry Cohn of the Waldorf Productions, is making for C. D. C. release, with E. J. LeSaint directing, was completed this week. Jack Mulhall and Pauline Garon have the leading roles, supported by such well known players as Vera Lewis, Shannon Day, Marc Robbins, Mame Kelso, Kate Lester and Jean de Briac.

VON STROHEIM SENDS OUT AN S.O.S.

An accident to the traveling radio sending station has isolated the Erich von Stroheim-Death Valley expedition, and left the company of fifty persons on the edge of the blazing valley, sixty miles from telephone communication.

The expedition, sent into Death Valley to film closing scenes in "Greed" in the exact locations described in the Frank Norris novel, is temporarily housed in the abandoned city of Skiddoo, in the Panamint valley, and although the company is not now in the most hazardous part of the trip, the party is far removed from water sources, and is encountering temperatures ranging upwards of 120 degreees.

It was a burned out generator which put the radio out of commission, and this is expected to be repaired within a few days. In the meantime, trucks carrying water into the town of Skiddoo, are operating from the expedition's quarters at Lone Pine—the last point of civilization this side of the desert wastes.

With the von Stroheim expedition is Death Valley Scotty, famous Death Valley character, who consented to act as guide for the motion picture caravan.

Hale Goes Hunting

Gun-toting seems to be the favorite diversion of the mildest mannered screen favorites. Creighton Hale, who is always chosen for sympathetic roles in pictures, is loading the old shotgun to do his worst on Conrad Nagel in Goldwyn's "The Judge and the Woman." Noted for poise is "Teddy" von Eltz, playing opposite Lenore Ulric in Warner Brothers' "Tiger Rose." Just three days ago Mr. von Eltz did some fierce murdering and is now escaping justice. Both the gun-toters had a score to settle with the unwritten law, their defense.

BADGER WILL DIRECT NEW FIRST NAT.

Clarence G. Badger, one of the season's most successful directors, who recently returned to Los Angeles from the East, where he had directorial charge of "Potash and Perlmutter," the Sam Goldwyn First National production, is to direct "The Swamp Angel" for First National.

His excellent work in the direction of the famous Montague Glass play greatly impressed First National executives and he was immediately engaged to pilot "The Swamp Angel" which, featuring Colleen Moore, is to go into production about August 15th.

Mr. Badger has had an extensive career both as director and writer of screen plays. By birth he is a San Franciscan, but spent much of his early life in the East. He was educated in Boston and later took up editorial work on "The Youth's Companion," a widely read periodical published in that city. Later he was a newspaper writer on Pacific Coast publications.

He went into pictures as a scenario writer and during the first few years of his film career wrote continuity for Lubin, Universal and Keystone. He became a director for Keystone in 1915 and since then has handled the megaphone for many big productions made by Mack Sennett, by Paramount and by Goldwyn.

Some of his most noteworthy screen accomplishments were his direction of "Quincy Adams Sawyer," "Your Friends and Mine," "Kingdom of Youth, and "Red Lights."

Badger is now assisting in the preparation of the continuity of "The Swamp Angel," which is being adapted to the screen by Edward Montague from the story by Richard Connell.

The picture offers an ideal feature for Miss Moore, whose recent pictures have stamped her one of the screen's best interpreters of comedy dramatic roles. It will be ready for filming within the next two weeks and by that time, it is expected that Miss Moore will have completed her part in "Flaming Youth," in which picture she is now appearing in the leading role.

Notables Galore

The complete cast of Reginald Barker's new picture, "Pleasure Mad," as announced by Louis B. Mayer, includes Huntly Gordon, Mary Alden, Norma Shearer, William Collier, Jr., Ward Crane, Winifred Bryson, Frederick Truesdell and Joan Standing.

Lasky Editor to Visit Booth Tarkington

Tom J. Geraghty, production editor at the Famous Players-Lasky Studios, will leave in a few days for Kennebunkport, Me., the summer home of Booth Tarkington, whose guest he will be for two weeks. Mr. Geraghty, who has put into continuity the author's original for Thomas Meighan's "Pied Piper Malone," will go over every detail of the story with the author and will arrange for the location sites in the little town, never before visited by a studio crew. He will later go to New York to cut and edit "Woman-Proof," the George Ade story Mr. Meighan is now making and which Al Green, director, will take on East in the rough cutting.

Margaret Morris, who is playing the part of the Slave Girl in the new chapter picture at the "U," the "Beasts of Paradise," a wonderful story of a mythical isle in the South Seas, directed by Wiliam Craft. So realistic was her dance, combining the Tango, the Apache and the Hula, with Joe Bonomo, and Joe, incidentally, putting so much realism in his script brutalism, resulted in all but incapacitating the dusky "Slave" from further action, but owing possibly to the fact that the South Sea Islanders are reputed to be a hardy race, and Margaret being a true delineator of facts as well as fancies in her various portrayals, stuck to the job and barring a few bruises, even darker than her dusky make-up, is again going strong.

It is understood that Andree Lafayette has recently signed with an independent concern for the starring role in a super-production. Miss Lafayette had set her heart on a short trip to Paris, but was unable to withstand the entreaties of producers, who, because of her sensational success in Richard Walton Tully's screen version of "Trilby," indulged in frenzied bidding for her services.

NEW BUREAU SUCCESSFUL

One of the busiest publicity offices in the film colony is that of Howard Lichtenstein, which gives international publicity to screen artists, as well as personal representation. A recent addition to the Lichtenstein staff is Elsa Brocker, eastern newspaper woman, who has been connected with other local motion picture publications previous to her affiliation with the Lichtenstein Company. Miss Brocker will be in the publicity department of the company.

Bruce Vacationing on Ranch .

Bruce Guerin, clever child-actor, is enjoying a well-earned vacation on the family ranch out in the San Fernando Valley. The youngster, who is but four years old, has worked continuously for over a year and a half before the camera, having recently completed his ninth film, "The Country Kid," with Wesley Barry, and the Warner Brothers, who have him under contract, have given him a couple of weeks' vacation. There are many strange things out on the ranch to arouse his youthful enthusiasm and what with flying his airplanes, playing with his other toys and asking innumerable questions of the ranch foreman, the time is passing all too swiftly for Master Bruce.

Completing Cast.

Irene Rich is the latest addition to the cast selected to support John Barrymore in the Warner Brothers screen version of Clyde Fitch's play, "Beau Brummel." Mr. Barrymore is expected to arrive in Los Angeles from New York on September 18, at which time the production of the feature will be started. Another leading player to be seen in the cast is Mary Astor, who will portray the part of Lady Margery Alvanley. The play, which will be directed by Harry Beaumont, has been adapted for the screen by Dorothy Farnum.

"Buck" Jones Celebrates.

Charles "Buck" Jones, Fox star, and his attractive wife, entertained a group of friends at a dinner party at the Ambassador Hotel one evening last week in celebration of their eighth wedding anniversary. Among the guests who were entertained were Mr. and Mrs. Scott Dunlap, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Wurtzel and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Yost.

Following the dinner Mrs. Jones, who at one time was a champion trick rider of America, presented her famous husband with a handsome platinum encased watch, while the Fox star gave his wife a costly and beautiful platinum bracelet studded with diamonds.

The Joneses are pointed to with pride as one of the most happily married couples in the motion picture colony by their many friends and business associates.

PLAY BROKER LOCATES HERE

Emmett Corrigan, who for the past forty years has maintained an agency in New York City for the sale of plays, books and stories, has recently moved his offices to the coast and is now ensconced in temporary quarters at 6404 Hollywood Blvd.

Mr. Corrigan has the exclusive dramatic and screen rights to books by such eminent authors as Louis J. Vance, Booth Tarkington, etc.

He also has representation in New York, London and Paris.

Billy Bevan Still Going.

With his wife and an automobile loaded down until it resembles a moving van, Billy Bevan, Mack Sennett comedian, has started on the second leg of his motor trip up the coast as far as Seattle. A post card received at the studio tells of the wonderful time the pair are having, traveling through high Sierra mountains. It reads, "Am now six hundred miles from home, having a great time." The Bevans expect to be back in their Hollywood home about the first of September, and shortly thereafter he will again take to the funny wardrobe and makeup.

Ballet in Pictures.

Theodore Kosloff's famous ballet, which was the feature of the big Coliseum show at the late American Historical Review, Monroe Centennial and Motion Picture Exposition, was transplanted to Hollywood this last week for some of the spectacular scenes in "The Marriage Market." The world famous dancers, personally directed by Theodore Kosloff, were secured by special arrangement between Harry Cohn, general manager of Waldorf productions, and Maestro Kosloff. "The Marriage Market" is being directed by Edward J. Le Saint, from the novel by Evelyn Campbell, with a cast including Jack Mulhall, Pauline Garon, Alice Lake, Mayme Kelso, Jean de Briac, Kate Lester, Marc Robbins, Shannon Day and Vera Lewis.

To Tour Yosemite.

A visit to Yosemite, San Francisco and other Northern cities of the state is included in the tour of George D. Baker, eminent motion picture director, who, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. V. B. Prophet, and their house guest, Mrs. M. Kestler, departed from Los Angeles last week on a scheduled 1,500-mile auto trip. Baker, who recently finished the direction of "The Magic Skin" for Goldwyn distribution, is an ardent motorist and photographer of natural scenic beauty, and on his journey through the California forests, mountains and valleys he will endeavor to secure some new and interesting pictures for his famous kodak library.

Hollywood Club to Entertain Public

A REAL FEED
BY REEL FOLKS

Much interest is attached to the coming lawn fete to be held Saturday, August 25th, at the attractive club quarters at Hollywood and Winona Boulevards, where the Valeda Club holds forth. The club, composed of the young business women of Hollywood, have been busy for days decorating the garden and getting in readiness the various booths of the old-fashioned country store type. Games of chance, fortune-telling, dancing and cards will be features of the entertainment, which promises to be chuck full of fun, with a royal good time for all.

The garden will open to the public at two o'clock and continue the festivity through the evening. A real Italian spaghetti dinner, piping hot, with all the trimmin's, will be served from 5:30 'till 8:00 by the pretty "blonde wops." Miss Golda Madden, president of the club, has spared no effort to make this affair an outstanding success in every way.

The proceeds of this affair will go toward the betterment of club conditions, for the young business women of Hollywood, and a large crowd is expected to respond to the call.

Louise Loaned by Warner.

Louise Fazenda, who recently signed a long term contract with the Warner Brothers as featured player, will be loaned by that organization to Hal E. Roach for a western feature with the temporary title "Rex," which Fred W. Jackman will direct. Miss Fazenda, cast as "Maggie," the cook on the "Sonoma Ranch," a leading role, will begin her work and cooking Wednesday for thin and fat cowboys, blackmailers, Spaniards, wealthy young Americans, retired capitalists in ill health and a spoiled son of a rich man, thus reflecting great credit on her culinery skill. Having cooked countless times and responded to "Maggie" in 100 or more comedies, and having a priceless wardrobe of cook's costumes, the comedy queen is all "pepped up" over the role which she will negotiate on straight lines with those unique touches that have made her name famous.

Miller Contracts with Tourneur

Carl Miller's work in Chaplin's "A Woman of Paris," in which he played male lead, caused producers and directors who saw the film to predict that the picture would be his making. That their prophesies were not ill based has been instanced in Mr. Miller's being signed for an important role in Maurice Tourneur's "Jealous Fools," where he will appear in scenes with Jane Novak and Earl Williams. Mr. Miller will depict a wealthy man-about-town.

This Studio Chief Has Many Plans

"There is no middle ground in motion pictures today," says Samuel V. Grand, president of Grand-Asher, after a survey of exhibiting conditions throughout the country.

"Either moderately priced productions, short subjects or tremendous features worthy of road-showing, are demanded," he continues. "A picture costing forty or fifty thousand dollars to make has as good a chance to make money—and can bring in just as large returns to the producer—as the film that costs one hundred thousand. In other words, there is no need to spend the latter amount to make a picture and a great spectacle cannot be made for that sum.

"Our plans, which are shortly to be announced in full, will contemplate the production of photoplays with a popular appeal, costing a sum that will enable us to sell them at a rate which will give the exhibitor a chance to make money and not force him to increase his admissions beyond the pocketbook of the average citizen.

"After all is said and done, pictures are the entertainment and relaxation of the man of moderate means. The people who can pay big admission prices to see films are in the minority. To these the spectacle appeals and they will pay to see it. But they, also, will go to see the reasonably priced films which win the undivided support of the man in moderate circumstances.

"Short subjects, such as Monty Banks, Sid Smith and Joe Rock comedies which we are now making, will always have their place, because they serve to brighten a program and fill in the evening's show. Features, such as those produced by Ben Wilson for release by Grand-Asher, are of the highest grade, yet they do not entail a tremendous expenditure in production. The characters of stories must remain of the popular sort. We cannot go into wild orgies of the imagination and expect to please the average picture-goer; people want pictures they can understand and common sense is the greatest attribute to successful pictures. I have a number of very interesting announcements to make shortly along the lines I have indicated."

Ray Coffin, director of publicity for Richard Walton Tully productions, has left for the north, for the purpose of assisting in exploiting the first runs of "Trilby," Tully's latest success which has taken the country by storm. He will open the production in Seattle and Portland. Coffin just returned from a very successful exploitation tour through the middle west.

MATIESEN SCORES AS HEAVY

Otto Matiesen has finished the part of Lord Jeffreys with Constance Talmadge in "The Dangerous Maid" at the United Studios This promises to equal, if not surpass, Matiesen's superb performance as Philippe de Vilmorin in Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche," which he also finished not so long ago. It is interesting to note that in the Ingram production he essayed the role of a clergy scholar, quiet and very modest in bearing, and a man reflecting all of the finest qualities, while in the Talmadge film he enacts the part of a sinister, cruel judge of England during the times of King James I. Lord Jeffreys, as the catspaw of the king, committed many heinous crimes and his name is one of the black spots on early English history. Needless to say that Matiesen, with his splendid past historical roles, and many years of experience playing parts in this type of drama, will virtually walk away with the picture, for it is his custom to submerge his own personality in the character he is playing, and the audience will be afforded an opportunity to live the days of long ago with Lord Jeffreys. It is a reincarnation upon the silversheet, without parallel in its artistic perfection.

Norma Has New Leading Man

Norma Talmadge made her entrance last week into "Dust of Desire," her new drama of the Arabian desert. Last week marked the third week of filming, the earlier filming being taken up by sequences which form the counter-plot of the story centering around Norma.

Seldom has Norma's work in a picture aroused such keen anticipation in those identified with her productions as in the instance of "Dust of Desire." The fact that she will appear with her new leading man, Joseph Schildkraut, is the cause of this expectancy.

"Dust of Desire" is being directed by Chester Franklin, assisted by David C. Fischer, and will be released by Joseph M. Schenck Productions through Associated First National. Tony Gaudio is doing the filming, seconded by Ray Binger. The cast includes Arthur Edmund Carewe, Maude Wayne, Mario Carillo, Earl Schenck, Hector V. Sarno, Laurance Wheat, James Cooley, Albert Prisco and Theodore Lorch.

Potel Engaged

Victor Potel, who recently completed the comedy relief in Principal Pictures' "The Meanest Man in the World," has signed a contract with Rupert Hughes to enact a prominent role in the author-producer's present production, "Law Against Law." In it, the well remembered Slippery Slim of early film days, will be seen as a detective.

Child Star Back From Visit East

Rumor is rife about the studios that Priscilla Dean Moran, the little wonder girl of the screen and much heralded "adopted" sister of Jackie Coogan, is about to re-enter pictures.

At that, the appellation, "comeback," is without a question a misnomer, for all who have seen this delectable little miss, with the big wistful eyes, in her many recent engagements and especially in "Long Live the King," with Jackie, are unanimous in their praise and place her as a delineator of truly emotional roles in a class years ahead of her tender age of less than five, and predict for her a success second to none in the profession.

Upon completion of a year's contract with Jos. M. Schenck at United, Mr. Moran took Priscilla on a two months' vacation trip east and has just returned to Hollywood.

Arthur Edmund Carew, whose work as the Svengali of Richard Walton Tully's massive production of "Trilby" has set the critics gasping for breath, has been besieged with offers since the completion of that subject. Many reviewers claim his sincere and artistic performance in "Trilby" have placed him at the very top of the ladder among characer players. Carew is now playing the part of the Shiek in Norma Talmadge's newest vehicle, "Dust of Desire," now in production.

Canine of Fame Makes His Claim

Taking issue with several news reports of recent date, that the canine family of Laddie Boy, the White House dog, had created a new precedent, in that a ceasarian operation had been performed for the first time to save a litter of puppies, Hap Word claims that that distinction for his little star, Cameo.

Cameo, under a long term contract with Mack Sennett, famous producer of comedies bearing that name, was born on November 29th, 1919, through a caesarian operation performed on Shimmie, her mother, by Dr. Shaw, then the veterinarian in charge at the Hollywood Dog and Cat Hospital. Cameo was the only one of the litter saved. The mother, too, died from the operation.

Until old enough to take nourishment from a baby's milk bottle, Cameo was fed warm milk and lime water every thirty minutes from a medicine dropper. Through the careful nursing of her owner and trainer, Hap Ward, she soon developed into a healthy, normal dog until today Cameo is considered one of the cleverest animals on the screen. In fact, some of the feats this little female bulldog accomplishes are almost unbelievable. To this you will agree when you see some of her work in the forthcoming Sennett comedies.

FORMER STAGE FAVORITE SUCCEEDS IN THE MOVIES

It gets 'em sooner or later. After thirty-five years of legitimate stage work, punctuated with flights to the silversheet in New York City, Howard Truesdell says Hollywood is "plenty good enough for me." That Truesdell has reason to believe in Hollywood is shown by the enviable record he has already made on the screen since his arrival in May, which includes his appearance with Norma Talmadge in "Ashes of Vengeance," with Hoot Gibson in the role of a rancher in "Rambling Kid," and his present engagement with Rupert Hughes in the role of Judge Norton, in "Law Against Law."

FAULKNER IS STARRED IN NOVEL NEW SERIES

Ralph Faulkner has been cast in a leading role in an unusual series of short features now being produced by Nat Spitzer at the Universal studios. These are an original series unlike anything produced heretofore and give Faulkner an opportunity to display still further his versatility.

The first subject will be entitled "The Towerhouse Mystery" and will number the following players: Patsy Ruth Miller, Emmett King, Christine Mayo, Winston Miller and Eulalie Jensen, opposite whom Ralph Faulkner is cast. Grover Jones will wield the megaphone.

DEPARTS LABOR DAY

Abraham Carlos has ordered reservations to New York on Labor Day, when he will leave, bearing the prints of two productions, "The Unknown Purple," adapted from the whirlwind stage success of Roland West, which the latter directed and edited, and "Fast Freight," starring Richard Talmadge. The former will first be shown at the Capitol Theater and Mr. Carlos will attend the premiere, with his wife and daughter, Miss Gloria, also present. The producer will purchase screen rights to some famous book or play and will add another unit upon his return.

Work Rushed on "Tiger Rose"

Theodor von Eltz has no use for alarm clocks or watches. He is working day and night this week in the most dramatic scenes in the entire photography of "Tiger Rose," the Warner Brothers' production starring Lenore Ulric. He has been living an entire lifetime in the thrilling scenes that are so stimulating that he says he doesn't mind the short rations on sleep. Miss Ulric is planning to leave in about a week, so Mr. von Eltz is doing double service as most of his scenes are with her in the little cabin where she has hidden him away from his pursuers.

Sheldon Lewis Cast in "Trapped"

The outstanding feature in the screen success of Sheldon Lewis, is his ability to put over his characterizations through facial expression and artistic acting, rather than dependence upon artificial means of makeup. Lewis never uses putty to accent physical characteristics. His mimicry is superb and his expressive features lend themselves easily in portraying the thoughts that are passing through his mind. Those who have seen the rushes of the Baby Peggy special feature production, "Whose Baby Are You?" proclaim it to be the finest piece of acting that he has done. In fact, it brought his present engagement of principal character lead in a sea story being directed by Jack O'Brien under the Irving Productions banner. Although Lewis returned from the East only a few months ago, this is his fourth big engagement. Old timers will possibly remember him in the Pathe serial, "The Iron Claw."

Lloyd Staff Complete

Allen McNeil, who has cut more film than it would take to girdle the globe, has been appointed Film Editor of the Harold Lloyd productions. McNeil has been in the film industry for nearly eight years, a greater part of which has been spent with Mack Sennett. Among the noted pictures he has edited are "Molly-O," "Suzanna," "Down on the Farm," "Yankee Doodle in Berlin" and "The Small Town Idol."

The appointment of McNeil virtually completed the Lloyd organization.

POPULAR CHILD ENJOYS REST

Josephine Adair, six-year-old film actress, has been enjoying a brief vacation of late, yet continuing to draw her weekly cinema stipend. After completing one of the six featured roles in Frank Borzage's "Children of Dust" at the United Studios and finishing one of the big parts with Ralph Lewis in "The Mailman" under the direction of Emory Johnson at he Powers Studio, . she went over to the Fox lot to play in Tom Buckingham's current comedy. In the midst of the production, the director was suddenly called to New York to finish a picture at the Fox studios there, where one of the directors had taken ill, and called parade rest to his forces. Production work was called to a halt until his return, the cast and staff being held intact. As a result little Miss Adair was afforded her first chance to take a long breath in many months. She is in great demand and is kept on the jump constantly, going from studio to studio, and is therefore not in a position to take frequent vacations of any sort.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Max Graf, supervising director of the Graf Productions, now producing "Half-a-Dollar Bill," is the last to say "What's in a name?" Of all the titles affixed to Graf Productions, "Half-a-Dollar Bill" has proven the most expensive, for it has involved the hiring by the brothers, Max and Louis, the president of the organization, of a secretary to answer the letters pouring in everywhere on the matter of currency.

"Is there really a half a dollar bill? I've never happened to see one," is the refrain of letters, breaking the postman's back daily who delivers at the Pacific Studios, San Mateo, where the picture is under production.

Now the secretary is writing to one and all that "Half-a-Dollar Bill" is taken from the name of a small boy (Frankie Darrow in the picture), left on the doorstep with a dollar bill torn in two, pinned to its blanket and from which his foster parents gives him his name.

MAE MURRAY DELIGHTFUL IN "FASHION ROW"

Depicting a Russian actress is a most delightful experience for Mae Murray, who is so engaged in her latest and she thinks her most fascinating vehicle, "Fashion Row." For Miss Murray is greatly interested in all things Russian and had planned before conditions became so disturbed in that country to travel in Russia and see with actual eyes a land that has so intrigued her fancy. The picture, with its luxurious background and dramatic story, is now in the third week of its photography. Robert Leonard is directing.

BERWILLA STUDIO ACTIVE

Active preparation for the start in a few days of "Leave It to Gerry," Billie Rhodes' first feature vehicle for Grand-Asher, is now under way at the Berwilla Studio, where Ben Wilson will produce the six reel special by Adam Hull Shirk.

A cast of super-strength is being assembled and will be announced shortly. Miss Rhodes is exercising between periods of relaxation mostly spent in the open air, for the strenuous work in which she will be engaged for the next five or six weeks while the picture is being shot.

Eddie Lindon and Jack Stevens will be the cameramen. Some sumptuous as well as other characteristic sets are being constructed and everything points to a super-excellent production in every department. Arthur Statter adapted the story, which was written especially for the little actress who will be in the leading role of Geraldine Brent, otherwise "Gerry"—Billie Rhodes.

Holds Two Jobs

Holding down two jobs at one time when most actors count themselves fortunate in getting one, is the remarkable record being made by five-year-old Walter Wilkinson. Walter is playing Cupid in the elaborate Fox fantasy, "The Temple of Venus," and in between times hustles down to the Vitagraph studio, where he is appearing as the child of bootleggers in Larry Semon's comedy, "The Moonshiners."

Henry J. Herbert, who has just finished playing District Attorney Jackson in the Goldwyn production of "The Day of Faith," has been engaged by Vitagraph for Attorney Britt in the all-star cast of "The Man From Brodney's."

DIRECTOR AND PRODUCER

Broderick O'Farrell, the "genteel heavy," well known on the stage and in moving pictures, excels in his chosen field of endeavor because of histrionic ability. Mr. O'Farrell's latent ability was recognized early in life and developed to a very marked degree. He devotes himself studiously to the portrayal assigned and veritably lives the part.

Eminently successful as an actor he has realized his ambition to direct and as a director and producer has many noted successes to his credit. The wide range of his experience enables him to anticipate the requirements and so deliver a rare finished performance.

In the persistent demand for new faces the modern producer will find in Broderick O'Farrell an exceptionally capable and versatile character man—sheer ability alone will result in his unqualified success.

It is hoped that Mr. O'Farrell will find conditions in Hollywood ideal for his future work in pictures.

Mack in Lloyd's New Picture

For his first independent production at the Hollywood Studios under the title, "The Girl Expert," Lloyd has engaged Hughey Mack, who has just completed a three months' engagement with Von Stroheim. Mack is the screen's biggest player—in point of avoirdupois—shaking the scales around the 400 pound mark.

The opening of "The Girl Expert" has been switched to a small town tailoring establishment, instead of a general store atmosphere, as originally planned.

Sam Taylor and Fred Newmeyer are directing the new Lloyd production, and have written the story in collaboration with Tim Whelan and Ted Wilde. Lloyd expects to be about five months in the making of "The Girl Expert."

As the title implies, the theme of "Pleasure Mad" deals with the wild, headlong rush of gayety and high life that dominates the existence of so many people at the present time. The story revolves about the fortunes of the Benton family, a happy, affectionate little group until visited by sudden prosperity. Then, enabled by wealth to indulge in luxuries and splendor, the father, mother, son and daughter drift apart and are on the verge of a definite parting, when a near-tragedy awakens their bond of loyalty and love and brings them together again.

Blanche Upright's famous novel, "The Valley of Content," furnishes the basis of "Pleasure Mad." A. P. Younger made the screen adaptation, and Norbert Brodin is in charge of the photography. The picture will be presented by Louis B. Mayer through Metro in the fall.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

Director Fred Caldwell leaves Hollywood Sunday night for New York to close contracts with the Selznick Distributing Company for the release of his two latest feature comedies in a "Hollywood" series. The feature comedies are called "The Elite of Hollywood" and "The Cream of Hollywood." Mr. Caldwell's most recent production, "Night Life in Hollywood," packed 'em in the heart of movieland by its realistic comedy depiction of life among the picture stars and staresses.

Featured players in the reels of laughter that Director Caldwell will take to New York are: Chester Conklin, Alice Howell, Muriel Reynolds, Violet Schram, Victor Potel, Charles Mack.

Albert Kelly, assistant director with Rupert Hughes, now filming his latest feature, "Law Against Law," at the Goldwyn studios, although one of the youngest motion picture men in years, is one of the oldest in experience, having served nine years in the business. Kelly was formerly with Metro, where he directed Viola Dana, and later was with Nazimova.

Do Christmas Shopping Early

That yearly warning is always pre-dated a month or six weeks by Lela Sue Campbell, charming young screen actress, who has already begun her explorations into downtown stores in search of unusual and nice presents for friends and relatives.

Miss Campbell believes that the present that is different as well as useful, is the most pleasing, therefore she spends some time in her search for the best things.

Yes, we Have no Vacation Today

"The Wages of Cinema," the sixth story in the new series of H. C. Witwer's "Fighting Blood" pictures, now in course of production at the Powers studios in Hollywood, has just been started, after a lapse of only one day following the completion of "The Taming of the Shrewd," the last picture made. In addition to Louise Lorraine in her customary role of Patricia Paddington, the cast comprises George O'Hara, Kit Guard, Mary Beth Milford, Albert Cooke, W. T. Horne and Oliver A. Cross, while Lee Garmes and St. Elmo Boyce are in charge of camera work. Henry Lehrman is directing the series, with Thomas D. Moreno as assistant.

Quite a Coincidence.

Four of the feminine stars heading the cast in "Satan's Secret," now in the cutting room, portray characters having the same Christian names as the players themselves. Thusly: Eileen Percy's screen name in this picture is "Eileen Allen"; Pauline Starke's, "Pauline Hinton"; Eva Novak's, "Eva Rivere"; and Claire Adams, "Claire Mathers."

Pat Barnes, who came into international prominence as the author and producer of the clever comedy entitled, "A Buck on Leave," which toured the entire A.E.F. and also this country at the end of the war, does not believe in trying to become a star overnight.

Barnes, in staging his comeback, is accepting what small parts are offered without a murmur. Each opportunity, he states, to appear before the camera, no matter how insignificant, brings him that much nearer to his goal—ultimate stardom.

That twenty-five years of legitimate stage experience is the open sesame to motion picture plums is evidenced by the popularity of Oliver Eckhardt, who only recently took up his abode in Hollywood.

Some of his latest work has been with Norma Talmadge in "Ashes of Vengeance," "The Man Between," a Finis Fox production, and his present engagement at the Warner Brothers studio under the direction of Mal St. Clair, on a Wesley Barry production.

Collier Offers Good Advice.

"Do your best in a part—even if it is only a tiny bit." That is Buster Collier's idea and it is the thing that won him his place in Screendom.

The famous son of a famous father — Willie Collier—is now playing the part of Dan Forbes, opposite Billie Rhodes in the Grand-Asher picture, "Leave It to Gerry," produced by Ben Wilson.

"I had the part of an office boy in an Ince-Triangle picture," said Buster Collier. "It amounted to nothing, but I made up my mind to put into the part everything of which I was capable. As a result, Mr. Ince saw my work and immediately starred me in 'The Bugle Call.'

"So I always say to every aspirant—'however humble the role, don't sluff it.' Do your best; work hard and you'll get recognition. It is a certainty you won't unless you do."

New Script Ready

Winifred Dunn has completed the adaptation of "The Man Whom Life Passed By," Victor Schertzinger's original story which he will direct for Metro. Actual production is scheduled to start on this story in about two weeks.

Herman Raymaker is probably the only comedy director who has had the distinction of having had a picture of his previewed by President Harding. Raymaker is now directing Monty Banks comedies for Grand-Asher, alternating with Harry Edwards.

Junius D. Estep, one of the best known portrait photographers on the Pacific Coast, has been engaged as publicity cameraman for Grand-Asher productions, under the supervision of Adam Hull Shirk, director of publicity at the Grand Studios.

Monty Banks is now engaged on his eleventh Grand-Asher comedy, directed by Herman Raymaker. The picture has not yet been given a title. Still another of the series remains to be made.

Joe Rock has completed "The Bill Collector," his ninth Grand-Asher comedy, under the direction of Reggie Morris and with the same director he has started on number ten, which has not yet been given a name.

Sid Smith is working on the eleventh of his series of twelve two reel comedies for Grand-Asher. The picture is called "Big Game," and is being directed by Charles Lamont. In the film Sid plays about with a number of ferocious wild animals. He says that when he has finished making his series he will open a menagerie to keep in training.

Louise Lorraine, leading lady in the new series of "Fighting Blood" productions, says that Eddie Woehler, custodian of properties for her company, would like to see his name in print. You don't pronounce it; you just spell it.

Ernst Lubitsch, the European director, has started work on his first picture for the Warner Brothers, "The Marriage Circle," in which Florence Vidor and Marie Prevost play the leading feminine roles. Other members of the cast are Harry Myers, Creighton Hale, Warner Baxter and Adolphe Menjou.

David "Pop" Peterson, seventy-year old Indian War veteran, gold miner and backwoodsman is reported to have walked over 120 miles into Hollywood to get a job as an "extra" in the Warner Brothers screen version of David Belasco's play, "Tiger Rose," featuring Lenore Ulric. "Pop" was found to be an ideal type for the picture by Director Sidney Franklin, and was engaged on the spot.

This Actor Earned Opportunity

There was no accident about the entrance into theatrical work of Robert Schable, who is appearing in support of Viola Dana. He decided he wanted to go on the stage, so he put in three years of study at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York, following which he went right out and secured an important role in "His Excellency, the Governor," starring Ethel Barrymore.

Bob Landers, chief property man for Maurice Tourneur, is getting plenty of training for his wife's vacation. He made a bed 47 times yesterday during one scene of "Jealous Fools," which Tourneur is directing at the United Studios.

Bull Montana mussed it up during a score or so of rehearsals and then during as many retakes, as he jumped across it in pursuit of little Marion Feducha.

Grant Carpenter, well known newspaper man and scenario writer, has been assigned the task of adapting two of the forthcoming series of plays being produced by the Warner Brothers for the coming season.

Kate Lester, one of the most competent character women and grand dames in the films, is playing an aristocratic snob in "Leave It to Gerry," Ben Wilson's production for Grand-Asher, in which Billie Rhodes is to be featured.

Sid Smith is preparing to start his eleventh comedy for Grand-Asher, under the direction of Charles Lamont. The title is as yet undecided. Duane Thompson is leading woman; Jack Henderson and Fatty Alexander are in the cast also. There will be a bear in the picture this time. Recently Sid had his inning with lions and says it's a toss-up between them.

Lillian Leighton, who is enacting a prominent role in "The Call of the Canyon," Lasky's latest Zane Grey story, is preparing to accompany Director Victor Fleming and several members of the cast to Flagstaff, where three weeks' shooting will take place. Miss Leighton will soon be seen as Ma Pettengill, in "Ruggles of Red Gap."

James Hogan, production manager with Rupert Hughes, now filming "Law Against Law," at the Goldwyn studios, is recovering from severe burns sustained from an erupting geyser while the company were on location in Yellowstone National Park. Hogan has been associated with Major Hughes on previous Goldwyn productions.

Alberta Vaughn has gone in for training animals. She is proud to own Bonnie, a daughter of Brownie, one of the well known canine actors of the screen. Alberta has already taught her pet to understand what she tells it to do and it responds remarkably well; so much so, that Miss Vaughn is seriously contemplating having her Bonnie do a bit in one of the forthcoming Sennett comedies.

Chester Bishop, who quit the screen eighteen years ago after a long series of pictures produced by Selig, has returned to the silver-sheet. Mr. Bishop portrays the principal "heavy" role in "Satan's Secret," Choice Productions, Inc., big feature.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

Thomas Meighan and the members of his company will return in a few days from Huntington Lake in the high Sierras, where they have been for the past week filming scenes of "Woman-Proof," the George Ade story which Alfred E. Green is directing for Paramount with Meighan in the stellar role.

The fact that Lorraine Eason, while portraying the role of "Echo" in "The Temple of Venus," wore most gorgeous tresses of real spun gold has, apparently, already attracted world-wide interest, as she is in receipt of a cablegram from an internationally famous hair dressing establishment in France, extending to her a lucrative offer to join their organization in the capacity of model, all expenses paid and a year's salary guaranteed.

Bruce Guerin, though but four years old, claims to be a man. "Only kids take naps," he told his mother firmly one day, when she insisted that he rest between scenes of Priscilla Dean's "Drifting," in which he was working at Universal. So, upon promising to go promptly to bed after his dinner, the nap was eliminated and the time between scenes employed in the much more important pursuit of "fixin' my auto 'bile."

Lydia Knott, who portrays a sympathetic character role in Metro's all-star picturization of "Held to Answer," is the mother of Lambert Hillyer, well-known director.

Robert Schable, who has been confining his villainous activities to eastern studios for the past two years, no sooner arrived in Hollywood than he was engaged for an important role in Viola Dana's new Metro picture, "In Search of a Thrill."

Victor Schertzinger has avoided every one of the stereotyped characters of screen drama in writing "The Man Whom Life Passed By," which he will also direct as a Metro all-star special. There are no hero and heroine, but the two leading characters are human beings with all the faults common to humanity. Neither a villain nor a villainess are to be found.

Nita Naldi, having completed her role in Cecil B. DeMille's elaborate production of "The Ten Commandments," has departed for New York, where she will spend several weeks vacationing before returning to the west coast to appear in William DeMille's next Paramount picture, "Every Day Love," adapted by Clara Beranger from Julian Street's novel, "Rita Coventry."

William S. Hart in "Wild Bill Hickok" will go into actual production next Monday, August 20, according to an announcement made today by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production of Paramount Pictures. Cliff Smith will direct the popular star in his first screen venture in nearly two years.

William DeMille will start on his first vacation in many months next week, when he completes the titling and editing of his latest Paramount picture, "The Marriage Maker," which Clara Beranger adapted to the screen from Edward Knoblock's stage success, "The Faun." He will return in two weeks to start work on his next production, "Every Day Love," from Julian Street's novel, "Rita Coventry."

Arthur Edmund Carew, whose work as the Svengali of Richard Walton Tully's massive production of "Trilby," has set the critics gasping for breath, has been besieged with offers since the completion of that subject. Many reviewers claim his sincere and artistic performance in "Trilby" has placed him at the very top of the ladder among character players. Carew is now playing the part of the shiek in Norma Talmadge's newest vehicle, "Dust of Desire," now in production.

Ray Coffin, director of publicity for Richard Walton Tully Productions, left last evening for the north, for the purpose of assisting in exploiting the first runs of "Trilby," Tully's latest success, which has taken the country by storm. He will open the production in Seattle and Portland. Coffin just returned from a very successful exploitation tour through the middle west.

Maurice Tourneur is furnishing his own props for "Jealous Fools," now in production at United Studios for First National. At least part of them. He brought two Japanese prints from his collection for the furnishings of the home of a wealthy San Francisco exporter, as it appears in the picture.

Rex Ingram managed to find a splendid character part for Edward Connelly in one of the final episodes of "Scaramouche," his monster Metro production. Mr. Connelly has appeared in every one of the last nine pictures Ingram has made.

Kenneth Gibson is reported to be indulging in a few days' relaxation at the Artists' Colony at Carmel, but speculation is rife in the Holly film colony as to whether or not Kenneth has been cast in a much sought after role in a scheduled production which calls for a juvenile lead, adorned with a natty set of whiskers, similar to those he affected in his recent success enacting the role of "Philippe," with Norma Talmadge in "Ashes of Vengeance"—for Kenneth always grows 'em, you know, instead of sticking 'em on—hence, possibly, the vacation.

Lois Scott, who plays the lead opposite Joe Rock in the last two of his series of twelve comedies, for Grand-Asher release, has just received a telegraphic call from a prominent Eastern studio. Consequently, petite Lois is quite perturbed, for while she got her start in the profession while under contract with Fox in New York, she is loth to leave the sunny clime of California, even at an increased salary. Verily, however, nothing succeeds like success, especially in the picture game.

H. C. Rawlings and his famous California "Happy Bear Family," which have been pronounced the world's greatest educated performing bears, have just finished in the special Fox comedy directed by Lew Brice, and are leaving for San Francisco to join the Ackerman & Harris vaudeville circuit. It is a "bear" possibility that he (and they) will soon return to again cavort 'neath the Kleigs.

I. C. (Jack) Fowler has just completed playing the only character role in "Flaming Youth," a First National production, directed by John Dillon, featuring Colleen Moore, and having an all-star cast, including Milton Sills, Elliott Dexter, Myrtle Stedman, Phillips Smalley, Walter McGrail and other well known screen artists.

Bert Sprotte, one of filmland's most versatile character actors, has been cast for the role of "Roland Whiley," the skin trader, with William S. Hart in an original western story of the early 70's, written by "Bill" himself and to be screened under the direction of Cliff Smith.

A catastrophe has entered one film home in Hollywood. The house of Darrow is wearing crepe. It is tears for Mother Darrow and sighs for Papa Darrow, and incidentally father of Frankie Darrow, well known screen starlet now under contract with the Max Graf Production Company, in making "Half A Dollar Bill." It all came about when the director ordered Frankie's visit to the nearest tonsorial parlor to have his baby bob give way to a more boyish haircut. Mamma Darrow went into hysterics and Papa Darrow, being of a more philosophical turn of mind, tried to console her for the loss of "her baby" by adding that "even fame has its disadvantages." "But it's just like seeing him emerge into sudden manhood," replied the distracted mother, as she lovingly fondled the little brown head.

Another Lois Wilson, is what some have called Elinor House, who has stepped from the school room into the glare of the Kleig lights. The same sweetness of expression, beauty of face, and gracious dignity characterize both. Although only four months have elapsed since Miss House's arrival from Chicago, she has appeared in a very representative list of large productions. Among them are "Rouged Lips," a Metro production; "Flaming Youth," a First National release; in "What All Women Want," and "Fighting Blood," a Robertson Cole picture.

Success at twenty-two describes Jules La Baron, the youthful juvenile feature player of the recently finished Andor Novak production, "The Never Do Well." Le Baron is of a distinct Valentino type and possesses sufficient dramatic fire to give distinction to any role that he assumes. He is likewise a dancer of no mean attainment, having appeared on the professional stage several years.

Lloyd Hughes is making daily trips to the barber right now. For a week he has been working on a dusty street scene at Universal City in front of a roaring airplane propeller, making innumerable retakes of the storm scene in "Born of the Cyclone."

Off with the old love and on with the new is the song Miss Kay Deslys, former vaudeville actress, is singing these days. Miss Deslys, who came to Hollywood via a sensational automobile trip from Philadelphio in the record breaking time of sixteen days, has definitely been won over by the screen after her first appearance before the camera.

Mark Fenton, well known character actor, has just completed an engagement at the Goldwyn studios with Director Victor Seastrom in "The Judge and the Woman," which is being filmed with an all-star cast.

Madge Hunt, who is generally assigned by casting directors for portrayals of "motherly looking" mothers, cooks or nurses, added a new characterization to her list of screen delineations in playing a peasant woman in the recently finished Goldwyn production, "The Judge and the Woman."

Norman Kerry is one of the outstanding romantic figures of the screen. His work in countless photoplays has brought him a great fan following. The most important lore in his career is the leading masculine role in "Merry Go Round" at the Mission Theatre. "Merry Go Round" is a Universal super-Jewel production with an all-star cast, which tells a story of how love triumphed over the ashes of glory in old Vienna when the empire fell and the rule of hate and lust was over.

Historic Estate Is Used by Vidor

Motion picture stars have taken possession of the picturesque estate of Harriet Beecher Stowe, who wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and are using it for filming scenes of "Wild Oranges," which King Vidor is making, almost in its entirety, on the tropical shorelands of Florida.

Among other things, the estate includes a large grove of wild orange trees. and was so ideally suited for backgrounds for the Joseph Hergesheimer story that permission was obtained to use it.

Vidor took his entire technical crew, and a cast including James Kirkwood, Virginia Valli, Ford Sterling, Nigel de Brulier and Charles A. Post, to the tropical coast of Florida, and will make almost the entire picture in the beautiful scenic spots and in and around the old fashioned rude dwellings described in the novel, "Wild Oranges."

Girls Will Be Girls.

Some of Freud's disciples will be examining Lloyd Hughes for complexes soon. A few months ago he had a beautiful Indian girl chasing him all over the landscape, begging for love and kisses. Now a fiery gypsy girl is doing her best to disturb his imperturbability.

Of course it is all before the camera. Colleen Moore played the Indian girl in "The Huntress" and she couldn't have been very serious in her cry for his love, for she has just married John McCormick, First National's western representative.

Derelys Perdue is playing the gypsy girl who, in "Born of the Cyclone," is pursuing Hughes, who has the part of a priest-like student of philosophy.

Billie Gets Mussed Up.

Billie Rhodes "ate dirt" all the first day of her feature picture, "Leave It to Gerry," produced by Ben Wilson for Grand-Asher. The opening shots show a football game between boys in a small town and Billie as a tomboy, is in the middle of the melee. She is discovered buried beneath the whole mob and up to her ears in soft earth. As a result, she swallowed some ounces of soil, and spent two hours combing it out of her hair before she could appear in later scenes.

"I don't mind," she said, grittily (no pun intended), "they say it's healthy to eat a little soil now and then. And besides, it is a good scene, they tell me."

Adam Hull Shirk wrote the story, which Arthur Statter adapted.

Ferdinand Pinney Earle has been engaged to paint a number of elaborate background scenes for Choice Productions, Inc., current special, "Satan's Secret."

MICKEY McBAN FINISHES 40TH AS 37TH COMES TO GRAUMAN'S

Mickey McBan, four-year-old film actor, is completing his fortieth motion picture, "Born of a Cyclone," which Emile Chautard is directing at the Powers Studio, and by an odd coincidence will be seen this week at Grauman's Million Dollar Theater in a production which he made under Chautard's direction at the same studio several months ago. It is "Daytime Wives," hailed as one of the year's best modern-day dramas. The group of forthcoming features in which Mickey is prominently cast will definitely establish him among the front-rank screen artists, and his work with Dustin Farnum in "The Man Who Won," an early release, is declared to be without parallel.

Popular Funster Signs With Lubitsch

With the selection of Harry Myers to play a prominent role in Ernst Lubitsch's first production for the Warner Brothers, "The Marriage Circle," the cast has been completed. The leading feminine roles will be played by Florence Vidor and Marie Prevost, and the other members of the cast include Warner Baxter, Creighton Hale and Adolphe Menjou. Production of the feature is expected to start within the very near future, following the erection of an interior set of a Viennese character which, according to report, will occupy more than one-half of the Warner stage, which is conceded to be the largest in the world.

COMEDY IS TRAVESTY ON REDUCING FAD

A new Christie comedy went into production last week and it is evident the story will be of potent appeal to the movie audiences in all civilized countries where fat people exist. The story depicts all the modern methods of weight reducing, plus several novel ideas contributed by the scenario staff.

Babe London, Christie's corpulent comic, at the sight of various reducing mediums, including boiling-pots, whacking-tables and steam-vats, lost about twenty pounds worrying over the possibility that some of the contraptions might work. She feels that if she becomes a lightweight, her salary will be impaired. Still she claims that a steam-vat, like love, provokes humor from all those who are not in it.

Dorothy Devore is being starred in this new farce under the direction of Scott Sidney.

William E. Clifford, who wrote the original story for Choice Productions, Inc., current special, "Satan's Secret," is titling that picture, which has an all-star cast.

"Mary Anne" Is Sennett's Next

New equipment, costumes, locations and sets, to say nothing of the attention being given to selecting a cast of artists in keeping with his next production soon to be started, is commanding the undivided attention of Mack Sennett and his production manager, P. Richard Jones.

"Mary Anne" will be Sennett's second of the series of screen classics in which Mabel Normand will be starred, and which is to be distributed through the offices of the Associated Exhibitors. This next production, like those which have preceded it, will be filmed from an original story specially written for Miss Normand by the producer.

Judging from the amount of energy being displayed in the technical and wardrobe departments, it appears as though Sennett has decided to surpass in magnitude any previous producing attempt.

WEST COAST CIRCUIT SECURES SENNETT FILM

One of the biggest contracts ever signed for a series of comedies was executed this week by David Bershon, for the West Coast Theatres, Inc., and Mack Sennett Comedies. By the terms of the contract, this big chain of theatres, the largest on the western coast, will show the entire new series of Mack Sennett comedies now being released through the Pathe exchanges.

The first of the Sennett comedies to be shown, according to the recently signed contract, will be "Nip and Tuck," one of the all-star series, in the Lowe's State Theatre, Los Angeles. It will be shown on the same program as "Circus Days," Jackie Coogan's latest production.

Director Caldwell Announces Title

"The Elite of Hollywood" is the permanent title selected by Director Fred Caldwell for his feature comedy, filmed from J. Stewart Woodhouse's original story, "Hogan in Hollywood." Editing and titling of this feature will be completed within the coming week. Among the players conspicuous in the cast are Alice Howell, Muriel Reynolds, Chester Conklin, Charles Mack, Victor Potel and Violet Schram. This will make the fifth of Mr. Caldwell's series of Hollywood comedy features, the others being "Night Life in Hollywood," "Cream of Hollywood," "The Shiek of Hollywood" and "The Bishop of Hollywood."

"Night Life in Hollywood" has already been released and has been pronounced a big box office success. Three others have been given previews in Hollywood theatres and are reported to have hit the film colony's funnybone.

Viola Uses Bobby the Monk.

A four year old actor who has spent half his life before the camera is easily the most popular member of the cast supporting Viola Dana in her newest starring picture for Metro, "In Search of a Thrill," which Oscar Apfel is directing. The youthful screen artist is Bobby, a monkey who appears with Miss Dana in many scenes.

According to Charles Santillo, Bobby's owner and best friend, the monkey understands Spanish, English and Italian. He is considered one of the screen's most skilled animal actors. Bobby has a loving disposition and a weakness for marshmallows. He is rather sensitive about his right hand, from which the fourth finger is missing. It was severed during the making of a "slapstick" comedy, which probably explains Bobby's preference for dramas.

Elaborate Sets for "Three Weeks"

Impressionistic settings, with lights and shadows used in an entirely different manner, are being designed by Cedric Gibbons, art director, for Goldwyn's film version of "Three Weeks," which Alan Crosland is to direct.

Under the direction of Sophie Wachner, Goldwyn costume director, an elaborate wardrobe is being prepared for "The Lady," central figure in Mme. Glyn's love story. Aileen Pringle has been selected for the role of "The Lady."

Dorothy Seay, who has just finished playing a little French girl in Director Apfel's "In Search of a Thrill," is now with the Benny Ziedman Productions in "The Good Bad Boy," under the direction of Eddie Cline.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, August 27

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Wilson	All-Star	Linden-Stevens	Geo. Carter	A. Statter	"Leave It to Gerry"	3rd Week
Dearholt Productions.
Arthur Rosson	Ed Cobb-Helen Rosson	Al. Gosden	W. McGaugh	L. Whitcomb	5-Reel Western	Editing
Neva Gerber Productions
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Wilshire 4275
H. & B. Film Co.
Tenny Wright	All Star	Bill Beckway			"Tango Trails"	Preparing
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						593576
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Raymond Rounsaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"The Elite of Hollywood"	Editing
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Geo. Crocker	Rounsaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"The Cream of Hollywood"	Editing
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 0096
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al Herman	All-Star	Wm. Hyer	Herman	Herman	"My Pal"	1st Week
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 4070
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd. Martin J. Heyl, Prod. Mgr.						439-764
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 3100
Sidney	Dorothy Devore	Gus Peterson	Jim Clemens	Graham	2-Reel Comedy	3rd Week
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr.						Drexel 2115
Mozumdar-Bond	All-Star	Joe Walker	Hobletz	Johnson	"Beyond the Veil"	2nd Week
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General.
	All-Star			Staff	"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd. E. H. Allen, Gen. Mgr. Scotty Cleethorpe, Casting.						598-165
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Mermaid Comedies)
Taurog	Neely Edwards	Meehan	Cullins	Staff	Special	1st Week
Kerr	All Star	Meehan	Linkoff	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Hibbard	All-Star	Corby	Sharpless	Staff	Comedy	2nd Week
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Novelty Juveniles)
Pratt	All-Star	Neehan	Dewar	Staff	Comedy
Lloyd Hamilton Corp. (Educational Release)
FOX STUDIO. James Ryan, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 3000
Edmund Mortimer	John Gilbert	Don Short	McKenzie	John Russel	"The Exiles"	3rd Week
Mayo	Stock	Sid Wagner	Jas. Tinling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Jim Summerville	Stock	J. A. Schmidt	Arthur Cohn	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Erle Kenton	Lew Brice	Vic Scheurich	Max Gold		Comedies	Schedule
Lambert Hillyer	Tom Mix	D. Clark	Manter	Robt. T. Lee	"A Flyin' Fool"	4th Week
Jack Ford	All Star	Joe August	W. Mayo	John Russell	"Hoodman Blind"	3rd Week
Wm. Wellman	Buck Jones	Schneiderman	H. Hough	Fred & Fanny Hatton	"Big Dan"	3rd Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 2632
Rocky Mt. Production Co.
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 0051
Metro Release.
GOLDEN WEST STUDIO. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.						Holly 2693
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	Snowy Baker	Price	Harry Tenbrook	Staff	"Castles in Spain"	2nd Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 0162
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
H. Edwards	Monte Banks	B. Williams	Goodman	Staff	"The Golf Bug"	2nd Week
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Chas. Lamont	Sid Smith	K. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	Big Game	Editing
Chas. Lamont	Sid Smith	K. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	"Make It Snappy"	2nd Week
Joe Rock Productions.
Reggis Morris	Joe Rock	Jerry Ash	Murray Rock	Morris	Comedy	1st Week
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						761711
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStroheim	"Greed"	24th Week
Victor Seastrom	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Chas. Lapworth	Paul Bern	"The Judge and the Woman"	12th Week
Rupert Hughes	All-Star	John Mescall	Albert Kelly	Rupert Hughes	"Law Against Law"	4th Week
King Vidor	All-Star	John Boyle	James Dugan	King Vidor	"Wild Oranges"	3rd Week
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6642 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Taylor-Newmeyer	H. Lloyd	Walter Ludwin	Bud Golden		"The Girl Expert"	2nd Week
Finis Fox Productions. R. R. Beaty, Gen. Mgr.
Richard Thomas Productions.
Supreme Art Productions. Chas. J. Hall
Irving Productions. W. H. Carr, Production Manager.
Jack O'Brien	All-Star	D. Jennings	Cy Clegg	Frank Beresford	"Trapped"	2nd Week
J. K. McDonald Productions.
Renand Hoffman Productions

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.						438-740
Horner	All-Star	Geo. Meehan	Middleton	Horner		Casting
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Seeling	Geo. Larkin	Elmer Dyer	Van Pelt	Staff	"The Gentleman Unafraid"	4th Week
Van Pelt	All-Star	Elmer Dyer		Seeling	Special	1st Week
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Palmer Photoplay Productions.
Cortland Productions
Trimble-Murfin Productions.
Lawrence Trimble	Strongheart	G. B. Dreyer	Cyril Gardner	Donna Barrell	"White Fang"	28th Week
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	6th Week
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
Jack Blystone	Buster Keaton	E. Lessley-Thorp	Rose	Mitchell	"Hospitality"	9th Week
Lou Anger Productions.
Al Austin	Clyde Cook				"The Pony Express"	Editing
HARRY KEATON PRODUCTIONS. 302 Luckenbach Bldg.
LASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vine St.						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Cecil B. DeMille	Featured	Bert Glennon	H. Tate	J. McPherson	"The Ten Commandments"	Editing
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Ernest Haller	John Boland	Tom Geraghty	"The Light That Failed"	8th Week
Al. E. Green	Thos. Meighan	Chas. Clark	Fred J. Robinson	Edford Bingham	"Woman-Proof"	5th Week
Jos. Henabery	Doug. Fairbanks, Jr	Chas. Schoenbaum	Dick Johnson		"Stephen Steps Out"	5th Week
Albert S. Lebino					"Wm. Hart in Wild Bill Hickok"	2nd Week
Zane Grey Productions.
Victor Fleming	Dix-Wilson			Doris Schroeder	"The Call of the Canyon"	3rd Week
McNAMARA STUDIOS. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Capitol 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro Release).
B. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
Gasnier	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"Maytime"	3rd Week
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	John Arnold	Chas. Watt	Basil Dickey	"In Search of a Thrill"	5th Week
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Allen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar					"The Human Mill"	Preparing
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	11th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford		Heir	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	7th Week
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Louis Tolhurst				Walter Anthony	Microscopic Motion Pictures	Schedule
Alf. Goulding	Harry Langdon	Albert Breslau	David Smith	Harry Langdon	"A Perfect Nuisance"	Schedule
Benny Zeidman Productions.
Ed Cline	Joe Butterworth	Wm. Marshall	Frank Geraghty	Grey Carr	"The Good Bad Boy"	4th Week
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Eddie Hearn			Wyndam Gittens	"The Sand Pile"	Preparing
Lehrman	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"Wages of Cinema"	Schedule
					"Born of the Cyclone"	4th Week
					"Drucilla With a Million"	Preparing
					"Alex the Great"	Preparing
Chester Bennett Productions.
Douglas MacLean Productions
Jimmy Horne	Douglas MacLean	Max DuPont	Art Flaven		"The Yankee Consul"	1st Week
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr. 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Howe-Cedar	"Paul" Parrott	Frank Young	Henecke-Brandie		Comedies	Schedule
McGowan	All-Star	Harry Gerstadt	C. Morehouse		"Our Gang"	Schedule
Ralph Cedar	Stan Laurel				1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Roy Clemens	Edna Murphy	Bobby Doran	McBurney		"What Should a Girl Do?"	Schedule
Lon Powers	Dippy Doo Dads	Hank Kohler	Bert Currigan		Animal Comedy	Schedule
Chas. Parrott	Will Rogers	Bob Dorrin	Chas. Oelze		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
Phil Rosen	All-Star	Kurrle-Broening	Al. Davis	Francis Marion	"Life of Abraham Lincoln"	Schedule
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSELL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945
Al. Nietz	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen.	Hively	Feature	Preparing
Logan-Baynham Productions.
Tom Gibson	Morante	MacManigal	Kane-Walsh		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. B. Seitz	Ray-Miller	Walker-Moran	Wm. Bertram	Seitz	"The Way of a Man"	10th Week
Hercules Film Co.
Jack Nelson	Jack Powell	McManigal			"Let's Go"	2nd Week

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
Campbell	Johnnie Lucas	Staub		Mack Sennett	"Rough and Ready"	Editing
Del Lord	Ben Turpin	Blake Wagner		Mack Sennett	"The Extra Man"	Editing
Del Lord	All Star	Blake Wagner		Mack Sennett	Comedy	1st Week
Del Ruth	Ben Turpin			Mack Sennett	Comedy	1st Week
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Louis B. Mayer Productions, Clune's Studio, 5360 Melrose Ave.
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Heerman	Constance Talmadge	Glen McWilliams	E. Brophy	Willard Mack	"The Dangerous Maid"	Editing
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Rise of All the World"	5th Week
Sam E. Rork Productions.
First National Productions.
McDermott Chaplin	All-Star		James Chapin	Wm. Dowlin	"Temporary Marriage"	4th Week
Jack Dillon	All-Star		Jimmy Dunn	Dowlin	"Flaming Youth"	7th Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Maurice Tourneur	All-Star	Arthur Todd	Scott R. Beal	Fred Myton	"Jealous Fools"	5th Week
Frank Lloyd Productions (First National Release)
Frank Lloyd	Griffith Tearle		Harry Weil	Frank Lloyd	"Black Oxen"	1st Week
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig, Casting.						433-131
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Archainbaud	Priscilla Dean		McCarey-Wyler		"The Storm Daughter"	7th Week
Herbert Blache	Gladys Walton		Sullivan	Hugh Hoffman	"The Near Lady"	2nd Week
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson	Robinson	Clarke	Geo. Plympton	"The Steel Trail"	16th Week
Robt. N. Bradbury			Nordlinger		"Riders of the Moon"	Editing
Wm. Craft	All-Star		Taylor-Ricks		"Beasts of Paradise"	Editing
Ed. Sedgwick	Hoot Gibson	Miller	Cummel	Sedgwick-Schrock	"The Extra Man"	3rd Week
Nat Ross	Roy Stewart	Asher	Webb		"The Man Tracker"	Editing
Wm. Parke	Herbert Rawlinson		Dorian		"The Noblest Roman"	2nd Week
Ed. Laemmle	Billy Sullivan		Regan		"The Leather Pusher Series"	Preparing
Harry Pollard	Reginald Denny		F. Messinger		"The Spice of Life"	2nd Week
Irving Cummings	Mary Philbin		Woolstenhume		"My Mamie Rose"	Preparing
Leon Lee Productions. Leon Lee Manager.
Dinky Dean Productions. Lew Lipton, Production Manager.
Andy Gump Productions.
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen. Mgr.						598-131
Dave Smith Productions.
Dave Smith	All-Star	D. Smith, Jr.	Bill Dagwell	J. P. Smith	"The Man From Brodneys"	3rd Week
Larry Semon Productions.
L. Semon	L. Semon	Konekamp	Joe Basil	Semon	Comedy	3rd Week
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 4181
Warner Brothers Productions.
Mal St. Clair	Wesley Barry	E. B. Dupar	Geo. Webster		"George Washington, Jr."	4th Week
Johnny Hines	Johnny Hines	Chas. Gilson	C. Hines-Roth		"Conductor 1492"	4th Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Marsh Gillingwater		Tenny Wright		"Daddies"	Scheduled Sept 1st
Harry Beaumont	John Barrymore	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Beau Brummel"	Sept. 1st
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Sidney Franklin	Lenore Ulric	Chas. Rosher	Wm. McGann	Edmund Goulding	"Tiger Rose"	7th Week
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernest Lubitsch	All-Star	Homer Scott	Flood Blanke		"The Marriage Circle"	2nd Week
Harry Rapf Productions.
Jack Conway	Monte Blue-Irene Rich	David Abel	Sutherland-Hawkes		"Loveless Marriages"	4th Week
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WILNAT STUDIO. 6090 Sunset Blvd. Al. Brandt, Mgr.						Holly 7940
E. J. Le Saint	All-Star	King Grey	Geo. E. Reehm		"The Marriage Market"	3rd Week
World Educational Films. Box 313, Sta. "C," L. A.
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	"Haunts of Hiawatha"	2nd Week

DR. W. L. SCHUSTER
Chiropractor—Nerve Specialist
"Where the sick go to get well"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

PAT HENRY BARNES
Leads—Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

From Hollywood to Down-Town Hotels $2 or Shopping District
578-280 SUNSET TAXI 578-307

WHEN YOU NEED A DOCTOR
Phone 431-339; 430-205, or Holly 102-82
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Formerly of New York City
6548 Hollywood Blvd. Near Armstrong & Carlton's.

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law
JACK P. LEONARD
340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

DICK SUTHERLAND
Characters—Heavy
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

"Phon-O-Grams"

Edited by Gene Woolway

Alton Brown
Juvenile Leads 578-177

Charlotte DuPuis
Ingenue-Characters
Holly 2570

J. C. (Jack) Fowler
Characters
Holly 7058

Lorraine Eason
Ingenue Leads
575-91

Kenneth Gibson
Juvenile Leads 578-311

Doctor Roberts
Character Actor
Holly 5335

Reeka Roberts
Emotional Roles
Holly 5335

Bert Sprotte
Characters
741-64

Another great loss is sustained by the D. W. Griffith forces in the death of Adolph Lestina, who passed away at his home in New Rochelle, N. Y., last Thursday. Lestina is the fourth of the renowned Griffith people to go in the past four years. First, Clarine Seymour, of "Scarlet Days" fame, then Bobbie Harron of beloved memory, followed by Porter Strong, well known blackface interpreter, who died less than two months ago. Lestina was on the legitimate stage many years prior to his entrance into the film world, and was one of Richard Mansfield's chief co-workers. He was with Griffith since the eminent producer-director first began making pictures, but had been in ill health during the past few years and was used on a pension basis by Mr. Griffith. He leaves a host of friends in the theatrical and film world, who will cherish his memory as a man of beautiful character, one who did things with his entire heart and soul in his work.

SCREEN CLOSE-UPS

The title to the forthcoming Warner classic, "Lucretia Lombard," has been changed to "Loveless Marriages." It stated that the reason for this is the fact that movie fans may be mislead into believing the photoplay is a costume picture, as "Lombard" is a province in Italy, and "Lucretia" was the first name of the late Madam Borgia. Monte Blue and Irene Rich are starred in the feature.

Dorothy Vernon is playing an important role in Johnny Hine's next Warner classic, "Conductor 1492." The lady is the mother of Bobby Vernon, of Christie Comedy fame. "Conductor 1492" is a screen version of F. Scott Fitzgerald's story, "The Camel's Back." Charles Hines and Frank Griffin will be responsible for the direction of the photoplay.

Lemore Ulric, who is now at the Warner Brothers' studio filming the famous Belasco play, "Tiger Rose," is keeping different hours than she did in New York during her season in "Kiki." The popular star is on the set from early morning until six o'clock at night. Pretty soft for these movie stars, huh? But we'll wager that Lenore thinks it's a bit softer playing on Broadway in a Belasco hit.

The National Board of Review has selected Warner Brothers' "Where the North Begins," starring Rin-Tin-Tin, the famous police dog hero, and "Little Johnny Jones," the Warner classic starring Johnny Hines, as the best audience pictures for the month of July. This should also please our old friend George M. Cohan, as George wrote and starred in "Little Johnny Jones."

A preview was given of the new Warner classic, "The Gold Diggers," starring Hope Hampton, at Glendale, California, and from the glowing reports that have arrived East, one may glean that the photoplay is expected to knock Broadway and the Hinterland cold. Wyndham Standing and Louise Fazenda are included in the large cast of players engaged for the picture.

BOB REEL
McKEE

ETHELYN IRVING
Child Lead
Personal Representative.
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Why Be Fat?

When the Marshelle Method will reduce your weight a poun a day safely, inexpensively and permanently.

Consultation free.
Phone 593 - 262
for appointment

Home Office:
1733 Maltman Avenue
Los Angeles, Cal.

Have your figure permanently Marshelled NOW.

KAY DESLYS
Characters—Dancer
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

MOTION PICTURES
Talent wanted to register in new Casting Directory. Call in person.
THE UNIVERSAL, 5507 Santa Monica Boulevard. Room 4.

L. H. LeLEAVITTO
Juvenile Lead
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

HAIRGONE—permanent cure for superfluous hair on arms, limbs, face and body. Also wonderful for men who have shaving troubles. $2.50 the bottle, manufactured at
ORCHID BEAUTY SHOPPE
808 So. Hope St. Phone 16596
All lines of beauty culture.

COLIN CHASE
Leads
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

WE MOVE THE MOVIES
and Shine on Service
Hollywood 2677 • SAMUEL C. SHINE • 6568 Santa Monica Blvd.
General Trucking and Hauling

. . . yes, they've got a new phone number. Hereafter, when you want reservations for the Friday night fights, phone Hollywood 0102. You bet, they're getting better right along . . .

American Legion Stadium
Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

OLIN FRANCIS
Refined Heavy
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Hugh Hoffman
Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip." "Crossed Wires." "The Town Scandal." "Sawdust." "The Untameable." "The Wild Party."

MADGE HUNT
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography
LITTLE
Commercial Photographer
Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

NAN CONNER
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Animated Cartoons — Original Title Ideas — Clay Animation — Miniature Sets and Animated Figures
CINEMA ARTS STUDIO
ELMER H. YOUNG, Manager
6615½ SANTA MONICA BOULEVARD

FLOYCE BROWN
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660
KWIK LUNCH
SERVES RITE
1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

Charles A. Sellon, who with Holbrook Blinn, was a member of the original cast of "The Bad Man," the Edwin Carewe production for First National, has one of the longest, yet easiest, parts in the production. Sellon, throughout the entire picture, portrays his role in a wheel chair. He plays the part of "Uncle Henry," the invalid relative of Gilbert Jones.

He played the same role in the stage version of the play and is the only member of the cast, with the exception of Blinn, who was taken from the stage cast for the motion picture production.

Choice Productions, Inc., schedule for the remainder of the current year will be devoted solely to the filming of specials, with well known directors handling the reins. Only original screen stories with big themes will be considered, according to Geo. M. Mitchell, president of Choice.

Harry L. Decker, editor-in-chief for Charles Ray, has begun cutting Choice Productions, Inc., all-star feature production, "Satan's Secret," the photographing of which was recently concluded. Mr. Decker edited practically all of Charles Ray recent successes, including "The Courtship of Miles Standish."

Baby Actress to Start Soon.

According to current rumors, "Boofie" Savin ,eight year old pupil of Theodore Kosloff, will soon make her debut on the screen. This will mark her initial appearance in pictures, although she has been before the public for the past five years. She is considered by many, including Kosloff and Mme. Pavlowa, as one of the most skillful dancers of her age.

MARION WARDE
Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films
Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing
423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

ELEANOR HOUSE
Ingenue
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

SCREEN TESTS
Invest in a Screen Test. It pays. It tells you how you screen and the cost is only
25 Cents Per Foot
Call Bruno
431-929
6412 Hollywood Boulevard

BETSY ANN HISLE
Child Lead
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Doctors
FORD & FORD
Palmer Graduate
Scientific Spinal Adjustments
Individual Rest Rooms

Anna Mae Ford D.C., Ph. C.
Office Ground Floor
G. Henry Ford D.C., Ph.C.
CHIROPRACTORS
5911 Hollywood Boulevard
10 to 12—2 to 5
Mon., Wed., Friday Evenings, 6 to 8

BOBBIE GORDON
Child Lead
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Wanted: Productions From $50,000 to $100,000
I have just returned from New York and am in the market for some real pictures. I can sell your productions outright. See me for quick release.
H. and B. FILM COMPANY
Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275

FAN PICTURES

beautifully colored at very low cost. I have special rates for this type of work and the greatest care is taken to insure absolute perfection. Investigate this now!

EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 828-538

OLIVER ECKHARDT
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Walter Frederick Seely
Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

HOLLYWOOD PERMANENT WAVE SHOPPE
5164 HOLLYWOOD BLVD.
All over head wave, $15.00. The permanent waving done at this shop is most wonderful. Their special method of wrapping produces a marcel effect on top with ringlet curls in back, without any additional water waving. Mrs. Ella Connor's ten years' experience makes her an expert in this work. A guarantee with every wave. Phone 432-927.
Former owner Hotel Alexandria Beauty Parlor

REGGIE MORELLI
Dramatic Juvenile
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

YOUR PHONOGRAPH
will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a
Deflexograph
Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles.

Play after hours —will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.
GOLD PLATE.....$1.50 (See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE....$1.00
VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

STANLEY TOLLEY
Heavy—Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Capt. M. McKenzie, production manager for the Balmac Educational films, threw a surprise into the Hollywood motion picture colony this week by announcing that, for the time being at least, the interesting and instructing educational films which he is producing will be released exclusively to schools and churches.

Great expense has been gone to by Capt. McKenzie in the production of the first seven of his series of twenty-five and while it is a well-known fact that the financial backers of his vast enterprise are men of a philanthropic nature, this report bears out the fact, as films of the caliber such as the Balmac have already produced could of course be marketed for release at the regular motion picture houses at a far increased remuneration than can come from schools and churches.

Bryant Washburn, featured in Ben Wilson's Grand-Asher pictures, caught a fish seventy-three inches long at his place on Los Turas Lake the other day—but it got away. Unluckily he had no witness to substantiate his statement as to the size of the monster and even Bryant, who bears a reputation for veracity, is doubted. "Whoever told the truth about a fish he didn't land?" ask the actor's friends.

Extra! Actor forced to change his name because girls called his dearie! This is the sad and rather unusual predicament Garry Odell, fomer comedy star and now one of the screen's fastest rising charater actors, was compelled to face a few days ago. His name used to be Geary but his female friends would invariably call him "dearie," not intentionally, but instead thinking that to be his name. The worst part of it was they would call him by that affectionate name when he was accompanied by his wife so, in order to keep peace in the family, Geary has adopted the name of Garry for professional use.

With the advent of Spring, "Bull" Montana has laid in a new supply of snappy sport shirts. If there is anything that bothers the cave man comedian it is collars. Not every store carries them in size 19.

COLBURN'S
Taxidermy Studio
Phone 643-13
1033-37 Broadway Place

. . . excells in mounting of fish . . . trout our specialty . . . see samples at our studio . . .

Coy Watson, Jr.
Age 10 Wilshire 3616
No Luck.
You Never Know.
Right of the Strongest
Featured in Campbell Comedies

MAY FOSTER
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

CHIROPODIST
FOOT SPECIALIST
Dr. Earl A. Davis
6514 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD
Hours 9 to 5. Holly 0259.

DOROTHY CHASE
Ingenue
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

—for good photos for the casting director, consult BRUNO, at 6412 Hollywood Boulevard, whose telephone number is 431-929.

NAOMI BAILEY
Ingenue—Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Especially for Motion Picture People.
THE HILLVIEW GRILL
Hillview Apartments Bldg.
Hollywood at Hudson
Holly 7980 Holly 6626
MERCHANTS' LUNCH, 11:30 to 2
DINNER 5:30 to 8

SCREEN SERVICE
(formerly The Service Bureau)
1036 SOUTH HILL
Phone 821-071

"BOOFIE" SAVIN
Child Lead
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Selected Antiques
Turton's Antique Shop
5611 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Cal.

VIRGINIA PEARSON
Feature Woman
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Frank the Shoe Doctor
"We save your sole and heel you, too"
6666 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3752

HOWARD TRUESDALE
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Authentic and Unusual Oriental Properties
Oriental Costume Co.
6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

SHELDON LEWIS
Leads—Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS
GET RESULTS

PATHE CAMERA complete, for rent by the week. St. Elmo Boyce, Powers-R. C. Studios.

FOR RENT — Bell and Howell Camera. Carl Zeirr Lenses. Full studio equipment. $25.00 per week. Ralph Yarger, 13098 or 582-062.

TYPIST—Young man with switchboard and general office experience. Studio work only. Chas. McNavin. 578-182.

"FIGHTING SKIPPER" IS GIVEN EASTERN PREMIERE

"The Fighting Skipper," produced under the personal direction of Francis J. Ford, was given its premiere recently in the East.

Mr. Ford now is in the South Sea Islands, where he sailed to get jungle, cannibal, wild animal and under-water pictures for travelogue, educational and adventure films.

"The Fighting Skipper" is a serial, consisting of fifteen episodes, and featuring Peggy O'Day and Jack Perrin. James Hutchinson was the cameraman. It was filmed at the Berwilla Studio.

The film was adapted from an original story by Mr. Ford, who, also, played an important role in the picture.

"The Fighting Skipper" is a Forday Production for Arrow release.

Director Has Problem

John Griffith Wray, who has been selected by Thomas H. Ince to direct Eugene O'Neil's great stage success, "Anna Christie," is up against a real problem to start with. A great part of the action is laid on an ocean-going coal barge and Wray has been unable to find one on the Pacific Coast, where the fuel is entirely oil and lighters are used. It is probable that one will have to be built in San Francisco for this picture.

Fred Esmelton wears a judge's robe, a Tuxedo, a dress suit, a Prince Albert, in addition to several business suits in "The Lullaby" produced by Chester Bennett.

RENALLES, INC.
Clarke Renalle
President
6529 Venice Blvd.
Culver City

100 PER CENT TITLES, 100 PER CENT SERVICE AT THE RIGHT PRICE

Dress up that next production with artistic Hand Lettered Titles made by IRVING W. BUNZE. If you want Perfect Symbolic Art Backgrounds, let us make them. Neil E. McQuire, formerly with Ince & Prizma, does our art work.
For perfect black and white titles, try our PROCESS SYSTEM.
A telephone call will bring our representative with samples.

Quality Title & Film Co.
1442 BEECHWOOD DRIVE HOLLY 4850

WARNER BAXTER WITH VIOLA DANA IN NEW PICTURE

Life has not always been a bed of roses for Warner Baxter, who appears opposite Viola Dana in "In Search of a Thrill," her newest Metro starring picture. It isn't that now, according to Mr. Baxter who, although he is one of the screen's most popular leading men, is far from the goal he has set for himself.

Mr. Baxter came to Los Angeles some years ago for the purpose of entering motion pictures. He wore the soles from his shoes traveling from studio to studio and spent his last dime for carfare—and failed to land a job.

Then, at this crucial moment in his career he was offered the opportunity of substituting for a member of the stock company at the Burbank theatre. He accepted the opportunity without delay. Mr. Baxter left the Burbank a few years later to go to New York to play the leading role in "Lombardi, Ltd." The play enjoyed a successful season on Broadway and another on the road. Mr. Baxter then played the leading role in three New York failures, and returned to Los Angeles.

TEN—CAMERA ....

Since that time he has enjoyed nothing but success. He was co-featured with Ralph Lewis in "Blow Your Own Horn" and with Colleen Moore in "The Ninety and Nine." Other pictures in whichh he has had leading roles include "Alimony," "Her Own Money," "If I Were a Queen," "Lost," and others.

Before going on the stage Mr. Baxter was at various times an insurance, an automobile and a typewriter salesman.

With the filming of several sea scenes at Catalina last week, Constance Talmadge finished work in her latest photoplay, "The Dangerous Maid." This Joseph M. Schenck production was directed by Victor Heerman and will be released early in the fall by Associated First National Pictures, Inc.

Constance left for Catalina at 9:00 a.m. last Wednesday morning, after having had but three hours sleep, which she obtained in her dressing room at the United Studios. The company finished the last interiors at the studios at 6:00 a.m., and Constance was carried half asleep to the auto which whisked her to the Catalina boat.

By patching out her sleep with cat naps in the auto and aboard the Catalina boat, Constance was ready for the final scenes, which were started at Catalina early Wednesday afternoon.

The cast of "The Dangerous Maid" is a notable one and consists of Conway Tearle, Tully Marshall, Morgan Wallace, Lou Morrison, Marjorie Daw, Philip Dunham, Charles Gerrard, Otto Matiesen, Wilson Hummel, Kenneth Gibson, Ray Haller, Thomas Ricketts, Ann May, Kate Price and Jack Dillon.

Director Heerman was assisted by Edward Brophy, while Cameraman Glen MacWilliams broke all Hollywood filming records on "The Dangerous Maid," shooting more than 7,500 feet on many successive days.

"The Dangerous Maid" is a romantic comedy-drama of the turbulent days when the Duke of Monmouth rebelled against King James II. Constance has her first really serious role in the production and makes a charming figure in a cavallier's costume.

ALICE KING AT METRO

Alice King, well known to those who were patrons of the stage several years ago, is appearing in motion pictures for the first time, in "In Search of a Thrill," Viola Dana's newest Metro starring picture which Oscar Apfel is directing. If screen acting appeals to her and her work warrants, she will continue at it. Miss King is a sister-in-law of Mabel Van Buren, one of motion picture's best established character actresses, who has one of the chief roles in "In Search of a Thrill."

MICKEY McBAN

in

"DAYTIME WIVES"

at

Grauman's Million Dollar Theater

"Poor Men's Wives"
"The Man Who Won"
"The Temple of Venus"
"Born of the Cyclone"

438-750

LOIS SCOTT

who has just finished series WITH JOE ROCK, directed by Reggie Morris, for Grand-Asher release.

Holly 10174

Educationally Entertaining

Historically Authentic

Diversified in Character

Intensely Dramatic

INTRODUCING

Releasing Exclusively to Schools and Churches. One and Two-Reel Educational Films

Completed Films Now Ready for Release:

"The Land of Everlasting Snow,"

"From Forrest to Mill,"

"The Land of Burned Out Fires,"

"Modern Whaling."

Films Under Production:

"Gold Mining" — past and present.

"North Coast Sea Lion Story," and modern glazier period.

"The Guardian of the Golden Gate"—historical.

Capt. M. McKenzie, Production Manager

Temporary Offices:

1614 Cahuenga Avenue Hollywood, Calif.

PRISCILLA DEAN MORAN

whom the world knows and loves as Jackie Coogan's
"adopted sister"
She is returning to the screen after a short retirement

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

Camera!

Los Angeles, California Saturday, September 1, 1923 Price 10 Cents

CLARKE RENALLE

President and General Managing Director of Renalles, Inc.

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A.HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

New York Washington, D. C.

Phone 52220

Phone 54847

Hepner
INCORPORATED

1001-1005 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles California

Permanent Waving Hair Coloring Bleaching
Hair Dressing Scalp-Facial Massage
Marcel Waving Water Waving Shampooing
Manicuring
Wigs Toupees Switches Transformations
Wig Rental Beards and Moustaches
Cosmetics
Professional Makeup Service

Special Attention to Theatrical and Motion Picture Profession

No Parking Restrictions

LOIS SCOTT

Holly 10174

Good Stories Are Scarce

"Can meet requirements of any star"
"Have unlimited material"
"State what you want — we have it"
"Plays—Books—Originals"
"A staff of writers for all needs"
"The Lone Wolf Returns"
"Baroque,"* by Louis Joseph Vance
"The Wren,"* by Booth Tarkington
"A Young Man's Fancy—Made of Money"
"On the Hiring Line"

Address all communications to
EMMETT CORRIGAN, Manager

The Hollywood Play Bureau
6404 Hollywood Blvd.

"Camera!" (The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry)

ESTABLISHED 1918—A FILM MAGAZINE AND A FILM NEWSPAPER IN ONE
Entered as second class matter, August 11, 1918, at the postoffice at Los Angeles, Cal., under act of March 3, 1879.

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON.....Publisher and Manager DELBERT E. DAVENPORT.....Editor
JOHN CORNYN.....Advertising Manager FRED W. FOX.....Advertising Copy
GENE WOOLWAY.....Studio Representative

H. H. CONGER COMPANY, National Advertising Representatives
Marbridge Building NEW YORK CITY | First Nat'l Bank Building CHICAGO | Holbrook Building SAN FRANCISCO

Price 10 cents per copy, $3.50 per year in Los Angeles County. Outside Zone, $4.00 per year. Canada, $4.50, Foreign, $5.00.
Issued on Saturday afternoon of each week at 6318 Hollywood Boulevard, in Los Angeles, California. Phone 439-869
Address All Communications to Camera!

Vol. VI. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1923 No. 20

The Editors Point of View

After all is said and done, there is no one who can equal D. W. Griffith in the creation of screen dramas. He is, without a doubt, the one outstanding figure in one of the world's greatest industries; the maestro of the cinema, a real artist and a man of great understanding, who is filming life as it really is. His pictures never fail to teach a worth-while lesson; each and every one of them has a story to tell, a story replete with the sunshine and shadow of our own day-to-day existence, and in his latest offering, "The White Rose," he has conclusively proven that the scepter of supremacy is still in his hands. Here he has brought Truth to the silversheet, and with Truth he has coupled Beauty. He is showing us, to a great extent, the dark side, that we may know and go to, the light. "The White Rose" brings Mae Marsh back to us in her finest portrayal to date, not excluding her role in "The Birth of a Nation," which was one of her first triumphs under the master-director's guidance. The same pathos is there, the same beautiful touches will tug at your heart strings, and even "Hearts and Flowers" will echo back across the years when you see this picture. How insignificant, how dwarfed, the attainments of some others appear when compared to the work of this man. He is the giant among them all, the colossus of cinema drama. He has known life in all of its tones, and herefore he can play such beautiful melodies. "The White Rose" is a screen symphony that will live for all time. It has been said that true greatness alone endures, and the name of Griffith will live in the Hall of Fame when the names of others shall have long since ceased to be mentioned, for he has established and forwarded the highest standards of the motion picture.

Motion picture audiences are constantly demanding new situations. Stories whose big claim for pre-eminence are based on yesteryears, plots and angles, are doomed. Time-worn hokum must walk the plank. This is the demand of progressive film fans, who are buccaneering for a change in things cinema.

What the world needs more than ever today is a square deal for everyone. We should all be working toward this ideal. Its establishment in Europe would be a big step to peace and prosperity; it would bring happiness out of the present chaotic conditions now existing there. If we gave more thought to it in our daily lives, and practiced it faithfully, we would all be more contented, and the industry would grow in security, making rapid strides toward healthy expansion. The extra people of today will be the big producers of tomorrow. They must work under more encouraging conditions.

Bryant Washburn is making a picture entitled, "Try and Get It." The full meaning of this title will be appreciated by distributors.

It is rumored an independent producing company will soon begin on a series of pictures, the first to be called "The Finish." Why not make "The Start" first?

The place for Filmland's production capital, is in Filmland's capitol.

Now that we have another change in our California Vehicle Law, the traffic problem is solved.

A new phonograph record, "Ten Thousand Years From Now," and on the other side, "Who Cares?"

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Broken Wing"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

Eugene O'Brien
in
"Steve"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

George Larkin
in
"Saved by Radio"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

Vaudeville
and
"Loyal Lives"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

Alice Brady
in
"The Leopardess"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Bud Harrison-Geo. Clark
in
"Jazztown Babies"

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Goldfish"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

"Tea-With-A-Kick"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

Zane Grey's
"The Lone Star Ranger"

This Week's Theatre Notes

A hero, a heroine and two screen vampires, male and female, are the featured performers in "Lawful Larceny," adapted from Samuel Shipman's stage play which ran six months at the Republic Theatre in New York.

These roles in this new society drama are portrayed by Hope Hampton, Conrad Nagel, Nita Naldi and Lew Cody. Allan Dwan produced the picture.

The story tells of a pretty wife who, when she finds her husband a victim to the sublety of the feminine Cleopatra and her pawn in her brilliant gambling establishment, proceeds to match her wits against the siren to retrieve her husband's losses and overcome the danger to his honor. "Lawful Larceny" is the feature attraction at Grauman's Metropolitan Theatre this week.

Action galore, romance, pomp, intrigue, love and hate abound in the Selznick picturization of Sir Anthony Hope's celebrated romance, "Rupert of Hentzau," which is showing at Loew's State Theater this week. This production is the sequel to the same author's "The Prisoner of Zenda" and continues the narrative of the dashing Rupert, of the King Rudolph, of the Princess Flavia, and of Rudolph Rassendyll. It is an ambitious presentation and boasts of many large and beautiful settings, perhaps some of the biggest ever built. "Rupert of Hentzau" is an attractive figure, full of dash and verve, and his plottings against Rudolph causes his banishment. Out of this animosity results the adventurous story, which is now in film at Loew's State. It is said that all-star casts sometimes burden the beholder with their many names, walking in and out of the picture. In this production every one of the stars has a reel part, one that is co-ordinant to the characterizations essayed and necessary. The leading roles are portrayed by Bert Lytell, who plays the dual roles of King Rudolph of Ruritania, and Rudolph Rassendyl; Elaine Hammerstein plays Queen Flavia; Lew Cody is seen as Rupert of Hentzau; Claire Windsor as Countess Helga; Hobart Bosworth as Colonel Sapt; Bryant Washburn as Count Fritz von Tarlenheim; Marjorie Daw as Rosa Holf; Mitchell Lewis as Bauer; Elmo Lincoln as Simon; Irving Cummings as Bernstein; Josephine Crowell as Mother Holf; Nigel de Brullier as Herbert, and Gertrude Astor as Paula. Hundreds of extras were used throughout the various spectacular scenes. Victor Heerman directed the production.

Bud Harrison and George Clark, favorite comedians at the Burbank theater, will be seen in "Jazztown Babies."

Still playing to capacity audiences, Marjorie Rambeau in the stellar role in Gladys Unger's comedy, "The Goldfish," begins the third week of her engagement at the Majestic theatre. Los Angeles theatregoers are showing a keen appreciation of the splendid talents of this shining light from New York's Broadway, whom Producer Thomas Wilkes has surrounded with an excellent supporting cast for her special starring engagement here. As a vehicle for Miss Rambeau's versatile talent, "The Goldfish" has proven ideal. It affords her ample opportunity of playing comedy, farce and dramatic angles and the transitions from one to the other are handled with the excellent technique that places Miss Rambeau among the leaders in her profession. The entire cast gives excellent support and includes such well-known names as Lawrence Grant, Richard Tucker, John Steppling, Robert Adams, Roland Bottomley, Willard Jensen, Miss Auda Due, Geraldine Blair and Marie Baker.

Robert W. Chambers' famous novel, "The Common Law," a story of the artist model who, in order to win the man she loves, offered to sacrifice herself and become his common law wife, a picture which has created no small sensation in Los Angeles, will be shown for a second week at the Alhambra Theater. The production has played to tremendous crwds and established several new records. The leading roles are portrayed by Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle, supported by a cast of notables, including Elliott Dexter, Bryant Washburn, Phyllis Haver, Miss Du Pont, Harry Myers, Doris May, and others of note.

A love story of delightful charm, with its heart appealing theme, is D. W. Griffith's "The White Rose," which comes to Grauman's Million Dollar Theater. It is the age-old tale of the romance of a boy and girl whose love survived separation and other forces which tended to keep them apart. Mr. Griffith labored patiently and at great expense to make the atmosphere quite correct, and the simple story interesting through careful characterization. Griffith journeyed with his company to the famous Bayou Teche country of Louisiana for his scenes and he obtained exteriors of striking charm. A typical Griffith cast interprets this photoplay, including Mae Marsh, Carol Dempster, Ivor Neville, Neil Hamilton, Kate Bruce, Lucille La Verne, Porter Strong and Jane Thomas. With this super-feature, Round No. 12 of "Fighting Blood," with its romance, action and humor, will be shown. George O'Hara is the star and tells of his rise to championship in the prize ring.

California
Main at Eighth

Rex Beach's
"The Spoilers"

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Alice Lake
in
"Red Lights"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

Allan Dwan's
"Lawful Larceny"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Lew Cody
in
"Rupert of Hentzau"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

"Hollywood"

Pilgrimage Theatre
Cahuenga and Highland

Life of the Christ

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

D. W. Griffith's
"The White Rose"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

Corinne Griffith
in
"The Common Law"

Hollywood Egyptian
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden

"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mary Philbin
and Norman Kerry in
"Merry Go Round"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

Harold Lloyd
in
"Safety Last"

Charles Ray Enters Ranks of Big Producers

MONROE LATHROP

Charles Ray was so long associated with the program type of motion picture that many people have not yet grasped the fact that he has ready for release in October a super-production, "The Courtship of Miles Standish."

It is in ten reels and involved more than eight months' research and physical work and an outlay of over $800,000.

Ray has, in short, followed the lead of Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin and Norma Talmadge out of the field of trivial entertainment into the limited realm of independent producer-stars who are seeking to get out of the cinema art the expression of its highest powers.

While others have gone for themes to foreign locales, Ray has taken a thrilling chapter of our own history, the story of the great adventure of the Pilgrim Fathers.

He has threaded it with America's first and most famous love story, the legend of John Alden and Priscilla Mullins, as related in Longfellows epic poem.

In translating this for the screen, Ray undertook the work on the most generous scale. Fairbanks made his "Robin Hood" around a giant castle. "The Covered Wagon" was borne to triumph, so to speak, by a majestic prairie caravan. Ray's piece de resistance in the production of "The Courtship of Miles Standish" was the Mayflower.

An exact replica of the historic ship was built at a cost of $64,000—a sum as large as many entire pictures entail.

This "set," the costliest of its dimensions ever built, is such a remarkable work of art that patriotic societies of California have urged that it be purchased and placed in one of the city parks of Los Angeles as a permanent memorial.

The modern Mayflower is of the exact dimensions of the original sloop that bore the Pilgrims on their momentous voyage, 102 feet long. Its heavy cost is largely due to the fact that the 1923 boat conceals a frame of structural steel.

At his studio Ray also built cross sections of the Mayflower for interior scenes of the voyage across the Atlantic, as the play covers a period of time from before the storms which nearly destroyed the ship to two years after the landing.

From 70 to 100 men were employed for eleven weeks in re-building the Mayflower.

The work was in charge of Robert Ellis, noted art director, and H. C. Lydecker, who superintended the raising of the Maine in Havana harbor.

Designs for the Pilgrim and Indian costumes were executed by Mitchell Leison, who performed the same service for "Robin Hood." All the costumes, armor and arms for Miles Standish's soldiers, the utensils of the Pilgrims, etc., were built for the production.

In the building of the Pilgrim's settlement on Cape Cod as great a quantity of timber and lumber was used as in any of the spectacular cinemas of the past.

One of the unique scenic agencies was a forest background painted in oils 300 feet long and 60 feet high—the largest painted canvas in the history of motion pictures.

Another, done to secure the superior lighting facilities of the studio, was a 300-foot cliff, an actual impression of a California mountain-side made by a process never before employed. It was a marvel of ingenuity on the part of film technicians.

Superimposed on this were hundreds of living trees transplanted from distant mountains. Southern California trees wouldn't do for primitive New England scenery.

Eight cameras shot nearly 200,000 feet of film from as many angles for scenes in "The Courtship of Miles Standish," from which 10,000 feet were finally culled.

Seventeenth century men affected long hair, so a wig company established a branch of wig makers at the studio to "crown" the hundreds of Pilgrims and Indians properly and care for the expensive wigs.

During much of the time the making of "The Courtship of Miles Standish" entailed an overhead expense of $11,000 a day.

Exclusive of the star, the salaries of the leading principals ran to more than $10,000 a week.

This sum did not include the pay of sixty-six other players who filled name-roles in the production, the largest ever to appear in a motion picture.

The principals, besides Mr. Ray, included such noted actors as Enid Bennett and Sam De Grasse of "Robin Hood" fame; Joseph Dowling, noted for his work in "The Miracle Man," Stanton Heck, Thomas Holding, Norval MacGregor, Sidney Bracy, Charlotte Pierce, E. Alyn Warren, Tom Wilson, Gertrude Pedlar, Marion Nixon, Frank Farrington, William Sullivan and others equally famed for many parts.

Frederick Sullivan, who directed the picture, is a stage and film director of many years' experience. His genius in staging a magnificent production of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" in Hollywood Bowl, a vast natural outdoor theater in Los Angeles, with thousands of performers, so impressed Charles Ray that he engaged him to pilot "The Courtship of Miles Standish" through the process from printed poem to screen.

Frederick Sullivan is a nephew of Sir Arthur Sullivan, the famous composer.

Fred Niblo, the eminent director, has seen the Ray masterpiece and declared it to be "the greatest production in years." "Nothing," Niblo added, "ever thrilled me so much."

On the pictorial side, secret processes possessed by the Ray studio are said to have made "The Courtship of Miles Standish" a thing of wondrous photographic beauty.

From U to You

By WILL C. MURPHEY

Herbert Rawlinson has turned waiter for a spell. He'll juggle dishes awkwardly several thousand feet of film for the story of "The Noblest Roman," which Mary Whiteside originally wrote for a popular magazine. It is being directed for Universal by William Parke, director of Rawlinson's last, "The Clean-Up." Two hundred extras attired in their best took part in the first day's scenes of the new picture, representing the throng at a high class cafe. The story gives the handsome star a taste of both poverty and riches. Margaret Landis, blonde beauty from Tennessee, who has recently become a very popular ingenue leading woman of the screen, has been cast by Fred Datig, Universal casting director, for a very prominent role. Miss Landis is a sister of the popular Cullen and began her screen career just about a year ago. She played the leading feminine role in "The Love Brand," a Universal production starring Roy Stewart, has appeared in a couple of pictures with Anita Stewart and has played featured roles in several "Western" dramas. Kalla Pasha, he whose muscles make shoestrings out of steel pipes and rubber bands out of iron bars, is one of the supporting players chosen for the production. To say that he is playing the "heavy" would be slightly incorrect in a dramatic sense, for there is not such a creature in the story. He's only half-in-half in that sense. But with his muscles, made famous as a wrestler and as a comedian, he should be capable of "heavy" work.

Billy Sullivan has just signed a long term contract with Universal to star in a new series of "Leather Pushers," of the type made famous by Reginald Denny.

When it became generally known that Denny had been removed from the two-reel "box-fight" comedy dramas and was to be made a star of multi-reel productions there was an immediate clamour from the "Leather Pushers" fans for a new Kid Roberts and more picturizations of the popular H. C. Witwer stories.

Fred Datig, Universal casting director, interviewed 175 applicants for the title role in the new productions.

Then Billy Sullivan decided to apply for this cinema plum. Two weeks later he was notified that he had been selected for the part. He is twenty-five years old and has appeared in pictures for the last eight years having played many juvenile leads. His most recent role was that of John Howland in Charles Ray's "Courtship of Miles Standish."

Sullivan comes from a fighting family, and is a clever amateur boxer, altho he has never done any professional fighting himself. He is the son of Jerry Sullivan, a noted heavyweight fighter and a cousin of the famous John L. Sullivan.

The new "Leather Pushers" will be filmed under the direction of Edward Laemmle, who directed Herbert Rawlinson in "The Victor" and many other Universal successes. Production will start within the next few weeks.

With long location visits at Catalina and Laguna behind them, the members of the company at Universal City which is making "The Storm Daughter" are glad that location exteriors are practically completed. Interior scenes of dramatic importance in the Universal-Jewel special are being filmed under the direction of George Archainbaud.

Priscilla Dean is starring at the head of an impressive cast which includes William B. Davidson, Tom Santschi, Bert Roach, Cyril Chadwick, J Farrel McDonald and other noteworthies of current fame.

The story, written by Leete Renick Brown and scenarized by Edward Montaigne, is a sea tale of magnificent adventures, with Miss Dean as the daughter of an oldtime skipper. It will

(Continued on Page 19)

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., Aug. 27th.—The Gerson Picture Corporation has made most rapid and satisfactory progress with "Waterfront Wolves," the first of their new series of five-reelers. Actual filming of the picture was finished last Saturday, after just two weeks of work, the film is now being cut and titled, and will be ready to be released to the State Right market September 15th. Ora Carew has done some of the best work of her career as the featured player in the picture, and Jay Morley, and the balance of the cast have done themselves great credit. Hal Stevens' performance as the old Chinaman is especially notable, and his makeup wonderful. Dick LaReno, who plays the Father, has years of experience to his credit, being one of the company that worked with Seliig in the making of "Humpty-Dumpty," one of the first pictures ever filmed. The Gerson Company are doing one thing that has never been done before, as they are having all their lithographs, cuts, mats, and press books made in San Francisco.

The company making "Half-a-Dollar Bill" for the Graf Productions under the direction of W. S. Van Dyke at the Pacific Studios at San Mateo, expect to finish the studio work on Tuesday, and Wednesday set sail in a three-masted coasting schooner for two weeks at sea, to shoot the deep-water part of the play. The studio last Thursday evening was the scene of one of the largest free-for-all fights on record, between Mitchell Lewis, Raymond Hatton, William Carleton, George McQuarrie, and two or three dogs all mixed up in the fracas. The dogs got so excited that several of the human actors lost part of their wardrobe, and a few sections of their skin before the sequence was ended.

Alla Nazimova, world famous star of both the stage and screen, came to San Francisco on Sunday, to open as the headline attraction at the Orpheum Theatre. She will appear in "Collusion," a fine vehicle written by George Middleton. This is Nazimova's first appearance in San Francisco since the summer of the Exposition, 1915, when she played here in "War Brides."

Anna Q. Nilsson, who is in town playing in the Graf production of "Half-a-Dollar Bill," made a personal appearance at the Granada Theatre last Friday night in connection with the showing of the 1923 "Spoilers," in which she played a leading role.

Edward Belasco, head of the Belasco Productions, returned to this city a few days ago from Los Angeles, where he has been making arrangements for the next production of the organization. Work will begin very shortly, and full details will be given out within a few days.

Director Victor Seastrom and the company engaged in the filming for Goldwyn of Hall Caine's great novel, "The Master of Man," returned to San Francisco last Thursday morning. The change of leading man from Joseph Schildkraut to Conrad Nagel, necessitated the retaking of part of the picture that had been shot here. Of the principals, only Conrad Nagel, Creighton Hale and Patsy Ruth Miller were here with fourteen members of the staff. The weather being so favorable, instead of working a week, as they expected, they were able to finish in three days, so returned to Los Angeles on Saturday evening.

Jack Dewey, business manager of the Golden State Films, spent part of last week in Los Angeles on business connected with the reorganization of the company on a new, and much larger and better, scale.

Al. Green, director with the company of which Thomas Meighan is the star, now shooting "Woman Proof," are due in San Francisco on September 1st for some location work on the picture.

Paul Powell, and the company who are making some additional scenes for "The Daughter of Mother McGinn," were working in Oakland a day or two the first of last week.

While her husband had gone to sea in the making of a picture, Mrs. William Desmond (Mary McIvor) spent several days in San Francisco last week, on a little pleasure trip.

Rosa Gore, for nearly thirty years a vaudeville headliner, as a member of the team of Crimmins and Gore, has arrived in San Francisco to play an important role in "Half-a-Dollar Bill," which the Graf Productions are filming at the San Mateo studios. Miss Gore and her husband, Dan Crimmons, abandoned vaudeville for motion picture work during the war. Crimmins is now with Buster Keaton.

Joe Caven, who has been playing juveniles with Metro, is one of the week-end guests at the St. Francis.

All the stars now playing in "Half-a-Dollar Bill" at the Pacific Studio were the guests of the management at the big amusement park at Pacific City last Sunday. Everybody from Anna Q. Nilsson and Mitchell Lewis to Cameo, the trained dog, were present and enjoyed a pleasant afternoon. Miss Nilsson awarded a dancing cup; Cameo did stunts for the children, and camera tests were taken of some of the bathing girls.

Frank Craven and "The First Year" company that came to the Columbia Theatre last week for a month's engagement, are doing record breaking business. This is the only company coming to the coast in a long time that are true to their advertising; the play really ran two whole years on Broadway, and with only one or two exceptions Mr. Craven has his whole New York cast with him. It is a play that is well worth seeing, and a joy to young and old alike.

George Larkin, versatile leading man whose latest Chas. R. Seeling production, "The Apache Dancer," is awaited with keen interest.

Larkin, who is so well known for his characteristic dances, will be seen in his famous Apache Dance number in this special production.

Casts of the Week

Chas. R. Seeling Productions
present
GEORGE LARKIN
in
"THE GENTLEMAN UNAFRAID"
Directed by Chas. R. Seeling
Photographed by Elmer Dyer.
Story by Jeanne Poe.
CAST:

George Larkin	Minna Redman
Ollie Kirby	Bill Patton
Arthur Morrison	Otto Metzette
	Victor Metzette

Robertson-Cole Presents
"BORN OF THE CYCLONE"
Directed by Emile Chautard.
F. Tyler, Assistant Director.
Jos. DuBray, Cameraman.
CAST:

Derlys Perdue	Lila
Lloyd Hughes	Francois
Ralph Lewis	Antoine Gurnette
Emilie Fitzroy	Madame Gurnette
Max Davidson	Manon
Josef Swickard	Gorgio
Joseph Dowling	Father Pierre
Mickey McBan	Raoul Burnette
Caroline Rankin	Madame Manon
Tom O'Bryan	LeMoyne

Fred Cavens, noted fencing master and actor, having just finished a five months' engagement with Joseph M. Schenck Productions, where he played a part, besides teaching fencing to the various members of the cast, including the stars themselves, has been engaged by Phil Goldstone to play the heavy opposite Snowy Baker, the distinguished actors-sportsman of Australia.

Producer Declares Day of Originals is Here

ROY L. MANKER

Film producers seem to be mingling in a discussion of their art and industry so enthusiastically that one side claims that the "original" story is a thing of the past, while the other side practically reverses this statement. The facts are that both "originals" and "adaptations" are being filmed at this date, so the question seems to be, which form of screen material is "coming," and which is on the decline? Here is an interesting argument on the direct screen story side.

"Attacks upon direct screen literature arouse me, not only because my organization happens to sponsor 'originals,' but because such attacks violate the spirit of the Congress on Motion Picture Art, and that of every other unselfish movement for the advancement of screen entertainment," declares Mr. Manker. "I should like to claim the privilege of setting forth a few facts by which the truth of statements such as the one claiming that direct screen stories are things of the past, may be judged.

"If this statement referred to 1920, when 'adaptations' were at the crest of their popularity, it would be nearer the truth. The number of direct screen stories produced then was very small in comparison with the number of 'adaptations' produced. But in contrast, I have before me a list showing eighty originals produced or purchased during the last few months only! Ten of these were mentioned only last week; showing that the latest average is more than one 'original' a day purchased! And these are partial lists only, in which original authorship was credited, and including big feature productions. In addition to numerical progress, 1923 brought the 'original' official recognition by the greatest and most influential men of the industry.

"That recognition came at the Congress on Motion Picture Art, which, it must be remembered, was a gathering of the screen's most brilliant minds with men of the other arts, for the express purpose of doing something to restore to pictures the popularity hey enjoyed before the 'adaptation' craze set in. Will Hays endorsed 'original' heartily; various producers, and even famous novelists, agreed that the screen must look to it rather than to adaptations in the future, and Adolph Zukor, who is one of the outstanding figures of our industry today, went so far as to offer an annual prize of ten thousand dollars for the best produced original story.

"It was held that stories must be written directly for the screen if motion picture entertainment was to retain its popularity with the public. The summary and sense of the Congress was that writers at large among the people must be encouraged, and that famous writers who wish to contribute to the screen must write directly for it.

"These facts are on record. The famous authors who deplored the present state of motion pictures found an answer to their arguments in a statement by Adolph Kukor: 'I want to emphasize that the motion picture has a technique entirely its own, and that unless the author masters this technique, he will not be able to do justice to the stories which are born in his mind.'

"In other words, the message of the film chiefs to the great authors gathered at the Congress, and through the press to all authors, famous or unknown, was to learn the technique of the screen and to write directly for it. It was pointed out that the few who had done so to date (notably Rupert Hughes and Rex Beach), had made outstanding successes in screen work. George Ade was one of the famous authors at the Congress who stood for direct screen writing, and he is making good at it.

"It is gratifying to the sponsor of direct screen stories to quote Samuel Goldwyn's recent article in the New York Times. Goldwyn, above all others, is the man who should know 'adaptations,' for he was the first big producer to film them. He surrounded his 'Eminent Authors' with the best stars and directors and production artists; elaborate, technically perfect photoplays were produced—and, according to Mr. Goldwyn's statement, they failed! Says Mr. Goldwyn:

"'I have looked heretofore to established authors because they are believed to be trained in the instincts of drama and story telling, but now I feel that the unknown author is the one I, and the rest of the motion picture industry, need. The novice, whose plot sense far exceeds his feeling for words, will be the giant of the cinema of the future.'

"There will always be 'adaptations'—but when we strike normalcy, their proportion to direct screen stories will be small, just as the proportion of published works borrowed by the stage in centuries of association of kindred arts, has been small. 'Originals' inevitably will form the principal basis of future screen literature."

"A list of "originals" purchased or produced within the last few months follows:

"The White Flower," Lasky; "Back Home and Broke," Lasky; "Robes of Redemption," Holubar; "Forsaking All Others," Universal; "The White Tiger," Universal; "The Man Who Wouldn't Remove His Hat," Hart; "Paths of Glory," Lasky; "The Madonna of Avenue A," Universal; "Colorau," Fox; "Alias Sebastina," Universal; "Chicago Sal," Cummings; "The Trouble Buster," Robbins; "News," Ince; "Refuge," Katherine MacDonald; "Adam's Rib," Lasky; "Prodigal Daughters," Lasky; "The Bishop of Hollywood," Caldwell; "Flesh," Universal; "Around the World in Eighteen Days," Universal; "The Spider and the Rose," Zeidman Productions; "The Tinsel Harvest," Ince; "Desire," Burston; "The Ninth Name," Robertson-Cole; "No Trespassing," Robertson-Cole; "Mothers-in-Law," Schulberg; "Fair Week," Lasky; "Service," Ince; "You Can't Fool Your Wife," Lasky; "The Extra Girl," Sennett; "Take Your Choice," Christie; "Don't Marry for Money," Fineman; "McGuire of the Big Snows," Universal; "Upside Down," Universal; "Rider of Devilshoof," Seeling; "The Man from Ten Strike," Principal Pictures; "Tom Mix in Arabia," Fox; "Another Man's Shoes," Universal; "The 32nd Hour," Loew; "The Love Gambler," Fox; "Brawn of the North," Trimble; "When the Desert Calls," Pyramid; "Ridin' Wild," Universal; "Breaking Home Ties," Manheimer; "The Old Music Master," Warrenton-Shute; "While Justice Waits," Fox; "When Love Comes," F. B. O.; "Environment," Principal; "Judgment of the Storm," Palmer; "The Kingdom Within," Security; "As a Man Lives," Achievement; "Trusie Stoops to Conquer," Palmer; "A Front Page Story," Robins Productions; "The Woman Conquers," Katherine MacDonald; "A Clouded Name," Playgoers; "Crinoline and Romance," Metro; "The Midnight Guest," Universal; "The Altar Stairs," Universal; "The Darling of the Rich," B. B. Productions; "Flames of Passion," Independent; "The Footlight Ranger," Fox; "Romance Land," Fox; "Can a Woman Love Twice," F. B. O.; "Catch My Smoke," Fox; "Ethan of the Mountain," Salisbury; "Lost and Found," Goldwyn; "Are You Guilty," Mastodon; "The Dangerous Age," Mayer; "Fools and Riches," Universal; "Poor Men's Wives," Preferred; "The Love Letter," Universal; "The World's Applause," Lasky; "Crashin' Through," F. B. O.; "The Tents of Allah," Encore; "Soul of the Beast," Ince; "The Dangerous Adventure," Warner Bros.; "The Man Between," Fox; "Decree Granted," Universal.

DAY JOINS FIRST NATIONAL AT UNITED

Holman Day, author of more than 1000 short stories and 30 published novels, is the latest popular story writer to desert the field of literature for the movies.

Mr. Day has joined the Associated First National forces at the United Studios, Hollywood, California, to act in an advisory capacity in the scenario department.

The well known author arrived at the First National studios this week, and figuratively rolled up his sleeves, got to work writing titles for "Thundergate," a picturization of Sidney Herschel Small's "The Lord of Thundergate," the filming of which has just been completed.

The new First National writer is one of the few authors of note who are willing to acknowledge that the motion picture offers greater and much wider field for their work than does the printed word.

Discussing this subject Mr. Day said: "I am not so radical as to predict that in time the movies will wholly supersede the stage and the written story for each of these fill its own particular sphere and will be a part of human existence as long as there are human beings on earth.

"I do believe, however, that the motion picture screen offers much greater possibilities to the writer to place his story before more people than he ever could hope to do if he stuck solely to the publication of his writing in story form.

"While the book author writes only to the thousands, the motion picture writer tells his story to the millions.

More and more the story writer is realizing the importance of the motion picture as a means of universal entertainment and I look for the advent into movies of many authors, whose names are known to book readers all over the world who heretofore have looked upon the motion picture as something entirely foreign to story writing.

His modest begining was as reporter on the Fairfield Journal, a small paper printed in Fairfield, Me. Six months later he became its owner. Later he became its owner. Later he became associated with the Lewiston Journal and afterwards was managing editor of the Lewiston Sun.

His first real literary efforts were in the form of humorous poems, about Maine people, in Yankee dialect. These won him a great following among New Englanders who were acquainted with the quaint places and quaint people he wrote about.

He published two books of these poems, which still have an extensive sale throughout the East. He then turned his pen to prose writing and began writing magazine stories at an amazing rate. For thirteen years he had published a 7000 word story every month in one magazine or another.

He is now a regular contributor to Saturday Evening Post and Collier's and Harper's. He is the author of several plays, the most famous of which was "Along Came Ruth." Among his best known novels are "King Spruce," "The Red Lane" and "Squire Phin." These three, as well as several of his lesser known stories have been produced in films.

News and Gossip About the Moving Throngs of Movieland

THEY ALL COME BACK

It simply can't be done. To be more explicit, however, it has been proven time and again that after once the actor has identified himself with the silent drama and then embarked in other lines of pursuit, he invariably returns to the fold of his earlier endeavors. Such is the case of Doctor Roberts, who will be remembered for his excellent portrayal of a number of emotional character roles and who, after a short absence from the screen, is once again on the job and with the old make-up box overflowing with every conceivable necessity, which, combined with his skill and histrionic ability, will enable him to authentically portray any one of a wide range of characters.

GOLDWYN CARRIES GOOD STOCK COMPANY

Here's the way the list of Goldwyn players now reads alphabetically:

Ina Anson, Eleanor Boardman, Hobart Bosworth, Mae Busch, Georges Calliga, Helene Chadwick, Lew Cody, Ted Edwards, Raymond Griffith, William Haines, Jean Haskell, Cecil Holland, Kathleen Key, James Kirkwood, Kate Lester, Lucien Littlefield, Edmund Lowe, Frank Mayo, Patsy Ruth Miller, Conrad Nagel, William Orlamond, Aileen Pringle, George Walsh and Claire Windsor.

In addition to the contract players, Goldwyn has signed many world-famous actors and actresses for individual parts, among them: Corinne Griffith, Blanche Sweet, Tyrone Power, Pauline Starke, ZaSu Pitts, Gibson Gowland, Sam de Grasse, William V. Mong, Myrtle Stedman and Lucille Ricksen.

FLAPPERS WEARING WIGS

Not since the days of Milady's powdered head-dress and hoopskirt has the wig appeared at social functions.

Movie stars, however, are changing this order of things.

Marjorie Daw, popular First National player in "The Dangerous Maid," started it at a social gathering in Hollywood recently when she appeared in a wig with curls to her shoulders. Helene Chadwick, Evelyn Brent and other popular film stars have followed Marjorie's example.

"Recently I had to bob my hair and eliminate all trace of curl. Then and there I hit upon the idea of my wig. Now I don't care if they ask me to become bald for the sake of art."

If wig-wearing becomes a national institution—blame Marjorie Daw.

WELL KNOWN HEAVY

George Siegmann has been steadily multiplying his list of screen characterizations until today he is considered one of the foremost character actors on the screen. Beginning with "The Birth of a Nation," back in 1914, he has been in constant demand as a "heavy" of a distinct type. Many splendid portrayals followed his work in the Griffith classic, leading up to the grim realism of his Schani in "Merry-Go-Round." A big part in the recently completed Rex Ingram production of "Scaramouche" will give the public a glimpse of a new George Siegmann, inasmuch as this role is decidedly different from anything he has heretofore essayed. He also recently enacted the role of Leach, a comedy-heavy, in "Jealous Fools," under the direction of Maurice Tourneur.

PHILLIPS vs. BARRY

Swimming a dead heat, if you use the Australian crawl stroke (with face buried under water), is no easy job, according to Eddie Phillips, who is playing the juvenile lead with Wesley Barry in the Warner Brothers picturization of George M. Cohan's "George Washington, Jr." Phillips and Barry were in a private swimming pool making scenes for the picture and had instructions from Director Mal Sinclair to make the race a dead heat. "As we couldn't either one of us see, we were almost drowned before we finally made it a dead heat," declares Phillips.

FOOTBALL REUNION

Tom O'Brien and Andy Smith, the former playing a leading role in the F. B. O. production by Emile Chautard, "Born of the Cyclone," and the latter, California's noted football mentor, once played football on the same team. In 1907 at Pennsylvania U., both played through Penn's greatest season, defeating all comers and were mentioned by Walter Camp.

Clarke Renalle, president and general managing director of Renalles, Inc., in spite of his twenty-three hours work a day, is wearing a remarkably happy smile, due to the wonderful reception the efforts of the corporation are receiving through the country from people prominent in social and business affairs. Mr. Renalle disclaims any attempt at the introduction of spectacular innovations in the film world. His many years' association in the amusement field has convinced him that the producers of today are unanimously endeavoring in every way to give of their best to the public at large, and he is merely trying to join the ranks of those who are putting forth their best efforts. Mr. Renalle expects to leave shortly for Montreal, Canada, to interview the Grand Lodge of the Canada B.P.O Σ. in response to a wire from them, and will extend his trip to interview the Grand Lodge at Chicago on his way back. His main object, heartily supported by his associates, is the formation of a system, the fundamental foundation of which shall be co-operation and loyalty to the aims of the corporation. In return for which, due appreciation and substantial encouragement will be given to those in whatever department in which they are affiliated who show the proper esprit de corps in putting forward their best endeavors. The undisputable fact that the big wheel in life is absolutely dependent upon the smaller wheel has determined Mr. Renalle to see that the smaller wheel receives its due reward.

IN OUR LETTER BOX

Philo McCullough	Niles Welch
Forrest Stanley	Lionel Belmore
Louise Lovely	Raymond McKee
Crane Wilbur	Chas. Hyland

HOMELY FEATURES HAVE THEIR ADVANTAGES

Those who have followed Dick Sutherland's rise from unknown extra to one of the highest salaried villains on the screen, point to his success as an example to those who easily become discouraged and loose hope. Here is one who refused to take no to his many timid knocks on the door of his ambitions. With each effort the shrinking soul increased its courage until one day he found that his ugly face drew larger checks than the Adonis-like face features of a friend who with him had attempted to force the door of opportunity. He became one of the sought after villains on the screen. There was something elusive behind those features that the camera had caught and registered. A young girl fell in love with that "something" and he who had called himself a step-child of Mother Nature found that money, fame and happiness were his for the asking.

There is a man who refuses to be downed, say some, while the less discerning just ponder on how Dick Sutherland turned the tables and wish he would teach them the trick. The man, himself, however, just smiles and answers "anyone can do it who believes in himself."

INTRODUCES NEW BOB

A new abbreviated bob has made its appearance on the Rialto. It is two inches shorter than the ordinary bob. Dorothy Chase, well known ingenue player of the silver sheet, claims the honor of introducing it. On questioning, it developed that Miss Chase received it through accident. It seems that she wandered into a downtown department store hair dressing booth which specialized in children's haircuts. When she sallied forth again she wore the abbreviated haircut. She laughingly admits that she doesn't know whether she was mistaken for a child or whether the barber knew she was due to wear a wig in two recently finished productions, "Scaramouche" and "Long Live the King," in which she plays character parts.

MORELLI TURNS TO DRAMA

Reggie Morelli has come into his own. His splendid interpretation as Robert, the son of Abraham Lincoln, in the play "The Life of Abraham Lincoln," has received such favorable criticism from those who have seen the rushes of the Lincoln film that a brilliant future in the dramatic field is being predicted for the former comedy king. Away with the genial grin and checkered suit sings Reggie these days and on with the stealthy tread and drooping lids. Dramatic juvenile roles are his goal for the immediate future. As a beginning, they will undoubtedly satisfy. But that the comedian will eventually outgrow these for personal stardom is not by any means an exaggerated prophecy to make, according to those in the film colony who pick, choose and discard.

DIX GOES TO ARIZONA

In "The Call of the Canyon," the latest of the Zane Grey stories being filmed in a wild locale north of Flagstaff, Arizona, under Victor Fleming's direction for Paramount, Richard Dix will again take the leading role in a Grey story. He will portray in this picture Glenn Kilbourne, the disabled soldier from New York, who comes to Arizona for his health, quickly taking on the local customs.

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1923

NEW CONTRACT FOR BARBARA LA MARR

Barbara La Marr, who returned on the Cunard liner "Aquitania," and who went to Rome to be filmed by the Goldwyn Company as the star in Hall Caine's "The Eternal City," could talk of nothing but Italy and its people while she waited for the customs men to examine her dozen trunks on the Cunard Line pier.

Looking more beautiful off the screen than on it, her big eyes glowed as she spoke of Venice, Rome and Capri.

"I went to Italy knowing I would love it," she said. "Why shouldn't I? I am half Italian, to begin with. Oh, how proud I was, to see the country so beautiful, the people so perfectly gorgeous. I was charmed, delighted. It was my first visit to Italy, the land I had heard so much about in my home life and longed from my earliest days to see. Venice, Rome, Capri—there is no place in the wide world to compare with them.

"The Italians love Americans. It seems to be one of their outstanding features. To be an American is a free passport to any circle in Italy—rich or poor.

"I met the royal family, including King Victor Emanuel, Queen Margarita and suite. I also met Premier Mussolini many times. He is the idol of Italy. He appears in the prologue to 'The Eternal City.' We have one scene in the Coliseum which shows 20,000 of his black-shirted Facisti followers. Mussolini was present during the filming of this great scene.

"It made me feel so proud that I had Italian blood in my veins—and it is there, too, every drop of it.

"Of course, I am glad to get back to America, my native land, but constantly glowing in my mind's eye is that wonderland for the sightseer — artistic, ancient, beautiful Italy."

Miss La Marr in private life is Mrs. Jack Daugherty. They are at present in New York, stopping at the Hotel Chatham, as the final scenes of the play will be filmed in New York. She and her husband bought many art objects in Venice and Rome for their Hollywood home.

Arthur H. Sawyer, who had held Barbara La Marr under a personal contract until now has signed her on behalf of Associated Pictures Corp., the company which has succeeded S.-L. Pictures, Inc. The contract period covers five years and under the terms of it, four specials a year will be made.

ELLIOTT DEXTER HAS NEW DIRECTOR

R. William Neill, who will make Elliott Dexter's first picture, has the qualities that go to make an ideal director. Mr. Neill was born in Dublin, Ireland, but is of Spanish parentage. His real name is Roland DeGostrie, and his family dates back for centuries in the genealogy of Madrid. He assumed the name of Neill as a nom de theatre 27 years ago, and has retained it ever since. It is doubtful if anyone in America knows his real antecedents or name. But with the romantic background of Castilian ancestry, he combines the whimsical and beauty-loving traits of his native heath—Ireland. Indeed, he speaks with a trace of Irish accent. After years on the stage he entered film work and practically directed Thomas H. Ince's famous war spectacle, "Civilization." After this achievement, he directed many of the Paramount pictures in which Dorothy Dalton was starred, and latterly has been abroad directing productions in Italy.

LARGE AMOUNT SPENT ON SET

At the cost of a small fortune, Thomas H. Ince has reproduced the stoke hole of a large steamer for a scene in his screen version of Eugene O'Neill's dramatic sensation, "Anna Christie."

The three boilers, alone, in the stoke hole, added a big item to the cost of the production, the material for each one reaching the five hundred dollar mark.

Surrounding the massive boilers, a specially constructed tank has been built to hold the flood water for the scene where William Russell, as the Irish stoker, narrowly escapes drowning when the steamer is wrecked in the fog. Adjoining this "set" there is a water tank on a high platform, from which a huge volume of water could be released at a moment's notice.

So gigantic and complicated is the setting that a battery of forty carpenters have worked day and night for three weeks to complete the work by the time the company returned from a "location" trip to San Francisco. The set is the most complete of its kind ever reproduced on a studio lot.

The atmospheric conception of the stoke hole scene in "Anna Christe" has been carried out for the screen in minutest detail from a description written by the playwright. The stifling, coal-dust-laden air—the dim bulks of furnaces and boilers into whose fiery red mouths half naked men heap coal—the rhythmic swing of shovels from floor to furnace—the leaping, fascinatingly terrible flames from the fuel, give a touch to the Ince production that brands it as an artistic triumph as well as one of the really "great" pictures of the year. It will be released by First National this fall.

VON STROHEIM HAS CLOSE CALL

A cloudburst in the Panamint mountains and a terrific electrical storm extending over the floor of Dealth Valley forced the Erich von Stroheim-Death Valley expedition to abandon the rickety buildings of the deserted city of Skiddoo, and seek shelter in an abandoned mine just outside the town.

Von Stroheim himself and eight members of the party were away from the expedition's headquarters at Skiddoo when the storm broke, and were on the floor of the valley returning from a location search which took them into the treacherous valley as far as Furnace Creek, where the final scenes of "Greed" will be filmed.

Lookouts on mountains above Skiddoo, watching for signals from von Stroheim, whose radio sending apparatus had broken down, were nearly swept from their places in the torrent of water, which swept along before a 90-mile windstorm.

Fearing that the wind would blow away the buildings which shelered the caravan in Skiddoo, "Death Valley Scotty," guiding the party, advised hasty abandonment of the town. When a heavy clay stove pipe fell on a cook's helper, and broke his shoulder blade, a volunteer party, with Scotty at the head, carried the injured man to meet the water caravan traveling between Lone Pine and Skiddoo—the only means of communication which the expedition now has with civilization.

Although smoke signals had been agreed upon by von Stroheim, the sand storm which accompanied the electrical disturbance prevented any word from the desert detachment, which is expected to return to Skiddoo today.

BOND RETURNS TO DIRECT FESTURE

Headed by A. K. Mozumdar, noted Hindu religious leader, the Excelsior Picture Producing Company will make a series of special productions at the Cosmosart Studios in Los Angeles. Such is the announcement received regarding the newest independent production organization, whose activities have already aroused considerable interest since it was known that "Prince" Mozumdar, as he is called by his thousands of followers in The Universal Messianic Message, was to produce a picure largely autobiographical, yet fundamentally entertaining and dramatically interesting.

To a great extent, the story of "Beyond the Veil" — originally written by Mozumdar and adapted for the screen by Sheldon Krag Johnson—relates the life of this acknowledged religious and philosophical leader. It is the story of a Hindu prince, turned religious ascetic, who renounces all his worldly position and riches to enter the higher life. Soon he sees that the outstanding need of his people is the practical outlook of the Western hemisphere; joined to the spiritual background of the East, the combined principles will be the ideal theology. He comes to this country, where a series of misfortunes bring him into the slums of a typical American city. Here his work wins even the roughest elements; later, he enters the service of a millionaire's family, and there, too, his doctrines expressed in everyday life, achieve results. Incidental to this action is a series of plots and counterplots, interwoven in dramatic fashion to insure legitimate entertainment value.

"Beyond the Veil" will be co- will be directed by Frederick Bond, for many years with the D. W. Griffith forces; Von Frederick Hobletz will be assistant director. The camera work will be handled by Joseph Walker and H. William Menke; Gleb DeVos is art director. Krag Johnson is production manager, assisted by Captain Parsons; Teddy Hanscom, editor; "Cap" Towers, chief property man; Callie Barros, script clerk, and E. Christofferson, office auditor.

"Beyond the Veil" is the first of the series of special productions to be made by this organization, for which distribution arrangements are now pending.

Sennett's Latest Premiere Soon

"The Extra Girl" is enroute to Los Angeles. She is expected to arrive and be presented to the theatre-going public for their approval in a few weeks.

Those who are managing the affairs of "The Extra Girl" are loud and apparently very earnest in their claims that she will make a big hit in her premiere showing in the film capitol, and the vehicle chosen for her next appearance is more ideally suited for the versatility which she possesses than has any previous play ever attempted by her.

"The Extra Girl" is Mack Sennett's latest and best photoplay. In it Mabel Normand reveals the deeper and finer elements of her artistic ability, which have until now never been fully disclosed.

This Sennett production, featuring an original story by the producer, directed by F. Richard Jones, has been called a comedy-drama, and that is exactly what it is. Miss Normand will be seen in plenty of comedy episodes. Her hoydenish pranks and childish, headstrong determination are the bane of her Dad's (George Nichols) existence. Miss Normand will also be seen in episodes of poignant interest and tragic suspense.

The new production, recently completed, has about passed through the stages of editing and titling, and from the producer down to the lowliest property boy engaged in its making, optimistic enthusiasm regarding its ultimate success is strong within them all.

A strong and favorably known cast were selected to play the important characters in the story. Headed by Ralph Graves, who plays the lead opposite Miss Normand. George Nichols, Anna Hernandez, Vernon Dent, Ramsey Wallace and Charlotte Mineau portray the other roles in what is termed by those who have seen the production in its present stages, to be one of the biggest and most human stories yet to be filmed.

Company Making Opening Scenes in San Francisco.

Victor Seastrom and company, filming for Goldwyn, "The Judge and the Woman," are in San Francisco, where the final scenes of the picture, Mr. Seastrom's first in America, will be filmed.

The picture, which is a screen version of Sir Hall Caine's "The Master of Man," has a cast including Mae Busch, Conrad Nagel, Patsy Ruth Miller, and Creighton Hale, all of whom will make the trip north. It is expected that a week will be spent in making scenes at rocky shore locations, and at several beautiful peninsula estates.

Cutting and editing of the picture will begin at once upon Mr. Seastrom's return from this trip.

New Independent Producer Finishes First Feature

"The Light Giver" is the title of a new feature picture which has just been completed in Hollywood and which will serve to introduce to the ranks of independent film producers J. Kenneth Stambaugh, who for many years has been actively connected with the motion picture industry.

Before coming to Hollywood, Mr. Stambaugh made a long and careful survey of film conditions throughout the country and as he set out to form his producing organization he announced that it would be the policy of his company to make only stories built on true to life situations and of a type that would carry world-wide appeal. Those who have viewed his initial efforts declare he has fulfilled his promise and that the picture is of such quality as to win for him recognition among exhibitors and the picture public as a capable producer.

His next offering is to be a story, tentatively titled, "The Delicate Touch," filming of which will start shortly at one of the studios in Hollywood. Mr. Stambaugh is now negotiating for the services of a well known star, whom he plans to feature in the picture.

Among a number of popular artists who enact the principal roles in "The Light Giver" are Alec B. Francis, Margaret Setton, Robert Sinclair, Sheldon Lewis, Gloria Grey, Little Jackie Parker, and others.

It is the plan of the company to produce a series of six feature pictures a year with distribution through one of the country's foremost releasing organizations.

Lloyd Selects An Excellent Staff

Frank Lloyd, who directed Norma Talmadge's four latest First National super-dramas and who recently announced the formation of his own independent producing company, Frank Lloyd Productions, Inc., has begun the filming of "Black Oxen," Gertrude Atherton's novel. Mr. Lloyd, through his general manager, Harry E. Weil, has announced the appointment of Billy Reiter to assistant director; of Norbert F. Brodin, cinematographer; Joseph Delfine, master of properties, and J. L. Johnston, publicity manager. Stephen Goosson, who is responsible for the many elaborate sets of recent Talmadge productions, is the designer of "Black Oxen" backgrounds, and 22 changes of costume for Miss Corinne Griffith, who shares honors with Conway Tearle, in the featured roles, and more than 100 gowns for other members of the cast have been designed by Walter J. Israel.

"Black Oxen" is being made at United Studios and will be released as a First National picture.

Dexter Pleased with New Part.

Elliott Dexter expresses great satisfaction in the role he has been called upon to play in his first production, "The Man Who Forgave," which is being made at the Grand Studio and released by Grand-Asher.

"It is the sort of part I have always wanted to play," said Mr. Dexter. "It has a strong spiritual quality, combined with the strength derived from its humanness. The story I also consider a very powerful one and naturally I chose what I believed would meet with the approval of the great public for my first story."

Exhibitor Is The Guest of Metro

One of the most interested spectators at the filming of the thrilling mob scenes for Rex Ingram's Metro production of "Scaramouche" recently, was Charles G. Branham, Director of Theatres for the Famous Players Theatres of Canada, one of the largest theatre circuits in the world.

Although Mr. Branham has been connected with the exhibiting end of the industry for nearly fifteen years, his recent trip offered him his first opportunity of visiting a motion picture studio.

The "Scaramouche" scenes which Mr. Branham witnessed in the filming, depicted the march of the revolutionary mob through the streets of Paris, the birth of "The Marseillaise" and the sacking of the homes of aristocrats by the blood-thirsty terrorists. The fact that these scenes were taken at night heightened the interest in them.

Mr. Branham stated that the theaters of Canada are looking forward to the coming Fall and Winter with the expectation of achieving the most successful season in their history, and he was highly enthusiastic over the prospects of the pictures he saw in production which would be obtainable for presentation at that time.

Roach Enters Ninth Year.

With the opening of the new season Hal Roach celebrates his ninth consecutive year as a producer of comedies on Pathe programs. During that period he has produced, and Pathe has released, more than four hundred of the celebrated single-reelers, known everywhere as Hal Roach Comedies. This is a recognized record in business co-operation, and one of which both producer and distributor are proud.

New Bennett Unit To Start Soon

Chester Bennett has about decided to star Eddie Hearn in a big super feature, based on the life of the famous Daniel Boone, as the first of a series of five starring vehicles which he will soon start to produce. For some time Bennett has been searching American history and literature for a suitable vehicle in which to launch Hearn, and states that he has found no character that breathes more romance and adventure, and is a greater type of the athletic and vigorous outdoor American idealized by the American youth, than the character of the great Kentuckian. Bennett is a great believer in the screen as a medium for showing famous historical characters, but he believes that in addition to showing dates, biographical data and geographical locations, so greatly hated by the average school boy, there shou'd also be depicted the love affairs and the little human incidents that are always interwoven and stand out in the lives of great men and women.

Douglas Dawson, Bennett's aide, has almost completed a scenario based on the life of Boone, and when completed it will serve as one of the new historical screen dramas.

Bennett will engage another director for the Hearn starring productions and will send the company to Kentucky to film the scenes in the exact locale of the story. Bennett will supervise the Hearn pictures while giving his personal attention to directing his new series of society dramas, starring Jane Novak, with Fred Esmelton playing an important supporting role.

DE MILLE TURNS ACTOR

Re-creating a dead past—all for $7.50 a day.

This was the experience of Cecil DeMille, famous film director, in "Hollywood," the James Cruze production that is causing universal enthusiasm at Grauman's Rialto.

All he was paid for his several interesting scenes, showing him signing stars for a picture, was $7.50, the amount paid the merest beginner. But he enjoyed every minute of his acting, for it served to turn back the clock, reminding him of his years on the stage.

In "Hollywood," Mr. De Mille was in very good company, for many of the greatest film stars and celebrities do their share to make it a brilliant production. There are such names as Pola Negri, William Hart, Jack Pickford, Thomas Meighan, Leatrice Joy, Theodore Kosloff, Agnes Ayres, Lila Lee, Will Rogers, Jack Holt, William DeMille and dozens of others equally as famous, in the supporting cast of this great epic of Hollywood.

Washburn Casts His Latest Picture

"I have always believed in a star surrounding himself wih the best possible supporting cast," says Bryant Washburn apropos of the careful selection that was made for players in his first production for Grand-Asher, temporarily titled, "Try and Get It," adapted from "The Ring-Tailed Gallawampus," a Saturday Evening Post story by Eugene P. Lyle, Jr.

"At some studios where I have worked were certain stars who preferred to have inferior casts, so that they themselves could stand out the stronger. It was the other way round with me. I felt and still feel that the better the cast the better my own work will be. If I saw a lot of inferior people on the set, I would perhaps feel inclined to 'sluff' my work. A good cast, on the contrary, puts a person on his mettle and he does the best acting that he is capable of as a natural consequence.

"It is very poor policy to try to steal all the honors, to my way of thinking."

The cast of the new production, which is directed by Cullen B. Tate, is to be announced shortly, and will be the best that can possibly be secured.

HOME AND HAPPY

King Vidor and members of the "Wild Oranges" company have returned to Culver City from Jacksonville, Florida, where exterior scenes were filmed for the screen version of the Joseph Hergesheimer novel. Vidor spent four weeks in taking scenes about the mouth of the St. John's river and Fort George Island. Many scenes were taken on the old Harriet Beecher Stowe estate. On the return trip the company stopped for days in New Orleans, and photographed a number of scenes. King Vidor purchased the yacht the company was using while in Florida, and is having it brought to Los Angeles, where he will have it fitted up for his own use.

Vidor will spend several weeks taking the final scenes for the picture at the Goldwyn studios. James Kirkwood, Virginia Valli, Ford Sterling, Nigel DeBrullier, and Charles Post were met at the train by friends and relatives.

MacLean Scores in Ince Offerings

Two Thomas H. Ince productions of the past season have been listed among the best productions of the year. "A Man of Action," Ince's mystery-comedy, starring Douglas MacLean, has been listed by the Chicago Tribune among the best photoplays of July, while the National Board of Review has starred "The Hottentot," picked by critics as the laughing hit of the year, in its eighth annual catalogue of Selected Pictures for the 1922-23 season.

Former Lasky Director Joins Grand-Asher

Cullen B. Tate, who directs the first Bryant Washburn production for Grand-Asher, tentatively called "Try and Get It," is regarded as one of the best handlers of crowds in the profession of megaphonic artistry. In many of the Cecil B. DeMille pictures he has had to assume charge of thousands of extras and has accomplished veritable miracles of discipline.

"I won't have as many crowds in this picture," said Mr. Tate, affectionately known as "Hezi" by a multitude of friends, "but I will have plenty of action. It is a comedy drama with the most unique plot I can remember ever reading. The story is by Eugene P. Lyle, Jr., and was published in The Saturday Evening Post, under the amazing title, 'The Ring-Tailed Gallawampus.' Mr. Washburn has a part that is eminently fitted to his pleasing personality. A young man with determination, placed in the most unusual circumstances, and with a world of humorous things to do; a love story that is far from commonplace and a new kind of heavy—who isn't a heavy at all, really—and two old men who are deliciously funny—these are elements in a story that is as different as anyone could wish. It is filled with a sort of buoyant freshness and originality. The girl part is delightful, too."

Peggy Pleases Audience

Peggy Cartwright, eight-year-old film artist, whose presentation of a novelty dance number last week in the atmospheric prologue of "Trilby" at Loew's State received an ovation from the audience at each performance, is unusually talented for a child of her age and is a fine example of what conscientious study and effort will do for a youngster.

Peggy came to Hollywood four years ago and was engaged in Frank Mayo's production of "Afraid to Fight." During the filming of the picture she took dancing lessons under the direction of Miss Edith Lindsay, Hollywood. She quickly became proficient in the art and was offered a contract to tour the Orpheum circuit in a special dancing act. Two years later she returned to Hollywood to resume work before the camera. In her spare time she took riding lessons, and, like her dancing, she soon mastered the art.

As a result of that training she later won the first prize at two horse shows at the Ambassador hotel and one at the Ventura horse show. In addition to these accomplishments, Peggy is an expert swimmer, pianist, cartoonist and elocutionist, all of which she has achieved in less than four years.

Lucy Beaumont has been added to the cast of "Lucretia Lombard," the Warner Brothers film version of Kathleen Norris' novel being produced by Harry Rapf. Monte Blue and Irene Rich are the featured players. Jack Conway is directing.

Did you girls ever make love to an officer and get your arms scratched on his shoulder insignia? Lucille Ricksen did while enacting love scenes with Conrad Nagel, as a handsome American officer, in Marshall Neilan's Russian drama, "The Rendezvous."

All-Star Cast For Hughes

Several well-known players have been added to the cast of "Law Against Law," which Rupert Hughes is directing at the Goldwyn studios from an original story written especially for the screen by himself.

Victor Potel, Evelyn Sherman, Billy Eugene, and Maxine Elliot Hicks are the latest additions.

Other players already engaged include Helene Chadwick, Lew Cody, Carmel Myers, Hedda Hopper, George Walsh, Howard Truesdale, Dale Fuller, Kathleen Key, William Orlamond, Hughie Mack, Richard Wayne, Virginia Loomis and Robert DeVilbiss.

"Law Against Law" deals with the complications that may arise from the widely differing divorce laws of the various states.

ON THE LEVEL

No, Geraldine, the hardest part of a movie star's life is not falling off a cliff. Listen to what Sylvia Bresmer must do in her next First National picture, "Her Temporary Husband."

Sylvia has been set the task of eating an ear of corn so daintily that she wins a husband by the fetching way in which she picks the kernels from the cob.

Now Sylvia can handle an ear of corn just as daintily as the next one. But in "Her Temporary Husband," she has got to do even better than the best of them.

She must do it so gracefully, so prettily, that the corn nibbling act entrances, enraptures and turns a hardened woman-hater into an ardent admirer.

Some task!

Owen Moore, who is to be charmed by the fair corn-eater, says that no one has yet been born who can chew on an ear of corn and still look dignified. But for picture purposes he must be convinced, otherwise there would be no "temporary husband."

Film Star Returns From Trip Abroad

According to Wanda Hawley, who recently returned from a six months absence in Europe, American film players are acknowledged as leaders all over Europe, especially in England. "Of course," says Miss Hawley, "the Americans who worked with me on 'Fires of Fate' and 'The Lights o' London' were given to understand that we were taking the places of British players. But, as a matter of fact, we weren't depriving any English actors of their opportunities, for the producer abroad realizes—and frankly admits—that he must have American names in his pictures, or he can't compete with the Hollywood products. The foreign stars who draw audiences even in their own countries, can be counted on one's fingers; the American players are universally popular. That is why more and more foreign film makers are importing our stars and leading actors to 'tone up' the casts of their pictures and to make sure of their popularity. It is a great, if sometimes unwilling, tribute to Hollywood as the only school for film players in the world."

One of Miss Hawley's foreign films was shot entirely in Egypt—Cairo, Luxor, Thebes, Karnak and the Sahara desert provided the locations for the story. Her second vehicle was filmed entirely in London.

At the present time Miss Hawley is creating the role of Lady Deppingwell, a "smart" British noblewoman, and the principal female character in George Barr McCutcheon's "The Man From Broadway," which is being produced at Vitagraph.

Doug Progresses

With the ninth week of production in view, Douglas Fairbanks, as the Thief of Bagdad, is bounding along merrily through the "Arabian Nights," and if he holds his present pace, the "thief" will be trying to steal a new popularity record on Broadway in little old New York during the holiday season.

Doug's present plan of action, according to Robert Fairbanks, Doug's brother and production manager, is to complete as rapidly as possible all scenes which call for human players. Following this, the company will devote itself to obtaining a celluloid record of the queer animals which play an equally important part, along with the inanimate things, such as itinerant carpets, which soar through the air, queer cloaks which cause things to disappear and then reappear at will, and which lend to the picture that fascinating element of Oriental magic which endears the "Arabian Nights" to every adult child, as well as those who are still young enough to come under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court.

Seeling Goes North

The Chas. R. Seeling Co. are busily preparing the next two continuities of their series of George Larkin Specials and will leave within a week for northern locations.

Mr. Seeling intends to work in and around San Francisco for a week or ten days and then go direct to Lake Tahoe, where the majority of the most important scenes will be shot. A large cast of players will be taken on the trip and it is expected the company will be away six weeks. Three cameramen will accompany Mr. Seeling on the trip, as the fight scenes scheduled to take place on the water front will be so realistic that he is taking every precaution to guard against retakes.

George Larkin, well known for his daring stunts, will have an opportunity to extend himself to the limit, as Director Seeling promises some great surprises in the thrill line. Upon the return of the company, interiors will be made at the Russell Studios, where sets for the production will be constructed.

A Character Study

Herman Bookasta is one of the most distinctive film types in Hollywood, and has been repeatedly invited to essay character roles in pictures. He came here not long ago to put his two kiddies, George and Baseal, on the road to cinema fame, and while launching them on their careers, found he was compelling as much attention as the boys. He has the physical attributes which should make him stand out in costume roles such as pirates, buccaneers and Arabs, and even now he is reported to be under consideration for a part in a film dealing with the high-seas marauders of the Mediterranean of many years ago. This portrait study is by Alberts, of the Hoover Art Studios.

Renalle Casts Soon

Preparations are fast nearing completion for the commencement of shooting the big feature production on "The Elk's Tooth," the first presentation of Renalles, Inc., to the theater going public. Notification of casting will be issued in this journal within a few weeks. In the meantime, registrations are being accepted at the general offices, 6529 Venice Boulevard, Culver City. Those registering now will be duly notified when the casting director will be ready to interview them.

In addition to "The Elk's Tooth," the board of directors at a special meeting have decided to produce a novel two-reel feature farce comedy, "The Purple Bath Tub," written by Harry A. Swart. This play is a deliciously humored satire on Hollywood film life, and concerns the romantic adventures of two newly wedded film couples in a typical Hollywood boarding house, using that national institution, "The Saturday Night Bath Tub," as a basis for an intriguing but clean story with unusual situations and a surprise finish.

No expense will be spared on either of these productions and Ralph M. De Lacy, Technical Art Director, is busy figuring on the interior sets.

Godsol Denies Report

F. J. Godsol, president of Goldwyn Pictures, was emphatic, upon his return from Europe, in denying recently published rumors that plans to screen "Ben Hur" had been abandoned.

He declared that not only would Goldwyn picturize this famous American story, but would start work on it much sooner than anyone has expected.

Mr. Godsol stated that while his trip abroad was more in the nature of a vacation, he had selected some sites for exteriors of "Ben Hur." This is the first definite announcement that part of this well known story is to be "shot" abroad. Interior scenes will be made at Goldwyn's studio in Culver City, California.

"I have three actors in mind," said Mr. Godsol, "to play Ben Hur. "One of them we are especially eager to get, but since we have not even approached him, it would not be good business for me to give out his name.

"I expect to have the name of the actor who is going to play Ben Hur within the next two weeks. He will be an American. In fact, I can say all the players in the cast will be Americans."

Costuming—His Hobby

It is said that every motion picture director has a hobby of some sort that expresses itself in his production. If such is true, the hobby of Frank Lloyd, who recently organized his own independent company and who has just begun production of Gertrude Atherton's celebrated "Black Oxen" for Associated First National Pictures—is costuming. Not costumes of period design, but rather correct dress, for every member of the cast, extra or star, whatever the period.

Many producers engage extra and principals and permit them to furnish their own wardrobe. Mr. Lloyd does just the opposite. He engages his people because of their personalities and their ability to play and act certain characters and then he provides even the minutest details of their wardrobe.

"Every member of the exceptionally large cast which appears in 'Black Oxen' has been provided with wardrobe that I feel is particularly fitting for particular scenes. It may be more economical to let some people come onto the set with their own designs of dresses and capes," Mr. Lloyd asserts, "but every person's tastes differ and quite frequently ideas of current styles vary to such an extent that certain types become conspicuous in a large group because they are incorrectly dressed. For that reason we have provided special dresses, hats and wraps for every woman in the 'Black Oxen' cast and in the case of Miss Griffith, and several others, even specially designed lingerie. When women are proud of their wardrobe, the effect on the screen is magnetic. When women are not sure of their wardrobe, the effect is decidedly the reverse."

Thirty-four seamstresses, designers, cutters and fitters, under the supervision of Walter J. Israel, have been preparing gowns for use in "Black Oxen" for over three weeks previous to the taking of the first scene for the film drama, and more than ten full reels of test pictures have been made of members of the large cast, in their costumes, in an effort to ascertain exactly how each costume shows on the screen, before its wearer takes his place before the camera.

Because of the nature of the story and the large number of attractively gowned women who participate in the big scenes, "Black Oxen" is expected to be decidedly popular among women who follow the styles and who study the art of dressing correctly.

Corinne Griffith, featured with Conway Tearle, in the principal parts of Mr. Lloyd's production, wears more than $25,000 worth of evening clothes alone and the value of her furs, lingerie, hosiery, slippers and hats is equally as great. Miss Griffith makes twenty-two complete changes of wardrobe during the filming of "Black Oxen," a record unrivaled in one screen production heretofore.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

Kilgour to—"Try and Get It"

Joseph Kilgour, one of the best known character actors in the profession, has been signed by Bryant Washburn to appear in his first production for Grand-Asher, tentatively titled, "Try and Get It," directed by Cullen B. Tate.

Mr. Kilgour has recently completed the role of Constant Lippiatt in "Ponjola," and was cast for the heavy role of Osgood in "The Woman with Four Faces," a Paramount picture featuring Betty Compson and Richard Dix.

Ruby Miller, who plays the part of a fashionable woman of the world in "Alimony," is one of Hollywood's foremost authorities on fashion, having her representative in Paris, Monsieur Peron, No. 2 Rue de la Paix, who notifies her of coming styles six months in advance of the general release to American social centers. She has been wearing initialed gowns and bathing suits, which are just now becoming popular, since last September.

George Rigas has completed his role in support of Johnnie Walker in "The Worm." Rigas' role in this production is said to be one of great dramatic scope and second in importance only to the star role. Rigas' latest release is "Rip Tide," in which he is starred.

SID MUST HAVE HIS EXERCISE

Sid Smith gazed doubtfully at the script of one of his last Grand-Asher comedies for this season's series.

"By gum," he muttered, "it's a good thing they left this one till near the finish."

"Why?" inquired Charles Lamont, his director.

"Why they've got seventeen automobile accidents, a jump in a machine across a twenty-foot cut, seven motor cops who pile on me all at once, and a number of minor accidents, such as being run over by a truck, etc. Know of any particularly good place to take the rest cure?"

Sid, as a matter of fact, is crazy about the picture, and isn't afraid of anything, but he had to have his little joke.

The picture is called "Make It Snappy." And they are!

Monty Likes Golf.

The Golf Bug" is the title chosen for Monty Banks' new Grand-Asher comedy which takes the popular comedian into the realms of the fair green where Col. Bogie and others of his ilk are ever on the alert to catch the unwary.

It is a wildly hilarious comedy, directed by Herman Raymaker, and it keeps Monty busy chasing the "pill" into the most amazing places. There are enough mental hazards, says the star, to make a man gray overnight.

New Editor for Renalle.

Harry A. Swart, magazine and screen writer, has been engaged by Renalles, Inc., as editor-in-chief at the Culver City studio.

Besides "The Elk's Tooth," which is now preparing, Renalles, Inc., have made arrangements to produce at the same time a two-reel situation comedy, by Mr. Swart. Casting for these two pictures will begin within three weeks.

Must Have Their Joke.

Fred Esmelton's sister in London, who recently left England for Hollywood, wrote that the steamship companies were having a very sad time trying to get her to the cinema metropolis. It seems that the steamship booking agent, after going through all the available booking guides in his possession, finally told her that he could route her from London to Los Angeles, but it was impossible for him to get her to Hollywood, as he could find no railroad connection between Los Angeles and Hollywood. He added further that he thought it must be a boat trip.

Esmelton is playing one of the leading supporting roles in "Conductor 1492," starring Johnny Hines, for Warner Brothers.

Buys Three Trucks.

To facilitate the quicker production of Grand-Asher comedies, Ben Verschleiser, general manager of the Grand Studios in Hollywood, O.K.'d the purchase of three Mack trucks equipped with special bodies to carry sets, special lights, etc. This will make it easier for the three Grand-Asher comedy units headed by Sid Smith, Monty Banks and Joe Rock, to make their remaining productions.

DOUG, JR., ENJOYS WORK

When Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., began his career as a screen star several weeks ago in "Stephen Steps Out," his first Paramount picture, he knew little or nothing of Turkey. After three weeks of work he has become an authority, thanks to George N. Baker, the expert on Turkish matters who is assisting as technical director on this production. Joseph Henabery is directing the famous youngster.

Fred Esmelton, who is playing one of the principal supporting roles in Johnny Hines' production of "Conductor 1492" for Warner Brothers, has played in eight big feature productions, including Chester Bennett's production of "The Lullaby," starring Jane Novak, since returning to Hollywood from England a little over a year ago, where he was featured in a number of British screen plays and stage productions.

New Make-Up Man.

Chester Bennett has engaged the services of Sam Kaufman, the make-up expert, on a long term contract, to oversee the make-up of his two companies, including Jane Novak's starring company and the unit starring Eddie Hearn.

Kaufman will work in conjunction with Douglas Dawson, Bennett's chief assistant, and Jack MacKenzie, head of the camera department, in deciding the quality of make-up.

Tom Gubbins, well known motion picture expert on things Chinese, has added a Chinese prop and rental department to his screen talent office in Chinatown.

James Fulton, who has played the Mayor of George Ade's masterpiece, "The Mayor and The Manicure" in vaudeville for twelve years, has been cast for political roles on the silver screen, also having played the Governor in Marshal Neilan's "The Eternal Three," also the Judge in "The Love Piker," and is now in Death Valley with Eric von Stroheim's "Greed," playing the Sheriff.

Lillian Langdon, well known motion picture actress, has recently composed a song entitled, "Come Along to Santa Monica."

HAS EASTERN PREMIERE

Labor Day week in the motion picture industry will be marked by the pre-release openings of Harold Lloyd in "Why Worry," at the New York Strand, Eastman Theatre, Rochester, and Shea's Hippodrome, in Buffalo.

Sidney Franklin, veteran character actor, has been cast for an important part in Robert Leonard's "Fashion Row," in which Mae Murray is featured.

I. W. Irving and his entire company producing "Trapped," are living aboard a big schooner off Catalina Island.

Comedienne Engaged by Lloyd

Since the inception of the film production boom in Hollywood it has been said, and truthfully so, that members of the profession are finding an abundance of work at the studios. Dorothea Wolbert, popular comedienne, believes this statement would stand stretching a point or two, for with her she has had only two days' vacation since the first of the year. She is now supporting Harold Lloyd in his first independent production, which is being made at the Hollywood studios.

Spottiswoode Aitken is portraying the role of a ship's captain, the second time in his long career before the camera, in I. W. Irving's production of "Trapped," with an all-star cast of players, headed by John Bowers and June Norton.

The first time he wore a captain's uniform occurred in the old Biograph picture, "The great Sea Mystery," starring Florence Lawrence, directed by D. W. Griffith, and produced thirteen years ago this month.

Bennett In Doubt.

Chester Bennett is doubtful whether he will be able to produce Hawthorne's great story, "The Scarlet Letter," starring Jane Novak, owing to censorship restrictions. In explanation, Mr. Bennett states:

"The vital theme in Hawthorne's story, which is conceded to be among the finest ever written by an American author, is the love affair between a minister and Beautiful Hester, the heroine of the story. There might be considerable criticism from the censors relative to depicting ministers in a false light."

Vola Vale is looking over a large number of books and plays to find a character that she can study and concentrate on for her next production.

Miss Vale says that the audiences are growing more and more to demand dignity, tone and refinement from their screen favorites and that unless the actor and actress can register these attributes in their acting, they cannot live on the screen.

TRAINMEN PAY TRIBUTE

Ralph Lewis is quite proud of a letter from the organization headquarters of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, commending him for his faithful characterization of the railroad man in "Westbound Limited," in which he played the starring role.

The letter was signed by thousands of train employes and required more than two hundred pages of legal sized writing paper to carry all the signatures.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

DON MEANEY TO PRODUCE

Don Meaney, of Meaney & Nehls, has closed negotiations for the production of six Horatio Alger, Jr. stories. The first, slated for early December release, will be "Tony, The Boot-Black," which will be followed by "Phil, the Fiddler."

Mr. Meaney has not named his juvenile star as yet. The pictures will be in five reels and will be released through a large releasing company. It is reported that George Sargent will direct.

Dog Shower for Cummings.

Universal City resembled a municipal pound one day recently, after Irving Cummings had sent out an S.O.S. call for a litter of pit bull pups.

Long before the gates opened, ambitious youngsters craving to see their pets as screen stars, lined up with their canine prodigies.

One of the scenes written into "My Mamie Rose," which Cummings is to direct, called for a litter of youthful pit bulls.

A classified ad appeared in the Los Angeles newspapers and then came the deluge of dogs. Cummings sent a hurry call out for Harvey Gates, to come and take his pick, and the author did so, hence the cast of "My Mamie Rose" is now entirely filled, so far as pups are concerned.

Difficult Locations Sought.

Scouts are now scouring Southern California in search of the famous upper Nile country of Egypt!

George Melford, who is producing Rudyard Kipling's novel, "The Light That Failed," for Paramount, has reached the point in his production work where it will soon be necessary for him to carry the masculine portion of his cast on location to film the Egyptian campaign scenes of the story. Working from Kipling's descriptions and photographs, searchers are now seeking a similar spot in California where this sequence of scenes can be made.

Jacqueline Logan, Percy Marmont, Sigrid Holmquist and David Torrance are the featured members of the cast.

JAMES CRUZE LATEST READY FOR PREVIEW

Cutting and titling work on the James Cruze production of "Ruggles of Red Gap" is nearing completion at Paramount's West Coast studio under the supervision of the man who made "The Covered Wagon," and this adaptation of Harry Leon Wilson's popular story which Walter Woods and Anthony Coldewey translated to the screen.

Edward Horton, Ernest Torrence, Lois Wilson, Fritzi Ridgeway, Charles Ogle and Louise Dresser are the featured players.

Mr. Edward Caswell, prominent citizen of Hollywood, and for the past 25 years one of the leading business men of Los Angeles, has accepted a position on the board of directors of Renalles, Inc., to take the place of Mr. Dallas Fitzgerald, resigned. Mr. Caswell will be remembered as the father of little Nancy Caswell, the child artist, who achieved such remarkable success as the "Littlest Rebel" with the Farnum Brothers. At present little Nancy is taking a prominent part in the Pilgrimage Play. There is a probability that in the near future this talented little artist, who has a host of followers among picture fans, will seek further stellar honors in stories specially written for her under the Renalles, Inc., banner.

Producer I. W. Irving and his company producing "Trapped," who are spending several weeks aboard a big three-masted schooner near Catalina, filming the boat scenes, have been held up from shooting the first scenes owing to fog.

The entire Irving producing organization, including Director John B. O'Brien, the players and technical staff, have been residing near the island isthmus for a week, waiting to make the opening scenes. After these have been secured, Producer Irving and the balance of the organization will sail off the coast of Mexico, where other scenes will be taken.

The all-star cast includes John Bowers, June Norton, Sheldon Lewis, Joseph Dowling, Claire McDowell, Cesare Gravina, Eddie Burns, Grace Gordon, Fred T. Walker and others.

Several important additions to the cast of "Leave It to Gerry," a Grand-Asher picture, have been announced by Producer Ben Wilson: Ena Gregory will play one of the boarding school girls; Grace Wood is to portray the wife of the villain; little Billie Lord is a small town kid; Blanche Payson will probably be cast as the principal of the girls' school and Glen Cavender as the instructor of a military academy. George Carter is assistant director. The story is by Adam Hull Shirk and was adapted by Arthur Statter.

Somewhere in Edendale is a goat with a keen relish for grease paint, hand mirrors and face powder.

This ruminant discovered Billie Rhodes' makeup box on location where the little comedienne was working in her first feature for Grand-Asher—a Ben Wilson production called "Leave It to Gerry"—and immediately devoured its contents.

"I don't want to be mean," says Billie, "but I hope it gives him a tummy ache, to say the least."

A SWEET VACATION

Blanche Sweet started a week's vacation yesterday, preparatory to appearing in her biggest scenes for "Anna Christie" at the Ince studio.

Miss Sweet has been working night and day in the heavy emotional characterization of Eugene o'Neil's celebrated role. The most important scenes were postponed until the finish of the production. All of these scenes now remain to be "shot" and in order to give her best to them, Miss Sweet will rest up this week and conclude her characterization next week.

Reports around the Ince studio indicate that her portrayal of "Anna Christie" will prove a sensational screen achievement for Miss Sweet, really the most emotional part she has ever attempted, this character should prove the crowning success of her brilliant career before the camera, dating back to the old Biograph days in 14th Street, New York.

Timely Told.

"One of the greatest assets of a successful motion picture actress is the power of observation," stated Viola Vale, the popular screen star, who will be seen soon in the starring role of Finis Fox's production, "The Man Between."

"It is her ability to see and take note of the little things in life and then store them up in her sub-conscious mind where they await her call to use at the psychological moment before the camera that enables her to either register success in her chosen work or be merely mediocre.

"When I first worked with D. W. Griffith as a child in the old Biograph days, I soon noticed how he took notice of everything the actors did, their customs and mannerisms. Mary Pickford is also a great observer. She never misses an opportunity to study children.

"Bill Hart is one of the keenest observers in motion pictures. The late George Loane Tucker used to say that every girl aspiring to be a motion picture actress should take notice of things about her, shut her eyes and then try to review from memory what she had seen.

"If every actress could be a newspaper reporter for a few months and learn to see deeply in the hearts of humanity, it would be a wonderful help to her in her work."

Cartoons Popular.

For the coming season Pathe announces that the most widely used of all animated cartoon subjects, Aesop's Fables, will continue to make their unique weekly appeal on its varied programs. Now midway in their third year, these modernized, highly comic adaptations of the wisdom of the ancient Greek philosopher are declared by exhibitors to be even more popu-

EACH TO HIS KIND

Tully Marshall, noted screen character man, has an aversion to red headed women.

In fact, he declares, he will never sign up to play in any picture if the cast contains a titian haired beauty.

Before he signed up to play in First National's "Her Temporary Husband," he first asked if there was a red head in the cast. Assured that there was none, he put his signature on the dotted line.

Tully's aversion is the result of his love affair, he explains. He fell in love with his red headed teacher, who threw him down—most forcibly. Since then he has shunned every red top that has crossed his path—he says.

Gentlemen, Be Seated.

Offices have been prepared at the Grand Studio under the direction of Ben Verschleiser, general manager, for Elliott Dexter and Bryant Washburn, the two actor-producers, whose pictures will be made at the Gower Street plant and released by Grand-Asher. R. William Neill will produce the first Dexter picture and Cullen B. (Hezi) Tate is to direct Mr. Washburn's initial production. A staff of competent technical men is being engaged and everything will be in readiness for the "jump off." The stages have been thoroughly renovated and already the sound of hammer and saw can be heard where the sets are being erected. The Grand stage is one of the most commodious in the community and is separated from the administration buildings by a broad lawn with fountains and flowers. The entire property was acquired recently by Samuel V. Grand and will be one of the most active studios in Hollywood, henceforth.

Finis Fox will stop off at Denver to show his "Bag and Baggage" to exhibitors there before proceeding to New York.

WELCOME MISS JOY

According to reports said to be authentic and now current in Hollywood, a new star is looming on the cinema horizon. Kathryn Joy, petite and pretty 17-year-old Indiana girl, is soon to make her bow as the featured player under the banner of one of the best known motion picture companies in Hollywood. Further details will be announced within the next few days, or as soon as contracts have been signed by the parties concerned. Miss Joy's rise to success has been phenomenal. She entered pictures less than six months ago, but her striking personality and keen ability to interpret difficult roles won the serious attention of film producers. One of her most recent engagements was with George O'Hara in the "Fighting Blood" series.

Italian Operatic Singer Here

Specializing in heavy lead portrayals with true histrionic ability, John Ardizoni, noted Italian operatic singer, actor, teacher of voice culture and dramatic art, has completed his Eastern circuit, and Hollywood, the artists' great magnet, has drawn him into its fold.

John Ardizoni will best be remembered on the legitimate stage in his role of Monty in "Twin Beds," and also in many of his Eastern screen successes, with notables such as Ethel Clayton, Virginia Pearson, Anita Stewart, Elsie Ferguson, and others.

While here, Mr. Ardizoni, between engagements, will teach voice culture to a select number of pupils from the picture colony. It is his contention that voice culture, aside from its recognized artistic value, develops the entire mental and physical system and tends to create a higher state of efficiency in the artist.

Two New Comedies Ready.

Two more of the Grand-Asher comedies have been completed so far as shooting is concerned. They are Monty Banks in "Pay or Move," being the "romance" of a rent collector, directed by Harry Edwards; and Joe Rock in "Pleasing Dad," about a young fellow who tries to lose his job so he can satisfy the girl's father that he can live by his native shrewdness. This was directed by Reggie Morris.

Banks has started another comedy as yet untitled, and has spent much time on the broad lawn of the Grand Studio, where a lawn fete was in progress. Herman C. Raymaker is directing. Sid Smith has completed "Make It Snappy," under the direction of Charles Lamont and is beginning another with the same director, dealing with the humorous exploits of a chap who is trying to uplift the human race, finding a lot of it doesn't want to be uplifted.

Life Long Ambition is Realized by This Star

That Elliott Dexter, now making his own productions for Grand-Asher release, was born with a predilection for the theatre, is indicated by the fact that as a baby he ran away from home and was found by a kindly policeman on the steps of the Galveston Opera House, trying assiduously to get into the theatre. Mr. Dexter was born in Galveston, Texas, and educated for the ministry. But the longing to act seemed to have been born in him and he finally gained permission of his parents to forsake the ecclesiastical studies and go to New York to embark on a stage career. He had a letter to a theatrical man, who advised him to get actual experience. He tried to follow this advice, but found it was not easy to do. In fact, his money gave out before he could even land a job carrying a spear. So he went to Massachusetts to work on a farm owned by relatives, and there his mother came to find why he was always "writing home for money." He finally induced her to permit him to make another try in New York and was willing to take any kind of job to keep going till he struck a stage opportunity. It was, however, in Washington, D. C., that he finally landed a position as a clerk in a haberdashery at the munificent salary of three dollars a week. He rose rapidly to the job of buyer, but the money was not yet satisfactory, nor was this his ambition, anyway. So when they offered him a chance to go on the road with samples, he jumped at it. He went to Paris, Texas, and after failing to sell a nickle's worth of goods, gave it up as a bad job, left his sample cases and hit the high spots for home.

He did quite a bit of amateur acting there and finally went to New York again and was successful in getting an opening as a supernumerary in stock. Within two years he had gained considerable prominence and was playing important roles. His experience included repertoire shows and three-night stands until he went on tour as the lead in "Down to the Sea." Next year he was cast as the heavy in Tim Murphy's play, "The Man From Missouri." After this he appeared in numerous Broadway productions, such as the all-star revival of "Siberia," "The Master Mind," "The Love Leash," and with Frohman in a John Drew play, with Margaret Anglin, Virginia Harned, etc. He went on tour with the Belasco production, "The Lily," played in Henry Miller productions, "Consequence," for the Shuberts, and so on.

His first picture was for Famous Players, "Helene of the North," in which Marguerite Clark was starred. He went with Griffith in "Daphne and the Pirate," and returned to Famous to appear in "Diplomacy." Then followed his long series of Cecil B. DeMille productions and he reached the very pinnacle of screen success in such pictures as "A Romance of the Redwoods," "The Whispering Chorus," "Old Wives for New," "You Can't Have Everything," "Don't Change Your Husband," "The Squaw Man," "For Better or Worse," "Something to Think About," etc.

"Adam's Rib" was his last De Mille picture, but he worked in "Only Thirty-Eight" with William DeMille.

And now his life-long ambition is realized. He is star in his own productions and the first is now under way at the Grand Studio, "The Man Who Forgave," an R. William Neill production of a story by Adam Hull Shirk, adapted by Florence Hein. And Mr. Dexter believes it is the biggest thing he has ever done!

Vola Vale has just bought a brand-new motor boat which she is keeping in San Pedro harbor.

R. William Neill has directed more than one hundred successful screen dramas.

Research Office Will Aid the Studios

Local studios are beginning to realize the true importance of detail in the building and selection of foreign data.

L. A. Howland, formerly local film man and now conducting an elaborate research department in his offices in the New Security Bank Building, reports business quite active.

Many studios, after searching libraries, book-stores, private home collections, etc., have gone to Howland's offices to find the exact data they had devoted weeks in search of.

Views from Ceylon, India, China, views from Egypt, Italy, Spain, France and practically all the countries of the world, are to be had.

Howland specializes in securing photographs of interiors and exteriors for the purpose of supplying details to t he producing companies, that they may in Hollywood reproduce any type of foreign building, foreign streets, in fact, anything from anywhere.

A Character Portrayal

A striking character study of Martha Mattox, one of our foremost screen artists, as she recently appeared in "Bavu," playing the part of a Bolshevik. Among the recent successes in which she was prominently cast are "Hearts Aflame" and "The Hero." At the present time she is playing a delightful comedy relief in support of Thomas Meighan in "Woman-Proof" at the Lasky Studios. Prior to assuming this role she appeared in one of the big parts in "Maytime," at the Mayer-Schulberg Studios. Miss Mattox's ability as a heavy and delineator of difficult character parts has been established by many years of excellent work on the legitimate stage and the screen. She is pre-eminent in her type of portrayals, and her versatility is very wide in range.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, September 3

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Wilson	All-Star	Linden-Stevens	Geo. Carter	A. Statter	"Leave It to Gerry"	4th Week
Dearholt Productions.
Neva Gerber Productions
Dick Hatton	Neva Gerber		La Mece		"The 7th Sheriff"	Preparing
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Jackson 1900
H. & B. Film Co.
Tom Wright	All Star	Bill Beckway			"Tango Trails"	Preparing
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						593576
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 0096
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al Herman	All-Star	Wm. Hyer	Herman	Herman	"My Pal"	1st Week
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 4070
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd.						439-764
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 3100
H. Bruatte	Jim Adams	Paul Garnett	Jim Clemens		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Scott Sidney	Neal Burns	Alex Phillips	Ernest LaVelle		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Al Christie	Bobby Vernon	Peterson-Nagy	Hageman		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr.						Drexel 2115
Frederick Bond	All Star	Joe Walker	Hoblitz	Johnson	"Beyond the Veil"	3rd Week
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General.
	All-Star			Staff	"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd. E. H. Allen, Gen. Mgr. Scotty Cleethorpe, Casting.						598-165
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Mermaid Comedies)
Taurog	Neely Edwards	Meehan	Cullen	Staff	Special	2nd Week
Kerr	All-Star	McGill	Linkoff	Staff	Comedy	2nd Week
Holland	All Star	Corby	Sharpless	Staff	Comedy	Editing
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Novelty Juveniles)
Pratt	Juvenile	McGill	Dewar	Staff	Comedy	Preparing
Lloyd Hamilton Corp. (Educational Release)
FOX STUDIO. James Ryan, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 3000
Edmund Mortimer	John Gilbert	Don Short	McKenzie	John Russel	"The Exiles"	3rd Week
Mayo	Stock	Sid Wagner	Jas. Tinling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Slim Summerville	Stock	J. A. Schmidt	Arthur Cohn	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Erle Kenton	Lew Brice	Vic Scheurich	Max Gold		Comedies	Schedule
Lambert Hillyer	Tom Mix	D. Clark	Manter	Robt. T. Lee	"A Flyin' Fool"	4th Week
Jack Ford	All-Star	Joe August	W. Mayo	John Russell	"Hoodman Blind"	3rd Week
Wm. Wellman	Buck Jones	Schneiderman	H. Hough	Fred & Fanny Hatton	"Big Dan"	3rd Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 2632
Rocky Mt. Production Co.
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 0051
Metro Release.
GOLD SEAL PRODUCTIONS. A. Rosetti, Studio Mgr.						7405 Roseberry Ave.
Hughes-Gravel	Donna Hale	C. Hughes			"Riders of the Desert"	2nd Week
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.						Holly 2693
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Louis Weaver	Sonny Baker	Price	Harry Tenbrook	Staff	"Castles in Spain"	2nd Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 0162
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
H. Edwards	Monte Banks	B. Williams	Goodman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Chas. Lamont	Sid Smith	K. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	"Make It Snappy"	Schedule
Joe Rock Productions.
Reggie Morris	Joe Rock	Jerry Ash	Murray Rock	Morris	Comedy	Schedule
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						761711
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStrohei	"Greed"	26th Week
Victor Seastrom	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Chas. Lapworth	Paul Bern	"The Judge and the Woman"	14th Week
Rupert Hughes	All-Star	John Mescall	Albert Kelly	Rupert Hughes	"Law Against Law"	6th Week
King Vidor	All-Star	John Boyle	James Dugan	King Vidor	"Wild Oranges"	5th Week
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6642 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Taylor-Newmeyer	H. Lloyd	Lundin	Bud Golden		"The Girl Expert"	5th Week
Finis Fox Productions. R. R. Beaty, Gen. Mgr.
Richard Thomas Productions.
Supreme Art Productions. Chas. J. Hall
Irving Productions. W. H. Carr, Production Manager.
Jack O'Brien	All-Star	D. Jennings	Cy Clegg	Frank Beresford	"Trapped"	3rd Week
J. K. McDonald Productions.

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.						438-740
Horner	All-Star	Geo. Meehan	Middleton	Horner		Casting
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Seeling	All-Star	Edgar Lyons		Seeling	"The Apache Dancer"	Editing
Seeling	Larkin	Vernon Walker	Kenneth Green		"Chain Lightning"	Casting
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Palmer Photoplay Productions.
Cortland Productions
Trimble-Murfin Productions.
Lawrence Trimble	Strongheart	G. B. Dreyer	Cyril Gardner	Donna Barrell	"White Fang"	30th Week
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	8th Week
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
Jack Blystone	Buster Keaton	E. Lessley-Thorp	Rose	Mitchell	"Hospitality"	10th Week
Lou Anger Productions.
LASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vine St.						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Ernest Haller	John Boland	Tom Geraghty	"The Light That Failed"	9th Week
Al. E. Green	Thos. Meighan	Chas. Clark	Fred J. Robinson	Edfrid Bingham	"Woman-Proof"	6th Week
Jos. Henabery	Doug. Fairbanks, Jr	Saxon Dean	Dick Johnson		"Stephen Steps Out"	6th Week
Cliff Smith	Wm. S. Hart	Warren	Dick Rush	J. G. Hawkes	"Wm. Hart in Wild Bill Hickok"	3rd Week
Herb Brennon	Pola Negri	Jos. Howe	H. Schwartz		"My Man"	Preparing
Wm. DeMille	All-Star	Guy Wilky	Geo. Hippard	Clara Berangee	"Every Day Love"	Preparing
Zane Grey Productions.
Victor Fleming	Dix-Wilson	James Howe	Gilroy	Doris Schroeder	"The Call of the Canyon"	4th Week
McNAMARA STUDIOS. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Capitol 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro Release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star	Percy Hilburn	Harry Schenck	J. G. Hawks	"Cape Cod Folks"	2nd Week
John M. Stahl	All-Star		Sidney Algier	A. G. Younger	"Why Men Leave Home"	1st Week
Fred Niblo	All-Star	Victor Milner	Doran Cox	B. Meredyth	"Thy Name Is Woman"	Preparing
B. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
Gasnier	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"Maytime"	4th Week
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	John Arnold	Chas. Watt	Basil Dickey	"In Search of a Thrill"	Editing
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Alien Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar					"The Human Mill"	Scheduled Sept. 1
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	9th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford		Held	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	7th Week
	Mary Pickford	Chas. Fosher		Staff	"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall"	Preparing
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Louis Tolhurst				Walter Anthony	Microscopic Motion Pictures	Schedule
Alf. Goulding	Harry Langdon	Albert Breslau	David Smith	Harry Langdon	"A Perfect Nuisance"	Schedule
Benny Zeidman Productions.
Ed Cline	Joe Butterworth	Wm. Marshall	Frank Geraghty	Grey Carr	"The Good Bad Boy"	4th Week
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Eddie Hearn		Gilbert Fones	Wyndam Gittens	"The Sand Pile"	Preparing
Lehrman	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"Wages of Cinema"	Schedule
Emile Chautard	Perdue-Hughes	Jos DuBray	F. Tyler		"Born of the Cyclone"	5th Week
Chester Bennett Productions.
Douglas MacLean Productions
Jimmy Horne	Douglas MacLean	Max DuPont	Art Flaven		"The Yankee Consul"	2nd Week
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr. 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Howe-Cedar	"Paul" Parrott	Frank Young	Henecke-Brandie		Comedies	Schedule
McGowan	All-Star	Harry Gerstadt	C. Mereheuse		"Our Gang"	Schedule
Ralph Cedar	Stan Laurel				1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Roy Clemens	Edna Murphy	Bobby Doran	McBurney		"What Should a Girl Do?"	Schedule
Lon Powers	Dippy Doo Dads	Hank Kohler	Bert Currigan		Animal Comedy	Schedule
Chas. Parrott	Will Rogers	Bob Dorrin	Chas. Oelze		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
Phil Rosen	All-Star	Kurrle-Broening	Al. Davis	Francis Marion	"Life of Abraham Lincoln"	Schedule
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSELL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945
Al. Nietz	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	1st Week
Logan-Baynham Productions.
	Morante	MacManigal	Kane-Walsh		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. B. Seitz	Ray-Miller	Walker-Moran	Wm. Bertram	Seitz	"The Way of a Man"	11th Week
Hercules Film Co.
Jack Nelson	Pawl	McManigal			"Let's Go"	3rd Week
H. J. Brown Productions
Al. Rogell	Fred Thompson	Ross Fisher			"Running Wild"	2nd Week

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
Del Lord	All Star	Blake Wagner		Mack Sennett	Comedy	2nd Week
Del Ruth	Ben Turpin			Mack Sennett	Comedy	2nd Week
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Louis B. Mayer Productions, Clune's Studio, 5360 Melrose Ave.
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Rose of All the World"	6th Week
Sam E. Rork Productions.
First National Productions.
McDermott Chaplin	All-Star		James Chapin	Wm. Dowlin	"Temporary Marriage"	5th Week
Jack Dillon	All-Star		Jimmy Dunn	Dowlin	"Flaming Youth"	8th Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Maurice Tourneur	All-Star	Arthur Todd	Scott R. Beal	Fred Myton	"Jealous Fools"	6th Week
Frank Lloyd Productions (First National Release)
Frank Lloyd	Griffith Tearle	Norbert Brodin	Billy Retter	Mary O'Hara	"Black Oxen"	2nd Week
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig, Casting.						433-131
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Archainbaud	Priscilla Dean		McCarey-Wyler		"The Storm Daughter"	8th Week
Herbert Blache	Gladys Walton		Sullivan	Hugh Hoffman	"The Near Lady"	3rd Week
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson	Robinson	Clarke	Geo. Plympton	"The Steel Trail"	17th Week
Ed. Sedgwick	Hoot Gibson	Miller	Cummel	Sedgwick-Schrock	"The Extra Man"	Editing
Wm. Parke	Herbert Rawlinson		Dorian		"The Noblest Roman"	3rd Week
Ed. Laemmle	Billy Sullivan		Regan		"The Leather Pusher Series"	Schedule
Harry Pollard	Reginald Denny		F. Messinger		"The Spice of Life"	3rd Week
Irving Cummings	Mary Philbin		Woolstenhume		"My Mamie Rose"	1st Week
Robt. N. Bradbury	Pete Morrison		Victor Nordlinger		Series 2-Reel Westerns	Schedule
Leon Lee Productions. Leon Lee Manager.
Dinky Dean Productions. Lew Lipton, Production Manager.
Andy Gump Productions.
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen. Mgr.						598-131
Dave Smith Productions.
Dave Smith	All-Star	D. Smith, Jr.	Bill Dagwell	J. P. Smith	"The Man From Brodneys"	5th Week
Larry Semon Productions.
L. Semon	L. Semon	Konekamp	Joe Basil	Semon	Comedy	Editing
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 4161
Warner Brothers Productions.
Mal St. Clair	Wesley Barry	E. B. Dupar	Geo. Webster		"George Washington, Jr."	6th Week
Johnny Hines	Johnny Hines	Chas. Gilson	C. Hines-Roth		"Conductor 1492"	6th Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Marsh Gillingwater		Tenny Wright		"Daddies"	1st Week
Harry Beaumont	John Barrymore	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Beau Brummel"	Sept. 18
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Sidney Franklin	Lenore Ulric	Chas. Rosher	Wm. McGann	Edmund Goulding	"Tiger Rose"	9th Week
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernst Lubitsch	All-Star	Paul Perry	Flood Blanke		"The Marriage Circle"	2nd Week
Harry Rapf Productions.
Jack Conway	Monte Blue-Irene Rich	David Abel	Sutherland-Hawkes		"Loveless Marriages"	6th Week
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WILNAT STUDIO. 6090 Sunset Blvd. Al. Brandt, Mgr.						Holly 7940
E. J. Le Saint	All-Star	King Grey	Geo. E. Reehm		"The Marriage Market"	4th Week
WORLD EDUCATIONAL FILMS. Box 818, Sta. "C," Los Angeles
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	"Haunts of Hiawatha"	3rd Week

DR. W. L. SCHUSTER
Chiropractor—Nerve Specialist
"Where the sick go to get well"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

PAT HENRY BARNES
Leads—Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

WHEN YOU NEED A DOCTOR
Phone 572-88; 430-205, or Hollywood 102-82 and ask for
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Formerly of New York City
6548 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD

IN A HURRY?
CALL
FROM HOLLYWOOD
Universal City $1.00
Culver City $2.00
A
Ambassador Hotel $1.50
Center of Los Angeles....$2.00
All Stations $2.50
TAXI
578-280 SUNSET TAXI 578-307

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law
JACK P. LEONARD
340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

DICK SUTHERLAND
Characters—Heavy
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

"Phon-O-Grams"

Edited by Gene Woolway

Alton Brown

Juvenile Leads

578-177

Charlotte DuPuis

Ingenue-Characters

Holly 2570

J. C. (Jack) Fowler

Characters

Holly 7058

Lorraine Eason

Ingenue Leads

575-91

Kenneth Gibson

Juvenile Leads

578-311

Doctor Roberts

Character Actor

Holly 5335

Reeka Roberts

Emotional Roles

Holly 5335

Bert Sprotte

Characters

741-64

FROM "U" TO YOU

(Continued from Page 5)

require about two weeks more to complete the picture, which is of elaborate spectacular character.

Max Davidson, to whom critics have learned to look for lovable characterizations of Jewish fathers—such as in "Whose Baby Are You?" "The Ghost Patrol," "No Woman Knows" and "Humoresque"—has been selected for one of the principal roles in "My Mamie Rose," the first Universal-Jewel starring vehicle of Mary Philbin, the "Merry-Go-Round" girl.

Irvin Cummings, who will direct the production, and Fred Datig, casting director at Universal City, have also selected Pat O'Malley and Edwin J. Brady. Production will start very soon on the Owen Kildare story, which will be elaborately filmed in order to give the new emotional "discovery" a fine setting.

A staff of readers has been assigned by Bernard McConville, now supervisor of all Universal-Jewel and super-Jewel productions, to the nearing through libraries and the reading of current fiction magazines for suitable stories for Mary Philbin and Reginald Denny. McConville reports that the rapidly increasing popularity of these two newest stars of Universal-Jewel productions demands the biggest and most worthwhile stories available for the presentation of their dramatic talents.

Roy Stewart has just completed his latest starring vehicle for the Universal company, which was filmed under the direction of Nat Ross. The production, a five reel feature of the southwest cattle country, is a screen version of the popular western novel, "A Texas Ranger," by William McLeod Raine. It was made under the working title of "The Man Tracker."

Supporting Stewart in the cast are Esther Ralston, Jere Austin, Jack Mower and Verne Winter.

"Riders of the Moon," a dramatic western story written and scenarized by Isadore Bernstein, in which Jack Hoxie, popular favorite in tales of the West, is star, has been completed at Universal City.

The picture now in the first stage of editing, was directed by Robert North Bradbury. Elinor Field is the leading woman. Others in the cast were Ralph McCullough, Ben Corbett, William Welsh, Fred Kohler and Jim Welsh.

A few miles from Lone Pine, California, on the edge of Death Valley, a location trip was made and three weeks spent in getting what is said to be the best scenic background ever seen.

Jess Robbins, well known comedy director, has been signed by Universal to direct Baby Peggy in her third Universal-Jewel production.

The picture will be a comedy drama of five or six reel length, filmed from a Lois Zellner continuity of an original story by Bernard McConville. The working title of the play is "Settled Out of Court."

It will provide an entirely new atmosphere for the baby star and her work will be essentially of a comedy nature. Two multi-reel features previously filmed at the Universal studios present Peggy in dramatic roles of a heavier type.

Robbins, a veteran comedy director and one of the best known laugh creators in filmland, has recently guided the filming of a series of Eddie Horton comedies.

Production has started on "The Near Lady," an adaptation by Hugh Hoffman of a magazine story by Frank R. Adams, which is being directed by Herbert Blache, starring Gladys Walton.

Supporting Miss Walton in the cast are

ETHELYN IRVING
Child Lead
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

BOB REEL McKEE

KAY DESLYS
Characters—Dancer
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

MOTION PICTURES
Talent wanted to register in new Casting Directory. Call in person.
THE UNIVERSAL, 5507 Santa Monica Boulevard. Room 4.

L. H. LeLEAVITTO
Juvenile Lead
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

HAIRGONE—permanent cure for superfluous hair on arms, limbs, face and body. Also wonderful for men who have shaving troubles. $2.50 the bottle, manufactured at
ORCHID BEAUTY SHOPPE
808 So. Hope St. Phone 16596
All lines of beauty culture.

COLIN CHASE
Leads
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

WE MOVE THE MOVIES
and Shine on Service
Hollywood 2672 • SAMUEL C. SHINE • 6568 Santa Monica Blvd.
General Trucking and Hauling

It is our constant endeavor to provide the utmost in boxing. The highest standards of the pugilistic sport have been established, and hold sway, at this arena.

Hollywood Stadium

Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

OLIN FRANCIS
Refined Heavy
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Hugh Hoffman
Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip," "Crossed Wires." "The Town Scandal." "Sawdust." "The Untameable." "The Wild Party."

MADGE HUNT
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography
LITTLE
Commercial Photographer
Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

NAN CONNER
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Animated Cartoons — Original Title Ideas — Clay Animation — Miniature Sets and Animated Figures
CINEMA ARTS STUDIO
ELMER H. YOUNG, Manager
6617 Santa Monica Blvd. Telephone 434-430

FLOYCE BROWN
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660
KWIK LUNCH
SERVES U RITE
1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

Pierre Gendron, leading man, Otis Harlan, Kate Price, Florence Drew and Henrietta Floyd.

Who will play the important part of Bibbs in the forthcoming screen version of "The Turmoil" which the Universal pictures corporation is going to produce?

Bibbs is the role for which every young man in Hollywood who is listed in professional directories of "who's who" wants to play—and believes he could do it. It is the role of a young idealist whose father is a colossus of industry—and the son feels crushed by the hardness of his parent's attitude toward everything.

The Booth Tarkington novel, an international success, will be filmed as a Hobart Henley picture such as "The Flirt" a previous Tarkington opus, and "A Lady of Quality," the Frances Hodgson Burnett classic which was recently completed with Virginia Valli in the starring role.

Mr. Henley and Fred Datig, casting director at Universal City, are interviewing and studying various young actors who are after the part. They will announce their decision in a few days. Readers of the book—and they are many—will be interested, for to them Bibbs lives as a fine human character.

The scenario has been completed by Edward T. Lowe and filming will start soon, it has been announced by Bernard McConville, supervisior of all Jewel and super-Jewel productions for the Universal corporation.

The first shot was—filmed, not fired—in the starting of a new serial at Universal City this week. And one little actress is thrilled with the opening up of the road to success.

Well might she be, for Margaret Morris, who has been less than a year in pictures, will be co-starred in "The Ghost City," with Pete Morrison of western fame, and the opportunity is one the like of which few girls have ever had. Jay Marchant, maker of many western plays, is directing. Supporting players are being chosen.

Tom Santschi is completing the second of two important characterizations for Universal, both of which promise unusual interest for fans who watch for his work.

The first one was the polished heavy of "Thundering Dawn," a Universal-Jewel all-star production directed by Harry Garson in which Santschi appears with Anna Q. Nilsson, J. Warren Kerrigan, Winifred Bryson and others. In that a fine dramatic role is gradually increased in interest to a scene in which his hypocrisy is discovered by the character impersonated by Miss Nilsson, and a lashing administration to his shoulders via a long overseer's whip in her hands, a thrilling scene which is expected to enthrall fans.

The second is one of the leading roles with Priscilla Dean in "The Storm Daughter," which George Archainbaud is directing. No one will know whether it is the leading romantic role or the heavy role until the last reel unfolds its dramatic climax. The alternate role which attracts interest in the same way is that of William B. Davidson.

Santschi is a veteran of the stage, having to his credit many big New York successes, as a leading man.

Laura La Plante, blonde beauty, whose rise to screen popularity has been notable within for the leading feminine role in "The Spice of

ELEANOR HOUSE
Ingenue
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

SCREEN TESTS

Invest in a Screen Test. It pays. It tells you how you screen and the cost is only

25 Cents Per Foot

Call Bruno

431-929

6412 Hollywood Boulevard

BETSY ANN HISLE
Child Lead
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

MARION WARDE

Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films

Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing

423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

BOBBIE GORDON
Child Lead
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Wanted: Productions From $50,000 to $100,000

I have just returned from New York and am in the market for some real pictures. I can sell your productions outright. See me for quick release.

H. and B. FILM COMPANY

Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275

TINTED PORTRAITS

of a beautiful velvet-like tone can be made from your regular photographs. The cost is low and there are special rates on fan photos.

EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38

OLIVER ECKHARDT
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Walter Frederick Seely
Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

Hollywood Scenario Exchange
5617 Hollywood Blvd.
Phone 431-420
EXCLUSIVE CALIFORNIA REPRESENTATIVES for THE AMERICAN AND CONTINENTAL COMPANY, Paris, France, agents for well known French plays and published works, including the late Bernhardt's successes.

REGGIE MORELLI
Dramatic Juvenile
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

YOUR PHONOGRAPH
will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a
Deflexograph
Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles.
Play after hours —will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.

GOLD PLATE.....$1.50
(See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE....$1.00
VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

STANLEY TOLLEY
Heavy—Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Life," Reginald Denny's first starring vehicle under his new contract with the Universal company.

"The Spice of Life" is a screen version of the famous short story, "There He goes," by Byron Morgan, author of many of Wallace Reid's most notable successes. It is being produced under the direction of Harry A. Pollard, who guided the filming of the "Leather Pushers" series in which Denny achieved a remarkable popularity with the motion picture public.

The Denny company is now on location at Monterey where most of the exterior shots for the picture will be made.

RUPERT HUGHES HOME

Back from Yellowstone National Park where he spent two weeks with his Goldwyn company filming important scenes in "Law Against Law," Rupert Hughes is now shooting big interior scenes at the studio.

An admixture of good and bad luck characterized the Goldwyn director's stay in Yellowstone. He expected to be on location for at least nine weeks waiting for a geyser to erupt, since the giant he desired to film seldom erupts during the day, being much of a night creature. However, the geyser obligingly erupted the first day of the company's stay in Yellowstone and hastily setting up his cameras, Major Hughes got every foot of the thrilling scenes he desired.

However, misfortune entered when a high wind enveloped the company in a cloud of hissing steam, severely burning James Hogan, production manager, who had to be taken to a hospital. Other members of the company who were burned, less seriously, were Lew Cody, Helene Chadwick, George Walsh, Carmel Myers, and Rush Hughes.

However, Hogan is busy at work at the studio, bandages and all, and the players have doctored their burns with various remedies and are acting as usual.

"Law Against Law" was written directly for the screen by Major Hughes, and deals with the divorce problem by which a man may be blissfully divorced in one state and step over the boundary line to find he has a whole flock of legal wives.

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS
GET RESULTS

YOUNG LADY desirous of secretarial or stenographic position with Studio or prominent professional. Palmer student. Address Secretary, 2624 West 8th, or phone 50195.

ERIC WILKINSON—Young Australian. Heaps of initiative, desires position in studio. Conversant Projection, Reconstruction, Automobile, etc. Guarantee 100 per cent. Eminent recommendations. 4544 Franklin Ave. Phone 595-973.

TYPING Scenarios and Manuscripts at reasonable rates. Will call for work. Met. 4818.

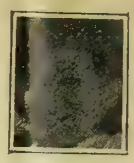
CHICAGO'S SILENT NIGHTS—A ten thousand words complete photoplay script, depicting Chicago's period of political strife, lawless and terrorism. The result of more than a year's work, by Geo. Paps—write for it. P. O. Box 581, Los Angeles.

COLBURN'S
Taxidermy Studio
Phone 643-13
1033-37 Broadway Place
. . . excells in mounting of fish . . . trout our specialty . . . see samples at our studio . . .



Coy Watson, Jr.
Age 10 Wilshire 3616
No Luck.
You Never Know.
Right of the Strongest
Featured in Campbell Comedies

MAY FOSTER
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

CHIROPODIST
FOOT SPECIALIST
Dr. Earl A. Davis
6514 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD
Hours 9 to 5. Holly 0259.

DOROTHY CHASE
Ingenue
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

ART LEE
SPECIALIST ON MAKE-UP
Will teach you how to Make Up Correctly. Read my references
Telephone 598-207
1712 St. James Court, Hollywood, at Western

NAOMI BAILEY
Ingenue—Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Especially for Motion Picture People.
THE HILLVIEW GRILL
Hillview Apartments Bldg.
Hollywood at Hudson
Holly 7980 Holly 6626
MERCHANTS' LUNCH, 11:30 to 2
DINNER 5:30 to 8

SCREEN SERVICE
(formerly The Service Bureau)
1036 SOUTH HILL
Phone 821-071

"BOOFIE" SAVIN
Child Lead
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Selected Antiques
Turton's Antique Shop
5611 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Cal.

SHELDON LEWIS
Leads—Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Exquisite Drapes and Parasols from the Orient
Oriental Costume Co.
6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

Frank the Shoe Doctor
"We save your sole and heel you, too"
6666 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3752

HOWARD TRUESDALE
Characters
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

ROBINSON HAS NEW CAR ORDERED

Residents in the neighborhood of Santa Monica Boulevard and La Brea Avenue, Hollywood, were tempted recently to send in a fire alarm when they saw great flames leaping into the night skies. But previous experience had taught them caution, and they decided to investigate first.

One of the most dramatic scenes in "The Good Bad Boy," Bennie Zeidman's current production for Principal Pictures Corporation, is the one in which the boy, played by Joe Butterworth, saves the little girl, Mary Jane Irving, from the burning house. Climbing up over the porch, he drags her out of the flames, through the window, dropping her into the waiting arms below.

But while the actors, staff, Director Eddie Cline and the beholders were intent upon these well controlled flames, a real fire broke out in the other end of the studio lot.

Forest Robinson's shiny new sedan was almost entirely consumed before it was even even discovered. The burning automobile was parked close to the new dressing room buildings, which are the first step in the Principal Pictures Corporation's studio expansion plans. Had it not been for the quick and intelligent action of a pedestrian on Santa Monica Boulevard in front of the studio,great damage would have resulted.

Forest Robinson, owner of the demolished car, plays the important role of the good bad boy's father in the story.

100 Per Cent Titles
100 Per Cent Service
At the Right Price!

Dress up that next production with artistic Hand Lettered Titles made by IRVING W. BUNZE.

If you want Perfect Symbolic Art Backgrounds, let us make them! Neil E. McQuire, formerly with Ince and Prizma, does our art work.

For perfect black-and-white titles, try our PROCESS SYSTEM. A telephone call will bring our representative with samples.

Quality Title & Film Company
1442 Beechwood Drive. Holly 4850

Publicity Spells Success
"Publicity from all angles"
EDITH M. RYAN, 1150 Orange Grove Avenue. Holly 9450

VIRGINIA PEARSON
Feature Woman
Personal Representative
Howard Lichtenstein Co. 432-030

Independent Producers Attention!

THE NEW

ALTRUART STUDIO

CULVER CITY

A most up-to-date studio with complete equipment offers the Independent Producer

Maximum Results at Minimum Cost Co-operation Our Motto
Modern Office Suites Cosy Dressing Rooms Direct Current

PLUS SERVICE

Address Communications to
Ralph DeLacy, Gen'l. Mgr.

6529 Venice Boulevard
Culver City, Calif.

Superlative Quality and Distinguished Service

Years of distinguished service rendered a distinguished clientele have established this as the preferred make-up shop. The list of our patrons is a roster of the foremost artists in the profession, folks who desire the ultimate in hair goods and make-up. The superlative quality inbred in each and every one of our preparations has convinced them of our fitness for our work. All true lovers of fine things will appreciate what we have to offer, and who, perchance, does not appreciate quality and perfection? The popularity of our shop is based on the fact we are offering this better merchandise at a cost not in excess of many preparations of mediocre texture. Here you are assured of complete satisfaction.

Zan, Hair Goods & Make-up

819 South Hill Street Metropolitan 0498

TO------

The Public, The Exhibitor, The Producer, The Technical Staff, The Director, The Artiste, in fact, to EVERYBODY:

OUR TRADE MARK

"The Spirit of the Ages Bearing a Message of Truth on the Wings of Time"

When You See This Trade Mark REMEMBER

RENALLES, Inc.

Now Preparing
"THE ELK'S TOOTH"
A Beautiful Feature Romantic Comedy-Drama of the Great Out-Doors

General Offices and Studio:

6529 Venice Boulevard
CULVER CITY
CALIF.

Also
"THE PURPLE BATH-TUB"
A Novel Two-Reel Feature Situation Comedy by H. A. Swart

"Camera!"
[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]
Los Angeles, California Saturday, September 8, 1923 Price 10 Cents

DAVID WARK GRIFFITH
Whose Latest Triumph,
"The Write Rose,"
is now at Grauman's Theater.

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A.HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

New York Washington, D. C.

Phone 52220

Phone 54847

1001-1005 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles California

Permanent Waving Hair Coloring Bleaching
Hair Dressing Scalp-Facial Massage
Marcel Waving Water Waving Shampooing
Manicuring
Wigs Toupecs Switches Transformations
Wig Rental Beards and Moustaches
Cosmetics
Professional Makeup Service

Special Attention to Theatrical and Motion Picture Profession

No Parking Restrictions

DONNA HALE

Lately featured in "Blarney," a Roy Hughes Production. Now being co-starred with Miles Leavens, in "Riders of the Desert," a Gold Seal Production.

Humboldt 7960M Dunkirk 3153

BOB REEL McKEE

ATHLETIC JUVENILE

6 Feet 170 Pounds

Tel. 577-790

"Camera!"
(The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry)

ESTABLISHED 1918

A Film Magazine and a Film Newspaper in One

6318 Hollywood Boulevard
Hollywood : California

Vol. VI. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1923 No. 21

THE MAN AT THE GATE

Horatius at the bridge trying to save his city from the onrushing hordes of the enemy did not possess half the tenacity ascribed to some of our local studio gatemen. "They Shall Not Pass" was the warcry of the French warriors at Verdun; "Try and Pass" is the warcry at the outer portals of Hollywood's film factories. Recently so many of us have been subjected to indignities, insults, and wise-cracks from these studio centurions that it has come to the point where a word or two anent the present conditions would not be untimely.

The motion picture industry has made many great artistic and technical advancements within the past ten years, but at times it seems that courtesy and diplomacy in the contact it maintains with the outside world has been submerged—sacrificed on the altar of "business." A studio is a place of business, it is the campaign headquarters of the cinema art, and as such it should maintain on its personnel people who are in harmony with the trend of things pertaining to film production, people who are working at the studio because they are really interested in the making of motion pictures, and not because it offers them a job at so many dollars per week or because it gives them an opportunity to make pests of themselves.

The other evening we had the pleasure of discussing this enigma with a man who has been a member of the profession for ten years or more, who has been with the industry since its inception. During the course of the conversation, he gave full vent to many of the thoughts that were in our own mind at the time. To quote him in part: "It's absurd! We have an appointment with some one at the studio to discuss business matters. Upon our arrival we are confronted by some hard-boiled person at the gate who demands to know our name, age, residence, birthplace, and past history, before he will deign to convey our name to the gentleman with whom we have the appointment. Maybe he is out for a few minutes, and we are greeted by a sharp 'Mr. So-and-So's out; no, can't let you in; who are you, anyway; what do you want with him? Wal, thas alright, but I don't know who you are! Beat it!' To a person who has been a respected member of the profession for a number of years, or one who is at the studio on a matter of vital importance, this treatment is exceedingly discourteous and uncalled for, to say the least. It shows neglect on the part of someone, and should be remedied immediately, if the industry hopes to maintain the respect of those with whom it maintains business relations. Many a heart-sick, weary actor or actress has been turned away from a studio where probably there was something worth while in store, by this sort of greeting from a twenty-dollar-a-week gateman."

This industry has specialized for some time in perfecting various phases of its production, and it is now high time that it spent some time perfecting conditions at the gate. What we need at the entrance to a studio is someone who is patient, tolerant, and understanding; someone who can differentiate between the people who come to gaze and gossip and those who are there on real missions of vital import to themselves and to the studio. It is a matter of good business, if not one of goodwill and courtesy. The present reincarnations of Horatius are a serious detriment to cinema success. Put some one there who is capable of handling people of all types, one who can use diplomacy and tact, and he will begin to pay dividends immediately. Make the position a little broader in scope, make it worthwhile in importance and in monetary remuneration. The gateman can be an asset to the studio staff. A change will mean increased goodwill, increased efficiency and expansion; it will save many a heartache among the people of the profession, who should be accorded courteous treatment in their relations with the studios.

439-869

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON
Publisher and Manager.

JOHN CORNYN
Advertising Manager.

GENE WOOLWAY
Studio Representative.

FRED W. FOX
Advertising Copy.

RUTH TANEYHILL
Pulse Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

$3.50 per year in Los Angeles County.
$4.00 per year in Outside Zone.
$4.50 to Canada.
$5.00 to Foreign Points.

H. H. CONGER COMPANY
Nat'l Adv. Rep.
New York Chicago
San Francisco

Issued on Saturday afternoon of each week at 6318 Hollywood Blvd., in Los Angeles, Calif. Telephone 439-869.

Entered as second-class matter, Aug. 11, 1918, at the Post Office at Los Angeles, Cal., under Act of March 3rd, 1879.

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Broken Wing"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

"Spice of 1922"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

Jack Hoxie
in
"Two Fisted Jefferson"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

William Russell
in
"Alias the West Wind"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

John Gilbert-Estelle Taylor
in
"A California Romance"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Goldfish"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

Milton Sills
in
"Legally Dead"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

Zane Grey's
"The Lone Star Ranger"

This Week's Theatre Notes

Have you seen motion picture stars on the screen and reflected that you could do as well if you had the chance?

Have you stood before your mirror and gazed at yourself, confident that you were never meant to hide your talents as housewife, clerk, banker or a belle of a small town?

Have you been tempted to steal away some dark night and buy a ticket to Hollywood, the gateway to fame and fortune?

If you have had any of these experiences, be sure and see the James Cruze production, "Hollywood." You'll get a real kick out of watching the heroine and her family tackle Hollywood. All your favorite stars are in the film, and the studios, boulevards, beaches, homes of the famous ones are on view, and altogether, "Hollywood," now at Grauman's Rialto, is one of the most enjoyable photoplays ever sent forth from Hollywood.

Registering one of the biggest hits of the local theatrical season, Marjorie Rambeau begins the fourth week of her engagement at the Majestic Theatre in "The Goldfish."

Miss Rambeau has always held a warm spot in the hearts of local theatre patrons of the spoken stage and in her present engagement is adding still further to her reputation as an actress and to her popularity.

Excellent support is accorded the star by Lawrence Grant, Richard Tucker, Robert Adams, John Steppling, Roland Bottomley, Willard Jensen, Auda Due, Geraldine Blair and Marie Baker.

One of the biggest programs since its opening is at Grauman's Metropolitan Theatre for this week.

Theodore Kosloff, famous Russian dancer, ballet master and screen star, brings his nine tauntlessly trained ballet dancers in his famous presentation of "Valse Triste," which created a furore when presented recently in San Francisco.

Max Fischer's famous orchestra will offer snappy jazz music.

The feature picture is William DeMille's production, "The Marriage Maker," said to be his greatest achievement. The picture features Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Charles de Roche, Mary Astor and Robert Agnew.

Jazz dancing in its most riotous form and administered by its originator, Frisco, himself, will feature this week's bill at the Hillstreet theatre. Frisco, with Loretta McDermott and Eddie Cox, will offer a number of dances, not all of the jazz type. Frisco is known as the most imitated dancer on the American stage; it was he who made a cigar and a derby a necessary part of every eccentric dancer's wardrobe.

The Sylvester Family will also be on the bill. Corrine Tilton, whose impersonations and songs have made her a favorite everywhere, will also be on the bill. Harry Breen, the chap who turns out melodies and songs while you wait, and sings them, too, is another feature. David Poole, the famous English ventriloquist, who comes here direct from Australia, will offer, with the assistance of Johnny Green, his act, "The School of Scandalous Scholars." Completing the vaudeville program will be Mlle. Terpsichore, the international dancer. The feature photoplay showing will be John Gilbert and Estelle Taylor in "A California Romance." Other features will be Allan Hall and the Tiny Symphony, the last chapter of "The Eagle's Talons," a Fox-Sunshine comedy, "Apple Sauce," Hillstreet International News and Aesop's Fables.

After playing to the largest crowds in the history of a first-run motion picture theater in Los Angeles, the Selznick production of "Rupert of Henzau" goes into the Alhambra Theater today for a continuation of the run.

Arrangements were made to immediately play this sequel to the "Prisoner of Zenda" on the Alhambra screen. Romance and adventure, love and loyalty, sword clashing and intrigue, pomp and ceremony, all abound in "Rupert of Hentzau," which is one of the most spectacular romances of the year.

Those who play the leading roles are Elaine Hammerstein, Bert Lytell, Lew Cody, Claire Windsor, Hobart Bosworth, Bryant Washburn, Marjorie Daw, Mitchell Lewis, Adolphe Menjou, Elmo Lincoln, Irving Cummings, Josephine Crowell, Nigel de Brullier, and Gertrude Astor.

Buster Keaton has graduated from the two, three and four-reelers and today the initial multiple-reel comedy which the frozen faced comedian has made for Joseph M. Schenck is being shown at Loew's State Theater.

"Three Ages," which is the name of this Joseph M. Schenck production, is Buster's answer to the insistent demand of this thousands of admirers for a multiple-reel comedy. Buster has taken as his theme the progress of the world, arguing that a comparison of the three ages will convince anyone that in every manner the earth is a more habitable place now than it was before, and that the strides of civilization have resulted in a tremendous improvement in the health, prosperity and happiness of all mankind. The cast includes Kewpie Morgan, Wallace Beery, Marguerite Leahy, the English beauty, and Joe Roberts. The production was directed by Eddie Kline.

California
Main at Eighth

Hobart Bosworth
in
"The Eternal Three"

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Rex Beach's
"The Spoilers"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

William DeMille's
"The Marriage Maker"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Buster Keaton
in
"Three Ages"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

James Cruze's
"Hollywood"

THE COLISEUM

"Wayfarer"

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

D. W. Griffith's
"The White Rose"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

Lew Cody
in
"Rupert of Hentzau"

Hollywood Egyptia
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden

"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mary Philbin
and Norman Kerry in
"Merry Go Round"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

Jackie Coogan
in
"Circus Days"

Charles Chaplin's Production to Open Criterion

The initial cinema presentation at the Criterion Theater in Los Angeles, formerly the Cinema Theater, which is now being transformed by West Coast Theaters, Inc., into a magnificent two-a-day house—will be Charles Chaplin's production, "A Woman of Paris."

Announcement of the closing of contracts for this picture was made by Harry C. Arthur, Jr., general manager, and David Bershon, booking manager for the West Coast Theaters, Inc., and by Arthur W. Kelley, in charge of the picture for Mr. Chaplin. The presentation will occur towards the end of September, the exact date not having been finally settled, owing to the uncertainty of the completion of the renovating and re-decorating of the Criterion.

The theater is undergoing a most tremendous change, thousands of dollars being spent by West Coast Theaters, Inc., executives, to make the Criterion the most beautiful motion picture presentation house in America.

The entire Los Angeles motion picture colony is more than anxious for a glimpse of the Chaplin picture. Working for almost an entire year on the story written by himself, Chaplin is said to have given Edna Purviance her first opportunity for a display of her dramatic talents. Others in the cast who will make a sensation in the film world, according to those given the privilege of witnessing the production, are Adolphe Menjou, Carl Miller and Lydia Knott.

In line with their decision to secure only the very best of talent for the Criterion Theater, executives of West Coast Theaters, Inc., through Harry Arthur, opened negotiations with Adolf Tandler, formerly the famous conductor of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, to take charge of the orchestra at the Criterion Theater and contracts were successfully closed, whereby Mr. Tandler will take over the directorship of this important symphonic aggregation. Tandler is the first conductor of a symphony orchestra who has ever been engaged to lead the musical body of a motion picture theater, and when the announcement was made in the Los Angeles papers, the musical critics all commented upon the wisdom of the executives' choice in no uncertain manner. Critics expressed their delight in witnessing the notable advance in the art conception of motion picture presentations and expressed their hope that executives of West Coast Theaters, Inc., would reap a full harvest for their wise move in engaging Tandler, who is tremendously popular in Los Angeles.

The opening of the Criterion Theater will probably occur around the first of October, and the motion picture colony of Los Angeles will have the opportunity of then witnessing the famous and much talked of Chaplin picture. The prices for the opening night will range from $2 to $10. It will be the most exclusive event of the social and film history of Los Angeles. Already dozens of letters have poured into the Criterion office, requesting seat reservations. Prominent motion picture producers and exhibitors from all over the United States will be in Los Angeles for the opening and hundreds of famous stars are reserving the first week in October for the premiere attendance.

The theater itself is being entirely re-constructed on the inside; hundreds of luxurious loge chairs are being placed on the lower floor and gorgeous and expensive drapes and tapestries placed on the walls in order to give the house every aspect of aristocracy of warmth. Special equipment is now being placed in the projection room and the lighting and ventilating systems are being re-inspected and thoroughly improved by a corps of experts in this particular line.

From U to You

By WILL C. MURPHEY

"The Near Lady" is the title of the picture which the Universal Pictures Corporation is producing, starring Gladys Walton, and it is a Frank R. Adams Cosmopolitan magazine story, with the writer's well known humor and deft characterizations. Herbert Blache is directing. He made "The Untameable" and "The Wild Party," the last two pictures in which Miss Walton appeared before going on a vacation trip to Honolulu.

Otis Harlan, Pierre Gendron, Kate Price, Florence Drew, Emmett King, Henrietta Floyd and other players of high artistic repute have the supporting roles with Miss Walton. Jack Sullivan is assisting Blache.

While Clarence L. Brown, assisted by Dwinelle Benthal, Edward Schroeder, Charles Dorian and others, is editing and titling his recently completed Universal-Jewel production, "The Acquittal," preparations are under way for his next effort, an all-star Jewel filming of "The Signal Tower," a Wadsworth Camp short story selected by E. H. O'Brien for his "Best Short Stories of 1921."

"The Acquittal" is an all-star picturization of Rita Weiman's stage piece which was such an impressive success in New York and London. Norman Kerry, Claire Windsor, Barbara Bedford, Harry Mestayer, Charles Wellsley, Hayden Stevenson, Richard Travers and others have the principal roles. It is a story of a sensational murder trial. The next production will offer a decided contrast.

"The Signal Tower" will have an elaborate staging. The story is that of two signal tower operators on a railroad, one married and the other in love with the first man's wife—a unique triangular situation. The very elements of the plot will be a compelling feature of the film version of "The Signal Tower," and a great deal will be expected of it.

"The Six-Fifty," a story of farm life adapted to the screen from Kate McLaurin's stage play, is receiving its final editing at Universal City and in this stage gives promise of making

(Continued on Page 19)

Roy Stewart, whose splendid portrayal of western characters has established him in the hearts of all lovers of out-door pictures, but no more firmly than his generosity and good-fellowship have settled him in the hearts of his associates.

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Sept 3, 1923.—Mrs. Mitchell Lewis motored to San Francisco on Friday to join her husband, who is playing a leading role in the Graf production of "Half-a-Dollar Bill," being filmed at San Mateo. As Mitchell's part in the picture is almost finished, they expect to motor back to Los Angeles in a few days.

Jay Morley, and "Tiny" Sandford, both of the cast of the Gerson Picture Corporation, drove to Los Angeles last Monday for a few days' visit with their families. The actual shooting of the first of the series of five-reel pictures being made by the organization was finished a week ago. The film is being titled and cut, and will be released to the state right market September 15th. Work on the second film of the series will begin in a week. Ora Carew will again be the featured player, with Jay Morley, Hal Stevens, "Tiny" Sandford in the cast.

Mercita Esmond, who is in San Francisco as a member of "The First Year" company, is almost as well known to the screen as in the spoken drama, as she has played in many Eastern made pictures. Miss Esmond is being showered with wires of "welcome to Hollywood," from the best known stars of the film world, and many invitations for her to stay in the South. "The First Year" company goes from here to Los Angeles in two more weeks, where they will open for several weeks.

A. H. Snow, of "Hunting Wild Game In Africa" fame, his son Sidney and their wives returned from the North on the S.S. Bufort on Friday. They have been engaged in a picture making expedition to Alaska and the far North, under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce, and are returning with some very interesting film of the wild life, and animals of the far northern country.

John Gunnison, Mr. Anna Q. Nilsson, is spending the week end at the St. Francis with his wife, who is playing the leading feminine role in "Half-a-Dollar Bill," being made at the Pacific Studios.

Ray Moore, location director for Goldwyn, is enjoying a few days holiday in San Francisco, en route from Shasta County, where he was having a little well earned rest.

Alec Francis finished his part in the Graf film last week and returned to Los Angeles. It is reported that while in San Francisco, he purchased a ring to be used in a forthcoming event. Yes, it was a wedding ring.

A. L. Jaffe, president of the Fisher Productions, has returned from his trip to New York, and gone to Los Angeles for a few days. Victor Fisher is still in New York, where, it is reported, he is organizing his own releasing organization to handle "Youth Triumphant" and future pictures made by the company.

Jeanne MacPherson is a week-end guest at the St. Francis, having come to San Francisco on a brief holiday after her strenuous labors on the "Ten Commandments," with Cecil De Mille.

Jack Holt, his wife and family, have spent several days in San Francisco, on a pleasure and business trip, and expect to return south shortly.

Douglas MacLean, well known to the film world, was among those present several days last week.

Hilton Chipman, manager of the San Francisco branch of the West Coast Productions, announces the arrival last Monday from the South of Magda Dagmarova, Russian actress, and Lynwood Crystal Rapp, child player, to play leading parts in the company's production of "Nobody's Child." Actual shooting on the picture began on Monday last at the Pacific Studios at San Mateo, under the direction of Norbert Myles. Several of the other leading players will arrive within a few days, and a number of the small parts will be played by local talent. This is the first of a series of pictures to be produced here under Chipman's management.

Alla Nazimova will remain a second week as the headliner at the Orpheum Theatre. Her one-act drama, "Collusion," has been very well received, her acting has lost nothing from her sojourn in the silent drama, and her accent, once very noticeable, has almost disappeared. Herbert Heyes, who made many friends here as a visiting star at the Alcazar Theatre, is her leading man, and gives an excellent performance.

"Half-a-Dollar Bill, being made by the Graf Productions, is making most satisfactory progress. The work at the Pacific Studios is almost completed, also some location work across the bay, and this week most of the company will set sail for a voyage to sea on a sailing ship, to film the real sea-going part of the story. Let's hope that they won't be sea sick, for they expect to be gone from dry land about a week or ten days. Cameo, dog-star, has done some fine work in the picture, and a local bulldog, the property of a taxi driver, has also won many laurels for himself.

CASTS OF THE WEEK

Joseph M. Schenck
presents
CONSTANCE TALMADGE
in
"THE DANGEROUS MAID"
Directed by Victor Heerman
Photographed by Glen MacWilliams.
Story by Willard Mack.
CAST:

Constance Talmadge	Wilson Hummel
Conway Tearle	Kenneth Gibson
Morgan Wallace	Anna May
Tully Marshall	Kate Price
Marjorie Daw	Thomas Ricketts
Charles Gerrard	Philip Dunham
Lou Morrison	Jack Dillon
Otto Matiesen	Ray Hallor

Chas. R. Seeling Productions
present
GEORGE LARKIN
in
"THE APACHE DANCER"
Directed by Chas. R. Seeling
Photographed by Edgar Lyons.
Story by Jeanne Poe.
CAST:

Apache Dancer	George Larkin
Helen Wayne	Marie Newell
John Wayne	George Williams
Nita Jo	Ollie Kirby
Count Nevair	Julian Rivero
George Armand	Lew Carter
Louis Gagnoix	Scotty McGee

RUPERT JULIAN
who directed
"Merry-Go-Round"

CASTS OF THE WEEK

Wm. Fox Presents Buck Jones, in
"BIG DAN"
Directed by Wm. Wellman.
Continuity by Fred and Fanny Hatton.
CAST:

Buck Jones	Dan O'Hara
Marion Nixon	Dora Allen
Ben Hendricks	Cyclone Morgan
Trilby Clark	Mazie William
Jacqueline Gadsdon	Mary McGu
Chas. Coleman	Doc Snyder
Lydia Yeaman	Aunt Kate Wals
Monte Collins	Tom Wals
Chas. Smiley	Father Quin
Harry Lonsdale	Stephen Allen
Mattie Peters	Ophel
J .P. Lockney	Capt. May
Jack Herrick	Muggs Murph

Bryant Washburn Productions, Inc.
presents
BRYANT WASHBURN
in
"TRY AND GET IT"
Adapted to the screen by J. Furthman.
Directed by Cullen B. Taite.
Assistant Director. R. Asher.
Cameraman, Kenneth MacLean.
CAST:

Bryant Washburn	Joseph Kilgour
Billie Dove	Rose Dione
Edward Horton	Carl Stockdale
Lionel Belmore	Hazel Deane

The Other Fellows Point of View

By Mail

he Editor of Camera!
Hollywood, California.

y Dear Sir:

I read with a great deal of interest, not unixed with astonishment, in the current issue our esteemed Camera! an article entitled, How Much is Acting Worth?"

Mr. Conway Tearle, admirable artist (I use e word in its highest sense) though he is, is, in my humble opinion, not proved his ntention.

There is a distinction with a very great difrence between "actor" and artist—whether be a mere reader of lines in the spoken ama or the finished pantomimist on the reen. Of course, if Mr. Tearle is speaking om a coldly commercial basis, he is doubtless ght.

I am going to be so bold as to state that e large public that support motion pictures l over the civilized world is not always disiminating when it comes to a comparison beveen what we may for convenience sake call popular pictorial type," or a real flesh and ood artist with a heart and brain. The conant shout of "type" has proved sometimes a vo-edged sword to the producer.

What has made American films the admiraon, and I may say, the envy of other counies, has been that the producer, taking his ourage and his bank-roll in both hands, has one out and engaged the best possible talent every department, realizing that above evything else he is showing the product of his nergy and enterprise to the judgment of a Vorld Court.

Comparisons are odious things, and should ever be made. But what is that subtle omething" that makes one artist so immeasrably greater and more compelling than anher? It is something, Mr. Editor, that you I or the greatest critic of histrionic ability n never answer. The philosopher has said hus: "If a man make a better mousetrap ian his neighbor, the world will beat a pathay to his door."

Very sincerely yours,
WYNDHAM STANDING.

By Phone

With an actor coming out with the declaration that $500 a week is the limit that should be paid for the actual physical labor employed in the task of translating emotions to the screen, the question arose at the Writers' Club as to exactly what value might be placed on the services of the original writer of motion pictures.

"The thought and labor employed during two or three or four weeks of originating or adapting a story for the screen, is not the real measure by which price should be gauged. The writer, in evolving his story, is putting into it the knowledge gained in years of expensive travel and observation—the fruits of years of study and experience during which there has been little or no reward for his efforts. The author has had to take a high school, college, post-graduate, and post-post-graduate course in his art.

"The story is, after all, the backbone of the picture, rather than the settings, etc. The producer is willing to spend unlimited money for production, even up to paying $50,000 for a stage play or book, the theme of which is afterward thrown away, and the title, too, in some cases. But he is not willing to pay a writer the same amount, which would afford that writer plenty of time to evolve a real story adapted for screen purposes. When the time comes when screen writers are assured sufficient compensation to enable them to spend as much time and pains on the creation of a screen story, as a playwright or author spends on his work, then motion pictures will have met the public demand for bigger and better presentations."

By Wire

Lloyd Hughes, popular leading man for Mary Pickford, Colleen Moore and other celebrities, takes issue with the recently published Camera! statements of Conway Tearle, to the effect that physical acting is not worth a larger salary than $500 weekly.

Mr. Hughes says: "While I respect Mr. Tearle as one of the greatest actors on the screen today, as well as one of the best 'box-office' attractions of his class, I do not agree with him when he says acting is worth no larger salary than $500 per week.

"Acting is as much an art as writing, painting or any other creative force. The art of others of his class are capable of, is a creative work. To create a great characterization such as Mr. Tearle did in 'Ashes of Vengeance,' such as Ernest Torrance did in 'The Covered Wagon' and such as Lon Chaney did in 'The Miracle Man,' is to present a work of art that must compel 'box-office power,' regardless of whether or not the person who performs such a characterization has ever been heard of before.

"Art cannot be measured by a yard stick and therefore, it is not possible to set a fixed maximum worth on acting talent itself. While the point is well taken that an actor is generally worth as much as his drawing power, yet, even if an actor has absolutely no drawing power and can create a characterization that will 'make' a production, that actor, through his acting talents, is worth much more to the producer than $500 a week."

George D. Baker, well known director and producer, gives his views to this argument: "In the first place, a finished artist who has been schooled to picture work can save a producer thousands of dollars during the filming of a production, because of his knowledge of the intimate mechanics of his profession, and an employer who is not willing to share this saving with the actor is indeed an unappreciative executive. Although I do not advocate the outrageous salaries that some few stars are supposed to receive, I surely am in favor of paying an actor what he is worth, both from the viewpoint of ability and experience and also from the angle of box-office drawing power."

The Bright Future of a Comedian

Edward Horton, who has just completed ork in the title role of "Ruggles of Red ap," a James Cruze production, has been enaged to play one of the big roles in Bryant Vashburn's first production for Grand-Asher, ntatively titled "Try and Get It," an adaptaon by Jules Furthman of Eugene P. Lyle's ory, "The Ring-Tailed Gallawampus."

Mr. Horton has also appeared in the Jess obbins series of productions with much sucess. He is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., and as educated at Oberlin College, in Ohio, and fterward at Columbia University. It was here he took an active part in dramatics with he Columbia Players. He went almost dirctly to the stage from college and his first ork was with musical shows and light peras.

"My songs always brought a laugh," said Horton, "but it couldn't have been altogether y magnificent voice—it must have been my ppearance! I know that when, leading a mob f 'supers,' I would come down and demand, 'What means this wild alarum,' it invariably got a big round of mirth, even if it was intended to be a very serious moment!

"So I went to Louis Mann, who gave me a chance in various parts in one-night-stand attractions. He told me that I would make a wonderful laundryman or truck driver, that my acting was beyond criticism—that is to say, it couldn't be described in fitting terms that would be fit to print.

"So I went into stock and played everywhere, from Portland, Maine, to Portland, Oregon. The people always declared I reminded them of someone they knew—possibly the village idiot. The greatest laugh I ever got was when I played the leading part in 'A Fool There Was.' Inasmuch at it was a very dramatic role, I didn't feel as highly complimented as I might, had it been a comedy part.

"I decided I was fitted only for light comedy. I tried the screen. They looked at me and said that it must be my voice that had given me a reputation, and as there were no talking movies just then, they felt I would be miscast for the silent drama.

"But Jess Robbins saw possibilities and after I had done a season of stock in Los Angeles, I went with him for a picture. To my surprise, it was successful, and then I learned that for a year they had slated me to play 'Ruggles.' That's done—and they tell me it is all right.

"And now Mr. Washburn has chosen me for the part of Glen Collins in his delightful comedy-drama. It's a great part!

"For the rest," continued Mr. Horton, "I am six feet tall, not married, dark and weigh 165 pounds. I love mountain climbing and swimming. I don't care if I never handle another golf club, but I do like golf clothes. And that's that."

En passant we might remark that Mr. Horton's modesty is only excelled by his talented renditions. He is really one of the cleverest light comedy actors on either stage or screen today.

News and Gossip About the Moving Throngs of Movieland

CONTENTMENT AT LAST

Conway Tearle should be made a member of the L. A. Chamber of Commerce.

For years he has appeared exclusively in Eastern made productions. He was one of the few celebrities who stuck to the New York and Fort Lee studios while all others came to Hollywood.

Then came a contract that brought Mr. Tearle here—and he's been boosting Los Angeles ever since.

In fact, he "sold" everyone he knew upon the merits of California including his wife, Adele Rowland, famous vaudeville star who has now arrived here and has turned down repeatedly contracts to resume her work on the stage.

The reunion of the Tearles took many weeks to culminate. "Come West," wired Mr. Tearle to his wife some months ago. "Come East," was Mrs. Tearle's telegraphic reply. Movie contracts kept Mr. Tearle in Los Angeles—as well as the climate. Vaudevile contracts kept Adele Rowland in the East.

Then came her usual summer vacation. The Long Island residence of the Tearles was closed, furniture shipped West and now Adele Rowland has joined the "boosters club' for even tempting theatrical offers will not take her away.

WEARS BANDIT LIEUTENANT W'ARDROBE

When Pancho Villa was the terror of the American-Mexican border he had a trusted lieutenant whose name was Jesus Guttierez. Senor Guttierez was reported killed almost as many times as the famous bandit leader. Whether he is dead or not, is a matter of conjecture, but an incident that occurred during the filming of Edwin Carewe's production of "The Bad Man" for First National, seems to bear out the fact that he is no more on this earth.

In "The Bad Man," Holbrook Blinn, in the title role has a trusted lieutenant. "Pedro," which is played by Peter Venzuella, is a Mexican and understands the language and is rather familiar with the modern history of his country.

When he was cast for the part, Edwin Carewe, the director, instructed him as to his costume. He went to a Los Angeles costuming firm and picked a suit of leather, prettily trimmed and showing traces of much wear. He examined it and found written in the coat "Jesus Guttierez."

Venzuella knew the name. He investigated. He found that one of the buyers had purchased the suit from an itinerant Mexican. sute line unless it be side-chops, Sid has Venzuella believes that it is a suit that once belond to the bandit lieutenant.

As far as his death is concerned, there are several holes in the costume that could have been made by bullets. They go through the left breast and pass out the back.

"Let's kiss and make-up," Wesley Barry said to the little freckled girl who plays opposite him in the Warner picture, "The Printer's Devil," after a slight disagreement.

"If you're careful I won't have to," she replied coyly. Whereupon the entire studio did an about-face until the osculatory operation had been performed.

SID DOES A STRAIGHT

For the first time in his whole screen career Sidney Chaplin is appearing in a picture without a moustache. His moustache-less appearance is in "Her Temporary Husband," a First National farce comedy, being directed by John McDermott. Sid is portraying a comedy butler and, as no honest-to-goodness butler is ever seen with anything in the hirsute line unless it be side-chops, Sid has been compelled to pack his trick moustache in cold storage for the time being. In "Her Temporary Husband" Sid's face is to be seen in its natural state, sans bushes, and this has its penalties, according to the brother of the famous Charles. No longer can he mingle among his fellow men, incognito, unknown and unrecognized. Heretofore, he felt at liberty, he says, to do what he pleased, even to picking a chicken bone with his fingers in a restaurant without being pointed out as a horrible example of moviedom. Now his face is going to be known to picture patrons all over the country and, as Sid expresses it, he has got to watch his step.

That the truly successful screen artist actually "feels" the part which he is portraying is illustrated in the following incident which happened during the filming recently of "Flaming Youth," aat the United Studios. Although it was a warm, sunshiny afternoon, the script called for a cold wintry night and Director John Dillon had instructed his players to say something natural, sort of in harmony with the general order of things, so when Milton Sills and Elliott Dexter, playing the principal male roles, stepped out of the mansion, the orchestra on the set was playing "Jingle Bells." One of them turned to Jack Fowler, who played the character role of the Butler, saying, "It's very cold; I wish you good night." Mr. Fowler replied in the affirmative and unconsciously adding, "and I wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

J. C. (JACK) FOWLER

HAROLD SHAW DIRECTS ANOTHER METRO SPECIAL

Dust is not permitted to gather on the directorial megaphone of Harold Shaw. Scarcely finished with "Held to Answer," featuring House Peters, he has been assigned the direction of "The Living Past," by Production Manager Milton E. Hoffman.

"The Living Past" is the screen adaptation of "The Tale of Triona," written by William J. Locke, author of "The Beloved Vagabond" and other widely read novels. England and Russia furnish the locale of the story.

Mr. Shaw is especially fitted to direct this William Locke story due to his long experience in filming pictures abroad. He devoted ten years to directing pictures in England, on the continent and in South Africa. He directed several productions in Russia and took advantage of the opportunity to study that country's people and their customs.

The task of securing an adequate cast will be begun immediately upon the completion of the continuity.

NO SHORTAGE OF PLAYERS SAYS LLOYD HUGHES

"Stories that have been printed nationally to the effect that there is a shortage of actors in Hollywood are pure bunk," says Lloyd Hughes, popular actor who is in close touch with the situation of players in the film colony.

"The circulation of such information to movie aspirants throughout the country has swelled the ranks of prospective players in Hollywood to such an extent that hundreds of disappointments are experienced every week among those who want to get a start.

"The example that has been made to illustrate this contention of acting talent shortage, namely the fact that a number of players have been appearing in three and four productions at the same time is no indication of the real situation. There are a certain number of players, particularly character men who are in great demand among producers here and who would be called upon to appear in more than one picture at a time even during dull seasons. The fact that an actor appears in four pictures in one week is no indication of a shortage of players. It merely indicates that he is in demand, generally because of his box-office value and no amount of new talent here would change this condition.

"It is unfair to those who want to break in to infer that parts are going begging in Hollywood. On the other hand, it merely results in making new enemies for filmdom among persons who come here and meet with disappointment."

ON THE SENNETT LOT

Roy Del Ruth has started another two-reel laugh film for Mack Sennett with an all-star cast. We can't tell the name of the new picture as yet, but there will be a number of feminine charmers in abbreviated costumes some clever animals and a cracker-jack story behind it all. Del Ruth has been going great for the past year and if the next comedy compares favorably with those he has already completed for Sennett, admirers of this type of picture have something to look forward to.

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1923

Officers Are the Guests of Ince

Before one of the most distinguished audiences ever assembled to witness the filming of a motion picture scene, a spectacular sequence showing the flooding of the stoke hole of a sinking steamship was "shot" at the Thomas H. Ince studios recently. The screening of the scene, which occurs at the climax of Ince's screen adaptation of "Anna Christie," Eugene O'Neill's stage success, was witnessed by thirty-six distinguished Britons, the officers and crew of the yacht, "Frontiersman," which is circling the globe to chart a round-the-world flight to be made by two British aviators, Captains Norman McMillan and G. H. Malins.

The "gentleman's crew" of the yacht, including six aces of the Royal Air Force, naval and army officers, scientists and writers, were the guests of the Adventurers' Club of Los Angeles at a dinner at the Ince studios preceding the specially arranged entertainment. Choice delicacies from every section of the Pacific coast were contributed for the feast to which many prominent Americans also were invited.

A specially built set reproducing a London "pub" used in the filming of another scene of "Anna Christie" was the background for the dinner. And the distinguished guests, instead of coming in dinner coats and resplendent uniforms arrived in the uniform of the "Frontiersman," a blue flannel shirt, flannel trousers and a broad belt. The guests, who are manning the yacht and doing all its work from cooking to stoking as a lark expressed special appreciation of the opportunity to witness the filming of a scene from "Anna Christie" as the play recently enjoyed a sensational run in London where it was acclaimed the greatest American drama of the decade.

William Russell, Blanche Sweet and George Marion have the leading roles of the picture which will be released by First National this fall.

Mr. Harry A. Swart, whose success as a magazine writer has attracted the attention of the local writers' colony, has accepted the position as editor-in-chief with Renalles, Inc. He is now busy supervising the preparation of a novel two-reel feature situation comedy, "The Purple Bath Tub," of which he is the author, and is also giving his spare moments to the supervision of the many manuscripts that are pouring into the office.

Awarded First National Contract

Ben Lyon, young New York leading man who was brought West by Associated First National to appear with Colleen Moore in "Flaming Youth," has been placed under a long term contract by that company.

The signing of the young player was the first official act of Richard A. Rowland, general manager of First National, who has just arrived from New York to confer with First National directors and affiliated producers.

The contract given Lyon is understood to be a reward recognizing his admirable work with Colleen Moore and the all-star cast of "Flaming Youth." That production has just been completed under the direction of John Francis Dillon and was previewed at the studio by Mr. Rowland and other executives. Lyon portrays the role of "Monty Standish," a difficult characterization.

To what forthcoming production he will be assigned has not been determined.

Just out of his 'teens, Lyon is nevertheless a veteran in stage and screen experience. He began playing boy parts seven years ago and became a juvenile leading man with the World Film Company when he was almost as much an infant as the industry.

Leaving the screen for advantageous stage offers he appeared in thirty-two stock productions and played leads in such successes as "Mary the Third," "The Wonderful Thing" and Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen."

A New Talmadge Picture Soon

Constance Talmadge, the star of "The Dangerous Maid," made it plain last week that hereafter no books, stage plays, or stories will be altered to fit her.

"I believe that a good story should not be changed to fit a star," Constance declares. "I would rather see it interpreted by a well balanced cast of leading players. After all, the story is the thing and I think the public resents revolutionary alterations in books or stories which they have enjoyed reading.

"I think the star should adapt him or herself to the story, rather than have the story cut up to fit the star. Of course, sometimes very necessary changes must be made when stage plays or books are adapted to the screen. And these changes generally make the stage or book better screen material. But insofar as the roles are concerned, I think that most stars of any prominence would prefer to essay new interpretations than to make their roles invariably conform to their personalities."

Constance Talmadge has just finished work in "The Dangerous Maid," a Joseph M. Schenck production which was directed by Victor Heerman for future First National release.

Eddie Phillips, who is playing the sympathetic juvenile role with Wesley Barry in the Warner Brothers' production of George M. Cohan's great stage hit, "George Washington, Jr.", has been signed for a leading role in a picture to be produced by William Sistrom at the Hollywood Studios. J. P. McGowan will direct.

"Mary Anne" Is Mabel's Next

With Mabel Normand, F. Richard Jones has begun preparations for the production of the little star's next vehicle, to be known as "Mary Anne." This too, like her previous successes, will be photographed from an original story by Mack Sennett.

While Miss Normand is giving her attention to the wardrobe and other details which will be of particular interest to her, Mack Sennett and Dick Jones are selecting character types for portrayal of the principal roles.

Dick Jones is making arrangements for a trip to San Francisco in quest for location sites.

After reading the story of "Mary Anne" and her part in it, Miss Normand was most enthusiastic, claiming that the role she will be called upon to portray is greatly to her liking and exactly the character she has long wanted to do. If his schedule is not interrupted in any way, Mack Sennett will start production on "Mary Anne" the latter part of September or immediately following the premiere of "The Extra Girl," Miss Normand's recently completed vehicle, which is coming to the Mission Theatre.

The Sennett Studio will soon be a veritable animal farm if they continue to introduce new animals with each comedy. To the already large miscellaneous accumulation of dogs, cats, bears and chimpanzee, to say nothing of the several hundred ducks and a cow, a newer, bigger beast was signed up for a featured part in "Flip Flops," the next Roy Del Ruth comedy. The newcomer is a elephant of enormous size.

Cameraman The Author of a New Film

Productions of South America, a big new film company which is backed by the Peruvian Government and has exclusive motion picture rights in Peru, announces the launching of its first production, "The White Queen," in Los Angeles. The story was written and put into continuity by Don Robert Catlin, short-story writer, world wanderer, and cameraman. This is the first instance in motion picture history in which a regular feature production was written and adapted by the company cameraman.

Incidentally, "The White Queen" is Mr. Catlin's first direct screen story and first continuity, his only experience in photoplay writing having been with an extension course given by the Palmer Photoplay Corporation. The picture is to be directed by J. Barstow Budworth, president of the organization, and after the first episode it is to be filmed in the locale of the story, two deserted Inca cities and the mountains and jungles of Peru.

Camera work on "The White Queen" started this week, and three other pictures by other units of the company begin immediately. One is an adaptation by Mr. Catlin of a magazine story, "The Web of the Sun," another is an O. Henry story, and the third is an original, all laid in Peru, but starting in the United States. Mr. Catlin, other members of the production staffs, and a large troupe of well-known players, have signed five-year contracts, and go to producing headquarters in Peru after preliminary work here. Charlotte du Puis, a new French star, will have her American premiere in "The White Queen."

JOINS LLOYD CAST

Clara Bow, a brunette Brooklyn high school athlete, 17 years of age, has been selected by Frank Lloyd, noted independent screen producer, from 50 flapper types, to essay the role of Janet Oglethorpe in his production of "Black Oxen" Gertrude Atherton's current best seller, soon to be released as a First National picture.

Miss Bow has appeared on the screen but twice, in "Down to the Sea in Ships" and "Maytime" and has been permitted to play in "Black Oxen" through the courtesy of B. P. Schulberg, who, realizing the girl's screen talent shortly after she arrived in Hollywood as the winner of a Fame and Fortune Contest, signed her to a long term contract.

Gala Day on the Talmadge Set

A million dollar quartette!

Norma Talmadge entertained four of her famous leading men at tea on the set at the United Studios last week, where she is appearing in "Dust of Desire," a drama of the Algerian Sahara.

It was a chance party. Eugene O'Brien, who was Norma's leading man in "The Voice From the Minaret," came out from the Los Angeles theatre where he is playing. Norma introduced O'Brien to Joseph Schildkraut, the famous Continental star, who is being featured in her current production.

While the three were talking in came Jack Mulhall with Constance Talmadge. Mulhall recently finished work as Constance's leading man in "Dulcy." Incidentally, he was Norma's leading man in "Within the Law."

The three leading men and Norma and Constance sat down to tea together on a quiet part of the set while the co-directors, Chester Franklin and Frances Marion, were filming hundreds of Arabs in a nearby cafe interior.

The party was about half finished when Conway Tearle came along the dressing room tier of stage six with his valet. It was Tearle's intention to clean out the dressing room which he used while appearing in Norma's "Ashes of Vengeance" and Constance's "The Dangerous Maid." But Mulhall headed him off and invited him over to the reunion.

"Here we are," said Mulhall, "four Jacks and a Queen."

"Hold it for a still," shouted Shirley Martin, Norma's veteran photographer.

Dallas Fitzgerald, well known director, has been, unfortunately, obliged to tender his resignation on the board of directors of Renalles, Inc., owing to pressure of business in connection with his own productions, the Dallas Fitzgerald Productions, Inc. At a special meeting of the Renalles, Inc., board of directors, his resignation was reluctantly accepted, with sincere expressions of hope that at some future date Mr. Fitzgerald could see his way clear to again become closely identified with the corporation, and a vote of good wishes for Mr. Fitzgerald's success in his venture was adopted.

MABEL FORREST STARRED

Mabel Forrest, who was co-star with Bryant Washburn in two feature pictures for Grand-Asher, one of which has just been released and the other recently completed, will star in her own picture "The Satin Girl," a Ben Wilson production for Grand-Asher. The two she has just finished are "Mine to Keep" and "The Love Trap" and she is now working on "Other Men's Daughters," the third of the Ben Wilson productions.

Moore Has Strange Malady Professor Gives Advice

Owen Moore, playing a leading role in "Her Temporary Husband," a new First National picture, remarked during the conversation with a college professor: "There seemed to be a general overhanging depression of late."

"Certainly, certainly," replied Prof. Purvoy-Gearson. "It is to be expected. I marvel that the studios attempt to go on with their work during this pre-eclipse period." Moore asked the professor what he meant.

"It is not strange," Moore was told. "Eclipsitus has stricken communities before. It comes just before the sun's eclipse and tends to depress life on the earth where the eclipse will be most marked.

"In Ecuador during the eclipse of 1882 thousands of natives became afflicted with a strange malady which scientists have since diagnosed as a psychological depression with a profound physical reaction due entirely to the phenomenon."

"Shadows of any origin are naturally depressing. It is scientific to deduct that an eclipse, casting a complete shadow of the sun, will darken life beneath it; the spirits of the people will deaden with lassitude. Psychologically, it can be traced to an instinct suffered prehistorically when the people had no understanding of heavenly bodies. They held superstitious fears that the world was coming to an end. This superstition has survived enlightenment that has come with civilization.

"The depression comes from psychological suggestion," the professor concluded.

Moore passed the information to Chuck Reisner and George Cooper, villains of the picture, and they, feeling villainous in real life, too, set about to "suggest" the entire lot into "eclipsitus."

As a result John McDermott, director, was compelled to put the two "heavies" to work in order to hold up the morale of his cast.

Sydney Chaplin proved to be an apt patient and took to "eclipsitus" readily, while Sylvia Breamer beamed with gratitude for she said she had been puzzled over her depression.

Nevertheless, it is well to know that this feeling of gloom comes from atmospheric conditions caused by the coming eclipse and if you want to go to the ball game don't tell the boss your grandmother died. Tell him you have "eclipsitus."

Ford to Aid the Pickford Forces

Another new member has been added to the Mary Pickford organization in the person of Starrett Ford, who will be production manager on "Dorothy Vernon." Ford comes to Miss Pickford from the Metro company, where he was in charge of production activities on "The Four Horsemen," "Conquering Power," "Turn to the Right," "Prisoner of Zenda," "Trifling Women" and others. He is a veteran of the business, having started his work in pictures with Cecil DeMille in 1913, remaining there until 1917, when he went to France to help chase the Germans out.

KILGOUR WITH WASHBURN

Joseph Kilgour, one of the best known character actors in the profession, has been signed by Bryant Washburn to appear in his first production for Grand-Asher, tentatively titled "Try and Get It," directed by Cullen B. Tate.

Mr. Kilgour has recently completed the role of Constant Lippiatt in "Ponjola" and was cast for the heavy role of Osgood in "The Woman with Four Faces," a Paramount picture featuring Betty Compson and Richard Dix.

Neilan Is Home to Direct Mary

Marshall Neilan is in Los Angeles, having just returned from New York to direct Mary Pickford in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" upon which she will commence work as soon as sets now under construction are complete.

This will be the first time they have worked together since Miss Pickford did "Daddy Long Legs," her first independent production.

The first camera tests were taken early this week by Charles Rosher, who just photographed "Tiger Rose," the Warner Brothers production starring Lenore Ulrich.

Preparatory work started on "Dorothy Vernon" almost a year ago, but Miss Pickford's plan to film the story then was altered and, under the direction of Ernst Lubitsch, she did her current offering, "Rosita," which opened at the Lyric theater in New York last week.

It is expected that at least 14 weeks will be required for the "cinemizing" of "Dorothy Vernon."

Monty Banks has just started his thirteenth two-reel comedy for Grand-Asher, title yet unchosen.

Sid Smith is taking a short rest prior to starting the first of his new series of two-reel comedies for Grand-Asher.

Von Stroheim Is Released On Bail

Erich von Stroheim, heading Goldwyn's expedition into Death Valley, where he is filming final scenes of "Greed," was arrested by the Inyo County game warden for shooting 28 wild ducks out of season, according to a telegram received at the studio. The director shot the ducks, he said, because his expedition of forty persons needed the fresh meat.

Von Stroheim was ordered to discontinue picture-making to appear in court at Independence, a three-day trip over 90 miles of rough salt deposits and difficult desert trails.

However, when the director explained that the terrific heat had spoiled the canned meats taken on the adventurous trip, and that his big expedition had been more than six days without fresh meat, the game warden accepted a $500 bond to insure his court appearance.

Thermometer readings where von Stroheim has camped for making the scenes of the picture range from 120 to 130 degrees, and the tremendous heat saps vitality to such an extent that meat, he says, is necessary.

The ducks were shot near a spring used by the birds as a watering place, and great flocks, flying over the desert, nearly always may be found near the water.

The company has been on the blazing floor of Death Valley itself for more than a week. It has been three weeks since the big caravan left Lone Pine to head in on what is undoubtedly the most daring picture making expedition ever attempted. Death Valley Scotty is one of the caravan's guides.

START THE BAND

Ankle braces are in demand by members of the King Vidor company, who recently returned from Florida where scenes were made for the screen version of Joseph Hergesheimer's novel, "Wild Oranges."

Four members of the troupe returned with injured ankles. Virginia Valli was severely cut on the ankle by a jagged piece of coral while swimming in the St. John's river. King Vidor sprained the ligaments in his foot when he fell through some rotten planking on an old wharf. Ford Sterling's ankle was badly twisted when his foot caught in an anchor rope, while filming scenes aboard a yacht. Jimmy Dugan, production manager, fell through a hatchway on the yacht and sprained his right ankle.

The sight of the four members limping on the set is a signal for the company orchestra to play "The March of the Wooden Soldiers."

Trimble's Tips for Lovers of Dog

Laurence Trimble, director and trainer of the wonder-dog, Strongheart, who has just finished his latest starring vehicle, "The Love Master," declares there is one point in the feeding of animals which is of vital necessity and that very few dog owners are aware of it.

"Most people know," declares Trimble, one of the foremost authorities on dogs in the United States, "that a certain amount of raw meat should be given every dog if he is to be kept in proper condition. What they do not know is that occasionally this raw meat should be alive—a chicken or rabbit.

"Occasionally, some of my eighteen timber wolves—which are only wild dogs if you stop to consider—become pepless and mopey. Then I know it is time to give them some live meat and their next feeding is live rabbits or chickens.

"Eating the animal, feathers or fur and all as the case may be, is an immediate aid to digestion. This is also true of your dog and at least once every month Strongheart is given a rabbit or chicken.

"There is one generally accredited theory concerning wolves which I have thoroughly disproven and that is that a timber wolf must make his own kill or he will not touch his food. I have found that wolves will eat as readily out of your hand as will a dog. The only drawback is they must first trust the man who feeds them.

"I have often been asked how wolves differ from dogs and the answer is 'They don't.' Treat them as dogs and they will respond as dogs, for what are they but the original dog. They are just wild, that's all. One of the finest dogs I ever owned, judged from the standpoint of a pet, is a full grown timber wolf."

13-YEAR-OLD STAR

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is going to school from sunrise to sunset since his advent in pictures.

In his first starring picture, "Stephen Steps Out," he plays the role of a school boy and many of the scenes of the story are filmed in the class room. Before starting his screen work in the morning and after finishing it in late afternoon, young Doug puts in some strenuous periods of work with his own tutor in order to keep abreast of his real school work.

Joseph Henabery is directing Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in this adaptation for Paramount by Edfrid Bingham of Richard Harding Davis' "The Grand Cross of the Crescent." Theodore Roberts is featured and the supporting cast is headed by Noah Beery, Harry Myers and Frank Currier.

Marion Fairfax Secured By the First National

Marion Fairfax, noted playwright and screen writer, has joined the First National scenario staff at the United Studios.

The acquisition of Miss Fairfax to the writing department follows closely the engagement of Holman Day, famous author, who was signed last week by First National to become advisory counsel in the same department.

The noted woman writer will write original stories and adaptations of popular plays and stories contracted for by First National for release during the Fall and Winter months.

The engagement of Miss Fairfax will make the scenario department of First National one of the strongest and most talented on the West Coast.

Miss Fairfax was the author of successful stage plays before she turned her attention to the screen several years ago. She became a screen writer while the motion picture industry was still in its infancy and has to her credit many of the biggest productions. Among her most noted successes were "The River's End," "Valley of the Giants," "The Honor of His House," and "Love Insurance."

She is in excellent company in the First National story department.

Holman Day is the author of more than a thousand short stories and thirty novels, while Charles O. Hoyt has enjoyed fame as the author of many successes in drama and literature.

Record Time Is Made by Hughes

"Finished." That word written across the script of Rupert Hughes' "Law Against Law," at the Goldwyn studios this week, told an eloquent story of a production completed in almost record time. Approximately six weeks ago Major Hughes began production on his new picture, written directly for the screen. The filming was expedited when "Giant Geyser" erupted the first day of what had been expected to be a nine weeks' location stay in Yellowstone National Park waiting for an eruption. The film has gone to the cutting room in preparation for an early release.

"Law Against Law," deals with the conflicting divorce laws by which a man may be married in one state and single in another. An all-star cast includes Lew Cody, Helene Chadwick, Carmel Myers, George Walsh, Hedda Hopper, Dale Fuller, Rush Hughes, Marjorie Bonner, William Orlamond, Victor Potel, Kathleen Key, Robert DeVilbiss, Virginia Loomis, Howard Tuesdale, Hughie Mack and other prominent players.

HOLLYWOOD LEGION?

Tom O'Brien, who is playing the heavy in the F. B. O. production, "Born of the Cyclone," the screen adaptation of the recent New York stage success, "A Daughter of the Storm," has one all-consuming ambition. It is to meet Reginald Denny, Universal star and boxer of parts, in the squared circle for the boxing title of the picture colony at Hollywood. Before becoming an actor, O'Brien was professional boxer, cowboy and Royal Northwest Mounted Policeman.

Lillian's Newest Picture Has Premiere

The film version of "The White Sister," starring Miss Lillian Gish, had its premiere at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre this week. The picture was directed by Henry King who achieved distinction in directing Richard Barthelmess in "Tol'able David" and other recent successes of that young star. The company spent seven months in Italy making this picture and it is believed to be Miss Gish's greatest screen achievement.

Miss Gish takes the role of the "white sister" in which Miss Viola Allen scored one of her greatest triumphs on the speaking stage. In this part Miss Gish plays a role entirely different from anything she has ever been seen in. The picture was made through the cooperation of the Italian government and church authorities who united in extending every facility to give the correct interpretation and atmosphere for the different episodes in the story.

The company was fortunate in being in Italy at the time that Vesuvius erupted and was able to get many scenes showing the fiery mountain discharging its streams of lava down its sides and wiping out towns and vineyards. Among the numerous unusual scenes are episodes taken in the deserts of Africa where the company worked while the Italian soldiers were engaged in putting down the recent insurrections of the natives of Algiers against the Italian government.

Ronald Colman, who was loaned, is Miss Gish's leading man and she is supported by Gail Kane, J. Barney Sherry and Charles Lane.

Kirkwood on Way to Complete Recovery

Due to the serious condition of James Kirkwood, who suffered a fracture of the brain when thrown from his horse at the Beverly Hills riding ring a week ago, it will be necessary for King Vidor, Goldwyn director, to select a new leading man for "Wild Oranges," the screen version of the popular Joseph Hergesheimer novel, in which Kirkwood was playing the leading role.

The day before the accident Kirkwood returned with the Vidor troupe from Florida, where location scenes were taken for the picture. Since the accident the company has been taking the scenes in which Mr. Kirkwood does not appear. Vidor is considering several actors for the part, but as yet has not made a decision The scenes in which Kirkwood played will be eliminated. Goldwyn officials are considering the feasibility of sending the company back to Florida to remake these scenes with a new leading man.

"Mr. Kirkwood has recovered consciousness and is doing very nicely." This is the latest report from the actor's bedside. According to Dr. R. B. Griffith, attending physician, Kirkwood will not be able to resume work for at least five weeks.

Frances De Kressier Brady, more popularly known among her friends as "Frankie" Brady, has accepted the position as chief reader with Renalles, Inc. At present she is combining with her duties that of private secretary to Clarke Renalle and collaborating with him on a special de luxe edition of a novelized version of the detailed synopsis of the forthcoming big feature production, "The Elk's Tooth," complimentary copies of which will be sent to every lodge, not only in the United States, but to the affiliated associations of Canada, upon the request of a large number of prominent officials, who are evincing a great interest in the story, on account of its dealing principally with the life and habitats of the few remaining elks in this country. Mrs. Brady is a writer of well-known reputation and her collaboration in the department of which she has taken charge should be of valuable service to the corporation.

James Morrison is en route to Hollywood from New York where he but recently finished work in Vitagraph's version of the one-time popular ballad "On the Banks of the Wabash." On his journey homeward, Morrison will visit a number of the larger cities supporting racing stables in the interest of the Southern California Jockey Club of Culver City, of which organization he is an ardent booster.

King Company Is On Way to Rome

The departure of Henry King, the director, together with the heads of the technical departments of the Inspiration studios for Rome means that the production of the motion picture, "Romola," based on George Eliot's novel, in which both Lillian and Dorothy Gish will appear, will begin very shortly.

One part of the unit has already sailed for Italy. This included William Powell who plays the part of Tito, Charles Lane, character man, Joseph Boyle, assistant director, and Roy Overbaugh, camera man. Among those whose departure is scheduled for early in September to join the unit in Italy, are Ronald Colman who will be Miss Gish's leading man, and Herbert Grimwood who will play the part of Savanarola.

POPULAR ACTRESS TO REMAIN HERE

Evelyn Brent, who has just completed leading roles in "Held to Answer" and "Loving Lies," has adopted Hollywood as her permanent home.

Miss Brent made her decision yesterday when she cabled a refusal to an offer of a long term theatrical contract in England, where she has a particularly large following resulting from her two and a half years on the stage and before the camera.

For several days Miss Brent has been trying to make a decision on the theatrical offer which would establish her as a stage star in her own right in England. Several motion picture contracts which are now under negotiation decided the matter for Miss Brent. Signatures will be affixed on one contract within the next few days which will offer a realization of one of Miss Brent's pet ambitions, namely to portray a heavy emotional character many years older than her own age.

"Triumph" DeMille's Next

Cecil B. DeMille will follow his recently completed production of "The Ten Commandments" which Jeanie Macpherson wrote for Paramount with a screen presentation of "Triumph," the Saturday Evening Post story by May Edington, is one of the important news announcements of the week from Paramount's West Coast production headquarters.

WITH RUPERT HUGHES

Evelyn Sherman, well known portrayer of Spanish roles, just finished a sympathetic mother role in "Trilby," and is now playing a haughty society dame in "Law Against Law" which Rupert Hughes is directing at the Goldwyn studios.

New Barthelmess Picture Starts

The name of Richard Barthelmess's new starring vehicle which he has commenced work on at the Fort Lee studio with John S. Robertson directing, is "Twenty-one." This is the film version of the celebrated novel, "Wild Apples," by Grace MacGowan Cooke and Alice MacGowan. The story deals with the struggles of a boy whose father and mother have different views as to how he shall be brought up and who are out of step with each other. It depicts the struggles of a youth brought up under such circumstances to throw off a yoke that keeps him checked.

Dorothy Mackaill, who was Mr. Barthelmess's leading lady in "The Fighting Blade," is again playing opposite him, having the distinction of being the first ingenue to play opposite Mr. Barthelmess in more than one picture since he became a star.

SARGENT DOES "FLIP-FLOPS"

Lewis Sargent, well known juvenile leading man and a comedian of no mean ability, has been recently signed by Mack Sennett to play the lead in "Flip-Flops," a forthcoming two-reel comedy with an all-star cast, in which Alberta Vaughn will have the principal female role. The new picture will be directed by Del Ruth. Both story and continuity were prepared by the director and Mel Brown under the supervision of the producer. Teddy Stevens, who has been assisting Dick Jones in the production of Mabel Normand's starring vehicle, will act in the capacity of assistant director to Del Ruth. With this combination behind the cameras, it is expected "Flip-Flops" will be one of the greatest gloom-chasers Sennett has produced in a long time.

Dorothy Phillips is turning over her domestic and social duties and invitations to her housekeeper and secretary for consideration in anticipation of a busy season at the studios. Her initial engagement of the Fall season will be with John Stahl in a stellar role of the elaborate production, "Why Men Leave Home," a dramatic production.

Charles "Buck" Jones will be known as "Big Dan" for the next few weeks at least this is the title of the picture he is now filming for William Fox. It has been a long time indeed since the big fellow donned his hair pants and wide brimmed hat but it is announced that "Buck" will return to his first love—high class Western features—ere long.

Tucker Talks on the Future of Flying

Harland Tucker, who plays the role of the aviator in "The Broken Wing" at the Morosco Theater, declares that the first vacation of six months that he decides to take, he is going to an aviation school and learn to pilot a machine.

"Not because of my disastrous experience in 'The Broken Wing'," he declares, "but because some day I have an ambition to own my own plane."

"In another ten years I believe airplanes will be as cheap and as numerous as automobiles now are," he further prophesies, "and if they are, we can all afford the flivver type."

"It is natural that men should take to the air, especially since so many thousands of motor cars are jamming the boulevards.

"The ponderous means of passenger locomotion now in vogue will seem as antiquated fifty years from now as a coach-and-four seems to us.

"Steam and electric trains will be used for freight, ships for ocean travel and freight, motor cars for short distance and huge airplanes for journeying across countries and for crossing the smaller bodies of water.

"Men of only moderate means will own their own planes and if they are suburbanites, they will probably fly to work, parking their planes on the tops of flat buildings or in public hangars that will be built just outside the business districts of all large cities."

Mr. Tucker comes of a family noted for its far sightedness, so he may be right.

WASHBURN AND SHIRK GOING EAST

Adam Hull Shirk, scenario editor for Grand-Asher will leave shortly for New York City. With him will come Bryant Washburn and Mabel Forrest. The purpose of the trip is a conference with F. Heath Cobb and Mindret Loeb of the New York office, to determine what books shall be used in Bryant Washburn's 1924 program for Grand-Asher.

Messrs. Cobb and Loeb have been carefully combing the market searching for books and plays which will when produced at the Grand Studio, reflect the principle of conservatism and common sense which has already been established. To protect the exhibitor and the public, nothing spectacular, weird or awe-inspiring is considered, but a concerted effort is made to obtain plays in which a strong element of human interest may be injected.

Cost Great Many Dollars Per Foot

Will the study of the feet of movie celebrities prevent future divorces?

That the discovery of one's "sole mate" is possible through impressions of the feet and that pitfalls of marital unhappiness can be avoided by reading the character clearly indicated by a person's sole, is the contention of Dr. F. F. Hayden, noted New York chiropodist.

"The feet are more of an index of character than most people are aware of," says Dr. Hayden. "For instance, the girl of low arches in many cases will be found to be cruel and exacting.

"Also, avoid a flat-footed girl with fallen arches as she is usually in poor health. The flat-foot, with all of the toes crowded together by high heels and pointed shoes, indicates a shallow person who prefers jazz and cafe life to the more substantial pleasures of life."

Helene Chadwick, popular film star, who recently insured her feet for $20,000, is pointed out by Dr. Hayden as offering an illustration of a normal woman's feet. "Perfect alignment shown in Miss Chadwick's pedographs indicates a sunny disposition, with a predelection for the normal pleasures of life."

Miss Chadwick's feet are pointed out to reveal, in addition to a high mental development, a perfect physique.

Dr. Hayden has inspected the feet of 500 young women students at the Kansas University, where he found only two perfect specimens, one pair being those of a Chinese girl.

A trip to any of the beaches where the fairest daughters of the country are wont to disport themselves, will convince the most skeptical that there is room for great improvement in the average foot, declares the eminent chiropodist.

Divorces both in the motion picture colony and in other circles throughout the country are gaining in number every year. In proportion, the movie colony is not experiencing any greater number of divorces than indicated in any other walks of life. However, the prominence of the film celebrities results in their divorces being broadcast to a greater extent than divorces of persons in other fields of endeavor.

It might pay those who contemplate matrimony to take Dr. Hayden's tip.

Find your "sole mate" before you select him or her for your "Soul Mate."

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

Lieutenant T. G. Berrien, U.S. N., first vice-president of Renalles, Inc., writes: "Have been detailed for special duty in Shanghai and Chinese waters, to take a series of pictures dealing with navy life in Asiatic Stations. The photographic value and scenic beauty so far strikes me as being remarkably adaptable for the big Asiatic story we talked over before I left, and am hoping to send you in the near future views and notes of native life, etc., that I am sure you will find of inestimable value."

Spottiswood Aitken is portraying a ship captain in I. W. Irving's production, "Trapped."

Fred Esmelton has a great opportunity for high class comedy work in Johnnie Hines' "Conductor 1492" for Warner Bros.

With the selection of Vincent McDermott and Frank Richardson as the first two of his directorial assistants, and Byron Haskins as head cinematographer, Allen Holubar has begun the choice of his production aides. McDermott is from the directorial staff of Vitagraph; Richardson has just returned from Europe, where he made several pictures, while Byron Haskins is one of the best known cameramen on the coast.

Holubar will first do "The Human Mill," adapted from "The Bishop of Cottontown," a well-known novel by John Trotwood Moore. His second production will be "Life's Highway," from the stage play, "East of Suez," by E. Lloyd Sheldon, and his third story is "Robes of Redemption," by Jane Hurrle.

Hal Mohr, who photographed "Bag and Baggage," Finis Fox's latest photoplay, will head the battery of cameramen who will photograph Choice Productions, Inc., next special. Ray June, who filmed "Satan's Secret" for Choice, has returned to J. K. McDonald's fold.

William V. Mong will doubtless appear in two cinema productions at the same time this month. Anyway he has been proffered two attractive contracts bearing the same dates and both producers have given the famed character actor permission to "double in brass." Mong will announce his future affiliations within the next ten days, he says.

Jane Novak, starring in Chester Bennett productions, has just received a fan letter from Iceland.

King Baggot began his career as a stage actor, then he became a screen actor, then a director, and later started writing the stories for his own direction. Recently a producer who saw Baggot's latest Baby Peggy Universal-Jewel "Whose Baby Are You," liked the story Baggot had created so well that he suggested that the director come with his organization as the head of the scenario department at a salary considerably higher than even the one he is receiving now.

FAMILY REUNION

Fred Caldwell, producer and director of a two-reel series of Hollywood pictures after a two weeks trip to New York, where plans were made for the distribution of this series, left last night for North Carolina, where he will visit his mother before returning to the coast.

Joe Rock has just completed his twelfth two-reeler for Grand-Asher, title yet unchosen. He will take a short rest before starting work on his new series in which he will star with Charlie Murray.

Jean Hersholt Exhibits His Paintings in San Francisco

The artistic ability of Jean Hersholt, who plays the role of Marcus Schouler in the Goldwyn picture, "Greed," is not confined to acting. He is a painter of note as well, having had exhibitions in Copenhagen, Denmark, his native city, and in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. The latest showing of his brush and pen work was held in art galleries in San Francisco.

The exhibition included oil paintings and pen and ink drawings. The former consisted of portraits, still life and landscapes; the latter were black and white studies, in the manner of etchings, of ZaSu Pitts, as the Trina of "Greed," Erich von Stroheim, the director, and himself as Marcus Schouler.

Formerly Local Stock Player

It certainly is strange how a girl, after appearing in a number of dramatic plays before the footlights, would turn out to be one of the screen's most popular comediennes. Such is the case, however, with Dorothea Wolbert, who for the past several years has been creating mirth for the entertainment of motion picture audiences. Before entering film work, Miss Wolbert was in stock at the Morosco and the old Burbank theatres in Los Angeles, where she played in such well known plays as "The Lion and the Mouse," "A Widow by Proxy" and many others. When Universal offered her a contract to appear in pictures, she gave up stage work. At first she played dramatic roles, but later she developed a liking for comedy characterizations and it is this type of role that she has since portrayed most successfully.

BELMORE TO PORTRAY DIFFICULT CHARACTER

Lionel Belmore, long and favorably known for both stage and screen interpretations, is the latest member of Bryant Washburn's cast for his first production to be released by Grand-Asher, temporarily titled, "Try and Get It," adapted from the Saturday Evening Post story, "The Ring-Tailed Gallawampus."

Mr. Belmore has appeared in many big productions in character roles and has a role in this film, which Cullen B. Tate is directing, which suits his personality to a "T." It is that of Timothy Perrin, a coal dealer, between whom and Larry Donovan, played by Joseph Kilgour, a great friendship exists, only shadowed by a certain disagreement which, whenever it comes to the surface, takes on the aspect of a feud.

Mr. Belmore is highly delighted with the part, to which he will bring much unction and the experience of long years in the portrayal of striking and lifelike characters.

As a result of the remarkable success scored by Richard Dix as "Jean Isbel," the leading role in "To The Last Man," a Zane Grey production for Paramount, this talented star has been cast for the leading part in Grey's most recent story, "The Call of the Canyon," and is now on location with his director and the other members of the company near Flagstaff, Arizona. Dix expects to be away for six or seven weeks.

Al St. John is as yet reveling amid "Peace and Quiet," his forthcoming two-reel fun provoker for Fox. The comedy star wrote the story and he asserts that it is so funny that he almost "passed out" with laughter while penning it. A notable cast of funsters support Al in "Peace and Quiet" and Bennie Stoloff is associated with St. John in the direction of the picture.

Irving Cummings has completed his cast for his forthcoming Universal special, "My Mamie Rose," an adaptation of Owen Kildare's novel. Mary Philbin and Pat O'Malley will have the leading roles in the picture.

Dale Fuller has completed another complex character role in "Law Against Law," the Rupert Hughes-Goldwyn production that has attracted so much attention. But recently the well known character artists completed work in Von Stroheim's production of "Greed" and prior to that essayed one of the principal parts in "Merry Go Round," a recent special release.

LASKY COMPANY IN ARIZONA

Director Victor Fleming, heading a cast and staff of approximately forty people, are in Flagstaff, Arizona, where several weeks will be spent filming the exterior scenes in the Zane Grey production "The Call of the Canyon," for Paramount.

Richard Dix and Lois Wilson are featured in this production with Noah Beery, Ricardo Cortez and Charles Ogle in support. Although the city of Flagstaff will serve as a base for the company, actual work will carry the company many miles into the adjoining Arizona country.

MRS. JACK HOLT ILL

Jack Holt, who recently completed one of the featured roles in William de Mille's latest Paramount picture, "The Marriage Maker," is now in Portland, Ore., where he was called by the sudden illness of Mrs. Holt.

STARS TO RETURN SOON

Pola Negri and Herbert Brenon, star and producing director, will return to Paramount's West Coast studio from their respective vacations early in September to begin work at once on Miss Negri's next Paramount picture, "My Man."

The star has been enjoying her vacation at the Grand Canyon and Del Monte following the completion of "The Spanish Dancer." Brenon, who produced this picture, is now in New York where he attended the wedding of his niece. Charles de Roche, who will play the leading masculine role in "My Man" has also been enjoying his first vacation in many months following the completion of his role in William de Mille's "The Marriage Maker."

Brick Enright, known as one of the best film editors, will start his new duties as gag-man on the set with Del Lord, when the director begins his next comedy special, starring Ben Turpin, with Irene Lentz as ingenue lead. Harry Gribbon, Jack Richardson and Buddy Ross will also play important parts in the picture, which has not as yet been given a title.

Carl Miller has his troubles in being as wealthy as he is in Tourneur's "Jealous Fools." He selected tweeds with broad stripes as being fitting for a wealthy man-about-town to wear.

"Good looking suit," said the assistant director, "but Earl Williams wore one just like that in scenes we just took."

Then Carl appeared later in a dark suit and was told he looked like an undertaker. Now he's more cheerful in serge coat and white flannel trousers.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

Creighton Hale, returned from San Francisco where he completed an engagement of three months in a leading role in Goldwyn's "The Judge and the Woman," gathered up his wardrobe at the Culver City plant and faced the camera at the Warner Brothers', where he has another important engagement in the picture tentatively titled "The Marriage Circle," which Ernst Lubitsch will direct. So the actor who arrived in Hollywood the first of the year, when he was immediately signed up, has been kept on the jump, with no vacation in sight.

Tom J. Geraghty, now in Kennebunkport, Maine, with Booth Tarkington, whose original for Thomas Meighan, "Pied Piper Malone," the former adapted for the screen, will make six youthful hearts beat with joy and also contribute a lovely touch to the production. About fifty miles from the author's home is the summer colony and school of the Denishawn dancers, and Mr. Geraghty plans to have six girls appear in a dance sequence. One of the six will be Gladys Geraghty, his young daughter, who is attending the school and specializing in fancy dancing.

Louise Fazenda, since her advent in the Hal E. Roach western, tentatively called "Rex," in which she is cast as "Maggie," the cook, a featured role, for which the Warner Brothers loaned her, has succumbed to a new habit for her —afternoon tea. In the cast are several English actors and as the company, while on location, has its own cook, with the kitchen close to the ranch house where they are working, tea at 4 p.m. has been introduced with great success, for there are always several who are not working, so the custom has been most contagious. Miss Fazenda is now a great booster for a cup of tea, black or green, she cares not.

Theodor von Eltz against a background of wide spaces has been depicting the virile young engineer in "Tiger Rose," the Warner Brothers production. Mr. von Eltz experienced a return to the life primitive in the creation of the role, for he was with those members of the company that went to Tuolumne Meadows Lodge near the Yosemite. Up in the morning at 5 o'clock, for his shots as the surveyor, Mr. von Eltz was photographed on the last day when he made the ascent with director and cameraman, 10,000 feet above sea level. The young actor, who plays opposite Lenore Ulric as her sweetheart, is doing his greatest work in the production.

Ramsey Wallace will be seen in his first role as a "heavy" in Mabel Normand's "The Extra Girl," which is soon to be given its local premier. Wallace was well known to the speaking stage before entering the movies having played in many big Broadway productions.

MacLean Company on Location

Members of the Douglas MacLean company, producing "The Yankee Consul," are in San Francisco to film important location scenes for the comedy-drama. Supporting "Doug" MacLean is a notable cast, headed by Eulalie Jensen and other featured players of like promise. James Horne is directing the picture.

Is Satisfied as Star

Can you picture Dorothy Phillips as a school teacher?

The emotional First National star can be a school marm if she cares to accept the offer made her by an exclusive girls' school in Baltimore, Maryland, her old home town.

Not that Miss Phillips will have to brush up on her three r's and teach readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetic to a bunch of youngsters, but instead she has been asked to conduct courses in dramatic and motion picture acting.

Several pending contracts she has with west coast producers will doubtless prevent her acceptance of the chair of applied cinema art.

Marriage Market Finishes

Final scenes are being taken this week on "The Marriage Market," a sex melodrama de luxe, which Harry Cohn is producing at the Waldorf studios for C. B. C. release. E. J. Le Saint is directing the all-star cast, which includes Jack Mulhall, Pauline Garon, Alice Lake, Shannon Day, Vera Lewis, Mayme Kelso, Kate Lester and Marc Robbins. The play is to be produced from the novelette by Evelyn Campbell.

The rise of Harry Cohn to the position of the youngest producer on the west coast reads like the Horatio Alger stories of boyhood days, where poor youths rose to important positions from humble beginnings.

Harry Cohn, who heads the Waldorf studios and supervises the production of de luxe features, proudly boasts of the fact that his career in pictures began when he received the first feather duster as Carl Laemmle's office boy in the Universal offices in New York.

The honor of creating a new mother role which accents firmness of character rather than sentiment goes to Lydia Knott. Charles Chaplin in his initial role as director of his play, "The Woman of Parts," saw in Miss Knott the type to portray the mother he had in mind and so she was given this big part. That she has risen to the occasion of the confidence imposed in her by Chaplin, is attested to by those who witnessed the preview of the play.

Stage and Screen

Years before the camera and footlights is the only sort of Aladdin lamp used by May Foster to reach the top notch of screenland's character women. Her ability demonstrated as Nancy Subley in "Milestones," as Mrs. Purdy in "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," with Charles Ray, and as an old Chinese woman in "Thundergate," speaks for itself.

Has Collection of Canes

Pat Barnes, of screen and stage fame, isn't a good customer to meet in the dark. He's a collector of canes or walking sticks. One specimen in his collection would keep the most vicious thug at bay. It's a gold handled one, equipped with a long steel fencing blade. It's one of the oldest as well as most valuable canes in Barnes' possession. The cane was made in Barcelona, Spain, and has a handle and tip of gold of exquisite design. In case of necessity the wooden hull may be slipped off, leaving only a finely tempered steel blade, such as was used in the days of old by French cavaliers.

"You can get more fun out of money spent in Hollywood than you can in any other city in the country." So says Howard Truesdell, well known character actor of the screen and legitimate stage. And as Truesdell has spent thirty-five odd years with road companies and big stage plays in the east, he can be considered an authority.

Stanley Tolley, erstwhile banker and now a coming screen favorite, has just returned from a week's vacation at Catalina Island, following his strenuous work at local studios. Although Tolley has been in pictures only a few years, he has received considerable praise for his splendid character delineations in various large productions, his finest work being credited to the role he had in "Trilby."

Talking about talented people in Hollywood, there is one little ingenue screen player who tops the list. Dorothy Chase is her name, and 22 years her age. Not only can she compose poetry "which sells," write publicity that is printed, and play screen roles that register, but likewise admits designing all her own gowns. It would seem that Dorothy doesn't have much idle time on hand. She recently finished work in Jackie Coogan's picture, "Long Live the King."

The Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D. C., has commissioned Erich von Stroheim to make several thousand feet of scenic film in addition to the scenes he is making for "Greed" while in Death Valley.

UNIVERSAL SCENARIO CORPORATION MOVES

The Universal Scenario Corporation, for several years located in the Western Mutual Life Bldg., Third and Hill streets, city, are now in their new offices in the Security Building, on the corner of Santa Monica Blvd. and Western avenue. It is the business of this office to supply stories for motion picture production, from books, plays and the works of the original writer. It also publishes two magazines, The Scenario Bulletin Review and the Bulletin Digest, both of which are devoted to the industry.

Among the stories, many will be found of value to the producer looking for either feature or program material, and a cordial invitation is extended to the producer or director, to visit the offices at any time, where service will be gladly rendered in any way possible to assist you in whatever you may be looking for.

NO GOLF—NO KNICKERS

Victor Potel is promoting a society to prevent the Donning of Golf Knickers by other than devotees to the venerable Scotch game. Vic says that some directors and actors must think that golf clubs are trench digging instruments, if one is to judge from the surface appearance of the Griffith Park course.

"THREE WEEKS" COMES ONCE IN EVERY LIFE

In the life of every man and woman comes a "Three Weeks."

That is the claim of Elinor Glyn, authoress and expert on love, whose most famous novel, "Three Weeks," is now being directed by Alan Crosland for the Goldwyn studios.

Once in every human being's life comes a period of supreme happiness, brought about by love. Every woman, for a time, is "The Lady" and every man is "Paul."

It may last for months—it may last only a few days. But in that time, every person reaches his highest mental and moral point.

One does not know, at the time, that he is experiencing his "Three Weeks."

It is because of this that "Three Weeks" has become the most widely-read novel written in the last fifteen years, Mme. Glyn believes.

Edward Dillon has signed Wallace Beery for the role of "Karlob," one of the most important characters in his production, "The Drums of Jeopardy," starring Elaine Hammerstein which he will direct for Truart.

T. O. D. C. Chief Pays Visit Here

Completion of final details in the formation of a gigantic motion picture co-operative association, patterned after the California Fruit Growers, with a membership of exhibitors, whose theater holdings exceed $20,000,000, is the object of the visit to Los Angeles of Carl Anderson, chairman of the Advisory Committee of the recently launched Theatre Owners' Distributing Corporation.

Anderson is here to confer with various producers, distributors and exhibitors, and will pay particular attention to the independents, whose problems are to receive special notice from the exhibitor organization.

Anderson, who was formerly a Famous Players-Lasky director of distribution, is president of the Anderson Pictures Corporation, which has agreed to handle the distribution for the Theatre Owners' Distributing Corporation.

The new organization has as one of its objects a protest against the fabulous salaries paid to stars and particularly to mere children, which makes the rental costs mount to the exhibitor, and he in turn has to raise the admission charges to the public.

While here Anderson will go into conference with Glenn Harper, secretary of the Southern California Theatre Owners' Association and a member of the national executive committee of exhibitors.

Officers of the new exhibitor-distributing co-operative organization are W. A. True, president; Harry Davis, vice-president; L. J. Dittmar, treasurer; W. D. Buford, secretary; and Sydney S. Cohen, chairman of the board of directors.

Reel, a Real Reel Name

What's in a name? Bob Reel McKee thinks that there is a lot, and believes that a tricky name will go far into bringing him into favor with the public, if present indications are anything to judge by. He has received numerous inquiries and letters since he began advertising his name.

It seems to be the general impression that his is an assumed name. Such, however, is not the case, and it is his bona fide christened name, coming from his great-great-grandfather, who was a pioneer American settler.

He has, however, more than a name in his favor, having an attractive face, strikingly resembling that of Rex Ingram, for whom he has often been mistaken. This, combined with his care-free, easy going manner, suggestive of the late Wally Reid, and the fact that he seems to photograph about 100 per cent of the time, indicate that when given his chance, the public is going to like Bobby Reel.

Hollywood Has a New Casting Directory

The Universal Casting Directory have opened a suite of offices in the Security Bank building, at the corner of Santa Monica Boulevard and Western Avenue. Professionals are invited to visit and examine the policy and efficiency of the Directory.

The publication charges no commissions and promises a wide distribution among the studios in Hollywood. The book is being arranged to attract wide local attention and is heartily endorsed by several film officials. Within its covers will be found names well known to theatre audiences. The policy of the company will be to secure "preferred parts in pictures" for the professional.

ACTOR TURNS DOWN CHANCE TO BE STAR

Following the completion of the role of "Nikky" in "Long Live the King," Jack Coogan, Sr., offered Allan Forrest a two-year contract to appear opposite the young star. At the same time another producing company approached Forrest with an offer to star him in his own production. While he was considering these offers Miss Pickford decided she would like to have him for her leading man in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," upon which she will soon begin production.

After weighing the opportunities presented by all three positions, he decided to accept Miss Pickford's offer. He will be seen in the part of Sir John Manners, which will be one of the most romantic roles of his long career.

Star Returns to the Eastern Stage

Marilyn Miller, wife of Jack Pickford, left Hollywood last week for New York City, after spending three month's vacation on the coast with her actor-husband. Upon her arrival in the East she will commence rehearsing for "Sally," which will open on Broadway September 17th.

Jack Pickford plans to complete his present production, "Valley of the Wolf," during the week and will leave immediately for the East to be present at the reopening of his wife's famous show.

Jack plans to remain in the East and make his future pictures there in order to be with his young wife.

The day before departing for New York City, the birthday of Mrs. Jack Pickford was celebrated. A joint birthday party was held for Mrs. Pickford and Allan Forrest, brother-in-law of Jack's, whose birthday also happens to be on September 1st.

STANDARD FILM PRODUCT INDORSED BY CHAMBER

An official stamp of approval by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce has been accorded the film entitled "The Port or Golden Opportunity," produced by the Standard Film Laboratory for the World Traders of Los Angeles. Members of the chamber's directorate were guests of the World Traders at a preview of the picture, which comprises six reels of scenes at Los Angeles Harbor and views of the industrial, wholesale, retail and residential districts of the city.

Theodore Kosloff Offers Late Classic

California is destined to become the home of the most talented and highly evolved people in the whole world, according to Theodore Kosloff, who is presenting his famous ballet this week at Grauman's Metropolitan Theater.

"I came to California primarily to learn the moving picture business," asserts the noted moving picture star and ballet master, "but I soon learned that here one could do several things and be appreciated.

"The reason for this is because there are so many persons ready to pursue their studies in dancing, music, art, drama, writing or science.

"Learning that I had received my training in the Russian Imperial School, many students who wanted toe dancing came to me for lessons—and I soon discovered that I had a class of exceptional pupils—and that in order to accommodate the large number who wanted my methods, I must open a studio.

"In my studio I was continually amazed at the dancers who are ready for the advanced lessons as taught in the Imperial School—and among this number I have chosen those who have had special training under my direction to appear in the Valse Triste ballet, now at the Metropolitan.

"I do not teach any particular method of dancing—I teach the proper control of the muscles of the body—and the students interpret the music or ideas presented to them.

"This is easy of accomplishment here, for California seems to engender ideas and ideals and the artists do the rest."

Clare West, noted original gown designer, has been working day and night on Norma Talmadge's new fall clothes. Miss West is also designing the costumes worn in "Dust of Desire," Miss Talmadge's new feature for First National release.

Pulse of the Studios

For Weew Starting Monday, September 10

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Wilson	All-Star	Linden-Stevens	Geo. Carter	A. Statter	"Leave It to Gerry"	Editing
Rosson	All-Star	Linden Stevens	Geo. Carter	Staff	"The Satin Girl"	Preparing
Dearholt Productions.
Neva Gerber Productions
Dick Hatton	Neva Gerber	Nobles	La Mece		"The 7th Sheriff"	2nd Week
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Jackson 1900
H. & B. Film Co.
Tenny Wright	All-Star	Bill Beckway			"Tango Trails"	Preparing
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						593576
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 0096
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al Herman	All-Star	Wm. Hyer	Herman	Herman	"The Detective"	Schedule
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 4070
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd.						439-764
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 3100
H. Beaudine	Jim Adams	Paul Garnett	Jim Clemens		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Scott Sidney	Neil Burns	Alex Phillips	Ernest LaVelle		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr.						Drexel 2115
Frederick Bond	All Star	Joe Walker	Hoblitz	Johnson	"Beyond the Veil"	4th Week
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General.
	All-Star		Staff		"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
			Harry A. Swart		"Purple Bath Tub"	Preparing
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd. E. H. Allen, Gen. Mgr. Scotty Cleethorpe, Casting.						598-165
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Mermaid Comedies)
Taurog	Neely Edwards	Meehan	Cullen	Staff	Special	3rd Week
Kerr	All-Star	McGill	Linkoff	Staff	Comedy	3rd Week
Hibbard	All-Star	Corby	Sharpless	Staff	Comedy	1st Week
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Novelty Juveniles)
Ward Hayes	All-Star	Stengler	Linkoff	Staff	Novelty	1st Week
Pratt	Juvenile	McGill	Dewar	Staff	Comedy	1st Week
Lloyd Hamilton Corp. (Educational Release)
FOX STUDIO. James Ryan, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 3000
Edmund Mortimer	John Gilbert	Don Short	McKenzie	John Russel	"The Exiles"	4th Week
Mayo	Stock	Sid Wagner	Jas. Tinling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Jim Summerville	Stock	J. A. Schmidt	Arthur Cohn	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Erle Kenton	Lew Brice	Vic Scheurich	Max Gold		Comedies	Schedule
Seiler-Carruth	Chimpanzees	J. Turner	Mark Sandrich	Staff	"Chinatown"	2nd Week
H. Otto	All Star	Joe August	Wm. Hollingshead	Staff	"Temple of Venus"	Editing
Lambert Hillyer	Tom Mix	D. Clark	Manter	Robt. T. Lee	"A Flyin' Fool"	Editing
Jack Ford	All-Star	Joe August	W. Mayo	John Russell	"Hoodman Blind"	4th Week
Wm. Wellman	Buck Jones	Schneiderman	H. Hough	Fred & Fanny Hatton	"Big Dan"	4th Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 2632
Rocky Mt. Production Co.
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 0051
Metro Release.
GOLD SEAL PRODUCTIONS. A. Rosetti, Studio Mgr.						7405 Roseberry Ave.
Hughes Gravel	Donna Hale	C. Hughes			"Riders of the Desert"	3rd Week
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.						Holly 2693
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	Snowy Baker	Price	Harry Tenbrook	Staff	"Castles in Spain"	Editing
Duke Worne	All-Star	Price	A. Tenbrook	Staff	"Do It Now"	2nd Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 0162
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
H. Edwards	Monte Banks	B. Williams	Goodman	Staff	Comedy	Editing
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Chas. Lamont	Sid Smith	K. MacLean	Rollie Asher	Lamont	"Make It Snappy"	Editing
Joe Rock Productions.
Reggis Morris	Joe Rock	Jerry Ash	Murray Rock	Morris	Comedy	Editing
Bryant Washburn Productions.
Cullen B. Tate	Washburn-Dove	K. MacLean	R. Asher	J. Furthman	"Try and Get It"	3rd Week
Elliott Dexter in R. Wm. Neil Production.
R. Wm. Neil	Dexter Harris	Ray June	Jo Sternberg	Florence Heim	Untitled	3rd Week
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						761711
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStroheim	"Greed"	27th Week
Victor Seastrom	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Chas. Lapworth	Paul Bern	"The Judge and the Woman"	15th Week
Rupert Hughes	All-Star	John Mescall	Albert Kelly	Rupert Hughes	"Law Against Law"	7th Week
King Vidor	All-Star	John Boyle	James Dugan	King Vidor	"Wild Oranges"	5th Week
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6640 Santa Monica Blvd. Wm. Sistrom, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Taylor-Newmeyer	H. Lloyd	Lundin	Bud Golden		"The Girl Expert"	5th Week

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
Irving Productions. W. H. Carr, Production Manager.
Jack O'Brien	All-Star	D. Jennings	Cy Clegg	Frank Beresford	"Trapped"	4th Week
J. K. McDonald Productions.
Renand Hoffman Productions.
Cosmopolitan Productions.
Paul Powell	All-Star	Al. Seigler	Geo. Berthelon	Paul Scholfield	"Mother McGinn'	Final Week
Beverley Productions.
J. P. McGowan	All-Star	Walter Griffin	J. E. MacDonald	Phillip Hurn	"The Whipping Boss"	2nd Week

HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.

Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive. 438-740

Bob Horner	Geo. Chesebro	Elmer Dyer		"The Isles of Paradise"	1st Week

Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.

Seeling	Larkin	Vernon Walker	Kenneth Green	"Chain Lightning"	2nd Week

INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City 761731

Palmer Photoplay Productions.
Cortland Productions
Trimble-Murfin Productions.

Lawrence Trimble	Strongheart	G. B. Dreyer	Cyril Gardner	Donna Barrell	"White Fang"	31st Week

Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.

John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	9th Week

BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting Holly 2814

Jack Blystone	Buster Keaton	E. Lessley-Thorp	Rose	Mitchell	"Hospitality"	11th Week

Lou Anger Productions.

LASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vine St. Holly 2400

Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)

Geo. Melford	All-Star	Ernest Haller	John Boland	Tom Gerahty	"The Light That Failed"	Editing
Al. E. Green	Thos. Meighan	Chas. Clark	Fred J. Robinson	Edfrid Bingham	"Woman-Proof"	7th Week
Jos. Henabery	Doug. Fairbanks, Jr	Saxon Dean	Dick Johnson		"Stephen Steps Out"	7th Week
Cliff Smith	Wm. S. Hart	Warren	Dick Rush	J. G. Hawkes	"Wm. Hart in Wild Bill Hickok"	4th Week
Herb Brennon	Pola Negri	Jos. Howe	H. Schwartz		"My Man"	Preparing
Wm. DeMille	All-Star	Guy Wilky	Geo. Hippard	Clara Berangee	"Every Day Love"	Preparing
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Chas. Clark	Fred Robertson	Jack Cunningham	"Flaming Barriers"	Preparing

Zane Grey Productions.

Victor Fleming	Dix-Wilson	James Howe	Gilroy	Doris Schroeder	"The Call of the Canyon"	5th Week

McNAMARA STUDIOS. 4011 Lankershim Blvd. Lankershim 132-J

MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting. Capitol 2120

Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro Release).

Reginald Barker	All-Star	Percy Hilburn	Harry Schenck	J. G. Hawks	"Cape Cod Folks"	3rd Week
John M. Stahl	All-Star		Sidney Algier	A. G. Younger	"Why Men Leave Home"	2nd Week
Fred Niblo	All-Star	Victor Milner	Doran Cox	B. Meredyth	"Thy Name Is Woman"	Preparing

B. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)

Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
Gasnier	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"Maytime"	5th Week

METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting. Holly 4485

Harold Shaw	All-Star		Nat Natts	Thos. Hopkins	"The Living Past"	Preparing
Victor Schertzinger	All-Star			V. Schertzinger	"Man Whom Life Passed By"	Preparing
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	J. Arnold			"Angel Face Molly"	Preparing

Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Allen Holubar Productions.

Allen Holubar	All-Star	Haskins			"The Human Mill"	Scheduled Sept. 1

NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St. Holly 4470

Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.

J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule

PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 7901

United Artists Release.

Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	10th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford		Held	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	8th Week
	Mary Pickford	Rosher		Staff	"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall"	Preparing

PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica. Holly 2806

Louis Tolhurst				Walter Anthony	Microscopic Motion Pictures	Schedule
Alf. Goulding	Harry Langdon	Albert Breslau	David Smith	Harry Langdon	"A Perfect Nuisance"	Schedule

Benny Zeidman Productions.

Ed Cline	Joe Butterworth	Wm. Marshall	Frank Gerahty	Grey Carr	"The Good Bad Boy"	5th Week

R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St. Holly 7780

Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)

Al Santel	Eddie Hearn		Gilbert Fones	Wyndam Gittens	"The Sand Pile"	Preparing
Lehrman	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"Fighting Blood Series"	Schedule
Emile Chautard	Perdue-Hughes	Jos DuBray	F. Tyler		"Born of the Cyclone"	Editing

Chester Bennett Productions.
Douglas MacLean Productions

Jimmy Horne	Douglas MacLean	Max DuPont	Art Flaven		"The Yankee Consul"	3rd Week

JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr. 6701 Santa Monica Blvd. 579-440

Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting

ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr. 761-721

Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).

Jackman	All-Star	Floyd Jackman	W. L. Guthrie	Staff	Feature	Schedule
P. Pembrooke	Will Rogers	Robt. Doran	Ross Letterman	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Geo. Jeske	Harry Pollard	J. Roach	Clark Hennecke	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Len Powers	Animals	B. Currigan	Greeland	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Bob McGowan	Our Gang	Harry Gerstad	C. Morehouse	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
J. Howe	Stan Laurel	Frank Young	Cruze	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule

ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting. Holly 2176

Phil Rosen	All-Star	Kurrle-Broening	Al. Davis	Francis Marion	"Life of Abraham Lincoln"	Schedule

RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St. 598-141

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
RUSSELL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945
Al. Nietz	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	Preparing
Logan-Baynham Productions.
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. B. Seitz	Ray-Miller	Walker-Moran	Wm. Bertram	Seitz	"The Way of a Man"	Editing
Hercules Film Co.
Jack Nelson	Pawl	McManigal			"Let's Go"	Editing
H. J. Brown Productions
Al. Rogell	Fred Thompson	Ross Fisher			"Running Wild"	3rd Week
Maloford Productions.
Bob Williamson	Leo Maloney	Bataraka	Stratton		Untitled	2nd Week
Granada Productions.
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
Del Lord	All-Star	Blake Wagner		Mack Sennett	Comedy	Schedule
Del Ruth	Ben Turpin			Mack Sennett	Comedy	Schedule
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Louis B. Mayer Productions, Clune's Studio, 5360 Melrose Ave.
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Rose of All the World"	7th Week
Sam E. Rork Productions.
First National Productions.
McDermott Chaplin	All-Star		James Chapin	Wm. Dowlin	"Temporary Marriage"	6th Week
Jack Dillon	All-Star		Jimmy Dunn	Dowlin	"Flaming Youth"	Editing
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Maurice Tourneur	All-Star	Arthur Todd	Scott R. Beal	Fred Myton	"Jealous Fools"	Editing
Frank Lloyd Productions (First National Release)
Frank Lloyd	Griffith-Tearle	Norbert Brodin	Billy Retter	Mary O'Hara	"Black Oxen"	3rd Week
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig, Casting.						433-131
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Wm. Craft	Desmond-Sedgwick		McDonough Kochner		"Beasts of Paradise"	Schedule
Archainbaud	Priscilla Dean		McCarey-Wyler		"The Storm Daughter"	Editing
Herbert Blache	Gladys Walton		Sullivan	Hugh Hoffman	"The Near Lady"	4th Week
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson	Robinson	Clarke	Geo. Plympton	"The Steel Trail"	18th Week
Wm. Parke	Herbert Rawlinson		Dorian		"The Noblest Roman"	Editing
Ed. Laemmle	Billy Sullivan		Regan		"The Leather Pusher Series"	Schedule
Harry Pollard	Reginald Denny		F. Messinger		"The Spice of Life"	4th Week
Irving Cummings	Mary Philbin		Woolstenhume		"My Mamie Rose"	2nd Week
Robt. N. Bradbury	Pete Morrison		Victor Nordlinger		Series 2-Reel Westerns	Schedule
Jess Robbins	Baby Peggy		Arthur		"The Right to Love"	2nd Week
Hobart Menly	All-Star				"The Turmoil"	Preparing
Robert Hill	Herbert Rawlinson		E. Lumley		"All for the Love of Gloria"	Preparing
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Laval Photoplay, Ltd., of Montreal, Canada. L. Ernest Ouimet, Pres and Mgr.
P. Cazeneove	Andre Lafayette	Gene Benoit	Harry Webb		"The Vital Question"	1st Week
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen. Mgr.						598-131
Dave Smith Productions.
Dave Smith	All-Star	D. Smith, Jr.	Bill Dagwell	J. P. Smith	"The Man From Brodneys"	6th Week
Larry Semon Productions.
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 4181
Warner Brothers Productions.
Mal St. Clair	Wesley Barry	E. B. Dupar	Geo. Webster		"George Washington, Jr."	7th Week
Johnny Hines	Johnny Hines	Chas. Gilson	C. Hines-Roth		"Conductor 1492"	7th Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Marsh Gillingwater		Tenny Wright		"Daddies"	2nd Week
Harry Beaumont	John Barrymore	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Beau Brummel"	Sept. 18
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Sidney Franklin	Lenore Ulric	Chas. Rosher	Wm. McGann	Edmund Goulding	"Tiger Rose"	10th Week
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernst Lubitsch	All-Star	Paul Perry	Flood Blanke		"The Marriage Circle"	4th Week
Harry Rapf Productions.
Jack Conway	Monte Blue-Irene Rich	David Abel	Sutherland-Hawkes		"Loveless Marriages"	7th Week
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WILNAT STUDIO. 6090 Sunset Blvd. Al. Brandt, Mgr.						Holly 7940
E. J. Le Saint	All-Star	King Grey	Geo. E. Reehm		"The Marriage Market"	Editing
WORLD EDUCATIONAL FILMS. Box 818, Sta. "C," Los Angeles
Elhason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	"Haunts of Hiawatha"	4th Week

DR. W. L. SCHUSTER
Chiropractor—Nerve Specialist
"Where the sick go to get well"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

WHEN YOU NEED A DOCTOR
Phone 572-88; 430-205, or Hollywood 102-82 and ask for
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Formerly of New York City
6548 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD

ARE YOU IN A HURRY?
CALL
FROM HOLLYWOOD
Universal City $1.00
Culver City $2.00
A
Ambassador Hotel $1.50
Center of Los Angeles....$2.00
All Stations $2.50
TAXI
578-280 SUNSET TAXI 578-307

"Phon-O-Grams"

Edited by Gene Woolway

Alton Brown

Juvenile Leads

578-177

Charlotte DuPuis

Ingenue-Characters

Holly 2570

J. C. (Jack) Fowler

Characters

438-501

Lorraine Eason

Ingenue Leads

575-91

Kenneth Gibson

Juvenile Leads

578-311

Doctor Roberts

Character Actor

Holly 5335

Reeka Roberts

Emotional Roles

Holly 5335

Bert Sprotte

Characters

741-64

FROM "U" TO YOU

(Continued from Page 5)

the name of its director more familiar to fans and exhibitors throughout the country. Nat Ross, director of "The Ghost Patrol," and other Universal pictures, guided the production.

The cast includes Renee Adoree, Orville Caldwell, Niles Welch, and Bert Woodruff, and according to advance reviews in rough-cut the picture is a realistic portrayal of farm life.

The national hotel men should begin saving their pennies now to go and see Herbert Rawlinson's new Universal picture when it is finished.

"The Noblest Roman," in which Rawlinson is starring under the direction of William Parke, with Beatrice Burnham, Margaret Landis and other players supporting him, is a story of hotel life and management, written by Mary Whiteside. It follows "The Clean-Up," also directed by Parke.

Rawlinson started out in the first few days' work wearing a waiter's apron, and will run the gamut of experience, so it's safe to assume he'll be a full-fledged candidate for the Greeters when he reaches the climax of the film play.

An additional sequence written into the story of sea life, "The Storm Daughter," which the Universal Pictures corporation is filming with Priscilla Dean in the featured role, caused the Dean company to "set sail" again this week.

Under George Archainbaud's direction the Jewel special feature was nearing completion, when it was decided to add to the water sequence, the beauty of which warranted the highest expectations. So the unit left Universal City again for Laguna, where the additional scenes will be finished in about two weeks.

A notable cast, including Tom Santschi, William B. Davidson, Bert Roach, Cyril Chadwick, J. Farrell McDonald and others, supports Miss Dean in the new venture. The story is by Lette Renick Brown, scenario by Edward Montaigne.

Editing is going on at a rapid pace on Hoot Gibson's new Universal special production, "The Extra Man," a tale of life in the movies in which practically every prominent star and director at the big Laemmle studio took a part, and which will be the most elaborate offering so far in Gibson pictures.

Edward Sedgwick, director of three excellent Gibson vehicles, "Blinky," "Out of Luck" and "The Ramblin' Kid," directed the filming of "The Extra Man." Billie Dove played opposite Gibson.

For a while the appearance of prominent directors and stars of Universal City wandering around the lot in startling, bizarre costumes, and acting before the camera for five-dollar extra pay checks per day, created a great deal of lively interest.

Billy Sullivan slipped through the ropes of the squared circle at Universal City for the initial bout of his first production of Universal's new "Leather Pushers" series and did a couple of rounds of shadow boxing and rope skipping while the boys were "setting up" to shoot the first scene.

Ed Kennedy, veteran heavyweight, engaged for the picture, watched the work-out.

"The boy looks good," he said. "He's fast, clever with his 'dukes' and he looks like a hard hitter. He comes from a fighting family, too."

BOB REEL McKEE

Sullivan, well known motion picture actor, son of the famous Jerry Sullivan and nephew of the ultra-famous John L. Sullivan, makes his debut as a screen pugilist in "He Loops to Conquer," a comedy drama based on one of the H. C. Witwer stories. Production has just started on the picture at the Universal studios, under the direction of Edward Laemmle.

He was selected by Universal heads for the new Kid Roberts when Reginald Denny was transferred from the "Leather Pushers" by virtue of a new contract, to the sparring role in "The Spice of Life," a multi-reel racing feature.

Supporting Sullivan in the cast are Ruth Dwyer, leading woman; Esther Ralston, Hayden Stevenson, Ed Kennedy, George Magrill and Floyd Shackleford.

Three new stories have been purchased by the scenario department at Universal City, according to Raymond L. Schrock, scenario editor, as coming vehicles for Herbert Rawlinson. Work will be started shortly on the continuities.

The first of the new stories is "Jack of Clubs," a Red Book story by Gerald Beaumont. Rex Taylor has been assigned to prepare the continuity for the story.

"Clay of Ca'lina" is the second story. It was a Saturday Evening Post story by Cal. Johnson, and L. G. Rigby will prepare the scenario. Beaumont's story is a sporting tale in which Rawlinson will play a gentleman-adventurer of the turf; "Clay of Ca'lina" is a Southern story with a modern racetrack tang.

The third story is "All for the Love of Gloria," by Marian Orth. William Wing will prepare the continuity for this offering, in which Rawlinson will have a romantic modern role.

Mary Philbin will face the camera in her first starring feature for Universal next Monday, when the opening scenes of "My Mamie Rose" will be filmed.

The little Irish girl, who has scored such a distinct triumph in "Merry-Go-Round," will enact the role of the wistful, quaint "Little Queen of the Bowery," as described by Owen Kildare in his famous novel.

The story has its setting in the famous Bowery section of New York City, the Bowery of 1895, stretching beneath the rumbling elevated trains from Chatham Square to Cooper union, with all of the equally squalid streets adjoining.

Virtually every detail of preparation for the filming of the famous Owen Kildare story has been completed and production will start Monday, it has been announced by Bernard McConville, supervisor of all Universal Jewel and super-Jewel productions.

The screen version of the Kildare story has been carefully prepared by Lenore Coffey and Harvey Gates and many weeks have been spent constructing the mammoth sets to be utilized in its filming.

No effort of time or money was spared in gathering data for the exact reproduction of the Bowery quarter as it was before it was cleaned up by Theodore Roosevelt, when he was police commissioner of New York City.

Scenes along the East river have been constructed as they were pictured and described by Kildare, at Los Angeles harbor.

With all of its historic background, with the weird and colorful sets that have been created for the atmosphere of the reproduction—there is still a something that is greater than these, according to Irving Cummings, who is to direct the play. The story's the thing, he says.

Such famous characters as Steve Brodie, Chuck Connors, Tim Sullivan and Barney Flynn will be seen in the play and Fred Datig, casting director, and Cummings, are now carefully choosing the players.

Those who have already been cast to support the youthful star are Pat O'Malley, Edwin J. Brady, Lincoln Plummer and Max Davidson.

It is our constant endeavor to provide the utmost in boxing. The highest standards of the pugilistic sport have been established, and hold sway, at this arena.

Hollywood Stadium

Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

Hugh Hoffman

Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip," "Crossed Wires." "The Town Scandal." "Sawdust." "The Untameable." "The Wild Party."

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography

LITTLE

Commercial Photographer

Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

Animated Cartoons — Original Title Ideas — Clay Animation — Miniature Sets and Animated Figures

CINEMA ARTS STUDIO

ELMER H. YOUNG, Manager

6015½ Santa Monica Blvd. Telephone 434-430

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660

KWIK LUNCH

SERVES U RITE

1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

Doctors
FORD &
FORD
Palmer
Graduate
Scientific
Spinal
Adjustments
Individual
Rest
Rooms

Anna Mae Ford
D.C., Ph. C.

Office
Ground Floor

G. Henry Ford
D.C., Ph.C.

CHIROPRACTORS

5911 Hollywood Boulevard
10 to 12—2 to 5
Mon., Wed., Friday Evenings, 6 to 8

MARION WARDE

Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films

Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing

423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

DAW-SUTHERLAND HONEYMOON IN HOLLYWOOD

Just when Marjorie had her trunk packed and Eddie was about to go on a two weeks' vacation from the Chaplin studio, the fates again intervened.

Warner Brothers wanted Mr. Sutherland to assist Jack Conway in the direction of "Lucretia Lombard," the popular Kathleen Norris novel; Charlie Chaplin said "okey" and Eddie kicked a hole into his new straw hat—and went to work at the Warner studio.

This is the fifth time that plans for the Sutherland-Daw honeymoon have been cancelled. Marjorie Daw has given up the hope and has unpacked her trunk.

"Perhaps when we're both old and bent with age and useless to the world we will be able to get away on our honeymoon," said Miss Daw. "I have given up the idea of a trip. Anyway, why worry about a honeymoon trip? We are honeymooning in Hollywood."

WHY NOT A NEW GUESSING GAME?

Balked in their efforts to learn the identity of the author of "Flaming Youth," which First National is now filming for early fall release, members of the all-star cast interpreting the story have spent days arguing as to whether the book was written by a man or a woman.

Boni & Liversight, publishers of "Flaming Youth," declare that it would amount to a breach of contract to reveal any authorship of the colume other than the nom de plume "Warner Fabian."

In her most charming manner, Colleen Moore, who is playing the leading role of "Patricia," has written the publishers beseeching them to say whether a man or a woman penned this frank, but exceedingly delightful story.

Miss Moore declares that the author is a woman and Elliot Dexter, who is enacting the role of "Dr. Bobs," is equally as sure that a man is responsible.

"I will admit," says Miss Moore, "that it is unusual for a woman to write in such a frank manner and especially when she exposes the innermost thoughts and most intimate actions of her sisters, but, all the same, I believe the story has all the earmarks of having been written by a woman."

"It takes a man to write so frankly without leaving a clue to his identity," replies Dexter. "I see in this volume a great resemblance to a story by Zane Grey, but even if I cannot be sure of the author I am positive, in my own mind, that it is a man. The descriptions of the women are penned as a man would pen them—not as a woman would write them. No woman would so frankly expose her own sex without attaching some alibi in their defense."

Curt de Garcia Furberg, a recent arrival from Germany, just finished his first part here, that of Robespierre, one of the heaviest dramatic roles in Rex Ingram's production, "Scaramouche." Mr. Furberg has been playing dramatic roles for the last twenty years in foreign countries.

SCREEN TESTS

Invest in a Screen Test. It pays. It tells you how you screen and the cost is only

25 Cents Per Foot

Call Bruno

431-929

6412 Hollywood Boulevard

LOCAL — SEMI-NATIONAL — FULL-NATIONAL — INTERNATIONAL

POUR PERSONAL PUBLICITY AR-EXCELLENT

POSITIVELY PUTS PICTURE PEOPLE IN PERMANENT PUBLIC FAVOR

STARS WANT TO BE STARS — NO DOUBLE TO BE STARS — STARS FOR STARS

Write for particulars, OR see

GENE WOOLWAY

P.O.Box 176, Hollywood Station
Or, in care of
Camera!
2nd. Floor, 6318 Hollywood Blvd.,
HOLLYWOOD Calif.
PHONE 439-869

HAIRGONE—permanent cure for superfluous hair on arms, limbs, face and body. Also wonderful for men who have shaving troubles. $2.50 the bottle, manufactured at

ORCHID BEAUTY SHOPPE

808 So. Hope St. Phone 16596
All lines of beauty culture.

MOTION PICTURES

Talent wanted to register in new Casting Directory. Call in person.

THE UNIVERSAL, 5507 Santa Monica Boulevard. Room 4.

Wanted: Productions From $50,000 to $100,000

I have just returned from New York and am in the market for some real pictures. I can sell your productions outright. See me for quick release.

H. and B. FILM COMPANY

Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275

WILL NEED AN INTRODUCTION

Ben Turpin is working in one of the fastest two-reelers he has ever appeared in, called "The Stunt Man." It is well named, too. Ben said nobody will ever know it is he, when the picture comes to the screen, not even his own wife who has been looking at him for over seventeen years. Del Lord, who is directing "The Stunt Man," is putting Bennie through a rapid pace of slam-bang, yet sure fire laugh action.

In "The Stunt Man," Turpin is thrown from a horse, gets drowned, beaten up by a giant, clawed by animals, thrown from a roof and,—well if there is anything that could happen to a person, it happens to Ben Turpin in his next Mack Sennett comedy.

SENNETT ENTERTAINS KIDDIES

The lives of fifty youngsters were made happy by Mack Sennett for a few days last week when in one of the big scenes in "Rough and Ready," the two-reel comedy special featuring his new star, little Jackie Lucas, Sennett ordered that the tots in the Los Angeles Orphan Asylum be given the pleasure of working and playing about the big lot, instead of engaging the same number of more fortunate children.

Walter Frederick Seely
Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

YOUR PHONOGRAPH
will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a
Deflexograph
Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles.
Play after hours —will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.

GOLD PLATE.....$1.50 (See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE....$1.00
VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

Pathe Camera Complete For Rent by the Week.
ST. ELMO BOYCE
Powers Studio

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS
GET RESULTS

ROBERT TODD—Film Editor. Nine years' experience. Desirous of permanent local connection. Phone Hollywood 1113.

WANTED—Man with Motion picture camera (union or non-union with $75.00 to join me in a photographic attraction at the Business Men's Project to be held at Santa Monica Blvd. and Western Ave., Sept. 15th to 22nd. A real live attraction and big money for eight days. Answer quick. A. Dulany, care of Camera! 6318 Hollywood Blvd.

CHICAGO'S SILENT NIGHTS—A ten thousand words complete photoplay script, depicting Chicago's period of political strife, lawless and terrorism. The result of more than a year's work, by Geo. Paps—write for it. P. O. Box 581, Los Angeles.

Tearle's Timely Talk

Screen stars whose vogue is waning may look to the speaking stage for new and glorious careers, says Conway Tearle, highest priced leading man in films, and former stage actor.

Motion picture players, however, will never achieve success on the speaking stage unless they have made a thorough study of the technique, the voice and general stage deportment, the absence of which has caused the downfall of many film celebrities who have attempted careers in the "legit," it is pointed out by Tearle.

"There is a wonderful opportunity in the spoken drama awaiting every motion picture player whose popularity is beginning to wane," says Mr. Tearle. "If the player has the experience to execute his performance creditably on the stage he can at the age of forty, start anew triumphant career for himself.

"At forty an actor is regarded in the light of a 'comer' on the speaking stage. At this age in pictures, he generally has passed the peak of his popularity and begins to play supporting parts of secondary importance in the production.

"Many of our present day stage celebrities did not make their stride on the stage until they approached the age of forty. The longer and more mellow a career the actor of the stage can boast of, the greater is his success when he really hits in a big way. Twenty years' experience on the stage is something to boast of. In pictures, after ten years, the player has generally passed his greatest vogue. There are exceptions, of course, but they are rare exceptions to a general rule.

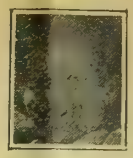
"It behooves every young screen actor to study stage technique, voice and deportment. If he has never appeared on the stage he should train himself to do so. Even if for no other reason than for the occasional public appearances he makes and which very often result unfavorably for him, he should acquire the training of stage presence.

"When the day arrives that he finds his vogue in pictures on the decline, he can then step into the spoken drama for his big opportunity. The screen player has the advantage over the stage actor in this respect, for he comes to the stage with a tremendous following—an international popularity that gives him a wonderful box-office send-off. If he can deliver, he has before him a career as great, if not greater, than his motion picture career. He must, however, be equipped to achieve this success. His screen experience will help, but it will never fulfill the demands of the spoken drama."

BIG TIE-UP FOR "ASHES OF VENGEANCE" SONG

A new song entitled "Ashes of Vengeance," with music by Muriel Pollock, composer of "Dancing in the Dark" and other big hits in "Jack and Jill," and words by Mabel Livingstone, author of "A Child's Day in Song," and other well known books published by Schirmer, with music by Mana Zucca, has been added to the score of "Ashes of Vengeance," Norma Talmadge's super feature at the Apollo Theatre. The song is a waltz-ballad and is dedicated to Miss Talmadge. It is published by the Photoplay Music Co., Inc., at 1620 Broadway, and has been placed on sale in the lobby of the Apollo Theatre in addition to being distributed in music stores around the country.

Over 12,000 first class motion picture theatres will release "Ashes of Vengeance," and Joseph M. Schenck, the producer of the cinema has arranged that this song by Mabel Pollock and Mabel Livingstone be incorporated in Victor Schertzinger's arrangement of old French music of the 16th century, to run as a theme all through the "Ashes of Vengeance" score.



Coy Watson, Jr.
Age 10 Wilshire 3616
No Luck.
You Never Know.
Right of the Strongest
Featured in Campbell Comedies

CHIROPODIST
FOOT SPECIALIST
Dr. Earl A. Davis
6514 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD
Hours 9 to 5. Holly 0259.

Especially for Motion Picture People.
THE HILLVIEW GRILL
Hillview Apartments Bldg.
Hollywood at Hudson
Holly 7980 Holly 6626
MERCHANTS' LUNCH, 11:30 to 2
DINNER 5:30 to 8

SCREEN SERVICE
(formerly The Service Bureau)
1036 SOUTH HILL
Phone 821-071

COLBURN'S
Taxidermy Studio
Phone 643-13
1033-37 Broadway Place
. . . excells in mounting of fish . . . trout our specialty . . . see samples at our studio . . .

CASTING
Picture company making cruise around the world on studio ship can use leading man and woman. Must have box office value. Communications strictly confidential.
Address—DIRECTOR, Care Camera! 6318 Hollywood Blvd.

Learn to Color Photographs
We teach you the SECRET PROCESS of making your oil colors at a saving of one half.
424 UNION LEAGUE BLDG.
Corner of Second and Hill Streets

TINTED PORTRAITS
of a beautiful velvet-like tone can be made from your regular photographs. The cost is low and there are special rates on fan photos.
EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38

100 Per Cent Titles
100 Per Cent Service
At the Right Price!

Dress up that next production with artistic Hand Lettered Titles made by IRVING W. BUNZE.

If you want Perfect Symbolic Art Backgrounds, let us make them! Neil E. McQuire, formerly with Ince and Prizma, does our art work.

For perfect black-and-white titles, try our PROCESS SYSTEM. A telephone call will bring our representative with samples.

Quality Title & Film Company

1442 Beechwood Drive. Holly 4850

Exquisite Drapes and Parasols from the Orient

Oriental Costume Co.

6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

Frank the Shoe Doctor

"We save your sole and heel you, too"

6666 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3752

FOR PICTURES

PLAYS, BOOKS, ORIGINALS

The
Hollywood Play Bureau
Emmett Corrigan, Mgr.

6404 Hollywood Boulevard
Near Cahuenga. Hollywood, Cal.

Broadway Star Is Signed With Dexter

Grace Carlyle, hailed as the new screen sensation, has been signed for the role of "Mrs. Trent," the neglected wife and devoted mother in the first picture of the Elliott Dexter Productions tentatively titled "The Man Who Forgave," which will be produced at the Grand Studios. The selection of Miss Carlyle to play opposite Mr. Dexter in a role of such spiritual proportions as "Mrs. Trent" is a most interesting compliment to the actress who has just negotiated in Metro's "Held to Answer," a characterization the very opposite of the other, for "Marion Dounay" is an utterly destructive type.

Mr. Dexter, who saw some scenes of the actress from "Morphine" which she enacted for the silversheet as a screen test, is quoted as exclaiming: "What a wonderful mother she would be. It is years since I have seen on the screen a young woman so combining the sex allure and the maternal." With her splendid technic developed by the best Broadway directors and producers on the speaking stage, her experience covering a wealth of roles, although a newcomer to the film colony, Grace Carlyle, say those who have seen her work, is destined to go far as a "top notcher" on the screen for she is taking to it a big art.

For the first time in the history of her career as a film star, Mary Pickford held an invitational showing in New York of her new play, "Rosita," for the benefit of eastern friends and the convenience of the New York dramatic critics.

The pre-view was held at the Ritz-Carlton hotel and according to wires in Miss Pickford's hands today was a huge success. The picture was declared by critics to be by far Miss Pickford's best offering. It will be released generally soon after the Metropolitan run, which is now on at the Lyric theater on Broadway.

Goldwyn Co. Back From the North

With the return from San Francisco of Victor Seastrom's Goldwyn company, including Conrad Nagel, Mae Busch, Patsy Ruth Miller, and Creighton Hale, the noted Swedish director has completed his first American production, "The Judge and the Woman," a film adaptation of Sir Hall Caine's "The Master of Man."

The title of the story was changed to avoid confusion with another picture recently released with a title similar to that of Sir Hall's book.

Seastrom spent several days in San Francisco filming the final sequence of the picture and is now cutting and assembling the film. Besides these named, players in the all-star cast include Aileen Pringle, DeWitt Jennings, Evelyn Selbie, Winter Hall, Cecil Holland, Lucien Littlefield, William Orlamond, Anna Hernandez, Jack Murphy, Mark Fenton, Andrew Arbuckle, Mrs. Charles Craig and Charles Bailez.

WOULDN'T DO IT

Claire Windsor says that if that story about receiving a letter addressed to ————, Movie Star, weren't so old, she would tell everybody about the letter she got from an admirer in Tahiti, addressed to Claire Windsor, Movie star. However, as it has been done before, the public will have to remain ignorant.

The art department and costume departments at Goldwyn have been workin~ for more than a year on the costuming for "Ben Hur," which Goldwyn soon will film.

CAVAN AS LAWYER

Allan Cavan, one of our front-rank character actors, has just completed the part of Burton, the sympathetic lawyer, in Arvid Gillstrom's latest production from Grand-Asher release. Billy Rhodes is the featured player. Others in the cast include Kate Lester, Claire McDowell, Kathleen Kirkham, and Buster Collier.

Applications for Cast Now Being Accepted

Clarke Renalle
President

6529 Venice Blvd
Culver City

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law

JACK P. LEONARD

340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

WE MOVE THE MOVIES

and Shine on Service

Hollywood 2677 - SAMUEL C. SHINE - 6568 Santa Monica
General Trucking and Hauling

MARY RUBY

594-774

AGNES RAY

596-656

Studio Space For Rent

THE NEW

ALTRUART STUDIO

CULVER CITY

A most up-to-date studio with complete equipment offers the Independent Producer

Maximum Results at Minimum Cost Co-operation Our Motto

Modern Office Suites Cosy Dressing Rooms Direct Current

PLUS SERVICE

Address Communications to
Ralph DeLacy, Gen'l. Mgr.

6529 Venice Boulevard
Culver City, Calif.

PHOTOGRAPHS
OR FAN PICTURES

Your appearance on your fan photos should be as attractive as as it is on the screen

They come to the notice of so many admirers, and in order to maintain the good impression created by your screen personality, which prompted the fan to send for your picture, you should by all means use quality photographs.

We furnish original photographs in large quantities for the same price generally asked for reproductions.

See our samples and get price quotations.

Evans Studio

6039 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 2560.

Lyman A. Pollard Ruth A. Dowdall

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

"Camera!"

Los Angeles, Calif. Saturday, Sept. 15, 1923 Price 10 Cents

John Griffith Wray, Director of "Anna Christie"

A Thomas H. Ince Production.

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A.HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

New York Washington, D. C.

Phone 52220

Phone 54847

Hepner
INCORPORATED

1001-1005 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles California

Permanent Waving Hair Coloring Bleaching
Hair Dressing Scalp-Facial Massage
Marcel Waving Water Waving Shampooing
Manicuring
Wigs Toupees Switches Transformations
Wig Rental Beards and Moustaches
Cosmetics
Professional Makeup Service

Special Attention to Theatrical and Motion Picture Profession

No Parking Restrictions

RENALLES, INC.
DISTINCTIVE CINEMA and LEGITIMATE ATTRACTIONS

6529 Venice Blvd., Culver City
Phone Culver City 546

Did you get your copy of the Fall Issue of the

STUDIO DIRECTORY

It's on the newsstands buy your copy today!

STUDIO DIRECTORY

1852 Hillhurst Ave. Phone 594-783

"Camera!"
(The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry)

ESTABLISHED 1918

A Film Magazine and a Film Newspaper in One
6318 Hollywood Boulevard
Hollywood : California

Vol. VI. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1923 No. 22

Art and the Independent

The day of the independent producer is at hand! It has been said that the future of the motion picture art rests in the hands of the small producer, and it is thought well worth serious consideration. The pictures that the independent producer makes with a necessarily limited amount of capital must come up to standard, for if they fail to do so, he is doomed. He must sell against a highly competitive field composed of companies that control their own distribution and exhibition facilities, and to make any kind of a showing against these companies he must make pictures that come well nigh being masterpieces, if he is to hold out hopes of any kind.

Added impetus to the forward movement of the independents is given by the formation of a distributing company organized solely to handle their productions, to place their pictures in first-class houses and get top-notch prices for them. This distributing company is closely allied with another distributing organization controlled by the exhibitors of the nation, and thus the interests of the theater owner as well as the producer, are amply protected. The chief executive, and active operative, of these two companies will be a man who has enjoyed many years of success in the motion picture business, a man who can be relied upon to the utmost to further the interests of the small producer and the exhibitor. This co-operative movement has received the hearty endorsement of people in every branch of the industry, and it is hailed as the first real evidence of the increasing power of the independents. Pictures that will be handled by this concern must come up to a very high artistic standard. Factory turn-outs and program pictures are taboo with them.

The result of this is inevitable; motion pictures in the hands of the small-time film man will experience an unprecedented progression artistically and otherwise. No doubt there will be radical changes in the various methods of film production, distribution and exhibition now in effect among them. They will have the security of knowing that a ready market is awaiting their productions, provided they make them carefully and to meet the standards set for them. Art and the independent producer will progress hand in hand.

Telephone
439-869

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON
Publisher and Manager.
JOHN CORNYN
Advertising Manager.
GENE WOOLWAY
Studio Representative.
FRED W. FOX
Advertising Copy.
RUTH TANEYHILL
Pulse Editor

Address All Communications to
CAMERA!

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

$3.50 per year in Los Angeles County.
$4.00 per year in Outside Zone.
$4.50 to Canada.
$5.00 to Foreign Points.

H. H. CONGER COMPANY
Nat'l Adv. Rep.
New York Chicago
San Francisco

Advertising Rates Upon Application.

Issued on Saturday morning of each week at 6318 Hollywood Blvd., in Los Angeles, Calif. Telephone 439-869.

Entered as second-class matter, Aug. 11, 1918, at the Post Office at Los Angeles, Cal., under Act of March 3rd, 1879.

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Broken Wing"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

"The First Year"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

Helen Holmes
in
"One Million In Jewels"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

Gareth Hughes
in
"I Can Explain"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

Herbert Rawlinson
in
"The Victor"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Goldfish"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

Alec Francis, Claude Gillingwater, Wm. H. Crane, in "Three Wise Fools"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

"Only a Shop Girl"

This Week's Theatre Notes

Shattering all traditions at Grauman's Million Dollar Theater, D. W. Griffith's "The White Rose" goes into its third week at that theatre on Monday (Sept. 17.) Not since the theatre opened four years ago has any film been shown more than two weeks at this house, and never has a photoplay attracted such throngs to this theatre.

"The White Rose" is essentially a Griffith picture with an idealistic theme presented in a practical way before a background of pastoral beauty. Then there are the Griffith big dramatic moments which tug at the heart-strings. It has sort of a double plot—centering about the life of an orphan girl and her rich young lover and also telling of an ambitious but poverty-stricken youth and his romance with a girl of wealth. It is the age-old story of the single moral standard told in charming fashion. Mae Marsh, Ivor Novello, Carol Dempster and Neil Hamilton head the cast.

Surrounding the feature the same harmonious program will be presented. This includes Grauman's Symphony Orchestra playing "Songs of the Old Folks," arranged by Maurice Lawrence, the conductor, Edward House at the Wurlitzer playing his own composition dedicated to "The White Rose" and "'Neath Southern Skies," the dainty prologue with its atmosphere of the photoplay.

Theodore Roberts (in person) will head an unusually fine bill coming to the Hillstreet theatre next week. Roberts has again felt the lure of the footlights and will return to their glare next week, by special permission of Jesse L. Lasky, in Wm. C. DeMille's powerful sketch, "The Man Higher Up," in association with Wilfred North. This sketch by DeMille furnishes Roberts with a vehicle the strength and finish of which is seldom seen in vaudeville and gives this superb character actor ample opportunity to show the ability which won for him the title of "America's Greatest Character Actor." In the sketch Roberts portrays a Belgian nerve specialist who has for years waited for fate to bring into his power a person who had wronged him in his early manhood and when fate does bring the person to his office for treatment the ensuing scenes as portrayed by Roberts are a classic of the American theatre. The dancing and singing on the bill will be furnished by a clever team of Broadwayites, Florrie Millership and Alfred Gerard in "A Musical Comedy Revue," with Eddie Moran at the piano. Harry Hayden and company, including Elmer Haynes, Lela Bliss and Agnes Sanford, will offer a romantic comedy, "The Love Game," which was also written by Mr. Hayden, and which establishes him as a vaudeville writer as well as actor. Lou Edwards and Jack Beasley, "Two of the Four Horsemen," will be present to offer their hilariously funny skit and furnish the audience with laughs aplenty. Michon Brothers will present their daring act of hand-balancing and Van and Belle in a novel act showing the use of the boomerang and not forgetting the humor connected with it, will complete the vaudeville program. The feature photoplay showing will be Herbert Rawlinson in "The Victor." Other features will be Allan Hall and the Tiny Symphony orchestra, the new William Duncan chapter-play, "The Steel Trail," Aesop's Fables, Hillstreet International News and a Bert Roach comedy, "His School Days."

"Hollywood," now showing at Grauman's Rialto, is the aristocrat of pictures.

It is played by all the kings and queens of film-land, with the picturesque little city, Hollywood, as the background.

The story is a fascinating drama of a girl's ambitions to become a movie star and contains many thrilling experiences in which dozens of celebrities appear, and it gives a true insight into the great industry of motion pictures that will be illuminating to every fan.

One of the outstanding features of Reginald Barker's production, "The Eternal Struggle," which Louis B. Mayer presents as a Metro picture at Loew's State Theater this week, will be the sensation sure to be created by Renee Adoree, who plays the part of a French-Canadian girl.

Almost unheralded comes this new star, who will win for herself over night the right to be ranked the most versatile and promising young star of today.

"The Eternal Struggle" concerns human and elemental passion. It is a story of a young girl fighting to defend herself from a dissolute reprobate. She flees into the arctic circle where two men, sent out to bring her back, fall in love with her. Against the most wonderful scenic backgrounds and amid a series of thrilling incidents the story is brought to a thrilling climax. Reginald Barker selected an excellent cast, including Renee Adoree, Earle Williams, Pat O'Malley, Barbara La Marr, Wallace Beery, Josef Swickard, Geo. Kuwa, Pat Harmon, Anders Randolf, Robert Anderson and Edward J. Brady.

As an added feature at Loew's State this coming week the first of the Gump Comedies, "Watch Papa," will be shown. Fay Tincher is seen in the role of Min and Joe Murphy as Andy. Arrangements have been made whereby these players and the entire cast of the Gump Comedy will be seen at Loew's State all week in a comedy prologue written by Thomas Grey. Other features on the bill are Loew's State Concert Orchestra and various screen and stage novelties.

California
Main at Eighth

Dark

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Rex Beach's
"The Spoilers"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

James Cruze's
"Ruggles of Red Gap"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Reginald Barker's
"The Eternal Struggle"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

James Cruze's
"Hollywood"

THE COLISEUM

"Wayfarer"

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

D. W. Griffith's
"The White Rose"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

Constance Talmadge
Jack Mulhall, in
"Dulcy"

Hollywood Egyptu
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden
"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mary Philbin
and Norman Kerry i
"Merry Go Round"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

Lois Wilson-Richard L
in
"To the Last Man"

Austin Says Day of Slap-Stick is Gone

By LUCILE ERSKINE

illiam Austin attained success on the e in that blithest of all comedies, "A Tailor-le Man." For years he has raised a good ber of laughs nightly at the Morosco The-
. And now he has just finished in "Rug-of Red Gap," a Lasky production under direction of James Cruze, the director, as y are beginning to call him, since "The ered Wagon."

omedies this successful comedian knows as as Paderewski knows the keys of the
o. And he says the day of the slap-stick one.

Now, the public demands something more a fat clown who falls down. Of course, funny screen play will always be light, but e is going to be more art to it, and it's to have an intellectual appeal."

expressed my doubts.

But back of every good comedian," he ind, "is a great and subtle intellect. Charlie plin draws in his net of appreciation the ely Chinese mandarin and the small Amer-child. But not every one knows that great jester is a widely-read, deeply-think-man. And the subtle touches in his come-are put there because his own exacting
d demands it."

With all the race of fun-makers, this Mr.
stin thinks being funny is no joke.

On the speaking stage, you have the in-tive of the audience. For all fun should ear impromptu. But we on the screen have warm up with a cold and empty house before
And you never know when the laugh will e, after the story gets before the audience.
sat in a theater and watched myself on screen; would hear a laugh, when I had le thought of raising one. And when I was e of a roar, well, it wouldn't always be as d as I expected."

For several years he played in English comes and has very definite ideas about how put over the glittering wit of Oscar lde.

It has to be played casually—handed over the audience in small doses, so to speak, or y will get blinded by the too-much brilliancy. Some of his later plays were very heartless. And when a Wilde comedy is screened, it exposes the lack of heart back of the cold, steely glitter of the words. There has to be emotion to get over on the screen and his plays had none. I expect 'Lady Windermere's Fan' to live, because it exposes the rottenness not of English society, but of a certain small group that used to be powerful, but now are being forced out to earn their bread."

And William Austin knows whereof he speaks. For he comes of a distinguished English family, is another of the emigre that makes the population of Hollywood so picturesque. Russian, English and Italian aristocracy are here in this cinema city, an artistic melting pot, working beside Americans descended from the Mayflower and others who bring the rich vigor that comes from being close to the soil.

"If I may be critical," he said, "English society is rarely portrayed correctly on the screen. Take a house party shown in a recent movie drama. The hostess greeted her guests with such cold, such freezing hauteur as if to say, 'Who are you? How dare you come here?' I do think in real life she would have been simpler and more cordial."

He was born in British Guiana and educated in private schools in England. But the stage claimed him after years spent in the Orient. He was a soldier in the International army, organized to protect the Europeans in China.

"Where rebellion," he said with a smile, "was part of the day's work. One of the most interesting memories that stays with me from my days in China was a visit to the Chinese theatre. The audience go right on talking, seemingly giving no attention to the actors, pay visits from seat to seat and wash their faces in hot cloths that are brought around. You pay so much a wipe."

The Chinese drama with its mummified classicism could give him little, but he thinks the Russian players who took New York by storm last winter are to leave their impress on the screen.

"I did not know a word of their language," he went on, "and had read only a synopsis of the play, but such was the perfection of their pantomime that I was thrilled at every line. Especially was the way they handled crowds on the stage new and wonderful. There were no still figures. Every one seemed to be doing something, yet the audience felt no distraction. And since we on the screen are their brothers in pantomime, the subtlest emotions now ought not to be beyond us."

Whether playing comedies has made him hopeful or not, he is sure art is going to down commercialism in the movie world.

From U to You

By WILL C. MURPHEY

Nine years ago Universal City, California, ducing center of the Universal Pictures Cor-raton, consisted of six hundred acres of land, few small buildings of primitive character
d a handful of ambitious workers.

Today it has many of the most improved e of stages and offices on the big area and ht-hundred standing exterior sets, the largest mber in the world. Modern improvements the last minute make it a place interesting the artist, the scientific engineer or the bus-ss man.

Carl Laemmle, as president of the Universal ctures corporation, occupies a unique place the head of the powerful organization that s grown from extremely modest beginnings international leadership.

The height of artistry at Universal City day is revealed in such elaborate cinema ef-
rts as "Merry-Go-Round," "The Hunchback Notre Dame,' "A Lady of Quality," and he Acquittal," all attractions extraordinary.

Pat Hartigan, veteran of the stage and reen, who distinguished himself in the cast
Baby Peggy's first Universal-Jewel starring ature, "Whose Baby Are You?" is playing important role in the Jewel special, "The Storm Daughter," in which Priscilla Dean heads a large cast. George Archainbaud is the director.

William B. Davidson and Tom Santschi have the leading masculine roles and other players include Alfred Fisher, Cyril Chadwick, J. Farrell McDonald, Bert Roach, George Kuwa and others. "The Storm Daughter" is Leete Renick Brown's story, written for Miss Dean, scenarized by Edward Montaigne.

Filming has been completed at Universal City of "The Near Lary," Gladys Walton's latest starring vehicle.

Miss Walton portrays the role of a manicure girl who gets into society through the invention of a sausage grinder by her father. She takes up golf and wins herself a good looking society beau and has a lot of other amusing experiences.

The picture was filmed from a Hugh Hoffman continuity of a story by Frank A. Adams, author of "The Miracle Man."

Herbert Blache directed the making of the picture.

In the supporting cast are Pierre Gendron, Otis Harlan, Harry Mann, Kate Price, Florence Drew, Emmett King and Henrietta Floyd.

Good news from the William Duncan unit, filming "The Steel Trail," a chapterplay of railroad engineering, has been received at Universal City. After ten weeks of hardship, living in primitive quarters without telephone or telegraph communication with the studio, the Duncans—William and Mrs. (Edith Johnson) are returning from South Fork, California.

Duncan himself has been directing the serial besides co-starring in it with Miss Johnson. Known as one of the most efficient makers of this type of entertainment in the business, his laest product, which will be completed with a number of interior scenes at Universal City, is looked forward to with interest by those exhibitors who have relied on his pictures in the past as guaranteed box office attractions.

Robert North Bradbury, director of several recent successes at Universal City, has started production on three new short Western subjects, to be several of a series of two-reel plays planned. "Double Dealing," by George Pyper, "Under Western Skies" by the same author, and "Stolen Gold" are the trio chosen to inaugurate the series.

These short subjects are complete stories, condensed into the briefest possible film space.

(Continued on Page 19)

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 9th, 1923.

An interesting project is being worked on, for a big outing to be held at Pacific City the first Saturday and Sunday of October by all San Francisco people in the picture industry. All branches of the business will be included; the exhibitor, the producer, the exchanges, and each and every worker connected with moving pictures, and their families, will enjoy a grand two-day holliday. The profits are to go toward the founding of an insurance fund for the aid of the sick and needy of the industry.

Mitchell Lewis finished his part in "Half-A-Dollar Bill" being made by the Graf Productions, and accompanied by his wife, returned to Hollywood.

Jay Morley, leading man in the series of films being made by the Gerson Pictures Corporation, returned from a short trip to Los Angeles last week, bringing with him, his wife, and two little sons.

Hal Reed, well-known publicity man has given up his San Francisco office, and is reported to have accepted a position in Portland.

Work on "Nobody's Child" being filmed by the West Coast Productions at the Pacific Studios at San Mateo was held up for a few days last week, waiting the arrival of James Calnay, head of the organization, and some other members of the company. Meanwhile the office of the company has been moved to larger quarters at Room 516 Phelan Building. Work on the picture is again under way, and making good progress.

A couple of weeks ago Anna Q. Nilsson awarded a dancing-cup at Pacific City. The winner was graceful, lovely, Edith Flynn, of San Francisco. Mis Nilsson and Max Graf were both so impressed by her beauty and charm that Mr. Graf has offered her a small part in his next picture, and a chance at fame.

The mammoth Pictures Corporation has recently been organized in New York City, with offices in the Loew Theatre Building. Victor Fisher, of this city is vice-president, and the object of the new organization is the distribution and sales on a franchise basis, of live box office attractions. The first picture to be released by them will be "Enemies Of Children" recently made at the Hollywood Studios by the Fisher Productions, from George Gibbs novel "Youth Triumphant." Victor Fisher will also act as general manager of the Mammoth.

Thomas Meighan, his wife Francis Ring, Al. Green, Director, and thirty members of his company will be here this week for several days working on the waterfront in the picture "Woman-Proof," which is being made from a story written especially for Meighan by George Ade.

After four weeks spent in San Francisco, working on "Half-A-Dollar Bill," Anna Q. Nilsson returned to Los Angeles the latter part of last week.

"Waterfront Wolves," first picture of the series being made by the Gerson Picture Corporation, starring Ora Carew, is finished, titled, and cut, and will be ready for release to the State Right Market Sept. 20th. Work on the second picture of the series has already begun. The story is one of the logging camps, both written and directed by Tom Gibson, as yet untitled. Jay Morley, Hal Stephens, 'Tiny' Sandford, and Eddie O'Brien will continue in Miss Carew's supporting company, with the addition of several new members.

Theodore Roberts has again returned to S Francisco, this time as headliner at the Gol Gate Theatre, in his playlet, "The Man Hig Up," which has been such a great dram success.

Only a few more days will see the act filming completed of "Half-A-Dollar Bill," ing made by the Graf Productions. Most the company, including little Frankie Darr and the two dogs have been to sea in a sail ship the last five or six days. However, fat Neptune has been kind, the ocean has b smooth, and not a single case of sea-sickn has been reported.

Mary Pickford, and Douglas Fairbanks w the guests of the city on Sunday and Mon to help welcome the riders of the Pony E press on their arrival at the new Tanfo Track. Our Mary awarded a gold medal the winning rider of the pony express r while Douglas did stunts in the big ro Mary and Doug were met by Mayor Ro and a committee of leading citizens on t arrival here.

Louise Lovely, motion picture star and st favorite is the headliner at the Orpheum T atre this week in an unusual act called "A L At The Studios," during which Miss Lov will coach men and women from the audie in a scene that might be used on the scr A full equipment of lights, electricians, st hands and cameramen are actually carried Miss Lovely, so that pictures are really ta of the new actors, to be shown on the scr next week.

Earl Williams, his wife, and Constance T madge, are guests at the St. Francis. E Williams came to do a dock-side scene fo picture, and Constance Talmadge "Just Ca along," she says, for a little holliday.

CASTS OF THE WEEK

Robert Z. Leonard
presents
MAE MURRAY
in
"FASHION ROW"
by
Sada Cowan and Howard Higgin.
Photographed by Oliver T. Marsh.
Art Director, Cedric Gibbons.
CAST:

Olga Farinova	Mae Murray
Eric Van Cortlendt	Freeman Wood
James Morton	Earle Fox
Mrs. Van Cortlendt	Mathilde Brundage
Kainanoff	Elmo Lincoln

GOLD SEAL PRODUCTIONS
present
"RIDERS OF THE DESERT"
Co-Directed by Emil Greville and Roy Hughes.
Camaraman, R. C. Hughes
CAST:

Miles Leavens	Thos. Hutchinson
Donna Hale	J. H. Rush
Harry LaVerne	Scott McGee
Bert Apling

PHIL GOLDSTONE PRODS.
presents
"DO IT NOW"
Directed by Duke Worne

Wm. Fairbanks	Dorothy Revere
Madge Bellamy	Arthur White
Alex Francis	John Fox, Jr.
Wm. Nye

Harry S. Northrup has been engaged by Metro to play one of the leading parts in "The Living Past," taken from the book, "The Tale of Triona," to be directed by Harold Shaw.

Mr. Northrup was last seen in the leading heavy roles of Mrs. Wallace Reid's "Human Wreckage," and "Saved By Radio."

CASTS OF THE WEEK

Chas. R. Seeling Prods.
Present
GEORGE LARKIN
in
"CHAINED LIGHTNIN'"
Directed by Chas. Seeling.
Photographed by Vernon Walker.
Story by Jeanne Poe.
CAST:

George Larkin	Aline Goodwin
Wm. Quinn	Ollie Kirby
Otto Metzetti	Michael Baio

Bob Horner Productions
present
"ISLES OF PARADISE"
Directed by Bob Horner.
Photographed by Elmer Dyer.
Assisted by Harry Burns.
CAST:

Eva Novak	George Chesebro
Phil Dunbar	Bob Slaughter
Tom Ryan	Ray Hanford
R. Hildebrand	Frank M. Clark

LAVAL PHOTOPLAY, LTD.
present
"THE VITAL QUESTION"
Directed by P. Cazeneoye
Photographed by Harry Webb
CAST:

Andre Lafayette	Eddie Tilton
Jack Perrin	W. H. Turner
Max Constanc	Helen Ferguson
Bernard Randall	Ortha Alba

(Continued on Page 21)

Long Days of Toil Bring Reward to Young Sculptor

From jungle-dweller to extra-man in the movies, from extra-man to painter and sculptor, with a prospect of rounding out his career in Paris—such is the avatar of Carlos Gemore, otherwise Charles Gilmore, or, better yet, just Charley, as he is more generally known. Charley was born a scant eighteen years ago in the island of Negros, one of the Philippines. His mother was a Spanish native of the island, and his father an American soldier. While Charley was still a toddler—yet familiar with every detail of the savage brush that encompassed his home—his father died of a jungle-fever, and from that day on Charley began to dream about the great country whence his father had come and whither, without doubt, his spirit had returned. Even in those days, Charley was fashioning beasts and birds from the black mud of the river banks, trying to catch the colors of the tropic sunsets in the crude pigment of the local boat-builders. But his chief dream was of America.

Last year he followed his dream. He came as a "wiper" in the engine-room of a freighter. The freighter dumped him, with much else of its cargo, onto the big piers of Los Angeles harbor. From there to the moving picture studios of Hollywood was but a brief step to the traveler. It was a hard one, though. Charley almost starved. What did that matter? In Charley's limited English, "studio" meant "art"; and anyway, he was in America, the home of his blonde and heroic father.

One of Charley's first jobs was as a member of the huge mobs employed in the filming of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" at Universal City. Now the reality exceeded any dream of his. He found himself surrounded by magnificent architecture, great sculpture and painting.

His own innate art began to blossom. He made hundreds of studies with charcoal, pencil-stubs, discarded brushes—on planks, scraps of "compo" board, the back of reflectors. He scrimped on food and bought modelling clay, with which he worked at night. He did a pair of marvellous statuettes, one of them showing Lon Chaney as the "hunchback," and another of Ernest Torrance as "Clopin," king of the Paris beggars.

One day his work was remarked by Perley Poore Sheehan, who had adapted "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" to the screen and was supervising the production. Mr. Sheehan had spent much of his life in the art centers of Europe and was amazed to find that the sketches and figurines were the product of an untrained youth. Through his recommendation the budding Phideas was given a place in Universal's art department—itself almost as perfect a school for young artists as could be found this side of Paris.

Now Charley spends his entire days modelling and painting to his heart's content. He has made an intensive study of Universal's replica of Notre Dame, and he aspires to make a holy pilgrimage to the great original. But America is his own country, now and forever—so Charley says in his lisping, broken English. There is no longer a Carlos Gemore, Filipino; it is Charles Gilmore, American.

New Camera Presents Many Great Changes

Making perspective pictures by the new "natural vision" motion picture system just invented by George K. Spoor, owner of the famous old Essanay Company, and the eminent physicist, P, John Berggren, graduate of the Royal Academy, Stockholm, Sweden, brings forth so much that is new in the cinema art that little of the old is left.

The changes in the mechanics and optics are almost complete ones. The optical system in the new camera brings to the photographic art a system of view recording as different as is night from day.

The cinema camera of the past records its view through round lens in the same manner that any common camera makes its plate or film record—with one eye only. The camera of the new perspective pictures made with the "natural vision" system, makes its photographic record upon the film through two square lenses, which give to the appearance of the camera the impression of two small windows where the customary lens is usually found.

The optical system of the new "natural vision" camera contains twenty-six optical members, divided into a corollary of convex and concave lenses and prisms.

The construction of this wonderful lens first involved the designing and building of a lens testing apparatus of extraordinary proportions, nothing of its kind having ever before been attempted, and so strange and unusual was this apparatus when completed, that it attracted much attention from experts at the U. S. Bureau of Standards, at Washington.

The mechanical part of the camera, owing to the fact that a film of much greater area and length was to be used, presented many problems and consequently called to camera "insides" which are all new in computation and assembly.

With the basic principles of camera entirely changed, it necessarily followed that the perforating machine, the printing machine, the projecting machine and even the screen, which receives a view forty feet wide by twenty-one feet high, all be made to conform with the great and radical changes adopted for the wonderful new photographic machine which is to give to the world a new and marvelous form of education and entertainment, heretofore beyond the dreams of the most expectant.

With these strange and fascinating devices come to the producer of motion pictures new and strange problems in the making of productions, the familiar camera angles, so dear to the heart of the expert camera man and director, are all things of the past in making perspective pictures with the new "natural vision" system, which has two perspectives as its base.

Every camera man has his "pet" set of lenses today, each of which performs wonderful things for him and his director and his director relies upon him for the extraordinary and unusual "shots" he obtains when shooting a scene.

The "natural vision" camera sees just like a human being and what it sees it delivers to the negative in a manner identical to the human experience of seeing with two eyes.

The other mechanics and optics used in the system of "natural vision" pictures re-create for the spectator in a perfectly natural way exactly that which is before its marvelous human eyes and does this entirely without distortion of any kind.

The camera men at Essanay must learn once again new and unusual operations in the photographing of a production. The director as well will encounter a great change in staging productions. He will find that the new camera will make small sets large and his problem will be to hold them down. Then he will find that strange as it may seem, a large set will have its real expanse and for the first time in his long experience, the camera will record bigness where bigness is before it. The strange thing here is that the new camera of the "natural vision" system makes small sets appear larger than they are and they must necessarily be constructed even smaller than the sets for the present day camera, which incidentally reduces their cost. Even larger sets need be built half the size of the present day effort to appear more stupendous than we are accustomed to this moment.

This is a direct reversal of present day methods, for it is a well known fact that the motion picture camera of today makes a large set look small when projected.

Then more to come in the way of new experience will be the elimination of the ever convenient "close-up." The new "natural vision" camera, with its perspective pictures, does not find it necessary to give the spectator a long distance view of a mammoth set or scene and then immediately jump the camera into the set and take bits of it, with the close-up of the actors to register expression, thought or beauty, then back again to show you the big scene is still there with a repetition of the same close-up operation time and again. Not at all, "natural vision" dictates differently, as will be seen and appreciated when the first production is ready for showing.

The continuity writer must adopt a new and studied form of layout of the script and the greatest difficulty of the producer will be in his effort to make the person who performs this task forget most that his training has taught him, to come fresh with an open mind, to receive and follow instructions in the new order of things that lie just ahead in the production of a new form of amusement that millions of fans are awaiting almost spellbound to see, and which is already in the making in Chicago.

With the Cinema Stars of Today

Where do good movie actors come from? Does any one section of the country contribute more histrionic talent to the silversheet than another, and was the stage the original training school for a majority of the picture industry's well-known players?

These questions are burning ones with numerous fans who follow the careers of the brightest lights in the spectacular cinema firmament and for this reason the following information has been compiled for the edification and peace of mind of "ardent fan," an "admirer" and the scores of others who pen notes to the players of the screen propounding the intimate queries.

William V. Mong, noted character leading man, was born in Chambersburg, Pa. Following several years as a district school teacher, he deserted the high lights of education for the footlights of the stage.

Al St. John, Fox star commedian, was born and raised in Santa Ana, Cal. He served as a lifeguard at Long Beach for a few years and it was through his daring in the water that Mack Sennett engaged him for minor parts. St. John rose to stardom quickly.

Charles Jones, another Fox luminary, is a product of Red Rock, Okla. He entered the movies via the cowboy route and since has become one of the more popular stars of the cinema world.

Dorothy Phillips was born and raised in Baltimore, Md. Following a private school and college education she studied dramatic art and went on the legitimate stage at an early age. Today she is a famous star.

Eulalie Jensen, noted featured player, was born in New York, and received her early stage training in musical comedy and vaudeville. She is now in great demand at the Hollywood studios.

King Baggot is a native of St. Louis, Mo. He began his stage career in dramatic stock and is now one of the foremost actors and directors of the movie world.

James Morrison is a product of Matoon, Ill. He is a college graduate and also a graduate of the speaking stage, having begun his career as an actor in vaudeville.

Joe Bonner by chance ran into his old partners, Tommy and Mabel Price, with whom he had toured the country in a vaudeville act. The trio have been engaged to entertain radioites for one of the daily newspapers broadcasting stations, doing the old act. While the vaudevillians are in town Joe is showing them about the studios, and giving them an opportunity to see just why he left the road to settle down in cinemaland where he has proven himself a very clever juvenile actor, as well a clever funster.

College Graduate Reaches Stardom

Donna Hale, who was recently featured in "Blarney," a Roy Hughes production, has the feminine lead in "Riders of the Desert" which Hughes is finishing at the present time for Gold Seal Productions. Miss Hale made her film debut less than two years ago, just after graduating from Kidd University in Texas; in fact, she was first discovered by Director Hughes while enacting a leading role in a lawn fest at one of the graduation programs. She was given a part in his next picture and established her right to play leading parts.

Miss Hale was president of the Players Club of the university and made many appearances while on tour with them. Her former classmates and friends are now showering her with congratulations upon her recent successes and are asking her to make personal appearances in the college towns where she is so well known. She is a keen student and lover of good literature, and is constantly studying dramatic art. Her part in "Riders of the Desert" affords her many opportunities to display her ability, and should prove a distinct triumph for her.

M. P. P. A. Chief to Become a Producer

Entering the field of supplying extra talent to studios and independent producers some eight months ago, Harry C. Ells, president of the Motion Picture Players Association, unknown and unfamiliar to the picture industry, has made an enviable record and a host of friends through a policy of service to both the actor and producer and his retirement at this time as the chief executive of the Players Association will no doubt be regretted by its many members.

When asked for a reason for the change Mr. Ells stated frequent requests from friends for his entering the producing field had finally convinced him that greater opportunities were available in the making of educational and special films, than the strenuous duties of highly intensified organization work. Before entering the picture industry Mr. Ells spent several years as executive seceretary in Chamber of Commerce work, his last connection in that line being with the Alhambra Chamber of Commerce, which position he resigned last November to organize the Motion Picture Players Association.

Carl Stockdale, one of the most competent artists of the screen in character roles, will play the role of the bookkeeper in Bryant Washburn's first picture.

M. Maurice Cohen of Paris, correspondent for many foreign publications and formerly an actor and director in picture studios of France, was a recent visitor at the Grand Studios.

New York Critics Pre-View "Rosita"

A new jewel is today glistening in Mary Pickford's crown of fame, due to the success of the New York opening of "Rosita," her latest photoplay, which had its premiere at the Lyric Theatre in the heart of the Metropolitan theatrical district.

Wires to the little star from friends in New York as well as from members of the United Artists organization indicate that this film will not only be Mary's best but will prove one of the worthwhile cinemas of the year.

Among those who telegraphed their congratulations were Mary Hay, Richard Barthelmess, George and Percy Fawcett, Hartley Manners and Laurette Taylor, Sol Lesser, Maud Salvini, Mrs. Bertha Case, wife of Frank Case who owns the Algonquin Hotel, and many others.

From Hiram Abrams, president of the United Artists Corporation, came the following:

"Press unanimous in praise of your remarkable acting, the magnificent photography, the bigness of the production as well as Lubitsch' direction."

"Rosita" is understood to be noteworthy as a photoplay for three reasons: To begin with, it represents Ernst Lubitsch' first directorial effort in America. Second, it is the first time Mary Pickford has appeared in an adult role throughout an entire picture. And last, the film is distinctive because of photographic innovations for which Charles Rosher is responsible.

A notable member of the cast with Miss Pickford is Holbrook Blinn, playing the part of the philandering king.

"Rosita" is expected to be released generally in the late Fall.

Heavy Scores As Character Man

The rise of George Siegmann to a position commanding respect as one of the industry's foremost character and heavy men is one that is exciting no little comment among the trade. It has even come to a point where exhibitors feel that there is some value in mentioning him in the billing. Producers realizing this are calling upon Siegmann to play roles that are not even of first importance simply in order to have his name on the cast.

It may be Siegmann's extraordinary work in "Merry Go Round" that has suddenly caused his individual stock to rise, but be that as it may, it remains that he no sooner terminated the difficult role of Danton, the French patriot in Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche" than he was engaged in Maurice Tourneur's "Jealous Fools," and while still donning the grease paint he was engaged by Thomas H. Ince for a principal role in the film version of O'Neil's great play, "Anna Christie."

Siegmann entered the movie game in its very infantile days—even before the entrance of such latter day lights as Pickford, Chaplin, Griffith, etc. Slowly, but steadily he has been climbing up the celluloid ladder and his career counting from "The Birth of a Nation" up to "Merry Go Round" has been a series of big parts in big pictures—probably the record for any character or heavy in the business.

THE SCHENCK LINE UP

"The Dangerous Maid," starring Constance Talmadge, is now in the cutting rooms and will be completely edited in about three weeks. This story of the turbulent times of King James II of England was directed by Victor Heerman for First National release.

Buster Keaton will be the next to finish. Buster is now making "Hospitality," his second feature length production. In "Hospitality" Buster's wife, Natalie Talmadge Keaton and Baby Buster as well as Buster's father, "Joe Keaton," have important roles. The first sequence of "Hospitality" were made at Truckee. Other scenes were filmed on the United Studios lot and the comedy is now being completed at the Keaton Studios.

Norma Talmadge is about third done with her big Algerian spectacle-drama, "Dust of Desire," the scenes of which are laid in and around the famous oasis of Biskra in Northern Africa. "Dust of Desire" is being directed by Chester Franklin and Frances Marion. Joseph Schildkraut, the famous Continental star, heads the all-star cast. "Dust of Desire" will be ready for editing in about a month.

Critics Praise a Late Offering of Trimble

After eight months of constant work, Director Laurence Trimble is putting the finishing touches to Strongheart's third and latest starring vehicle, "The Love Master," which is now ready for early fall release. The locale of this picture, from an original story by Jane Murfin and Trimble, is the Canadian Rockies, and the location work was done at Banff and Lake Louise.

Critics who have seen "The Love Master" declare Trimble has achieved Strongheart's greatest triumph and that this picture will surpass "The Silent Call," which firmly established the wonder dog as a picture star, and his second release, "Brawn of the North."

The human story in "The Love Master" is stronger than in either of the dog's two previous pictures and still Strongheart has a great part. Those who remember the trial scene in "The Silent Call" as one of the great moments in great pictures will find Strongheart has two such great moments in his new picture.

For thrills Trimble has secured some wolf pack scenes never before equalled or even attempted on the screen. There is also a great sled dog race in which fifteen teams, piloted by the greatest drivers in western Canada, risk life and limb in a mad dash over the glaciers and snow-banked peaks of Lake Louise, one of the scenic spots of the world.

In all, the Trimble company was in Canada nearly five months filming "The Love Master," and the picture is declared a marvel of scenic grandeur and photography. The interiors were made in Hollywood.

In the supporting cast with Strongheart is Mrs. Strongheart, nee Lady Jule von Helmetal This is her first screen appearance. Others having principal parts in the human story include Lillian Rich, Harold Austin, John J. Richardson, Tom O'Brien, Donna Barrell, Joe Barrell, Walter Perry, Hal W. Wilson and Baron Henri Arnous de Riviere.

May Emory, for years connected with the Mack Sennett comedies, who has of late been appearing in feature length subjects, is the proud possessor of one of the most complete wardrobes of any of the feminine actresses that are now gracing the boards in cinemaland.

Considerable rivalry exists between Monty Banks and Sid Smith, Grand - Asher comedy stars, as to which shall have a house warming first. Both have new homes in Hollywood, but Monty got moved in a bit before Sid's was completed. However, Monty is still holding off and Sid swears he plans to have a party the same night. Probably they'll toss a dollar to see which entertains first.

One-Minute Interviews With Famous Film Folk

By MALCOM STUART BOYLAN

"Miss Breamer, you are of Australian birth. Now, do you think that there is any temperamental difference between the Colonials and the British that might influence one's work on the screen?"

"Temperament, I believe, originates with one's parents and immediate associates, rather than with geography. The British are restrained emotionally in comparison with the Latins, for instance, but between the British of England and the British of the colonies there is no difference of mannerism that could be noticed on the screen.

"Miss Enid Bennett, a beautiful and gifted actress, is an Australian by birth. But I do not believe that an observer could watch her art from a theatre seat and learn the place of her birth.

"The silent drama is internationally incognito, because of its silence. There is no accent to identify one's geographical origin. It is entirely a matter of appearance.

"In 'Thundergate,' as an example, Mr. Owen Moore looks entirely Chinese when that is the requirement of the story and half-caste when the trend of the drama changes. Mr. McKim might be British, Italian, Celtic or French."

Miss Breamer shared prestige with the all-star cast of First National's "Thundergate" and is now playing an important role in "Her Temporary Husband" for that company.

"Miss Moore, what do you think of the strange international situation between Italy and Greece?"

"I think as little as possible about it, and with apprehension. For a young girl to impose her views on the public on such a serious subject would be taking an unfair advantage of the freedom of the press.

"Girls with whom I went to school would not be asked to express an opinion on a matter that bewilders statesmen. I am asked because the public has been kind enough to recognize me as a screen player.

"Even if my publicity director knew enough to intelligently answer the question in my behalf, I would not allow my opinion to be thrust upon thinking adults.

"I pray, devoutly, that the difference between nations will not again lead to war. I do not like Greek restaurants; nor do I like spaghetti, but I should dislike to see anyone fighting about it."

Miss Moore has just finished the leading role of "Flaming Youth," filmed under the direction of John Francis Dillon from Warner Fabian's novel and offered as an Associated First National picture.

"Miss Faire, would you rather the publicity department would describe you as a spectacularly beautiful girl with a profound intellect, or as a nice little girl, moderately pretty, who is trying to get along?"

"The latter!

"Bad advertising has killed more picture players than lack of publicity.

"Blatant blithering about screen folk must be getting fearfully tiresome to the general public. It is to me. I would much rather be known as a sincere worker with a possibility for success than as a simpering doll for whom fame and fortune has been prescribed by destiny."

"Miss Faire, what can you say about your latest picture?"

"Nothing. I did not understand that it was to be the purpose of this brief interview to discuss any definite production."

Miss Faire has just finished an important leading role in First National's production, "Thundergate," directed by Joseph de Grasse from Sidney Marshal Small's story, "The Lord of Thundergate."

"Mr. Bird, of all the hundreds of beautiful women you have photographed, whom do you consider the best subject?"

"That is an unfair question and to answer would probably abrogate my insurance.

"Each has some elusive charm which is not always captured by the camera. Many of the most charming have a face for every hour and a mood for every minute."

"Mr. Bird, Associated First National has three young women under contract with whom you are in frequent professional contact. Surely, Miss Colleen Moore, Miss Sylvia Breamer and Miss Virginia Brown Faire are first on your list of beautiful women?"

"Not necessarily. I did not understand that this informal chat was to be diplomatic.

"Miss Moore, for instance, is too animated; too fleeting in her almost innumerable expressions to be a perfect subject, for a camera that requires a motionless moment. When portraits are made exclusively by the motion picture camera, Miss Moore will be the perfect subject.

"Miss Breamer is statuesque. She must be photographed only in dignified poses and her beauty is so delicate that it is sadly influenced by lights. She is difficult to photograph, but the effort is well worth making.

"Miss Faire is a charming subject, but she thinks so deeply that it is not always easy to change her mood to suit the moment's requirement of the still camera. I like to photograph her in the low tones of old paintings."

Priscilla Moran in "Daddies" Cast

One of the most important child roles to be given away in recent months was handed to Priscilla Moran this week by "Bill" Seiter, who is to direct David Belasco's great stage success, "Daddies," for Warner Brothers. Mr. Seiter and Jack Warner have interviewed more than sixty of the screen's most lovable children during the past thirty days, seeking one to play the part of "Sammy" in "Daddies," and on the very day that they were to decide upon their choice, in walked Priscilla and their quest was ended. She was engaged for the important role immediately. Priscilla will be remembered as the little girl who lived with the Coogans for several months and was widely reported to be Jackie's adopted sister. She is a remarkably beautiful child with an almost uncanny natural ability for acting.

Other notables in the large cast of "Daddies" are Monte Blue, Harry Myers, Mae Marsh, Claude Gillingwater and many others. Production will start this week.

The Hercules Film Co., Inc., with headquarters at the Russell studio, have just completed their new feature, "Let's Go," directed by Jack Nelson. The corporation, under the California laws, has in its personnel, Otto Poll, Marco Charles, John Charles, Peter Andrews and Wm. Walthein and was organized for the purpose of filming 5-reel features for the independent market. Jack Pello, the star, is well known for his athletic stunts and is supported by a cast which includes Eva Novak, Milburn Moranti, Dick Sutherland, Joe Girard, Billy Elmer and others. Casting is in charge of Marco Charles, who is busy selecting players for the next picture, to start the latter part of September.

Harry La Verne has just finished playing the part of Tweed Silver, the genteel heavy, in "Riders of the Desert," which was made for Gold Seal Productions under the direction of Roy Hughes. He is slated to enact a similar role in Gold Seal's next film, tentatively entitled "The Man From Thundergap."

Summer has come and gone and George Siegmann is still planning to take a few days off but casting directors seem particularly anxious not to give him a breathing spell between pictures. In straight order Siegmann has appeared in Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche", Maurice Tourneur's "Jealous Fools" and Thomas H. Ince's "Anna Christie." Following close upon the heels of the latter production he was signed up for Allen Holubar's screen version of "The Bishop of Cottontown" and the Goldwyn production of Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks." George is now looking forward to having Christmas off—maybe.

Makes Ready For Busy Fall Season

Under the direction of Norman Manning, studio manager for Principal Pictures Corporation, the first few dollars of the company's appropriation for studio expansion, are being put into circulation.

A new dressing room building has just been completed, of the one-story bungalow type. It is the last word in modern construction and the large, airy rooms are completely equipped with every known convenience for donning the make-up. The fifteen additional rooms are divided into three star suites, two large rooms for extra players and seven singles.

Also a new high-powered generator has been installed to take care of the additional "juice" required for the increased production activities.

Manning, a landscape artist of no mean ability, has been laying out the grounds surrounding the executive offices, and rows of brilliant geraniums, smooth green lawns and young pepper trees serve to make this studio one of the most attractive in Los Angeles.

Fifteen acres of ground adjoining the Pickford-Fairbanks studio on Santa Monica Boulevard, comprise the Principal Pictures lot. The studio was formerly owned by Florence and King Vidor, but was taken over by Sol Lesser and his associates early last Spring. It is here that the Harold Bell Wright novels are being filmed. "When a Man's a Man," featuring John Bowers and Marguerite De La Motte, has just been finished and is now in the cutting room. The second Wright story to be screened, "The Winning of Barbara Worth," starring Florence Vidor, will go into production early in October.

Eddie Cline is at present busy on the big stage directing Bennie Zeidman's production for Principal Pictures, "The Good Bad Boy," featuring Joe Butterworth and Forrest Robinson. Harry Langdon and his company are in the midst of the second two reel comedy of this series, under the direction of Alf Goulding, with June Marlowe playing opposite the star.

Principal Pictures Corporation, though a young organization, has made terrific strides in both the production and distribution ends of the motion picture business, and promises to become a recognized leader in the industry.

Surprise Awaits Morrison

Practical joker friends of James Woods Morrison have arranged a reception for the young leading man upon his return from playing in New York "On the Banks of the Wabash." He will be taken to lunch where the orchestra has been bribed to play the same melody exclusively, and in his apartment he will find phonograph records of the same old number as a baritone solo, as a violin solo, as a concert number by a well-known band, and as syncopated by a well-known jazz singer.

Syd Returns to Screen

Good news for motion picture producers as well as fans comes in Syd Chaplin's declaration that henceforth he will devote himself exclusively to screen acting.

Originally, back in the days when he was a star performer in the London music halls, Syd Chaplin was the older, successful brother, doing his utmost to get a start for his "kid brother," Charlie. In fact, it was the insistence of the London vaudeville managers that he fulfill his contracts there which kept Syd from coming to this country and gave Charlie the opportunity to display his art in America — and hence came his start in pictures. Later, Syd came over here, too, acted in a number of comedies and directed a few—but was forced to give most of his attention to managing Charlie's business affairs. Soon he found himself interested in other business ventures and thus his screen appearance became spasmodic, fed and far between.

Realizing that he must concentrate his efforts, Syd Chaplin has now decided to devote himself exclusively to acting before the camera—and thus another great comedian will come into his own. Especially, he plans to create those roles which afford comedy relief to the highly dramatic plots that are coming into vogue again on the screen. He recently concluded such a part, with Marshall Neilan in "The Rendezvous," a grim Russian tragedy. At the present time, Syd is a member of the all-star cast making "Her Temporary Husband" for First National Pictures.

Cummings Guides Classic

Can you imagine an actor writing to a theatre manager and asking that his name be taken down out of the electric lighted sign in front of the theatre showing a production in which he had a leading role?

It's hard to swallow, but such a player has been discovered in Hollywood, California.

Irving Cummings is the rara avis, which is Latin for queer bird, who sent a note to the manager of Loew's State theatre where "Rupert of Hentzau" was playing asking that his "place in the sun" be given to someone else in the cast.

The reason is that Cummings has turned his entire energies toward directing and independent producing, and has no further grease paint aspirations. Since appearing in "Rupert of Hentzau" Cummings has made two big productions on his own "Chicago Sal" and "Broken Hearts of Broadway," and now Carl Laemmle is entrusting him with making "My Mamie Rose" with Mary Philbin, which is to be even greater than "Merry Go Round."

Samuel Bishoff, auditing director of Grand-Asher Distributing Corp., whose offices are in New York, is in Hollywood for an extended visit. He was delighted with the development of the organization since its inception and impressed by the amazing growth of Southern California since his last visit a couple of years ago.

Ethel Barrymore May Return

Ethel Barrymore, while appearing in Los Angeles on the vaudeville stage, visited Conway Tearle at the United Studios where he is playing the leading role in "Black Oxen."

The occasion marked Tearle's sixth year in motion pictures and was celebrated by a luncheon at the studio attended by various First National movie celebrities.

It was just six years ago to a day that Miss Barrymore made her debut in films and insisted upon Conway Tearle, her leading man on the stage, to play opposite her in the picturization of "The Nightingale."

"I wanted a man as green as I was to pictures," laughed Miss Barrymore, "just to feel at home."

"And, Conway," addressing the actor, "when are you coming back to the stage, where you and your talents belong?"

"When you return to the screen Ethel, and bring the genius of the Barrymores to this new art," replied Tearle.

"Well, to tell what's been a secret, Conway—I am considering an offer. That is, if certain interests can get the screen rights to a certain play, they plan to make me a very handsome offer, I am told—one that I can not withstand."

"Now that we are exchanging confidences, Ethel, I may tell you that I may be on Broadway again this winter. There's something brewing, but then—the California climate you know and the wonderful big pictures now being made—they can only be found in Hollywood."

Co-operation Is a Keynote to Success

"Harmony," says Elliott Dexter, "is the keynote of success in the making of pictures, as it is in any walk of life."

Mr. Dexter is now making his first pcture for Grand-Asher, with R. William Neill at the helm. "I have seen many instances of people endeavoring to work without harmony," says the star, "and never have I seen them accomplish anything worth while. That is why, in my company, I insist that people shall reflect that quality which begets a mutual regard and co-operation. It is the principle upon which the entire studio is conducted and that is one of my strongest reasons for feeling that I have at last achieved a goal toward which I have long been striving, the production of my own pictures under conditions that make for success and happiness.

"The very spirit of the story I am doing is built upon the law of harmony. As "the prince" a mission worker, I am called upon to right wrongs through the correct handling of situations that might ordinarily lead to tragic results. And there is tragedy in the story but in every instance it leads to ultimate good. Thus a man who is unscrupulous is finally made aware of his mistake and is regenerated; true love finds its realization and after many terrific situations, the end is harmony.

"I have never been happier in my life than I am now—and I think this evidences the truth of my assertion, that without harmonious surroundings there can be neither success nor satisfaction."

NOTED FRENCH ACTRESS

Star of the Paris stage before the World War, creator of numerous roles, in Sarah Bernhardt's support in several plays, a Red Cross nurse and finally in pictures—that's the record of Mme. Rose Dione, French actress of rare talent and beauty who is playing the role of modiste in Bryant Washburn's first production for Grand-Asher, directed by Cullen Tate.

Mme. Dione played both comedy and tragedy on the stage. She appeared in "Madame X" over 400 times in France and when fifteen did her first role with the immortal Sarah Bernhardt.

At the Theatre Sarah Bernhardt she played in "Les Mauvais Bergers"—freely, "The Bad Shepherd." She came to America after numerous experiences abroad with a French company playing in New York. From there she went to Montreal in stock. Finally she reached Hollywood and has played in photodramas with Mary Pickford, Nazimova and others.

The role of Mme. Florio in "Try and Get It," Washburn's picture which was adapted from Eugene P. Lyle's story "The Ring-Tailed Galliwampus" is a highly pleasing one in which Mme. Dione's natural vivacity and exotic mannerisms fit perfectly.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

NEW DANCE STEPS

Craig Biddle has originated a w dance called "The Lincoln urry" which is unique. It is vided into three parts. The st part has one step to each ats of the music. The second rt has one step to one beat. The ird part has two steps to each at. The dance begins with very ow steps and ends with very fast eps. Some of the expert danc- g teachers say that the "Lincoln urry" will be generally adopted is fall.

UR LOST AND FOUND DEPT.

Found: The first King Tut oustache. Lew Cody owns it id he got it from Jim, the Gold- yn barber, seven years ago at old iceville.

The idea originated with Jim hen Cody complaintd that he had fficulty in keeping his moustache irled. Therefore the barber con- ived the idea of shaving the oustache in a semi-curve to give e appearance of curling. The oustache, which stays curled ithout waxing, has been a char- teristic of Cody's ever since. m, the barber, claims King Tut id his curled whiskers are only imitation of Cody's moustache.

Clara Bow, 17-year-old Brook- n high school girl, has been ected to play the part of Janet glethorpe, a society flapper in rank Lloyd's independent pro- uction of "Black Oxen" which is be released as a First National cture.

Miss Bow recently came to ollywood as the winner of a ame and Fortune Contest and llowing her appearance in Down to the Sea in Ships" was gned to a long term contract by . P. Schulberg by whose courtesy e is enabled to appear in "Black xen."

Mr. Lloyd made tests of over a ozen flapper types before he lected Miss Bow whom he de- ribes as vicacious, intelligent, thletic and attractive enough to e the center of interest at any arty. The selection of Miss Bow aves but two characters for Black Oxen" unfilled—Prince Iohenauer and Mrs. Jane Olge- norpe. Corinne Griffith and Con- ay Tearle are the featured leads f the production.

AST NAMED FOR FIRST PRODUCTION

It would be hard to find a more rilliant galaxy of players than hat chosen to support Elliott Dexter when he makes his bow s a Grand-Asher star, in his ini- ial offering in the field of actor- roducer.

Mildred Harris plays the lead- ing feminine role, opposite the star, in the character of Lorraine Meade. Mr. Dexter has the part of Austin Ferrol, dubbed "The Prince"; Anders Randolf, one of the world's greatest screen heavies, is Johnson Trent, a political boss; Grace Carlisle, beautiful and tal- ented, is Mrs. Trent and Sydney Bracey, character actor of re- markable versatility, is "Tug" Wilson, an underworld crook. Little Jeanne Carpenter is Betty Trent. There will be many types and bits played by carefully chosen actors and actresses.

Admirable settings and some thrilling episodes will be found in this picture which is one of the really "different" productions.

Ray June is first cameraman for R. William Neill who is making Elliott Dexter's first production. June. Estep is publicity photo- grapher for the organization. To avoid confusion, Mr. Dexter sug- gests that the latter be called "June First" and the former "June Last."

THRILLS GALORE ....

"I've never worked harder in my life nor enjoyed it more," de- clares Billie Rhodes, who is in the midst of her first Grand- Asher feature, produced by Ben Wilson, called "Leave It To Gerry." "As a sort of tomboy girl," she continued, "I have been kept on the jump from morning till night. I've had to ride a bucking burro, milk a goat with a predelection to kick be the only girl in a wild football game; climb the side of a house on a clinging vine which breaks half way up so that I fall; I've slipped on hardwood floors, fallen down stairs, driven an automobile down the worst road I ever saw in my life at a high speed—and, well, I can't think of any more just at the moment.

"But I actually enjoy it, be- cause while this is pretty rough acting, it is not slapstick, and it is all in character. I feel the role and the story is convincing and human, and I think we will have a very delightful picture."

Adam Hull Shirk wrote and Arthur Statter adapted the story.

JENNINGS TO WEAR SHIELD

DeWitt Jennings has been en- gaged for Elliott Dexter's first production. He plays the import- ant role of Farley, the detective. Mr. Jennings is a native of Salt Lake City and had a stage career of twenty years duration before beginning his screen work with Pathe and other companies. He is regarded as an excellent char- acter man.

CAMERA MAN BALKED BY METAPHYSICS

Joe Walker, well known cine- matographer who is photograph- ing Mozumdar's "Beyond the Veil," admits that he accepted the job with considerable fear. He thought he'd be called on to pho- tograph metaphysical thought, since he knew the Hindu religion- ist's reputation along these lines. Fortunately, the metaphysical is the least obstrusive aspect of the picture and all Joe has to "shoot" —apparently—is a highly dramatic story played by Mozumdar and an accomplished cast of players.

WANDA HAWLEY FINDS POLITEST MAN

While Wanda Hawley was working before the camera in Egypt, during her just-completed foreign trip, the city of Luxor was visited by the Queen of Bel- gium. Both of these famous ladies happened to be boarding the same ferry across the Nile to King Tut's tomb; and the screen queen was assisted by Sheykh Sid Achmed el Gabir, of Mena. The gallant Bedouin exclaimed that he would far rather serve her than the hereditary royalty present. That retort, claims Miss Hawley, wins him the Chesterfieldian medal!

WINIFRED DUNN IN ROME

Recent callers to see Winifred Dunn, Metro's scenario editor, at her studio office, have been in- formed that she was in Rome. In the interests of truth, it must be announced that her absence is purely metaphorical. She is at present delving in ancient Roman lore, for an important sequence in "The Man Whom Life Passed By," Victor Schertzinger's next production at Metro.

ROSEMARY THEBY FINISHES DANA PICTURE

After thirteen years in the films, Rosemary Theby has just finished her first experience in working be- fore the camera as a Parisian apache. It was in Viola Dana's latest vehicle, "In Search of a Thrill"; and Miss Theby's role in- cluded a characteristic dance that she proclaims her roughest experi- ence in all her screen career. All for art!

MANY NOTABLES IN CAST

Jane Murfin, who, with Justin H. McCloskey, directed the Trim- ble-Murfin Production, "The Sign," has finished editing and titling this all-star production and it will be given a pre-view within a few days. In the cast are such favorites as May Allison, Rock- liffe Fellowes, Edward Horton, who has just completed "Ruggles of Red Gap," Harry Mestayer, Eddie Phillips, Vera Reynolds, Tom O'Brien and others.

Harry Gribbon connection with Mack Sennett through a period of almost 10 years has made him one of the best known of funsters in two-reel comedies.

Mr. Gribbon only a short while back was given a starring role in a new series of fun-films and he came through with such flying colors that he is destined to do bigger and better things from now on.

Marjorie Meadows, well known in English theatrical circles, who came here to try her hand at screen work, has been quietly gaining her point, and putting in such effort that has won for her the much desired opportunity, for after appearing in an even dozen comedies via the two-reel route at the Century studios, she has been selected to work in a five-reel feature, and is to be given equal screen credit with the all-star cast. So, some of the ambitious in- genues who have failed to be as fortunate as Marjorie, can now sit back and say that old man "Opportunity" knocks now and then, if we just wait patiently for the day of his coming.

LIKE THEIR MUSIC

A four-tube receiving set has been installed in the scenario room at the Buster Keaton Studios. Here concerts are enjoyed during intervals when Buster's scenario writers, Jean Havez, Joe Mitchell and Clyde Bruckman, feel the need for a respite from the grind of work. The concerts are also a tempting prelude for the daily conference between the scenario staff, Buster, Director Jack Bly- stone and Lou Anger, Buster's manager.

Radio concerts were first intro- duced during the working out of the story of "Hospitality," Bus- erican life in 1830, which is now being made to be released by Joseph M. Schenck Productions through Metro. The making of a comedy is a severe nerve-strain. In the discussion over the work- ing out of various situations dif- ferences of opinion rose, and time and again Buster played peace- maker by "giving them the air" with his radio.

Constance Talmadge is taking a short rest at a sea resort after finishing her latest comedy-drama, "The Dangerous Maid."

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

THEY'RE OFF..

One thing is sure—if "Try and Get It," Bryant Washburn's first production for Grand-Asher, isn't a brilliant success it will not be for lack of a fine cast. The roster is like a page from the screen blue book and is as follows:

Bryant Washburn, as Joe Merrill, a chap who believes he hasn't had a chance to make good; Rhoda Perrin, daughter of a wealthy man played by Billie Dove; Timothy Perrin, her father, Lionel Belmore; Larry Donovan who runs a big printing establishment, Joseph Kilgour; Glen Collins, who multiplies everything by ten and means to get on, Edward Horton; the modiste, Mme. Rose Dione.

TYPES, TYPES, TYPES!

There is an assortment of characteristic people in the opening scenes of Elliott Dexter's new Grand-Asher production, as yet untitled, that would make an Ellis Island gathering look artificial. There are whiskers of every shape, size and color; there are old women and young, tall and short; men who might have emerged from the ghetto of London or the apache haunts of Paris; there are Hester Street types, Bowery characters and indeed every sort imaginable. They appear in the mission scenes of the production which is being made by R. William Neill.

Mme. Rose Dione, who plays the part of Mme. Florio in Bryant Washburn's "Try and Get It," his first picture for Grand-Asher, was in many plays with Sarah Bernhardt and during the war served as a red cross nurse.

EATS 'EM ALIVE

William Russell, popular screen star, who is playing a leading role in Thomas H. Ince's screen adaptation of "Anna Christie," has turned "fire-eater." A law forbidding smoking on the stages of the Ince studios is strictly enforced by the Culver City fire chief who spends much of his time on the grounds of the studios. Russell has one of the most strenuous roles of his career as Matt Burke, the Irish stoker lover of Anna in the play, and after finishing up a rough and tumble fight in a flooding stoke hole of a ship, a tense love scene with Blanche Sweet or a heavy emotional sequence with George Marion he declared a cigarette was the only thing that would soothe his jumping nerves. To outwit the fire chief he acquired the knack of "swallowing" his cigarette and now has become so expert that he can put a lighted "fag" under his tongue, carry on a mumbled conversation and then produce it once more when "danger" is out of the way.

WHEN WORK IS PLAY

When May McAvoy took an adding machine and added up all the miles that she had danced for rehearsals and scenes in "Her Reputation," Thomas H. Ince's big newspaper drama, she discovered that she had done enough distance to entitle her to a cup. Miss McAvoy, who has one of her most appealing roles as "Jacqueline Lanier," the girl who becomes a front page story, appears in several novel dancing scenes in the production. Lloyd Hughes plays the role of a youthful news reporter, heading a fine supporting cast. The picture was directed by John Griffith Wray.

Theodor von Eltz completed the best role of his career when he appeared in his final shots in Warner Brothers' "Tiger Rose',' in which he supported Lenore Ulric, his work having occupied him for ten weeks. In the picture, the exteriors for which were shot near the Yosemite, Mr. von Eltz enacts an engineer, a splendid heman characterization, who is plunged into the most intense dramatic situations so he has varied scope for his acting.

Richard Talmadge has finished "Fast Freight," a five-reeler, and his first starring vehicle on his new contract with Abraham Carlos who has signed him for three years. Mr. Talmadge, who before his stardom doubled for all the stars, performed in this picture every kind of daring feat against the handicap of a sprained ankle that laid him up for three weeks. Among those who supported him in "Fast Freight" were Tully Marshall, Aileen Percy, George Nichols, Bruce Gordon, Al Freeman, John Steppling and others. W. K. Howard directed.

VERY OBLIGING

There is an automatic elevator, called "cafeteria elevator" by some, in the office building in which Laurence Trimble, director and trainer of the wonder-dog, Strongheart, has his suite.

Just as Trimble entered the elevator the other day, a portly gentleman made a dive for the door and shared the elevator with him. Trimble pushed the button for the third floor and as the elevator stopped and he started to get out, he was met by a friend.

They had exchanged a few words with the elevator door open when Trimble's fellow passenger started to berate him.

"You're the freshest elevator operator I ever saw. I want to go to the fourth floor and it's time you took me there," he shouted.

And Trimble did.

Ship Sunk at Sea.

A crew of sailors who are familiar with the waters of both oceans was recruited by Thomas H. Ince for the filming of the spectacular scene in his screen version of "Anna Christie," in which a big ship is rammed and sunk. Lowell Wagner, formerly second mate of the China Mail steamer, the "China," was put in charge of the sailors. With his assistance, Director John Griffith Wray has filmed scenes just outside the bay of San Francisco, said to be the most spectacular ever shot of a shipwreck. "Anna Christie," an adaptation of Eugene O'Neill's successful stage play, featuring Blanche Sweet, George Marion, and William Russell, will be released by First National this fall.

BRUCE MAKES PASADENA LAUGH

Bruce Guerin has performed the impossible. His antics in Wesley Barry's "The Country Kid," which was shown in pre-view the other evening at a Pasadena theater, brought chuckles galore from the highbrows out in that aristocratic section. In the role of a country urchin Wes' littlest brother, in the Warner picture, tiny Bruce's clever acting is calculated to boost his popularity many fold when the picture is released.

DE MILLE TO CAST SOON

William de Mille will return to the studio within the next ten days to start production work on his forthcoming Paramount picture, "Every Day Love," adapted by Clara Beranger from Julian Street's novel, "Rita Coventry."

HART IN FOURTH WEEK

"Wild Bill Hickok" has come to life at the West Coast studio of Paramount Pictures.

William S. Hart has started production work on his original story of this name centering around the life and deeds of the famous pioneer peace officer and gambler. Under the direction of Cliff Smith, Hart has been filming location scenes for the past week. J. G. Hawks wrote the scenario for this stirring Western story.

FATTY RETURNS

Walter Hiers, rotund Paramount comedian, is celebrating his summer vacation by making a series of personal appearances throughout the Middle West. He is scheduled to return to California this month.

DEXTER TO CHANGE TITLE OF PRODUCTION

When Elliott Dexter started his first production he had as a working title "The Man Who Forgave." It was a very good title, as titles go, but when the continuity had been completed by Florence Hein, it developed to such great proportions, dramatically and otherwise, that the title seemed altogether inadequate.

"We've got to have a bigger title," said Dexter.

"I agree with you," said R. William Neill, whose production it is.

"What shall it be?" asked the star.

"I wonder," commented Mr. Neill.

And they are still busily engaged in trying to get a name as big as the story. Doubtless they will hit on one before many days.

Meanwhile the picture goes merrily on with a cast that fairly blazes with brilliancy.

Elliott Dexter, Mildred Harris, Anders Randolf, Sydney Bracey, Grace Carlisle, Jeanne Carpenter, The story is by Adam Hull Shirk.

MEIGHAN IN "WOMAN-PROOF"

Although Thomas Meighan is in California and George Ade several thousand miles away in Indiana, both are working steadily on "Woman-Proof," the Ade story in which Meighan is now starring for Paramount, under the direction of Alfred E. Green.

Ade keeps in constant communication with Meighan and Green by letter and telegraph during the production of his stories, of which "Woman-Proof" is the third to serve as a starring vehicle for Meighan. Tom Geraghty is production editor and the cast includes Lila Lee, Mary Astor, Robert Agnew, Louis Dresser, John Sainpolis, Vera Reynolds, Hardee Kirkland, Martha Maddox, George O'Brien, Charles A. Sellon, Edgar Norton, "Bill" Gonder and "Mike" Donlin.

With the filming of a replica of the United States House of Representatives, Tod Browning, Goldwyn director, has completed work on his picturization of "The Day of Faith," by Arthur Somers Roche.

Tyrone Power, stage star, who played one of the leading characters of the story, is returning to New York, while Eleanor Boardman, Raymond Griffith, Wallace MacDonald, Charles Conklin, Edward Martindel, Jane Mercer and Winter Hall, other members of the cast, are preparing further picture work. Ford Sterling, who played a leading role, is in Florida, with King Vidor, making Joseph Hergesheimer's novel, "Wild Oranges."

angdon Brings Famous Coat to Screen

Harold Lloyd and his horn-rimd spectacles—Charlie Chaplin d his bamboo cane—Lloyd Hamn and his checkered cap—and arry Langdon and his triangle rcoat.

The short, flaring overcoat of arry Langdon is as familiar to udeville fans as those other aprtenances are inseparable from screen comedians. And Langn has brought the overcoat with n to the screen. Or I should , overcoats, for his wardrobe ually boasts eight.

It is an easy matter for a screen median to determine what is nny and what is not. He need ly sit down in the projection om and examine his screen self leisure—and the comedian himf generally knows better than yone else what is funny. Whethor not a certain piece of wear- apparel, and the manner of aring it, will cause laughter, is cided before the picture leaves projection room. Of course don't always agree with the dions.

But the stage comedian can't see nself. He's got to try out his as on an audience that has paid od money to be made to laugh. e measure of applause—or—othwise—that he receives from these st audiences decides whether or t his "stuff" is funny.

Harry Langdon had a slight adntage over his brother stage medians. He was for many ars a cartoonist, and knew pretty ll what looked funny to people. cartoon of his once made such hit that Langdon set himself the sk of discovering what it was out this particular figure that ade it so funny. It wasn't the se; it wasn't the face, nor the t—it was the lines of the overat!

He forthwith adopted the style r himself for his vaudeville acts, ith such success that the Langn overcoat is as well-known to udeville audiences as the acts emselves, "Johnny's New Car," d "After the Ball." A tailor in icago makes all the overcoats.

Langdon is busy now on his sec d two reel comedy for Principal ictures Corporation, under the dicction of Alf Goulding. June arlowe plays opposite the star.

A SMALL WORLD

Meet again on "The Isles of Parlise"; this is the story of Robert Horner and Richard P. Young, ollywood film-folk.

Some years ago, Horner, then enario editor for a comedy procer in Chicago, purchased a funy story from Richard P. Young, en a free lance writer. Leaving mediately afterward for the oast, Horner lost track of his w acquaintance.

And now they are to be toether again in "The Isles of Parlise" a feature film production arring George Chesbro, to be rected by Horner, and cut by oung.

Checking Up On The "I-Told-You-So" Gang

Dempsey vs. Firpo

At the First National studios there are a half dozen or more actors who are either personal friends of the champion, or who have had such close contact with him as to have felt his husky left.

There is Chuck Reisner, playing villain in "Her Temporary Husband," being directed by John McDermott, who corresponds regularly with his old pal, Jack.

"He and I used to barnstorm around the country," says Chuck. "I remember when he would meet all comers—and knock 'em cold."

"He's a cinch to win. Firpo will come in on him and that's just what Jack wants. Jack, like most champions, is best when he fights block and counter style. I expect he'll teach Firpo something in the way of arm blows. If Firpo's right arm ever feels Jack's left on the muscle it won't be worth much. Sure, Jack will knock him for a row of Argentine ant-eaters."

Chalk up another for Dempsey from Sydney Chaplin, who is playing a leading role in "Her Temporary Husband."

"Foreign fighters have no chance with Americans. It was in America where all the modern science of the game was developed. Foreign fighters are more for display to make the fight spectacular. An American goes in to win; it is the American breeding and can't be beat. And I believe Dempsey is a true representation of American determination," says Chaplin. Firpo should hear the sweet birds before six rounds are fought."

But here is a vote for Firpo.

"If these two fellows are letting their beards grow as a part of their training—it's Firpo all the way," believes McDermott. "Each have said they are passing up the barber shop because long beards go for protection. Well, take a look at Firpo's map. Of course, if I were betting—that's something else."

The fight dope on the First National sets is not without authentic source, for in Joe Stanton, Cherokee Indian, who is playing a minor villain part in McDermott's picture, there is a man who has sparred with both of the fighters.

"Firpo can knock out Dempsey. He has the punch. The only doubt in my mind is his ability to take a Dempsey lashing. If he can stand up four or five rounds he'll knock the championship out of America."

"Fight? Whata fight?" asks Bull Montana, playing in "Jealous Fools" being directed for First National by Maurice Tourneur. Oh, you mean thata thing what Firpo's donna know nothing about?" The "Bool" leaves not room for doubt as to what he thinks of Dempsey's chances."

"I tried to bet that Dempsey would knock out Willard in one round but I couldn't place it," Owen Moore, playing the leading role in "Her Temporary Husband," says, explaining that he feels the same way about this fight. "Jack's from another actor whose knowledge of the prize ring came from actual experience in it. Conway Tearle, who is being co-starred with Corinne Griffith in "Black Oxen," was once a professional welterweight in England. Ten years ago he was considered to be one of the fastest men of his class. Tearle admits that he has placed several bets on Jack, and he's not worrying at all about Firpo's chance of dethroning Dempsey.

Noted Author Is Here On Visit

The first step toward the making of "The Winning of Barbara Worth" by Principal Pictures was taken yesterday when Harold Bell Wright, the author, met Edward F. Cline, director, at Principal Pictures studio and began a series of conferences in which the scenario department of the Lesser organization will participate.

Harold Bell Wright, accompanied by Mrs. Wright, arrived from Tucson, Arizona, and registered at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, where they will remain about two weeks.

Daily meetings with the scenario department of Principal Pictures and with Mr. Cline, are scheduled, the plan being to get Mr. Wright's cooperation in laying out the scenario just as was done in the case of "When a Man's a Man" which is now completed.

Mr. Lesser's determination is to parallel in the picture he is to present, the motives and spirit, and action of Mr. Wright's epic story of the reclamation of the desert, so that when it is produced it can go forth with the approval of the author.

"That Mr. Wright accurately gauges the taste of the American Public," says Mr. Lesser, "is demonstrated by the millions of readers he has won with his fiction. If he can win millions of readers for his books," continues Mr. Lesser, "it is because he touches their hearts and arouses their enthusiasms. There is no reason why these salient qualities of Mr. Wright's novels should not be caught by the camera. That is why we are inviting his cooperation and why we are so happy he is giving it to us in such abundance."

PLAYS IMPORTANT PART

Beautiful Hazel Deane, said by many to possess the most magnetic personality in pictures, has been chosen to portray an unusually vivacious part in Bryant Washburn's first Grand-Asher production entitled "Try and Get It." In this delightful farce, plays the part of a modern flapper, who finally succumbs to the wiles of Edward Horton, to perfection.

Both Cullen B. Tate, director, and Bryant Washburn are delighted with Miss Deane's work and predict a big future for her.

Ben Alexander Is First National Child Star

Ben Alexander has arrived

This youthful actor's sterling work in the leading role in "Penrod and Sam," has been recognized by Associated First National Pictures, Inc., with a long termed contract.

Under the agreement signed this week the 11-year-old phenomenon will appear in a number of forthcoming First National productions to be made on the West Coast. The first is to be "Misunderstood," an original Booth Tarkington story to be produced by J. K. McDonald and directed by William Beaudine.

Executives of First National believe that in the signing of Ben Alexander they have added to their West Coast staff a youngster who is destined for the greatest honors that the screen can give.

The new Firct National actor takes his place with the several talented stars and featured players who have been signed within the last few months by this producing and distributing organization. Ben will now be in the excellent company of Colleen Moore, Corinne Griffith, Sylvia Breamer, Virginia Brown Faire and Ben Lyon.

Although only eleven years old, Ben Alexander can look back on a most extensive histrionic career which covers an appearance in six stage successes, a vaudeville tour and so many photoplays that he has lost count of them.

Born in Goldfield, Nevada, he made his first appearance before the footlights in a sketch written by his mother in which he toured from San Francisco to Chicago. On the legitimate stage he played the title role in "Penrod," and had important roles in "Seven Miles to Arden," "The Little Teacher" and several other popular productions.

In pictures he played several parts before being "discovered" by D. W. Griffith, who gave him an important boy-role, the brother, in "Hearts of the World." Following his impressive work in that picture, he was given important roles in several other big film productions, every one adding more glory to his youthful crown. His most recent role was in Maurice Tourneur's First National picture, "Jealous Fools."

Joy Winthrop is playing the part of an old maid gossip under the direction of Jess Robbins at the Universal Studio.

Cecil B. DeMille has returned to Paramount's West Coast studio to begin preliminary work at once on his forthcoming production, "Triumph," from the Saturday Evening Post story by May Edington. The noted producer of Paramount Pictures bearing his name has been enjoying a short vacation aboard his yacht "Seaward," following the tremendous production work on "The Ten Commandments," the story of which was written by Jeanie Macpherson.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, Sept. 17

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Rosson	All-Star	Linden Stevens	Geo. Carter	Staff	"The Satin Girl"	2nd Week
Dearholt Productions.
Neva Gerber Productions
Dick Hatton	Neva Gerber	Nobles	La Mece		"The 7th Sheriff"	3rd Week
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Jackson 190
H. & B. Film Co.
Tenny Wright	All-Star	Bill Beckway			"Tango Trails"	Preparing
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						59357
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 009
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al Herman	All-Star	Wm. Hyer	Herman	Herman	"The Detective"	Schedule
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 407
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd.						439-76
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 310
H. Beaudine	Jim Adams	Paul Garnett	Jim Clemens		2-Reel Comedy	Editing
Scott Sidney	Neil Burns	Alex Phillips	Ernest LaVelle		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr.						Drexel 211
Frederick Bond	All Star	Joe Walker	H. Metz	Johnson	"Beyond the Veil"	5th Week
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General.
	All-Star		Staff		"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
			Harry A. Swart		"Purple Bath Tub"	Preparing
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd. E. H. Allen, Gen. Mgr. Scotty Cleethorpe, Casting.						598-16
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Mermaid Comedies)
Taurog	Neely Edwards	Meehan	Cullen	Staff	Special	4th Week
Kerr	All-Star	McGill	Linkoff	Staff	Comedy	Editing
Hibbard	Lige Conley	Corby	Sharpless	Staff	Comedy	2nd Week
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Novelty Juveniles)
Ward Hayes	All-Star	Stengler	Linkoff	Staff	Novelty	2nd Week
Pratt	Cliff Bowes	McGill	Dewar	Staff	Cameo	1st Week
Lloyd Hamilton Corp. (Educational Release)
FOX STUDIO. James Ryan, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 300
Edmund Mortimer	John Gilbert	Don Short	McKenzie	John Russel	"The Exiles"	Editing
Mayo	Stock	Sid Wagner	Jas. Tinling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Jim Summerville	Stock	J. A. Schmidt	Arthur Cohn	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Erle Kenton	Lew Brice	Vic Scheurich	Max Gold		Comedies	Schedule
Jack Ford	All-Star	Joe August	W. Mayo	John Russell	"Hoodman Blind"	5th Week
Wm. Wellman	Buck Jones	Schneiderman	H. Hough	Fred & Fanny Hatton	"Big Dan"	5th Week
Roland V. Lee	All-Star	D. Keefe	Geo. Post	Don Lee	"Gentle Julia"	2nd Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 263
Rocky Mt. Production Co.
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 005
Metro Release.
GOLD SEAL PRODUCTIONS. A. Rosetti, Studio Mgr.						7405 Roseberry Ave
Greville Hughes	Leavens-Hale	R. C. Hughes		Emile Greville	"Riders of the Desert"	4th Week
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.						Holly 269
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	All-Star	Roland Price	A. Tenbrook	Staff	"Do It Now"	3rd Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 016
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Joe Rock Productions.
Bryant Washburn Productions.
Cullen B. Tate	Washburn-Dove	K. MacLean	R. Asher	J. Furthman	"Try and Get It"	4th Week
Elliott Dexter in R. Wm. Neil Production.
R. Wm. Neil	Dexter-Harris	Ray June	Jo Sternberg	Florence Heim	"The Way Men Love"	4th Week
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						76171
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStroheim	"Greed"	28th Week
Victor Seastrom	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Chas. Lapworth	Paul Bern	"The Judge and the Woman"	15th Week
Rupert Hughes	All-Star	John Mescall	Albert Kelly	Rupert Hughes	"Law Against Law"	Editing
King Vidor	All-Star	John Boyle	James Dugan	King Vidor	"Wild Oranges"	7th Week
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6640 Santa Monica Blvd. Wm. Sistrom, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 143
Harold Llloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Taylor-Newmeyer	H. Lloyd	Lundin	Bud Golden		"The Girl Expert"	6th Week

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
ving Productions. W. H. Carr, Production Manager.
Jack O'Brien	All-Star	D. Jennings	Cy Clegg	Frank Beresford	"Trapped"	5th Week
K. McDonald Productions.
enand Hoffman Productions.
osmopolitan Productions.
everley Productions.
J. P. McGowan	All-Star	Walter Griffin	J. E. MacDonald	Phillip Hurn	"The Whipping Boss"	3rd Week
ORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
ob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.						438-740
Bob Horner	Geo. Chesebro	Elmer Dyer			"The Isles of Paradise"	2nd Week
as. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Seeling	Larkin	Vernon Walker	Kenneth Green		Special	Editing
NCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731 lmer Photoplay Productions.
ortland Productions
rimble-Murfin Productions.
ssoc. Authors, Inc.
homas H. Ince Corporation.
John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	10th Week
USTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
Jack Blystone	Buster Keaton	E. Lessley-Thorp	Rose	Mitchell	"Hospitality"	12th Week
ou Anger Productions.
ASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vine St.						Holly 2400
aramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Ernest Haller	John Boland	Tom Gerahty
Al. E. Green	Thos. Meighan	Chas. Clark	Fred J. Robinson	Edfrid Bingham	"Woman-Proof"	8th Week
Jos. Henabery	Doug. Fairbanks, Jr	Saxon Dean	Dick Johnson		"Stephen Steps Out"	8th Week
Cliff Smith	Wm. S. Hart	Warren	Dick Rush	J. G. Hawkes	"Wm. Hart in Wild Bill Hickok"	5th Week
Herb Brennon	Pola Negri	Jos. Howe	H. Schwartz		"My Man"	Preparing
Wm. DeMille	All-Star	Guy Wilky	Geo. Hippard	Clara Berangee	"Every Day Love"	Preparing
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Chas. Clark	Fred Robertson	Jack Cunningham	"Flaming Barriers"	Preparing ane Grey Productions.
ictor Fleming	Dix-Wilson	James Howe	Gilroy	Doris Schroeder	"The Call of the Canyon"	6th Week
ames Cruze Productions
James Cruze	All-Star	Vernon Keays	Karl Brown	Walter Woods	"To the Ladies"	Preparing
IcNAMARA STUDIOS. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
IAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Capitol 2120
ouis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro Release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star	Percy Hilburn	Harry Schenck	J. G. Hawks	"Cape Cod Folks"	4th Week
John M. Stahl	All-Star		Sidney Algier	A. G. Younger	"Why Men Leave Home"	3rd Week
Fred Niblo	All-Star	Victor Milner	Doran Cox	B. Meredyth	"Thy Name Is Woman"	Preparing
. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
Gasnier	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"Maytime"	6th Week
IETRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Harold Shaw	All-Star		Nat Natts	Thos. Hopkins	"The Living Past"	1st Week
Victor Schertzinger	All-Star			V. Schertzinger	"Man Whom Life Passed By"	2nd Week
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	J. Arnold			"Angel Face Molly"	2nd Week
ex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
ackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
llen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar	All-Star	Haskins			"The Human Mill"	Schedule
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
echnicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
ICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
Jnited Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	12th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford		Held	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	8th Week
Marshall Neilan	Mary Pickford	Rosher		Staff	"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall"	Preparing
RINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Louis Tolhurst				Walter Anthony	Microscopic Motion Pictures	Schedule
Alf. Goulding	Harry Langdon	Albert Breslau	David Smith	Harry Langdon	Comedy	Schedule
Benny Zeidman Productions.
Ed Cline	Joe Butterworth	Wm. Marshall	Frank Gerahty	Grey Carr	"The Good Bad Boy"	Editing
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
ndividual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Eddie Hearn		Gilbert Fones	Wyndam Gittens	"The Sand Pile"	Preparing
Lehrman	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"Comedy of Terrors"	Schedule
Chester Bennett Productions.
Douglas MacLean Productions
Jimmy Horne	Douglas MacLean	Max DuPont	Art Flaven		"The Yankee Consul"	4th Week
EAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr. 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Jackman	All-Star	Floyd Jackman	W. L. Guthrie	Staff	Feature	Schedule
P. Pembrooke	Will Rogers	Robt. Doran	Ross Letterman	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Geo. Jeske	Harry Pollard	J. Roach	Clark Hennecke	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Len Powers	Animals	B. Currigan	Greeland	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Bob McGowan	Our Gang	Harry Gerstad	C. Morehouse	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
J. Howe	Stan Laurel	Frank Young	Cruze	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
Phil Rosen	All-Star	Kurrle-Broening	Al. Davis	Francis Marion	"Life of Abraham Lincoln"	Schedule
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
RUSSELL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 794
Al. Nietz	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	Preparing
Logan-Baynham Productions.
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Hercules Film Prods., Inc.
Jack Nelson	Jack Pollo	McManigal	Joe Kane	Staff	"Let's Go"	Editing
Jack Nelson	Jack Pollo	McManigal	Joe Kane	Staff	"The Powerless Man"	Casting
H. J. Brown Productions
Al. Rogell	Fred Thompson	Ross Fisher			"Running Wild"	4th Week
Maloford Productions.
Bob Williamson	Leo Maloney	Bataraka	Stratton		Untitled	3rd Week
Granada Productions.
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 155
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
Del Lord	All-Star	Blake Wagner		Mack Sennett	Comedy	Schedule
Del Ruth	Ben Turpin			Mack Sennett	Comedy	Schedule
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 408
Louis B. Mayer Productions, Clune's Studio, 5360 Melrose Ave.
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Rose of All the World"	8th Week
Victor Heerman	Constance Talmadge	Glen McWilliams	Edw. Brophy	Mace Sullivan	"The Mirage"	Preparing
Sam E. Rork Productions.
First National Productions.
McDermott Chaplin	All-Star		James Chapin	Wm. Dowlin	"Temporary Marriage"	7th Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Maurice Tourneur	All-Star	Arthur Todd	Scott R. Beal	Fred Myton	"Jealous Fools"	Editing
Frank Lloyd Productions (First National Release)
Frank Lloyd	Griffith-Tearle	Norbert Brodin	Billy Reiter	Fred Myton	"Black Oxen"	4th Week
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig, Casting.						433-13
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Wm. Craft	Desmond-Sedgwick		McDonough Koehner		"Beasts of Paradise"	Schedule
Archainbaud	Priscilla Dean		McCarey-Wyler		"The Storm Daughter"	Editing
Herbert Blache	Gladys Walton		Sullivan	Hugh Hoffman	"The Near Lady"	Editing
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson	Robinson	Clarke	Geo. Plympton	"The Steel Trail"	Editing
Wm. Parke	Herbert Rawlinson		Dorian		"The Noblest Roman"	Editing
Ed. Laemmle	Billy Sullivan		Regan		"The Leather Pusher Series"	Schedule
Harry Pollard	Reginald Denny		F. Messinger		"The Spice of Life"	5th Week
Irving Cummings	Mary Philbin		Woolstenhume		"My Mamie Rose"	3rd Week
Robt. N. Bradbury	Pete Morrison		Victor Nordlinger		Series 2-Reel Westerns	Schedule
Jess Robbins	Baby Peggy		Arthur		"The Right to Love"	3rd Week
Hobart Henley	All-Star				"The Turmoil"	1st Week
Robert Hill	Herbert Rawlinson		E. Lumley		"All for the Love of Gloria"	2nd Week
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Laval Photoplay, Ltd., of Montreal, Canada. L. Ernest Ouimet, Pres and Mgr.
P. Cazeneoye	Andre Lafayette	Gene Benoit	Harry Webb		"The Vital Question"	3rd Week
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen. Mgr.						598-13
Dave Smith Productions.
Dave Smith	All-Star	D. Smith, Jr.	Bill Dagwell	J. P. Smith	"The Man From Brodneys"	Editing
Larry Semon Productions.
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 418
Warner Brothers Productions.
Mal St. Clair	Wesley Barry	E. B. Dupar	Geo. Webster		"George Washington, Jr."	7th Week
Johnny Hines	Johnny Hines	Chas. Gilson	C. Hines-Roth		"Conductor 1492"	8th Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Marsh Gillingwater		Tenny Wright		"Daddies"	Scheduled
Harry Beaumont	John Barrymore	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Beau Brummel"	Oct. 1
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Sidney Franklin	Lenore Ulric	Chas. Rosher	Wm. McGann	Edmund Goulding	"Tiger Rose"	11th Week
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernst Lubitsch	All-Star	Paul Perry	Flood Blanke		"The Marriage Circle"	5th Week
Harry Rapf Productions.
Jack Conway	Monte Blue-Irene Rich	David Abel	Sutherland-Hawkes		"Loveless Marriages"	8th Week
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WILNAT STUDIO. 6090 Sunset Blvd. Al. Brandt, Mgr.						Holly 794
WORLD EDUCATIONAL FILMS. Box 818, Sta. "C," Los Angeles
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	"Haunts of Hiawatha"	5th Week

DR. W. L. SCHUSTER
Chiropractor—Nerve Specialist
"Where the sick go to get well"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

WHEN YOU NEED A DOCTOR
Phone 572-88; 430-205, or Hollywood 102-82 and ask for
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Formerly of New York City
6548 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD

ARE YOU IN A HURRY?
CALL
A
TAXI

FROM HOLLYWOOD
Universal City $1.00
Culver City $2.00

Ambassador Hotel $1.50
Center of Los Angeles....$2.00
All Stations $2.50

578-280 SUNSET TAXI 578-307

"Phon-O-Grams"

Edited by Gene Woolway

Alton Brown

Juvenile Leads

578-177

Charlotte DuPuis

Ingenue-Characters

Holly 2570

J. C. (Jack) Fowler

Characters

438-501

Lorraine Eason

Ingenue Leads

575-91

Kenneth Gibson

Juvenile Leads

578-311

Doctor Roberts

Character Actor

Holly 5335

Reeka Roberts

Emotional Roles

Holly 5335

Bert Sprotte

Characters

741-64

FROM "U" TO YOU

(Continued from Page 5)

Jack Mower, who starred in "In the Days of Daniel Boone" with Eileen Sedgwick, plays the leading male role in the new plays, and Elinor Field, who is well known for a number of clever ingenue characterizations, appears in the feminine leading role.

Herbert Rawlinson spent three weeks in the warm waters surrounding Catalina Island getting chummy with the "biggest fish" in the Pacific ocean.

It must be the biggest one out there, for Herb saw it with his own eyes, and Herb is admittedly a good judge of— anyway——

He has now returned to frolic once more in the aquatic playground of the fish that "got away."

Rawlinson asserts that he would have caught the fish, but just at the time when the friendship that had been three weeks in the ripening was about to culminate in a fish steak, Universal officials decided that he was due to don the grease paint for another sojourn before the camera.

Now that he has finished the starring role in "The Noblest Roman," his latest feature, he has returned to the deep sea fishing togs and is again trolling the placid waters for his erstwhile friend.

Production has been completed on "The Noblest Roman," a farce comedy filmed under the direction of William Parks.

Supporting the star in the cast are Kalla Pasha, Beatrice Burnham, Melbourne McDowell, Tom McGuire, Margaret Landes, George Marion, Frederick Stanton and Frederick Bertrand.

Mary Philbin's first big starring vehicle since the amazing little star's rise to fame in "Merry-Go-Round," has been started at Universal City, in "My Mamie Rose," filmization of Owen Kildare's celebrated novel of the Bowery. Irving Cummings is directing the new feature, to be a Universal Jewel and one of the outstanding productions of the new season at the studio.

In order that the first Mary Philbin vehicle since "Merry-Go-Round" may be one of the outstanding pictures of the year, a cast of special importance has been chosen to support her. Pat O'Malley, outstanding figure in several of the past season's big successes, plays a bowery tough who finds his way to regeneration through the love of the little charmer of the quarter. It is said that this part is literally the life story of the author, who rose from a gangster to be "The port of the Bowery" and one of the striking figures in American literature through a woman's influence.

William Collier, Jr., son of the famous comedian and himself a notable in screenland, is another player in the big cast; Max Davidson, noted character man, plays the quaint "Levy" of the old clothing store, and Lincoln Plummer, Edwin J. Brady and several others are among the supporting players. A complete reproduction of the old Bowery, several blocks long, with such places as "Suicide Hall," "Steve Brodie's" and other landsmarks are built at Universal City for the picture; one of the largest sets erected since "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Work commences during the week at Universal City on the third and largest of the Baby Peggy Jewel productions, "The Right to Love," in which the baby is surrounded with one of the most remarkable casts she has ever

BOB REEL
McKEE

The constantly increasing audiences here attest to the supremacy of our programs. We are exerting every effort to give you clean, snappy boxing.

Hollywood Stadium

Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

R. K. EARLE
CONSULTING ENGINEER
LICENSED SURVEYOR
619 Citizens National Bank Building
Phone 823-681

B R U N O

Publicity Photos
Professional Photos
Casting Director Photos

6412 HOLLYWOOD BLVD.
Telephone 431-929

Gigantic Removal Sale Renewed Used Cars

RICKERSHAUSER & MILLER

6369 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3995

Nash, almost new	$1085.00
Nash coupe, new tires	1050.00
Nash sedan, refinished	1000.00
Nash 5-pass., refinished	985.00
Nash sport model	950.00
Cadillac 55 touring	600.00
Nash 5-pass., late model	600.00
Ford coupe, '22	500.00

Open Evenings. Open Sundays.

Mary Ruby

Ingenue

594-774

Donna Hale

Leads

Dunkirk 3153

Producers Notice

I have spent a number of years in the field in the distribution department of one of the foremost producing and distributing companies. I have felt the pulse of both the public and the exhibitor and am in position to render a valuable service to a producer who has a product of merit and of sufficient volume. I am desirous of effecting a connection with a producer and distributor who would have their product popularized and the demand created for it in advance. If you are interested in securing the maximum in revenue and playing time for your product, I feel confident that I can make you see the merits of my proposition. Address Box 33, care Camera! or phone 439-869.

Pathe Camera Complete
For Rent by the Week.
ST. ELMO BOYCE
Powers Studio

Hugh Hoffman

Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip." "Crossed Wires." "The Town Scandal." "Sawdust." "The Untameable." "The Wild Party."

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography

LITTLE

Commercial Photographer

Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

Animated Cartoons — Original Title Ideas — Clay Animation — Miniature Sets and Animated Figures

CINEMA ARTS STUDIO

ELMER H. YOUNG, Manager

6615½ Santa Monica Blvd. Telephone 434-430

HAIRGONE—permanent cure for superfluous hair on arms, limbs, face and body. Also wonderful for men who have shaving troubles. $2.50 the bottle, manufactured at

ORCHID BEAUTY SHOPPE

808 So. Hope St. Phone 16596
All lines of beauty culture.

MOTION PICTURES

Talent wanted to register in new Casting Directory. Call in person.

THE UNIVERSAL, 5507 Santa Monica Boulevard. Room 4.

MARION WARDE

Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films

Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing

423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

under the wing of a new director, Jesse Robbins, specially engaged to handle the diminutive celebrity of the celluloid.

Winifred Bryson, whose work in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" was folloked by her sensation characterization of "Lullaby Lou" in "Thundering Dawn," is among the notable players enlisted to support the tiny actress in an all star cast of special interest. Elinor Fair is another notable in the cast. Miss Fair has been famous in screenland ever since her sensational success with Otis Skinner in "Kismet." Robert Ellis is another important player announced in the Baby Peggy cast.

Several other well known players are soon to be announced for later sequences of the picture, according to Casting Director Fred Datig.

The picture is from an original story by Bernard McConville, with continuity by Lois Zellner.

Billy Sullivan, who is playing the leads in the new series of H. C. Witwer's "The Leather Pushers" at Universal City, has a claim to fame that ought to mean much in the new prize fight series. Not only has he shaken hands with John L. Sullivan—but the famous old fighter used to carry him around when he was a baby. For Sullivan is a nephew of the greatest fighter of all ring history.

"I remember my uncle ever since I was a little baby," says Sullivan. "When I was quite a small shaver he used to tell me I'd be a fighter some day—he was proud of me and that was his way of showing it. Well—I did become a fighter, but I'm afraid never a good enough one to justify Uncle John in boasting much. I last saw my uncle only a short time before his death, a few years ago, when he was in vaudeville. I was then a fighter of some reputation, and he urged me earnestly to keep it up. However, I had turned actor then, and I found that I was pretty good at it and liked it. So I went on with my stage work. My uncle was a little disappointed, I'm afraid."

Sullivan plays the role of Kid Roberts, abandoned by Reginald Denny when the latter started features. Denny himself handed over the "Leather Pushers" title to the new star. Edward Laemmle is directing the new series, which is crammed with lightning-like fight action for Sullivan.

George Hackathorne, whose portrayal of the hunchback "ballyhooer" in "Merry-Go-Round" and the drug addict taxi driver in "Human Wreckage" have been heralded by dramatic critics as outstanding characterizations of the year, has been cast to play the role of Bibbs Sheridan in "The Turmoil," Hobart Henley's next multi-reel production for Universal.

Hackathorne is one of the youngest character actors in pictures, but has already attained a coveted place among screen celebrities. The part of the idealist son of the hardened financial figure in the famous Booth Tarkington story should provide him with one of the strongest dramatic roles of his film career.

Emmett Corrigan, famous character actor of the legitimate stage, has been selected for the role of James Sheridan, Sr., the father of Bibbs, and one of the outstanding characters in the play.

Eileen Percy, who played the title role in "The Flirt," another noted Tarkington story filmed for Universal under Henley's direction, has been cast for the role of Sybil Sheridan, a flapper whose venomous tongue insures plenty of grief not only for herself but for those closely associated with that ultra modern young lady.

Henley and Fred Datig, Universal casting director, are now choosing the remaining players for the all-star cast and it has been announced that one of the most capable casts ever assembled for a Universal production will be used in the making of what gives promise of being one of the most pretentious plays of the season.

Work has started on "The Ghost City," Universal's new chapterplay, a western story laid in one of the old deserted mining cities that make romantic reminders of gold rushes of a long dead past in the middle west. The story, written by Paul Bryan, is laid about such an old city in Wyoming, which has become the rendezvous of desperadoes preying on the rich cattle regions around. Their machinations are combated by ultra methods, including the airplane control, in a thrilling series of incidents, the idea being one entirely new to the screen.

Pete Morrison, noted as a Western star and daring rider, plays the principal role, while Margaret Morris, Universal City's new "discovery," heads the feminine contingent in the cast.

Bud Osborne, well known Western "heavy," does the villain's part in the new chapterplay, and a cast of well known standard players surrounds them. Frank Rice plays the eccentric character role of "Sagebrush Milton," an old plainsman, and Slim Cole is seen as Mort Curley, one of the leading lights of the city of the past. Others in the cast are Valerio Olivio, William Quinn, and Princess Hoola.

SCREEN TESTS

Invest in a Screen Test. It pays. It tells you how you screen and the cost is only

25 Cents Per Foot

Call Bruno

431-929

6412 Hollywood Boulevard

LOCAL — SEMI-NATIONAL

POUR PERSONAL PUBLICITY AR-EXCELLENT

POSITIVELY PUTS PICTURE PEOPLE IN PERMANENT PUBLIC FAVOR

FOR STARS

Write for particulars, or see

GENE WOOLWAY

P.O. Box 176, Hollywood Station
Or, in care of
Camera!
2nd. Floor, 6318 Hollywood Blvd.,
HOLLYWOOD Calif.
PHONE 439-869

INTERNATIONAL — INTERNATIONAL

Casts of the Week

(Continued from Page 6)

R. WM. NEIL PRODUCTIONS, INC.
present
"THE WAY MEN LOVE"
Directed by R. Wm. Neil Photographed by Ray June
CAST:

Elliott Dexter	Grace Carlisle
Mildred Harris	Sidney Bracy
Anders Randolf	Jeanne Carpenter
DeWitt Jennings

UNIVERSAL FILM CO.
presents
"MY MAMIE ROSE"
Directed by Irving Cummings
Photographed by Chas Woolstenhume
CAST:

Mary Philbin	Charlie Murray
Pat O'Malley	Kate Price
Willie Collier, Jr.	Edwin J. Brady
Max Davidson	Lincoln Plummer

BEN WILSON
presents
"THE SATIN GIRL"
Directed by Arthur Rosson
Photographed by Geo. Carter
Original Story by Adam Hull Shirk
CAST:

Mabel Forrest	Lenore Vance
Norman Kerry	Dr. Richard Taunton
Marc McDermott	Fargo
Kate Lester	Mrs. Brown-Potter
Clarence Burton	Detective
Florence Lawrence	Sylvia Brown-Potter
Reed House	NortonPless
Wm. Turner	Silas Gregg

Over Grand-Asher Way

Imagine a scene in Fairyland, combined with a back stage view of the Follies, and you get a pretty good idea of what the Grand Studio is like. It is very much the same as if one took the back drop away and the spectators watched the play while they also witnessed the work that goes on in that mysterious region known as "behind the scenes."

Unfortunately for the general public, visitors are excluded, and so the outside world must learn about the way the films are made from articles such as this.

Take an average day during the production of Bryant Washburn and Elliott Dexter's first features for Grand-Asher. Both these noted stars are making individual productions, heading their own organizations, and have surrounded themselves with the best talent available. This includes technicians, as well as artists.

An enormous interior of a palatial home, 100 feet deep and fifty feet wide, all in a gold stippled effect with gorgeous purple silk drapes, forms the setting for important action in the Dexter picture, an R. William Neill production. It is a drama of human lives that is said to be tremendously effective. Mildred Harris is leading woman; others in the big cast are Anders Randolf, Grace Carlisle, DeWitt Jennings, Sydney Bracey, Jeanne Carpenter, etc. This set is furnished with great luxuriousness. A Chinese orchestra with queer instruments making queerer music supplies melody for a dancer—a girl with grotesque head-dress. She removes this and puts it over the bald pate of an old reveler. The star sits at a table, aloof more or less, for he has much on his mind—in this character of Austin Ferrol, prince of the slums.

Directly opposite is the set for Bryant Washburn's picture, "Try and Get It," directed by Cullen B. Tate. It is an adaptation of a story by Eugene P. Lyle, Jr.—a high powered comedy.

The set is a beautiful modiste shop, with galleries and alcoves and a great central place where the models parade. A lot of lovely mannequins, a real fashion show wearing thousands of dollars' worth of gowns and furs, real importations from Swobdi's and Willard George, pass in gorgeous revue. Bryant Washburn as the star walks into this dream of luxury and fair women with a bill collector's file—like a bull in a china shop, someone said.

Mme. Rose Dione is the lady in charge, and she is effusively natural—a disciple of and a one-time player with the immortal Sarah. Billie Dove, beautiful and vivacious, is leading woman; Joseph Kilgour, Edward Horton, Lionel Belmore, Carl Stockdale and others are in the fine cast.

Everywhere are electricians, carpenters, busy, working, pounding, sawing, talking. The whistle blows and silence falls as the directors call camera. So big are the sets that the cameras are stationed in part of either set shooting therefrom to the other picture. It is a technical job to make them interlock without interfering. On the sidelines are hundreds of lovely girls, busy men, in either dinner dress or overalls, according to their work. And over all the green hued Cooper-Hewitts and the sunarcs, as well as many other kinds. A perfect wilderness of cables and wires underfoot, a maze of brilliancy overhead—and such a scene of activity as has seldom been excelled in any studio.

Walter Frederick Seely
Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

YOUR PHONOGRAPH
will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a
Deflexograph
Fits any Phonograph or Victrola Using Changeable Needles.
Play after hours—will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.

$1.00 Post-paid
GOLD PLATE.....$1.50 (See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE....$1.00
VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660
KWIK LUNCH
SERVES RITE
1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

I WANT SOME REAL PICTURES!
. . . productions from $50,000 to $100,000. I can sell them outright. See me for a quick release.
H. and B. FILM COMPANY
Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS
GET RESULTS

WANTED—I will pay $10 a 1000 for domestic "fan" letters. Ada Mayes, 5429 Hollywood Boulevard.

PATHE CAMERA complete, for rent by the week. St. Elmo Boyce, Powers-R. C. Studios.

BOOKKEEPER—Expert, typist, wants four hours' work daily. $16 per week. Humboldt 3493W. Call after 6, evenings.

ROBERT TODD—Film Editor. Nine years' experience. Desirous of permanent local connection. Phone Hollywood 1113.

WANTED—Man with Motion picture camera (union or non-union with $75.00 to join me in a photographic attraction at the Business Men's Project to be held at Santa Monica Blvd. and Western Ave., Sept. 15th to 22nd. A real live attraction and big money for eight days. Answer quick. A. Dulany, care of Camera! 6318 Hollywood Blvd.

CHICAGO'S SILENT NIGHTS—A ten thousand words complete photoplay script, depicting Chicago's period of political strife, lawless and terrorism. The result of more than a year's work, by Geo. Paps—write for it. P. O. Box 581, Los Angeles.

COY WATSON, JR.
CHILD LEADS
Age 10. Drexel 3616

Especially for Motion Picture People.
THE HILLVIEW GRILL
Hillview Apartments Bldg.
Hollywood at Hudson
Holly 7980 Holly 6626
MERCHANTS' LUNCH, 11:30 to 2
DINNER 5:30 to 8

SCREEN SERVICE
(formerly The Service Bureau)
1036 SOUTH HILL
Phone 821-071

CASTING
Picture company making cruise around the world on studio ship can use leading man and woman. Must have box office value. Communications strictly confidential.
Address—DIRECTOR, Care Camera! 6318 Hollywood Blvd.

Learn to Color Photographs
We teach you the SECRET PROCESS of making your oil colors at a saving of one half.
424 UNION LEAGUE BLDG.
Corner of Second and Hill Streets

TINTED PORTRAITS
of a beautiful velvet-like tone can be made from your regular photographs. The cost is low and there are special rates on fan photos.
EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38

100 Per Cent Titles
100 Per Cent Service
At the Right Price!

Dress up that next production with artistic Hand Lettered Titles made by IRVING W. BUNZE.

If you want Perfect Symbolic Art Backgrounds, let us make them! Neil E. McQuire, formerly with Ince and Prizma, does our art work.

For perfect black-and-white titles, try our PROCESS SYSTEM. A telephone call will bring our representative with samples.

Quality Title & Film Company

1442 Beechwood Drive. Holly 4850

Rare Antiques from the Far East

Oriental Costume Co.

6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

Frank the Shoe Doctor

"We save your sole and heel you, too"

6666 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3752

FOR PICTURES

PLAYS, BOOKS, ORIGINALS

The
Hollywood Play Bureau
Emmett Corrigan, Mgr.

6404 Hollywood Boulevard
Near Cahuenga. Hollywood, Cal.

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law

JACK P. LEONARD

340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

WE MOVE THE MOVIES
and Shine on Service
Hollywood 2677 - SAMUEL C. SHINE - 6568 Santa Monica
General Trucking and Hauling

POSSIBLY ABOUT YOU

Bebe Daniels is back in California after a year's absence in the East. Accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Phyllis Daniels, and her grandmother, Mrs. George Butler Griffin, the popular Paramount actress has arrived in Los Angeles and will enjoy a vacation of three weeks before starting work in her next production. Miss Daniels completed the leading feminine role in Sam Wood's production, "His Children's Children," in New York, just before starting on her transcontinental trip.

William S. Hart and the numerout members of his company engaged in the production of "Wild Bill Hickok," have materially increased the population of Victorville, Calif., where the Paramount star has established his temporary headquarers. Under the direction of Clifford Smith, location scenes for this stirring tale of pioneer days are being filmed in the vicinity of Victorville and the town will also be used as a background for some of the important action. William S. Hart wrote the original story of "Wild Bll Hickok" and J. G. Hawks adapted it to the screen.

Walter Hiers, who has been making a series of personal appearances in his native state of Georgia, is en route to California, to begin work in George Melford's forthcoming Paramount Picture, "Flaming Barriers," adapted by Jack Cunningham from the story by Byron Morgan. The cast is headed by Jacqueline Logan, Antonio Moreno, Theodore Roberts, Walter Hiers, Sigrid Holmquist and Robert McKim.

Edward Horton, who played the title role in the James Cruze production "Ruggles of Red Gap," has been chosen to play the principal masculine role in "To the Ladies," the forthcoming Paramount Picture which Cruze wilr produce, according to an announcement made today by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production.

William de Mille is scheduled to start production work on his forthcoming Paramount Picture, "Every Day Love," at the West Coast studio September 20.

Nita Naldi, who plays one of the featured roles, is now in New York city but is expected to start for California within the week.

Leatrice Joy, who will play one of the principal parts in Cecil B. DeMille's next Paramount "Triumph," is enjoying a three weeks vacation trip to Honolulu accompanied by her mother.

Miss Joy recently completed one of the most important roles in Cecil B. DeMille's "The Ten Commandments."

San Francisco and its justly famous waterfront will serve as a background for some important action in Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount Picture, "Woman-Proof," which George Ade wrote as a screen starring vehicle for Meighan. The entire company will spend several days there. Alfred E. Green is again handling the megaphone. Tom Geraghty is production editor and the cast includes Lila Lee, Mary Astor, Robert Agnew, John Sainpolis, Louise Dresser, Edgar Norton, Charles A. Sellon, George O'Brien, Vera Reynolds, Hardee Kirkland, Martha Mattox, "Bill" Gonder and "Mike" Donlin.

George Melford has completed the production work on his most recent Paramount Picture, "The Light that Failed," and is now cutting and editing the film. Jacqueline Logan, Percy Marmont, Sigrid Holmquist and David Torrence headed the cast. F. McGrew Willis and Jack Cunningham prepared the scenario.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has completed the Turkish episodes of his first starring picture, "Stephen Steps Out," and is now engaged in an important sequence of scenes with Theodore Roberts as the other principal.

Despite the discomforts of a temporary heat wave, members of the company engaged in the making of the Zane Grey production, "The Call of the Canyon," on location near Flagstaff, Arizona, have been working steadily since their arrival there.

Victor Fleming is directing. Richard Dix, Lois Wilson and Estelle Taylor are featured with Noah Berry, Ricardo Cortez and Charles Ogle in support.

No delays are to be permitted in the starting of Pola Negri's rext Paramount Picture "My Man," which Herbert Brennon will produce. Both the star and the producing director are anxious to start work and both have agreed to be ready by September 17.

Strongheart, the wonder-dog star of "The Silent Call" and "Brawn of the North," whose next release will be "The Love Master," is ranked among the twenty most popular luminaries in filmdom, judging by the amount of his fan mail, and still his salary is less than an extra man, who gets his $7.50 ticket every time he works. Strongheart's salary is exactly three pounds of Porterhouse steak every night. Still it isn't such a bad life, for he has nine beautiful wives, who Director Laurence Trimble supports for him, a country estate in the San Fernando valley where he lives with his wives and children, and a big red motor car in which he spends much of his time when not acting. There's no income tax to worry over and none of his wives care for clothes or jewelry.

Ben Bernie's orchestra,one of the big time vaudeville attractions, was used in several scenes of Bryant Washburn's "Try and Get It," his first Grand-Asher production. Bernie brought his remarkable aggregation of musicians direct from a local theatre where they are appearing under his leadership and on a specially constructed stage at the Grand Studio dispensed sweet or jazzy music while the cameras ground.

JOSEPHINE ADAIR

Playing in "Only a Shop Girl" at the Symphony Theater now.

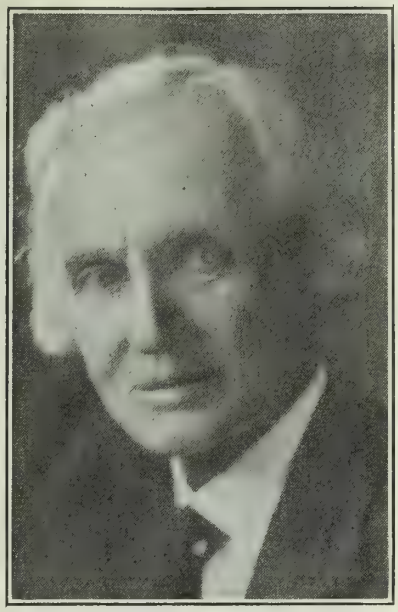
Phone 595-425



JOHN HERDMAN

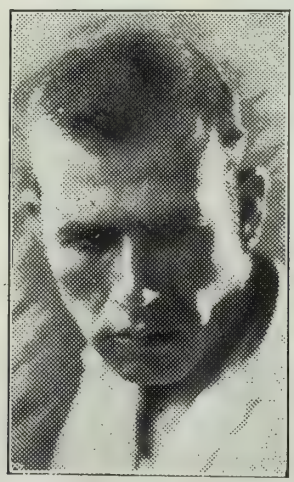
Characters

439-869

MARGUERITE LA MONT

Leads

CHAS. SEELING PRODUCTIONS



MIKE TELLEGEN

Characters and Heavies

Hollywood 4587

Frederick Bond

"Camera!"

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

Los Angeles, Calif. Saturday, Sept. 22, 1923 Price 10 Cents

Rosemary Theby who will play the part of Lileth Laudenback in the feature production "The Elk's Tooth," by Renalles, Inc.

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A. HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

New York Washington, D. C.

Phone 52220

Phone 54847

Hepner
INCORPORATED

1001-1005 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles California

Permanent Waving Hair Coloring Bleaching
Hair Dressing Scalp-Facial Massage
Marcel Waving Water Waving Shampooing
Manicuring
Wigs Toupees Switches Transformations
Wig Rental Beards and Moustaches
Cosmetics
Professional Makeup Service

Special Attention to Theatrical and Motion Picture Profession

No Parking Restrictions

THERESA CLAIRE

Ingenue

Brunette Type

"The Night and Day Sisters"
Holly 3258

RITA CLAIRE

Ingenue

Blonde Type

PACOIMA

offers film folks an opportunity to "cash in" on Southern California real estate. We're building a city out there. You saw Hollywood grow. Now we ask you to WATCH PACOIMA!

But don't just watch it. Take advantage of the early opportunities presented in its development and become a vital part of its progress.

INVEST NOW

We are selling quarter-acre, orange-grove homesites, fully improved with gas, water, electricity and graded streets for $40 Down —$790— $12.50 a Mo.

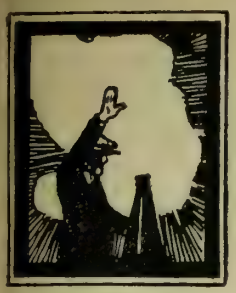
Telephone 577-810 and make arrangements with JACK LIVINGSTON to go out and see the properties.

SUBURBAN ESTATES CO.

Los Angeles Real Estate Since 1888
Phone 653-25
744 WEST SEVENTH STREET, LOS ANGELES
Suburban Office, Corner Pershing Avenue and San Fernando Road at Pacoima Station. One Mile South of the City of San Fernando.



"Camera!"
[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

ESTABLISHED 1918

A Film Magazine and a Film Newspaper in One

6318 Hollywood Boulevard
Hollywood : California

Vol. VI. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1923 No. 23

THE ENEMY WITHIN

Several weeks ago on this editorial page we commented on the need of a square deal for everyone, and what wonderful things the establishment of a spirit of fair play would do for the film industry. One obstacle in the path of the attainment of such a happy condition of things is found in the form of so-called motion picture publications which are in reality only blinds for vicious preying on the profession, employing tactics and methods that, if clearly revealed, would be hastily condemned in no uncertain language by film and newspaper people alike. We refer to one in particular that has aroused considerable trouble of late through some very odd deals, and according to opinions being voiced hereabout at the present time, is rapidly falling into disfavor. There is no place in journalism, especially journalism relative to the motion picture industry and the people who gain a livelihood therein, for petty graft and blackmail. It is not just and it will not be tolerated for any length of time, for as the old saying goes, "murder will out." This idea of being forced to spend a young fortune in advertising with some paper before being given any kind of just treatment in its news columns is pure bunk, and whoever has the idea it will gain anything one way or another, or that it will be successful to any degree, is a fanatic. Personal grievances and prejudices have no place in a newspaper office, and if they persist in hanging around, it means goodbye newspaper. We're not mentioning names, but the right foot knows this shoe and isn't going to be backward about raising a rumpus over this talk. We can only cite Lincoln's wise words, "you can fool all of the people some of the time, and some of the people all of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." Not motion picture people, by a long shot! Therefore, it will be to the best interests of this certain publication to snap out of it and come out straight and clean for the best interests of the industry, and not hide behind maudlin blackmail. "Camera!" isn't troubled with an overwhelming amount of advertising, but its personnel manage to make a decent living on the income. We could probably make a lot more if we adopted questionable methods of doing business, but we believe that we can truthfully say that we've given everyone a square deal. Mary Pickford and Jennie Smith are equally welcome to our news columns. We make no discrimination of any sort, and you can always be sure of this—that the news columns of our sheet are open to you at all times without variation. Make full use of them! You won't be forced to buy advertising or pay graft here, and our treatment of you will be absolutely unbiased, irrespective of whether or not you have any financial dealings with our business departments. We're for you strong, every one of you, and we believe that you are with us when we say the time has come for the enemy within to go, that the motion picture press must be clean and straightforward and that the industry cannot harbor any questionable publications. There is room here for any number of live film papers, and there are a good many of them now, mediums of great value to the profession. They are needed, for they are doing a great work. But the blackmail sheet must go!

Telephone
439-869

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON
Publisher and Manager.
JOHN CORNYN
Advertising Manager.
GENE WOOLWAY
Studio Representative.
FRED W. FOX
Advertising Copy.
RUTH TANEYHILL
Pulse Editor

Address All Communications to
CAMERA!

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

$3.50 per year in Los Angeles County.
$4.00 per year in Outside Zone.
$4.50 to Canada.
$5.00 to Foreign Points.

H. H. CONGER COMPANY
Nat'l Adv. Rep.
New York Chicago
San Francisco

Advertising Rates Upon Application.

Issued on Saturday morning of each week at 6318 Hollywood Blvd., in Los Angeles, Calif. Telephone 439-869.

Entered as second-class matter, Aug. 11, 1918, at the Post Office at Los Angeles, Cal., under Act of March 3rd, 1879.

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Gold Diggers"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

"The First Year"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

"The Valley of Lost Souls"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

Hoot Gibson
in
"Out of Luck"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

Madge Bellamy-Lloyd Hughes
in
"Are You a Failure?"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Road Together"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

Dark

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

William Farnum
in
"The Gun Fighter"

This Week's Theatre Notes

"A non-star cast with the greatest supporting cast ever assembled"—this is the way "Hollywood," now at the Rialto, might well be described.

Hope Drown, playing Angela, heroine of the drama, and Luke Cosgrove, whose delicious humor makes the role of the old grandfather a gem, make their screen debut in "Hollywood"; George K. Arthur, the motion picture idol of England, is seen for the first time on the American screen as Lem, Angela's sweetheart, but Ruby Lafayette, the grandmother, Eleanor Lawson, the tempestuous aunt, and Harris Gordon, the doctor, are old-time troupers.

The supporting cast, assembled from the brightest stars and celebrities doing "bits," include Pola Negri, Lila Lee, William Hart, Thomas Meighan, Theodore Kosloff, Vera Fredowa, Leatrice Joy, Will Rogers, Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Lois Wilson, Jack Pickford, and others.

Richard Barthelmess is at Loew's State Theatre this week in a nine-reel production of Beulah Marie Dix's famous romance of early English history, "The Fighting Blade."

In this First National picture, Barthelmess essays the role of a swashbuckling soldier of fortune in the days of Oliver Cromwell. "The Fighting Blade" is a story of hearts and swords given a brilliant and massive production. It is the romance of a courageous soldier of fortune whose deadly sword changed the currents of an empire, swept a monarch from his throne, and cast a lady of high degree into his arms; with Richard Barthelmess as the swordsman who held his blade ever ready for fight or frolic. Never has Barthelmess been seen in a role more complete with daring exploits, plot and intrigue, dash and danger. The dramatic events of the story lead to the overthrow of Charles I of England by Oliver Cromwell and the establishment of the Protectorate.

Barthelmess is supported by Dorothy Mackaill, Morgan Wallace, and a number of noted actors. The production was directed by John S. Robertson.

Mrs. Wallace Reid in "Human Wreckage," the sensational photodramatic expose of the narcotic evil that has recently rocked Los Angeles, is playing a special return engagement at the Alhambra Theater this week.

This is the play which Mrs. Reid, widow of the late Wally Reid, who waged such a noble fight against the terrible menace, produced in order to pierce deep under the surface of superficiality and fiction, into the throbbing hearts of humanity so that the danger of the drug evil may be more readily understood. One of the finest casts ever brought to the screen has been assembled to film "Human Wreckage," which includes James Kirkwood, Bessie Love, George Hackathorne, Claire McDowell, Robert McKim, Victory Bateman, Harry Northrup, Eric Mayne, Otto Hoffman, Phillip Sleeman and Lucille Ricksen.

"Human Wreckage" is not a bedtime story, it is a terrific plea for the consideration of deep thinking men and women to line up on the side of these notable men and women now battling the narcotic traffic. The picture shows graphically the terrors of the drug evil. It is always in good taste and offends no one, but it is most assuredly something that will be pondered over after having once been seen.

The bill at the Hillstreet theatre will have for its headliner none other than Willie Ritchie, one time lightweight champion of the world. An act has been written for him and in it he shows boxing exercises and various forms of physical culture. This should interest everyone, as there is also some comedy in the act as well as the other interesting features. Another feature on the bill will be Laura Pierpont and her company of players in what is termed "A protean novelty," called "Women Who Pass in the Night," being another playlet from the pen of Edgar Allen Woolf, in whose sketch, "The Guiding Star," Miss Pierpont created such a sensation last season. Chieftain Caupolican, the sensational Indian baritone, will be on the bill also, offering a number of American and Indian songs with the assistance of Miss Jeanne Renard at the piano. Mr. Sweeney and Master Walter, two comedians of unusual ability, will offer a number of songs and also will hand out plenty of fun. Lillian and Henry Ziegler, modern equilibrists, and the Eight Blue Demons, Arabian hand-balancers and pyramid-builders, will complete the vaudeville program. The feature photoplay will be a Tom Forman production, "Are You a Failure?" with Madge Bellamy, Lloyd Hughes, Tom Santschi and Hardee Kirkland. A Bert Roach comedy, "Dancing Love," will complete the bill.

California
Main at Eighth

Marion Davies
in
"Little Old New York"

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Corinne Griffith-
Frank Mayo, in
"Six Days"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

Pola Negri
in
"The Cheat"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Richard Barthelmess
in
"The Fighting Blade"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

James Cruze's
"Hollywood"

THE CRITERION

Charles Chaplin's
"A Woman of Paris"

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

D. W. Griffith's
"The White Rose"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

Mrs. Wallace Reid
in
"Human Wreckage"

Hollywood Egyptia
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden
"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mary Philbin
and Norman Kerry in
"Merry Go Round"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

Gloria Swanson
in
"Bluebeard's Eighth Wife

Former Stadium Chief Locates Here

ving been a member of the profession for at many years and numbering among his friends, perhaps the larger portion of picture fraternity, Roy Marshall, through e efforts Hollywood was given the enter- ent which has made Friday nights and Legion Stadium a fixture in the lives of Hollywoodians, has established a business should prove of decided interest, par- rly to his friends in the industry.

ce his retirement from the management e Stadium, Roy (as most everyone knows has had many offers of business connec- Some of these, while lucrative, would taken him from Hollywood and his ds.

hen talking to the writer today Roy had ollowing message which we freely trans- o his friends:

nce retiring from the management of the um I have been doing some careful in- gating and some hard thinking, in order ork out for myself a connection that d be permanent—of value to my friends o our city.

s everyone knows, Los Angeles is the one white spot, in a business way, of this coun- Nowhere are business and business con- s as good as in this city. For this rea- it is only natural that any person living and earning money should take advantage ese conditions and invest his or her money e most advantageous manner.

fter a careful investigation I have ac- d the management of the Hollywood h of the Mortgage-Debenture Corporation alifornia, an institution capitalized for a n and a half dollars and building for the cular business of handling mortgage secu- and high class investments.

he officers of this corporation are honest able men who enjoy big positions in Los les and its business. Their experience makes possible a safe and profitable business for the corporation and its owners.

"J. H. Scales, president, Fred C. Taylor, vice-president and Robert Marsh, member of the board of directors, are well known to the people of Los Angeles for their successful business careers.

"Associated with me in the management of this office is George W. Casteel, a banker of many years' experience and a man who is thoroughly conversant with all of the details of investment business. With his technical knowledge and my personal friendship, I feel that we are admirably situated to render a very much worth while service to my friends.

"The mortgage business is the safest of all businesses. A mortgage company has two kinds of assets—cash in bank or first mortgages on property whose valuation is set, not by the owners, but by competent company appraisers—its profits are made largely in the 'turnover' and commission charges. Mortgages are made at one rate and sold at a lower rate—and when sold the money is available for further turns and the profits are piling up as the business progresses, either for surplus or payment of dividends. Mortgages are sold outright—larger ones are divided into bond issues of the familiar $500 and $1,000 denominations. The Mortgage-Debenture Corporation will go further and thus make available for the small investors the same high class First Mortgage Security that larger investors are accustimed to buy.

"The big life insurance companies are heavy buyers of first mortgage loans.

"It has been my observation through years of association that motion picture people do not have the time, when busy working, for the proper investment of their earnings.

"The handling of money is a profession in itself and in this age of specialization it is well to keep in mind that men trained to handle financial matters, through the machinery of a corporation built for that purpose, can provide a service that members of the profession need, as few of them are especially trained or particularly qualified, now matter how successful they may become in their professional work, to properly safeguard their income and to make proper investments.

"I want to emphasize that here is where Mr. Casteel and myself expect to be a decided asset to those who will avail themselves of our service.

"In our offices at 411 Security Bank building we are equipped to do this. I trust that many will be farsighted enough to look into the possibilities which we offer."

From U to You

By WILL C. MURPHEY

ll and winter production activities at Uni- l City will be in full swing this week the starting of filming on at least four possibly five features, two of which will ewel productions of multi-reel length.

is also possible that production will start last of the week or the first of next on k and Ladder," a new Hoot Gibson pro- on from an original story by Edward wick, who will direct the picture.

---

ork has been completed by William Dun- n "The Steel Trail," his big railroad chap- ay in which he starred and directed, sup- d by Edith Johnson and a large com- The play, dealing with railroad con- tion, was made on the right-of-way of the Minaret and Western Railway, near Fri- California, in the Sierras. It is a spec- ar story of the problems of a construc- engineer, and one of the most important ersal chapterplays of the season.

ter a week's vacation Duncan will start is second Universal chapterplay. This will The Fast Express," a story of railroad ation, and a follower of the first, which with the building of a road. Frank ard Clark and Paul Bryan are the authors. iss Johnson will again support Duncan, the cast will be chosen in the next few Champions may come and champions may go, but Hayden Stevenson as the "manager" of the athletic hero of "The Leather Pushers," the two-reel fighting stories which Universal has been producing in succession for a year, seems destined to go on forever.

In every one of the nineteen condensed features which have been made up to date, Stevenson's talent for subtle comedy has added largely to the whimsical humor of the prize ring classics. The new star of the series, succeeding Reginald Denny, is Billy Sullivan, formerly a champion fighter, but Stevenson remains in the role he created and which has met with popular appreciation from fans.

Because of rain at Kean's Camp, in the Sierras, where the company had gone for outdoor scenes, "The Ghost City" chapterplay company from Universal City made a 125-mile jump by automobile, hurrying back to the studio, where interiors were hurriedly constructed and lights erected for all-night photographing of interiors for various episodes ahead.

Through this expedient no time was lost in delays because of weather. Trucks carried cameras and equipment and passenger cars the actors, including Pete Morrison and Margaret Morris, and Osborne, Slim Coles, Lola Todd and others in the cast.

"The Ghost City" is a modern Western story hinging around a vast irrigation project in the prairies, an abandoned mining city and the conflicting interests of cattlemen and farmers. Paul Bryan is the author and Jay Marchant is directing the play.

Ruth Royce, who plays "Marie Verne" in "Beasts of Paradise," the new chapterplay being made at Universal City, plans to visit New York at the conclusion of the picture. Her vacation follows five consecutive chapterplays for Universal.

"The first commonwealth of the United States where anyone may live up to his aspirations," suggests a rather brilliant utopia. And that is just what the story of "The Noblest Roman," Herbert Rawlinson's latest completed Universal vehicle, tells of. It is a magazine story by Mary Whiteside, directed by William Parke, with Beatrice Burnham, Kalla Pasha, Melbourne McDowell, Fay Tincher, Joe Murphy, Frederick Stanton, Margaret Landis, Jackie Morgan, and fully twenty other well known players in bits, composing the supporting cast. Edward Schroeder is cutting and Bob Hopkins writing the titles.

"Oh, Univer-r-r-sal, you made a tramp outa me!" Bert Roach, comedian and dramatic actor, sings his lyric beautifully.

(Continued on Page 19)

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Sept. 16th.—Actual filming of "Half-a-Dollar Bill," latest production of the Graf Films, was finished last week. The film is being titled and cut at the Pacific Studios at San Mateo, and will be ready for release shortly. W. H. Van Dyke, director; Leigh Smith, his assistant; Andre Barletier, cameraman, and one or two other members of the staff returned to their homes in Los Angeles the latter part of the week.

Fred Niblo and his wife, Enid Bennett, motored to San Francisco last Friday to be present at the first showing here of "Strangers of The Night," which opened at the Warfield Theatre on Saturday afternoon. The picture is the screen version of "Captain Applejack," Wallace Edinger's big stage success. Mr. Niblo directed the filming of the story and Enid Bennett played the leading feminine role.

Edgar Kennedy, former Olympic Club championship boxer, and now a shining light in the picture circles of Hollywood, was a visitor in San Francisco last week. He came north to witness the local showing of two of his latest efforts, "The Leather Pushers" and "The Pony Express." He has returned to the southern city to commence work on another of "The Leather Pushers."

Ruth Roland, the serial queen who has risked her life and limb a thousand times in making thrillers for the screen, is making her vaudeville debut as headliner of the bill at the Golden Gate Theatre this week. She will be heard in a number of songs with Ralph Pollack at the piano.

The project for a grand two days' holiday for everybody connected with the moving picture industry in San Francisco, to be held at Pacific City in October, has been postponed until spring, as it was decided that it was almost too late in the season to be sure of the good weather necessary to make an outing of that kind a success.

Eric Von Stroheim, Milton Gardner, vice-president of Goldwyn, and Ernest Traxler, production manager of "Greed," stopped over for a day or two last week in San Francisco, en route to Colfax from the south. The last few weeks of work on "Greed," the screen version of "McTeague," Frank Norris' famous classic, will be completed there. The present announced date for the release of the big picture is November the 25th, and there seems to be a present possibility that it will be first shown in San Francisco.

Leatrice Joy spent a few days last week as a guest at the St. Francis.

Tom Gibson and the company making five-reel melodramas under his direction for the Gibson Picture Corporation are hard at work on the second of the series. The story, as yet untitled, is one of the lumber camps, and was written by Gibson himself, who is well known not only as a director, but as a successful author of screen dramas. Ora Carew is the featured player and in her support again appears Jay Morley, Hal Stephens, "Tiny" Sandford, Eddie O'Brien, and some new faces added for this production. Part of the studio work is completed, and some exteriors on a beautiful estate near Burlingame. The company will leave within a few days for Santa Cruz Mountains, where they will f scenes in an actual lumber camp, and am the big trees.

Louis Graf, president of the Graf Fil and J. Hesser Walraven, business manager the organization, spent the week end in Angeles on business.

The West Coast Productions of Los Ange with a northern branch here, have had name of the organization changed to the C quest Pictures Corporation to avoid confus with the West Coast Films, an older orga zation. The company are at present film "Nobody's Child," at the Pacific Studios, San Mateo.

Jack Jungmeyer, of the N.E.A. News Se ice and well known to all the picture wo has been in San Francisco for a week more arranging for the handling and distri tion by aeroplane of the pictures of the J anese disaster, and the Dempsey-Firpo fi both due here within a few days.

Thomas Meighan, Lila Lee, Mary Astor, Green, director, and some twenty members the company and staff filming "Woman Pro came to San Francisco by boat last Mond They had expected to work on the boat co ing up, but as Monday was the day that sun hid its face and all the coast was bla eted in fog, they met with disappointment returned to the South the same evening.

(Continued on Page 20)

CASTS OF THE WEEK

Universal Film Co.
presents
HERBERT RAWLINSON
in
"ALL FOR THE LOVE OF GLORIA"
Directed by Robert Hill.
CAST:

Herbert Rawlinson	Jere Austin
Ruth Dwyer	Robt. Holmans
	Wm. Quinn

Universal Film Co.
presents
"THE TURMOIL"
Directed by Hobart Henley.
CAST:

Geo. Hackathorne	Pauline Garon
Eleanor Boardman	Bert Roach
Emmett Corrigan	Theodore Von Eltz
Eileen Percy	Edward Hearne
	Kenneth Gibson

Metro Pictures Corp.
present
VIOLA DANA
in
"ANGEL FACE MOLLY"
Story by Fred Kennedy Myton.
Continuity by Tom J. Hopkins.
Directed by Oscar Apfel.
Photographed by John Arnold.
CAST:

Molly O'Hara	Viola Dana
John Rand	Milton Sills
Mrs. Rand	Gertrude Claire
"Spike" Malone	Wallace MacDonald
Ramon Orestes Cordova	Bertram Grassby
Pat O'Connell	DeWitt Jennings
Jenks	Nelson McDowell
Monk Hinman	Mathew Betz
Silas Wetherbee	Edward Wade

IRENE HUNT
Who will be seen as Nancy Hanks Lincoln in "The Life of Abraham Lincoln."

George Bunny, of Jack White comedies, is recovering from a broken bone in his foot, incurred while watching a company work out a "gag" which he had devised. A cable broke, allowing a truck on which he was seated to plunge down an incline, and jolt him off. His foot will be out of the cast in two weeks.

CASTS OF THE WEEK

Metro Pictures Corp.
presents
"THE MAN WHOM LIFE PASSED B
Story by
Victor Schertzinger and Winifred Dunn
Photographed by Chester A. Lyons.
CAST:

Hope Moore	*Jane No
John Turbin	Percy Marm
Joy Moore	Eva No
Harold Trevis	Cullen La
John's mother	Lydia K
"Iron Man" Moore	Hobart Boswo
Paula	Gertrude Sh
Muggsy	Lincoln Steadm
Leo Friend	Andre de Beran
The Lawyer	William Humph

*Courtesy of Chester Bennett.

Famous Players Lasky Corp.
present
THOMAS MEIGHAN
in
"WOMAN PROOF"
Directed by Al. E. Green.
Photographed by Chas. Clark.
CAST:

Tom Lockwood	Thomas Meig
Louise Halliday	Lila L
Milo Bleach	John Sainp
Wilma Lockwood	Louise Dres
Dick Lockwood	Robt. Agn
Violet Lynwood	Mary As
Cecil Updyke	Edgar Nor
Uncle Joe Gloomer	Chas. A. Sel
Joe Burleigh	Geo. O'Br
Celeste Lockwood	Vera Reyno
Col. Lynwood	Hardee Kirkl
Wistful Wooer	Martha Mat
Isaac Dirge	Phil Gon
Foreman	Mike Do

You Furnish the Idea---I Will do the Rest

William Sistrom, newly appointed general manager of the Hollywood Studios, who left Universal after three years as general manager to become the highest paid production manager in the picture industry for William Randolph Hearst, has surrounded himself with a staff of the best and most complete organizations in the industry, and plans to go much further than simply renting place facilities. In a recent interview Mr. Sistrom stated:

"We hope, not only to save the independent producer a great deal of time and money, but also to be of material assistance in the making of high-grade pictures, by furnishing a more complete and much more competent organization than any one individual producer could assemble.

"A producer can come to the Hollywood Studios and we will give him all the necessary co-operation to bring his story to the screen. If he desires, we will help him select director and cast, will design and build his sets, outline his production schedule, and handle all his accounts.

"The producer or star who works with us, will have the same careful consideration he would receive if he were with the biggest producing organization in the industry, and will be relieved of a great deal of the tremendous overhead, which seems to be a necessary part of all large producers. We are not in the production business first, and in the rental business as a secondary consideration, to cut down our overhead. Our producers' needs will be paramount with us.

"Here is what we offer in addition to a centrally located and thoroughly equipped studio—an organization which cannot be surpassed anywhere in the industry. If the producer simply wants stage space and sets, we can take care of him; but if he wishes to avoid the tremendous problem of building his own organization, ours is at his service.

"The overhead stops when the production is completed, if the producer avails himself of our organization. When he is ready to start his next production, the same men who have worked with him before, who know their business and his needs, are available.

"If he builds his own organization, he must let his force go with the completion of his picture, or carry a tremendous overhead. In case he lets them go, they are scattered to the four winds, when he is again ready to start production, and he faces the problem of building another organization of untried men."

MARTHA MARSHALL
Who is playing a prominent part in "Superstition, a Jack O'Brien Production

Conway Tearle Replies to Critics

Seldom has a published statement aroused such wide comment in Los Angeles filmdom as that which followed Conway Tearle's interview in the Camera! several weeks ago, to the effect that the physical acting of a player is not worth more than $500 weekly.

Directors, actors and authors have attacked Mr. Tearle's contention and replies to his arguments have been published widely in the local papers and in trade publications.

The published replies to my contention that physical acting before the camera does not warrant a greater salary than $500 weekly and the discussion aroused by the article in the Camera! among clubs in filmdom make it advisable that I attempt to answer these arguments. Many of the published statements which the article provoked, failed to make any point whatsoever and indicated that the authors failed to read my article to its final conclusion. None of the answers to my argument which have been printed are well taken and warrant further comment from me.

The fact remains that no one has successfully contradicted my contention that an actor in motion pictures is judged first by his drawing power and second, by his acting ability. There is the iron-bound law that no amount of every argument can contradict These are the standards by which actors are judged. It is very nice to laud one's art and to argue for the sake of art. However, the undeniable fact remains that acting, like most anything else in this day and age is, unfortunately, commercial.

This is a practical age. Under existing laws of filmdom the biggest asset the actor possesses is his drawing power. Are Rin-Tin-Tin, Strongheart and Joe Martin great actors? Of course not. Yet they command monetary remuneration for their appearances before the camera that far exceeds the salary of some of our finest actors whose box-office value is doubtful. There are various humans who appear before the camera and whose acting talents are extremely limited, but whose personalities or peculiar qualities make them tremendous box-office powers and therefore, highly paid players.

"Inasmuch as this is the law, actors must abide by this law. They cannot do otherwise. They must judge their value by their box-office power. As further argument and concrete evidence to my remarks, where is the actor who has no box-office value and whose salary runs over $500 weekly? One has but to look around to enumerate the players whose salaries remain modest despite years of experience, despite splendid talents, because of the fact that their names do not draw people to theaters.

"No one would rather see the day when acting alone would bring tremendous salaries than I. However, it is foolish to cry for the moon. We must adapt ourselves to modern institutions. We must abide by the laws that govern. We cannot change these laws because they are the will of the public. It is the public that judges the merits of an actor by its patronage. Those who are not patronized are out of the running. And surely, every indication points to the fact that acting alone will not bring this patronage.

"Many have misconstrued my article as an attack on high salaries of players. This is silly. I stated at the time and I state now that if an actor can draw large attendances, if his name is largely responsible for the success of a picture, that actor is worth the maximum of his share. In some instances he is not worth $500 per week, but $5,000 per week. Seldom does the actor receive his fair share. If he is worth $5,000 to a producer because of his drawing power, he generally gets $2,500.

"The entire question resolves itself into the fact that modern art is commercial. The exhibitor wants the picture that fills his house. Surely some of our greatest box-office attractions could hardly be proclaimed artistic achievements. Art is acceptable as long as it is commercial. Acting is an art. Under the laws that govern the motion picture business, the laws that are dictated by the public via the box-office, no acting in itself is worth more than $500 per week. This sounds sacreligious to the artist, but it is fact.

"Again I would like to repeat that actors who receive more than $500 a week deserve every penny of it and more—but they do not receive it for their acting, and that's a fact that we cannot deny, no matter how much we argue."

ANDREW ARBUCKLE
Popular Comedian who is with the Jack White Corporation.

News and Gossip About the Moving Throngs of Movieland

IT CAN BE DONE

Arriving in Los Angeles just four years ago with less than $5 in his pocket, Charles "Buck" Jones got a job as an extra man in a Western feature play merely because he could make a flying horseback mount.

Today "Buck" stands forth as one of the high salaried stars of moviedom with an acting skill developed to such a degree that the Fox organization has recently insisted on his taking leading parts in non-Western pictures.

But with all his success, the old love of the open remains. "Buck" spends his vacations on the ranch and range and predicts that the Western drama will soon come to the premier place in filmdom.

"'The Covered Wagon'" said Jones, "is my idea of a true Western picture and the West is full of material for many like it. The building of the railroads, the acquisition of the Western territories, their settlement, the harnessing of rivers, the building of great cities all are ladened with material for great true pictures of the great West, pictures that will inform and thrill those who see them. Some day, and soon, I hope to be again plunged in the making of Western pictures that will take the place of text books in the teaching of the history of the Western United States and that at the same time will be great entertainment."

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

Winifred Dunn, scenario editor for Metro, offers the following rules for budding scenario writers:

1—Fewer and better scenarios.

2—Be original—when you see a good picture, don't go home and re-write it.

3—Read the daily papers—reporters know human drama; study their work.

4—Write what you know—a book-keeper can seldom speak convincingly of adventure in the South Seas or at the North Pole.

5—Be human; don't accuse any superiority to potential audiences.

6—Be honest; honesty means convincingness and that spells popular approval.

7—Persevere—don't lose courage if your first fifty scenarios are rejected; the first fifty are the hardst.

8—Don't fear studio plagiarism; deal with legitimate organizations, who don't steal your ideas any more than a legitimate bank steals your money.

9—Learn another profession or trade; three regular meals a day keeps your attitude to life normal and pleasant, as it must be for success.

10—Fewer and better scenarios—first, last and all the time. One good scenario has a better chance of acceptance than a hundred poor ones.

BABY STAR SIGNED

Muriel Frances Dana, diminutive screen luminary and terpsichorean artist de luxe, who in fact is but one more year of age than she has words in her name, has been signed by Warner Brothers for the part of a little French girl with Mae Marsh in "Daddies," under the direction of William A. Seiter.

Little Miss Dana's screen services, since her personal appearance at the Pantages theatre in Los Angeles last January as an added attraction during the filming of Max Graf's picture, "The Forgotten Law," in which she played a prominent role, has been much in demand and it is freely predicted by those in authority in the inner sacred circles of filmdom that the name of Muriel Frances Dana will soon top the list of screenland's child celebrities.

STAGE AND SCREEN STAR SIGNED BY LLOYD

Harry Mestayer, descendant of America's oldest theatrical family, has been cast as Jim Oglethorpe in Frank Lloyd's independent production of "Black Oxen," soon to be released through First National. Mr. Mestayer's ancestors were prominent on the American stage in the days of George Washington and John Adams.

NOTED ARTIST TO FILM "ALADDIN'S LAMP"

Ferdinand Pinney Earle will film "Aladdin's Lamp." This announcement was made by William H. Clifford, who has begun research work preparatory to adapting this particular link of the Arabian Nights chain of stories for the screen.

According to Mr. Clifford, the plans for the filming of "Alleddin's Lamp" were discussed while Mr. Earle and himself were collaborating on the art title work incident to the production of "Satan's Secret," which was written and done into continuity by Mr. Clifford and produced by Choice Productions, Inc.

While Mr. Clifford is writing the adaptation of this bizarre tale of the Orient, Mr. Earle will make the paintings for the backgrounds and mountings, precisely as was done when the latter produced "Omar Khayam," which will be released this fall.

Mr. Earle paints his backgrounds in monotone colors, photographing these paintings and then superimposing the players' actions against the paintings. Unusually beautiful effects are made possible by this method, declare those who witnessed the pre-release exhibitions of "Omar Khayam."

BOND JOINS RENALLE

Frederick Bond, who has just completed "Beyond the Veil" for A. K. Mozumdar, has been appointed assistant general managing director with Renalles, Inc., and, under the supervision of Clarke Renalle, will direct their big feature picture, "The Elk's Tooth," now in course of preparation.

Fred Silvio has been cast for the part of Laudenbach, the heavy, in Renalles, Inc., picture, "The Elk's Tooth."

Peter Burke will portray the juvenile lead of Bruce Kavanaugh in "The Elk's Tooth."

Style is no respecter of age, hence Jackie Coogan, youngest of screen stars, can be considered an authority on film modes, especially those utilized in his new picture, "Long Live the King." Fifteen hundred women were used in many of the big scenes, and each piece of outer wearing apparel, from frock to gingham apron, was made by the Coogan wardrobe department, and six wardrobe mistresses were engaged to handle the task. "Pretty dresses make pretty girls prettier," declares Jackie. "My director, Victor Schertzinger, says that good looking girls are necessary to any picture—so I made sure all those who played in my picture were pretty and had pretty dresses."

MOTHER

Her heart holds a love that fills the whole world.
Her soul holds the brilliance of Heaven unfurled.
Her wond'rous bright eyes hold great visions of Truth.
And her dear smiling face holds the beauty of Youth.
About her dear presence a radiance doth shine.
This is my Mother—Sweet Mother o' Mine.

By JOSEPH M. SCHENCK.

I have often been asked how the milli that are put into motion pictures are spe To make a long story short, the money g out thirty-seven different ways. Here th are:

1—Scenario. 2—Director and assistan 3—Art director. 4—Cameraman and assi ants. 5—Cutter and clerk. 6—Company pr men and grips. 7—Star. 8—Talent. 9—E tras. 10—Wardrobes, rented and purchased.

11—Wardrobe, labor and material. 12—P chased and rented hand props. 13—Arc tects. 14—Carpenters' salaries. 15—Sce salaries. 16 Prop salaries. 17—Carpent material. 18—Scenic material. 19—Pr rented and purchased. 20—Props expense.

21—Location cost. 22—"Dressing" locatio 23—Transportation. 24—Hotels and mea 25—Auto, horse and boat hire. 26—Ele tricians' salaries. 27—Electrical materi 28 Negative films. 29—Developing. 30 Cutting.

31—Sample print. 32—Labor and mater on titles and inserts. 33—Photographing titl 34—Film and developing same. 35—Still ph tographs. 36—Publicity and advertising. 37 Miscellaneous.

James Cruze will complete the casting "To the Ladies" within the next three da and production work on this adaptation Walter Woods of the stage play of the sa name by Marc Connolly and George S. Kau man will start next week.

Edward Horton, who played the title ro of "Ruggles of Red Gap," will play the chi masculine role in this Paramount picture.

Jack Holt has returned from San Francisc where he suffered a slight illness, from whi he has completely recovered.

Irvin Willat, who will direct "The Herita of the Desert" for Paramount, plans to devo the next two weeks to location hunting in t region described by Zane Grey, author of th popular story.

Final preparations are being made for t start of George Melford's production, "Flamin Barriers," on which camera work is schedule to start this week.

Jacqueline Logan, Antonio Moreno, Walt Hiers, Charles Ogle and Robert McKim a the featured players who have been named date for this picturization of Byron Morgan story, which Jack Cunningham scenarized.

Thomas Meighan will defend his title "filmdom's greatest transcontinental com muter" by departing for New York as soon a "Woman Proof," his current Paramount pi ture, is completed at Paramount's West Coa studio.

Except for a few short scenes, Dougla Fairbanks, Jr., has completed his first scree starring vehicle, "Stephen Steps Out," whic Joseph Henabery directed for Paramount.

Although William S. Hart's pictures hav carried the Paramount brand for many year the famous two-gun man of the screen working in the Paramount studio for the firs time in his long association with this organi zation. Interior scenes for "Wild Bill Hickok are now being filmed under the direction o Clifford S. Smith, following a busy locatio trip to Victorville, Calif., wherre his exterior were photographed.

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1923

Superstition" Has Bright Cast

John B. O'Brien is now direct- the first of his own produc- ns, "Superstition," for the Cre- ve Films with an all-star cast ded by John Bowers and Mar- erite De La Motte, who suc- eds June Norton in the leading minine role.

Miss Norton, who was origi- lly cast for the part, owing to very severe nervous breakdown, s been forced to relinquish the le and go to the mountains to st.

The story was written by I. W. ving under the original title "Trapped."

Included in the all-star cast esenting "Superstition" are Joe owling, Martha Marshall, Spot- swoode Aitken, Sheldon Lewis, dward Burns, Claire McDowell, esare Gravina, Grace Gordon and hers.

Frank Beresford has been pro- oted to production editor of the ganization with W. H. Carr as neral production manager. Otto usso will act as business mana- r, with Fred Kusso as auditor.

Superstition" will be presented Creative Films as a John B. 'Brien production. A big three- asted schooner has been char- red especially for the film and he company is making a three eek cruise off Catalina Island nd Lower California, filming enes. Miss De La Motte has ored successfully in a number of ecent big screen offerings, includ- g "The Famous Mrs. Fair," When a Man's a Man" and Richard the Lion Hearted."

ACTIVE EDDIE

Eddie Phillips has just closed a nonth at the Warner studio with he completion of "George Wash- ington, Jr." in which he carried he leading role with Wesley Bar- y. The very same day he started Whipping Boss" at the Hollywood tudios. He has been signed for . Metro picture immediately fol- owing this production.

The Cosmopolitan "Daughter of Mother McGinn" company, under he direction of Paul Powell, is n San Francisco on location for he outdoor scenes. This is the original locale of Jack Boyle's Boston Blackie story. This loca- ion will conclude production and he picture will be released at an early date.

Tom O'Brien, former nationally known boxer and football star, is strangely cast in his present lead- ing character role in "Born of the Cyclone," being produced by Rob- ertson-Cole. Lloyd Hughes, the hero, gives him a sound thrashing and to cap the climax, O'Brien sub- mits calmly to the villagers' taunts of cowardice.

WOULD RATHER BE SURE THAN SORRY

To become a star over nght is the dream of every movie girl, and the hundreds of little extras who throng the United Studios in this town are filled with amazement at Mary Louise Hartje Woods, who has such an opportunity within her hand and doesn't care to grasp it.

For Mary Louise Hartje Woods is the daughter of the late Augustus Hartje, multi-millionaire paper manufacturer of Pittsburgh and grand-daughter of John L. Scott, former president of the Pennsylvania Railroad; has a magnificent country home at Beverly, California, four automobiles and a retinue of servants.

Any wise-acre in the motion picture business will tell you that a star needs experience and that such unfortunates as have been skyrocketed to stardom at the very beginning of their career, either through influence or owning their own companies, have fallen with a sickening thud in nearly every case. This Miss Woods realizes and although she hopes some day to have her own producing unit she very wisely is working her way up from the foot of the ladder.

"When I decided to enter pictures," said Miss Woods, when she was interviewed between scenes in the shooting of "Flaming Youth," a First National picture, "I made up my mind to study for the profession of a motion picture actress just as thoroughly as I would have studied for any other profession. Only there are no colleges or schools which teach 'acting for the movies' satisfactorily, so I have to be content with Experience for a teacher.

"One of the first things I learned was how to make up. This was much more intricate than I had imagined it. In fact there are a great number of things in acting for the movies that are not so simple as they seem.

"Movie make-up is an entirely different thing from street or stage make-up. Almost every face contains numerous imperfections which are invisible to the untrained eye, and which are yet very obvious when enlarged many times on the screen. To conceal these blemishes is an especial art. For instance, if your face is too full, by shading the outline with red, you can make it appear much thinner. If you desire to make your face rounder and fuller reverse the process and lighten the grease paint at its outer edge.

"It is necessary to look for imperfections of every sort in pose and expression. Then try to find a make-up which will eradicate them.

"Red photographs black, and for this reason rouge is only used for special effects. Rouge on the cheeks gives the illusion of dark shadows and makes the face look hollow; it deepens the eyes, and is sometimes used on the eyelids for this reason. Light carmine is usually used on the lips.

"I was fortunate in getting many valuable tips from Sylvia Breamer, the clever Australian girl who played the title role in 'The Girl of the Golden West,' and before I even applied for a position I made a thorough study of make-up. I was well repaid for among the dozens of flat uninteresting countenances, a well made-up face stands out and attracts the attention of the director at once. This means that, even in a mob scene, there is a 'front row' just as in the chorus of a musical comedy. And once your face becomes known to a director, you have a toe-hold on the ladder of success."

WANDA FINISHES VITAGRAPH SPECIAL

This week-end marks the close of Wanda Hawley's work in Vitagraph's special production of George Barr McCutcheon's "The Man From Brodney's." She was engaged and went to work before the camera within twenty-four hours after her return to Hollywood from a six months' trip abroad, during which time she starred in two pictures—one in Egypt and the other in London—and visited a number of the Continental capitals. Her role in the Vitagraph production is that of a smart English society woman of titled position—just the type with which she hob-nobbed during her stay in England, where they fear the invasion of the American actresses, yet make a great to-do over them. In this forthcoming picture at least the Britishers who always claim they are being maligned on the screen can have no complaint over Miss Hawley's characterization of one of them, since she knows them as intimately as any foreigner can ever know the inhabitants of the "right little, tight little isle."

Before entering on her next role before the camera, Miss Hawley is looking forward to decorating and furnishing the home she has just secured in the heart of Hollywood's residential district. "European and Egyptian hotels are marvelous and their food is gorgeous," says the blonde star, "but there's nothing in all the world like a Hollywood bungalow of your own and a home-cooked meal tastes like nectar and ambrosia after the elaborate eleven-course dinners that are thrust upon the European traveler."

Film Chief Is To Return Here Soon

Mike Rosenberg, secretary and general manager of Principal Pictures Corporation, notifies the studio director that he has abandoned his intentions of going on to Europe with Sol Lesser, president of the organization.

The plans of these two film executives contemplated a tour of the European capitals and a sort of joint vacation during which they would make European connections with particular reference to Principal Pictures representation in London, Paris and Milan.

"I shall not go," writes Mr. Rosenberg, "Because so many new enterprises have been opened up since Mr. Lesser and I have been in New York, and production projects outlined, that I shall return to Los Angeles immediately after the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Lesser on the Leviathan.

"We expect to complete negotiations for the distribution of Harold Bell Wright's 'When a Man's a Man' and probably for the balance of the Wright series of pictures before leaving New York. The reception accorded our 'The-Mean'est Man in the World' is ample evidence to Mr. Lesser and myself that there is a great public demand for romantic comedies, simple and direct in story and exploiting the homely phases of human nature. The success of the picture in San Francisco was so decided that it rendered the New York introduction easy.

"Plan to begin work on 'The Winning of Barbara Worth' shortly after my arrival in Los Angeles."

McGOWAN STARTS

The Beverly Productions have leased space at the Hollywood Studios and commenced work on their first feature-length film of the working title "The Whipping Boss." J. P. McGowan will direct and also portray a leading role, combining both his previous cinema activities.

The cast is all-star, as announced to date, being headed by Barbara Bedford, most recently in the new "Spoilers," Lloyd Hughes as leading man, and Eddie Phillips in the leading juvenile role. Wade Boteler, Lydia Knott, George Cummings, Andrew Waldron and Billy Elmer are included.

Continuity for this picture was done by Phillip Hurn. J. E. MacDonald is assistant director and Walter Griffin, cameraman. This is the first of a series of four pictures scheduled for successive production at the Hollywood Studios by Beverly Productions.

Congratulations To and From Peggy

Baby Peggy Montgomery is the recipient today of a congratulatory telegram from Peggy Hopkins Joyce, on the little Peggy's newly signed three year contract with Sol Lesser.

Peggy Joyce says": Congratulations on your new contract. I am happy to see another Peggy rise to full stardom. It more than ever convinces me the name is a lucky one. Signed, Peggy Hopkins Joyce, care Vanities of 1923, Earl Carroll Theatre, New York City."

The two Peggys met when Miss Joyce was in Hollywood some time ago, and a warm friendship sprung up between them. Peggy Hopkins Joyce thinks the tiny star is the dearest ever, and Baby Peggy in turn thinks Miss Joyce a grand, beautiful lady.

The baby's first production for Principal Pictures will be announced within a short time, and it will likely be an adaptation from a well-known story. She will take up quarters at the new studio sometime in October, and begin work prior to Mr. Lesser's return from abroad.

A suite of rooms is being equipped in the new East wing of the dressing room building at Principal Pictures Studio on Santa Monica Boulevard, for the advent of the little star. Cunning devices are being installed to fill the needs of the little girl, and in truth a royal suite it will be when the little princess arrives on the lot.

Her director and story will be announced shortly after the return of Mike Rosenberg from New York, where he has been in conference with the Lessers, Sol and Irving, for the past four weeks.

WELCOME KATHLEEN

Among the many visitors inquiring their way to the studio of Principal Pictures Corporation, where Harold Bell Wright is making his headquarters this week, was Mr. Crosby Hopps. Mr. Hopps was director of music at the Forest Avenue Church, Kansas City, Mo., in the days before Wright had achieved his fame as a writer of fiction and was accomplishing celebrity as a vigorous and eloquent minister at the Forest Avenue Church.

Mr. Hopps introduced to Mr. Wright a lady whose screen name is Kathleen Ridgway but who in private life is Miss Kathleen Hopps, daughter of the musician. Mr. Wright relished the fact that he remembered many occasions when he had held this pretty girl on his lap, a highly decorous thing to do under the circumstances since she was then only six. It is likely Miss Ridgway will be enrolled in Mr. Wright's picture version of "The Winning of Barbara Worth" which Principal Pictures will produce.

Gibson Contracts With a New Co.

Kenneth Gibson has an honest-to-goodness dilemma on his hands. In fact, it is difficult to believe that America's great lexicographer, the honorable Noah Webster, LL.D., in compiling his dictionary on the English language, could have had any such case in mind when he set forth one of his answers, to-wit: "an awkward or vexatious situation."

Kenneth Gibson, besides being an able and conscientious artist, is ambitious to a marked degree and after finishing a number of important roles in recent productions such as "Daytime Wives," "Ashes of Vengeance" (his character role of "Phillippe" in "Ashes of Vengeance" is illustrating this article), "The Dangerous Maid," and others, he hied himself to the Artists' Colony at Carmel for a few days' relaxation.

On his return, he was at once signed up for one of the principal roles in the productions of South America Company's first production, "The White Queen," featuring Miss Charlotte DuPuis, the new French star, by the president of the company, J. Barstow Budworth. The preliminary camera work was shot here a few days ago and arrangements had been made by Mr. Budworth for the entire company of some sixty members to be sent to producing headquarters in Peru, South America, to finish the film in the wilds of the jungles and in deserted Inca villages. Then one of those unaccountable delays happened to Mr. Budworth's plans and the trip was postponed for a few weeks. Being ambitious and to bridge the delay, "Ken" signed up for the juvenile-heavy role and has started work in "The Turmoil," the new Universal-Jewel, co-starring George Hackathorne and Eleanor Boardman, under the direction of Hobart Henley. Now comes the glad tidings—or is it sad tidings—that the productions of South America Company has finally completed arrangements and will soon depart and "Ken," being ambitious, is determined to finish both roles, but with a few thousand miles of land and sea between the two studios, it will be interesting, indeed, to learn his manner of solution.

CHILD STAR WITH GASNIER

Maxine Tabnac, five-year-old player who recently completed parts with Dustin Farnum in "A Man" and House Peters in "Held to Answer," is now enacting a role in "Maytime," which Louis J. Gasnier is directing at the Mayer-Schulberg studios. Maxine made her film debut in commercial motion pictures produced by a St. Louis company about three years ago and it was not long after that she turned to the broader and more lucrative field of romantic films. She is a little lady who promises well.

CHESTER SETS RECORD PICKS 'EM YOUNG

And now comes screenland's youngest star. No one can take exception to this claim of Chester Bennett, whose latest production, "The Lullaby," is now being released.

Enter Miss Gloria Elinor Dyer into the hall of fame. She's four days old and not even camera shy, and she played an important part, too.

When "The Lullaby" was being filmed a new born babe was required, and Mr. Bennett was frantically searching the city for a mother who would permit her offspring to enter movieland.

He returned to the studio discouraged and dejected, when his cinematographer, Elmer Dyer, divulged the information that a four day old Venu graced his household, and was positive the young lady would willingly enact the role. Mr. Dyer pressed the young miss into service and she finished with colors flying.

The picture title proved most appropriate, as there was a "Lullaby" sung during the filming of the scenes, and Miss Dyer did the singing. The proud father still insists that the babe was really trying to sing a ballad.

Henry Walthall Is Prominent in Cast

J. K. McDonald has assembled his cast for his next Booth Tarkington feature "Old Fathers and Young Sons,"

The cast includes Henry B. Walthall, Irene Rich, Ben Alexander and Rockliffe Fellowes.

The picture is a screen adaptation by Hope Loring and Louis Lighton, of Tarkington's dramatic story of typical American Home Life, dealing with a tragedy found in many homes where the father is too old to understand his children.

"Old Fathers and Young Sons" is to be directed by William Beaudine who directed McDonald's last Booth Tarkington success "Penrod and Sam." Several members of the "Penrod and Sam" cast will also be seen in the new picture including Ben Alexander, who played the principal role and Joseph McRay, "Penrod's" "cullud" boy friend.

Booth Tarkington considers that "Old Fathers and Young Sons" has greater screen possibilities than any story of his ever filmed. He withheld it from motion picture producers until he was satisfied that it would be handled in a masterly way. He was more than satisfied that McDonald should produce it after he had witnessed "Penrod and Sam" which he declared in a letter to the producer was the finest screen version of any of his stories so far filmed.

Watterson Rothacker, president of the Rothacker-Aller Laboratories, is making his half yearly visit to the Western laboratories of the concern several weeks earlier than usual in order to be here during the stay of two of First National's executives, Richard A. Rowland, general manager, and Samuel Katz, member of the executive committee.

On his arrival here, Mr. Rothacker went into conference with the two visiting First National executives and with John McCormick, Western representative, and Earl J. Hudson, production manager of this company. The meeting is to lay out the extensive laboratory details for First National's big fall and winter production schedule.

A Southern girl attracts a lot of attention in New England.

A Southern girl is attracting a lot of attention in a motion picture supposedly taking place in New England, but really being filmed at Robertson-Cole studio.

The girl is Lela Sue Campbell. She has been cast for an important role in "Born of the Cyclone" at R-C. Her work and beauty have won her the praise of her director and others and it is probable that she will be offered further opportunities for even bigger roles.

ruce Chooses a Real Bum Locale obert C. Bruce, creator of derness Tales for Educational n Exchanges Inc., has secured e very interesting and intimate vs of a real hobo "jungle" for next picture, "While The Pot ls."

"jungle" is a camping place our leisurely gentlemen of the l, and the "jungle" used by ce is the real, authentic thing ts line. It is situated twenty s north-east of Portland, Ore., during the filming of his pic- which deals with the life of e wanderers, Bruce moved his es into the "jungle" and pro- ed to film his picture in this ral setting.

ungles," as they are known in argot of the tramp, are merely camping grounds, generally some kind of natural shelter, ays located near some city and to the railroad tracks. The es make this their temporary quarters for the few days they in that locality "mooching" s, or while waiting for their ns. The locations of these ping spots form an important in every hobo's mental road- and when in the locality he es for the spot, sure to meet red souls and a mulligan stew. uring the filming of this se- ce of "While The Pot Boils," h occupied five days, the camp visited repeatedly by these hts of the box-car and the road, and after the first day, e always had on the fire a ming "mulligan" for the visit- or.

uce learned the recipe for a lligan" from one of the trav- s. It is simple: "Get all the you can; get all the veget- you can; put them all in kettle and stew. When it s so good you can't stand it longer, it's ready to eat."

---

wspaper reporters and editors the best material for motion re directors and writers, in pinion of Lela Sue Campbell, lar new ingenue in the photo- world.

e bases her belief on the fact newspaper writers are trained serve things carefully, to get and to get things exactly Such training is necessary film director and writer, de- s Miss Campbell.

---

esley "Freckles" Barry has leted his latest picture, "George hington, Jr.," a picturization eorge M. Cohan's play pro- d by the Warner Brothers. ng the prominent members of cast are Gertrude Olmstead, ard Phillips, Otis Harlan, iam Courtright and Leon Bary. St. Clair directed. Julien Jo- son adapted the story for the n.

One-Minute Interviews With Famous Film Folk

By MALCOM STUART BOYLAN

"Mr. Carewe, we all know that Holbrook Blinn is a splendid stage actor, but how did he do before the camera in "The Bad Man?' Was he the cat's whiskers, the buffalo's beard or the elephant's elbow?"

"Holbrook Blinn is a great actor; and don't let 'em tell you different. He is just as great on the screen as he is on the stage where his inimitable accent can be enjoyed. In 'The Bad Man' he gives a performance that will go down in screen history as a wonderful example of suave histrionicism."

"That's a tough word, Mr. Carewe, please translate it into Indianapolis."

"'The Bad man,' we all know, is a travesty on an incident in the life of the late Pancho Villa. It gives the famous Mexican outlaw the romantic glamor of Robin Hood. The role was created for Holbrook Blinn and thousands heard him on the stage. To surround him with the best possible support for our screen production, we engaged Miss Enid Bennett, Jack Mulhall, Walter McGrail, Harry Myers, Miss Teddy Sampson, Stanton Heck and Charles Sellon, who appeared in the stage play.

"With lavish production and a truly great cast, Blinn got away to a flying start and his celluloid 'Bad Man' is going to be highly inflammable with drama and humor."

"Gee, I hope you're right, Mr. Carewe."

"Of course I'm right and if you don't believe it, MUCHA LOCO, USTED!"

"Mr. Moore, are you the cleverest of the Moore boys?"

Absolutely!

"Matt is an awful dub, and Tom is terrible. . . pardon me a moment, there is someone at the door.

"Come in!

"Ah, if it isn't my own dear brothers!

"Matty, my boy, and how are ye? And Tom—sit ye down here in this nice easy chair and light a pipe.

"I was just telling this gentleman, Matt, and you too, Tom, that I have two of the cleverest brothers in the world.

Seeling Co. Is Off To Location Again

George Larkin resembled a truck driver as he arrived at the studio this week, with three wardrobe trunks.

"What's the idea, George?" asked Director Chas. Seeling.

"Just part of my wardrobe for this picture," replied George, "and as I'm to do a Beau Brummel, and the title is "Stop at Nothing," I'm going to show you guys so many changes it will take two assistants to keep my wardrobe straight."

But we've found out that Director Seeling has just engaged pretty Marguerite La Mont as George's new leading lady and she's to be draped in many gorgeous gowns, so this may account for handsome George's three trunks.

Miss La Mont, who has twice visited Los Angeles via the Orpheum Circuit in her own act, has declined an offer to return to the stage and will continue her screen work in which she has played several prominent parts since her arrival here six months ago.

Possessed of beauty and great dramatic experience, Director Seeling is much pleased with his new find.

The company is busy in their preparation of the sixth of the Larkin series and will leave this week for Coronado, where ferry scenes will be shot.

Popular Sisters Gain Comedy Title

The "Night and Day Sisters" is a phrase, or title, which leaves much for the mind to conjure with. First one might think of the sister who loves the night and its pleasures and of the other whose fancies turn to day-time, a lover of the flowers and all the great outdoors.

In a way, one would be right, because both Theresa and Rita Claire love both the night and the day, but the title "Night and Day Sisters" has been bestowed upon them owing to the fact that Theresa Claire is a brunette, as dark as the darkest night, while Rita Claire is a beautiful blonde, whose blue eyes and locks of shimmering gold are truly symbolic of the glorious day.

Theresa won the plaudits of the great Kosloff for her dancing number in Cecil B. DeMille's "Ten Commandments" and at the Motion Picture Exposition, while Rita's recent work with Buster Keaton in "Hospitality" and with Will Rogers and Edna Murphy at the Hal Roach studio has called forth comment of a most favorable nature. Their ultimate success in the realm of their chosen profession is assured.

Larry McGrath and Bob Perry have been added to the cast of the "Fighting Blood" pictures, in support of George O'Hara and Louise Lorraine.

Casting - Director Casts a Sigh

Although it is estimated that more than 200,000 men and women come to Hollywood each year with the intention of getting into motion pictures, it is not always an easy task for a casting director to get the types he wants.

For instance the other day Frank Lloyd who is at work on his first independent production, "Black Oxen," in which Corrine Griffith and Conway Tearle have the featured roles, turned the task of casting the extras for the picture over to his general manager, Harry E. Weil.

Weil and Lloyd had spent three weeks trying to find a millionaire flapper who didn't look like she was an actress. A list of twenty leading screen flappers was gone over, then a hundred different types were given screen tests and finally, through the courtesy of B. P. Schulberg, Clara Bow, a 17-year-old Brooklyn girl, who had appeared in but two screen plays was selected. Mr. Lloyd states that Miss Bow is the most typical flapper he ever saw and one of the most talented young screen players.

It took several visits to leading hotels and cafes, to the beaches and a hundred examinations to find four typical flappers to be suitable companions for Miss Bow on the screen. Then Weil had to engage twelve women of about 60; women who were refined, intellectual and who screened well, for the tea party scene at which Kate Lester presides. It took two weeks to pick twelve women who measured up to requirements. This done, Weil spent ten days more selecting women of about 25 years of age to be suitable guests at Miss Griffith's dinner. Not one of eight agencies could provide suitable types, so Weil engaged Carmelita Geraghty, a well-known leading lady and engaged three friends whom she brought to the studio for screen test. Telephone calls to other studios and a visit to Cocoanut Grove, the ballroom of the Hotel Ambassador, during a society frolic, provided the remainder of the dinner group.

Satisfied that he had performed his duty well, Weil turned his attention to a huge pile of correspondence only to find atop of it all a memo from Lloyd which reads.

"H. E. W. Please don't forget the opera audience. We will need at least 500 fashionably dressed women and as many men. Check up on costumes."

And then some people think that producing pictures must be "great fun."

Carmel Myers and Richard Tucker have been added to the cast of "Beau Brummel" the Clyde Fitch play in which the Warner Brothers will star John Barrymore. The picture will be directed from the scenario written by Dorothy Farnum.

Griffith Claims Films Will End War

"Motion pictures will eventually end all wars.

"The films speak a universal language which every human being in every section of the globe can understand.

"Thus they make a universal medium of education which presents human ideals and motives simultaneously to all peoples, whatever their race, sect, creed or language."

This is the gist of a statement of D. D. Griffith, pioneer producer, who refers to the present deplorable crisis in Europe and contends that in time, through the abolition of ignorance by the medium of the films, such a crisis will be impossible.

Mr. Griffith goes on to say, "The fomented condition of Europe, giving rise to the pending war between Italy and Greece and perhaps involving other nations in the world conflict, comes about largely through world ignorance. Such ignorance will be in time more or less removed through the instructive power of motion pictures and other educational mediums.

"Up to the time of the advent of the motion picture, the printing press held the most important position in the enlightenment of the world," Mr. Griffith further states. "As every nation had its own language, the power of the printed word was limited. Now the motion picture speaks a universal language which can be understood in the four corners of the globe.

"Regardless of the country in which it is shown, the motion picture tells a faithful story in a manner easily understood. American pictures of American life have done much to create good will for this country. Foreigners are enabled through the films to see life as it actually is and a respect is created for the American people where formerly a hatred perhaps existed because of malicious propaganda.

"Motion pictures are continually spreading the gospel of brotherhood and the fellowship of man. Ever building and striving for the highest goal of human achievement, eventually the films will accomplish that which the idealists of the day are striving for—world peace and the final abolishment of war."

Jos. Tynan, well-known publicity man, has joined the ranks of the Grand-Asher Studio Publicity Department.

Louise Lorraine, playing the leading feminine role in the "Fighting Blood" series, opposite George O'Hara, is now at work in the seventh picture of the group, under the direction of Henry Lehrman.

Bright Outlook for a Rising Juvenile

Alton Brown, a rising young juvenile, could well be termed "a typical embodiment of the essentials that go to make the successful screen artist."

Born in Maine, of American and Spanish parentage, he completed his education with high honors at Harvard, which training reflects invariably an aristocratic demeanor.

Athletic accomplishments, which are essential in motion picture acting, were easily gained through his prowess on football and baseball fields and in addition he became an expert tennis and golf player, learned to swim, dance, became an expert motorist and an able equestrian.

Experience on the legitimate stage to the extent of five years; three years in stock with celebrities such as John Craig and Mary Young, the Sommerville Stock Company and others, followed by two years with "The Bat" in New York City, playing the part of the Crook Chauffeur.

Thus motion picture acting came along as second nature and when offered small parts with the Fox Film Company, in New York, he not only accepted but made good as well, and followed that engagement with important roles in "La Belle Rose," with Theda Bara, then "Foot Lights," "When Knighthood Was in Flower," "Sonny," a year's contract with the Inspirational Film Company, and a prominent role in "Alimony," recently filmed at the R-C under the direction of Jas. W. Horne.

Truly, Alton Brown, though still in his twenties, is a "seasoned actor" and it is not hard to forecast an early ascendency to stardom in the realm of the motion pictures.

NEW UNIVERSAL STAR

Margaret Morris returned from Keen Camp this week, where she has been on location shots in the new Universal serial, "The Ghost City," starring Miss Morris and Pete Morrison and under the direction of Jay Marchant, the "veteran" director of a long series of western two-reelers, in many of which both Miss Morris and Pete Morrison were co-starred.

"The Ghost City," however, is Miss Morris' first full-fledged feature vehicle and while it has taken her less than one year to ascend to the heights of stardom the predictions are many that she will retain her hard fought position for many years to come and that her popularity will reach the pinnacle of fan-fame, second to none in the profession.

Death Valleyite Are Home Intact

Erich von Stroheim and his co pany making "Greed" have r turned to the Goldwyn Studi from their expedition into Dea Valley. Twenty-five men and o woman, bronzed by thereler less sun and intense heat of t desert, completed a journey of t days and a half from their la camping place on the floor of t Valley, when the special car bea ing them from Death Valley Jun tion pulled into the Santa Fe St tion at eight o'clock this mornin

The troupe left Los Angel August 5, and have since tour many miles, by automobiles, burros, or on foot, on the edge a through the desert. Campi places were established at an ave age of three day periods, and t last fifteen days of the trip we spent in what is known as "Dea Valley proper." Here the par underwent discomforts and plac itself in dangers never before e perienced by a motion picture co pany.

The troupe returns intact. The were no fatalities, but four of t men narrowly escaped death heat prostration and several e perienced minor illnesses owing the high temperature, which fr quently touched the 130 degr mark. All of those recovered ra idly and no permanent harm w the result.

Upon the departure of the exp dition, predictions by persons w are well acquainted with the ma hazards of Death Valley were th von Stroheim could not take t caravan into the desert with serious mishap to some of the co pany at least. They stated th no white people could at this ti of year stand the strain of livi in the lowest, dryest, hottest sp in America. The success of t von Stroheim expedition prov this to be wrong, but in doing suffered acutely, almost to t point of having to give up the a tempt several times, and underwe hardships that are seldom expe enced by intrepid explorers a never by a motion picture co pany.

On returning von Stroheim co pleted a tour that has the distin tion of being the first expediti into Death Valley for a featu motion picture. Previously, t only important film of any leng to come out of Death Valley w a scenic made by Milton Moore, member of the Goldwyn Stu staff. Moore acted as one of t guides for the von Stroheim ca van.

Of the forty persons that ma up the expedition only twenty-f are returning to Los Angeles. T others were cowboys, burro drive auto truck drivers and guides w live in towns near the edge Death Valley. The one wom with the troupe, Eva Bassette, w is von Stroheim's script cle stood the rigors of the tour as w as any of the men.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

ACTOR-AUTHOR

Jackie Vernon former eastern stunt juvenile has just finished an acrobatic bell-boy part at Universal in "The Noblest Roman," featuring Herbert Rawlinson and directed by Wm. Parke with an all star cast. Vernon has been prominently known as one of the best all round athletes in the state of Pennsylvania for the past ten years. He has doubled some of the biggest stars in the business on some very hazardous stunts. While not employed as an actor, Jackie writes screen stories and is at present preparing a New York underworld drama of society and crook life, which will be featured by a few thrills out of the ordinary.

HIS VIEW

That "the story is the thing" in motion picture production is the belief of Harry Cohn, general manager of Waldorf Studios, who recently confirmed his opinion by purchasing the screen rights to a number of "best sellers" including "Circumstances Alter Divorce Cases," by Lewis Alan Brown and "Prejudice," a magazine story by Evelyn Campbell.

Although Cohn employs various stars and featured players in his many productions it is his idea that the story is the paramount thing in screen entertainment and that a good scenario will offset a poor cast in many cases but that a good cast can not save a weak story.

SO SAYS TATE

The word "audience" as applied to a motion picture concourse of spectators is distinctly incorrect and Cullen Tate, directing Bryant Washburn in "Try and Get It" for Grand- Asher, was discussing the matter with the star recently.

"Why not call it "Vividence" suggested Tate. "This implies 'view' just as 'audio' means 'to hear.' View is derived from the Latin 'video' or 'see'."

This might be more freely used as 'vaudience' and we would have a word that at least suggested a gathering of people who see rather than hear."

Bryant Washburn agreed with him that it would be a good idea but irrelevantly asked Mr. Tate where he studied Latin. The director is still trying to find out wherein he may have erred.

Be sure you are outside before you shut a door.

This sound advice is registered by Edward Martindel, screen character actor.

Martindel slammed the door of his new home, but he wasn't entirely out—he left his fingers inside. As a result, he is nursing a badly bruised hand.

Auto Be More Careful

What might have been tragedy was laughed off, turned into mirth and offered to every motorist along the road, a comedy without charge by Al St. John, Fox screen funster, who in the ordinary routine of business gets about as much for every laugh provided as any of them.

St. John with a party of friends was whirling merrily southward in one of St. John's big cars when all of a sudden and without warning, the car ahead stopped. St. John put on the brake in a hurry and came to an abrupt standstill within two inches of the leading car's rear bumper. Just as he heaved a premature sigh of relief he heard a crash. The car behind smacked into him.

The blow ripped the tire rack, trunk and fenders on St. John's car but fortunately didn't get the gas tank.

The comedian waived claims, hopped into his car and rode off, but first prepared and hung on the rear of the car a sign reading "Another Smash."

CHOOSE TECHNICIANS

With the building of the first sets to be used in the picture completed and with the engagement of a complete technical staff, all is in readiness for the production of a Booth Tarkington's "Old Fathers and Young Sons," a picture of typical American life to be made by J. K. McDonald for First National William Beaudine is to direct "Old Fathers and Young Sons." The technical staff includes Lex Neal and Vernon Smith, who will collaborate with Beaudine in the comedy sequences of the story, George Webster, assistant director, Mason N. Litson, production manager, Harry Thorpe, first cameraman, and George Richter, second cameraman.

Thousands of dollars worth of gorgeous imported gowns, hats, and shoes from Swobdi's exclusive shops, Los Angeles, were employed in a magnificent fashion revue staged at the Grand Studio this week by Peggy Hamilton, regarded as the foremost fashion director and authority in this country. Furs from Willard George were also displayed upon a dozen or more of the loveliest models in the city, each of whom is celebrated for some especial characteristic of feminine pulchritude. The revue was used in Bryant Washburn's first Grand-Asher picture directed by Cullen Tate, called "Try and Get It." The gowns were from such celebrated Parisian modistes as Worth, Jenney, Jean Patou, Poiret, Milgrim, Massaue, Lanvin and Premet. The feature will be one of the most pleasing to feminine film goers in the entire category of picture novelties, as the modes are all well in advance of current fashion.

BUGS RELEASED

A congratulatory wire from Sol Lesser of Principal Pictures Corporation to Louis H. Tolhurst announces the conclusion of negotiations in New York which provide for the distribution of a series of twelve "Secrets of Life" microscopic motion pictures through Educational Film Exchanges, Incorporated.

Mr. Lesser advises Mr. Tolhurst, the inventor of the microscopic processes, that a most advantageous arrangement for the widest possible distribution of these pictures has thus been completed and that their popularity with the multitude is assured. Arrangements for the distribution of a "non-theatrical" series of the same subjects are being closed as well as foreign rights and distribution.

Negotiations with Educational followed the recent New York preview of Tolhurst's pictures of the Bee, the Spider and the Ant. A representative audience voted them 100 per cent entertainment devoid of pedantic elements but in the highest degree instructive. In this verdict the critics of the New York press joined or led the way enthusiastically and praised the enterprise as worthy of the highest traditions of the cinema art.

Mr. Tolhurst is now proceeding to photograph the "Life of the Butterfly" and when this is completed will begin on the ubiquitous Flea.

DOG GONE DOG

Sometimes it takes music and a dog to make and break a movie scene.

In "Her Temporary Husband," being directed for First National by John McDermott, there is a cross section view of three rooms, through which two men are alternately chased by two villains. The four are supposed to reach their door in unison, open and close it so that they are neither seen by their pursuer nor able to see the man ahead.

McDermott worked for hours, calling "One, two, three, four," so that the four actors would work in accord. But sooner or later, before the scene would be completed, one of them would open a door too soon, or wait too long. Finally, the orchestra was called upon, playing "The Sneak," and things moved in rhythm. Just as the chase was getting warm and McDermott was sighing with relief, in loafed "Prince," the studio dog.

"Bow, wow!" protested Prince, perplexed at such unstagelike conduct. He entered the chase, grabbing Owen Moore by the trouser leg.

Curses. Oaths. Threats. McDermott all but collapsed.

The dog was tied down in a secluded corner. The orchestra again struck up "The Sneak." The chase is on!

BUSY SEASON AHEAD FOR LLOYD HUGHES

Lloyd Hughes has a busy Fall season ahead of him.

The popular young leading man is one of the most sought after actors in Hollywood and has signed a number of contracts involving a series of engagements that will give him his most active season since he started in pictures here several years ago.

Hughes has just finished his characterizations of the leading role in "Born of the Cyclone" for F. B. O. at the Powers studio and starts immediately on a big production to be made by William Sistrom at the Hollywood studios, the title of which has not yet been decided upon. Other contracts have already been signed by Hughes for engagements to follow the Sistrom picture including the leading part in Fred Niblo's next production.

In a number of instances it will be necessary for Hughes to work at one studio during the day and at another evenings to accomodate producers and his working schedule for the next six weeks has been laid out by Messrs Sistrom and Niblo along these lines.

It was midnight on one of the huge Metro enclosed stages where Oscar Apfel was directing a Paris cafe scene for Viola Dana's newest Metro starring picture, "In Search of a Thrill." It was midnight also in several other places. The company had been at work since 9 o'clock in the morning and quite naturally conversation between scenes turned to the subject of easy jobs.

"It seems to me," commented Warner Baxter, "that the life of a sheep herder is fairly easy. All he has to do is sit in the shade of a tree during the day and lie under the stars at night. He just eats and sleeps, probably doesn't bother to even shave, and never has to worry about getting to work on time. If a sheep wanders from the herd he doesn't even go after it, but sends a dog to round it up."

"You probably have heard about the fellow who went to work at 12 and quit at 1 o'clock every day and took an hour for lunch," contributed Rosemary Theby.

"That job was slavery compared with the one a friend of mine has," said Viola Dana. "His job is so easy that when his employer offered him a vacation last week he felt insulted and threatened to leave."

In addition to Miss Dana, Miss Theby and Mr. Baxter, the cast of "In Search of a Thrill" includes Walter Wills, Mabel Van Buren, Robert Schable, Billy Elmor and Templar Saxe.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

LLOYD HUGHES TURNS DOWN NEW YORK OFFER

Loyd Hughes has just refused a contract from a New York producer to play the leading part in a super-production to be staged in Manhattan shortly. Existing contracts will keep Hughes busy for the next few months and besides, as Lloyd says, "There's no place like home and there's no home like Hollywood."

Pre-eclipse weather, or whatever it is, is responsible for an almost too realistic scene in "Her Temporary Husband," First National picture being directed by John McDermott.

Owen Moore, Tully Marshall and Sydney Chaplin, all of them bearded, hide in a long box-trunk when the villains close in on them.

Three men, with thick greasepaint and heavy false whiskers crowded into a box on a 90-degrees-in-the-shade day!

After the villains pass through, the three are supposed to come up out of the box, foreheads beaded from terror.

Terror is registered by all three —and perspiration!

One can guess that glycerine was not needed in this scene.

MABEL FORREST IN "THE SATIN GIRL"

Mabel Forrest will be starred in a Ben Wilson production entitled "The Satin Girl," according to Samuel V. Grand, president of Grand-Asher-who will release the picture.

A splendid supporting cast has been chosen to support Miss Forrest, who is rapidly becoming known through her past featured roles as one of the most promising actresses in the whole range of the screen.

"I am satisfied," said Mr. Grand, "that Mabel Forrest has everything that is required to satisfy the most exacting audience for she is not only gfted dramatically but possesses, as well, a keen sense of humor, sincerity and naturalness. Attractive, with a distinctive personality, she should be one of the greatest favorites on the screen in a very short time."

Norman Kerry has been engaged to play the lead opposite Miss Forrest. He is a New Yorker whose recent work in several big attractions has stamped him as a prime popular favorite as well as an actor of genuine histrionic talent. It was with Paramount that he first became known and achieved a popularity that has never since left him. He is over the six foot mark and weighs 180 pounds.

Ralph Lewis received several bruises in his big scene where he rescues two children from death in a hurricane in "Born of a Cyclone."

WANT CONWAY TEARLE FOR "BEN HUR"

Motion picture "fan" magazines have been beseiged with letters from film devotees throughout the country suggesting Conway Tearle for the part of "Ben Hur," which is to be produced by Goldwyn.

"Why all this speculation and discussion as to who is to have the part?" writes L. Stremer, of Victoria, B. C., in the "Motion Picture Magazine." "Why don't they solve the problem once and for all by getting Conway Tearle to take the part? Not only is Mr. Tearle one of the best actors and most striking personalities the movie possess, but he also has the advantage of having appeared as Ben Hur on the legitimate stage."

Mr. Tearle created the part of "Ben Hur" on the stage in Australia some fifteen years ago and later toured the United States in the part.

REPORTERS GETTING "SCREEN CREDIT"

Hail to the news writer.

At last he is receiving suitable tribute at the hands of the motion picture producers.

In recent months there have been evident an unusual number of productions in which the journalist comes into his own, filmatically speaking.

One of the few honest-to-goodness newspaper plots of days past was Marshall Neilan's, "Go and Get It," with Pat O'Malley as the energetic reporter. Recently, among those who appear on the screen in journalistic parts, are Lloyd Hughes, in Thomas H. Ince's, "Her Reputation," and Conway Tearle as the big city columnist in First National's, "Black Oxen."

Following the completion of scenes taken in the interior of the Ogelthorpe home setting, Frank Lloyd will take his company producing "Black Oxen" for release through Associated First National, to San Francisco for wharf scenes and then to Lake Arrowhead for shots as a mountain lodge. Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle are being co-featured in "Black Oxen."

Carmelita Geraghty, well known leading lady, was added to the cast of Frank Lloyd's production, "Black Oxen," a First National release, last week, for several important interior scenes. General Manager Harry B. Weil has completed casting for the production, with the exception of Prince Hohenauer, a part for which several prominent screen players have been given screen tests, but for which the proper type does not seem to have been presented to date.

Martha Marshall wears four different suits of knickers and several stunning society gowns in "Superstition," directed by John B. O'Brien, in which she plays an important role supporting John Bowers and Marguerite De La Motte.

Spottiswoode Aitken, for years one of the mainstays in D. W. Griffith's Biograph and Fine Arts Company and regarded by Griffith as one of the best judges of budding talent in his organization, predicts a brilliant future for Martha Marshall with whom he plays a number of his big scenes in "Superstition."

After an interval of four weeks, during which he loaned Jane Novak to Maurice Tourneur for "Jealous Fools," Chester Bennett is now staging the final scenes in his production of "The Lullaby," starring Jane Novak.

Fred Esmelton has just received a cable to come to London to play the featured role in the late Frank Bacon's great play, "Lightnin'," which is to be staged there in addition to "Three Wise Fools," and other notworthy successes. Esmelton says he is too busy with his role in Johnny Hines' production of "Conductor 1492" for Warner Brothers, to think of leaving Hollywood

---

Mestayer With Lloyd

Harry Mestayer, direct descendant of the oldest theatrical family of the American stage, has joined Frank Lloyd's "Black Oxen" company to interpret the role of Jim Oglethorpe. Mr. Mestayer, who recently left the New York stage to re-enter motion pictures, has turned down an offer to play in a fall Belasco production, to participate in the filming of "Black Oxen."

Frank Lloyd, the latest addition to the independent producing forces at Hollywood, has engaged Clara Bow, 17-year-old Brooklyn high school girl, to play one of the principal parts in his production of "Black Oxen," to be released as a First National picture. Miss Bow, who is under a long term contract with R. P. Schuberg, is, in the opinion of Mr. Lloyd, one of the most unaffected and talented young screen players he has seen and he predicts a brilliant future for her on the silver-sheet.

Kate Lester, Claire McDowell and Clarissa Selwynne, three character women well known to screen fans, have been added to the cast of Frank Lloyd's production of "Black Oxen," a First National picture. Miss Lester is to play Jane Oglethorpe; Miss McDowell, Agnes Trevor, and Miss Selwynne will essay the role of Cora Dwight.

STARS JUDGED PONY EXPRESS RACE

Complying with urgent requests from San Francisco, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks took part in the Admission Day celebration which was held in the bay city on September 9, California's birthday.

Miss Pickford and Mr. Fairbanks were delegated by the general committee to receive the winners of the Pony Express race which ended at Tanforan park, San Francisco. Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks officially welcomed the riders as they finished the final leg of their 2000 mile ride and participated in the presentation of the $5000 cash prize.

The invitation to the two stars was tendered by K. R. Kingsbury, president of the Standard Oil Co., of California; Herbert Fleishbacker, president of the Anglo & London, Paris National bank, and Paul Shoup, president of the Southern Pacific, who are members of the general committee.

JAP PICTURE ACTORS FEAR FOR RELATIVES

Sojin Kamiyama and Kunihiko Nambu, two Japanese actors who figure prominently in Douglas Fairbanks' "The Thief of Bagdad," now in the making at the Pickford-Fairbanks Studio, 7200 Santa Monica Blvd., are today the indirect victims of the earthquake and fire which have made a flaming shambles of the island of Nippon.

Knowledge of the fact that Mr. Kamiyama's seven-year-old son, Takesabro, and Mr. Nambu's wife, mother and sister-in-law, were in the demolished districts was first discovered when Douglas Fairbanks inquired if the actor's relatives were endangered by the recent disaster.

According to Shiro Mori, Mr. Nambu's interpreter, who himself had a wife, child, sister, mother, and brother in what was considered to be the safest district of the city, Mr. Nambu's relatives are without doubt among the dead and injured as they resided in the Sumida river district where six huge bridges crumbled and blocked the river, adding the horrors of flood to the frightful havoc already created by quake and flames in the surrounding lowlands. Both players have been frantically attempting to obtain word of their families but as yet have received no response to their cable messages.

A wire has just been received from Finis Fox, who stopped off at Denver to show his "Bag and Baggage" to General Manager R. R. Beatty, of the Finis Fox organization and a group of Colorado exhibitors there, stating the picture scored tremendously. Finis will go on to New York within a few days to arrange for the New York opening.

Priscilla to Have Her Own Co.

After four years as a Universal star, Priscilla Dean is to make her own productions. Her Universal contract has expired and, after a short vacation, she will begin work with her own unit at the Hollywood Studios, upon the first of a series of pictures.

Laurel Productions is the name chosen by Miss Dean for her organization and an announcement of her director, cameraman and story will be made in a short time.

Among Miss Dean's best known pictures while with Universal are "The Virgin of Stamboul," "The Wildcat of Paris," "Outside the Law," "Under Two Flags," "Reputation," "The Two Souled Woman" and "The Exquisite Thief."

In discussing her new production plans, Miss Dean said:

"I assume a much larger share of the responsibility of my forthcoming pictures, not because of any mere personal desire to be free from the limitations necessarily placed upon an artist by a large corporation, but because I am convinced that only by so doing can I meet the demands of my public, which are so clearly expressed in thousands of letters received from my friends throughout the world.

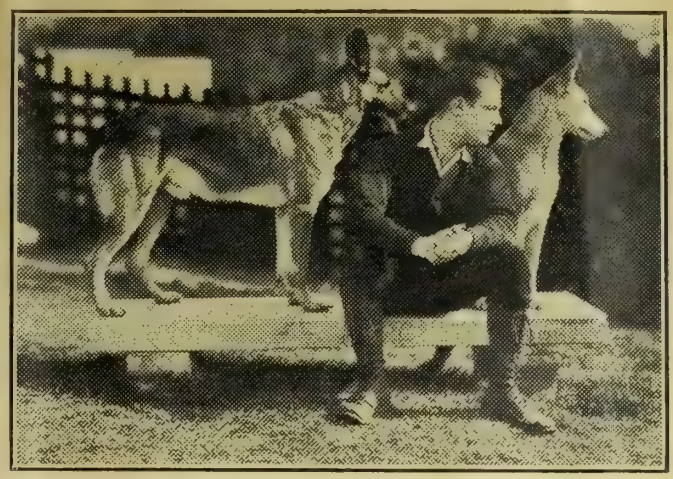
"It will seem almost like getting back home to me to work at the Hollywood Studios, where William Sistrom, who for three years was general manager of Universal City, is in charge, because I was working for him when he left Universal to become production manager for Cosmopolitan Films for William Randolph Hearst.

"It was William Sistrom who gave me my first starring opportunity and it seems to me, as I look back, that many of my most successful pictures were made under his supervision.

"I will work under his personal supervision at the Hollywood studios and will not try to build my own organization, but will avail myself of the splendid organization with which Sistrom has surrounded himself. In this I feel I will have the same careful attention as I would receive if I were with the biggest producing organization in the industry and will be relieved of a great deal of the tremendous overhead which seems to be a necessary part of all large scale production.

"This should mean a great saving in both time and money, which in spite of all the lavish expenditures that the industry has been guilty of in recent months, I still feel is an important factor to the exhibitors."

CANINES ARE HIS HOBBY



There has been much comment of late anent Laurence Trimble's forthcoming Strongheart picture, "The Love Master," with Harold Austin in the title role and the general trend of opinion is that it will prove to be the best drama that the noted producer of dog stories has as yet brought to the silversheet. The greater portion of the scenes were shot in Canada, in the mountainous region adjacent to Lake Louise and Banff ,and with these wonderful backgrounds film audiences will be assured of some remarkable scenic effects to harmonize with the action of the picture. Trimble has expressed himself as confident of Austin's possibilities in developing into one of our finest leading men, and the young actor is exerting every effort to substantiate this confidence to the fullest degree. He is shown here in a characteristic pose with two of the dogs from the Trimble kennels, which were used in the film.

Dorothy Vernon To Start Soon

The official start for "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" is scheduled for this week. This information comes from the Pickford-Fairbanks studios, Hollywood, where Mary Pickford is now completely surrounded and engulfed in a pile of costumes of the early Elizabethan period.

Preparation is 40 per cent complete, according to W. W. Kerrigan, business manager. The first set, a replica of the banquet hall of Haddon, is practically finished and 750 costumes are now being made. Each of the five principals in the cast will wear from five to eight costumes.

Four horses are being trained for their parts, and Starrett Ford, production manager, is scouring the country for 400 more, to be used as "extras."

The screen version of the story is being prepared by Waldemar Young, loaned to Miss Pickford by B. F. Schulberg, with whom he is under contract.

Under supervision of Mary and "Micky" Neilan, who is again directing this goddess of the golden curls, casting is going merrily on. Claire Eames is coming from Italy, where she is traveling with her husband, to play Queen Elizabeth, a role in which she is famous. Mme. Carrie Daumery has just been engaged to play Lady Vernon, and Eric Mayne has signed as the Earl of Rutland.

Lottie Pickford, who has not appeared with her famous sister since the old Biograph days, will be Jenny Faxten, and Allen Forrest will be seen in the dashing role of Sir John Manners, the leading male part.

Many of the sets are being built from photographs of Haddon Hall which Edward Knoblock made in England and brought to this country last year. This work is under the direction of H. W. Grieve, while Mitchell Leisen is designing the costumes, undoubtedly the most gorgeous Mary has ever appeared in.

Twenty-five different sets will be built for "Dorothy Vernon," three of them castles. The battle of Rutland, to capture Queen Mary, will be repeated for the picture, and the reception of Queen Elizabeth will present one of the most spectacular scenes ever shown.

Four coaches are now under construction, one of them a replica of one of the first carriages ever used in England. These and many other features promise to make this photoplay one of the most spectacular in which Mary Pickford has ever appeared.

Professor Fred L. Wilson, head of the department of animal husbandry at the University of Nevada, is planning to take a leave of absence and spend several weeks in Hollywood with Laurence Trimble, who directs Strongheart. Trimble and Professor Wilson are carrying on some breeding experiments together, and it is for this reason Wilson will visit Trimble's ranch in the San Fernando Valley.

"Yes, I'll Have No Vacation"—Hedda

All motion picture actors and actresses have their ups and downs. So thinks Hedda Nova, whose splendid screen offerings have placed her name among the cinema stars of today. Miss Nova had planned a vacation, a real outdoor camp trip to the big trees, the lake and such. But alas, when only having finished her final scenes for the National Studios she was again called back to Colonel Seeling's, and the vacation was very much off. This is the fifth production in which Miss Nova has been featured for Seelig and between pictures she has been loaned to the National Studios for a series of features, the third of which has just been completed by Director Paul Hurst. "Some people complain of too much work," declares Miss Nova, "while others of not enough, all of which means we're none satisfied with our lot, and particularly me, since I've lost all hopes of a vacation this year."

Yvonne Pavis returns from Australia, where she has just completed three big feature productions in which she was starred. She is busily engaged in assisting in the re-titling of her pictures in English for the American market. Miss Pavis, who is well remembered as an American cinema star of a few years ago, is delighted in the noticeable growth and wonderful expansion of the industry and though she has enjoyed a long engagement abroad, says, "It's sure good to be back in California."

Martha Mattox, eminent character actress, has completed the role of The Wistful Wooer in support of Thomas Meighan in "Woman-Proof" at the Lasky studios. This portrayal is unique, for the fact she does not speak a word throughout the story, and has no name part. As a lovesick old spinster who is madly infatuated with the handsome Tommy, pursuing him wherever he goes in a vain endeavor to attract his earnest attention, she contributes a delineation that is essentially odd and which will undoubtedly go far to further establish her excellence as a versatile artist. She recently completed important roles in Gasnier's "Maytime" at the Mayer-Schulberg studios and with Maurice Tourneur in "Jealous Fools" at the United Studios.

A thrilling scene was enacted recently at the Warner Brothers studios in Los Angeles when Johnny Hines leaped from the window of a three story flaming building into a net thirty feet below. Five men held the net, and when Hines dropped three of them lost their balance. Hines suffered slight injuries, but secured an exceptionally realistic fire scene for his latest picture, 'Conductor, 1492."

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, Sept. 24, 1923

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Rosson	All-Star	Linden Stevens	Geo. Carter	Staff	"The Satin Girl"	3rd Week
Dearholt Productions.
Francis Ford	Edmund Cobb	Al. Gosden	W. McGaugh	Blodgett	5-Reel Western	2nd Week
Neva Gerber Productions
Dick Hatton	Neva Gerber	Nobles	La Mece		"The 7th Sheriff"	4th Week
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Jackson 1900
H. & B. Film Co.
Tenny Wright	All-Star	Bill Beckway			"Tango Trails"	Preparing
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						593576
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 0096
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al Herman	All-Star	Wm. Hyer	Herman	Herman	"The Detective"	Schedule
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 4070
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd.						439-764
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 3100
Al Christie	Bobbie Vernon	Nagy	Hagerman	Frank Conklin	2-Reel Comedy	2nd Week
Scott Sidney	Neil Burns	Gus Peterson	Frank Conklin		2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr.						Drexel 2115
Clarence Geldert	All Star	Joe Walker	Hoblitz	Johnson	"Beyond the Veil"	6th Week
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.						Culver City 546
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General.
	All-Star		Staff		"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
			Harry A. Swart		"Purple Bath Tub"	Preparing
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd. E. H. Allen, Gen. Mgr. Scotty Cleethorpe, Casting.						598-165
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Mermaid Comedies)
Taurog	Neely Edwards	Meehan	Cullen	Staff	Special	5th Week
Hibbard	Lige Conley	Corby	Sharpless	Staff	Comedy	3rd Week
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Novelty Juveniles)
Montgomery	All-Star	Stengler	Linkoff	Staff	Novelty	3rd Week
Pratt	Lloyd Hamilton	McGill	Dewar	Staff	Special	Preparing
Lloyd Hamilton Corp. (Educational Release)
FOX STUDIO. James Ryan, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 3000
Mayo	Stock	Sid Wagner	Jas. Tinling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Jim Summerville	Stock	J. A. Schmidt	Arthur Cohn	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Erle Kenton	Lew Brice	Vic Scheurich	Max Gold		Comedies	Schedule
Jack Ford	All-Star	Joe August	W. Mayo	John Russell	"Hoodman Blind"	Editing
Wm. Wellman	Buck Jones	Schneiderman	H. Hough	Fred & Fanny Hatton	"Big Dan"	Editing
Roland V. Lee	All-Star	D. Keefe	Geo. Post	Don Lee	"Gentle Julia"	3rd Week
Noel Smith	Earl Rodney	Byrn Hauck		Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Tom Buckingham	All-Star	Sid Wagner	Kingling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Setter Carruth	Chimpanzees	R. Tennant	Mark Sanderich	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 2632
Rocky Mt. Production Co.
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 0051
Metro Release.
GOLD SEAL PRODUCTIONS. A. Rosetti, Studio Mgr.						7405 Roseberry Ave.
Greville Hughes	Leavens	Hale	R. C. Hughes	Emile Greville	"The Man From Thunder Gap"	Preparing
Greville Hughes	Leavens-Hale	R. C. Hughes		Emile Greville	"Riders of the Desert"	Editing
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.						Holly 269
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	All-Star	Roland Price	A. Tenbrook	Staff	"Do It Now"	4th Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 0162
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Joe Rock Productions.
Bryant Washburn Productions.
Cullen B. Tate	Washburn-Dove	K. MacLean	R. Asher	J. Furthman	"Try and Get It"	Editing
Elliott Dexter in R. Wm. Neil Production.
R. Wm. Neil	Dexter-Harris	Ray June	Jo Sternberg	Florence Heim	"The Way Men Love"	Editing
Thornby-Newman Productions.
Robt. Thornby					"One Hour To Live"	1st Week
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						76171
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStroheim	"Greed"	29th Week
King Vidor	All-Star	John Boyle	James Dugan	King Vidor	"Wild Oranges"	8th Week

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6640 Santa Monica Blvd. Wm. Sistrom, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Taylor-Newmeyer	H. Lloyd	Lundin	Bud Golden		"The Girl Expert"	6th Week
Creative Productions.
Jack O'Brien	All-Star	D. Jennings	Cy Clegg	Frank Beresford	"Supersition"	6th Week
J. K. McDonald Productions.
Wm. Beaudine	All-Star	H. Thorpe	Geo. Webster		"Misunderstood"	3rd Week
Renand Hoffman Productions.
Cosmopolitan Productions.
Beverley Productions.
J. P. McGowan	All-Star	Walter Griffin	J. E. MacDonald	Phillip Hurn	"The Whipping Boss"	3rd Week
Irving Productions. I. W. Irving, Gen. Mgr.
	All-Star				"Dawn of Love"	Preparing
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.						438-740
Bob Horner	Geo. Chesebro	Elmer Dyer			"The Isles of Paradise"	3rd Week
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Palmer Photoplay Productions.
Cortland Productions
Trimble-Murfin Productions.
Laurence Trimble	Strongheart	G. B. Dreyer	Cyril Gardner	Donna Barrell	"White Fang"	Schedule
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	11th Week
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
Jack Blystone	Buster Keaton	E. Lessley-Thorp	Rose	Mitchell	"Hospitality"	Editing
Lou Anger Productions.
LASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vine St.						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Al. E. Green	Thos. Meighan	Chas. Clark	Fred J. Robinson	Edfrid Bingham	"Woman-Proof"	Editing
Jos. Henabery	Doug. Fairbanks, Jr	Saxon Dean	Dick Johnson		"Stephen Steps Out"	9th Week
Cliff Smith	Wm. S. Hart	Warren	Dick Rush	J. G. Hawkes	"Wm. Hart in Wild Bill Hickok"	6th Week
Herb Brennon	Pola Negri	Jos. Howe	H. Schwartz		"My Man"	1st Week
Wm. DeMille	All-Star	Guy Wilky	Geo. Hippard	Clara Berangee	"Every Day Love"	1st Week
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Chas. Clark	Fred Robertson	Jack Cunningham	"Flaming Barriers"	2nd Week
Zane Grey Productions.
Victor Fleming	Dix-Wilson	James Howe	Gilroy	Doris Schroeder	"The Call of the Canyon"	7th Week
James Cruze Productions
James Cruze	All-Star	Vernon Keays	Karl Brown	Walter Woods	"To the Ladies"	2nd Week
McNAMARA STUDIOS. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Capitol 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro Release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star	Percy Hilburn	Harry Schenck	J. G. Hawks	"Cape Cod Folks"	5th Week
John M. Stahl	All-Star		Sidney Algier	A. G. Younger	"Why Men Leave Home"	4th Week
Fred Niblo	All-Star	Victor Milner	Doran Cox	B. Meredyth	"Thy Name Is Woman"	Preparing
B. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
Gasnier	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"Maytime"	Final Week
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Harold Shaw	All-Star	Georges Rizard	Nat Watts	Thos. Hopkins	"The Living Past"	2nd Week
Victor Schertzinger	All-Star	Chet Lyon		V. Schertzinger	"Man Whom Life Passed By"	3rd Week
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	J. Arnold			"Angel Face Molly"	3rd Week
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Allen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar	All-Star	Haskins			"The Human Mill"	2nd Week
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	15th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford		Held	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	9th Week
Marshall Neilan	Mary Pickford	Rosher		Staff	"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall"	Preparing
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Louis Tolhurst				Walter Anthony	Microscopic Motion Pictures	Schedule
Alf. Goulding	Harry Langdon	Albert Breslau	David Smith	Harry Langdon	Comedy	Schedule
Benny Zeidman Productions.
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Eddie Hearn		Gilbert Fones	Wyndam Gittens	"The Sand Pile"	Preparing
Lehrman	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"Comedy of Terrors"	Schedule
Chester Bennett Productions.
Douglas MacLean Productions
Jimmy Horne	Douglas MacLean	Max DuPont	Art Flaven		"The Yankee Consul"	5th Week
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr. 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Jackman	All-Star	Floyd Jackman	W. L. Guthrie	Staff	Feature	Schedule
P. Pembrooke	Will Rogers	Robt. Doran	Ross Letterman	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Geo. Jeske	Harry Pollard	J. Roach	Clark Hennecke	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Len Powers	Animals	B. Currigan	Greeland	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Bob McGowan	Our Gang	Harry Gerstad	C. Morehouse	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
J. Howe	Stan Laurel	Frank Young	Cruze	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
Phil Rosen	All-Star	Kurrle-Broening	Al. Davis	Francis Marion	"Life of Abraham Lincoln"	Schedule
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSELL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945
Al. Nietz	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	Preparing
Logan-Baynham Productions.
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Hercules Film Prods., Inc.
Jack Nelson	Jack Pollo	McManigal	Joe Kane	Staff	"Let's Go"	Editing
Jack Nelson	Jack Pollo	McManigal	Joe Kane	Staff	"The Powerless Man"	Casting
H. J. Brown Productions
Al. Rogell	Fred Thompson	Ross Fisher			"Running Wild"	5th Week
Maloford Productions.
Bob Williamson	Leo Maloney	Bataraka	Stratton		Untitled	4th Week
Granada Productions.
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
Del Lord	All-Star	Blake Wagner		Mack Sennett	Comedy	Editing
Del Ruth	Ben Turpin			Mack Sennett	Comedy	Editing
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
Reeves Eason	I. B. Warner	Longenecker	Ernest Van Pelt	Jefferson	"Treasure Canyon"	2nd Week
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Rose of All the World"	9th Week
Victor Heerman	Constance Talmadge	Glen McWilliams	Edw. Brophy	Mace Sullivan	"The Mirage"	Preparing
Sam E. Rork Productions.
First National Productions.
McDermott Chaplin	All-Star		James Chapin	Wm. Dowlin	"Temporary Marriage"	8th Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Frank Lloyd Productions (First National Release)
Frank Lloyd	Griffith-Tearle	Norbert Brodin	Billy Retter	Fred Myton	"Black Oxen"	5th Week
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig, Casting.						433-131
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Wm. Craft	Desmond-Sedgwick		McDonough Koehner		"Beasts of Paradise"	Schedule
Jay Marchant	Morrison Morris		Ray Taylor		"The Ghost City"	1st Week
Robt. N. Bradbury	Jack Hoxie		V. Nordlinger		"Wyoming"	3rd Week
King Baggott	All-Star		Joe Berry		"Blackmail"	2nd Week
Ed. Laemmle	Billy Sullivan		Regan		"The Leather Pusher Series"	Editing
Harry Pollard	Reginald Denny		F. Messinger		"The Spice of Life"	5th Week
Irving Cummings	Mary Philbin		Woolstenhume		"My Mamie Rose"	4th Week
Robt. N. Bradbury	Pete Morrison		Victor Nordlinger		Series 2-Reel Westerns	Schedule
Jess Robbins	Baby Peggy		Arthur		"The Right to Love"	4th Week
Hobart Henley	All-Star				"The Turmoil"	2nd Week
Robert Hill	Herbert Rawlinson		E. Lumley		"All for the Love of Gloria"	3rd Week
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Laval Photoplay, Ltd., of Montreal, Canada. L. Ernest Ouimet, Pres and Mgr.
P. Cazeneoye	Andre Lafayette	Gene Benoit	Harry Webb		"The Vital Question"	4th Week
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen. Mgr.						598-131
Dave Smith Productions.
Larry Semon Productions.
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 4181
Warner Brothers Productions.
Hines-Griffin	Johnny Hines	Chas. Gilson	Sandy Roth		"Conductor 1492"	9th Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Marsh-Gillingwater	John Stumar	Tenny Wright		"Daddies"	Scheduled Sept 24
Harry Beaumont	John Barrymore	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Beau Brummel"	Oct. 1
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernst Lubitsch	All-Star	Paul Perry	Flood Blanke		"The Marriage Circle"	6th Week
Harry Rapf Productions.
Jack Conway	Monte Blue-Irene Rich	David Abel	Sutherland-Hawkes		"Loveless Marriages"	9th Week
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WILNAT STUDIO. 6090 Sunset Blvd. Al. Brandt, Mgr.						Holly 7940
WORLD EDUCATIONAL FILMS. Box 818, Sta. "C," Los Angeles
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	"Haunts of Hiawatha"	6th Week

DR. W. L. SCHUSTER
Chiropractor—Nerve Specialist
"Where the sick go to get well"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

WHEN YOU NEED A DOCTOR
Phone 572-88; 430-205, or Hollywood 102-82 and ask for
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Formerly of New York City
6548 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD

SUNSET TAXI TOURING CARS $2 PER HOUR
SPECIAL RATES ON STUDIO TRIPS AND TOURING

Universal City	$1.00	Club Royal	3.00
Mayer Studios	2.50	Culver City	2.00
Holly-Fairbanks	.75	United Studios	1.00
Fox Studios	.75	Robertson-Cole	.75
Lasky Studios	.75	Metro Studios	.75
Santa Monica	3.50	Ambassador Hotel	1.50
Pasadena	4.00	Venice	4.00
All Stations	2.50	Center of Los Angeles	2.00
		Plantation	3.00

578-307 1720 Hudson Ave. 430-258

"Phon-O-Grams"

Edited by Gene Woolway

Alton Brown

Juvenile Leads

578-177

Charlotte DuPuis

Ingenue-Characters

Holly 2570

J. C. (Jack) Fowler

Characters

438-501

Lorraine Eason

Ingenue Leads

575-91

Kenneth Gibson

Juvenile Leads

578-311

Mary Ruby

Ingenue

594-774

Donna Hale

Leads

Dunkirk 3153

Bert Sprotte

Characters

741-64

FROM "U" TO YOU

(Continued from Page 5)

Universal really hasn't done a thing to him, except that the company gave him very fine roles in "The Flirt" and "A Lady of Quality," Hobert Henley productions. But one may look at Roach as he blithely wanders, singing, about the studio, and fully believe what he chants. Beard, dirty face, dirty hands, ragged clothes—all visible evidences of being a tramp are there.

It so happens, though, that he is being starred in a series of one-reel comedies like those in which he made his bow to fame. While there is no dramatic part for him, Universal stars him in tramp comedies. He'll be made a tramp in the new series all right, a rather well known one.

Herbert Rawlinson directed by Robert F. Hill.

This is a new combination at Universal City and one attracting interest in the Laemmle film fold. Rawlinson has starred in many of the intensely dramatic kind of stories, and Hill for some time has been making features of this type which held unusual promise.

Rawlinson just recently completed "The Noblest Roman" under the direction of William Parke. Hill recently completed "The Heart of Boston Blackie," an all-star screen play of one of Jack Boyle's famous underworld stories.

"All For the Love of Gloria," a spirited romance with plenty of adventure in it, is the story in which Rawlinson is now starring under Hill's direction.

Nat Ross' production following "The Six-Fifty" is "The Escape." It was just recently completed and now is in the final stage of editing and titling. Raymond Doyle is writing the titles.

"The Escape" is a dramatic screen version of William McLeod Raine's novel, "A Texas Ranger," with Roy Stewart in the featured role. It has many promising elements in story, cast and investiture.

Jack Mower, co-star with Eileen Sedgwick of "In the Days of Daniel Boone," and seen in many other Universal pictures, is now being featured in a series of condensed two-reel action dramas. Nat Ross is directing the filming of them at Universal City. The first picture is "Under Western Skies," with Elinor Field playing opposite him.

Mower has in the course of the past two years played practically every kind of a role it is possible to find in pictures. In "Daniel Boone" he had his best role up to that time, from a standpoint of fan popularity, for as a historical character he is now the idol of thousands of children in every section of the country.

Ned Sparks, former vaudevillain of high reputation, Vic Potel, whose inimitable characterizations of men whose chief charms are not beauty or grace, Anna Hernandez, character artist of rank, and James Corrigan, have been added to the cast of the new Baby Peggy-Universal-Jewel production which was just recently started under the direction of Jesse Robbins.

These names are in addition to famous players previously selected to support the Baby Bernhardt; Robert Ellis, leading man of "The Wild Party" and other pictures, Winifred Bryson of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "Thundering Dawn," and Elinor Faire of the artistic success, "Driven."

BOB REEL
McKEE

The constantly increasing audiences here attest to the supremacy of our programs. We are exerting every effort to give you clean, snappy boxing.

Hollywood Stadium

Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

R. K. EARLE
CONSULTING ENGINEER
LICENSED SURVEYOR
619 Citizens National Bank Building
Phone 823-681

BRUNO

Publicity Photos
Professional Photos
Casting Director Photos

6412 HOLLYWOOD BLVD.
Telephone 431-929

Gigantic Removal Sale Renewed Used Cars

RICKERSHAUSER & MILLER

6369 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3995

Nash, almost new	$1085.00
Nash coupe, new tires	1050.00
Nash sedan, refinished	1000.00
Nash 5-pass., refinished	985.00
Nash sport model	950.00
Cadillac 55 touring	600.00
Nash 5-pass., late model	600.00
Ford coupe, '22	500.00

Open Evenings. Open Sundays.

Walter Frederick Seely
Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660
KWIK LUNCH
SERVES U RITE
1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

CALL
CULVER CITY
546
IF STUDIO SPACE IS DESIRED

Hugh Hoffman
Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip," "Crossed Wires," "The Town Scandal," "Sawdust," "The Untameable," "The Wild Party."

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography
LITTLE
Commercial Photographer
Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

HAIRGONE—permanent cure for superfluous hair on arms, limbs, face and body. Also wonderful for men who have shaving troubles. $2.50 the bottle, manufactured at
ORCHID BEAUTY SHOPPE
808 So. Hope St. Phone 16596
All lines of beauty culture.

MOTION PICTURES
Talent wanted to register in new Casting Directory. Call in person.
THE UNIVERSAL, 5507 Santa Monica Boulevard. Room 4.

MARION WARDE
Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films
Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing
423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

"The Right to Love" is the title of the picture, which will be a multiple reel attraction, companion picture to "Whose Baby Are You?" and "The Burglar's Kid," both of which received praise in previews.

After eight weeks of intermittent sailing the high seas in a four-masted schooner and work on a studio stage, filming has been completed of "The Storm Daughter," Priscilla Dean's latest Universal starring vehicle. Editing is proceeding rapidly. Frank Ware is the editor.

The picture presents a dramatic story of life on the open sea, woven around the startling adventures of the daughter of a rough sea captain, filmed from an original story written especially for the dynamic star by Leete Renick Brown of the Universal scenario department.

George Archainbaud, who made "The Common Law," "Cordelia the Magnificent" and many other notable screen successes, directed the making of the Dean production, virtually all of which was filmed on the hurricane deck of a "wind jammer." A few shots were taken on an improvised boat set erected in one of the stages at Universal City.

An all star cast supports Miss Dean in the picture, including Tom Santschi, William B. Davidson, Pat Hartigan, Cyril Chadwick, Bert Roach, Alfred Fisher, George Kuwa and J. Farrell McDonald.

With the selection of Charlie Murray for an important role in "My Mamie Rose," Irving Cummings has added another stellar light of filmdom to the cast of Mary Philbin's initial starring vehicle, now in production at Universal City under his direction.

Murray, of the famous vaudeville team of Murray and Mack, whose eccentric comedy characterizations have placed him in the foremost ranks of screen comedians throughout a period of several years, is to portray the role of the drunken father of the little Irish girl called Mamie Rose. His part is not of the brute type of Bowery drunk, but rather that of a happy-go-lucky old sot who loves his daughter, but his "likker" better.

Cummings is choosing his players carefully for the Universal filmization of this famous Owen Kildare story of the New York Bowery of the olden days.

Besides Miss Philbin, who plays the title role, and Murray, the cast includes Pat O'Malley, "Buster" Collier, Max Davidson, Kate Price, Edwin J. Brady and Lincoln Plummer. There are still several other prominent parts in the play yet to be cast.

On the edge of Death Valley, where "The Red Warning," his last starring picture, was filmed, Jack Hoxie, accompanied by his "gang" of hard riding cowboys, is enjoying the climate for which the neighborhood around Lone Pine, California, is not famous. The Universal unit is filming "Wyoming," William McLeod Raine's novel, with Robert North Bradbury directing.

Lillian Rich, leading woman in "Man to Man," "The Kentucky Derby" and other big Universal pictures, is playing the leading role opposite Jack Hoxie.

While on location for "The Red Warning" the Hoxie troupe encountered such pleasant little features of the country as rattlesnakes and thermometers with a habit of sticking around the "115" mark. The first bulletin received at Universal City on the present location indicated that Nature was a little kinder in the matter of temperature on this trip.

The reason for the second trip to the same location is that Hoxie and his director have discovered great possibilities in the country. From a pictorial standpoint "The Red Warning" has eclipsed any other Hoxie picture.

It does not take a foreign atmosphere to call for unusually large and spectacular sets. Sometimes an American story calls for lavish investiture.

Such a story is "The Turmoil," Booth Tarkington's novel of the rich, the noveau rich and the not rich.

Hobart Henley is going to direct the screen transcription of this American classic as a Universal-super-Jewel production. It will be a companion picture to "Merry-Go-Round," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Acquittal" and "A Lady of Quality," and also to Tarkington's "The Flirt," which Henley produced a year or so ago, and which was a pronounced box office success.

Elmer Sheeley, art director at Universal City, who scouted Southern California for cobblestone paving for the Court of Miracles sets of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," is hard at work on the specifications of the big set of "The Turmoil." The buildings themselves will be satisfying to the most technical critics, as have sets in "Merry-Go-Round," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and other featured offerings of Universal.

Liar, hypocrite, impostor!

Well, now, those are rather harsh terms. But a screen star can't be a chooser when the scenario writer gets busy. Stars may become dope fiends, criminals or beggars at the flash of a thought in the film author's fertile brain!

So it has come to pass that Reginald Denny is all of these things and more—in the picture he is making. He is starring in "There He Goes," a racing story by Byron Morgan, which was filmed under the working title of "The Spice of Life." It is a Universal-Jewel special production directed by Harry A. Pollard. The unit has just returned to Universal City from Monterey, where fashionable hotels and society leaders' homes furnished locations which should be unusually interesting on the screen.

The hero of Morgan's story is a chauffeur whose heart is on the race track but whose hand is kept up his appetite on the wheel of hand is kept on the wheel of a prosaic limousine, until the chance comes to be—a liar, hypocrite and impostor.

However, it is said that the handsome Denny makes a very charming deceiver, and of course that story gives him opportunity to absolve himself.

Laura La Plante is "the girl" who falls in love with the "liar, hypocrite and impostor."

Flashes from Frisco

(Continued from Page 6)

Eugene O'Brien, favored here of all film fans, arrived in town Monday to open at the Curran Theatre next week in the play that marks his return to his old love, the spoken stage. The play is "Steve," and it comes to this city after a successful run of five months in Chicago. The story is a romantic comedy, and deals with the movies, with scenes laid on an island off the coast of Maine.

Frank Lloyd and the company making "Black Oxen," from Gertrude Atherton's famous best seller, will arrive in San Francisco on Saturday to film dock and waterfront scenes. While here Mr. Lloyd is also to hold conference on the making of the picture with Mrs. Atherton.

Jack Pickford, Tom Forman and M. I. Waite were among the arrivals on Sunday at the St. Francis Hotel. Whether they are in San Francisco to work or purely for pleasure was not announced.

Alice Lake spent last week in town on a little holiday trip, and left for the South on Sunday.

Edith Ryan, popular press representative of Hollywood, enjoyed a stay of several days in San Francisco last week. Miss Ryan came up on the boat for a little vacation trip, but while here also met a number of the newspaper and film folk.

RED CAP
CHECKERS
"THE REAL SHOCK ABSORBER"

FOR

Dodge, Chevrolet and Ford Cars

They make the roughest roads into boulevards. Check all the REBOUND and prevent spring breakage.
Sold on a
MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

10 DAYS' TRIAL

WATCH THE CAR AHEAD equipped with RED CAP CHECKERS
Set of Four with Fittings

Dodge $21.00
Chevrolet 20.00
Ford 15.50

FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS
Distributed by

CHECKERS CALIFORNIA CO.
916 SO. FLOWER STREET
Phone 822535 LOS ANGELES, CAL.

FRIENDS!
Members of the Industry

We have a message for you. We have a service which means money to you. The coupon below will bring you an explanation

ROY H. MARSHALL
and
GEORGE W. CASTEEL
Holly 3064

411 Security Building, Hollywood.

Show me, without obligation on my part, how you can do big things for me!

Name .....

Phone..... Address.....

THERE WILL BE A WELCOME SURPRISE FOR THE FIRST ONE HUNDRED PERSONS WHO WILL MAIL IN THIS COUPON.

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS
GET RESULTS

WANTED—I will pay $10 a 1000 for domestic "fan" letters. Ada Mayes, 5429 Hollywood Boulevard.

PATHE CAMERA complete, for rent by the week. St. Elmo Boyce, Powers-R. C. Studios.

BOOKKEEPER—Expert, typist, wants four hours' work daily. $16 per week. Humboldt 3493W. Call after 6, evenings.

ROBERT TODD—*Film Editor. Nine years' experi*ence. Desirous of permanent local connection. Phone Hollywood 1113.

FOR SALE—Full Dress suit, size 42-44. Silk hat, size 7 3-8. Phone Holly 8498.

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell camera, 170 degrree shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Phone Met. 4688 days; 13173 evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell Howell Camera, 170 *degree. Tel*ephone 399-464.

ART LEE
SPECIALIST ON MAKE-UP
Will teach you how to Make Up Correctly. Read my references
Telephone 598-207
1712 St. James Court, Hollywood, at Western

COY WATSON, JR.
CHILD LEADS
Age 10. Drexel 3616

Especially for Motion Picture People.
THE HILLVIEW GRILL
Hillview Apartments Bldg.
Hollywood at Hudson
Holly 7980 Holly 6626
MERCHANTS' LUNCH, 11:30 to 2
DINNER 5:30 to 8

SCREEN SERVICE
(formerly The Service Bureau)
1036 SOUTH HILL
Phone 821-071

Learn to Color Photographs
We teach you the SECRET PROCESS of making your oil colors at a saving of one half.
424 UNION LEAGUE BLDG.
Corner of Second and Hill Streets

TINTED PORTRAITS
of a beautiful velvet-like tone can be made from your regular photographs. The cost is low and there are special rates on fan photos.
EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38

100 Per Cent Titles
100 Per Cent Service
At the Right Price!

Dress up that next production with artistic Hand Lettered Titles made by IRVING W. BUNZE.

If you want Perfect Symbolic Art Backgrounds, let us make them! Neil E. McQuire, formerly with Ince and Prizma, does our art work.

For perfect black-and-white titles, try our PROCESS SYSTEM. A telephone call will bring our representative with samples.

Quality Title & Film Company

1442 Beechwood Drive. Holly 4850

Rare Antiques from the Far East

Oriental Costume Co.

6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

Frank the Shoe Doctor

"We save your sole and heel you, too"

6666 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3752

FOR PICTURES

PLAYS, BOOKS, ORIGINALS

The
Hollywood Play Bureau
Emmett Corrigan, Mgr.
6404 Hollywood Boulevard
Near Cahuenga. Hollywood, Cal.

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law

JACK P. LEONARD

340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

WE MOVE THE MOVIES

Hollywood 2672 • SAMUEL C. SHINE • 6568 Santa Monica Blvd.
General Trucking and Hauling

Work was completed yesterday on the first Jack White Special comedy, directed by Norman Taurog, for Educational release.

Mr. White believes that this picture, as yet untitled, with the cyclone which is its thrill climax, and its cast including such well known laugh-makers as Neely Edwards, Lillian Hackett, Hank Mann, Mack Swain, Jack Lloyd and many others, will set a new mark in two-reel comedy production.

Billy Sullivan is being starred in the Leather Pushers, replacing Reginald Denny. In between pictures he goes into strict physical training.

Jimmy Aubrey is taking things easy for a week in between pictures, having just completed his third two-reeler in as many months.

Joe Bonner has been signed to play a Chinaman in a comedy on the Fox lot, where he just completed a role of a circus ring master.

Ruth Hiatt has been cast in the leading feminine role of the first Cameo Comedy of the 1924 series, as yet untitled. Gil Pratt is directing, under the supervision of Jack White.

Miss Hiatt is the winner of the combined Bay Cities bathing girl contest held several weeks ago. She was adjudged the most beautiful girl entered, which confers upon her the proud title of "Miss Los Angeles."

Joe Bonomo is getting a chance to do some of his strong-man stunts in a Universal serial for which he holds many world's records.

Jack and Maurice Murphy made a pledge to their "kid pals" that they won't come back "hum" until they are stars, and their hats are in the movie ring.

"Cuddles" Stern, that "Cry Baby" of the movies, has just completed her first part in "Born of the Cyclone," where she didn't have to cry.

Jack White comedies do not specialize in bathing girls, but they have the youngest "diving marvel" in captivity. Bonnie Barrett, two years old, says she is all set for the aquatic events of the Olympic games when they are held in Los Angeles.

Garry O'Dell has had another taste of working in comedies. He just finished a heavy role in a Jimmy Aubrey fun-film at the Big U lot.

Bobby Vernon started another of his two-reel comedies the other day, which is being directed by Al E. Christie.

LOCAL — SEMI-NATIONAL — FULL-NATIONAL — INTERNATIONAL

POUR PERSONAL PUBLICITY AR-EXCELLENT

POSITIVELY PUTS PICTURE PEOPLE IN PERMANENT PUBLIC FAVOR

Write for particulars, or see

GENE WOOLWAY

P. O. Box 176, Hollywood Station
Or, in care of
Camera!
2nd. Floor, 6318 Hollywood Blvd.,
HOLLYWOOD Calif.
PHONE 439-869

YOUR PHONOGRAPH

will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a

Deflexograph

Fits any Phonograph or Victrola Using Changeable Needles.

Play after hours —will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.

GOLD PLATE.....$1.50 (See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE....$1.00

VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

Are You Coming East?
Don't fail to stop at the

NAT LEWIS SHOP

47th & Bdwy, New York City

Theatrical Outfitters, Haberdashery and Ladies' Hosiery

Culver City, Calif.

Phone Culver City 546

I WANT SOME REAL PICTURES!

. . . productions from $50,000 to $100,000. I can sell them outright. See me for a quick release.

H. and B. FILM COMPANY

Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275

ALICE CALHOUN
Attributes Her Health To Chiropractic.

WHERE THE SICK GO TO GET WELL

BILLIE DOVE
Says: "Chiropractic Keeps Me Well."

75 PER CENT

of the

MOTION PICTURE STARS IN HOLLYWOOD

are using my Scientific Method to regain and keep their health.

ASK ANY STAR

ARE YOU ONE OF THEM?
IF NOT, WHY NOT?

ASK ANY STAR

You will be agreeably surprised to find there is no discomfort in taking these Scientific Adjustments, and gratified with the results obtained.
Bring all your Health Troubles to the only Chiropractor catering to the Motion Picture Profession.

Dr. W. I. Schuster

SCIENTIFIC CHIROPRACTOR AND NERVE SPECIALIST
(Palmer Graduate)

Office Hours:
10 to 12 and 2 to 5

Monday, Wednesday and Friday
6 to 8 P.M.

203 Bogardus Building
Cor. Sunset and Western
Hollywood, California

Telephone 436-724

LADY IN ATTENDANCE. PRIVATE DRESSING ROOMS.

CULLEN LANDIS:
"Put Me In Great Condition."

WHERE THE SICK GO TO GET WELL

PRISCILLA MORAN:
"Chiropractic Is My Best Pal."

Peter Burke who will portray the character of Bruce Kavanaugh the Juvenile lead for Renalles, Inc., in "The Elk's Tooth"

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

"Camera!"

Los Angeles, Calif. Saturday, Sept. 29, 1923 Price 10 Cents

WILLIAM DUNCAN

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A.HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

New York Washington, D. C.

Phone 52220

Hepner
INCORPORATED

Phone 54847

1001-1005 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles California

Permanent Waving Hair Coloring Bleaching
Hair Dressing Scalp-Facial Massage
Marcel Waving Water Waving Shampooing
Manicuring
Wigs Toupees Switches Transformations
Wig Rental Beards and Moustaches
Cosmetics
Professional Makeup Service

Special Attention to Theatrical and Motion Picture Profession

No Parking Restrictions

JEAN DIANA
Ingenues
570-024

DORIS DARE
Ingenue Leads
Main 0593

"Camera!"
[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

ESTABLISHED 1918

A Film Magazine and a Film Newspaper in One

6318 Hollywood Boulevard
Hollywood : California

ol. VI. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1922 No. 24

THE ZERO HOUR

The first gray streaks of dawn shot across the muddy battlefield of Flanders, and the fitful cannonade died down, followed by the cessation of the intermittent rat-a-tat of machine guns. A hush, deathlike and oppressive, fell upon the opposing forces. A nervous tension filled the air. There was a lull in the conflict; the zero hour was at hand, the hour when the true mettle of men would be determined. In some the light of hope burned with an unquenchable fire; surely, the morrow would bring victory and the sad days would end. Others despaired and were heavy of heart. What gain was there in this ceaseless turmoil and warfare? Why keep up the struggle? It would not help the world a whit and they were only rushing toward complete oblivion, a foolish end. Why should they keep faith? But all of them, those who believed and those who did not, awaited the zero hour, the beginning of the activity following the lull. Something would happen——what?

Truly, there is a simile between this scene on the Flanders battlefield and the field of motion picture production activity here. For the zero hour has come here, too. There is a lull in activity. What will follow this lull will determine whether or not the past four years, probably the past ten years, have been worth while; whether or not the efforts for the artistic advancement of motion pictures have been productive of results. Things have not been at such a low ebb in Hollywood for some time, but it is nothing to be alarmed at, it is not indicative that the conscientious work expended has been for naught. The zero hour is at hand, that is all. Great pictures have been made this past season and when they are released this autumn they will determine the status of pictures among the fine arts. For they are representative of the combined efforts and experiences of many years, the cream of Hollywood's output, and the drain they have imposed upon the industry has only caused things to come to a temporary standstill. There has always been a period of inactivity at this time of the year, but it does not portend disaster, as so many who are now unemployed are wont to assert. True enough that it is trying upon those who are dependent upon work in the studios here for their existence, and it is important, therefore, that they know what big things are in store for the coming twelvemonth. Big production programs are being prepared, new studios are being built, healthy expansion is under way, even now. Employment is going to be on the upgrade, and it is the unanimous opinion of the industry's foremost authorities that 1924 will bring great happiness and prosperity to Hollywood. Tomorrow will bring victory. This is not the end, it is the lull—the zero hour. We must not lose heart at this time. We must keep faith with those who have contributed such splendid advancements to the profession, many of whom have passed on. We owe much to them. We shall keep faith.

Telephone
439-869

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON
Publisher and Manager.

JOHN CORNYN
Advertising Manager.

GENE WOOLWAY
Studio Representative.

FRED W. FOX
Advertising Copy.

PAULINE THOMPSON
Pulse Editor

Address All Communications to
CAMERA!

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

$3.50 per year in Los Angeles County.
$4.00 per year in Outside Zone.
$4.50 to Canada.
$5.00 to Foreign Points.

H. H. CONGER COMPANY
Nat'l Adv. Rep.
New York Chicago
San Francisco

Advertising Rates Upon Application.

Issued on Saturday morning of each week at 6318 Hollywood Blvd., in Los Angeles, Calif. Telephone 439-869.

Entered as second-class matter, Aug. 11, 1918, at the Post Office at Los Angeles, Cal., under Act of March 3rd, 1879.

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Gold Diggers"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

"The Cat and the Canary"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

"When the Desert Calls"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

"The Drivin' Fool"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

Charles "Buck" Jones
in
"Snowdrift"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Road Together"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

Dark

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

Ethel Clayton
in
"The Remittance Woman"

This Week's Theatre Notes

"The most beautiful cast in the world." This is the enthusiastic description applied to "The Gold Diggers" by Augustin J. Glassmire, Morosco stage director.

"We have them all," exultantly declares Mr. Glassmire—"from the pale gold blonde type to the luscious brunette, from the titian to the exotic—they are all represented—and all beautiful."

"It's great fun to be a chorus girl without being one," smilingly admits the beautiful leading lady, Charlotte Treadway, who is "Jerry," the intriguing ingenue of Belasco's famous play. Miss Treadway heads the list of the charming Morosco cast, which includes in its galaxy of bewitching girls: Iva Shepard, Ruth Long, Grace Gordon, Elizabeth Noble, Dorothy Eggeton, Marjorie Lyon, Wanda Sibbald, Elsie Wenger and Sibyl Carpenter. Also the men in the cast are not to be ignored when it comes to looks, for they all have a goodly share of Mr. Adonis' stuff: Harland Tucker, Gayne Whitman, Lloyd Corrigan, James Kyle MacCurdy, Charles Buck, Richard Richmond, Arthur La Roe, Fred Hamer.

Fred Niblo has outdone all his previous efforts in the screen version of the famous stage success, "Captain Applejack," at Loew's State Theatre this week. This Metro picture, presented by Louis B. Mayer, is one of the most exciting and thrilling mystery stories the screen has ever known. It is a mingling of thrilling romance and subtle comedy. The cast includes Enid Bennett, Matt Moore, Barbara La Marr, Robert McKim and many others of note.

"Strangers of the Night" is a rollicking story of pirate gold and modern adventure and the blood of romance will bubble into mad and tingling fun as Loew's State audiences watch this story, as peppy as a cocktail.

The second impressive week of Mrs. Wallace Reid's picture, "Human Wreckage," is now showing at the Alhambra Theater. Aside from the lesson to users of narcotics, this production is one of the most thrilling and interesting cinemas shown in some time. It is splendidly acted, and a magnificent cry against a great evil inspired by a terrific lesson conveyed by recent untimely death of Wally Reid.

George Middleton's latest play, "The Road Together," remains at the Majestic a second week. As originally planned, "The Road Together" was to have its first showing in New York with Miss Rambeau in the stellar role, but Mr. Wilkes persuaded Al H. Woods, under whose auspices the play will be presented in the eastern city, to permit Miss Rambeau to extend her visit here and give audiences of this city the first opportunity to witness this comedy drama.

Mr. Middleton, the author, has been in this city for the past month supervising rehearsals. He is one of the leading playwrights in this country, having to his credit such successes as "Polly With a Past," "Adam and Eva," "The Cave Girl," and others.

"Zaza," the lifetime ambition of Gloria Swanson, and described as the finest piece of screen work ever portrayed by that star, scintillates on the screen at Grauman's Metropolitan Theatre this week.

The play concerns the loves of a famous French actress and is declared to be nothing less than torrid in its emotional qualities. It is said to have been suggested originally to the authors—Pierre Berton and Charles Simon, by none other than Mme. Sarah Bernhardt.

The picture marks the return to the limelight of H. B. Warner, who plays the leading role. Others in the cast are Ferdinand Gottschalk, Lucille LaVerne, Mary Thurman, Riley Hatch and others

"Zaza" is the first picture enacted in New York by Miss Swanson.

A sensation to the entire motion picture world and to those fans who have seen the first few performances at the Criterion theatre wherein it is being presented, Charles Chaplin's production, "A Woman of Paris," has, judging from its reception by the Los Angeles press and public, scored the outstanding triumph of the motion picture art.

"A Woman of Paris" is the directorial triumph of a man whom the world has regarded as its greatest buffoon. Now Chaplin has foresaken acting before the camera and given the world a picture that marks a distinct forward step in the cinema. He does not appear in "A Woman of Paris," but gives Edna Purviance her chance to shine as a star. Miss Purviance is not the only one, however, who has created a sensation: there are two or three others—Adolphe Menjou, and Carl Miller, who have reaped a harvest of favorable comment.

"A Woman of Paris" is a story of a woman's heart, dealing with the supreme problem of the ages. The theme is startling because of the utter simplicity with which Chaplin deals with the basics and fundamentals of life. The story is as old as that of Adam and Eve, and yet presented with a convincing and dramatic understanding. The presentation of the film at the Criterion is accompanied by a musical setting rendered by the Criterion Symphony Artists under the direction of Adolf Tandler.

California
Main at Eighth

Marion Davies
in
"Little Old New York

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Corinne Griffith-
Frank Mayo, in
"Six Days"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

Gloria Swanson
in
"Zaza"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Fred Niblo's
"Strangers of the Nigh

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

James Cruze's
"Hollywood"

Criterion

Charles Chaplin's
"A Woman of Paris"

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

Charles Ray
in "The Courtship
of Myles Standish"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

Mrs. Wallace Reid
in
"Human Wreckage"

Hollywood Egypti
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden

"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mabel Normand
in
"The Extra Girl"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

Liane Haid
in "The Affairs of Lady Hamilton"

Hollywood's Shrine of the Dramatic Arts

Ground has been broken and actual work started on Hollywood's most recent addition to its already famous list of national amusement units. Within the next few months there will have risen on Vine street, at Hollywood boulevard, a new and beautiful home for the spoken drama—the Hollywood Playhouse.

It will be the latest and greatest of the dramatic houses in the world will be produced in the most modern settings that money and talent can accommodate.

Mr. Eiseman, after intensive study of local amusement conditions, selected the Vine and Hollywood location for the greatest convenience of the greatest number, and there he will provide accommodations for about twelve hundred people at each performance.

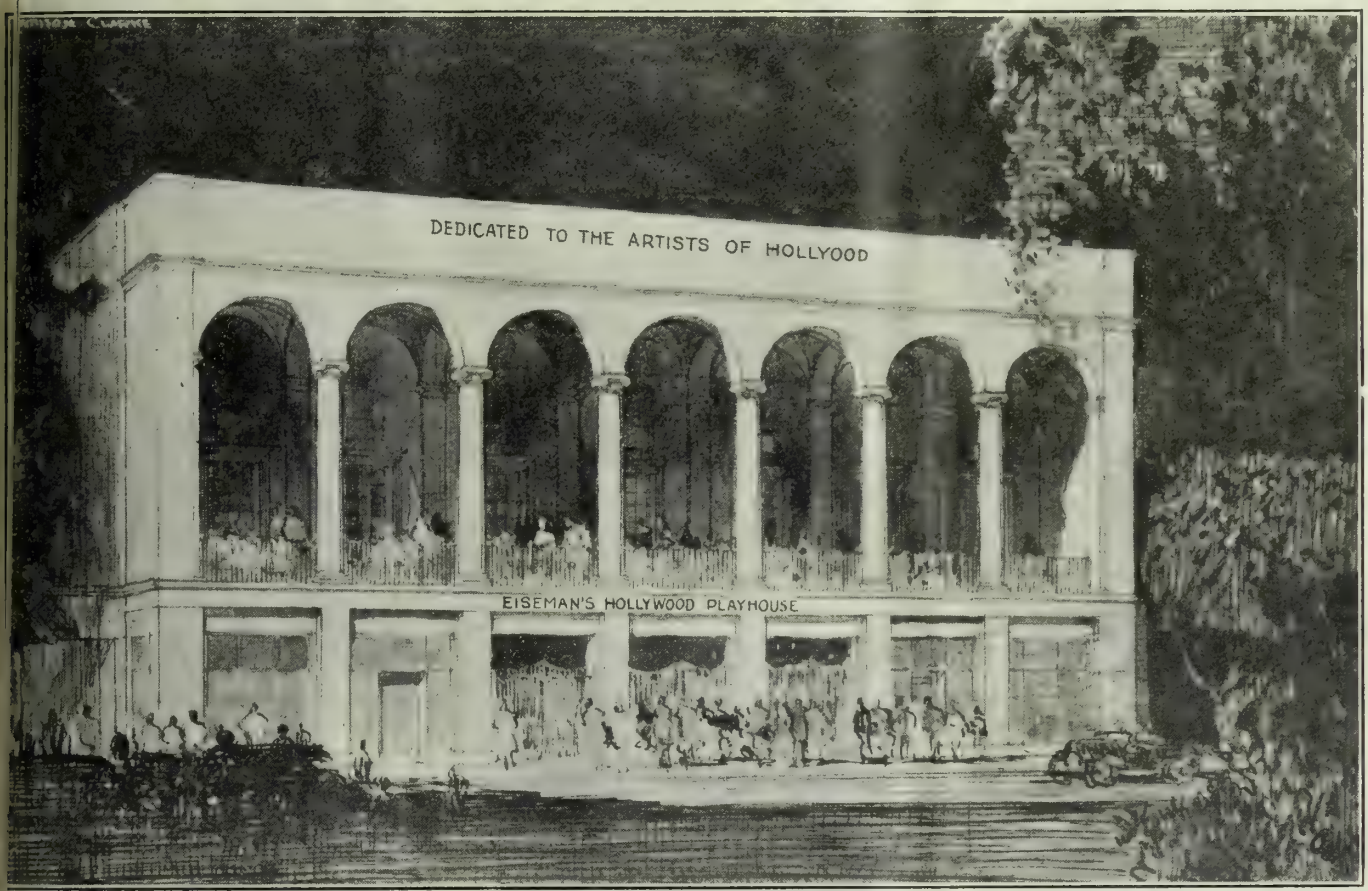
In addition to placing Mr. Hast, famous in the English and Eastern theatrical world for his artistic productions of many difficult plays, Mr. Eiseman has surrounded himself with consulting and advisory playwrights and a strong nationally famous personnel of distinctive achievements theatrically.

With the eyes of the world on Hollywood and Los Angeles, it is predicted that the fame of the Hollywood Playhouse will spread to all corners of the globe and many premieres of forthcoming famous plays are planned for production.

Mr. Eiseman is considering now the advisability of producing from time to time unique and startling plays of variable lengths, and it is forecasted that in addition to its established place as one of the most famous of America's playhouses, there may be developed an American Grand Guignol, such as has added to the fame of Paris in the realm of innovation and daring.

A formal announcement of the complete plans of the structure and its offerings will soon be issued, but already a tentative challenge to the national playhouses for uniqueness and quality of production is contained in the informal statements made to their friends by Mr. Eiseman and his director, Mr. Hast.

Original dramas from the pens of American authors will be encouraged by production under ideal conditions, and offered to the most discerning and critical audience in the world, the residents of Hollywood.



and it is the intention of J. Jacques Eiseman and his managing director, Walter Hast, to make the Hollywood Playhouse one of the town's individual and unique show houses.

The dearth of amusement of the kind that will be fostered under Mr. Eiseman and Mr. Hast has been felt keenly by Hollywood residents, and the inconvenience of motor travel and street car traffic during the afternoon and evening hours will have been eliminated by bringing home to them the quality of dra-

Resume of a Week at Universal

By WILL C. MURPHEY

In adjoining rooms of the editorial department at Universal City the romance of the sea and the bitter drama of murder trial in a cosmopolitan city are being whipped into story-ing shape from masses of film, as Frank Condon Ware cuts the footage of "The Storm Daughter" and Eddie Schroeder works with Clarence L. Brown, director, on the editing of the final edition of "The Acquittal," the mystery picture with Norman Kerry, Barbara Bedford and Claire Windsor.

George Archainbaud directed "The Storm Daughter" with Priscilla Dean in the central role and a fine cast in the chief parts.

"His Mystery Girl"—sounds like romance and adventure with a thrill. There is a great deal of mystery in the story, which Universal has been filming with Herbert Rawlinson in the starring role, and which has borne the title "All for the Love of Gloria." It was written by Marion Orth and directed by Robert F. Hill.

So the last week of production on the new picture will be under a new title, "His Mystery Girl"—more nicely expressing the romantic love interest in the story.

Under temporary working title of "Blackmail" King Baggot has started work on his new picture at Universal City. The story is a mystery play adapted by Raymond L. Schrock from the stage play "The Co-respondent," written by Rita Weiman, author of "The

(Continued on Page 19)

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Sept. 26, 1923—King Vidor and the company making "Wild Oranges," from the screen version of Joseph Hergesheimer's famous novel, arrived in San Francisco Thursday morning for a stay of a week. Owing to James Kirkwood's accident and the re-casting of Frank Mayo to take his role, much of the picture will be retaken. The sequences being made in San Francisco are mostly filmed on a yacht, and several days have been spent well out to sea, with some night scenes near the wharf. Besides Frank Mayo, Virginia Valli, June Elvidge, and Ford Sterling of the cast, some fifteen of the staff are here. Jas. Dugan is the assistant.

N. Dragomanovick, head of the West Coast Films, who have recently moved their offices from San Francisco to Los Angeles, is in town for a few days on business, connected with the organization.

Frank Burt and Earl Sibley, who have been doing business for more than a year under the name of the Exhibitors' Exchange, have re-incorporated their business as the Artcraft Production Company. They will continue at their offices, 716 Golden Gate building.

William Russell and Lew Wertheimer were guests at the St. Francis several days last week.

Jack Pickford, while in town for a few days last week en route from a northern location to Los Angeles, called up his wife, Marilyn Miller, in New York, and had a little chat with her. Of course, it cost him forty-eight dollars, but who cares about a little thing like that?

San Francisco's waterfront is growing more and more popular each week with the King Vidor company working on it; two more companies arrived also to shoot water stuff. The first arrival was a company from Truart with Jack Dillon directing, and a long list of stars, including Elaine Hammerstein, Wallace Beery, Jack Mulhall, Gardiner Cooper and others. Duke Lane at the camera. They are doing several days work on a ferry boat and other locations. The "Black Oxen" company also arrived on Monday, preceded on Saturday by Frank Lloyd himself and Harry Weil, who is production manager. They started work Monday morning on the docks, and will spend some little time in San Francisco, as many of the scenes of Gertrude Atherton's famous best seller are laid here. The cast includes Corinne Griffith, Conway Tearle, Harry Mestayer and many more names well known to the cinema world. While here Mr. Lloyd is also to hold conference with Mrs. Atherton on the filming of her novel.

The new Cameo Theatre was opened last Friday evening with an invitation performance of Harold Lloyd's comedy, "Why Worry," which is also the first attraction to be given to the public in the new house. The regular opening to the public in general took place on Saturday afternoon.

Many people in San Francisco are having their first chance to see one of their heroes of the screen in the flesh this week, since Eug O'Brien has opened at the Curren Theatre "Steve." Both Eugene and the play are ev thing that heart could desire, and among bright shining lights of his supporting cas that dear old lady of the stage, Mrs. Tho Whiffin, who is always a treat in herself.

After a few days' absence, Alice Lake again returned to San Francisco, and is guest at the Plaza Hotel.

S. Iverson Blake of the Fisher Produc office here leaves for New York this week take temporary charge of the new office of Mammoth Releasing Corporation, while Vic Fisher, the general manager, goes on the r to make arrangements for the release of "E mies of Children."

Al. Conn, who has written the titles for m of the Mae Murray pictures, and many ot screen successes, came to San Francisco week to title "Half-a-Dollar Bill," latest ture made by the Graf Productions.

Ruth Roland made a big hit last week headliner at the Golden State Theatre. I act of songs with a little speech is opened the showing of one reel, of bits from her da devil pictures, specially titled for the purp of bringing out all the thrills.

Louis Graf, president of the Graf Films J. Hesser Walraven, business manager of organization, returned from Los Angeles Tuesday after a short but very successful b iness trip.

CASTS OF THE WEEK

Buster Keaton Productions offer
BUSTER KEATON
in
"HOSPITALITY"
Directed by Jack Blystone.
Photographed by E. Lessley.
Story by Mitchell.
CAST:

Buster Keaton	Kitty Bradbury
Nathalie Keaton	Jean Dumas
Buster Keaton, Jr.	Ralph E. Bushman
Joe Keaton	Craig Ward
Joe Roberts	Jack Duffy

Warner Brothers
present
"DADDIES"
Directed by Wm. A. Seiter.
Photographed by John Stumar.
CAST:

Mae Marsh	Crawford Kent
Harry Meyers	Otto Hoffman
Claude Gillingwater	Muriel Francis Dana
Willard Lewis	Priscilla Dean Moran
Claire Adams	De Briac Twins
Georgia Woodthorpe	King Evers
Joyce Combe	Milla Davenport

Metro Pictures Corp.
present
"THE LIVING PAST"
Directed by Harold Shaw.
Photographed by Georges Rizard.
Story by Thos. Hopkins.
CAST:

Harrison Ford	Arline Pretty
Mary Alden	Alex Francis
Enid Bennett	D. R. O. Hatswell
Harry Northrup	Lorimer Johnston
William Humphrey

Creighton Hale, who recently completed a delightful characterization in Goldwyn's "Name the Man," directed by Victor Seastrom, is now under the direction of Ernst Libitsch, now in charge of Warner Brothers' "The Marriage Circle." Mr. Hale, who was born in Cork, Ireland, and the son of a brilliant actor-director, laid the foundation of his technique under Oscar Asche, one of London's leading directors and the most celebrated "Othello" the world has ever known.

CASTS OF THE WEEK

Frank Lloyd Productions
present
"BLACK OXEN"
Directed by Frank Lloyd.
Photographed by Norbert Brodin.
CAST:

Madam Zattiany	Corinne Griffi
The Clavering	Conway Tea
Janet Oglethorpe	Clara B
Dinwiddie	Thos. Ricke
Jane Oglethorpe	Kate Lest
James Oglethorpe	Harry Mestay
Prince Hohenhauer	Allan Ha
Dora Dwight	Clarissa Selwyn
Agnes Trevor	Claire MacDow
Ogden Butler	Percy Williar
Oglethorpe Butler	Fred Gambo
Judge Trent	Tom Gui

Renalles, Inc.,
present
"THE ELK'S TOOTH"
Frederick Bond, Director.
Clark Renalles, Supervising Director.
CAST:

Lileth Laudenback	Rosemary Thel
Bruce Kavanaugh	Peter Burk
Katerina McTuff	Kate Pric
Marie Masterman
Robert Masterman	Geo. McDani
Philip Laudenback	Fred DeSilv
Louis Ragout	David Dunba
Cy Joskins, J.P.	John Herdma
Nancy Joskins	Nancy Caswe
Lillian Courtleigh	Lillian Ha
Sandy McTuff	Ben Hymar
Morris Weingart
Mayor Courtleigh
Wong

Important Move Meets with General Approval

hat Hollywood will soon be the center of d ribution for motion pictures, is the predic- ti of officials of the new Hollywood corpo- r on known as United Producers and Distrib- u s, Incorporated. After many months of c ful planning, an organization has been per- f ed, national in its scope and complete in d il, for placing the pictures of independent p ducers in the hands of independent exhibit- o thus unifying the interests of the three f damental branches of the industry—produc- ti , distribution and exhibition.

nited Producers and Distributors, Incor- p ated, is a Hollywood institution, conceived ir he minds of Hollywood men and embracing a ng its officers, directors and stockholders n y of those most prominent in local busi- n s and finance, including names well known t he motion picture industry. Announcement o its plans has been withheld until it is now r dy to render actual service.

new building is being completed for the c pany at 1606-8 Highland Avenue, to be k wn as the U. P. D. Building. The entire s nd floor of this building will be used for e cutive offices of the company, when ready f occupancy the latter part of October. In t meantime, temporary offices have been o ned at 6812 Hollywood Boulevard. Included in he arrangement of the new building will be a odel projection room for private showings o films. Special provision has also been made f offices in the new building to accommodate b iness managers and personal representatives o producers whose pictures are being distrib- u by the U. P. D.

he activities of the new organization will t d to center the motion picture business thor- o hly and permanently in Hollywood, which i already the center of production. The or- g ization includes executive officers who will o ciate in Hollywood and a complete chain of personal representatives, not only in the key centers, but throughout the whole United States. Through this system, pictures will be presented and sold to exhibitors on a more effective and economical basis and at less cost to the producer than ever before in the history of motion pictures.

Prominent among the men interested in the new company are the following:

G. R. Ringo, president and director, a wealthy resident of Hollywood.

W. F. Wood, vice-president and general manager, identified with organization and sales promotion work in Hollywood from 1911 to date. He was formerly president of the Wood Electric and Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of stationary and automobile engines and racing automobiles. He is also experienced in editorial work and criticism of stage and picture productions. In 1914 he was one of the organizers of National Film Company and its first business manager. He served as vice-president and general manager of J. Warren Kerrigan Productions, Incorporated, for three years. This experience impressed him with the necessity of a new system of distribution for pictures and led to the formation of the new corporation.

R. E. Ellwood, secretary and director of sales, is a young man, formerly secretary and director of sales of Vesuvius Crucible Company of Pittsburgh. He retired from active business several years ago and has devoted his attention to personal investments.

Frederick G. Leonard, treasurer and director, has been a resident of Los Angeles and Hollywood thirty-five years. He is treasurer and director of Guaranty Building and Loan Association; vice-president and director of North American Bond and Mortgage Company; and owner of "Leonard's," Hollywood, nationally known among artists and art critics. He is a charter member (one of seven) of Los Angeles Music and Art Association, which proposes to erect a building at a cost of several million dollars, to be the nucleus of a music and art center for this city. He is also a director of Hollywood Business Men's Club. He is a member of Los Angeles Playground Department and president of the Board of Playground Commissioners. He is now serving his third term on the Playground Commission, having been appointed by three successive mayors.

C. J. Shepherd, director, is a financial authority known to banks and bankers throughout the entire Pacific Coast region.

Orville L. Routt, director, is a director of Guarantee Building and Loan Association and of North American Bond and Mortgage Company. He is president and owner of Plastoid Products and president Pioneer Lumber Company. He has been a resident of Hollywood many years.

C. R. Stuart, who will direct advertising and publicity for the U. P. D., is one of the best known men in this line on the Coast. He has international standing, especially in connection with financial advertising. He is a student, critic and all round enthusiast concerning motion pictures.

As stated by Vice-President and General Manager Wood, the main purpose of the organizers of the United Producers and Distributors, Incorporated, is to provide a means of bringing together in one efficient working unit, the interests of producer, distributor and exhibitor, and as a logical sequence, promoting the best interests of the motion picture public.

"Heretofore," said Wood, "the interests of producers and exhibitors have been considered only to a minor extent and those of the general public have been totally ignored. We propose to afford an opportunity for producers of live, clean, entertaining pictures to present those pictures to the public on a basis profitable to both producer and exhibitor and beneficial to the industry as a whole. We propose to assist in every way those producers who need our help in producing and selling pictures which meet our standard of intellectual appeal, entertainment and moral cleanness.

"I am convinced that more than nine-tenths of the American people are moral thinking people who prefer the finer, better things in pictures as in other phases of life. Statistics show that eighty per cent of motion picture audiences are composed of women and young people. It is generally stated and freely admitted that the motion picture screen is the greatest educational medium of today. Therefore, it is of prime importance that pictures be presented that are free from gross, offensive and immoral conceptions of sex appeal and incitation to crime of various sorts.

"Even a casual survey of literature," continued Wood, "shows that the books which have attained greatest popularity and those which have endured longest, have expressed high ideals of life, while dealing with life as it is. The same holds true of music, art and the drama. I believe the example we shall set will result in raising the general tone of the industry, making motion pictures more popular and advancing the interests of all engaged in the business."

In a recent trip throughout the country, Wood interviewed over three hundred people, mostly exhibitors, all of whom are in a position to know what the public demands and will support in the way of motion pictures. The result of these interviews was practically unanimous confirmation of the opinions held by the officers of the new corporation and the desirability of such a means of promoting higher standards and greater popularity in the presentation of pictures on the screen.

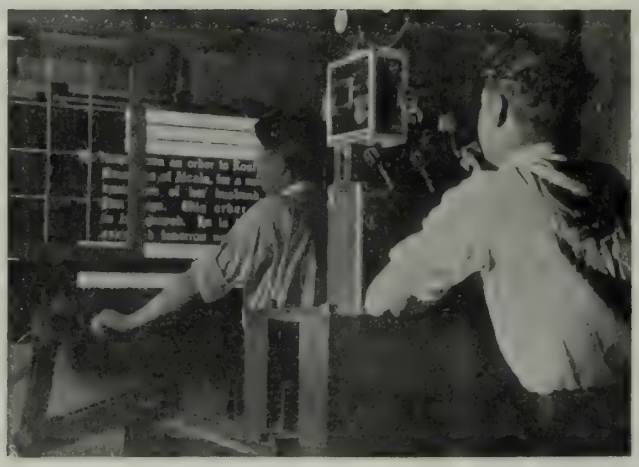
Jackie Morgan, Universal actor whose work "Chester" in the Andy Gump series has ced him among the child stars of today. Jackie is an old-time favorite to lovers of nedies, having worked in fifty-six consecu- e Century Comedies featuring Baby Peggy 1 Brownie, the dog wonder. In company h Joe Murphy (as Andy), and Fay Tincher s Min), he has been making personal ap- rances with the first showing of his picture Los Angeles.

Gene Hersholt, Goldwyn character actor, who will be seen in von Stroheim's "Greed," which has been adapted from "McTeague."

Mr. Hersholt is probably the best known portrayer of difficult character interpretations in the profession today, and many eyes are eagerly awaiting a treat, said to be in store for them, when his latest offering is previewed.

Recognition

Charles Chaplin in "A Woman of Paris"— Mary Pickford in "Rosita"— are using Thimmeway Transparency Titles—



Thimmeway Laboratory

Paul D. Hugon, General Manager

1123 Lillian Way, Hollywood—Holly 1696

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1923

Title Is Selected By Griffith—"America"

"America" is the title selected for D. W. Griffith's Revolutionary film, which he is preparing to make at the suggestion of the Daughters of the American Revolution. This is the first instance where a film has been requested directly by a public organization.

The title was selected after a poll of six universities, six grade schools, six clubs, and six sporting places where slang is most prevalent, including a prize-fighter's camp, a race track, a pool room, a dance hall and a boy's playground.

More than ninety per cent of the votes were for "America," with "The Spirit of Seventy-Six" a heavy second choice. Brevity, vividness and comprehension were the standards by which all the returns were judged.

The several hundred people who selected the title, have been invited to take parts in the big battle and other group scenes, of which there will be many, in the film.

NEW COMEDIAN ARRIVES

A new comedy star has made his appearance on screenland's horizon and all other funsters had best watch their step. Byron Shrader is his name and Spokane, Wash., his home. With his father a designer and his mother a well known concert singer in the east, it was but natural that Byron should early exhibit decided artistic ability. Starting as a cartoonist for the Spokesman-Review, young Shrader turned to the making of animated cartoons for the Alexander Film Co., the largest advertising motion picture company in the world. After working there a few years, he became interested in the designing of sets and art titles for the Palco Comedies. A position as assistant director followed, and then came his screen success as comedy star in the following plays: "Moonshine Madness," "Good Morning, Judge," and "Knock 'Em Cold."

AIMS TO BE LIKE DAD

Although by nature one of the most serious young chaps you would want to meet, King Evers, who recently placed his name on the dotted line at Warner Bros. for a part in "Daddies," has aspirations to be a comedy king. Possibly this is an inherited desire, since his father is one of the best known funsters on the silversheet.

Exhibitor Has a Clever Advertising Medium

An accident insurance policy issued with every ticket of admission; that was the stunt employed by the Hippodrome at York, Pa., during its engagement of the Harold Lloyd feature comedy, "Safety Last." The policy indemnified the holder in the sum of $50. The unusual practice of a theatre insuring every member of its audience against accident excited widespread and profitable comment. Despite the apparent financial risk assumed by the Hippodrome, its chance of sustaining any loss, under the plan followed, was practically nil.

In its formal and legal phases the document was a bona-fide policy, bearing the organizational inscription of the Maryland Casualty Company on its face, and was issued by a local bond insurance agency, which co-operated with the Hippodrome in staging the stunt. Nothing of the formal or legal elements, commonly associated with documents of this kind, was omitted that would lend an impressive note to the arrangement, even the signatures of the president and the secretary of the casualty company being duly recorded in their proper places in the document.

The policy was so drafted as to afford a maximum of publicity for the theatre and "Safety Last." The feature stipulation of the document was cleverly retained to the final clause, thereby augmenting the interest and suspense that the policy would naturally hold for its reader. The final clauses revealed the important contingencies upon which the payment of the indemnity depended. It was expressly stipulated at this point that "This policy is hereby limited to cover only the accidental cracking of a rib, directly and solely from laughter while viewing the cinema, Harold Lloyd, in 'Safety Last,' as above stated, anything herein to the contrary notwithstanding."

The Hippodrome completed its run without any casualties other than temporary attacks of incipient hysteria on the part of its woman patrons.

Another effective stunt designed exclusively for the ladies was the presentation to the woman patrons of the Hippodrome of a sealed envelope, across the face of which was printed, "Contents for Ladies Only." The enclosures comprised a safety pin, attached to a card on which appeared the advice, "Use This for Safety First When You Laugh and Roar at Harold Lloyd in 'Safety Last'" and a dainty handkerchief, which the feminine members of the audience were recommended to use in drying their tears of laughter.

Producers Cable Worsley An Offer

Literary fiction classics of France are to be transferred to the screen by a newly organized motion picture producing concern in Paris, according to Wallace Worsley, who filmed "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" for Universal and who recently received a cablegram from the Parisian film magnates inviting him to come to the French metropolis to head the directorial department of the concern.

It was through a suggestion made by M. Henri Feraud, representative of the new syndicate, who recently viewed the screen version of the Victor Hugo classic at its New York premiere, that Worsley was selected as the logical man to head the directorial staff of the French producing company. Worsley now has the proffered contract under consideration, together with two or three other flattering offers tendered by American producers.

"Les Miserables," which has been filmed in this country in the early days of the picture industry, will be the first subject to be picturized by the French syndicate. American actors will head the cast that will interpret Victor Hugo's great novel for the screen. They will be supported by some of France's most brilliant stage artists, according to the message received by Worsley, and it is anticipated that the initial production of the foreign concern will be distributed by one of the leading film marketing companies of the United States.

Worsley is undecided as to whether to accept the offer of the French syndicate or to remain in Los Angeles. In the meantime, he is reading a number of original stories with the idea of making his own productions here at some future date.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame," Worsley's greatest screen achievement, is now being given its premiere in New York, Boston and Pittsburgh simultaneously and the famed director is being fairly deluged with congratulatory letters from prominent citizens

Blanche Sweet Signs With Metro

Following her characterization of "Anna Christie" and on her first anniversary in films following an absence of several years, Blanche Sweet signed a contract with Metro to play the leading role in Alan Holubar's "The Human Mill."

It was just a year ago last Friday that the public saw Miss Sweet's first appearance on the screen after several years' absence due to illness, in "Quincy Adams Sawyer," a Metro film. Since her return to the screen Miss Sweet has portrayed a number of characters that stand out in film annals. Among the productions in which she has resumed her place in filmdom are "In the Palace of the King" for Goldwyn, "The Meanest Man in the World" for Lesser and "Anna Christie" for Ince.

"The Human Mill," in which Miss Sweet will play the lead under Mr. Holubar's direction, is an adaptation from John Trotwood Moore's "The Bishop of Cottontown." Eve Unsell is responsible for the scenario.

Mr. Holubar, accompanied by a company of fifteen, left recently for Nashville, Penn., where a number of exteriors will be staged. Upon his return Miss Sweet will again appear under the Metro banner.

The signing of the contract by Miss Sweet was made an occasion at the Metro studio, where all department heads welcomed her back to the fold and showered her with congratulations on her achievements since she reappeared in films under the Metro management. Joseph Engle, Milton Hoffman and other executives of Metro, together with a number of Metro stars, welcomed Miss Sweet back to the plant with a luncheon at the studio.

Bruno Is to Join Producers' Ranks

J. Anthony Bruno, popular Hollywood photographer, is about to enter the producing field and is at present organizing the "Bruno Productions," a company which has at the helm some prominent Italian business men of Los Angeles and Hollywood.

The company intends to make only high class feature pictures. Upon completion of organization plans the entire company will leave for Italy, where work will be started at once upon their first production, a beautiful Italian romance. The story was written by James Talbot Gibney, noted author, cinematographer and world-traveler, whose cinematographic experience has extended over a period of eleven years and in as many different countries. He will personally supervise the entire production.

Mr. Bruno, when interviewed at the offices of the "Bruno Productions," 6412 Hollywood Boulevard, stated that Mr. Joe Gonyea, who gained wide experience as production manager to the Paul Gerson Productions, the Dan Mason Productions, and others, had allied himself with the Bruno Productions in a similar capacity and that Reggie Morelli, who has just completed his work in the role of Robert Lincoln, son of the president, in "The Life of Abraham Lincoln," is being favorably considered for one of the leading roles.

While in Europe, the company will make a special trip to Egypt to make exteriors for their second feature, which it is planned will be one of the most remarkable stories ever filmed. The company will then return to America to cut, edit and release.

In view of the failure in the past of a number of so-called independent producing companies to make good their promises, Mr. Bruno states that his entire plans will bear the closest scrutiny and that he will ask for the endorsement of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations.

TURPIN TAKES POISON

Ben Turpin, zigzagged eyed comedian, startled the players on adjoining sets at the Mack Sennett studios recently, when they heard him yell at the top of his voice that he had taken poison and was dying. Irene Lentz, his leading woman, joined in with the crying actor and, wringing her hands, pleaded that someone rush help to the suffering comique.

Of course no one would admit when they returned to their work, that Ben had fooled them into believing he was actually in agony, preferring to say they had just come over to see him put his stuff across, in his new comedy special, "Ten Dollars or Ten Days," under Del Lord's direction.

Proposes a Studio Club For Men

Upon his return to California from New York in the near future, James Morrison, featured player in many recent film successes, is seriously contemplating heading a movement for the erection of a home for friendless boys and young men who come to Hollywood each year in search of employment at the picture studios.

The film capital already maintains a home for girls and young women who seek a place in the movie world, and as there are almost as many of the opposite sex invading Hollywood studios annually, Morrison believes that there is urgent need for such an institution as he proposes.

"Many people do not realize that the male sex are confronted with as many temptations, if not more, when they find themselves stranded, as are girls, and I sincerely hope that a way can be found to take care of the young men who are not fortunate in their effort to get into pictures and those who make an inadequate salary.

"Immediately upon my return to Hollywood, I hope to interest the producers and directors in a campaign for the erection and maintenance of a Studio Club for Men, and I am sure that every actor who has had the struggle that the average man has had, in his effort to get ahead in the cinema world, will back the project," said Morrison.

Morrison recently completed work in Vitagraph's production of "On the Banks of the Wabash," which was filmed in and about New York.

Star's Recovery Is Welcome News

James Kirkwood, Goldwyn player, who was severely injured four weeks ago when he was thrown from his horse in the Beverly Hills riding ring, left his bed for the first time last week. With his pretty wife, known professionally as Lila Lee, he visited the Goldwyn studios at Culver City.

At the time of his injury he was playing the leading role in King Vidor's "Wild Oranges." Because of the serious nature of his injury it was deemed advisable to place Frank Mayo in the part which Kirkwood had been playing. Physicians kept the fact from him, and it was not until yesterday that he learned another had been selected.

Kirkwood's rapid recovery is considered remarkable in medical circles. Very few persons have been known to recover from a basal fracture of the skull. It will be several weeks before the injured actor has regained his strength sufficiently to resume his work.

Max Graf, supervising director of the Graf Productions, is responsible for another dog-star-to-be. While his "Half-a-Dollar Bill" was under production at San Mateo, Mr. Graf, as he passed a corner in the heart of San Francisco, was attracted to the antics of a dog seated in a taxicab. With a pipe in its mouth, the dog, which belonged to the taxicab driver, went through a repertoire of Ernst Lubitsch, now in charge terested that he talked with the owner and placed the dog under contract for the picture. "Irish" is the name of the new screen "find," who came off with flying colors and was so brilliant at taking direction that the taxicab driver is now arranging his affairs and will come to Hollywood to enter the animal permanently in pictures, where he will be groomed for stardom.

Woods Will Edit Pickford Film

Frank E. Woods, the man who wrote the first motion picture continuity and who served for more than four years with D. W. Griffith as his chief editor and supervisor, has been engaged for the Jack Pickford Company to edit and supervise Jack's present production, "Valley of the Wolf," it has been announced at the Pickford-Fairbanks studios in Hollywood.

Woods, who is the head of the Associated Authors, Inc., has his own production, "Richard, the Lion Hearted" running in New York City at the present time. Between productions for Associated Authors, Woods found time to work on other productions and agreed to aid Jack on his story of the Kentucky highlands. After leaving the Griffith organization, Woods was with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation for five years as chief supervisor and editor. It is said in motion picture circles that more productions of quality were produced during Woods' regime than during any other time in the history of the studio.

The writer will be with the young star until the production is completely finished and ready for release through the Allied Distributors and Producers' Corporation.

Theodor von Eltz, looking through a trunkful of things that have just arrived from the East, came across the script of the Belasco production of "Tiger Rose" and the role of "Bruce Norton," opposite Lenore Ulric, which he doubtless would have played on the speaking stage, when the war interrupted. Mr. von Eltz played in the same role in the recently completed screen production of the Warner Brothers with Miss Ulric, star.

Waldorf Studio Is To Move Soon

Another Hollywood motion picture studio will move to larger quarters just as soon as a suitable location is definitely settled upon. This time it is the Waldorf Studios, located at Sunset Boulevard and Gower street, that has outgrown its housing accommodations, according to Harry Cohn, general manager and supervising director of the concern.

Among the three locations for the new Waldorf Studios now under consideration by the company officials is a large parcel of land between Universal City and the city of Lankershim and but a short distance from Lankershim Boulevard. This site is ideal for a studio, according to Cohn, because of its accessibility, native beauty and proximity to Hollywood. Also the territory surrounding the proposed studio location has been subdivided into homesites so that employes of the new plant would be enabled to secure a home at moderate cost within easy walking distance of their work.

Plans are now being drawn for the new studio buildings and the Spanish style of architecture will prevail. All of the buildings will be finished in waterproof stucco and the three mammoth stages which will house the various Waldorf units, will be inclosed.

Other buildings incorporated in present plans include a large laboratory, three separate dressing room bungalows, an administration building, a carpenter and electrical shop and a property plant. The total cost of construction will exceed $750,000, it is said.

The Waldorf Studios have long been producing motion picture feature productions for distribution through the offices of the C.B.C. Corporation, a large film exchange chain of which Harry Cohn, general manager of the Waldorf Studios, is an official. Some of the more recent releases of this concern are "Yesterday's Wife," "Forgive and Forget," an all-star special, and "The Marriage Market."

It is anticipated that negotiations will be concluded for the Lankershim property now under consideration within the next ten days and if the deal is made, construction will follow immediately.

TRAPPER ENTERS FILMS

Actors have been drawn from every profession in life—newspaper, literary, store and factory, but it was left to Reginald Burton to come from the life of a young trapper in the fastnesses of Canadian forests to stage sets and Kleig lights in Hollywood. His frank, open countenance and stick-to-it-iveness in making the daily rounds of the Hollywood studios obtained for him his first engagement with Lasky's "Stephen Steps Out," starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., shortly after his arrival.

Lillian Rescues a Comrade From the Water

Beautiful Lillian Rich, leading dy for the Strongheart com- ıny, is a real heroine as well as ing a reel heroine.

While the company, under the rection of Laurence Trimble, ere filming exterior scenes in e Canadian Rockies on the banks the Bow River for their latest ıotoplay, "The Love Master," iss Rich saved the cameraman om serious injury if not pos- ble death.

Director Trimble had just in- rmed Miss Rich that they uld not work on account of the w temperature making it im- ssible to operate the cameras. was then forty-six below zero. e decided to practice skiing.

Cameraman Glen Ganno, seeing r poised gracefully on a high em- nkment, asked her to "hold it r a still." To pose the picture the best advantage, it was nec- sary for him to go out on the e.

A sudden cold spell will always use a river, if frozen over, to cede. There sometimes remains t a thin crust of ice on the sur- ce. This happened to be the se.

So when Ganno stepped on the pposedly solid river, he broke rough and dropped into the cold shing waters underneath.

Miss Rich saw the accident and mediately lunged down the steep uff and out onto the river. uickly kicking off her skiis, she aced them across the hole in the e, making a bridge for Ganno to awl out upon.

The clever leading lady had done l of this before the other mem- rs of the company could reach e helpless man. Ganno was stily wrapped in warm blankets, t not soon enough. His clothes ere frozen stiff upon him, and he as unable to walk. Miss Rich gain came to the rescue. She se- red her dog team, Ganno was ted in, and then she drove the lf frozen man full speed to the rongheart camp, some five miles way.

"The little Virginia wonder" is hat they called the talented little tress, Lillian May, when she first w the light of day as a pound d one-half baby. The caliber of r screen work lately has been ch that the day is not far dis- nt when this particular phrase ill be applied to the charming tle blonde actress again. Al- ough only 14, she has been on e stage and screen since three ars of age. Her artistic por- ayal as the half sister of Lin- ln in "The Romance of Abra- am Lincoln" has thus far been e biggest opportunity she has had show the histrionic ability she herits from a talented mother.

New Face Scores In Cruze Film

America likes him.

Indeed, it is enthusiastically welcoming George K. Arthur, the young English actor, who makes his American film debut as Lem, in "Hollywood," as a new comedian—a type which promises great things.

Mr. Arthur is the idol of picture fans in England and the Continent, where he first flashed into favor in the title role of the film version of H. G. Wells' great novel, "Kipps." So thoroughly did the actor imbibe the spirit of his character that he won the sobriquet, "Kipps," from the admiring public.

Following a suggestion from Charles Chaplin, whom he met in London, that more opportunities lay in Hollywood, Mr. Arthur gave up his established European fame and came to California. The second day after his arrival in the movie capital, he was at work before the camera with Jack Gilbert, and before that picture was completed had been signed to play in James Cruze's production, "Hollywood." Since his success as the romantic Lem, the actor was selected by Carl Laemmle of Universal to star in twelve pictures directed by the famous cartoonist, Hy Mayer.

Arthur's career has been singularly entwined with Hollywood. Harold Shaw, brother-in-law of Viola Dana, directed his first three films with Edna Flugrath, Viola's sister, playing opposite. He also played the lead with Mae Marsh in her two English pictures.

His success is assured, for besides his ability as an actor, he is a jolly, likeable chap, who wins friends as easily as he wins film fans.

A Prominent Cast For Wilson's Offering

Featured in Mabel Forrest's first starring vehicle for Grand-Asher, "The Satin Girl," is Norman Kerry, whose record as a leading man and star in numerous productions is an enviable one.

Mr. Kerry played big roles in "The Hunchback," "Merry-Go-Round," "The Acquittal," etc., and not so long ago was in England making a picture. He is regarded as one of the best actors and finest appearing men on the screen.

In "The Satin Girl," which is by Adam Hull Shirk, adapted by Arthur Statter and Geo. Plympton, Kerry plays the part of a young physician and criminologist, who falls in love with the mysterious Lenore Vance, surrounding whom is a dark mystery which is solved at the end.

Marc MacDermott has a striking character role of an old recluse, chemist and scientist; Clarence Burton is a detective; Florence Lawrence—yes, the original Florence—is a young woman of romantic ideas and Reed House, recently added to the cast, is a youth with Sherlockian tendencies and hay fever. William H. Turner is a queer old miser and Kate Lester a society woman whose jewels are stolen early in the story.

Arthur Rosson is director and it is a Ben Wilson production.

Von Stroheim and Cast Fight Fires

That Erich von Stroheim and his company may stop fighting forest fires and continue with picture making within the next few days is the message just received at the Goldwyn studios from the company, which is on location at Colfax, California.

The wire states:

"Men are working two shifts fighting fires. Marshall called for more men for both shifts and many worked for two shifts without sleep. Eva Bassette, only woman who went to Death Valley with company volunteered services and helped fight fires until she collapsed, then watched all night from top of mountain to warn camp in case fire advanced more rapidly into danger ground."

Marshall sent messages to inform von Stroheim he thought all men had fire under control and unless wind changed would be out of danger tomorrow. If this is true it means saving of many miles of forest fires and also company camp at Big Dipper mine, where we are due to work.

"Von Stroheim and company thought this location would be wel come relief after Death Valley trip, but stepped into more grief."

Von Stroheim took his company to the Big Dipper mine to make final scenes for "Greed," his screen version of Frank Norris' celebrated novel of San Francisco, "McTeague."

Jackie Outwits His Fond Tutor

The ingenious tales concocted by a youth of the tender age of eight years when seeking to evade his lessons are well-known to every household possessing a boy of that age. While Jackie Coogan is endowed with a particular genius in the art of pantomime, he is no different from other normal, healthy boys of his age in respect to playing "hookey" and consequently he is the bane of his tutor's existence.

When Jackie feels the urge to go swimming he can put over a selling talk which is as logical and plausible as one coming from a person three times his age. An amusing incident in this connection occurred during the filming of his new picture, "Long Live the King." On that particular day Jackie had convinced his tutor that he should have an extra day of vacation that week, and went to the studios jubilant over the fact that reading, writing and 'rithmetic were taboo, at least for another twenty-four hours. When the starlet reached his set he found, much to his surprise, a schoolroom sequence ready for filming and thought of course he was being "framed." Ever ready to meet the most intricate situations, he addressed his director and tutor: "Here's a proposition for you! Let's use my regular lessons in this scene and then I can have tomorrow instead of today off." So Jackie put his pantomimic talents into play and killed the two proverbial birds with one stone, and the next day went swimming.

LLOYD TURNS ACTOR

When the script for "Black Oxen," which he is making as his independent production, required a Packard car with Clara Bow and six youthful merrymakers in it, to crash into a taxicab carrying Conway Tearle, Frank Lloyd, producer-director, to make sure that the scene possessed the greatest possible thrill when it was filmed, donned a chauffeur's cap and coat and drove the Packard into the scene at forty miles an hour himself.

The cross-roads had been carefully prepared with crude oil, liquid soap and water, previously, and when Mr. Lloyd and the taxicab driver attempted to pass each other, both cars skidded, the taxicab crashing into a street light and breaking it off clean, the Packard, after making a complete circle, bumped into some planks that were a safeguard in front of a street excavation eight feet deep and six feet wide.

Outside of a badly sprained wrist suffered by Mr. Lloyd when it took all of his strength to keep the big Packard from toppling over, no one was hurt, and the scene registered above expectations.

Popular Actor Returns to Metro

Milton Sills, recognized as one of the screen's leading portrayers of virile roles, is renewing a friendship of three years' standing as he appears opposite Viola Dana in "Angel Face Molly," Tom J. Hopkins' adaptation of Fred Kennedy Myton's story which Oscar Apfel will direct.

Mr. Sills played the leading male role in the little star's "Dangerous to Men" three years ago. Since that time he has enhanced his standing as a motion picture actor by virtue of his work in "The Spoilers," "Adam's Rib," "Behold My Wife" "The Isle of Lost Ships," "Skin Deep," "The Great Moment," and "The Forgotten Law." Mr. Sills recently completed an engagement in Maurice Tourneur's "Jealous Fools."

The signing of Milton Sills as one of the players of "Angel Face Molly" is in continuance of the policy outlined some time ago by Milton E. Hoffman, Metro production manager, of surrounding Miss Dana with casts of all-star caliber.

Efforts have been made at various times since Mr. Sills appeared opposite the tiny Metro player in "Dangerous to Men" to cast them together in another picture, but until the present instance, prior engagements, stories lacking a suitable role for Mr. Sills or other difficulties have interfered.

Floyce Brown, well known funster, recently completed a four weeks' engagement with the Vitagraph Company in producing the "Man From Brodney's." Miss Brown has played over 100 different characterizations since entering pictures and was the first screen mother of the child star, Mickey McBann.

Al St. John moved from comedy to tragedy so fast the other day that he brought tears of terror to the eyes of a sixteen-year-old boy.

The youngster saw St. John's huge car outside the Fox studio. The temptation to joyride was too great. He just couldn't resist. He took it. St. John missed the car and was telephoning the police when a phone call to him said the car was parked in front of a well known Hollywood cafe and occupied by a youngster.

"Grab him," was the word that went back over the phone. Then St. John and several of the men from the studio rushed to where the siezed youth was trying to explain that it was just a prank.

St. John simulated rage and desire for vengeance to such a perfect degree that the youngster cried as he visioned a long jail term. When the scare had gone far enough he was turned loose and admonished not to joyride in any more cars.

Schertzinger Has Very Busy Season

The motion picture industry has often been referred to as "a beehive of activity."

Such being the case, Victor Schertzinger may certainly be said to be one of the busiest little bees therein.

During the past twelve months, Mr. Schertzinger has to his credit the following accomplishments:

He wrote the music score for "Robin Hood." "Just an Old Love Song," one of the original compositions of this score, has since been published individually. More than a million copies of this number have been sold and it has been recorded by eight phonograph companies.

He directed four productions for B. P. Schulberg.

He wrote "Marcheta" and "Adoley," the former being one of the biggest of recent hits and the latter, a new offering, promising to equal it.

He directed "The Man Next Door" for Vitagraph.

He wrote two original violin compositions which are being included in the concert programs of Kreisler and Heifitz.

He wrote, directed and produced "The Kingdom Within" and "Dollar Devils."

He wrote the music score for "Ashes of Vengeance" the spectacular new Norma Talmadge feature.

He wrote three original stories for the screen, two of which he directed himself and one of which is to serve as a vehicle for one of the best known stars on the screen.

He composed the music score for Fred Niblo's screen production of "Captain Applejack," which is released by Metro as "Strangers of the Night."

He wrote a farce comedy called "Suite 16," which is to be produced on Broadway this season.

He arranged the music score for "The Isle of Vanishing Men," which is the first travel feature to be presented with such a special accompaniment.

And he has recently finished directing Jackie Coogan in "Long Live the King," Jackie's biggest production and his first for Metro. During the filming of "Long Live the King," Mr. Schertzinger wrote several original themes which were played by the studio orchestra and will be woven into the music score he is now completing.

First National Is to Release Output

Associated First National Pictures, Inc., is to distribute the film output of Principal Pictures Corporation.

The productions to reach the screen through this medium include "The Meanest Man in the World," George M. Cohan's famous stage success and the first of the Harold Bell Wright features, "When a Man's a Man."

"The Meanest Man in the World," which was made at the United Studios, under the direction of Eddie Cline, boasts an all-star cast, headed by Bert Lytell, Blanche Sweet, Bryant Washburn and a dozen other players of note.

"When a Man's a Man" is one of Harold Bell Wright's most popular stories of the great outdoors. Its unusually talented cast includes John Bowers, Marguerite de la Motte and Robert Frazer.

With the completion of these distributing arrangements Sol Lesser, president of Principal Pictures, leaves for Europe to confer with First National executives relative to foreign plans; Mike Rosenberg, secretary, came to Los Angeles, to start immediately on the first Baby Peggy production with the termination of her Universal contract, and Irving M. Lesser, vice-president, remained in New York to look after Eastern interests.

Naida Carle has been cast to play Fancy Kate, an important part in Wm. S. Hart's "Wild Bill Hickok," at the Lasky studio.

Returns From a European Trip

Denison Clift, the former Lasky scenario writer and Fox director, who left California three years ago for a world tour, and who stopped over in London to achieve great fame as England's premier director, will return to Hollywood in November.

"A Woman of No Importance," "A Bill of Divorcement" and "This Freedom," purchased by William Fox for $100,000, are a few of Clift's European achievements. He has just completed a lavish production of "Mary, Queen of Scots," and has spent months in France and in Scotland, using the Chateau of Chantilly, historic Stirling Castle, Edinburgh Castle, Hollywood Palace, Bamburgh, Allington and Farnham Castles, Loch Leven and Fotheringay as backgrounds for historic dramatic action. This picture is the most ambitious ever made in England, and London critics hail it as an epoch-making success.

Clift also won distinction by being chosen by King George to photograph Princess Mary's wedding presents in St. James' Palace, London, upon the only occasion that a cinema camera was ever allowed within the domain of the Royal Palace. The film was shown throughout the world.

Mr. Clift leaves London September 27th for Paris, Vienna, Venice and Athens, and will travel by way of Egypt, Palestine, India, China and Japan to California, thus completing his tour of the world.

Independents Are Making Rapid Strides

A short time ago in an editorial in this paper it was declared that "the day of the independent producer is at hand," and after viewing "Let's Go," a Hercules Film Co. offering, one can easily see the truth in this statement.

The Hercules Film Co., a producing unit of local business men, started work on this five-reel comedy drama, starring Jack Pollo, the well-known athlete and nominee of the Olympic Roman squad for 1924, and capably supported by Eva Novak, Joe Girard, Dick Sutherland, Milburn Morante and Billy Elmer.

It is a very fast, clean-cut story, dealing with the regeneration of a weakling, more from the physical aspect than the moral, and this characterization is capably handled by Pollo. Joe Girard as the Uncle who brought about the change is a tower of strength, while Eva Novak makes a very pretty heroine and the little she has to do is done satisfactorily. Dick Sutherland as the "boss" crook, and Billy Elmer as the pugilist, carry the heavy parts in their own decisive manner, while Milburn Morante furnishes the comedy relief and gives a performance that equals any of the cast. "Let's Go" is a clever, clean picture of which Director Jack Nelson got the utmost. The title writer (no screen credit) deserves a lot of credit, while the photography by McManigal was all that could be desired.

Such pictures as this offering will find plenty of support from the independent exhibitor.

GOTHAM-WARD FOR YEARS IN VAIN

Ever since he made his propitious debut in motion pictures some eight years ago, Lloyd Hughes has yearned to pay New York City the first visit of his young life, and, at least a dozen times, he has been "all set" to board a train bound for that great metropolis, but, invariably, a picture engagement has interfered with his plans at the last moment.

Last spring Mr. Hughes was sure he would have the opportunity of setting foot on Gotham soil and when he failed then, he was more sure than ever he would be able to arrange the trip during the summer. Now summer is gone again and there is no chance of his getting away from his Hollywood studio activities long enough to undertake the journey this fall, nor is there much prospect during the forthcoming winter months, due to a great advance demand for his services as leading man in leading screen productions.

"Anyway, I am practically sure I will be able to make it there before the next total eclipse," Mr Hughes remarks hopefully.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

OACH BACK TO COMEDY

Bert Roach is working on a medy at Universal under the dition of Wm. Watson, who is sisted by Wm. Holland. Bert supported by a capable cast, nich includes Brenda Lane, the egfield Follies beauty. This is e first comedy Roach has made r some time, as his services were eded in feature dramatic productions.

Chester Bennett announces he ll use only big human stories th society backgrounds for Jane ovak's new series of fine star- ng vehicles.

Fred Esmelton raced through an lish peasant village in a "flivver," tired in evening clothes, in hnny Hines' "Conductor 1492" r Warner Bros.

Ralph Lewis will play the feared role in an all-star production, the title of which has not en announced, before he stars in other commercial hero feature, follow "The Mail Man."

Spottiswoode Aitken has a big el scene with swords aboard a ip in "Superstition," directed by hn B. O'Brien.

Irvin Reiss has been appointed nematographer for Renalles, c., and will have complete charge that department.

Frank Whitson has signed a ntract with the Premium Picre Corporation, of Portland, regon, to play featured heavies, d has left for Portland.

Montreal Lodge No. 56, B.P.O. lks, have entered into the contest find a girl suitable to play the ular lead in Renalles, Inc., big ature production, "The Elk's ooth."

NEGRI STARTS

Production work on "My Man," e Herbert Brenon production, arring Pola Negri, will start at ce at Paramount's West Coast udio. Scheduled to start September 17, the picture was delayed y last minute changes in some f the minor characters of the ory.

Eve Unsoll wrote the screen ersion of "My Man," by Andre icard, author of "Kiki."

NE DIVORCE, TWENTY CENTS

Rupert Hughes, who recently mpleted filming the Goldwyn eature, "Law Against Law," hich deals with the divorce prob- m, discovered during his research ork while writing the story, that divorce in Russia costs twenty nts.

MANY BRIGHT NAMES

For the filming of his first production for the Warner Brothers, Ernst Lubitsch, the famous European director, has selected an all-star cast to interpret the roles in "The Marriage Circle." The leading feminine roles are played by Florence Vidor and Marie Prevost, with a supporting cast which includes Adolph Menjou, Warner Baxter, Creighton Hale, and Harry Myers.

JASMINE TELLS ONE

Arthur Jasmine, who plays one of the leading roles in "The Man Who Forgave," the R. William Neill production for Grand-Asher, was telling tales to various members of the cast at the studio between scenes.

"Did you ever hear of the actor who wished to gain admittance to Heaven?" asked Jasmine.

"But actors never go to Heaven," replied Mildred Harris.

"Well, to get along with the story, one of Hollywood's little-thought-of screen actors was applying to St. Peter for admittance in Heaven. St. Peter asks of him, 'And what were you on earth, my man?'"

"'Oh, just a movie actor,' replied the down-trodden Thespian.

"'Well, come back in a week or ten days,' said the good St. Peter."

FUNSTER FINISHES

Milborne Morante has just finished a comedy character in the Hercules Film Company's production, featuring Eva Novak, supported by an all-star cast.

Nelson McDowell, popular character actor, is back on the Metro lot again, having been signed to enact a role in "Angel Face Molly," starring Viola Dana, which will be filmed under the direction of Oscar Apfel. McDowell is one of our most consistent workers.

While enacting a scene aboard the big three-masted schooner, the "Swallow," for "Supersition," Spottiswoode Aitken was painfully bitten on the ear by Martha Marshall's pet Cuban parrot. Aitken was supposed to grab Miss Marshall at the word of Director John B. O'Brien, when the scene started, but her parrot objected; hence the "bite" that kept Aitken from having any close-ups made for several days, owing to the bandage.

The Darrell-Mounier Productions, Culver City, have completed their five-reel picture entitled, "Betsy Ann." The story features a very much battered auto, around which is woven a love story. The company recently returned from Lake Arrowhead, where a number of scenes were taken.

FLYNN WORKS IN EAST

With Claire Windsor, Lew Cody, Edmund Lowe, Mae Busch and Raymond Griffith now in New York, Emmett Flynn, the Goldwyn director, is expected to start work immediately on the film version of Owen Davis' stage play, "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model."

Hobart Bosworth and Will Walling also have been assigned parts in the feature, but will not make the trip to New York. Interiors for the production will be filmed at the Goldwyn studios in Culver City when the director and principals of the company return from the east.

"SCOOP" GETS ASSISTANCE

The latest addition to William S. Hart's staff at Lasky's is Robert E. Hewes, who becomes assistant to "Scoop" Conlon, director of publicity. Hewes, who is well known as a fiction and scenario writer, was formerly with Rupert Hughes' staff at the Goldwyn studios.

BACK FROM VACATION

Ralph Cummins, author of screen and magazine Westerns, packed his trusty typewriter and took himself up to Wheeler's Hot Springs to spend the week-end rusticating and finishing a story. But the lure of trout fishing was too tempting and a tired writer is now working overtime in his home bungalow.

EXCUSE

Through an error in last week's "Casts of the Week," Phil Dunbar was given credit due David Dunbar.

Harry DeVere has returned to the General Hospital for further treatment after having been discharged only recently following his ,severe illness. Tough luck Harry, but the concensus of opinion (whatever that is) of your many friends is to the effect that the last time you were too ambitious. Better take it easy this time and stick it out until the Doc says O.K.

Gene Klum, who recently finished playing the part of one of the McCoys in Jack Pickford's forthcoming picture, "Valley of the Wolf," is now enacting the role of a gangster in Jack McDermott's "Temporary Marriage," which is being filmed for First National at the United Studios.

Buck Black has just finished an important child part in Buck Jones picture "Big Dan," at the Fox Studios.

Little Buck recently played a similar part with the Hoffman Productions at the Hollywood Studio.

Louise Fazenda is reaping the rewards, dear to an artist, in the splendid tributes unanimously accorded to her by the New York press upon her work in the Warner Brothers' "The Gold Diggers," in which she played the role created on the speaking stage by Jobyna Howland. Her brilliant pantomimic art receives the highest praise, all the critics agreeing that her work is of stellar scope.

The Darrell-Mounier Productions Company are proud of the fact that the company consists of one hundred per cent ex-service men. Bob Ramsay, the leading man, served with the New Zealand forces, the production manager with the American army, the technical director and the chief carpenter served in the Canadian army, and the remainder of the staff were in different branches of the United States army.

BE YOURSELF, EDWARD

Edward Burns, who plays a leading part in "Superstition," was talking to several members of the cast on present-day music. The conversation became general when Burns said that music was on the uplift, even though the popular air of the day was "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

"Why, even I write music," commented Burns. "I have written songs for opera and musical comedy stars, for Mary Garden, Tettrazini, Sophie Tucker, and many others.

"They never sing them, but I write them, just the same."

WOOD WILL CAST SOON

Sam Wood, producer of Paramount pictures bearing his name, will soon return to Paramount's West Coast studio to begin work at once on his forthcoming production, "The Next Corner."

No cast has been definitely selected as yet for this production. Wood recently completed the filming of Arthur Train's popular story, "His Children's Children," at Paramount's Eastern studio.

Silversheet Found More Alluring Than Big Tent

The fascination of the circus has found a very noteworthy competitor in the silversheet. So says William Duncan, former circus acrobat and vaudeville performer who came to town some time last Fall with the big tent and lingered on. In fact, Duncan says he expects to linger amongst us for the balance of his life. The fact that he is a swimmer, dancer, fencer, acrobat and one time prizefighter, coupled with his stage experience should make him a welcome addition to the film colony. Duncan has appeared both on the Keith and Orpheum circuits.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

TRY THIS ONE

Motion picture makeup as a protection against mosquitoes is the latest discovery.

Edward Martindel, on a week-end fishing trip, found himself beset with the little pests and had no way of evading them. In despair, he put on a regular screen makeup, unusually heavy, and was bothered no more on the trip.

Ray Connell, who for the past nine months has been assistant to Laurence Trimble, who directs Strongheart the wonder dog, has been engaged as assistant production manager by First National and has left Trimble-Murfin Productions to take up his new duties.

Residents on Havenhurst Drive in fashionable Hollywood were given a real thrill the other day when what looked like a giant wolf came loping down the street. Women and children fled to their houses while some of the more agile took to friendly trees.

But the "wolf" kept right on loping—looking neither to the left or right. There were frantic 'phone calls for the police and fire department, but when a detail of officers in a screeching auto reached the scene, it was too late.

The "wolf"—"the largest wolf they had ever seen"—had already been captured. He had loped right into the arms of his owner, Laurence Trimble, at the Crescent laboratories, a few blocks distant. It was Ali von Felsenmer, half-brother to the wonder dog, Strongheart. He had been let out for a little exercise and had decided to visit his owner at the laboratories.

Say Yes, a beautiful young Arab which Director Laurence Trimble is training for a horse picture at some later date, together with Dutch Lady, daughter of the famous racer, Deutchland, will be shipped from Reno, Nevada, in a short time to the Strongheart ranch recently purchased by Trimble in the San Fernando Valley. Trimble wishes to have Say Yes, son of Sey Yid, where he can work with him daily.

An elaborate cafe set, the most pretentious yet used in the "Fighting Blood" pictures now being produced at the Powers studio, has just been completed for use in the seventh story, to be known as "A Comedy of Terrors." The greater part of the action of the story takes place in this setting, so the studio technical department received insructions to "fix it up right," without paying so much attention to the expense account.

The romance of George O'Hara and Louise Lorraine, who play the leading roles, progresses apace in this "round" of the series.

CO-OPERATES ON SET SUCCESSFULLY

Disproving traditions is a regular accomplishment with Winifred Dunn, scenario editor at Metro's Hollywood studios. For some time, now, she has been the youngest writer of either sex to hold so important a post at any of the leading film studios; and she has also enjoyed a reputation as one of the busiest. Now she comes forward shattering another well-honored tradition in motion picture circles: the writer shall be barred from the set.

Film history relates the sad experience of a number of prominent authors and scenario writers who have tried to collaborate with the director who is actually filming their brain-children. Somehow or other, it never seems to work out to anybody's satisfaction. That is, it never has worked out successfully before—but here is Winifred Dunn working with Director Victor Schertzinger right on the stage where he is filming his own story, "The Man Whom Life Passed By," which Miss Dunn adapted to the screen—and both of them are pleased with the collaboration. It is fairly astounding, for such a successful collaboration has heretofore been like the inlander's remark when he saw his first giraffe: "There ain't no such animal."

Mary Masales left for the east Friday, to enjoy a well earned rest with her parents and friends. Miss Masales has been sojourning in California for more than a year and while here, has played bits in some of the years greatest productions. She has been the inspiration of several pleasant parties among her friends and being an expert horsewoman, has found the bridle paths around So. California exceedingly delightful. She will return by way of the Panama Canal.

Six mothers at 10 years of age. Such is the accomplishment of a freckle faced youngster, answering to the name of Julia Brown. Julia doesn't wear them out but merely adopts and discards as screen stories dictate. Thus far the role call stands as follows: Alberta Leigh, Florence Lee, Mrs. Titus, Mrs. Madge Hunt, Fay Tincher and Lydia Knott.

Julia is a little English girl who isn't strong on looks but long on acting. Her past film associations speak for themselves, having appeared with Reginald Denny in "The Abysmal Brute," Bebe Daniels in "You Never Can Tell," Madge Bellamy in Rupert Hughes play "Law Against Law," and in "The Woman Thou Gavest Me."

H. E. Edington, business manager of the Goldwyn studios, is in New York on business.

SPLENDID HORSEMANSHIP SAVES LIFE OF COLIN CHASE

Only the splendid horsemanship of Colin Chase saved his life when two other horsemen collided with the Arabian steed on which he was riding while impersonating a young sheik on the desert near Guadaloupe recently in the filming of "The Light that Failed." It was in a big mob scene depicting the encounter of the British soldiers and the Indians that two other horsemen collided with the well-known actor almost unseating him through the terrific force of the encounter. If Chase had not been a good athlete as well as a horseman he would have been crushed between the two horses and riders but as it was fortunately escaped with only a badly mauled leg. The other riders were both unseated in the fray.

This is the second time within the course of a few weeks that Chase has worked in desert scenes at Guadaloupe, the former time he took up his residence there it was with De Mille in the "The Commandments."

Chase will be remembered for his splendid work as leading man to such well-known stars as Lenore Ulric, Mary Miles Minter, Vivian Martin and Gladys Brockwell.

ACROBATS LEAD YOUNG-.... STER TO STARDOM

From acrobat to a screen star tells the story of the phenomenal success of one of screenland's youngest favorites—Frankie Darro at present making his feature film, "Half a Dollar Bill," a Max Graf production at the San Mateo studios.

Although he is only six years of age, Frankie appeared on the vaudeville stage since he was able to walk as his parents were internationally known acrobats. When he was still too young to work with them, the tremendous applause that greeted him when he appeared on the stage following the close of his parents performance induced his father to train the youngsters as soon as he was able to understand orders. Inheriting a naturally vivacious temperament from French ancestors, coupled with an early developed alertness of mind through acrobatic work, Frankie soon became the star attraction of the trio. It was while appearing on a local stage that a producer seeing Frankie induced him to forsake the legitimate for the silent drama. As he screened well, friends predicted a brilliant future for him on the silver sheet. They were not mistaken. One of his first successes was in Palmer's much talked of initial production "Children of the Storm." Other engagements of larger magnitude followed as his talent became recognized finally leading to stardom in his present

FORMER INGENUE RETURNS TO SILVERSHEET

On again, off again. This phrase might be truly be applied to the charming young actress, Mary Ruby, who three years ago was featured with such well-known actors as Myrtle Stedman and William Farnum, until she took a fling at matrimony and believed that it had made her immune to the lure of the silversheet forever afterwards. Although a charming little Mary came in the course of time to grace the new home, the young mother found that the yearning for the Klieg light was not killed, but only temporarily overshadowed by the greater light of happiness of a wife and mother. Thus she returned to the screen in Viola Dana's picture "The Girl Who Dared," and says she came back to stay.

Youngster Has Screen Record

Although only six years of age, Baby Jean Johnston has played with practically every well-known star of filmland. She came from San Francisco on advice of the directors of the Belasco studios and since her arrival has established an enviable record for one so young. She has played with Pola Negri in "The Cheat," Anita Stewart in "The Love Piker," Norma Talmadge in "Rose of All the World," Lloyd Hughes, in "Children of the Dust," Lew Cody, in "Law Against Law," and Andree Lafayette, in "Trilby." Besides her film work little Jean finds time to act as model and take dancing and swimming lessons.

FIRST LOVE ENSLAVES YOUNG SCREEN ACTOR

True to his first love. That is what the friends of Yale Boss are saying about him these days with his re-entry into screenland after a lapse of five years which he spent on Wall street.

In the early days of the film industry, Yale played opposite such well-known screen celebrities as Viola Dana, Mary Fuller and Gladys Hulette, when the Edison Company was in its glory. Since his return to the camera, Boss has played in "Vanity Fair" and Rupert Hughes "Souls for Sale."

WILLAT BACK

Irvin Willat, who will direct the next Zane Grey production, "The Heritage of the Desert," returned from an extensive location hunting expedition into Utah, where it is planned to film this Paramount picture.

Bebe Daniels, Ernest Torrance and Noah Beery have been named as featured members of this cast. Walter McGrail is the latest addition announced by Jesse L. Lasky.

play "Half a Dollar Bill."

Flowing Gold" Will Cast Soon

Richard Walton Tully will fol- w "Trilby" with a screen adap- tion of Rex Beach's most re- nt sensational novel, "Flowing old," to be distributed by Asso- ated First National Pictures, c. The motion picture rights this great story have been pur- ased by Tully at a record price d production will start soon.

"Flowing Gold" will be the first ully production for the screen t of a foreign atmosphere. he Masquerader" was an Eng- h drama; "Omar, the Tent- aker," a Persian romance; Trilby," a love story of the arisian Latin quarter.

Due in part to the sensational ccess of his most recent produc- n, "Trilby," after a conference th First National officials, it as decided that henceforth Tully ould enter upon a schedule of ntinuous production for that stributing organization. The st offering, "Flowing Gold," ill be followed immediately by ully's famous stage success, "The rd of Paradise." Preparations r the filming of the latter are ported under way.

When consulted today. Mr. ully was extremely happy over s prospects.

"It was only after I had read proximately three hundred ays and books," he said, "that I me upon 'Flowing Gold,' and mediately recognized it as the ry story I was in search of. ith his customary power, Beach s interwoven tense drama, de- ious comedy and most excellent aracterizations into what I con- der a real epic, and one of the ry best novels of the decade.

"I consider it a great privilege," continued, "to be permitted to oduce it for the screen. I in- nd to give it as painstaking and curate a production as possible, d believe I am safe in stating at 'Flowing Gold' will be ac- pted by the public with the same thusiasm they have so kindly ven my most recent offering, Trilby."

No choice of players for the st of the new production has yet en made, but actual "shooting" ill begin within two or three eeks. Tully will write the sce- rio, as for his previous plays.

DOUG, JR., EDITING

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is hav- g his first experience in watch- g the cutting and titling of a otion picture in which he is arred. "Stephen Steps Out," the irteen-year-old star's initial reen venture which Joseph enabery directed, is now in the tting rooms undergoing the ual editing. The story was lapted from Richard Harding avis' "The Grand Cross of the rescent," by Elfrid Bingham. alph Block serves as production litor.

Heavy Character is Much in Demand

George Siegmann's earliest efforts can be traced back to the old Biograph days, before such prominent lights as Mary Pickford, James Kirkwood, Arthur Johnson, Henry B. Walthall, Mack Sennett and many others made their screen debut.

Today Siegmann can probably lay claim to more leading roles in so-called super-productions than any other leading character man on the screen. Beginning with his remarkable portrayal of the mulatto, Lieut. Gov. Lynch, in "The Birth of a Nation," he has somehow attracted towards himself big parts in the very biggest productions.

Cyrus, the Persian King in Griffith's "Intolerance," was relived by George Siegmann, and then followed the role of the hated Von Strohm in "Hearts of the World." Douglas Fairbanks saw in him the re-incarnation of Perthes in "The Three Musketeers," which resulted in a consummate performance, breathing the very spirit of Dumas' redoubtable guardsmen.

In close order came the roles of Saginaw in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court"; the brutal Bill Sykes in Jackie Coogan's "Oliver Twist"; and Schani Huber in "Merry-Go-Round," which recently attracted the attention of theatregoers locally.

The role that is said to give George Siegmann his greatest opportunity is one in which he has just finished, the part of Danten, in Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche."

Carew Selecting a Cast to Go Abroad

Edwin Carewe, producer-director for Associated First National, will soon sail from New York for Algiers to film "A Son of the Sahara," from the novel of Louise Gerard. Carewe just recently completed "The Bad Man" for First National.

He will be accompanied by Finis Fox, his brother, and Adelaide Heilbron, who will prepare the scenario.

Carewe is now selecting a cast, which will exceed in calibre any of the previous all-star casts he has used. The players leave November 1st with the technical corps. Wallace Fox, assistant director, will be in charge. Sol Polito is chief cameraman, with James Casey as assistant.

Headquarters are to be made at Biskra, Algiers, a city located on the border of the great Sahara, and the place from which the railroad penetrates the farthest into the desert. The company, numbering thirty, will be abroad two months.

For several weeks Carewe has been in conference with Captain Corlett, resident of Algiers for twenty-five years. Corlett will go with the expedition as technical advisor. Arrangements have already been made whereby 1,000 camels and 2,500 Arabian horses can be obtained for the desert battle scenes.

Only the leading actors will be taken along. Players for the smaller parts will be picked up in the principal cities of Europe. A carload of lighting equipment is now heading eastward.

Monte Clare the eleven-year-old actor, has been an artist's model for three days, during his rest between pictures. Bartholomew Maka, a Hungarian artist, has painted Monte's picture as an "Italian Waif." Monte, who is a live wire, says it was too slow work for him. He likes his screen work much better.

Helene Abandons Screen Work Shortly

Helene Chadwick popular Goldwyn star, is to retire from the screen.

Upon conclusion of her present contract with Goldwyn, Miss Chadwick will forsake her movie career to become a Los Angeles realtor.

Miss Chadwick has dabbled in real estate with such success that she has decided the earnings of even a movie star are as nothing compared with what can be achieved in Los Angeles real estate promotion.

Various women have become leading factors in Los Angeles real estate circles, it is pointed out by Miss Chadwick. The actress believes that with her business training acquired prior to the time she entered films, plus her recent experience in local real estate deals, she will be able to make a place for herself in her new work.

"I believe that the real estate business in Los Angeles and Hollywood offers the greatest opportunities available to anyone in Southern California," said Miss Chadwick, in discussing the matter. "While a motion picture career is fascinating, I believe that there are greater opportunities in the realty business here."

Miss Chadwick has been appearing under the Goldwyn banner for a number of years with marked success. She has been particularly successful in Rupert Hughes' pictures and has become known as the "Rupert Hughes girl," as a result of her characterizations of this author's leading feminine characters. Her most recent film for Hughes is "Law Against Law."

Mildred and Bunny Davis are home again, ready for work after a two weeks' vacation in San Francisco and Oakland, seeing all points of interest.

A. P. C. President Departs for the East

Marcus Jacobowsky, president of Associated Pictures Corporation, has left for Chicago, following a series of conferences with Arthur H. Sawyer in connection with the producing activities of the Associated organization. During his stay in Los Angeles Mr. Jacobowsky renewed many old acquaintances in financial circles here, and spent considerable time with Marco Hellman. The Associated president was former assistant treasurer of Cook County, Illinois, and is one of the prominent financial figures of that state. He went East in company with Richard A. Rowland, general manager of Associated First National, and a party of executive members of the First National Circuit.

M. C. LEVEE, AUTHOR!

The Writers' Club will have a new member in the person of M. C. Levee, president of the United Studios and associated with Maurice Tourneur in the production of First National pictures.

For some time it was understood around the United lot that Mr. Tourneur was author of "Jealous Fools," his newest production, but when the director found this belief in print, he immediately took steps to uncover the modesty of "M. C."

"Jealous Fools" marks Mr. Levee's first effort as an author and despite a multitude of business interests, "Mike" has written an exceptional plot, according to those who should know.

Mr. Levee, now that he is to be established as an author, states he has another story in work that will soon find its way to the screen.

PLAYS THE SAME CHARACTER TWICE

"The most unobtrusive actor in pictures" is the way friends and co-workers speak of William Moran, who is slowly but surely gaining the recognition on the screen that he earned for his artistic work on the legitimate stage, his latest triumph being his splendid portrayal of the character of J. Wilkes Booth in "The Life of Lincoln," recently completed by Al and Ray Rockett. This is the second time Moran has portrayed this particular character on the screen, the first time being in the Universal picture of "The Days of Buffalo Bill."

Victor Potel wires from San Diego that he has commenced the second leg of his motor trip into Mexico. The entire peninsula of Lower California will be circled by Potel before his return to Hollywood, when he will undertake the chief comedy role in a feature production.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, Oct. 1, 1923

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 313
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Rosson	All-Star	Linden Stevens	Geo. Carter	Staff	"The Satin Girl"	4th Week
Dearholt Productions.
Francis Ford	Edmund Cobb	Al. Gosden	W. McGaugh	Blodgett	5-Reel Western	3rd Week
Neva Gerber Productions
Dick Hatton	Neva Gerber	Nobles	La Mece		"The 7th Sheriff"	5th Week
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-14
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Jackson 190
H. & B. Film Co.
Tenny Wright	All-Star	Bill Beckway			"Tango Trails"	Preparing
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						59357
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 009
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al Herman	All-Star	Wm. Hyer	Herman	Herman	"The Detective"	Editing
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 407
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd.						439-76
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 310
Al Christie	Bobbie Vernon	Nagy	Hagerman	Frank Conklin	2-Reel Comedy	3rd Week
Scott Sidney	Neil Burns	Gus Peterson	Frank Conklin		2-Reel Comedy	Editing
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr.						Drexel 211
Clarence Geldert	All Star	Joe Walker	Hobletz	Johnson	"Beyond the Veil"	Editing
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.						Culver City 54
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General. Frederick Bond, Asst. Managing Director
Frederick Bond	All-Star			Staff	"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
				Harry A. Swart	"Purple Bath Tub"	Preparing
DARRELL-MOUNIER STUDIO. J. F. Mounier, Gen. Mg						Washington and Ince Blvds., Culver Cit
Darrell-Mounier Productions
Darrell	All-Star	Allen Davie	Davie	Margaret Darrell	"Betsy Ann"	Editing
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd. E. H. Allen, Gen. Mgr. Scotty Cleethorpe, Casting.						598-16
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Mermaid Comedies)
Taurog	Neely Edwards	Meehan	Cullen	Staff	Special	6th Week
Hibbard	Lige Conley	Corby	Sharpless	Staff	Comedy	4th Week
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Novelty Juveniles)
Montgomery	All-Star	Stengler	Linkoff	Staff	Novelty	4th Week
Lloyd Hamilton Corp. (Educational Release)
Pratt	Lloyd Hamilton	McGill	Dewar	Staff	Special	Preparing
FOX STUDIO. James Ryan, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 300
Mayo	Stock	Sid Wagner	Jas. Tinling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Jim Summerville	Stock	J. A. Schmidt	Arthur Cohn	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Eric Kenton	Lew Brice	Vic Scheurich	Max Gold		Comedies	Schedule
Roland V. Lee	All-Star	D. Keefe	Geo. Post	Don Lee	"Gentle Julia"	4th Week
Noel Smith	Earl Rodney	Byrn Hauck		Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Tom Buckingham	All-Star	Sid Wagner	Kingling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Seiter-Carruth	Chimpanzees	R. Tennant	Mark Sanderich	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Lambert Hillyer	Tom Mix	Van Clark	Manter		"Eyes oo the Forest"	1st Week
Edmund Mortimer	John Gilbert	J. Short	W. Mayo	Harrison Jacobs	"The Beast"	1st Week
David Sullivan	Shirley Mason	Schneiderman	Birnoudi-FFred	Fannie Hatton	"Within the Tide"	1st Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 263
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 005
GOLD SEAL PRODUCTIONS. A. Rosetti, Studio Mgr.						7405 Roseberry Av
Greville Hughes	Leavens	Hale	R. C. Hughes	Emile Greville	"The Man From Thunder Gap"	Preparing
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.						Holly 269
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	All-Star	Roland Price	A. Tenbrook	Staff	"Do It Now"	Editing
Duke Worne	Wm. Fairbanks	Rolland Price	A. Tenbrook		"The Doctor"	2nd Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 016
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Joe Rock Productions.
Bryant Washburn Productions.
Elliott Dexter in R. Wm. Neil Production.
Thornby-Newman Productions.
Robt. Thornby					"One Hour To Live"	2nd Week
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						76171
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStroheim	"Greed"	9th Week
King Vidor	All-Star	John Boyle	James Dugan	King Vidor	"Wild Oranges"	30th Week
Emmett Flynn	All-Star	Lucien Audriot	Ray Flynn	Carey-Wilson	"Nellie, the Cloak Model"	1st Week
Alan Crosland	All-Star	Jory Mescall	Lynn Shores	Carey Wilson	"Three Weeks"	1st Week

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6640 Santa Monica Blvd. Wm. Sistrom, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Taylor-Newmeyer	H. Lloyd	Lundin	Bud Golden		"The Girl Expert"	7th Week
Creative Productions.
Jack O'Brien	All-Star	D. Jennings	Cy Clegg	Frank Beresford	"Supersition"	7th Week
J. K. McDonald Productions.
Wm. Beaudine	All-Star	H. Thorpe	Geo. Webster		"Misunderstood"	4th Week
Renand Hoffman Productions.
Renaud Hoffman	All-Star	Mackenzie	Glen Belt		"Maud Muller"	Preparing
Cosmopolitan Productions.
Paul Powell	All-Star	Al Seigler	Geo. Berthelon	Scholfield	"Mother McGinn"	Editing
Beverley Productions.
J. P. McGowan	All-Star	Walter Griffin	J. E. MacDonald	Phillip Hurn	"The Whipping Boss"	4th Week
Irving Productions. Jas. Dent, Prod. Mgr.
Dallas Fitzgerald	All-Star			Harold Shumate	"Dawn of Love"	1st Week
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.						438-740
Bob Horner	Geo. Chesebro	Elmer Dyer			"The Isles of Paradise"	4th Week
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Chas. R. Seeling	Larkin	Walker		Jeanne Poe	"Stop at Nothing"	1st Week
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Palmer Photoplay Productions.
Cortland Productions
Trimble-Murfin Productions.
Laurence Trimble	Strongheart	G. B. Dreyer	Cyril Gardner	Donna Barrell	"White Fang"	Schedule
Laurence Trimble	Strongheart	G. B. Dreyer	Cyril Gardner	Donna Barrell	"The Love Master"	Editing
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
W. S. Van Dyke	All-Star	Jos. Walker	R. L. Selander	T. Buchanan	"Cap'n Dan"	Editing
Lloyd Ingraham	All-Star	Jos. Walker	Geo. Crone	Elmer Harris	"No More Women"	Editing
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	12th Week
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
LASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vine St.						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Jos. Henabery	Doug. Fairbanks, Jr	Saxon Dean	Dick Johnson		"Stephen Steps Out"	Editing
Cliff Smith	Wm. S. Hart	Warren	Dick Rush	J. G. Hawkes	"Wm. Hart in Wild Bill Hickok"	Editing
Herb Brennon	Pola Negri	Jos. Howe	H. Schwartz		"My Man"	2nd Week
Wm. DeMille	All-Star	Guy Wilky	Geo. Hippard	Clara Berangee	"Every Day Love"	2nd Week
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Chas. Clark	Fred Robertson	Jack Cunningham	"Flaming Barriers"	3rd Week
Zane Grey Productions.
Victor Fleming	Dix-Wilson	James Howe	Gilroy	Doris Schroeder	"The Call of the Canyon"	8th Week
James Cruze Productions
James Cruze	All-Star	Vernon Keays	Karl Brown	Walter Woods	"To the Ladies"	3rd Week
McNAMARA STUDIOS. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Capitol 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro Release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star	Percy Hilburn	Harry Schenck	J. G. Hawks	"Cape Cod Folks"	6th Week
John M. Stahl	All-Star		Sidney Algier	A. G. Younger	"Why Men Leave Home"	5th Week
Fred Niblo	All-Star	Victor Milner	Doran Cox	B. Meredyth	"Thy Name Is Woman"	1st Week
B. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
Gasnier	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Olga Printzlau	"Maytime"	Editing
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Harold Shaw	All-Star	Georges Rizard	Nat Watts	Thos. Hopkins	"The Living Past"	3rd Week
Victor Schertzinger	All-Star	Chet Lyon		V. Schertzinger	"Man Whom Life Passed By"	4th Week
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	J. Arnold			"Angel Face Molly"	4th Week
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Allen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar	All-Star	Haskins			"The Human Mill"	3rd Week
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	16th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford		Held	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	10th Week
Marshall Neilan	Mary Pickford	Rosher		Staff	"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall"	Preparing
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Louis Tolhurst				Walter Anthony	Microscopic Motion Pictures	Schedule
Benny Zeidman Productions.
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Eddie Hearn		Gilbert Fones	Wyndam Gittens	"The Sand Pile"	Preparing
Lehrman	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"Comedy of Terrors"	Schedule
Chester Bennett Productions.
Douglas MacLean Productions
Jimmy Horne	Douglas MacLean	Max DuPont	Art Flaven		"The Yankee Consul"	6th Week
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr. 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Jackman	All-Star	Floyd Jackman	W. L. Guthrie	Staff	Feature	Schedule
P. Pembrooke	Will Rogers	Robt. Doran	Ross Letterman	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Geo. Jeske	Harry Pollard	J. Roach	Clark Hennecke	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Len Powers	Animals	B. Currigan	Greeland	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Bob McGowan	Our Gang	Harry Gerstad	C. Morehouse	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
I. Howe	Stan Laurel	Frank Young	Cruze	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
Phil Rosen	All-Star	Kurrle-Broening	Al. Davis	Francis Marion	"Life of Abraham Lincoln"	Editing
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSELL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945
Al. Nietz	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	Preparing
Logan-Baynham Productions.
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. B. Seitz	Murphy Miller	Walker Cooper		Bob Dillon	"The Deer Slayer"	Preparing
Hercules Film Prods., Inc.
Jack Nelson	Jack Pollo	McManigal	Joe Kane	Staff	"The Powerless Man"	Casting
H. J. Brown Productions
Al. Rogell	Fred Thompson	Ross Fisher			"The Law of King's Creek"	Editing
Al. Rogell	Fred Thompson	Ross Fisher			"North of Nevada"	1st Week
Maloford Productions.
Bob Williamson	Leo Maloney	Bataraka	Stratton		"Mask of Lopez"	Editing
Granada Productions.
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
Reaves Eason	J. B. Warner	Longenecker	Ernest Van Pelt	Jefferson	"Treasure Canyon"	3rd Week
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Rose of All the World"	10th Week
Victor Heerman	Constance Talmadge	Glen McWilliams	Edw. Brophy	Mace Sullivan	"The Mirage"	Preparing
Sam E. Rork Productions.
First National Productions.
McDermott Chaplin	All-Star		James Chapin	Wm. Dowlin	"Temporary Marriage"	9th Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Frank Lloyd Productions (First National Release)
Frank Lloyd	Griffith-Tearle	Norbert Brodin	Billy Reiter	Fred Myton	"Black Oxen"	6th Week
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig, Casting.						433-131
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Wm. Craft	Desmond-Sedgwick		McDonough Koehner		"Beasts of Paradise"	Schedule
Jay Marchant	Morrison Morris		Ray Taylor		"The Ghost City"	2nd Week
Robt. N. Bradbury	Jack Hoxie		V. Nordlinger		"Wyoming"	4th Week
King Baggott	All-Star		Joe Berry		"Blackmail"	3rd Week
Harry Pollard	Reginald Denny		F. Messinger		"The Spice of Life"	6th Week
Irving Cummings	Mary Philbin		Woolstenhume		"My Mamie Rose"	50th Week
Robt. N. Bradbury	Pete Morrison		Victor Nordlinger		"The Turmoil"
Jess Robbins	Baby Peggy		Arthur		"All for the Love of Gloria"	5th Week
Hobart Henley	All-Star				"The Right to Love"	3rd Week
Robert Hill	Herbert Rawlinson		E. Lumley			4th Week
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Laval Photoplay, Ltd., of Montreal, Canada. L. Ernest Ouimet, Pres and Mgr.
P. Cazeneoye	Andre Lafayette	Gene Benoit	Harry Webb		"The Vital Question"	5th Week
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson		Don Clark	Duncan	"The Fast Express"	1st Week
Ed. Sedgwick	Hoot Gibson	Miller	Wm. Tummel	Sedgwick	"The Hook and Ladder"	1st Week
C. Brown	All-Star		Ernest Laemmle		"Signal Tower"	Preparing
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen. Mgr.						598-131
Dave Smith Productions.
Larry Semon Productions.
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 4181
Warner Brothers Productions.
Hines-Griffin	Johnny Hines	Chas. Gilson	Sandy Roth		"Conductor 1492"	10th Week
Wm. A. Seiter	Marsh-Gillingwater	John Stumar	Tenny Wright		"Daddies"	1st Week
Harry Beaumont	John Barrymore	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Beau Brummel"	Preparing
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernst Lubitsch	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Flood Blanke		"The Marriage Circle"	7th Week
Harry Rapf Productions.
Jack Conway	Monte Blue-Irene Rich	David Abel	Sutherland-Hawkes		"Loveless Marriages"	Editing
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WALDORF STUDIOS. 6070 Sunset Blvd. Harry Cohn, Mgr.						Holly 7940
E. J. Le Saint	All-Star		Geo. H. Reehm		"Innocence"	1st Week
WORLD EDUCATIONAL FILMS CINEMATOUR. Box 818, Station "C," Los Angeles
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	26 1-Reel Globe Trots	Preparing

DR. W. L. SCHUSTER
Chiropractor—Nerve Specialist
"Where the sick go to get well"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

CALLS DAY AND NIGHT
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
6548 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD
430-205; 431-339; or Holly 102-82.

SUNSET TAXI TOURING CARS $2 PER HOUR
SPECIAL RATES ON STUDIO TRIPS AND TOURING

Universal City	$1.00	Club Royal	3.00
Mayer Studios	2.50	Culver City	2.00
Holly-Fairbanks	.75	United Studios	1.00
Fox Studios	.75	Robertson-Cole	.75
Lasky Studios	.75	Metro Studios	.75
Santa Monica	3.50	Ambassador Hotel	1.50
Pasadena	4.00	Venice	4.00
All Stations	2.50	Center of Los Angeles	2.00
		Plantation	3.00

578-307 1720 Hudson Ave. 430-258

"Phon-O-Grams"

Edited by Gene Woolway

Alton Brown

Juvenile Leads

578-177

Charlotte DuPuis

Ingenue-Characters

Holly 2570

J. C. (Jack) Fowler

Characters

438-501

Lorraine Eason

Ingenue Leads

575-91

Kenneth Gibson

Juvenile Leads

578-311

Mary Ruby

Ingenue

594-774

Donna Hale

Leads

Dunkirk 3153

Bert Sprotte

Characters

741-64

Acquittal." It was a recent Broadway success. Lois Zellner wrote the continuity.

Baggot will direct a notable cast in the picture. Among the players so far engaged for the first scenes are Ruth Clifford, Charles Clary, Herbert Fortier, Arthur Howard, Joseph North, and William F. Larence. Casting Director Fred Datig expects to be able to announce the other characters in a few days, and several notable players are in view for the leading roles.

The story is one of mystery, laid in a New York hotel, a newspaper office, and with a number of spectacular exteriors.

Life, love and a chauffeur's uniform are the interwoven elements of drama and subtle comedy in "There He Goes," an original story by Byron Morgan, which is being made by the Universal Pictures corporation under the working title of "The Spice of Life," as a starring vehicle for Reginald Denny, "The Abysmal Brute," alias "The Leather Pusher."

Harry A. Pollard, who made "The Leather Pushers" and an all-star Jewel special, "Trifling With Honor," is directing the production. Denny as the hero is a chauffeur with a longing to escape the badge of servitude, fall in love and drive a racing car. This triple ambition is enough to cause good screen entertainment.

Pete Morrison and the "Ghost City" company have returned to Universal City from location at Keen's camp, in the Sierras, where the spectacular outdoor scenes of the new Western chapterplay were taken. Morrison, with Margaret Morris and a large cast, staged a number of thrilling rides in the mountains, daring escapes and other bits of sensational action for the new picture, a Western story in which airplane and automobile vie with the riders of the old range for thrills in a modern West.

Al Wilson, the noted stunt aviator, accompanied the company to the location, flying there and back. He made a sensational rescue from a horse and other serial thrills while on the location.

"The Ghost City," from the story by Paul Bryan, is played by a large cast, including besides Morrison, Miss Morris and Al. Wilson, Alfred Allen, Lola Todd, Frank Rice, Bud Osborne, and other Western players.

Work has been started on Hoot Gibson's new special production, "Hook and Ladder," at Universal City. The opening scenes were taken aboard a cattle train, following which the company has moved to the Los Angeles stockyards for several days on preliminary scenes.

The picture portrays Gibson as a cowboy who comes with a shipment of cattle to the stockyards, deciding to remain in the city, and joins the fire department. A spectacular fire and a rescue will mark the climax of the new picture, which was written by Edward Sedgwick, who will direct him.

Mildred June has been selected for the principal feminine role, Philo McCullough, screen "heavy," noted for his portrayals of hypocritical and vacillating characters for the role of Gus Henshaw and Frank Beal for one of the leading principal roles in support of Hoot Gibson in this production.

A lightning flash under water is the latest achievement of the motion picture engineer. It has been perfected at Universal City by Arthur E. Shadur, and has solved a problem that for years has stumped technicians attempting

BOB REEL
McKEE
Hollywood 9780

The constantly increasing audiences here attest to the supremacy of our programs. We are exerting every effort to give you clean, snappy boxing.

Hollywood Stadium

Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

R. K. EARLE
CONSULTING ENGINEER
LICENSED SURVEYOR
619 Citizens National Bank Building
Phone 823-681

BRUNO

Publicity Photos
Professional Photos
Casting Director Photos

6412 HOLLYWOOD BLVD.
Telephone 431-929

Gigantic Removal Sale Renewed Used Cars

RICKERSHAUSER & MILLER

6369 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3995

Nash, almost new	$1085.00
Nash coupe, new tires	1050.00
Nash sedan, refinished	1000.00
Nash 5-pass., refinished	985.00
Nash sport model	950.00
Cadillac 55 touring	600.00
Nash 5-pass., late model	600.00
Ford coupe, '22	500.00

Open Evenings. Open Sundays.

Walter Frederick Seely
Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660
KWIK LUNCH
SERVES U RITE
1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

Announcing
MOTION PICTURE INTELLIGENCER

distributed to Producers and Casting Directors everywhere. Motion Picture Intelligencer will carry only

Photographs and Qualifications of Screen Aspirants exclusively. Positively will NOT carry stories nor will it carry news items of any kind, because we believe such would only sidetrack attention of both Producer and Casting Director from my MAIN business, namely, exploiting YOU.

Booking space for next number NOW. Please call, write or wire.

Frederick F. Paul
Publisher
521 Hollingsworth Bldg., Los Angeles

Learn to Color Photographs

We teach you the SECRET PROCESS of making your oil colors at a saving of one half.
424 UNION LEAGUE BLDG.
Corner of Second and Hill Streets

COY WATSON, JR.

CHILD LEADS

Age 10. Drexel 3616

Hugh Hoffman

Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip," "Crossed Wires," "The Town Scandal," "Sawdust." "The Untameable." "The Wild Party."

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography

LITTLE

Commercial Photographer

Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

HAIRGONE—permanent cure for superfluous hair on arms, limbs, face and body. Also wonderful for men who have shaving troubles. $2.50 the bottle, manufactured at

ORCHID BEAUTY SHOPPE
808 So. Hope St. Phone 16596
All lines of beauty culture.

MARION WARDE

Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films

Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing

423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

to indicate a storm on the surface in a submarine picture. Shadur invented it for the typhoon in "Beasts of Paradise," where William Desmond, in diving helmet, is caught under water during the storm.

The device is a modification of an aluminum torch encased in glass. It is flashed by means of oxygen, supplied in just the right quantity to enter into combustion with the powdered aluminum and make the flash, but still with not enough oxygen to cause an explosion, which was always the stumbling block in other devices that sought to get this particular effect.

A delicate valve supplying the oxygen, and regulated by the weight of the aluminum powder itself is the key to the invention. Shadur, who is city engineer at Universal City, and a well known electrical engineer, is the inventor of several other improvements in under-water lighting that make submarine pictures practical and inexpensive to handle. Among them is a submarine arc light and a system of reflecting light under water from the sunlight above.

William Duncan will start work this week on another chapterplay at Universal City. "The Fast Express," another railroad story, but dealing with operation of the road rather than the building of it, as did his just-completed "Steel Trail," in the new picture.

Duncan will direct and star. He will be supported by Edith Johnson as in his first railroad story, and the cast, with a few exceptions, will be practically the same as in the first story. Albert T. Smith, Happy Woods, John Cossar, Harry Carter, and several other well known players will appear in the story.

The play opens with a situation arising out of rival financial interests seeking to lower the value of the railroad by plotting to interfere with its operation. There will be many thrills in the play, such as the blowing up of a big railroad cut in the path of a fast express train, a thrilling rescue on a moving line of cars, a collision, and a number of other features.

Arrangements have been made to use a large ralroad yard near Los Angeles, and actual trains, for the principal scenes, in some of which several hundred workmen will appear. A special train will be used on the tracks at Universal City for other scenes, this being rented for several months for the purpose.

The same peculiarly ingenious, natural sort of emotionalism with which Mary Philbin surprised the public in "Merry-Go-Round," the spectacle picture which is having extended runs in many cities, is the thing which is drawing interested members of the film colony and newspaper writers to the sets of "My Mamie Rose," at Universal City.

The new picture, which is her first starring vehicle—although popular appreciation has raised her to practical starring honors in "Merry-Go-Round"—is being directed for the Universal Pictures corporation by Irving Cummings. William Fildew, who photographed "White Tiger," "Drifting," "Under Two Flags" and other Universal-Jewel special productions, has been assigned to the unit. It is Owen Kildare's novel, the film version of which will present one of the greatest casts of the year: Miss Philbin, William Collier, Jr., Charles Murray, Pat O'Malley, Max Davidson, Kate Price, Edwin J. Brady, Lincoln Plummer and others yet to be chosen.

"I believe this girl has a 'brand' of emotionalism, if one can call it that, which has never been seen before. It's entirely natural with her." That is the judgment of Irving Cummings.

'Tis said that when the devil dabbles in love affairs he always counts in threes.

Speaking in terms of contemporary literature, this is more or less firmly recognized. But Clarence L. Brown, director of Universal-Jewel special, "The Acquittal," reported to be one of the three or four best pictures ever produced by the Laemmle organization, believes that in his next story he has the ace triangle situation of them all. It's Wadsworth Camp's "The Signal Tower," one of O'Brien's "The Best Stories of 1921," and the director declares nothing like it has ever been screened or staged.

The terrific drama of a situation where the eternal trio is composed of two operators in an important signal tower and the wife of one of them can be easily imagined. Hazard, thrills, peril to the lives of thousands of people who don't even know of this particular triangle—the plot has the elements of novelty in drama.

Three magnificent artists must play the roles—for the other roles in the picture are but support. These three are the ones who must carry the interest of seven or eight reels of fine photodrama. If one of them is weak, the picture will lose.

This is one of the hardest pieces of casting that have come up at Universal City in a long time. The three players, when finally chosen, will represent the best in the profession.

Baby Peggy's contract with the Century Film Company and the agreement under which she is being starred in elaborate multiple reel productions made jointly by Century and the Universal Pictures Corporation, will not be completed until October 31st. This is the statement of Julius and Abe Stern, of the Century.

Baby Peggy special comedies made by Century and awaiting release, include several elaborately made short reel subjects. Two Universal-Jewel specials produced by Julius and Abe Stern in conjunction with Universal and completed are "Whose Baby Are You?" and "The Burglar's Kid."

"The Right to Love" is the current production, which will be finished before the end of Baby Peggy's contract. For this picture Julius Stern and the executives of Universal sought the highest type of talent and obtained Robert Ellis, Elinor Faire, Winifred Bryson of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," James Corrigan, Ned Sparks. Anna Hernandez, Buddy Messenger, Eva Thatcher and others.

What it takes to be a strong man, Joe Bonomo's got.

That isn't exactly the most classical way of expressing the physical fitness of the actor in Universal's chapterplay, "Beasts of Paradise," in which Bonomo supports William Desmond and Eileen Sedgwick, but suffice to say that Bonomo was a prodigy of strength at nine years of age, has had his picture in countless magazines as a giant of strength, has posed for artists because of his symmetry of figure, and wants to meet the man who can make him lay down his colors. Not that Joe is egotistical, in fact, he is extremely modest, but he's making life work of developing muscles and consequently they take center position in his qualifications as the average layman looks at it.

Rex Taylor, long associated with Mack Sennett and who is one of the best known scenarists in the film colony, has been assigned by Bernard McConville, supervising editor at Universal City, to write the continuity of "Love Insurance."

The story is an adaptation of the novel of the same name by Earl Derr Biggers and will be used as Reginald Denny's next starring vehicle. It is a dramatic love story, with a comedy twist.

Filming will be completed in a few weeks of Denny's present picture, "There He Goes," adapted from Byron Morgan's story of the same name.

William Welsh, character veteran of Universal City, finished an excellent portrayal of a father role in Jack Hoxie's starring picture, "The Red Warning," and three weeks later was cast in support of Hoxie again in the picture now in production, "Wyoming." The former portrayal was highly pleasing and the new one offers him better possibilities.

Robert North Bradbury had the Hoxie unit, with the star, Welsh, pretty Lillian Rich, Claude Payton, Lon Poff, George Kuwa and Ben Gorbett in the regions around Lone Pine, California, near the edge of Death Valley, Utilizing the inexhaustible novelties of the scenery there in adding pictorial quality to the film version of William McLeod Raine's novel. "The Red Warning" was filmed there and the scenic features of the production drew the praise of everyone at Universal City.

Jack Lawton, manager of the location department at Universal City, and William Nobles, cameraman, are coming in for a good deal of credit from Universal executives for pictorial beauty in "The Red Warning."

William Craft, directing "Beasts of Paradise" at Universal City, is today the wonder of all directors using "lion stuff" in picture plays. He has succeeded in making scenes with "wild" lions. Tom, Dick and Harry, a magnificent trio of African specimens, supposedly too wild to ever be used in picture scenes, have made their debut as actors through his efforts.

Craft, who had long admired the big brutes kept in the Universal City zoo for exhibition purposes only, induced the studio executives to allow him to try them out, after Curley Steckner, the zoo superintendent, had decided that he could safely handle them for short scenes. Animal experts from Ringling's circus consulted with the Universal City trainer, and dubiously stated that the nimals might be worked, but it would probably be unsafe. Stecker went ahead, however, trained the animals sufficiently for the scenes, and Craft obtained a sequence with them.

Craft, who has directed more animal action than perhaps any director in Hollywood, has crammed "Beasts of Paradise," co-starring William Desmond and Eileen Sedgwick, with lion, alligator, shark and elephant scenes. The new thriller is now approaching conclusion at the studio.

Caldwell Signs Up With Selznick Corp.

Director Fred Caldwell, producer of "Night Life in Hollywood," has just returned from New York City, where he concluded a releasing contract with the Selznick Picture Corporation to give international distribution to his entire output of feature comedies for the year, each to have a distinct Hollywood theme. The contract was secured on merit of productions which Mr. Caldwell had completed from original stories from the pen of J. Stewart Woodhouse, which he screened in New York. The first four pictures which will start releases November 1st, are "The Elite of Hollywood," "The Cream of Hollywood," "The Bishop of Hollywood,' and The Shiek of Hollywood." These feature comedies include in their cast such well known players as Chester Conklin, Muriel Reynolds, Victor Potel, Gale Henry, Charles Mack, Alice Howell, Raymond Cannon, Violet Schram and Charles Dale.

Production will be resumed immediately in furtherance of contract.

Actor Foresees a Bad Week Ahead

Frank Mayo is in for a rough week when Lew Cody returns from New York, according to a wire received by Mayo. Cody backed Dempsey and Mayo chose Firpo. The loser agreed to act as chauffeur for the winner for one week.

Here is the wire received by Mayo:

"Wear a blue uniform and a pleasant smile. Start practicing calling me mister and being polite. You will have the privilege of meeting Mr. Dempsey and myself at the station on our return. He has promised not to sock you for betting on the other fellow, as he always respected my servants. Wait for instructions from your boss. Mr. Lew Cody."

Cody will return to Los Angeles as soon as he finishes work on "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," which Emmett Flynn is filming.

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS
GET RESULTS

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell Camera, long term, reasonable rent or will trade for high grade used car. Box J. C. 2, Camera!

REWARD—Brief case lost containing theatrical publicity. Finder please call 437-409.

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell Camera. 170 degree Shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Phone Met. 4686 days; 13173 evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell Howell Camera. 170 degree. Telephone 599-464.

BOOKKEEPER—Expert, typist, wants four hours' work daily. $16 per week. Humboldt 3493W. Call after 6, evenings.

ROBERT TODD—Film Editor. Nine years' experience. Desirous of permanent local connection. Phone Hollywood 1113.

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell camera, 170 degrree shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Phone Met. 4688 days; 13173 evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell Howell Camera, 170 degree. Telephone 599-464.

Zan
Hair goods
Make up.

TOUPEES AND TRANSFORMATIONS
BEARDS AND MOUSTACHES

Hair Goods of Every Description Made to Order.

ROUGES, PERFUMES AND POWDERS
LIPSTICKS AND MASCARO

Make-up for the Street, Studio and Stage

Zan, Hair Goods & Make-up

819 SOUTH HILL STREET Metropolitan 0496

Especially for Motion Picture People.

THE HILLVIEW GRILL

Hillview Apartments Bldg.
Hollywood at Hudson

Holly 7980 Holly 6626

MERCHANTS' LUNCH, 11:30 to 2
DINNER 5:30 to 8

TINTED PORTRAITS

of a beautiful velvet-like tone can be made from your regular photographs. The cost is low and there are special rates on fan photos.

EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38

100 Per Cent Titles
100 Per Cent Service
At the Right Price!

Dress up that next production with artistic Hand Lettered Titles made by IRVING W. BUNZE.

If you want Perfect Symbolic Art Backgrounds, let us make them! Neil E. McQuire, formerly with Ince and Prizma, does our art work.

For perfect black-and-white titles, try our PROCESS SYSTEM. A telephone call will bring our representative with samples.

Quality Title & Film Company

1442 Beechwood Drive. Holly 4850

Rare Antiques from the Far East

Oriental Costume Co.

6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

Frank the Shoe Doctor

"We save your sole and heel you, too"

6666 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 3752

FOR PICTURES

PLAYS, BOOKS, ORIGINALS

The
Hollywood Play Bureau
Emmett Corrigan, Mgr.

6404 Hollywood Boulevard
Near Cahuenga. Hollywood, Cal.

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law

JACK P. LEONARD

340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

WE MOVE THE MOVIES

and Shine on Service

Hollywood 2671 • SAMUEL C. SHINE • 6568 Santa Monica Blvd.
General Trucking and Hauling

POSSIBLY ABOUT U

To be a screen villain of the deepest dye, yet to possess a kindly disposition and the ability to paint with almost a spiritual quality, is the peculiar combination presented in Anders Randolf, who is the "heavy" in Elliott Dexter's first Grand-Asher production, "The Way Men Love," produced by R. William Neill.

Cullen Tate, who directed Bryant Washburn in his first Grand-Asher picture, "Try and Get It," was once an advertising expert and his ideas in that direction stand him in good stead in his picture work.

Joseph Kilgour, who is appearing in support of Bryant Washburn, in his first starring vehicle for Grand-Asher, "Try and Get It," will shortly go to New York, to appear in a revival of "The Easiest Way," for David Belasco. Mr. Kilgour created the leading male role in the original production of this play, which featured Frances Starr.

Jeanie MacPherson has returned from her vacation, following the filming of "The Ten Commandments," Cecil B. DeMille's elaborate Paramount picture, and is now adapting May Edington's "Triumph," which Mr. DeMille will produce next.

CONWAY TEARLE HAS KLEIG FEET!

And now comes Kleig feet!

Conway Tearle, leading male player in "Black Oxen" for First National, is the victim.

A Kleig lamp fell at the United Studios—fell, indeed, right on Mr. Tearle's feet.

One foot sprained.
One foot scraped.
Kleig feet.

LOCAL — SEMI-NATIONAL — NATIONAL — INTERNATIONAL

POUR PERSONAL PUBLICITY AR-EXCELLENT

POSITIVELY PUTS PICTURE PEOPLE IN PERMANENT PUBLIC FAVOR

STAR FOR

Write for particulars, or see

GENE WOOLWAY

P. O. Box 176, Hollywood Station
Or, in care of
Camera!
2nd. Floor, 6318 Hollywood Blvd.,
HOLLYWOOD Calif.
PHONE 439-869

YOUR PHONOGRAPH

will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a

Deflexograph

Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles.

Play after hours —will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.

GOLD PLATE.....$1.50 (See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE....$1.00

VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

SCREEN SERVICE

(formerly The Service Bureau)
1036 SOUTH HILL
Phone 821-071

Culver City, Calif.

Culver City 546

Now in Preparation: "The Elk's Tooth"

I WANT SOME REAL PICTURES!

. . . productions from $50,000 to $100,000. I can sell them outright. See me for a quick release.

H. and B. FILM COMPANY

Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275 or Drexel 1900

CULLEN LANDIS:
'Put Me In Great Condition."

WHERE THE SICK GO TO GET WELL

Literature pertaining to any disease mailed on request

75 PER CENT

of the

MOTION PICTURE STARS IN HOLLYWOOD

BILLIE DOVE
Says: "Chiropractic Keeps Me Well."

ASK ANY STAR

are using my Scientific Method to regain and keep their health.

ARE YOU ONE OF THEM?
IF NOT, WHY NOT?

You will be agreeably surprised to find there is no discomfort in taking these Scientific Adjustments, and gratified with the results obtained.
Bring all your Health Troubles to the only Chiropractor catering to the Motion Picture Profession.
Each patient receives my personal attention.

ASK ANY STAR

Dr. W. I. Schuster

SCIENTIFIC CHIROPRACTOR AND NERVE SPECIALIST
(Palmer Graduate)

Office Hours:
10 to 12 and 2 to 5

Monday, Wednesday and Friday
6 to 8 P.M.

203 Bogardus Building
Cor. Sunset and Western
Hollywood, California

Telephone 436-724

LADY IN ATTENDANCE. PRIVATE DRESSING ROOMS.

Ample Parking Space

CLAIRE WINDSOR.
Attributes Her Health To Chiropractic.

WHERE THE SICK GO TO GET WELL

Licensed in California

CHARLES "BUCK" JONES.
"Chiropractic Is My Best Pal."

Introducing

Jack Pollo

The stunt-actor and world's greatest all-round athlete

The Hercules Productions, Inc.,

Take great pleasure in announcing in a series of fast action, clean-cut comedy-dramas for 1923-24, State Right Release. The HERCULES PRODUCTIONS, INC., have just completed the first five-reel feature comedy-drama, written by William E. Wing, entitled, "LET'S GO." They will continue to feature Jack Pollo and hope to make his pictures something new and different.

JACK POLLO

"LET'S GO!"

Directed by Jack Nelson. Photographed by E. L. McManigal.

Jack Pollo

is capably supported by

Eva Novak
Milburn Morante
Joe Girard
Dick Sutherland
Billy Elmer

The second of this series is now in preparation.

Hercules Productions, Inc.

1442 Beechwood Drive Hollywood, California

"Camera!"

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

Los Angeles, Calif. Saturday, Oct. 6, 1923 Price 10 Cents

J. JACQUES EISEMAN---Who takes a foremost place among the patrons of the art of moving pictures

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A. HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

New York Washington, D. C.

Phone 52220

Phone 54847

1001-1005 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles California

Permanent Waving Hair Coloring Bleaching
Hair Dressing Scalp-Facial Massage
Marcel Waving Water Waving Shampooing
Manicuring
Wigs Toupees Switches Transformations
Wig Rental Beards and Moustaches
Cosmetics
Professional Makeup Service

Special Attention to Theatrical and Motion Picture Profession

No Parking Restrictions

Marguerite La Mont

Who has just finished as Geo. Larkin's leading woman in
"STOP AT NOTHING"
A Charles R. Seeling Production
VERMONT 5780

"Camera!"
[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

ESTABLISHED 1918

A Film Magazine and a Film Newspaper in One

6318 Hollywood Boulevard
Hollywood : California

Vol. VI. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1923 No. 25

"Thine Alabaster Cities Gleam——"

To many millions of people the world over the making of motion pictures is a veritable fantasy. To them the cinema is somewhat akin to a myth in the various phases of its production for the simple reason the bulk of these activities have been concentrated in one section, and not spread throughout a vast territory as are other industries. Thus only a very few people, living in the immediate vicinity of this field, are thoroughly familiar with what's what in making the movies. This ignorance upon the part of the public at large has been an instrumental factor in the success of many individuals and institutions, terming themselves friends of the industry and claiming that they render a great and genuine service in the work they do, who are in reality preying upon the public and shielding their misdoings under the mantle of illusion which has always been cast about the production of pictures. For instance, the so-called scenario schools which make exorbitant promises to their prospective pupils in the way of fame and fortune—"take our course in photoplay writing. It's absolutely infallible. Recommended by foremost film producers. Endorsed by great writers and scholars everywhere. You can make thousands of dollars writing scenarios. There is a great demand in Hollywood for new writers. You don't need any special talent. Cash in today! Subscribe now!"—and so on ad lib. Genius with the pen is a God-given gift, not a matter of mechanical proportions. Talent is not a thing sold on the open market. No course is infallible, and as a matter of fact none to date has proved of any great value. No thousands of dollars are spent on stories from correspondence school authors, and there isn't a shortage of stories in Hollywood by any means. This sort of advertising bunk should walk the plank. It is a menace to the well-being of the industry and an affront to the ethics of the profession. Not alone does it apply to scenario schools. It is as easily applicable to the much-limelighted-of-late farces known as make-up schools. These are under the direct management of parasites who fatten on the ignorance of the public in things pertaining to film making; they also shield their movements under the mantle of illusion. What they need is some rough treatment from the industry and the public at large, and they're getting some right now. And while at it you might also give the gate to some of these fly-by-night fillum companies. There are plenty of legitimate propositions without them, but those that are legitimate aren't making any wild promises as to what they're going to accomplish. They tell you to your face that it's a gamble. Too many people have been hooked on these brilliant promotion schemes. They must get out, once and for all! This damage has all been done under the veil of fantasy that hovers over us. Let the public know what's what in picture making. Tell them something about the various phases of production, about scenarios and make-up and the organization and operation of motion picture companies. You have heard that song—"Thine Alabaster Cities Gleam; Undimmed by Human Tears". To these millions Hollywood is the alabaster city where fame and fortune aplenty is to be found. And the only thing necessary to achieve this El Dorado is to just—"enroll now." Tear away the illusion! Discredit the myth! Clarify the fantasy, and do away with the leeches of the industry. For your own sake, if not theirs, GIVE THEM THE TRUTH!

Telephone
439-869

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON
Publisher and Manager.

JOHN CORNYN
Advertising Manager.

GENE WOOLWAY
Studio Representative.

FRED W. FOX
Advertising Copy.

PAULINE THOMPSON
Pulse Editor

Address All Communications to
CAMERA!

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

$3.50 per year in Los Angeles County.
$4.00 per year in Outside Zone.
$4.50 to Canada.
$5.00 to Foreign Points.

H. H. CONGER COMPANY
Nat'l Adv. Rep.
New York Chicago
San Francisco

Advertising Rates Upon Application.

Issued on Saturday morning of each week at 6318 Hollywood Blvd., in Los Angeles, Calif. Telephone 439-869.

Entered as second-class matter, Aug. 11, 1918, at the Post Office at Los Angeles, Cal., under Act of March 3rd, 1879.

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Gold Diggers"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

"The Cat and the Canary"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

Vivian Martin
in
"The Mother Eternal"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

"The Midnight Alarm"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

Katherine MacDonald
in
"Husbands and Heros"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Road Together"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

"If Winter Comes"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

Buster Keaton
in
"The Electric House"

This Week's Theatre Notes

Never before have motion picture fans had the opportunity to see the inimitable Mae Murry in a photoplay so dazzling as "The French Doll", which is showing at Loew's State Theater this week, in a story which deals with society life in New York and Palm Beach, and which has to do with a little madcap who upsets the hearts of all men whom she meets during her dancing career. Robert Z. Leonard directed the production. The supporting cast contains only well-known Broadway actors and actresses. In conjunction with "The French Doll", and because of its nature appealing to the feminine eye especially, Loew's State Theater presents a smart fashion show with dozens of manikins exhibiting the latest wardrobe creations in a gorgeous setting.

Graumans Million Dollar

Smashing, pounding seas, mammoth in size, relentless in fury. Raging with the violence of countless monsters, awe inspiring to behold, fearful to experience, the monarch of a fearful Fate. Tight within its power a diminutive ship, pitiful in its helplessness, an eggshell in the hand of a giant to do with what he will.

Huddled in the tiny craft a shrinking group of terror stricken humans. Victims of unjust persecution, driven to an unknown land in search of a new freedom for life and liberty, headed now to a destiny awful in its most hopeful outcome.

Foulmouthed, blaspheming crew, fearful of neither man or devil. Cringing, loathsome beasts plotting the end of the brave little band whose prayers they blame for their present blight.

An epic in American history. The Mayflower! Subject of song and legend, now immortalized by Charles Ray in the film version of Longfellow's famous poem, "The Courtship of Miles Standish". This first superproduction by the renowned star is now at Grauman's Million Dollar Theatre as the offering under the new policy of big pictures and long runs.

Many critics have pronounced the storm scenes during the voyage of the Mayflower the greatest they have ever seen in motion pictures. Much of the action takes place on board the ship before its arrival at Cape Cod where the Pilgrims first landed.

Hill Street Theater

Heading an unusually fine bill at the Hillstreet they will have Ruth Roland, in person. This young lady with whom everyone is acquainted on the screen has proven that her magnetic personality and talent is equally captivating on the stage. She will present a vaudeville surprise and will be assisted by Ralph Pollock at the piano. Joe Rome and Lou Gaut, will offer their skit "When Extremes Meet". "Oklahoma" Bob Albright, popular western tenor, will present some characteristic songs. Nate Leipzig will offer some new and novel card tricks. The Three Lordons will also be on the bill with their daring trapeze stunts. Completing the vaudeville will be Capt. Bett's Seals, a novelty act. The feature photoplay showing will be Katherine MacDonald in "Heroes and Husbands". Other features will be the William Duncan chapter-play "The Steel Trail" a comedy, Hillstreet International News, and Aesop's Fables.

Criterion Theater

With its new policy of two shows a day and all seats reserved becoming popular equally with the screen attraction, "A Woman of Paris" at the Criterion Theater is playing to capacity houses at every performance.

The Chaplin picture, in which the famous comedian does not personally appear, but which gives Edna Purviance and several others an opportunity to achieve screen honors, stands as one of the most revolutionized cinemas the world has known.

"A Woman of Paris" is a story of a girl whom Fate separates from her lover and who becomes the plaything of a rich bachelor in the gayest city in the world. How this girl, willingly or unwillingly, by the life she leads, brings sorrow and grief to people forms the intrigue story which runs to a natural and sane ending.

Edna Purviance is supported by Carl Miller, Adolph Menjou, Lydia Knott, Charles French, and others.

Alhambra

Buster Keaton finally arrives at the Alhambra Theater in his first multiple-reel comedy, "Three Ages."

This collossal six-reel production introduces Buster in an entirely new entertainment. Abandoning the two-reel comedies, Buster has now gone into feature film production and "Three Ages" gives his version of what love has been since the beginning of time. Buster introduces love makng brought down to modern days from the Middle Age. Through three distinct periods of history, Buster romps to the delight of his audiences incidently satirizing in a subtle way some of our big spectacle productions, and finally giving conclusive proof that the methods of love making today differ not a great deal from those used in pre-historic times.

California
Main at Eighth

Marion Davies
in
"Little Old New York"

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Corinne Griffith-
Frank Mayo, in
"Six Days"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

Gloria Swanson
in
"Zaza"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Mae Murray
in
"The French Doll"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

Pola Negri
in
"The Spanish Dancer"

Criterion

Charles Chaplin's
"A Woman of Paris"

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

Charles Ray
in "The Courtship
of Myles Standish"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

Buster Keaton
in
"The Three Ages"

Hollywood Egyptia
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden
"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mabel Normand
in
"The Extra Girl"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

"The Fog"

"———and it shall come to pass———"

We are not prophets. It's a dangerous business. But it is a 'grand and glorious feelin' to be able to say (truthfully), "I TOLD YOU SO!" So once in a great while when someone crosses our pathway and we feel that we are in the presence of genius, we can't resist and bust loose and say so full force. So right here and now hear us say—that before another year has passed a certain little wisp of dainty charm by the name of Priscilla Moran is going to have the whole world loving her—is going to flash across the screen firmament as one of its brightest stars! It's inevitable! For Priscilla is made of the stuff that stars are made of.

We had heard a great deal of Priscilla but had never met her until one day this week. Then when we were almost covered with work and were doing our best to dig out—in walked the little lady herself! And for one hour work was completely forgotten around this place. She was wearing the little military uniform that she is using in the part of "Sammy" in David Belasco's "Daddies," that Wm. Seiter is directing for Warner Bros. Honestly she was delicious! All the good things that we had heard about her became truths in that hour. When some smart person transfers that sparkling personality of hers to the screen that person is going to do this old world a favor and incidentally make a fortune. Priscilla told us many interesting things about Jackie Coogan. You know she lived with the Coogans for several months when her own mother passed away. From what she told us Jackie must be as wonderful at home as he is on the screen and his mother must be a marvelous combination of saint, arbitrator and all-wise judge.

Well, Priscilla, come again soon. Come often. Wouldn't it be wonderful if you could come and stay!

LANE PUBLISHES BOOK

In a recently received copy of "What's Wrong With the Movies?" the author, Tamar Lane has started a discussion as to what are the finest plays of the silent drama. "The Birth of a Nation," generally spoken of as the greatest production ever made, is declared to be inferior to "The Old Nest," "Intolerance," "A Princess of the Dark," any others.

In speaking of photoplays presented on the screen in the past decade, he has singled out several more lesser known films and classed them higher in production value than our present day offerings, which no doubt many persons will find it hard to agree with the author in his opinion of the "best examples of photoplay." He further charges that there is far too much money being spent on productions to dazzle the spectator, that subject matter of big productions is usually of second or third rate quality and that much neglect is shown in the selection of fine plays and stories. While the author rates several foreign films as being first class, he ridicules the idea of any country turning out finer films than America for the present, at least.

Resume of a Week at Universal

By WILL C. MURPHEY

On her return from San Francisco, where she has gone to complete the picture for which she was loaned to the Goldwyn studios by Universal, Virginia Valli is to be starred in another big feature picture at Universal City. This was announced following news that her work with the Goldwyn studio would soon be finished.

Miss Valli was loaned to the other producers on completion of "A Lady of Quality," the big super-Jewel feature Hobart Henley directed. Her new picture at Universal is to be an elaborate dramatic vehicle, the choice of which has not been made as yet. Three big plays are under consideration for Miss Valli.

The star is notable for her work in "The Shock" and in "A Lady of Quality," the latter adapted from Frances Hodgson Burnett's novel, soon to be released.

Another Ziegfeld Follies beauty has decided to seek her chance in the realm of camera and arc lights.

And from the way Brenda Lane has started, it doesn't look so bad for her. Five weeks ago she arrived at Universal City, California, after a little less than one year on the stage in the Follies and George White's "Scandals of 1922." She had never had screen experience and for a tryout was given two or three small "bits." Following this preliminary work and a film test, Fred Datig, casting director of the Universal studios, put her into stock on a six months' agreement, with prospect of a long engagement after the completion of that.

Since then she has played the feminine lead in "The Idea Man," a comedy starring Bert Roach, directed by William Watson and supervised by Thomas Grey.

It is a safe thing to assume that playwrights, with years of the stage and its traditions behind them, will generally pick among motion picture stars those who have had stage training, for their favorites. The reason is that they see in the ex-stage player a fineesse and polished technique that the screen player without a stage experience does not always have. Of course there is a sense of loyalty to past associations involved.

It is typical of the attitude of a stage author to the screen that George Middleton, famous playwright, when spoken to about Mary Philbin, the "Merry-Go-Round" "Discovery," under contract with the Universal Pictures Corporation, asked one question instantly: "Has she got a voice of the stage?"

That of course couldn't be answered affirmatively, for Miss Philbin is not a stage actress, and hasn't acquired the "stage voice." Her voice has infinite possibilities, but it has not been moulded by the stage.

The other day Middleton visited Universal City. He passed through the chief departments and sections of the 600-acre studio, and visited the sets of many units. But of all the things of the varied atmosphere, the most interesting feature of the unit was for him the observance of Miss Philbin in an emotional scene of "My Mamie Rose," directed by Irving Cummings.

After a good while spent on the Cummings set, his final observation was, "I can't understand how, without stage experience and without more age and experience, this girl can act as she does. 'Merry-Go-Round' was a revelation, and watching Miss Philbin on the set has been a further one.

"Of all the younger, newer people on the screen, Mary Philbin is to me by far the most promising. I think no one of the newer figures can possibly be compared with her."

Mildren Juen, trained the way many of the popular women stars of today were trained—

(Continued on Page 20)

THE MAN ON THE COVER

Aside from the fact that he is building for Hollywod one of the handsomest theatres on the coast, J. Jacques Eisemann's activities mark him as one of the most important factors in the entertainment world ever entering the field here.

During the construction of his beautiful theatre on Vine St., at Hollywood Blvd.—a theatre "Dedicated to the Artists of Hollywood and the Furtherment of the Spoken Drama", Mr. Eisemann will give to this city the opportunity to see, hear and know many of the most famous of the stars of the screen.—NOT in "personal appearances", but in dramatic vehicles of the finest calibre obtainable and on tours that will scan the continent. The first of these will be the starring—in a spoken dramatic role—of Charles Ray in "The Girl I Loved", staged under the masterful direction of Walter Hast, world famous for his continental and American stage successes, and which has its premier in San Diego on October 8th, at the Spreckles Theatre.

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

"Greed" is finished. After six months and a half, twenty eight weeks of actual shooting, the last foot of film for Eric Von Stroheim's great screen version of Frank Norris' famous classic "McTeague" was filmed last Saturday in Colfax. The work of editing the picture will begin at once on Von Stroheim's return to Los Angeles, and November 25th, is set as the date of release. Ernest Traxler, production manager on "Greed," arrived in San Francisco Saturday night, and will be here for a week finishing up the last of the business details connected with the production.

Frank Lloyd and the company filming "Black Oxen," made better time than they had expected, and completed their scenes in San Francisco in one day, and returned to Los Angeles on Tuesday. The scenes made here were all shot on the docks, with Corrine Griffith, Conway Tearle, Harry Mestayer, Clara Bow, one or two of the cast playing small parts, and about a hundred local extras.

Belasco Productions, a San Francisco and Los Angeles corporation, through its president, Edward Belasco, has just purchased the screen rights to Aaron Hoffman's great stage success, "Welcome Stranger," which with George Sidney in the leading role, had a successful run of almost two years in Chicago and New York. Mr. Belasco says that it was a long, hard fight to get it away from the big producers, but at last they succeeded and they feel that it will be one of the biggest pictures of the year. It is probable that George Sidney himself will be secured to play his old role.

As soon as the deal was consumated Mr. Belasco and his general manager, A. H. Sebastian left for Los Angeles to secure a director, and select a cast for the production.

The Rellimeo Film Syndicate of San Francisco, have leased the studio of the Principle Pictures Corporation, and began work there on Sept. 24th, on the second picture to be made by the organization. The picture will be called "The Yellow Stigma," and is an original story with most of the scenes laid in China, both story and continuity from the pen of Grace Sanderson Mitchie. Colin Campbell is directing, with an all star cast including, Wyndham Standing, Rosemary Theby, Raymond McKee, Tully Marshall, Sam De Grasse, Barbara Bedford, June Elvidge, and John Patrick.

This will be the second big picture produced by Rellimeo the first now titled "Defying Destiny" will be released by Selznick in New York this month, it was also written by Grace Sanderson Mitchie.

The Granada Film Corporation, has just finished a comedy drama entitled "Eight Bucks," featuring Raymond McKee, supported by Marjorie Meadows, Gertrude Clair, Aileen Manning, Dick Gordon and others. Fred Windamere was director with Lenwood Abbott at the camera. The film is now in the cutting room and will soon be ready for release. The Granada Film Corp., has as its president William Drummond, vice-president Grace Sanderson Mitchie, Treasurer J. G. Mitchie, all of San Francisco.

Tom Forman was among the Sunday arrivals at the Plaza Hotel, and is spending several days in town on business.

A long felt want in San Francisco has been filled by the recent organizing by Miss Ora Hayes, of a moving picture orchestra, for the use of the local picture making units, and southern companies here on location, who do not carry their own music with them.

After almost a weeks work here and out at sea on a yacht, King Vidor and the company filming "Wild Oranges" for Goldwyn, finished the sea scenes on Tuesday last, and left for the Sacramento river to do further location work. Considerable local interest was attracted on Sunday night when they filmed a storm at sea off Pier 41, and a large crowd gathered to watch the yacht and the making of the mock storm.

San Francisco's waterfront was very popular last week, and to add to the other companies already working, the Dillon company, consisting of some twenty-five members of the cast and staff, arrived via the boat from the South on Monday, and worked on a ferry boat tied up at the slip all night Monday and Tuesday nights. The all star cast included Elaine Hammerstein, Wallace Beery, Jack Mulhall, Eddie Dillon, and others.

Louise Lovely, and her movie making act has returned here as the headliner at the Golden Gate Theatre this week.

Robert McKim was a guest in San Francisco over the week-end.

The Capitol Theatre recently taken over by the Rothschild interests, who control the California, Granada, etc., will be opened under the new banner Oct. 7th, with the super-production, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." The theatre has been improved and redecorated, and in the future will be devoted to super-attractions.

The Catholic Art Association of New York has opened a branch office in the Phelan Building, San Francisco, and expects to produce pictures here at a later date. Their latest picture "The Victim," was previewed at the Rivoli Theatre last week before an invited audience including prominent business men, clergymen and club women. It is a powerful production and one of the most human and dramatic films to be shown here in a long time.

An unusual project is afoot here, with the forming of the Mandearin Pictures Corporation who will begin work almost at once on the first of a series of Chinese pictures. The first picture will be made from a story published in the Ladies Home Journal, by Charles Caldwell Dobie, under the title of "Young China." The name of the film however, will be changed to "Little Lili Gee." Forrest Creighton will direct, continuity by Jane Roland. Chinese capitol is back of the project, and all the scenes will be shot in Chinatown.

CASTS OF THE WEEK

Famous Players Lasky
present
"FLAMING BARRIERS"
Directed by Geo. Melford.
Photographed by Chas. Clark.
Scenario by Harvey Thew.
CAST:

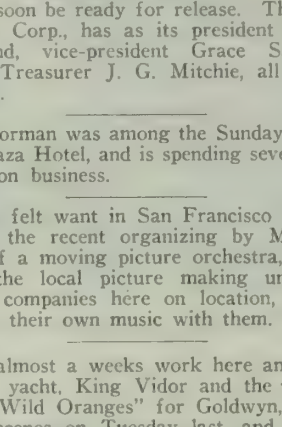
Jacqueline Logan	Antonio Moreno
Walter Heirs	Charles Ogle
Robert McKim	Luke Cosgrave
	Warren Rogers

James Cruz Productions
present
"TO THE LADIES"
Directed by James Cruz.
Photographed by Vernon Keays.
Scenario by Walter Woods.
CAST:

Edward Horton	Z. Wall Covington
Theodore Roberts	Patricia Palmer
Helen Jerome Eddy	Arthur Hoyt
Louise Dresser	Jack Gardner

The Grenada Film Corp.
presents
"EIGHT BUCKS"
Directed by Fred Windamere.
Photographed by Lenwood Abbott.
Story by Fred Windamere.
CAST:

Raymond McKee	Aileen Manning
Marjorie Meadows	Dick Gordon
	Gertrude Clair



Muriel MacCormac, eminent film starlet, has just completed one of the principal roles in the production tentatively entitled "The Street of Painted Women" which is being made under the direction of Bruce Mitchell at the Ince studios in Culver City. This little lady is one of the most consistently successful of Hollywood's younger cinema set, and even as the lovable expression with which she endows her portrayals has endeared her to a multitude of fans, so has the high and undeviating quality of her work established her in the eyes of producers and directors as salient among her kindred screen players. She possesses that personality, that "something," that will lead her to the heights.

CASTS OF THE WEEK

"STOP AT NOTHING"
Directed by Chas. R. Seeling.
Photographed by Harry Cooper.
Story by Jeanne Poe.
CAST:

Shadow Brice	Geo Lark
Alice Burnham	Marguerite La Mo
Slick Sadie	Ollie Kirl
Burley Walters	Otto Metze
Spike Egan	Victor Metze
Lefty Hogan	Billie Ketch
Shorty Clark	Michael Ba
A Secretary	Kenneth Gre
A Detective	Jack Hou

The Rellimeo Film Syndicate
presents
"THE YELLOW STIGMA"
Directed by Colin Campell.
Photographed by Joe Brotherton.
Story by Grace Sanderson Mitchie.
CAST:

Wyndham Standing	Sam De Grasse
Rosemary Theby	Barbara Bedford
Raymond McKee	June Elvidge
Tully Marshall	John Patrick

A Dissertation of Memory

If there is such a thing as life after death ere is an indefinable quality of human ex- rience that will be carried across the great yond by every man and woman—and at the ne time left behind them as a legacy to their rtal brethren.

Like unto love this peculiar offspring of our elligence multiplies by usage and dissemina- n. One can neither smother it nor abbreviate presence.

Like love, it, too, has sent men to the gal- ws and to thrones. It, too, has driven strong n to weaknesses and inelligent men to mad- ss. But for all of that it is one of the most erished of divine gifts.

Imagine, if you can, a world without Mem- y. Imagine men and women waking each rning with every trace and thought of yes- day obliterated as by one fell stroke of an nniscient Magician's wand.

All men would be as children. Civilization uld vanish. Commercial progress would be possible. We would suddenly take our posi- n, possibly on all fours, with the rest of animal world.

But aside from these more material phases of existence the sentimental value of Memory is beyond compare. A mother's or father's memory of their children—the memory of their own childhood—of their courtship—the father's memory of his early struggles in business—isn't this the most cherished of all human things?

The other day three noted actors of the screen met at the Metro studio. They had met before, often. But they had not labored at the task of acting in the same picture and by the way, isn't a picture a Memory, after all?) —they had not appeared in the same film for nearly ten years—a decade fraught with fond and bitter memories. Owing to the extreme adolescence of the motion picture ten years seems a long time and actors who have retained their foothold in this make-believe world for this length of time are few and far between.

These three playerfolk had last appeared together in a strange and fascinating picture called, "The Avenging Conscience." It had been made by a man named David Wark Griffith, who had since attained great wealth and fame. Indeed, nearly all those associated with that group had attained similar rewards.

If these three had never uttered a word upon meeting they would have looked back upon the panorama of life and with a wistful eye recall the struggles and heartaches of their beginnings. In those days they were but harlequins striving to find themselves. Today their names are known wherever civilized people congregate.

Well—these three did talk and they drew upon their memories of those long gone, unforgettable days. They spoke of their colleagues, a Mae Marsh; one Arthur Johnson, since departed this world; a certain Mary Pickford, rather well-known; the demure little Gishes; Lionel Barrymore, a familiar name; and many, many others. What memories they possessed!

We wonder if George Siegmann, Blanche Sweet or Henry B. Walthall would barter these memories for a pound of gold—for it was they who held such a reminiscent session 'neath the canopy of the heavens out Hollywood way.

Memories —.

Of such stuff is Life.

Published Literature vs. the Original Story

At the present time, and undoubtedly more n usual, there is much discussion among ducers relative to the value of the published ry, or novel, as against the original story screen production.

An inventory of the pros and cons shows that nion is about equally divided, despite the fact t a novel or other published work, by the e it has been adapted for the screen, is in lity an original story.

Dwelling on the subject with Mack Sennett, t well-known and pioneer producer was most phatic in his choice of screen material. "To in with," said Sennett, "It must be admitted, the story is the thing. We need bigger ideas and stronger themes with which to make bigger and better pictures. There is a crying need for more wholesome plots and greater action in pictures.

"Personally, I prefer an original story for screen material, probably owing to the fact that I have made a special study of the effect my own productions have had on the public. I am quite sure that I am acquainted with a particular demand, which I am supplying. Such photoplays as "Mickey"; "Molly 'O"; "The Crossroads of New York"; "The Shriek of Araby"; "Suzanna" and "The Extra Girl", recently completed, and which were all produced from original stories, resulted in big, interesting and human screen plays and met with popular favor wherever they were presented, and already I am being deluged with information regarding the next play to be produced with the same star. Certainly that is proof enough that as far as my own productions are concerned, the original story is being accepted by those whom we all try to serve—the public.

"As a matter of fact," said Sennett, continuing, "I would much rather visualize a personality in a particular role, then have a special story written for both, than to wade through dozens of books for a theme which struck my fancy and have it rewritten for the screen."

Stick Whittlers

By DONALD H. CLARKE

Did you ever see one of those old chaps, sking in the sun on the platform of a country lroad station, who is willing to tell any one o may listen exactly what is the matter with way the country is run?

Chances are, if you did, that the old chap in- riably was whittling a stick. Chances are o that, as a stick whittler, you cordially uld agree that the President of the United tes, had little to learn from him. He could ittle as beautifully as Beethoven might son-

A stick, no matter how charmingly whittled, s little interest to most persons. But in the ds of the old critic who is our subject, it ght be considered to carry valuable symbolic ggestion.

This was brought to mind recently when the w screen version of Rex Beach's great askan story "The Spoilers" was presented the first time. The first version, made a ade ago, was generally considered one of the sterpieces of its day. And it was.

When the new "The Spoilers", made by Gold- n, was presented, there were one or two sons who said: "It's good; but it's not as od as the other "The Spoilers."

In the sense that persons who made that and similar comments haven't had anything to do with the making of motion pictures during the last ten years, they well might be called "stick whittlers". It doesn't make any difference what variety of sticks they had been whittling—stocks and bonds, prime cuts of roast beef, or choice slices of real estate.

If they could have seen the two versions of "The Spoilers" run one after the other they would have realized—as all those connected with the motion picture industry, including critics of it, have—that this picturization of the epic story of the Klondike, is one of the best proofs to be had of the astounding progress that the art of picture making has made in the last ten years.

Except to the stick whittlers there is no question of the amazing growth of this remarkable dramatic child of the twentieth century.

Remember the stick whittlers who watched the first clumsy automobile rattle-bang by, and said, "Well, I'll stick to horses."?

Remember the stick whittlers who heard that the Wrights really had flown for the first time, and said:

"That's all bunk."

Stick whittlers had nothing but caustic comments to make about the first steam engine, the cotton gin, the spinning jenny, the steamboat, the submarine, the telephone, the telegraph, the general rotundity of the earth, the fact that the earth revolves around the sun—everything new and worth while, in fact, including the fact that the world and everything connected with it is getting better and better every day.

They had the same sort of thing to say about motion pictures when they first were evolved within the memory of most of us.

The trains don't bustle by the stick whittlers past entrancing views towards a romantic destination any faster than the workers in any field of human endeavor hurtle on towards greater achievements.

The man who makes the world go round is the worker. The man who makes the movies move is a worker.

They talk about "throwing sand in the gear box." Maybe sand is only another name for the shavings from sticks that fall softly and practically unnoticed, in various guises, everywhere in the world.

FILM WILL REVEAL SECRETS OF ETERNAL YOUTH

Mozumdar, the Hindu metaphysician who is now producing "Beyond the Veil," promises that his second motion picture will reveal the secret of eternal youth.

In the Orient—especially in India, where Mozumdar was originally a member of the royal family in the Province of Bengal—the prolongation of life is a recognized fact, at least, among the native philosophers and their disciples. The mental power of the religious ascetic along these lines is regarded as a higher corollary of the fakir's tricks of growing a tree before your eyes, or of throwing a ladder into the air and having a small boy climb it and step off the top rung—into nothingness.

It was undoubtedly stories of Hindu mysticism, brought back from the Orient by Marco Polo and men of his ilk, which started Ponce de Leon on his Eastward journey in quest of the "Fountain of Youth."

According to Mozdumar, it's all a matter of our realization of the eternal life principle back of all growth and transition. "Since all flesh is fundamentally spiritual, like everything else in the universe," he says, "even though it is present to us as a visible concept, the mastery which comes in the realization of the life force can be developed to such an extent that the flesh can be spiritualized until it goes beyond the vision of the ordinary man. But very few of us in the whole world are anxious for such transference, although practically every mortal wants to enjoy a fuller span of life and with preserved youth."

This universal desire is attainable, according to Mozdumar; in fact, his followers declare that this man who looks not a day over twenty-five years of age, can prove by records that he is now over sixty. In any event, the Hindu metaphysician promises that his second film will reveal—as a secondary current to its innate dramatic plot—how the average man and woman can attain this realization of the eternal, constant and all-embracing life-force which will give him, or her, the power to retain youth for a comparatively indefinite period.

Mozumdar explains theories of semi-eternal youth to his leading woman, Kathryn McGuire.

Helen Lynch, as the stenographer in Bert Lytell's office, admires the handsome caller, Warde Crane.

GEORGE M. COHAN SONG HITS TO BE REVIVED

The music score for "The Meanest Man in the World," screen version of George M. Cohan's stage success of that name, will be a composition of his most popular song hits.

Renee Williams, conductor of Loew's Symphony Orchestra, is working over "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway," "Little Johnnie Jones," "So Long Mary" and Fifty Miles from Boston."

Principal Pictures Corporation's motion picture version of "The Meanest Man in the World," according to the New York critics has preserved all the Cohanesque humor and spontaneity. One critic says in part, "we want to express our heartfelt thanks to everyone from the director to the property man for not trying to improve on Cohan . . . . "we offer congratulations for the admirable way in which the lightness and spirit of the play has been sustained in the picture."

The Los Angeles showing of "The Meanest Man in the World," is scheduled for the very near future. Bert Lytell plays the title role ably supported by Blanche Sweet, Bryan Washburn, Forrest Robinson, Helen Lynch, Lincoln Stedman, Warde Crane, Victor Potel and Carl Stockdale. Edward F. Cline directed.

Constance Talmadge who will soon be seen in "The Dangerous Maid"

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1923

Kirkwood-Lee To Head Select Cast

James Kirkwood has returned to screen work and playing opposite him in the feature role at the Thomas H. Ince studios is Lila Lee, his wife. The announcement was made following the completion of the cast for a Bruce Mitchell story temporarily titled, "The Street of Painted Women," and includes Wallace Beery and Matt Moore. Bruce Mitchell is also directing the feature.

The story is laid on the West American Coast from San Francisco to Mazatlan, Mexico, with a Mexican locale predominating. One of the most beautiful estates in the quaint West Coast Mexican City will be reproduced for the big scenes of the feature. The entire company will leave Los Angeles next week for San Francisco where the first scenes of the picture will be made.

Attending physicians for Kirkwood pronounced him entirely recovered from his serious accident in which he sustained a fractured skull. It was thought for a time that he would be unable ever again to appear upon the screen. The accident occurred at the Beverly Hills stable, where he was thrown from a horse, just four weeks after Miss Lee and he were married and while they were enjoying their honeymoon.

Miss Lee, Kirkwood, Wallace Beery, and Matt Moore comprise one of the most remarkable casts of the year, according to film experts.

CELEBRITIES ATTEND HOUSE WARMING

One of the most notable gatherings of stage and screen celebrities took place when Mr. and Mrs. Conway Tearle tendered a housewarming at their new home on Orange Drive in Hollywood.

Various features of entertainment marked the occasion, including a repertoire of popular and classical vocal numbers by Mrs. Tearle, better known among followers of vaudeville as Adele Rowland.

The new Tearle home is one of the most artistic estates in Hollywood and has just been completed. The Tearles will make their permanent home and have installed various furnishings from their Long Island home.

Among the guests were Ethel Barrymore, Mrs. Leslie Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Chadwick, Mr. and Mrs. Krauford Kent, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Denny and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crane.

Duncan Sisters Sign With S. F. Producer

Louis Graf,, president, and Max Graf, supervising director of the Graf Productions, operating at San Mateo, Cal., consummated negotiations yesterday when they placed under long term contract the internationally famous Duncan Sisters, whom they will present on the silversheet in a series of pictures. It is difficult to say who are more elated over this contract, one of the most interesting ever signed in filmdom—the Graf Brothers who consider Rosetta and Vivian Duncan the biggest of assets to the screen, or the girls themselves, eager for still another outlet for their captivating art.

Many contracts have been offered the Duncan Sisters, but the proposition offered by the Graf organization was most appealing.

Said the sisters, all aglow over their debut on the screen as they discussed it off stage at the Alcazar theater, San Francisco, where their production "Topsy and Eva" has broken all records in the history of things theatrical there:

"While we have had many alluring offers, we wanted to give to the screen the same kind of work and accomplished in the same manner that has given us a name in this country and abroad on the stage. We must be individual and free to create in our own way. This is what we can do sponsored by the Grafs for they are fully in sympathy with us."

The Graf Brothers, have been watching the success of the Sisters for some time and analyzing their remarkable popularity.

"They are unique and delightful artists, wonderful gloom dispellers and filling a most important place on the stage," said Max Graf. "But since the screen has nothing like them for they are inimitable, we felt that they should fill this niche as well and take their art wherever motion pictures are shown."

While plans are still indefinite as to time production will begin, and were, due to the record breaking run of "Topsy and Eva" which will dictate the place of operatiions, it is more than likely that the first vehicle will be produced in New York, for "Topsy and Eva" is scheduled for Broadway when San Francisco will let it go. Max Graf will supervise the production and is now negotiating for the organization staff. Mr. Graf has signed no director, but has in mind a well-known director who has known the Duncan Sisters all their lives and who is most sympathetic with their ideas which will have full reign.

Another interesting thing about the plans is the first co-starring vehicle which in all likelihood will be "The Unheavenly Twins" of which Rosetta Duncan, the older sister, is the author. Rosetta as usual will be the prankster and the clown, while Vivian will keep the same character she has established on the stage.

When "The Fog" which will shortly be shown in Los Angeles was under production at San Mateo in the Spring, Max Graf took a screen test of the Duncan Sisters and results were so wonderful and their art was just as captivating in pantomime as on the speaking stage, the Graf Brothers had but one thought—to place them under contract. The Sisters were interested but were too full of work on the book of "Topsy and Eva" to talk business. But now that everything is settled, they are bubbling over with such enthusiasm that the public can hold its breath until they begin and hold it again when their work is flashed on the screen, for they are veritable whirlwinds!

Niblo Praises Ray's Late Offering

Fred Niblo, being interviewed by the correspondent of 643 newspapers, spent the entire time talking about Charles Ray and "The Courtship of Miles Standish" in spite of anything his publicity director could do about it.

"You have just finished "Strangers of the Night", suggested the interviewer.

"Yes", answered Niblo, "and I want to tell you that when I saw that magnificient document of history unfolding on the screen, I wept with the joy of being an American and rejoiced in knowing Charles Ray."

"'The Famous Mrs. Fair' was a splendid picture", said the interviewer.

"Glad you liked it", said Niblo, "and I am not prejudiced because my own lovely Enid Bennett played 'Priscilla'. The entire production is tremendous in its artistry and power. Every player lives in 1620. It is Great—Great—....."

"What is your own favorite picture?" asked the interviewer.

"Toss up between 'The Three Musketeers' and 'Strangers of the Night'," he answered, "but I want you to see Charles Ray in 'The Courtship of Miles Standish'".

Because Mr. Niblo wrecked his own interview, it is incumbent upon his publicity department to state that he has just finished "Strangers of the Night" and that he is preparing to film "Thy Name is Woman", a stage play of modern Spain.

Actors Benefit To Be Held At Auditorium

On Monday night, October 29, the Auditorium will be the scene of a monster benefit performance to be given by the motion picture branch of the Actors' Fund of America.

Preparations are already under way to make this event the most brilliant and elaborate of the theatrical season. Fred Niblo, prominent director is in charge of the staging while George Foster Platt, celebrated writer, will supervise the selection of plays and will personally direct three of the numbers. Neely Dickson is to stage a dance pantomime unlike anything heretofore seen in Los Angeles. Many prominent stars of both stage and screen will take part in the show which according to announcements will be in the nature of a huge extravaganza.

The Actors' Fund Benefits are the only events sponsored by the entire theatrical profession and the Actors' Fund of America, which is headed by Daniel Frohman, is the only charitable organization of the theatre to which the profession subscribes. All the performers, directors, and those handling the business affairs of the Benefit are donating their services. The Auditorium has also been donated while the government has exempted the tickets of admission from war-tax, thus making it nearly a one hundred percent benefit. The only expenses attached will be a negligent sum spent in advertising, printing, etc.

The executive committee of the motion picture branch of the Actors Fund of America consists of Frank E. Woods, chairman; Robert Fairbanks, treasurer; Rev. Neal Dodd, secretary; Winifred Kingston, Marian Fairfax, Charles A. Stevenson, Mitchell Lewis, Joseph de Grasse, Will T. Wyatt, Wedgewood Nowell and Mark Larkin.

Helene Chadwick, like most people today, has taken a dislike to that tropical fruit, due to the chantings of the millions anent the fact that someone failed to possess bananas.

Yet Helene has cause to mention the fruit quite frequently, due to the fact that right outside her bungalow window in Hollywood there grows one of the few banana trees in this community bearing its first bunch of fruit.

Because of her dislike to the word banana, Miss Chadwick proudly calls the attention of all visitors to her "herbaceous plant" which has fastened to its sturdy stem a sign reading, "No puns on bananas allowed."

Strange Telegrams Mystify Kerrigan

W. W. Kerrigan, business manager of the Mary Pickford Company, is today much mystified over certain telegrams he has been receiving regarding large numbers of horses. These mysterious wires have been pouring into the Pickford business office ever since it was announced that 400 horses were needed for "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall."

The first wire read: "Can give you good price on job lot four hundred second hand saw horses." Then came the following: "Understand you are in market for four hundred horses. We are wrecking old Merry-Go-Round and suggest you use these. Probably not much good in foreground but should appeal to you because they are cheap." The first wire was signed by "Economical Construction Co." and the second by "Church Amusement Co."

Investigation by Kerrigan's assistant disclosed the fact that the "Economical Construction Co." is Robert Fairbanks, Doug's brother who likes a joke just as much as Doug, and that "Church Amusement Co." is his assistant, Ted Reed. This information, however, is being held out on Kerrigan. For him the mystery deepens with every new telegram.

IRENE IN NEW MOTHER ROLE

"The darlingest part I ever had the opportunity to portray."

This feministic description was the manner in which Irene Rich expresses her appreciation of the role which she plays in "Misunderstood," a screen version of the next Booth Tarkington story to be produced by J. K. McDonald for First National.

Under her contract with Warner Brothers, Miss Rich reserves the right to play only in pictures for other companies which meet with her approval. The characterization of the mother in this picture, the wife of a man who fails to understand his nine-year-old son, she considers is an ideal part and, as she describes it, "the darlingest" which she has ever played.

"Misunderstood," which went into production recently, is directed by William Beaudine, who guided "Penrod and Sam." Its cast includes Henry B. Walthall, who will enact the role of the stern, unrelenting father, Ben Alexander and Rockliffe Fellowes.

Edward Horton, widely-known comedian, who is supporting Bryant Washburn in "Try and Get It," his first starring picture for Grand-Asher, will in the near future take a flyer in the two-a-day, having been offered booking by the Orpheum circuit, it is said.

CURIOSITIES OF TITLING

By PAUL D. HUGON

If you were to run your fingers lightly across the keys of a Linotype machine, as a child does with the keys of a piano, you would be presented with the word ETAOIN.

And hereby hangs a tale. Your education in typography probably extends as far as the typewriter. You have wondered why on earth letters were not placed in alphabetical order, instead of the familliar QWERTYUIPO. And no doubt you have been told (which is not the correct answer) that this is the way type runs in a printer's case.

Using some letters more than others, the printer naturally tries to keep together those that come in most frequently. Count the letters in this line, and you will find some used not at all, like the Q. After years and years of selling type, in such proportions as to make millions and millions of words, type founders know just how often a given letter will recur. That recurrence is easily remembered, as regards the principal letters, as ETAOIN, which means that there are more E's used than any other letter, then more T's and so on.

Is it equally true of motion picture titles? Yes and no.

Ordinarily printing, from which printers' averages are compiled, includes a mass of material such as financial quotations, business correspondence, scientific works—all of which contain words and combinations of letters seldom found in titles.

Titles, it has been said with painful truthfulness, are written for the average person. National intelligence tests, covering six million people, having shown that the average person is 14 years old—or equivalent to a successful public school pupil in the eighth grade—titles have been and are written for that 14-year-old. Which means that titles use only words found in the eighth-grade reader and speller.

But the vast majority of titles are SPOKEN titles. Every time I mention a spoken title, I remember with a pain my first experience with that commodity. It was years and years ago, at the time when France was the unsurpassed mistress of the film world. I was then producing pictures in England, and subject to the strict censorship of a French editor. The idea of using spoken titles occurred to me, about the same time as it occurred to American producers—but not for your French editor.

So when I wrote: "Get out, before I wring your neck!" he changed it to a narrative: "Angered at his enemy's resistance, he ordered him out of the house."

Needless to say, that prominent editor is prominent no more. R. I. P. But the spoken title is here to stay. And spoken titles have a habit of using certain words almost to the exclusion of al others.

Of three very recent and very prominent productions, no less than 66 titles began with the letter I. Mostly just "I"—people speak mostly about themselves; sometimes "It" and occasionally "In".

In the same three films, 32 titles began with a T. There are so many small words in English starting with T, such as The, Then, This, That. One of the largest newspapers in London has a rule for its sub-editors that small paragraphs positively must never start with the words The or That—because all the paragraphs would start that that way if it were allowed.

The letter A came a god third at the beginning of words in those films, and Y came fourth. Y stands for You, which accounts for its popularity in dialogue.

W stood highest of all the capital letters in a very successful and and intensely dramatic production. Most of the titles semed to begin with questions: Where, When, Who, Why, Will you, Won't you, Whose, Which. In fact, you could tell by one glance at the frequency of that letter that the film was one of intense personalities. The use of the words suggested and induced a tempo that was unmistakable.

Taken all in all, the recurrence of ordinary letters in average films is very near one friend ETAOIN. It might be more correctly stated as ETAOINRASH.

But, curiously enough, the letter E which is of the most frequent occurence in the text of titles, is hardly ever found as an initial. Titles don't begin with E's. The vast majority begin with I or T or A or W or Y.

Which shows once more that we are creatures of habit, we who write titles as much as we who read them.

British Magnates Here on Business

John H. Taylor of London and John Maxwell of Edinborough and Glasgow arrived in Los Angeles with Charles H. Christie for their first visit to American producing centers. The foreign visitors came over on the Majestic and will be the guests here of the Christie brothers for ten days.

Mr. Taylor is managing director in London for Christie Film Sales, Ltd. and also of Screen Arts Ltd., distributing pictures for the United Kingdom and Continental Europe; while Mr. Maxwell has large theatre interests in Scotland, booking pictures for his own group of houses and for additional Scottish theatres.

Mr. Christie returned to his studios after an absence of six weks in Europe, during which time he traveled extensively on the Continent as well as visiting the important film centers in the British Isles. The visiting party was met with a typical "western style" welcome on Al Christie's set where a cowboy comedy is in process of filming.

Mary Pickford Will Go To San Francisco

Indications are now that Mary Pickford will go to San Francisco shortly for a number of the exterior scenes for "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall". If arrangements can be made for the desired locations, the trip will be taken soon after the first scenes are shot at the studio. Marshall Neilan, directing the piece, Charles Rosher, photographer, several of the principals of the cast and Miss Pickford will make up the party.

Preparations for the start of the picture are going forward rapidthe studio. fraf wofa maf mh ly. Several sets are now under way at the studio. Among these is the exterior of Haddon Hall, 280 feet long by 140 fet wide, an exact representation of the famous old castle in England, having been duplicated from photographs and measurements obtained on the ground.

According to W. W. Kerrington, business manager, 31 costumes for the principals are now in work. This does not take into account those to be worn by Miss Pickford. Other preparations include the making of 20 huge tapestries and several hundred props. "I have already issued 102 job orders for props," said Kerrigan, "many of them for a dozen different things."

Plans are now being drawn for 21 sets in addition to those already under construction. In the art and designing department 15 men are working at top speed, and in the wardrobe department, ten persons are engaged on special stuff. To make her hats for this picture Miss Pickford has her own milliner.

Five carriages, typical of the period, are now being built by a carriage maker brought out from the East especially for this task.

Among the interesting props in work are the hergldic chest which duplicates the one now in Haddon Hall, the State Bed, ueen Elizabeth's carriage and Sedan chair shoe trees and hat racks, Queen Mary's couch, day bed tables and an archer's bow-stringer.

That newspapermen form the backbone of the motion picture industry is apparently the belief of Harry Cohn, general manager of Waldorf productions and one of the youngest producers in Hollywood. Cohn has surrounded himself with former journalists to aid in the making and distribution of films.

Edward J. Le Saint was a daily paper scribe before he entered the films and later became a director. Jack Strumwasser, scenario chief at Waldorf was a feature writer on eastern newspapers, while Gardner Bradford in charge of the title department was an one time dramatic editor of a Los Angeles newspaper.

Landis To Star In New Formed Company

Cullen Landis has now begun arrangements for his first starring vehicle in the picturization of "The Ridin' Kid From Powder River," by H. H. Knibbs, the scenario rights of which he owns. J. Edwin New, Mr. Landis' business manager, and Robert Ensminger, who will direct the film, have left for Arizona to establish the location sites for the production and to make reservations for the company.

Upon reaching the first lap of their journey, Messrs. New and Ensminger will travel 200 miles further by automobile into the interior in the very locale which formed the setting for the Knibbs story. The cow region and the desert willl form the background of a picture which will be made in accordance with Mr. Landis' long-cherished ideals of how a Western should be produced.

Production is scheduled for October 15th and the casting will commence immediately upon the return of Messrs. New and Ensminger. Mr. Landis will be surrounded by the strongest cast obtainable, while Mr. Knibbs, the author, will accompany them on location and act in a supervising capacity.

Mr. Landis is now appearing in Metro's "The Man Whom Life Passed By," in which he is playing juvenile lead.

GIVES VIEWS OF SCREEN

Edward Burns, who plays one of the featured roles in "Superstition," declares that stage work as a foundation for a successful screen career is indispensable.

"When I first began work in pictures with the Fox organization about six years ago," declared Burns, "I found my work on the legitimate stage was of much material value in securing film engagements. Actors with stage experience were in great demand by studio managers and casting directors. The high salaries and pleasant work aided in the enlistment of a great number of well-known stage players to the screen.

"After a time there was a call for new screen faces and producers and directors began scouting around for new talent. Beauty contests were held at different times all over the country, and when producers became 'fed up' with failures acquired from this source, new screen 'finds' with ability became the cause of a high soar in film salaries among the newcomers.

"Consequently it is becoming more and more difficult for inexperienced players to enter the film work, and yet musical comedy stars and other persons, who have become used to public appearances and therefore have gained poise, do not find many bridges to cross before obtaining success in screen work," concluded Burns.

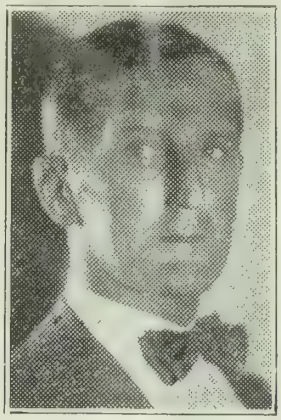
Sorry Old Man, Nothing Doing Today!

A crestfallen old man walked away from the casting director's window at the Fred Niblo studio with faltering steps. But no sooner did he pass out of the building than a broad grin broke over his face. Then followed a hearty peal of laughter as the aged actor sat upon the curb doubled up with mirth.

"That's the best yet," said the transformed old gentleman to himself. "And I never used to believe those stories about the studio gateman holding up the actor because he did not recognize him in his make-up."

And "Bill" Mong slapped his leg and resumed his laughter. For it was none other than the famous character actor who was sympathetically turned away by the casting director at the Niblo studio on he stopped at the casting office to pay his respects to those within, when he was greeted with a cheery, "Sorry, old man. Nothing doing today."

And be it known, this is not a modern version of the famous, though decrepit "gateman" story made popular in the text of the press agent's primer. It's facts—plain facts, says William V. Mong's honest and unblushing press agent.



Melrose avenue where Mong is essaying one of the leading roles in Louis B. Mayer's production, "Thy Name Is Woman."

Mong had no intention of perpetrating a joke on the casting office as he walked through the studio administration building in his costume for the production. Attired as an elderly old gentleman,

Uses Loud Speaker to Direct Crowds

A complete change in the system of direction of huge mob scenes in the big spectacular pictures is taking place, due to the success an idea, adopted as an experiment, met with in the production of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

The big scenes hereafter will be directed through the agency of a telephonic loudspeaker.

When Wallace Worsley who made "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," approached his big scenes he tried to handle them in the old way—that is by standing by the camera and signaling thoroughly posted assistant directors who were down with the mob. After running through several times and failing to get the action he wanted he hit on the idea of the loudspeaker.

The camera was on a huge stand seventy feet tall and a quarter of a mile from the center of the square in front of the Cathedral in which the mob was to mill around. Loudspeakers were concealed in the doorway of the cathedral and at three other points.

When the movement for action came, Worsley, speaking in a conversational tone into the microphone of the instrument, heard his own voice magnified to giant proportions bellowing out a quarter of a mile away. It came like the sharp crack of cavalry commands. Inspired by its boom, and held together by the fact that the one instruction reached every person at the same moment, the three thousand persons in the scene went through their parts, more perfectly than wouid have been possible by any other system.

Worsley, having the script read to him at the proper rate of speed and with binoculars glued to his eyes so that he could note details, was able to give specific instructions to limited groups within the crowd.

The scheme enabled him to hold the three thousand persons perfectly to the action he wanted, and because the mob scene sets a new standard in the technique of picture making, the Worsley system is being generally adopted.

Jackie Coogan has three more pictures to make on his present contract with Metro Pictures. The first, "Long Live the King," an adaptation of Mary Roberts Rinehart's novel of the same name, will be released in November. The story is a new departure for Jackie and he is seen in a role entirely at variance with those involving the ragged cap, the torn breeches and the all-enveloping sweater.

Six years with Edison; two years with Vitagraph; two years with Fox; two years with Paramount—five times abroad for pictures—this is a partial record of Marc MacDermott's career before the camera. MacDermott is now playing the character lead in Mabel Forrest's first starring picture, "The Satin Girl," a Ben Wilson production for Grand-Asher, directed by Arthur Rosson.

Cameramen To Hold Frolic At Biltmore

The American Society of Cinematographers will present the new Biltmore's premiere motion picture ball to be held Saturday night, October 27th, according to an announcement made by the Board of Governors of the cameramen's organization.

The A. S. C. function will not only be the premiere motion picture affair at Southern California's new hostelry but will be the opening cinema ball of the season in Los Angeles or Hollywood.

This will be the fourth annual ball of the organization since the American Society of Cinematographers was founded in 1919. The previous functions of the society ranked among the most successful ever given within the film profession; and the forthcoming ball, it is stated, will surpass its predecessors in brilliancy.

Where heretofore the A. S. C. functions have been virtually confined to members of the profession itself, the general public, for the first time, will be accorded the opportunity of attending the cinematographer's Biltmore affair.

General arrangements for the ball are in charge of John F. Seitz, first vice-president of the society.

SEASTROM'S FIRST

Victor Seastrom's first American production—a story by Sir Hall Caine, on which the director has worked for six months—will be released under the title, "Name the Man!"

Sir Hall Caine personally has approved the new title, and helped in its selection, Goldwyn announces.

The story was published under the name of "The Master of Man" but, to avoid confusion with pictures with similar names, was made under the temporary title of "The Judge and the Woman," while the permanent title was being decided.

A brilliant cast enacts the dramatic roles of "Name the Man!" with Mae Busch, Conrad Nagel, Creighton Hale, Hobart Bosworth and Patsy Ruth Miller.

The story revolves around the romance of two girls and a young judge, reaching its dramatic intensity in a girl's passionate fight for her life in the big courtroom scene.

Bryant Washburn, Grand-Asher star, claims to have written the shortest continuity on record. To prove his claim he submits the following:

Scene 1. Powder magazine. Man enters. Sits near keg of powder which has been opened. Man lights match.

The End.

This could be recommended for the use of anyone desiring to make a short reel subject.

Film Stars Form Unique Club For Girls

Virginia Brown Faire, under long term contract with First National as featured player, who will shortly be seen in "The Thundergate" put a big idea in operation Monday night at her Hollywood home, 1714 Garfield street, when the first meeting took place of the newly launched, "The Regulars." When Miss Faire, with other recent twinklers, took part in the Writers' Revue, she then conceived the plan of an organization of girls in pictures who took their work seriously, ambitious to develope their art, who would get together once a week, discussing the best plays and pictures and also worth while books. The plan is to see every good play and picture that comes to Los Angeles, to study them critically, even taking notes. As interesting things come up in the screen work of each girl, these will also be discussed.

"Back of all this in the first place was the consciousness that we girls are so busy that we see little of each other and that this was a great loss," explained Miss Faire. "We felt that with a club we could develope our minds and broaden our screen work through discussions. There is a lot of talent in the club and we plan to put on one-act plays, entertain at the hospitals, or any benefits. Also there is to be no gossip in the club and we are to uphold each other on all occasions. For "The Regulars" are regular girls!"

The girls present at the first meeting are all starlings and include in addition to Miss Faire, Priscilla and Marjorie Bonner, Maryon Aye, Kathleen Key. Pauline Curley, Menifee Johnston, Alberta Vaughan and Grace Gordon, while invitations have been sent to Colleen Moore, Bessie Love, Claire Windsor, Pauline Starke, Zazu Pitts, with a few more names to be added. Miss Faire was elected president but accepted the office only temporarily until a full meeting could be called and Miss Johnston, secretary. The club emblem is neither the conventional pin nor ring, but ear rings, for "The Regulars" decided they would be original!

CHRISTIE GOES CALLING

"Come out to the studio some time; just try to get in!"

The above has been a famous catch phrase around the Los Angeles studios for many years, but Al Christie found out the real truth of it last week when canvassing for Hollywood's second annual dog show.

Many hundreds of people have knocked at the front door of the well known comedy producer's studio in the past, but going around collecting trophies this year showed Mr. Christie just how tough it is for the outsider to "crash the gate" at the other fellow's studio.

Rapidly Gaining Recognition as Portrayer of Great Characters

The rapidity with which J. C. "Jack" Fowler successfully portrays character upon character, each of a vastly different nature, easily places him as king of the grease pots, and with a versatility second to none in the profession.

On his return to Hollywood this week after completing the role of the crook gambler and card shark in the ship scenes of "The Street of Painted Women," taken at sea between here and San Francisco, with director Bruce Mitchell and members of the cast on board including James Kirkwood, Lila Lee, Kate Price and others, he was at once snapped up to enact the role been scoured by the Renaud Hoffman Productions in their efforts to find a character actor with facial lines somewhat resembling the great poet, Whittier, and while Fowler bore no particular likeness until after he had finished with the old make-up box and a silver grey beard and then the resemblance was actually startling with every authentic detail.

of the poet, John Greenleaf Whittier, author of "Maude Muller," in the picture by the same name now being produced at the Hollywood Studios with Marjorie Daw in the title role of Maude Muller.

The whole of Hollywood had

Our Boy Scouts Are Movie Heroes

One thousand Boy Scouts in Los Angeles were invited to take part in the making of a motion picture, and every one of them accepted the invitation.

The picture was "The Good Bad Boy", which Bennie Zeidman made for Principal Pictures Corporation, and Joe Butterworth plays the featured juvenile role. Joe, in the story, is the bugler of his company, and in a thrilling episode wherein the villain is carrying off the beautiful heroine, Joe bugles his bugle and the thousand scouts respond. They dash to the rescue of the little girl, bind and gag the villain and take him on their shoulders to the police station.

This sequence of the story was taken on the corner of Hollywood Boulevard and Western Avenue, one of the busiest in this traffic-jammed community. But the Boy Scouts had no difficulty in making their dash after the speeding automobile of the villain, for a fifteen year old platoon—took his place at the center button and held up traffic while the khaki-clad youngsters raced across the street.

Edward F. Cline, who directed Buster Keaton's "Three Ages", "Circus Days" with Jackie Coogan, and will soon begin on Baby Peggy's first feature for Principal Pictures, directed the Zeidman production of "The Good Bad Boy". Forrest Robinson has the principal role in the story, with Lucy Beaumont, Richard Wayne, Mary Jane Irving, Arthur Hull and Edwards Davis in support.

Barrymore Makes His Western Debut

John Barrymore, a member of the famous Barrymore theatrical family, arrived in Los Angeles recently to play the star role in "Beau Brummel", which Harry Beaumont will direct for the Warner Brothers. This is said to be the first trip Barrymore has made to the coast in several years, the last one having been made as a pleasure jaunt. At the depot to greet the famous theatrical star were Harry M. Warner, Jack L. Warner, Director Beaumont, and a host of screen friends.

For the leading feminine role in support of Barrymore, the Warners, through an arrangement with Famous Players, have secured the services of Mary Astor. Other prominent players thus far engaged are Irene Rich, Carmel Myers, Richard Tucker, William Humphrey, Alec B. Francis, Andre de Beranger and Michael Dark.

"Beau Brummel", based on the historical facts and play by Clyde Fitch, has been adapted for the screen by Dorothy Farnum.

WELCOME MARIE

Marie Walcamp returns to the silver screen after an extended trip abroad, spending almost a year in Japan.

Miss Walcamp has long been recognized as a star and through the nature of the leads she played won the sobriquet of "dare devil."

Romeo and Juliet Norma's Next Offering

The truth of the old proverb that classics never die is again demonstrated with the news from Joseph M. Schenck that Norma Talmadge is going to do a screen version of Shakespeare's greatest love story, "Romeo and Juliet," already picturized seven times and produced on the stage by countless professional and amateur companies of thespians.

At the same time the rumor is current that Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks are thinking of filming the play. It will be recalled that in 1916 two film productions of "Romeo and Juliet" appeared on the screens of America —one produced by Metro with Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, the other by Fox with Theda Bara—and both were successful. Then, only last year, Ethel Barrymore and Jane Cowl were rival Juliets in simultaneous Broadway productions of the play. It would be curious if history were to repeat itself on the screen.

However, whether or not the Pickford-Fairbanks combination does anything in the matter, Norma is going ahead with her plans to star in a more lavish and ambitious picturization of the Shakespearean play than has yet been attempted. She hopes to make it a triumph of her screen career.

Just who will play Romeo in the Talmadge-First National Picture, has not been settled, but it will probably be Joseph Schildkraut, a new meteor in the film firmament and star of the Viennese and New York dramatic stage. Young handsome and an exceptional actor, Schildkraut should make a particularly good Romeo.

That Norma Talmadge, who ranks as one of the screen's finest emotional actresses, will make an ideal Juliet is widely believed. Only recently she led all rivals by a large majority in a voting contest conducted by the New York Daily News, to select the most popular actress for the role in a screen production of "Romeo and Juliet." Conway Tearle, who plays opposite Miss Talmadge in her current First National release, "Ashes of Vengeance," won third place in the race for the role of Romeo.

The popularity of "Romeo and Juliet" as screen material dates back to 1913 when the first film production of the Shakespearean romance was turned out in two reels by Pathe. In 1914 the old Biograph made a 500-foot picture of it. After an interval of two years the big Metro and Fox productions came out, the former being 8,000 and the latter 5,000 feet. In 1917 Educational Film Company screened a "Romeo and Juliet"; in 1918 the Crystal Film Company turned out a two-reeler, and in 1920 Star-Universal offered a one reel version of the imperishable romance.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

Injured In Auto Accident

While driving near Elsinor Fred Guiol, director, and Jimmie Parrot, who is known on the screen as Paul Parrot, both of the Hal Roach studios, were struck by a larger and heavier car than theirs and hurtled from the road. Guiol suffered a fracture of the arm and Parrot's nose was broken as a result of the crash. They were enroute to San Diego.

Ralph Lewis located the first United States mail wagon ever used by a carrier in California and used it in making additional scenes for his "Mail Man", in which he plays the stellar role. The vehicle is so small it couldn't carry the mail that is delivered in one square block in Hollywood today.

E. G. Patterson, business manager of the Standard Film Laboratories left Hollywood for a short business trip to New York City. Accompanying him is F. G. Conklin, who has been engaged to take charge of the Standard's New York offices. Patterson will return to the coast this month.

Severing his former connections, W. Irving has taken offices at the Standard Film Laboratories building on Seward Street, and announces that he will make a series of four I. W. Irving Productions for Selznick release. He will work with the Hollywood Studios.

Irving has just returned from the Big Bear country hunting locations for his first picture, "The Dawn of Love," a gripping romance of the mountains of Virginia. This first production will feature an all-star cast.

Peter Burke has been cast for leading man in "The Elk's Tooth," the first feature production of Realles, Inc.

Mr. Burke has just finished playing the male lead opposite Jane Novak in "The Lullaby." In the interim, Burke is vacationing in Santa Monica canyon where he is building a palatial cabin of which he is designer, architect, constructor, plumber, electrician, interior decorator, landscape gardener—and he says he will be sole occupant.

Apart from his ability to play hero parts, Mr. Burke is known on the Boulevard as the only actor who can tear a full pack of playing cards into eights with his bare hands.

Frank Borzage, who was recently signed by Producer Joseph M. Schenck to direct Norma Talmadge in her next film, "Secrets," is in Cleveland with his assistant, Bernard Dull, to view the stage production of "Secrets", which is now playing in the Ohio metropolis.

De Grasse To Direct "Flowing Gold"

The gods are kind! A Richard Walton Tully production of a Rex Beach novel, under the direction of Joseph De Grasse, for First National release! That is to be "Flowing Gold," Tully's next offering to the screen.

The Tully offices announce that De Grasse has signed to direct this epic of the oil fields of Texas. No better choice could have been made than this veteran who has been constantly in the harness since 1909, when he entered the Pathe ranks as actor-director. Some of his most notable successes have been "Heart of the Hills", "My Friend's Wife", "The Undertow", "The Girl I Loved", and "Thundergate", a current First National picture.

• Mr. De Grasse is at present enjoying a short vacation at Wellington, pending the return from New York of Tully, and actual production will start within a couple of weeks.

Chaplin and Schildkraut Laud Goldwyn Directors!

Erich von Stroheim and Victor Seastrom, famous Goldwyn directors, have received compliments from two of the best known men of the films.

In a recent article in a Los Angeles paper, Charles Chaplin said: "Seastrom distinguishes himself with a finer feeling and better taste than the rest of us."

From Joseph Schildkraut, star of "Liliom" and "Peer Gynt," comes this straightforward compliment to the genius of von Stroheim: "In my opinion, Erich von Stroheim is the greatest man in motion pictures."

Production is now in progress at the Hal Roach Studios on the new two reel Stan Laurel Comedy. The story has for its locale, Old Ireland Herself. There is to be a regular Irish "Wake" in it.

Among the supporting cast are: Mae Laurel, Ena Gregory, Jimmy Finlayson, Glen Tyron, Helen Gilmore, and Jack Ackroyd.

Len Powers, director for the Hal Roach "Dippy-Doo-Dads" comedies, is now deep in the mysteries of producing a picture that deals with the divorce question—from a monkey's view point. There will be a wedding scene and a trial at court.

Louise Fazenda already has been signed for a featured role and the supporting cast will be an all star affair. Del Andrews who directed the steeple chase for "The Hottentot" has been chosen to megaphone the production for which he has written the continuity. The story was adapted by Will Lambert from Frank R. Adam's story "Friend Wife."

JACK PICKFORD FINISHING FILM

Jack Pickford is placing the final touches on his second Allied Distributors and Producers Corporation release, "Valley of the Wolf", at the Pickford-Fairbanks Studio in Hollywood this week.

On completion of the filming, Jack will begin titling, cutting and editing it in order to have it ready for late Fall release.

When the first print is completely ready, Jack will stick it in his suitcase and catch the California Limited for New York City, where he will rejoin his wife, Marilyn Miller, now starring on Broadway in "Sally".

The young star and independent producer contemplates producing a picture while in the East. The title has not been announced.

BARKER'S LATEST

With Huntly Gordon as the father, Mary Alden as the mother and Norma Shearer and William Collier, Jr., as their two children, Reginald Barker has corralled a quartette of experts in the art of visualizing the American family spirit when at peace and at war. These four popular payers play the principal roles in Mr. Barker's latest production, "Pleasure Mad," which Louis B. Mayer will present through Metro. The thrilling adventures of a plain family in being lifted suddenly from poverty to opulence only to find happiness more elusive in the land of plenty than it is in the realm of want constitute what is said to be one of the best photoplays Mr. Barker has ever made.

Lesser Speaks in London

Sol Lesser, president of Principal Pictures Corporation, was invited to speak at a dinner given in his honor by the Author's League of England, in London. Ralph Pugh, London representative of Associated First National Pictures, made arrangements for the film chief to address the newspapermen's organization of that city as well.

Lesser has chosen as his subjects "The Screen and Proper Stories" and "A Firmer Film Bond between Europe and America."

After touring the European capitals where he expects to make foreign connections for Principal Pictures Corporation, Lesser will return to his studio in Hollywood where "The Winning of Barbara Worth" will go into production immediately upon his arrival there.

The Premium PiPcture Co., of Beaverton, Oregon, are shooting the closing scenes of the "Harbor Patrol" and will start their next production during the current week.

Frank Whitson is playing the featured Heanes in the production.

Robert McGowan, who directs the Hal Roach "Our Gang" comedies, is now busily engaged in getting costumes and sets ready for his next production, in which the "Gang" will appear as pirates bold.

A comedy special for First National release which he declares will "knock the spots" off the record hit scored by "The Hottentot" last year will be Thomas H. Ince's next production.

Ince today announced that he is casting "The Galloping Fish," a story for laughing purposes only. With "Anna Christie" in the cutting room, the producer has turned to an entirely different field and proposes to put out a comedy that will make the laugh specialists sit up and take notice.

A trained seal will be one of the star performers in this tale which is said to have some entirely "different" angles as original as they are humorous. There are numerous sequences built around spectacular water stunts that promise a laugh a minute. Camera work will start in ten days.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

On her return from location in San Francisco, Virginia Valli, featured in King Vidor's production for Goldwyn, "Wild Oranges", will find her wardrobe bereft of three new gowns recently purchased. And it is probable the following will be found in the papers:

"For Sale—or will give away—one playful bear cub. Perfect house pet if playful tendency toward exploring clothes closets can be curbed."

Wanda Gets Shiek's Outfit

Contrary to every time-honored tradition of the Bedouin race, a complete, typical shiek's outfit has been sent to Wanda Hawley as a memento of her stay in Egypt, during the making of one of her foreign starring vehicles on the Sahara desert. Sheykh—this is the correct spelling—Sid Achmed el Gabir, of Mena village, where the Pyramids of Ghizeh are situated, sent Miss Hawley the complete outfit, which is an exact duplicate of his own. It consists of a linen undergarment, high shoes of goatskin, a gaily striped tunic, a burnoose of real camel's hair, a square of silk for the head and the corded ribbon which binds it about the brow—god for all weather, impervious to rain and sun and seemingly indestructible.

Fortunately—since Wanda enjoys a reputation as one of our most modishly dressed stars—the same express wagon also brought her a consignment of Paris frocks, which she ordered at the French capitol enroute home.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

THOSE TERRIBLE MOVIE PEOPLE!

"The hours these movie people keep are terrible!"

This is the remark overheard by Helene Chadwick, as she passed a tourist couple from Iowa in the lobby of her family hotel at three A.M. the other morning.

For five nights—or rather mornings, Miss Chadwick had been arriving home between three and four o'clock. Attired in evening dress on each occasion, Miss Chadwick apparently spent her evenings at parties.

Had the Iowans been acquainted with the fact that her early morning homecoming marked the end of a day's hard work in each instance and that Miss Chadwick has been working nights at the studio for nearly a week until the small hours of the day—but then this is only another misjudgment of movie folks.

CHANGES NAME

Marion Feducha, boy screen actor, didn't like his name.

So Maurice Tourneur has changed it for him.

From now on, he will be known as "Don Marion."

Marion Feducha is a poor screen name; people don't remember it, Tourneur decided, when he engaged the boy for an important part in "Jealous Fools." Marion has been in pictures for more than five years, working first with Mary Pickford and later with Charlie Chaplin and other celebrities.

The boy's mother agreed with Tourneur, so he grabbed a paper cup, filled it with water from a nearby cooler and sprinkled the lad.

"Now go, change your clothes and get to work, Don," he ordered.

BIGGEST GALAXY OF STARS IN HISTORY

The most notable galaxy of stars since the inception of the United Studios in Hollywood, "the home of the independent producer," is now evident.

Despite the cry of "wolf" and "slump" among some studios, the M. C. Levee plant, one of the largest in the world, is housing capacity activity. Among the celebrities appearing before the cameras there at present are Norma and Constance Talmadge, Colleen Moore, Buster Keaton, Jane Novak, Earle Williams, Conway Tearle, Corinne Griffith, Owen Moore, Lloyd Hughes, Anna Q. Nilsson, Sylvia Breamer, Joseph Schildkraut, Ben Alexander, "Bull" Montana, Holbrook Blinn, Harry Meyers, Jack Mulhall and many others of similar fame.

HER WISH GRANTED

For a number of years Mabel Forrest, who stars for Grand-Asher in "The Satin Girl," has been an ardent admirer of Marc McDermott's screen art.

"When I was a girl in Chicago," says Miss Forrest, "I used to see every picture he was in, even if I had to go to some suburban theatre to do so."

Now, by a strange chance, in her first stellar vehicle, Miss Forrest had the pleasure of working with Mr. MacDermott, who plays the part of Fargo, a very unusual character in the mystery picture she is making.

Norman Kerry plays opposite Miss Forrest in the role of Dr. Tauntbn, a scientist and criminologist. Clarence Burton is a detective; Florence Lawrence plays Sylvia Brown-Potter, and Kate Lester is Mrs. Brown-Potter, two society folk. The part of Silas Gregg is portrayed by Wm. H. Turner.

"It is a real joy to have such a marvelous cast," said Miss Forrest.

Bryant Washburn, starring for Grand-Asher, started his theatrical experience as an usher. But he didn't stay in "front of the house" long. His native talent took him to the realms behind the footlights, from which he graduated into the movies.

Elliott Dexter had an uncle who started out to become a circus clown. Instead he became a minister. Mr. Dexter, now making pictures for Grand-Asher, started out to be a minister and became a stage and screen star. "The best laid plans of mice and men aft gang agley."

Van LOAN ACTIVE AGAIN

For some time now, H. H. Van Loan, perhaps the most prolific scenario writer in the motion picture field, has been busy instructing would-be followers in his footsteps. He has recently returned to the fold and his trusty typewriter is busy as ever clicking out original stories and adaptations that are worthy successors to his "Virgin of Stamboul."

Van Loan has just completed the fillm version of that famous classic "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," for Goldwyn; "Flattery" for the Mission Film Company, "Some of Us," for C. B. C. and "Let's Get Married," Bryant Washburn's third for Grand-Ascher, have also recently come from him. In the near future, local screens will be showing his adaptation of "The Drivin' Fool," released to Pantages by Hodkinson, and "Upside Down," Herbert Rawlinson's latest Universal vehicle.

Van Loan's active return to the production of scenarios is a concrete indication of the active state of production on the West Coast.

TULLY COMPANY START

Phil Kroha, business manager for Richard Walton Tully, accompanied by L. R. Carpenter, camera man, left for Dallas, Texas, where they will secure atmospheric scenes and local color for the next Tully production, "Flowing Gold", from from the famous Rex Beach novel, which is scheduled for release by First National.

They will be joined in Dallas by Mr. Tully, who is at present in New York, and the party will visit Ranger, Burkburnett and other Texas oil fields before their return to Los Angeles. Actual production will start here immediately upon their arrival.

"Flowing Gold" gives rare promise as a photoplay production. The story is typical of the famous Beach style, and is a thrilling drama of the recent oil rush into Texas.

William de Mille is directing Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Nita Naldi and Theodore Kosloff in "Every Day Love," the picturization of Julian Street's "Rita Coventry," which Clara Beranger scenarized.

A lavish cafe setting furnished the opening scenes of this story.

Arriving in Hollywood from London, England, this week will be John Flinn, called from his successful opening of "The Covered Wagon" in London to prepare for the big New York premiere of "The Ten Commandments." He will go into immediate conference with Mr. De Mille on the handling of this big picture.

David Dunbar will play the part of Louis Ragout, a heavy lead, in Renalles, Inc., big out-door picture, the "Elk's Tooth."

John Herdman has been cast in Renalles, Inc. "The Elk's Tooth" for the part of Cy Joskins, the combination postmaster, undertaker, constable veterinary and information bureau.

Worden Bethel, the prominent artist, has been engaged by Renalles, Inc., to supervise the art department of that producing company. Mr. Bethel's crayons have elicited the praise of all California critics; his "Dory at Sea" is a remarkable impressionistic charcoal study.

Mr. Bethel's experience as a woodsman and as a cowboy, in combination with his artistry, led to his connection with Renalles, Inc., whose picture "The Elk's Tooth," largely an out-door production of the Elk country of the northwest, lends itself admirably to scenic effects and art-titles.

THE TULLY'S GO EAST

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Walton Tully have left on a flying trip to New York, where Mr. Tully will confer with his general manager, James G. Peede, regarding plans for the next Tully production, an adaptation of the Rex Beach novel, "Flowing Gold", which is to be released by First National.

Mrs. Tully will stop for a few days at her old home in Toronto before rejoining her husband in New York.

MEET THE WIFE!

Conway Tearle is the husband of Adele Rowland, famous musical comedy star and vaudeville headliner.

Lloyd Hughes is the husband of Gloria Hope, a screen artist noted for her ability to visualize pathos.

Marshall Neilan is the husband of Blanche Sweet, a great favorite of photoplay fans since the days of her priority as a D. W. Griffith star.

BELASCO TO START SOON

Belasco Productions, Inc., have purchased the World's Motion Picture rights to Aaron Hoffman's greatest ulay, "Welcome Stranger", which will be made on an elaborate scale. Cast and Production to be announced later.

BLACKMAIL IN HOLLYWOOD!

Officers, attention—King Baggot is about to do blackmail!

But you must spell it with a capital "B" and put quotation marks around it, for "Blackmail" is the name of the latest melodrama the former matinee idol is to direct at Universal City with an all-star cast.

The story was written by Rita Weiman, and it will star such well-known players as Ruth Clifford, Charles Clary, Herbert Fortier, Arthur Howard, Joseph North and William E. Lawrence.

Baggot's "Whose Baby Are You?" starring Baby Peggy, is soon to be released as a Universal Super Jewel production.

OLD TROUPE IS UNITED AT METRO

With the engagement of Che Lyons as chief cinematographer and Wyatt Bruster as assistant director for "The Man Whon Life Passed By," a new Metro all-star special which Victo Schertzinger is directing, a well known cinema triumvirate is re sumed after a separation of sev eral years.

Schertzinger, Lyons and Brus ter served in their present capaci ties in the production of many o Charles Ray's most successfu Ince pictures and also at Gold wyn's when Mabel Normand wa one of that company's stars.

Director Turns Inventor Of Machine

Drop a dime in the slot and have your own motion picture theatre.

That is what it is coming to, for the one man theatre is about to be placed on the market. It isn't exactly a one man theatre but actually is a projection machine—automatic in operation, to be used by one person at a time, to show the film he or she may select from a rack of a dozen or more.

George D. Baker, director, who is now guiding Viola Dana through "Revelation" for Metro is the sponsor of the machine. Work on it is being done in a Hollywood laboratory.

"Many of the people," said Baker," who have to wait in railroad stations, at ferry landings and other similar places will patronize the machines. You will recall that we used to have the old penny arcade type of machine, where one could drop a penny in the slot and see a stale and sometimes salacious picture.

"Then along came the movies. The arcade machine was not improved and it ceased to count commercially because it wasn't good enough. The little device on which I am working will show pictures just as clearly as they are shown on the big screen. Each will have a rack of about a dozen films. The patron will select the film he wishes to see, drop his coin in the slot and see it. Then he can catch his train. The films will have to be changed every twelve days at least. More frequently if the news reels are shown.

"We have experienced quite a few mechanical difficulties but have just about got them surmounted. The machine, in order to have value, will have to function perfectly, without adjustment of any sort, and believe me, if you think the making of such a machine is easy try it. We have had our machine a half dozen times and each time, after experimentation, a weakness was revealed. But we've about mastered them."

AS IT WERE

John Francis Dillon, directing a scene in "Flaming Youth," his First National picture, now completed, wished to characterize "Patricia Pentriss," the leading part played by Colleen Moore, as an ultra-sophisticated young woman. He put a copy of "Black Oxen," the present sensational best-seller, in her hand.

The scene opened, showing Patricia" intensely interested in this popular Gertrude Atherton story.

Frank Lloyd, producing "Black Oxen" for the screen, returned the compliment.

In one of his scenes, in which Clara Bow, portraying a modern "flapper," plays a prominent part, he characterized the young woman by showing her reading "Flaming Youth."

Griffith Starts Spectacular Production

Riding with a thousand horsemen along the hills of Putnam Co., N. Y., D. W. Griffith has begun the big outdoor scenes for his Revolutionary War picture, "America."

Secretary of War Weeks has instructed the War Department to lend every reasonable assistance to the making of the patriotic film which is being undertaken at the suggestion of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

At Somers, Griffith has established an encampment for several thousand players and soldiers, with complete water supply, commissary, electric and sanitation installment. Three farms have been surrendered as a site for the encampment which covers a hillside about a mile.

A site overlooking a valley beaded with lakes has been chosen for the cameras, with the action extending back from one half mile to a mile, with incidental action as far away as seven miles. The latter is for signal fires, etc.

The U. S. Army has established an encampment for about one thousand men under the direction of Col. G. P. Pond, Division Commander. The men are from the 18th Infantry from Forts Hamilton and Schuyler, and from the 16th Infantry at Governor's Island. A 33 piece band from Ft. Slocum accompanies the troops. A complete commissary department is in charge of Lieut. DeWitt; and a medical corps unit under the command of Capt. N. T. Davie. Major Arturo Mareno is in direct command of the troops.

With the technical advice of the Federal army officers, Griffith is preparing to stage with exact accuracy the major battles of the Revolutionary War.

The horsemen have been assembled from Reserve cavalry units under the command of Captain Love of the Reserve forces. It is reported to be perhaps the largest cavalry unit ever assembled outside war manoeuvres, and represents an exact duplicate of the cavalry strength of the American troops in the engagements that are to be reproduced.

The War Department is taking a keen interest in the manoeuvres as it is giving observers for the Department an opportunity to study from a military view-point the struggles of the American colonists with a precision never before made possible because of the expenses involved.

"The Wanters" To Have Early Release

Prominent among the First National releases for the early fall is John M. Stahl's new picture, "The Wanters" a scintillating comedy-drama of New York society life which is now undergoing the final touches of editing at the Louis B. Mayer Studio.

"The Wanters" is eagerly awaited by both the public and the trade in view of the great success of Mr. Stahl's last production, "The Dangerous Age", and according to all reports it is going to more than equal the high standard set for it.

Proof of the high box-office rating of this director's pictures is contained in the many wired requests for the privilege of prerelease showings on "The Wanters" which have been received by Mr. Mayer from big theatres all over the country. It is expected that the master-print and negative of the production will be ready for shipment East within a few days.

Presenting an unusually large cast of all-star callibre, "The Wanters" contains among its celebrities Marie Prevost, Huntly Gordon, Robert Ellis, Norma Shearer, Gertrude Astor, Harold Goodwin, Hank Munn, Richard Headrick, Louise Fazenda, Lillian Langdon, Lincoln Stedman, Lydia Yeamans Titus and William Buckley. J. G. Hawks and Paul Bern prepared the scenario from a story by Leila Burton Wells, the novelist.

William Junior Makes Early Start

William Beaudine Jr., two and a half year old son of the well-known director makes his debut in pictures—in part.

So far the only part of him that has been filmed is a lock of his hair, the remaining thirty-five pounds or so of babyhood is to be seen on the screen later, so his proud Daddy claims.

Junior's lock appears in "Misunderstood", a J. K. McDonald production, which Bill Sr. is directing for First National.

Bill Junior's hair and his baby book figure in a scene enacted by Henry B. Walthall. The screen veteran's wife (Irene Rich) and son (Ben Alexander) have left him. Remorseful and lonely he takes up his son's baby book, finds the lock of hair, sheds a tear or two and then he goes to his wife and son to bring them home.

The incident is one of the touching highlights of the picture, the theme of which is built around the father, too old or busy to appreciate his fun-loving son.

Reading the baby book the screen will show that he is affected by the mother's entry: "Sons first word 'Da Da,' spoken today, two days after his father's birthday."

This is a genuine entry in Bill Junior's book.

Ralph Lewis has received an offer to go to England to play the title role in a film version of Peer Gynt.

Half Century Is Reached By Tourneur

"Jealous Husbands," soon to be released by First National, is the fiftieth picture Maurice Tourneur has directed since his arrival in this country from France in 1914. Before that he had directed many pictures for the famous French producing pioneer, "Eclair." He picked up the magaphone after dropping the make-up box for he was a motion picture actor before becoming a director and before that an actor on the legitimate stage, traveling with Rejane and other French actresses.

His first American picture was "Mother" with Emma Dunn in the leading role. This was followed by "The Man of the Hour," "The Wishing Ring" and "The Pit"—the latter with Wilton Lackaye. Then came "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and "Trilby," with Clara Kimball Young in the title role of the latter.

He directed Mary Pickford in "The Pride of the Clan" and "The Poor Little Rich Girl." Petrova and Elsie Ferguson made their best pictures under his direction.

"Blue Bird," "Prunella" and "Treasure Island" are the pictures he directed which he likes most. "The Christian," "The Isle of Lost Ships" and "The Brass Bottle" are his most recent releases.

ACROBATIC TALK

"When anyone tells me," says Jackie Vernon, former featured athlete in the east, "that it is easy to get into the moving picture game, I tell that person that he is crazy! I was featured in the east in a series of two-reel athletic stunt pictures and when I came down here I thought that all I had to do was to show my credentials and I would get big parts, if not a feature, immediately.

Instead I have had to wait my turn for the big things to come. It was "Billy" West who urged me to come to California where I would have more of an opportunity to display my ability. In the time I have been here I have practically had to start all over again, performing stunts, playing small parts and doing bits the same manner in which I started in Chicago. So when anyone tells me, or I happen to be nearby when some person makes the remark that it is easy to break into the moving picture game I merely throw up my hands in rage and claw the air." Jackie hails from Charleroi, Pennsylvania. He was considered the best athlete developed in that town's preparatory school in ten years, upon graduating. His latest part was with Herb Rawlinson, in "The Noblest Roman," where he adds a little comedy as a bell-hop with acrobatic ambitions.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, Oct. 8, 1923

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Rosson	All-Star	Linden Stevens	Geo. Carter	Staff	"The Satin Girl"	Editing
Dearholt Productions.
Francis Ford	Edmund Cobb	Al. Gosden	W. McGaugh	Blodgett	5-Reel Western	Editing
Neva Gerber Productions
Dick Hatton	Neva Gerber	Nobles	La Mece		"The 7th Sheriff"	6th Week
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Drexel 1900
H. & B. Film Co.
Tenny Wright	All-Star	Bill Beckway			"Tango Trails"	Preparing
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						59357
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 009
Century Comedies (Universal release).
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 407
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd.						439-76
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 310
Al Christie	Bobbie Vernon	Nagy	Hagerman	Frank Conklin	2-Reel Comedy	4th Week
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr.						Drexel 211
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.						Culver City 54
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General. Frederick Bond, Asst. Managing Director
Frederick Bond	All-Star		Staff		"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
			Harry A. Swart		"Purple Bath Tub"	Preparing
DARRELL-MOUNIER STUDIO. J. F. Mounier, Gen. Mg						Washington and Ince Blvds., Culver City
Darrell-Mounier Productions
Darrell	Robt. Ramsey	Allen Davie	Chas. Kerr		Feature	Preparing
H. Davey	Edna May Cooper		Sturtevant	Staff	2 Reel Comedy	Preparing
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd. E. H. Allen, Gen. Mgr. Scotty Cleethorpe, Casting.						598-16
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Mermaid Comedies)
Taurog	Neely Edwards	Meehan	Cullen	Staff	Special	7th Week e
Hibbard	Lige Conley	Corby	Sharpless	Staff	Comedy	5th Week
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Novelty Juveniles)
Montgomery	All-Star	Stengler	Linkoff	Staff	Novelty	Editing
Lloyd Hamilton Corp. (Educational Release)
Pratt	Lloyd Hamilton	McGill	Dewar	Staff	Special	1st Week
FOX STUDIO. James Ryan, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 300
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Jim Summerville	Stock	J. A. Schmidt	Arthur Cohn	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Roland V. Lee	All-Star	D. Keefe	Geo. Post	Don Lee	"Gentle Julia"	5th Week
Noel Smith	Earl Rodney	Byrn Hauck		Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Tom Buckingham	All-Star	Sid Wagner	Kingling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Seiler Carruth	Chimpanzees	R. Tennant	Mark Sanderich	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Lambert Hillyer	Tom Mix	Van Clark	Manter		"Eyes of the Forest"	2nd Week
Edmund Mortimer	John Gilbert	J. Short	W. Mayo	Harrison Jacobs	"The Beast"	2nd Week
David Soloman	Shirley Mason	Schneiderman	Birnoudi	Fannie & Fred Hatton	"With the Tide"	2nd Week
Wm. Wellman	Chas. Jones	Joe August	Horace Hough		"Andy McGee's Chorus Girl"	1st Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 263
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 005
GOLD SEAL PRODUCTIONS. A. Rosetti, Studio Mgr.						7405 Roseberry Ave
Greville Hughes	Leavens	Hale	R. C. Hughes	Emile Greville	"The Man From Thunder Gap"	Preparing
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.						Holly 269
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	Wm. Fairbanks	Rolland Price	A. Tenbrook		"The Doctor"	3rd Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 016
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Joe Rock Productions.
Bryant Washburn Productions.
Elliott Dexter in R. Wm. Neil Production.
Thornby-Newman Productions.
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						76171
Von Stroheim	All-Star	Ben Reynolds	Eddie Sowders	Mathis-VonStroheim	"Greed"	Editing
King Vidor	All-Star	John Boyle	James Dugan	King Vidor	"Wild Oranges"	31st Week
Emmett Flynn	All-Star	Lucien Audriot	Ray Flynn	Carey-Wilson	"Nellie, the Cloak Model"	2nd Week
Alan Crosland	All-Star	Jory Mescall	Lynn Shores	Carey Wilson	"Three Weeks"	2nd Week

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6640 Santa Monica Blvd. Wm. Sistrom, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Taylor-Newmeyer	H. Lloyd	Lundin	Bud Golden		"The Girl Expert"	8th Week
Creative Productions.
Jack O'Brien	All-Star	D. Jennings	Cy Clegg	Frank Beresford	"Supersition"	Editing
J. K. McDonald Productions.
Wm. Beaudine	All-Star	H. Thorpe	Geo. Webster		"Misunderstood"	5th Week
Renand Hoffman Productions.
Renaud Hoffman	All-Star	Mackenzie	Glen Belt		"Maud Muller"	3rd Week
Cosmopolitan Productions.
Beverley Productions.
J. P. McGowan	All-Star	Walter Griffin	J. E. MacDonald	Phillip Hurn	"The Whipping Boss"	Editing
Irving Productions. Jas. Dent, Prod. Mgr.
Dallas Fitzgerald	All-Star			Harold Shumate	"Dawn of Love"	1st Week
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.						438-740
Bob Horner	Geo. Chesebro	Elmer Dyer			"The Isles of Paradise"	5th Week
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Chas. R. Seeling	Larkin	Walker		Jeanne Poe	"Stop at Nothing"	Editing
ROY HUGHES PRODUCTIONS. 840 S. Olive.
Roy Hughes	Leavens Hale	J. MacFarland			"Ashes of Waste"	Arizona Location
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Gene Stratton Porter Productions.
J. Leo Meehan	All-Star	Howard Anderson	Jeanett Porter	Gene S. Porter	"The Girl of the Limberlost"	1st Week
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
John Griffith Wray	All-Star	Henry Sharpe	Edw. Benshaw	Bradley King	"Anna Christie"	Editing
Del Andrews	All-Star			Will Lambert	"The Galloping Fish"	Preparing
Bruce Mitchell Productions.
Mitchell	Kirkwood Lee	Steve Norton	Erickson	Elliott Clawson	"Painted Women"	2nd Week
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
LASKY STUDIOS. L. M. Goodstadt, Casting. 1520 Vine St.						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Herb Brennon	Pola Negri	Jos. Howe	H. Schwartz		"My Man"	3rd Week
Wm. DeMille	All-Star	Guy Wilky	Geo. Hippard	Clara Berangee	"Every Day Love"	3rd Week
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Chas. Clark	Fred Robertson	Jack Cunningham	"Flaming Barriers"	4th Week
Zane Grey Productions.
Victor Fleming	Dix-Wilson	James Howe	Gilroy	Doris Schroeder	"The Call of the Canyon"	9th Wek
James Cruze Productions
James Cruze	All-Star	Vernon Keays	Karl Brown	Walter Woods	"To the Ladies"	4th Week
Irvin Willat Productions.
Irvin Willat	All-Star	Chas. Schoenbaum	Otto Brower	Albert S. LeVine	"The Heritage of the Desert"	1st Week
McNAMARA STUDIOS. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
L. B. MAYER STUDIO. 5360 Melrose Ave.						431-171
Fred Niblo Productions.
Fred Niblo	All-Star	V. Milner	Dorian Cox	Bess Meredith	"Thy Names Woman"	Preparing
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Capitol 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro Release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star	Percy Hilburn	Harry Schenck	J. G. Hawks	"Cape Cod Folks"	7th Week
John M. Stahl	All-Star		Sidney Algier	A. G. Younger	"Why Men Leave Home"	6th Week
Fred Niblo	All-Star	Victor Milner	Doran Cox	B. Meredyth	"Thy Name Is Woman"	2nd Week
B. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Harold Shaw	All-Star	Georges Rizard	Nat Watts	Thos. Hopkins	"The Living Past"	4th Week
Victor Schertzinger	All-Star	Chet Lyon		V. Schertzinger	"Man Whom Life Passed By"	5th Week
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	J. Arnold			"Angel Face Molly"	5th Week
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Allen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar	All-Star	Haskins			"The Human Mill"	4th Week
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	17th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford		Held	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	11th Week
Marshall Neilan	Mary Pickford	Rosher		Staff	"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall"	Preparing
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Louis Tolhurst				Walter Anthony	Microscopic Motion Pictures	Schedule
Benny Zeidman Productions.
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"Comedy of Terrors"	Schedule
Chester Bennett Productions.
Douglas MacLean Productions
Jimmy Horne	Douglas MacLean	Max DuPont	Art Flaven		"The Yankee Consul"	Editing
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr. 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Ryneerson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Jackman	All-Star	Floyd Jackman	W. L. Guthrie	Staff	Feature	Schedule
P. Pembrooke	Will Rogers	Robt. Doran	Ross Letterman	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Geo. Jeske	Harry Pollard	J. Roach	Clark Hennecke	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Len Powers	Animals	B. Currigan	Greeland	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Bob McGowan	Our Gang	Harry Gerstad	C. Morehouse	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
J. Howe	Stan Laurel	Frank Young	Cruze	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
James Parrot	Chas. Parrot	Ed Willatt	Leon McCarrie	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSELL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945
Al. Nietz	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	Preparing
Logan-Baynham Productions.
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. B. Seitz	Murphy Miller	Walker Cooper		Bob Dillon	"The Deer Slayer"	Preparing
Hercules Film Prods., Inc.
Jack Nelson	Jack Pollo	McManigal	Joe Kane	Staff	"Pals"	Casting
H. J. Brown Productions
Al. Rogell	Fred Thompson	Ross Fisher	Curley Dresden		"North of Nevada"	2nd Week
Maloford Productions.
Granada Productions.
Howard Davies Productions.
Milton Lattey	Howard Davies	Carl Weyden			"The Battle of Conscience"	Editing
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
Reaves Eason	J. B. Warner	Longenecker	Ernest Van Pelt	Jefferson	"Treasure Canyon"	4th Week
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Rose of All the World"	11th Week
Victor Heerman	Constance Talmadge	Glen McWilliams	Edw. Brophy	Mace Sullivan	"The Mirage"	Preparing
F. Borzage	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	O. O. Dull		"Secrets"	Preparing
Sam E. Rork Productions.
First National Productions.
McDermott Chaplin	All-Star		James Chapin	Wm. Dowlin	"Temporary Marriage"	Editing
C. Badger	Coleen Moore	Berquist	O'Brien	Montagne	"The Swamp Angel"	Preparing
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Frank Lloyd Productions (First National Release)
Frank Lloyd	Griffith-Tearle	Norbert Brodin	Billy Reiter	Fred Myton	"Black Oxen"	7th Week
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig, Casting.						433-131
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Wm. Craft	Desmond-Sedgwick		McDonough Koehner		"Beasts of Paradise"	Schedule
Jay Marchant	Morrison Morris		Ray Taylor		"The Ghost City"	3rd Week
Robt. N. Bradbury	Jack Hoxie		V. Nordlinger		"Wyoming"	Editing
King Baggott	All-Star		Joe Berry		"Blackmail"	4th Week
Harry Pollard	Reginald Denny		F. Messinger		"The Spice of Life"	7th Week
Irving Cummings	Mary Philbin		Woolstenhume		"My Mamie Rose"	6th Week
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson		Don Clark	Duncan	"The Fast Express"	2nd Week
Ed. Sedgwick	Hoot Gibson	Miller	Wm. Tummel	Sedgwick	"The Hook and Ladder"	2nd Week
C. Brown	All-Star		Ernest Laemmle		"Signal Tower"	Preparing
Jess Robbins	Baby Peggy		J. Sullivan		"Right To Love"	6th Week
Hobart Henley	All-Star		A. Smith		"The Turmoil"	7th Week
Robt. Hill	Herbert Rawlison		I. Asher		"His Mystery Girl"	Editing
Jimmie Aubrey Productions
W. Hayes	Aubrey	Lyons	Zimmerman	Staff	Comedy	Schedule
Laval Photoplay, Ltd., of Montreal, Canada. L. Ernest Ouimet, Pres and Mgr.
P. Cazeneoye	Andre Lafayette	Gene Benoit	Harry Webb		"The Vital Question"	6th Week
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen. Mgr.						598-131
Dave Smith Productions.
Larry Semon Productions.
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 4181
Warner Brothers Productions.
Hines-Griffin	Johnny Hines	Chas. Gilson	Sandy Roth		"Conductor 1492"	Editing
Wm. A. Seiter	Marsh-Gillingwater	John Stumar	Tenny Wright		"Daddies"	2nd Week
Harry Beaumont	John Barrymore	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Beau Brummel"	1st Week
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernst Lubitsch	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Flood Blanke		"The Marriage Circle"	8th Week
Harry Rapf Productions.
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WALDORF STUDIOS. 6070 Sunset Blvd. Harry Cohn, Mgr.						Holly 7940
E. J. Le Saint	All-Star		Geo. H. Reehm		"Innocence"	2nd Week
WORLD EDUCATIONAL FILMS CINEMATOUR. Box 818, Station "C," Los Angeles
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	26 1-Reel Globe Trots	Preparing

DR. W. L. SCHUSTER
Chiropractor—Nerve Specialist
"Where the sick go to get well"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

CALLS DAY AND NIGHT
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
6548 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD
430-205; 431-339; or Holly 102-82.

SUNSET TAXI TOURING CARS $2 PER HOUR
SPECIAL RATES ON STUDIO TRIPS AND TOURING

Universal City	$1.00	Club Royal	3.00
Mayer Studios	2.50	Culver City	2.00
Holly-Fairbanks	.75	United Studios	1.00
Fox Studios	.75	Robertson-Cole	.75
Lasky Studios	.75	Metro Studios	.75
Santa Monica	3.50	Ambassador Hotel	1.50
Pasadena	4.00	Venice	4.00
All Stations	2.50	Center of Los Angeles	2.00
		Plantation	3.00

578-307 1720 Hudson Ave. 430-258

"Phon-O-Grams"

Edited by Gene Woolway

Alton Brown

Juvenile Leads

Holly 6988

Charlotte DuPuis

Ingenue-Characters

439-869

J. C. (Jack) Fowler

Characters

438-501

Kenneth Gibson

Juvenile Leads

578-311

Mary Ruby

Ingenue

594-774

Donna Hale

Leads

Dunkirk 3153

Bert Sprotte

Characters

741-64

BOB REEL
McKEE

Hollywood 9780

POSSIBLY ABOUT U

Hughes Leaves For Location

Miles A. Leavens and Donna Hale who are starring in "Ashes of Waste" the latest Roy Hughes Production are scheduled to leave this week with the company to shoot exterior scenes in Arizona and Mexico.

The company will headquarter in Phoenix and will spend about six weeks on scenes laid in the south. Hughes will start his next production about December 1st in Los Angeles.

Four completed Goldwyn pictures are now in the cutting room for final editing. They are: Rupert Hughes' own story, which he himself directed, "Law Against Law"; "Name the Man". Victor Seastrom's picturization of Hall Caine's novel, "The Master of Man;" Tod Browning's first Goldwyn picture, "The Day of Faith," and "Slave of Desire," which George D. Baker filmed from Balzac's famous novel, "The Magic Skin."

Emmett Flynn, directing "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," with Claire Windsor, Lew Cody, Mae Busch, Edmond Lowe and Raymond Griffith, will return from New York October 8, where exterior scenes for the film version of the spectacular stage play have been made. Another month will be spent on interiors at the studio.

The "Wild Oranges' company, headed by King Vidor, returned from San Francisco where they filmed scenes on a large, private yacht. Frank Mayo, Virginia Valli, and Ford Sterling head the cast.

Work has begun on "Three Weeks," which Alan Crosland is directing from Elinor Glyn's famous novel, and more than two months will be spent in making the production. Aileen Pringle and Conrad Nagel are playing the leading parts.

Two Tiffany productions are also in the making at Goldwyn, one starring Mae Murray, under the direction of Robert Leonard, and the other starring Elaine Hammerstein, with Edward Dillon directing.

According to Syd Chaplin, who has now returned to screen acting "for good," the present task of the film comedian has changed from his function in bygone days. And surely he should know, for he enjoyed a high standing in London as a comedian and his own pictures and film characterizations made here demonstrate beyond a doubt that he was—as one commentator put it—"The clever brother of a clever brother."

Ben Wilson is making extensive alterations at the Berwilla Studio, where he is producing features for Grand-Asher. His plant will be one of the best equipped in Hollywood, when completed.

The constantly increasing audiences here attest to the supremacy of our programs. We are exerting every effort to give you clean, snappy boxing.

Hollywood Stadium

Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

R. K. EARLE
CONSULTING ENGINEER
LICENSED SURVEYOR
619 Citizens National Bank Building
Phone 823-681

BRUNO

Publicity Photos
Professional Photos
Casting Director Photos

6412 HOLLYWOOD BLVD.
Telephone 431-929

LOCAL — SEMI-NATIONAL — FULL-NATIONAL — INTERNATIONAL

POUR PERSONAL PUBLICITY AR-EXCELLENT

POSITIVELY PUTS PICTURE PEOPLE IN PERMANENT PUBLIC FAVOR

STAR FOR A STAR

Write for particulars, or see

GENE WOOLWAY
P.O. Box 176, Hollywood Station
Or, in care of
Camera!
2nd. Floor, 6318 Hollywood Blvd.,
HOLLYWOOD CALIF.
PHONE 439-869

Rare Antiques from the Far East

Oriental Costume Co.

6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law

JACK P. LEONARD

340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

Learn to Color Photographs

We teach you the SECRET PROCESS of making your oil colors at a saving of one half.
424 UNION LEAGUE BLDG.
Corner of Second and Hill Streets

COY WATSON, JR.

CHILD LEADS

Age 10. Drexel 3616

Hugh Hoffman

Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip." "Crossed Wires." "The Town Scandal." "Sawdust." "The Untameable." "The Wild Party."

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography

LITTLE

Commercial Photographer

Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

ART LEE

SPECIALIST ON MAKE-UP

Will teach you how to Make Up Correctly. Read my references

Telephone 598-207
1712 St. James Court, Hollywood, at Western

MARION WARDE

Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films

Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing

423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

Walter Frederick Seely

Shadowed Photography

1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

FROM U TO YOU

(Continued from Page 5)

in comedies—has been selected by Edward Sedgwick, director of Hoot Gibson, for the leading feminine role opposite Hoot in the new Universal-Gibson special production, "Hook and Ladder." The story is that of a fireman's life, a subject which allows of thrills, humor and human interest of a natural sort.

"Hook and Ladder" is well into production and will succeed "Blinky," "Out of Luck," "The Ramblin' Kid" and "The Extra Man" in the schedule of Universal-Gibson specials.

"Wyoming" is the name of the story and "Wyoming" is where they'll go to make the motion picture.

That's the latest news about the Jack Hoxie unit at Universal City, of which Robert North Bradbury is the director and Isadore Bernstein the scenarist. The leading woman in "Wyoming" is Lillian Rich.

Medicine Bow, Wyoming, or rather, territory near it which has never been recorded on the screen, will be filmed for backgrounds of the new Hoxie picture. Part of the story is laid in Wyoming, and it is the policy of the Universal Pictures corporation to get the authentic atmosphere wherever the conditions allow.

Already there has been two weeks' shooting on the picture, mostly in and around Lone Pine, California, but for the big stuff on sheep ranches the actual locale in Wyoming will provide the only perfect atmosphere. The company will leave very soon.

Clover Field, important aviation center in Los Angeles, was the location for many days of the unit from Universal City which is filming "The Ghost City," a chapterplay of adventure co-starring Margaret Morris and Pete Morrison. Jay Marchant is directing.

The sets built at Universal City, the mountain sets constructed by Nature at Kean's Camp, the hills a few miles from Universal City and the open lands where aeroplanes may be landed, have been the principal locations.

Following nineteen strenuous weeks among lions, alligators, an elephant and a few other perils, Ruth Royce will leave Universal City shortly for a vacation in New York. Miss Royce has appeared through five consecutive chapterplays at Universal City, and this is her first vacation in three years.

New York's famous elevated railways are being built in California now. An exact reproduction of the "L" is under construction at Universal City, on the New York streets being reproduced for "My Mamie Rose." Mary Philbin is the star.

King Baggot has started work on "The Co-Respondent," a mystery story based on the play by Rita Weiman, author of "The Acquittal." An elaborate newspaper office and hotel set have been constructed for the large scenes of the new play.

Lola Todd is Universal City's latest "discovery" in heavy roles. Miss Todd, the daughter of one of the veteran employes of the New York office, was sent to Universal City for a "tryout." Her beauty won her recognition, and she is cast for an important role in "The Ghost City," Pete Morrison's new Western chapterplay.

Lon Chaney admits he had stage-fright in New York. It's peculiar, too; he's played in New York many times while he was on the stage; but the crowd that viewed the premiere of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" was too much for him. The truth about it only came to light with his return to Universal City following his trip to New York to see the picture presented at the Astor Theatre.

After the performance the crowds clogged the sidewalks before the theatre until midnight, calling for Chaney, who had been in the theatre during the screening of the picture. They shouted and cheered, and the police finally had to clear the streets. But no Chaney.

"What happened? Where were you?" Julius Bernheim, general manager at Universal City asked him on his return.

"As a matter of fact, I got cold feet!" admitted the actor. "I guess it was stage-fright, but I just couldn't go out and face that crowd out there. So—I sneaked out by the stage door and grabbed a taxi, and sneaked back to the hotel. I told the clerk to say 'hadn't come in—and he did it."

Every day is Saturday on Bill Desmond's set at Universal City. For a whole week Desmond, Eileen Sedgwick, and the rest of the cast in "Beasts of Paradise," the new chapterplay, did "water stuff." Desmond fought a shark under water, with a knife, for two days, then did several under-water swims, escaped from a subterannean cave, rescuing Miss Sedgwick from a flood, and there are several more water scenes to be done. He and Miss Sedgwick were in the water several hours a day for five days.

"When I'm not in the water they make me fight lions, alligators, and elephants," complains Desmond. "In these chapterplays it's a case of fight or swim, all right."

Among the other things they did a scene with "John L. Sullivan," a big elephant borrowed by William Craft, the director, from the Ringling circus. This is the first time in history that a circus elephant has been rented, taken away from his circus, and used for several days in a picture studio. The big brute chased Eileen Sedgwick up a tree, then tore up the tree, and Desmond rescued her from the pursuing pachyderm. Also—he fed said pachyderm about six pounds of peanuts between scenes, and it's hard to tell who got the biggest kick out of it—Desmond or John L. Sullivan.

Three members of the cast of the remarkable "Merry-Go-Round" are finding new and bigger opportunities at Universal City today, where "Merry-Go-Round" was made.

Mary Philbin, the heroine, is working in her first Universal-Jewel starring vehicle under the direction of Irving Cummings. It is "My Mamie Rose," Owen Kildare's old novel of 1895, and a remarkable cast supports her.

Norman Kerry, leading man, just recently completed the leading masculine characterization in "The Acquittal," a mystery drama directed by Clarence L. Brown, which has been previewed successfully with fine criticism. He is now awaiting another featured role in a new special.

George Hackathorne, the pathetic hunchback character of "Merry-Go-Round," has doffed the makeup artifices of character and is playing a role that has great character in it but is not dependent on any devices of makeup. It is Bibbes Sheridan of Booth Tarkington's, "The Turmoil," which is being filmed as a Hobart Henley production.

All three have materially benefited from the publicity and critical comments about "Merry-Go-Round," and for Miss Philbin particularly, it has opened the door to unusual success.

Hallam Cooley has played in so many Universal pictures in the past that regular patrons of theaters where Universal pictures are shown know him pretty well, but they'll see him as a figure not entirely to their liking in Reginald Denny's new starring vehicle, a Byron Morgan racing story directed by Harry A. Pollard. It has borne two working titles, "The Spice of Life" and "There He Goes."

Cooley plays a young rich fellow who wants to keep the chauffeur hero from winning "the girl"—and he follows his purpose in anything but gentlemanly fashion. It's not a terribly villainous "heavy" but just a human sort that Cooley plays so well.

POSSIBLY ABOUT U

With the return of Lloyd Hamilton from a two months absence in New York, where he was featured in a D. W. Griffith production, there is much activity at the Fine Arts studio, now devoted solely to the use of Jack White and Lloyd Hamilton productions.

Gil Pratt has been entrusted with the direction of the Hamilton picture, the second of the 1924 Educational series, to follow "The Optimist" which will shortly have its first-run at a down-town theatre. No supporting cast or title has yet been chosen for the new production, on which work will start within a few days:

Norman Taurog, having finished production of the first Jack White Special comedy, is now directing the second Cameo comedy, with Ruth Hiatt, Cliff Bowes and George Ovey.

A friend of Edward Martindel met him on the street the other day.

"Remember the bootlegger who used to sit in the parlor of my little home and who sold me all my liguor?" he asked?

"Yes, I remember him," returned Martindel.

"He still sits in that parlor," groaned the friend.

"Why be so long-faced about that?" questioned the actor.

"I used to own the house," wept the friend. "Now he owns it."

Bryant Washburn, starring in his own productions for Grand-Asher, likes to golf and also to fish. "If," he says, "Someone would just invent a combination golf-club and fishing rod, wouldn't it be great?"

Gustatory
Genius

John's New Cafe

6382 Hollywood Blvd.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Dr. A. L. Jester

Famous chiropractor, just returned from 3 years chiropractic missionary service in Germany offers his services to the movie people of Hollywood at reduced rates.

No charge for first consultation.

5558 Hollywod Blvd., Rm. 202-203
Hours 10-12—2-5, Evenings 7-8.

POSSIBLY ABOUT U

NIECE SAMMY—NOT UNCLE

When most of us hear the name of Sam or Sammy, we immediately see the picture of the be-whiskered gentleman originally made famous by a high beaver hat. Such was Priscilla Moran's idea, too—Priscilla is the little girl who spent several months as Jackie Coogan's foster sister, but is now reunited with her father and bids fair to win considerable screen fame on her own merit.

Priscilla has ben engaged for the role of Sammy in the Warner Brothers' production of "Daddies." She had expected to wear the familiar Uncle Sam costume, but she learned that this Sammy was a little girl orphan in rather destitute circumstances. Whereupon she promptly christened this one "Niece Sammy."

After several other young women had turned down an offer to ride a goat in Fred Caldwell's recent comedy drama Muriel Reynolds expressed her willingness to tackle the Billy. She was given the part and proved so satisfactory that Caldwell requested J. Stewart Woodhouse who was writing his stories, to provide a part for Miss Reynolds in the following scripts. Woodhouse wrote a characterization for Miss Reynolds in two stories that were subsequently filmed. Fred Caldwell has just returned from New York City where he secured a contract with the Selznick Distributing Organization to handle these features and to distribute his entire output for the coming year.

JACK WHITE HAS VACATION

Jack White, comedy producer, and Fred Hibbard, director, have returned from a three-day vacation in the mountains, by which they celebrate the completion of the seventh Mermaid comedy, in which Lige Conley is featured, and Olive Borden, a Jack White "find", has her first leading role.

Mr. White will immediately start work on the next Mermaid two-reeler, for which no director has yet been selected.

Hollywood has a screen player who doesn't dare use makeup.

She is Joan Standing, and, like the other Standings of historic fame, is a capable performer. Joan Standing is the daughter of Herbert Standing, well known English actor. She first attracted attention through her work in "Win the Man You Love," a Choice Productions Inc., Special. The reason Miss Standing cannot use paint or powder is because the slightest bit of makeup would hide her chief stock in trade and her most cherished possession—her freckles.

Miss Standing has a major role in "Greed" and has been cast for "Three Weeks," to be produced by Goldwyn.

Hughes, Seastrom, Browning and Baker all are considering material for their next pictures.

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS
GET RESULTS

STUDIO EXECUTIVES, Directors and Scenario writers—Authentic Information of any type, Historical, Geographical, Technical or Literary, furnished in the shortest possible time and at small expense. Research work undertaken. If we haven't the information we know where and how to get it. Services confidential. Address Info Bureau, 3522 Winslow Drive, Los Angeles, California.

I WANT a 5 or 6 room house, small court or flats, Hollywood preferred. If you must sacrifice for quick action, call Drexel 1259 and save agents' commission. Money ready.

FRENCH LESSONS—Succeeds with those who have never succeeded. Box J. C. 4. Camera.

FOR RENT—Bell & Howell camera, 170 degree shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Telephone Met. 4686 days; 829-573 nights and Sundays.

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell Camera. 170 degree Shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Phone Met. 4686 days; 13173 evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell Howell Camera. 170 degree. Telephone 599-464.

BOOKKEEPER—Expert, typist, wants four hours' work daily. $16 per week. Humboldt 3493W. Call after 6, evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell camera, 170 degree shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Phone Met. 4688 days; 13173 evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell Howell Camera, 170 degree. Telephone 599-464.

TINTED PORTRAITS

of a beautiful velvet-like tone can be made from your regular photographs. The cost is low and there are special rates on fan photos.

EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38

Doctors
FORD & FORD
Palmer Graduate
Scientific Spinal Adjustments
Individual Rest Rooms

Anna Mae Ford D.C., Ph. C.
Office Ground Floor
G. Henry Ford D.C., Ph.C.

CHIROPRACTORS
5911 Hollywood Boulevard
10 to 12—2 to 5
Mon., Wed., Friday Evenings, 6 to 8

YOUR PHONOGRAPH
will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a

Deflexograph

Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles.

Play after hours —will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.

GOLD PLATE.....$1.50
(See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE....$1.00

VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

Brown,
Caldwell
& Ladd

317 South Hill St.

100 Per Cent Titles
100 Per Cent Service
At the Right Price!

Dress up that next production with artistic Hand Lettered Titles made by IRVING W. BUNZE.

If you want Perfect Symbolic Art Backgrounds, let us make them! Neil E. McQuire, formerly with Ince and Prizma, does our art work.

For perfect black-and-white titles, try our PROCESS SYSTEM. A telephone call will bring our representative with samples.

Quality Title & Film Company

1442 Beechwood Drive. Holly 4850

FOR PICTURES
PLAYS, BOOKS, ORIGINALS

The
Hollywood Play Bureau
Emmett Corrigan, Mgr.
6404 Hollywood Boulevard
Near Cahuenga. Hollywood, Cal.

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660
KWIK LUNCH
SERVES U RITE
1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

WE MOVE THE MOVIES
and Shine on Service
Hollywood 2677 - SAMUEL C. SHINE - 6568 Santa Monica Blvd.
General Trucking and Hauling

POSSIBLY ABOUT U

With the return of three directors and their companies from location trips, the Goldwyn studios will be bustling with activity this week when six units will be working on interiors.

After nearly seven straight months of work, Erich von Stroheim and his company, filming "Greed," returned from Colfax, in the Northern mining districts.

Lytell's Parts Taking Him on World Tour

Bert Lytell's roles in the movies are taking him on a "see-the-world" tour. Following the completion of "The Meanest Man in the World" at Los Angeles, he left for Italy to play the leading part in "The Eternal City," a Sam Goldwyn—First National picturization of Hall Caine's famous novel. He returned from Rome less than two weeks ago and now it is announced that he is to go to Algiers to appear in the leading role in "A Son of the Sahara." This picture is to be made by Edwin Carewe for First National. Lytell plans to leave for the dark continent with the remainder of the cast late in October. Producer Director Carewe leaves to make "shooting" arrangements this week.

Frank Norcross having just finished a very important Judge for Director Eddie Mortimer in the "Exile," has been engaged to play Uncle Charlie Paterson with Director Roland Lee in "Gentle Julia," at Fox's Studios.

POSSIBLY ABOUT U

Spottiswoode Aitken, who dies in almost every picture in which he appears, passes out as the result of being poisoned in "Superstition," which is being directed by John B. O'Brien.

Sublime to Ridiculous

Ralph Lewis, sometime ago, endorsed a certain brand of dress suit and since his success of the engineer in "Westbound Limited," he has now been asked to pose in and recommend a certain style of overalls.

Martha Marshall, the young society woman of Chicago, playing in John B. O'Brien's production, "Superstition," for the Creative Productions, wears her grandmother's wedding gown in the picture.

William S. Hart is putting the finishing touches on the cutting and titling of "Wild Bill Hickok," his initial Paramount Picture since his return to the screen.

Sam Wood has returned to Paramount's West Coast studio after an extended stay at the Eastern production headquarters where he directed several pictures. including "His Children's Children," which re completed just before returning to California.

After a diligent search Ernst Lubitsch selected Monte Blue to play one of the leads in "The Marriage Circle", which the famous European director is making for the Warner Brothers.

THIMMEWAY TITLES

Culver City, Calif.

RENALLES, INC.
WE DO WHAT WE SAY WE'LL
KEEP FAITH
DISTINCTIVE CINEMA — LEGITIMATE ATTRACTIONS

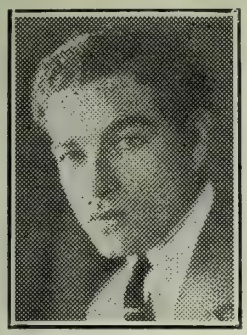
Culver City 546

Now in Preparation: "The Elk's Tooth"

I WANT SOME REAL PICTURES!
. . . productions from $50,000 to $100,000. I can sell them outright. See me for a quick release.
H. and B. FILM COMPANY
Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275 or Drexel 1900



CULLEN LANDIS:
"Put Me In Great Condition."

WHERE THE SICK GO TO GET WELL

Literature pertaining to any disease mailed on request

75 PER CENT

of the

MOTION PICTURE STARS IN HOLLYWOOD

BILLIE DOVE
Says: "Chiropractic Keeps Me Well."

are using my Scientific Method to regain and keep their health.

ARE YOU ONE OF THEM?
IF NOT, WHY NOT?

ASK ANY STAR

You will be agreeably surprised to find there is no discomfort in taking these Scientific Adjustments, and gratified with the results obtained.
Bring all your Health Troubles to the only Chiropractor catering to the Motion Picture Profession.
Each patient receives my personal attention.

ASK ANY STAR

Dr. W. I. Schuster

SCIENTIFIC CHIROPRACTOR AND NERVE SPECIALIST
(Palmer Graduate)

CLAIRE WINDSOR.
Attributes Her Health To Chiropractic.

Office Hours:
10 to 12 and 2 to 5

Monday, Wednesday and Friday
6 to 8 P.M.

203 Bogardus Building
Cor. Sunset and Western
Hollywood, California

Telephone 436-724

LADY IN ATTENDANCE. PRIVATE DRESSING ROOMS.

Ample Parking Space

WHERE THE SICK GO TO GET WELL

Licensed in California

CHARLES "BUCK" JONES.
"Chiropractic Is My Best Pal."

United PRODUCERS & DISTRIBUTORS
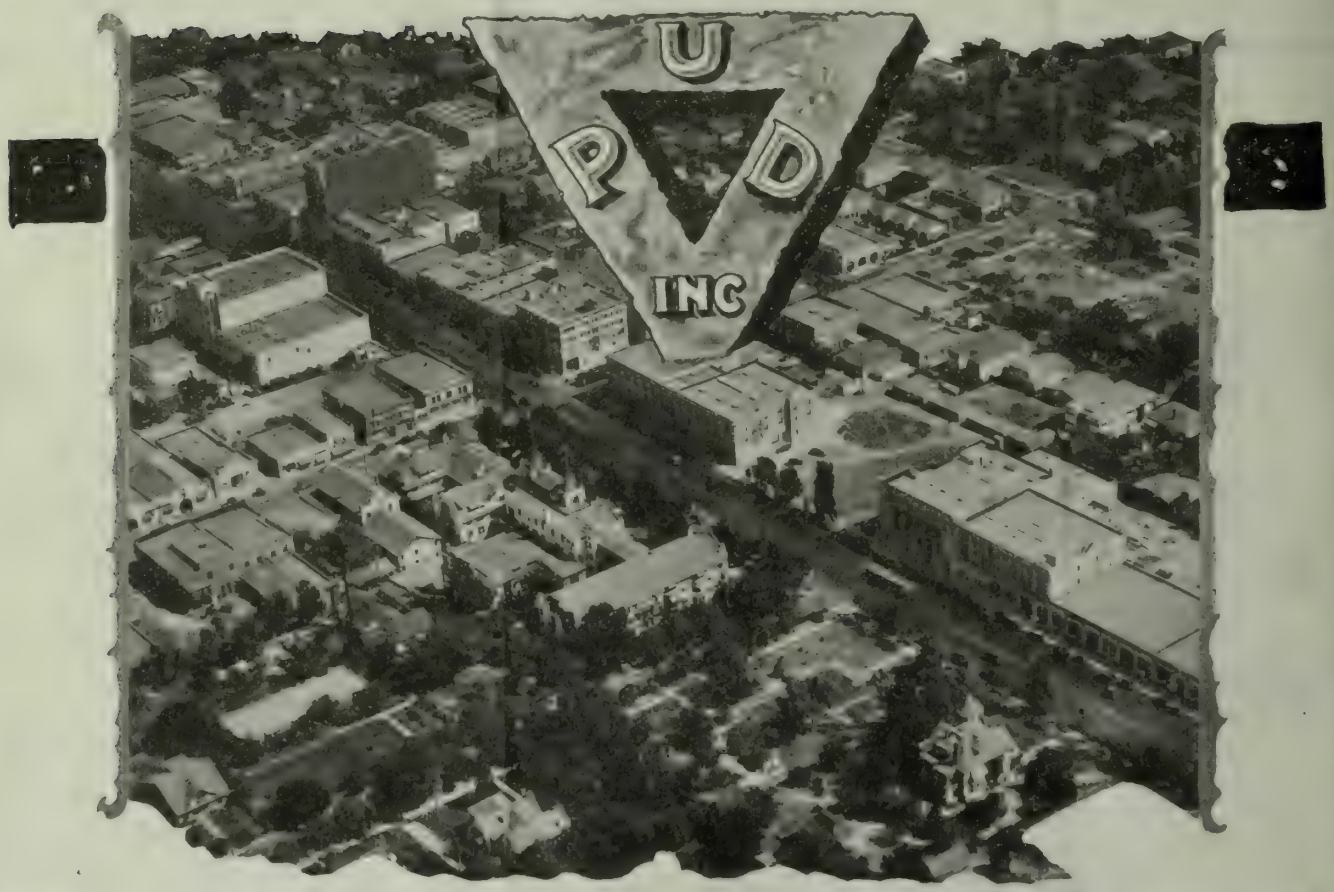
HOLLYWOOD



A new Idea rises out of Hollywood

Exhibitors, independent producers, authors and the public will welcome the coming of Hollywood's strongly organized producing and distributing corporation—a company of Hollywood, by Hollywood, for Hollywood and for the best interests of the entire motion picture industry.

United
U P D Inc
PRODUCERS & DISTRIBUTORS HOLLYWOOD

The independent producer, author, and distributor will get together for the purpose of producing the best pictures—of giving the exhibitor a square deal—and to permit the public to get its money's worth.

Hollywood—not New York—should be the distributing center of motion pictures. Producer and distributor should work side by side for their mutual benefit. This will ultimately be—and U. P. D., Inc., is the first step in that direction.

United is going to pioneer it—and it has the backing of Los Angeles and Hollywood banking, business and motion picture interests.

Our new building at Highland and Selma Avenues is now rapidly rising. We're getting the "sets" ready—and we'll soon be able to "shoot".

You're going to hear a whole lot more about United in the next few months.

Write or call for information at temporary headquarters 6812 Hollywood Boulevard.

CALIFORNIA STATE LIBRARY

"Camera!"

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

Los Angeles, Calif. Saturday, Oct. 13, 1923 Price 10 Cents

Photo by Witzel

BERT LYTELL
In "The Meanest Man in the World," at Loew's

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A. HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

New York Washington, D. C.

Phone 52220

Phone 54847

1001-1005 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles California

Permanent Waving Hair Coloring Bleaching
Hair Dressing Scalp-Facial Massage
Marcel Waving Water Waving Shampooing
Manicuring
Wigs Toupees Switches Transformations
Wig Rental Beards and Moustaches
Cosmetics
Professional Makeup Service

Special Attention to Theatrical and Motion Picture Profession

No Parking Restrictions

" You'll be met at the door, by George"

The GREEN LANTERN

"The Haven of the Hungry"

1901 West Seventh. Sixth at Western

BREAKFAST 'TIL 11

Special Noonday Lunch Priced at 55c.

Dinner 'Til 9 in the Evening
(a la carte service)
Weekdays, 85c. Sundays, Holidays, $1

MARTHA FRANKLIN
Characters
Current Release
. . . as ..Mme. ..Vinard, ..in ..Richard ..Walton ..Tully's "Trilby."
Recent Engagements
. . . in "Ponjola," direction of Donald Crisp.
. . . in Ben Wilson's production, "Other Men's Daughters."
Hollywood 10103

"Camera!"
[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

ESTABLISHED 1918

A Film Magazine and a Film Newspaper in One

6318 Hollywood Boulevard
Hollywood : California

Vol. VI. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1922 No. 26

BUILT ON ROCK

BY DONALD H CLARKE

Passengers who craned their necks from the top of a Fifth Avenue bus in New York the other day saw a not unusual sight. A gang of men were delving beneath the asphalt. They were down about six feet, and they weren't using spades; they were blasting through the solid rock.

Persons are inclined to forget that New York is built on rock. New York's greatness does not rest upon this solid foundation. But it is comforting to those who live in that city, and who take the time to think about it when other places are being tossed about by earthquakes and demonstrations of nature like that, that their abiding place is so firmly planted.

A good foundation is the best starting platform for anything known to man—man himself, man's career, man's cities, man's accomplishments. Business, to be successful, and to attract investors, must be solidly held in solid rock.

The motion picture industry, still a toddler among the enterprises of the world, is settled already on the rock of support. When every one that lives wants salt, for instance, there is no doubt at all that there always will be a demand for salt.

It is a comfort for motion picture goers—if they stop to think of it—that there is such a universal demand, and need, for motion pictures, that they will go on forever.

But, just as New York's greatness does not depend upon its rock foundation, so the real greatness of motion pictures does not rest upon the unlimited demand for them. There is a certain comfort, but comfort isn't everything. If it were, probably, the larvae of the locust during its seventeen year meditation underground, would be the most successful being in the world.

The great thing about motion pictures really, is that, given their rock foundation of demand, they have been, and are being inspired, by the greatest and most forward looking geniuses of the world in every line of endeavor.

The great inventors, the great writers and actors, the great financiers—all are engaged in upbuilding this great form of world instruction and amusement. It is a tremendous enterprise, demanding great ability, large capital, and unceasing endeavor.

There is no doubt that motion pictures are built on a rock, so far as the demand for them is concerned. There is no more doubt that they are unusually blesssed by the genius and untiring industry that is being applied to make them expand and grow more wonderful every year—like flowers in the sun.

Telephone
439-869

S. W. (DOC) LAWSON
Publisher and Manager.

JOHN CORNYN
Advertising Manager.

GENE WOOLWAY
Studio Representative.

FRED W. FOX
Advertising Copy.

PAULINE THOMPSON
Pulse Editor

Address All Communications to
CAMERA!

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

$3.50 per year in Los Angeles County.
$4.00 per year in Outside Zone.
$4.50 to Canada.
$5.00 to Foreign Points.

H. H. CONGER COMPANY
Nat'l Adv. Rep.
New York Chicago
San Francisco

Advertising Rates Upon Application.

Issued on Saturday morning of each week at 6318 Hollywood Blvd., in Los Angeles, Calif. Telephone 439-869.

Entered as second-class matter, Aug. 11, 1918, at the Post Office at Los Angeles, Cal., under Act of March 3rd, 1879.

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Gold Diggers"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

"So this is London"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

Barbara Castleton
in
"The Streets of New York"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

Viola Dana
in
"Crinoline and Romance"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

Charles Ray
in
"The Deuce of Spades"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Road Together"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

"If Winter Comes"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

Harry Carey
in
"The Miracle Baby"

This Week's Theatre Notes

There appears to be no diminution of interest in "Getting Gertion of interest in "Getting Gertie's Garter," which is about to go into the 17th week at the Egan Theatre, where capacity audiences have been the rule during the entire engagement.

"Getting Gertie's Garter" is the work of two of the most famous writers on the American stage today. Avery Hopwood, who wrote "The "Bat," "Fair and Warmer" and other big successes, and Wilson Collison who wrote "Up in Mabel's Room" and a number of other big Broadway hits. The two men have combined and in "Getting Gertie's Garter," have produced as great a laugh provoking vehicle as Los Angeles has ever seen.

"Getting Gertie's Garter" has been termed the prince of funmakers and Frank Egan is to be congratulated upon the fact that he was able to secure this famous vehicle for the entertainment of local theatergoers.

The cast includes William Burress, Marjorie Bennett, Robert Ober, Florence Printy, Brady Kline, Owen Burroughs, Fred Cumming and Hazel Bruckham.

A novel attraction heads the Hillstreet theatre bill. It will be the famous stage and screen star Louise Lovely, supported by Wilton Welch, in a motion picture production act called "A Day at the Studio." At each show Miss Lovely will direct a scene before her own camera on the stage using people picked from the audience as hte actors. Children will be photographed at the matinees and adults at the evening performance. She will also turn her camera on the audience. The week following her engagement the complete photoplay will be shown at the Hillstreet. Other features will include Dolly Kay, whose records for the phonograph have been heard throughout the world. Also on the bill will be William Ebs, in his act, "Always Something New." Dennie O'Neil and "Cy" Plunkett in their comedy offering "The Young 'Un." Incas and Inez will present "An Art Classic," also their novelty "The Slow Motion Camera." Completing the vaudeville bill will be Princess Radjah in her "Dance of Cleopatra." An extraordinary photoplay is promised in the presentation of Charles Ray in "The Deuce of Spades."

George M. Cohan's famous stage success, "The Meanest Man in the World," will be seen at Loew's State Theater all this week with Bert Lytell in the title role and Blanche Sweet playing opposite him. This is Sol Lesser's picturization of the famous comedy-drama that has entertained audiences throughout the world. "The Meanest Man in the World" deals with a lovable, unbusinesslike young lawyer who tried to be stern, but could not get away with it. The business of being somewhat of a bounder when the natural instincts were only lovable and gentle provokes the mainspring of comedy in this Principal Pictures release. Bert Lytell achieves a distinct triumph in the part of Richard Clarke, the young lawyer, while Blanche Sweet, returning to the screen in the leading feminine role, is seen in a part which fits her like the proverbial glove.

Richard Barthelmess is at the Alhambra Theater this week in a nine-reel production, "The Fighting Blade." In this First National picture, Barthelmess essays the role of a swashbuckling soldier of forttune in the days of Oliver Cromwell. "The Fighting Blade" is a story of hearts and swords given a brilliant and massive production.

The power of the press and its ability to make or break reputation is vividly portrayed in the current offering at Grauman's Metropolitan, Thomas H. Ince's special, "Her Reputation," with May McAvoy, Lloyd Hughes and a feature cast. The picture is replete with drama of the most stirring sort and includes some thrilling episodes such as a big Mississippi Flood scene, a forest fire, etc.

The magnitude of Charles Ray's production of "The Courtship of Myles Standish" has warranted the holding of this super-feature a third week at Grauman's Million Dollar Theater. "The Days of the Mayflower" the atmospheric prologue which has caused considerable favorable comment will also be retained, as also will the special musical program.

Marking a new departure in almost every element that goes to make up a motion picture, "A Woman of Paris" continues its showing to sold out houses at the Criterion Theater. Charles Chaplin's first screen drama, in which he does not himself appear, has taken the lead as the most sensational production of the cinema. Edna Purviance is the featured member of the cast. She plays the role of Marie St. Clair, the toy of Pierre Revel, wealthy Paris bachelor, and acted by Adolphe Menjou. The third member of the triangle, John Millet, is played by Carl Miller. Others in the cast are Lydia Knott, Charles French, Clarence Geldert, Betty Morrissey and Malvina Polo.

California
Main at Eighth

Marion Davies
in
"Little Old New York"

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Corinne Griffith-
Frank Mayo, in
"Six Days"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

May McAvoy-Lloyd Hugl
in
"Her Reputation "

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Bert Lytell-Blanche Swee
"The Meanest Man in th World"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

Pola Negri
in
"The Spanish Dancer"

Criterion

Charles Chaplin's
"A Woman of Paris"

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

Charles Ray
in "The Courtship
of Myles Standish"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

Richard Barthelmess
in
"The Fighting Blade"

Hollywood Egyptia
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden
"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mabel Normand
in
"The Extra Girl"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

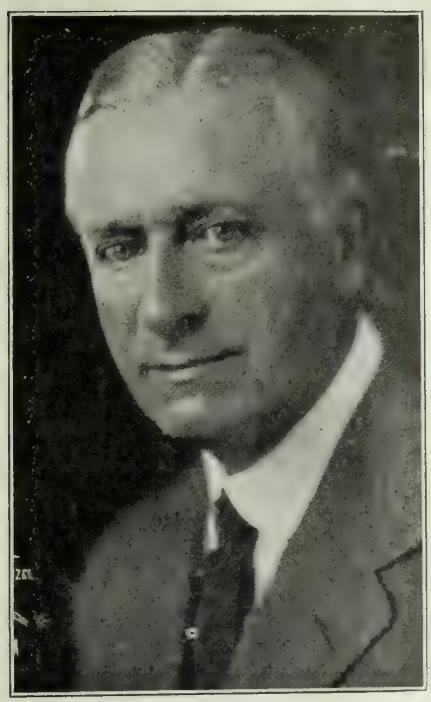
"The Fog"

Star of Stage and Screen Continues to Triumph

With the casting of H. Reeves-Smith in the forthcoming Goldwyn production of Elinor Glyn's famous story, "Three Weeks," the screen world is enriched with the acquisition of this excellent dramatic artist who will be seen for the first time on the silver sheet.

In creating the role of Sir Charles, the father of the hero in this popular novel, it is safe to say that there hardly could have been made a better selection for the role not merely because Reeves-Smith is a perfect type for the part, but because of his natural inherent ability to portray the role as the authoress intended it should be played. In view of the fact that he was born and educated in England it can be readily understood that he is particularly well-fitted for the part.

Both Mrs. Glyn and Alan Crosland, who directed the picture, have expressed their delight with Mr. Reeves-Smith's efforts and predict a unusual future for him in the motion picture field. Already he has been made several flattering offers for his services, but Al H. Woods, the New York theatrical producer, has induced him to sign a contract for the New York production of "The Road Together" in which he is now appearing at the Majestic theatre with Marjorie Rambeau in the stellar role.



On the legitimate stage Reeves-Smith has created a record that is unique in itself. For the past twenty years he has never appeared in a failure and his record of successes is a part of the stage history of this country. His more recent successes include "Green Stockings;" more recent success include "Green Stockings;" "Divorcons;" "Polly With a Past;" "Peg O' My Heart;" "The Gold Diggers," and "The Road Together." He has played the lead to such stars as Ethel Barrymore, Margaret Anglin, Marjorie Rambeau, Grace George, Cissie Loftus, Alla Nazimova, Fanny Ward, Ina Clairs, Emily Stevens and Laurette Taylor.

Reeves-Smith's acting method is particularly suited to the screen being of the thoughtful kind which ndicates what he is about to explain by language. This is so perfect that the lines are superfluous at times—a method unique in its way on the speaking stage.

At the close of his New York engagement he intends to return to Hollywood and have a serious try in the films.

Resume of a Week at Universal

By WILL C. MURPHEY

Announcement of the next ten of the big special Jewel productions to be made by Universal will be made in the near future, following the return from Europe of Carl Laemmle. The head of Universal Pictures arrived in New York after tours of England, France and Germany, and will arrive at Universal City late in October.

His European trip was extensive, and he made a close study of dramatic affairs and economic conditions while there. The economic investigations have been embodied in a series of articles which have been widely printed in America; the film magnate's dramatic activities will be announced on his return to the studio, for it is understood that several important acquisitions from abroad will follow his return.

Mr. Laemmle will pass most of the coming winter at Universal City, activity at the studio, not yet at its peak, will reach its top notch with his arrival, and many important plays, already scheduled, will be started. Mr. Laemmle will personally handle the details of the purchase and production of a number of others, several famous novels and noted plays being under consideration.

The new "Big Ten" to be announced follow the first "Big Ten" which included such notable productions as "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "A Lady of Quality," "The Acquittal" and other famous features.

Isadore Bernstein is completing the screen adaptation of "Two Men of Sandy Bar," Bret Harte's famous story of old Western mining days, which will be presented by an all star cast at Universal City. The story was purchased some time ago. Bernstein, who is well-known as an adaptor and scenarist, will handle several story features for Universal on completion of the Harte feature.

"I would rather be a boy than a girl, (anyhow on the screen), for dresses don't have any pockets." So says petite, Bernice Lillian Feld, four years old, who has recently been engaged in "Scaramouche," "Trilby," and "The New Mail Man." "She's cute as the deuce too" say we, "and mighty promising. May become a star some day."

Announcement of several important new stories to be produced as pictures has been made at Universal City. Raymond L. Schrock, scenario editor, announces the purchase of "Court and Calamity," the Saturday Evening Post story by William Dudley Pelley, which is being adapted as an all star production.

Work on the adaptation of "The Tornado," Lincoln Carter's celebrated melodrama, is also under way. George W. Ogden's story "Claim Number One," is in process of scenarization for Jack Hoxie, as is William McLeod Raine's "Ridgway of Montana."

"Souls that Pass in the Night," the remarkable mystery story written by former chief William Flynn, of the United States Secret Service, has also been purchased by Universal and is being adapted for an all star to be produced in the near future.

Harvey Gates has been assigned the task of preparing the continuity for "Wine," soon to be filmed at Universal City as a Jewel multi-reel feature, according to an announcement by Bernard McConville, supervising editor of Jewel features.

Rex Taylor is now working on the continuity of "Love Insurance," the Earl Deer Biggers story which will be Reginald Denny's next Jewel feature. Edward Kline, famed director of comedies and comedy-dramas, will guide the filming of the Denny feature.

Work will start immediately at Universal City on "Jack of Clubs," Herbert Rawlinson's new play. Robert Hill will direct. In the new story, adapted from the tale by Gerald Beaumont, Rawlinson will play a policeman walking a "beat" in a neighborhood crowded with pugilists and toughs. Thru this heterogenous

(Continued on Page 20)

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 8th, 1923.—The chief excitement of the movies in San Francisco last week was the arrival of the Mary Pickford Company to begin the making of her much talked of picture "Dorothy Vernon Of Haddon Hall." Colonel Ford, the production manager, and his assistant, Captain Wing arrived a week ago, and have been hard at work securing locations and making preparations for work, which will probably take about ten days. A large part of the sequences to be done in San Francisco will be made amid the beauties of Golden Gate Park, with some scenes also on the famous Kole estate at Burlingame. Marshall Neilan who is directing Miss Pickford, arrived on Friday, with about one hundred and fifty people, which includes the cast, camera men, electricians, and the staff members. Mary Pickford, her Mother Charlotte Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, who left his own picture "The Thief of Bagdad" to help Mary get started, arrived Sunday morning. So far the weather has been perfect, and most satisfactory progress has been made. Within a day or two they expect to shoot scenes of the procession where Queen Elizabeth goes to Haddon Hall with all her retinue, servants, furniture, and belongings. In this sequence some five-hundred local extra people, as well as all the cast and regular extras, two hundred horses, and many props will be used.

Ray, and Al Rockett of the Rockett Productions are in San Francisco, having brought up last week the recently completed film.

"Life of Abraham Lincoln," which is acclaimed the largest and finest historical film ever made. The picture was given its first public showing at Burlingame, before an audience so large and enthusiastic, that it was necessary to run the film twice, and in spite of the fact that the second run didn not finish until after one in the morning everybody remained, and were unstinted in their praise of the most artistic and unusual picture.

The West Coast Productions, who have recently changed their name to the Conquest Films, are still at work under the direction of Norbert Myles, on their production "Nobody's Child," at the Pacific Studios at San Mateo. The latest addition to the cast is little Philip DeLacy well-known child actor.

The Gerson Pictures Corporation have started work on the third of their series of six five-reel melodramas, starring Ora Carew. Camera work began at the company's Page Street studios on Monday morning, under the direction of Tom Gibson, with George Crocker at the camera. Jay Morley, Hal Stephens, and Tiny Sandford still head Miss Carew's supporting cast, with some local actors in some of the smaller roles. The second picture of the series, a tale of the lumber camps, is being titled and cut and will be ready for release to the state right market about the end of the month.

Mae Murray arrived in San Francisco last week to make personal appearances at the Warfield Theatre in connection with the showing of "The French Doll" her latest starring vehicle.

A very large and most enthusiastic audience welcomed the Western Premier of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" at the Capitol Theatre. The picture is one of the most outstanding ever given to the world on the silver sheet, not on the masterly and remarkable performance Lon Chaney as the hunchback, but the re drama of the action, and the wonderful han ling of the huge mob scenes, make it a pictu long to be remembered by even the blase fil patron. Every part is remarkably well playe but Ernest Torrence, who wins new laurels the chief of the beggars, and Patsy Ruth Mi ler as the little Gypsy girl deserve special me tion. The opening of this film also marks t opening of the Capitol Theatre under the Rot schild banner, under which in future will devoted to feature pictures coming in for lon runs

---

Bessie Barriscale, long a favorite of the sile drama opened as the headliner at the Orpheu Theatre in a little comedy called "Pickin Peaches." The playlet was written for her b her husband Howard Hickman, who is also h leading man. This marks Miss Barriscale first appearance here in more than two years.

His many friends in the picture world a mourning the death on October 26th, of Je ome Patrick, well-known leading man of bo the stage and screen. He passed away at t Neurological Institute in New York City, aft a short illness. The funeral services took pla on Saturday morning Sept 29th, at Campbell Funeral Church and were attended by mar friends prominent in the dramatic life of th country. Jerome Patrick was born in 190 since which time he has been leading man wit many of the successes of the stage and scree His latest engagement was as the hero Alice Brady's great hit of the past seas "Zander The Great."

CASTS OF THE WEEK

Goldwyn Studios
present
"NELLIE, THE BEAUTIFUL CLOAK MODEL"
Directed by Emmett Flynn
Photographed by Lucien Andriot
Story by H. H. Van Loan
CAST:

Claire Windsor	Lew Cody
Mae Bush	Edmund Lowe
Raymond Griffith

Waldorf Productions
present
"INNOCENCE"
Directed by Edward J. Le Saint
Photographed by King Grey
CAST:

Anna Q. Nilsson	Wilfred Lucas
Freeman Wood	Earl Foxe
Vera Lewis	William Scott
Kate Lester	Marion Harlon
Jessie Arnold

Goldwyn Studios
present
"THREE WEEKS"
Directed by Alan Crosland
Photographed by J. Mescall
Story by Elinor Glynn
CAST:

Aileen Pringle	Conrad Nagel
Stuart Holmes	Mitchell Lewis
John Sainpolis	Robert Cain
Joan Standing	Claire de Lorez
Nigel de Brulier	Dale Fuller
H. Reeves-Smith	Helen Dunbar
Charles Green	William Haines

Hitting the High Spots

By Buster Keaton

Wisconsin wheat crops damaged by frost, wires tell us. Argentine heavyweight crop ruined by fists, we say.

Couple married fifty years get their pictures in the paper. Is that sufficient compensation?

San Francisco woman says a man can get married if he is making twenty-five dollars a week. It isn't the initial cost; it's the upkeep, as the auto salesmen say.

Marriage licenses on the increase in Southern California, statistics show. Wonder if that's why the authorities created another divorce court?

An unmarried Los Angeles woman says husbands should have a night out every week. "Yes," says the married women, "but let them try to get back in!"

San Diego chief of police starts clean-up. States that any bandit who walks into the station and gives himself up will be immediately arrested.

LETTERS
In Our P. O. For You.

Vera White	Crane Wilbur
Louise Lovely	Niles Welch
Henry Walthall	Lionel Belmore
Phillipe De Lacy	Raymond McKee
Philo McCullough	Charles Hyland
Forest Stanley	Lon Chaney

CASTS OF THE WEEK

Goldwyn Studios
present
"WILD ORANGES"
Directed by King Vidor
Photographed by John Boyle
Story by Jos. Hegesheimer
CAST:

Frank Mayo	Virginia Valli
Ford Sterling	Chas. A. Post
Nigel de Brulier

Warner Brothers
present
"BEAU BRUMMEL"
Directed by Harry Beaumont
Photographed by Dave Abel
CAST:

John Barrymore	Mary Astor
Irene Rich	Carmel Meyers
Alec. B. Francis	Richard Tucker
Willard Louis	Clarissa Selwyn
Andre de Beranger

Louis B. Mayer Productions
present
"WHY MEN LEAVE HOME"
Directed by John M. Stahl
Story by A. P. Younger
CAST:

Lewis Stone	Helene Chadwick
William V. Mong	Mary Carr
Hedda Hopper	Alma Bennett
Lila Leslie	Sidney Bracy
E. H. Calvert

Years of Endeavor Result in High Position

rederick Bond, actor, author, director — f Hollywood—This is indeed a fit- ti title to this artist of the legitimate a silent drama who, born in Brooklyn, N w York, has traveled the globe as a p fessional man, only to return to the c ma capital to become a permanent r dent. Bond's career as an actor dates b k to the time when "The Christian" p yed by William Hodge, was at the h ght of its run in New York and in v ch offering Bond was playing the j enile lead. Under a long term con- t t he went to London, joining the M ther Goose Pantomime Co., under the d ction of Fred Graham. Bond played H r Majesty's Theatres throughout Eng- l d, Australia and New Zealand, return- i to the United States, upon comple- t n of his contract. Going to Honolu- l he played in stock at the Opera House r three consecutive seasons. Tiring c foreign clime, he again returned to t States, joined the Metropolitan Stock C for two years, and later went with t Auditorium Stock Co. of Kansas City, f a season, later opening at the Willis W od Theatre of the same city where l remained another season. After two s cessful years at the Princess Theatre, l s Moines, Bond was again engaged l William Hodge to play the leading n e in "Fixing Sister," which established : record run in Chicago. Ronald & C fford then contracted for his services : the 63rd and Halstead Street Theatre, h ere he portrayed the part of Horace Worth in "Sinners." Tiring of stock, Bond jumped into vaudeville for two years in his own act on the Orpheum circuit. Coming west he joined the forces of D. W. Griffith as an actor on the now Fine Arts lot. He was loaned to Douglas Fairbanks for a part in "He Comes Up Smiling." Fox engaged him for Theda Bara's, "The She Devil," and later with David Butler, he was prominently cast in "Sitting on the World." Eager to go into the directorial field Bond joined William Aldrick and journeyed to Honolulu as his assistant. It was there he met A. K. Mozumdar. and after many conferences they returned to the States to prepare the production of "Beyond the Veil," a picture dealing with the philosophy of the Hindu Masters.

Bond directed the American sequence of this picture of 720 scenes without the aid of a script, which was made possible by the great co-operation of the staff which included the master cinematographer, Joe Walker, whose arrangement of lighting effects is said to lend great value to this wonderful production. Bond has firmly established himself in the directorial field and has recently been engaged by the Renalles, Inc., to handle the megaphone for their forthcoming production, "The Elks Tooth."

His family who have recently arrived from the east are elated over the fact that the globe trotting days are over and that they are at last to have a bungalow in Hollywood.

Heads You Win!

JEAN HERSHALT

PRISCILLA MORAN

CHARLES KING

Zan

Hair Goods
Make-up

"Superlative Quality"

Fine Hair Goods - - including toupees . ..... transformations ..... beards . . . . moustaches. Made to order . . . . skillfully . . . . carefully . . . incorporating in their manufacture the knowledge gained by many years experience. Blending the art and traditional craftsmanship of the old wigmaker with modern methods and facilities for preparation. They are beautiful . . . . keen . . . . unusually well made. Come . . . . see them . . . . now!

Make-up for Reel Folks inclusive of rouges . . . . perfumes . . . . talc and fine face-powders ..... lipsticks mascaro and mascarillo . . . . brilliantine . . . . henna hair tints . . . .cleansing creams . . . . facial creams. Truly extraordinary! Preferred by discriminating professionals the world. over Both domestic . . . . imports; from acknowledged masters of make-up. Don't forgo an early inspection of these. You're welcome . . . . always. If they meet with your approval, as we know they will, we'd like to be appointed your wigmakers and make-up consultants.

By the way, a little message is coming to ....you from us . . through the mail . . read it!

Zan, Hair Goods & Make-up

819 South Hill Street Los Angeles, Calif.
Telephone .Metropolitan 0498

"Meet Danny Our Chef" Says Heerman

Danny Mulholland, prop man for Constance Talmadge's company, made a salad for her latest Joseph M. Schenck-First National comedy-drama, "The Dangerous Maid," which is destined to become as historic as the book from which the film was adapted.

Victor Heerman, the director, ordered the salad for six of King James II's soldiers. Now, Danny is a "prop" man and not a chef. He found some lettuce, but when it came to the dressing he was stumped. In a sudden inspiration he sallied forth to the carpenter shop, gathered up a handful of red and white sawdust, and sprinkled it on as a garnish.

"That's a beautiful salad, I'd like to eat it myself," said Heerman when Danny dished it around the table. Danny said nothing. But to his dismay Heerman directed the soldiers to eat. Glen MacWilliams started cranking his camera. The extras bit hungrily into the decoction. After one mouthful; they all stopped, bravely gulping down what they had bitten into.

"Go on and eat, you'll spoil the scene," Heerman shouted. Like brave soldiers they attempted another mouthful. Again they stopped. Heerman stormed. Then one of the men timidly suggested that Heerman taste it. Scornfully the director shoveled a generous forkful palateward. One bite and out it came.

Heerman looked around for Danny with a murderous eye.

But Danny at that instant was passing through the studio gate and going strong.

Vera Steadman and Teddy Sampson, prominent comediennes, have worked together in many of the latest Christie productions and are now playing together during their belated vacations. Between scenes in their most recent production, Vera would seek a quiet corner to plan on how to "vacation" in New York. Teddy would be in another corner doing exactly the same thing—neither aware of the other's plans.

At the completion of the picture the girls rushed to their homes, packed and rushed to the depot. Vera then jumped into a phone booth to say "good bye" to her pal, Teddy entered the adjoining booth to phone Vera. No answer; tears.

Meeting in front of the booths they enacted one of the most humorous scenes of their careers as in mutual recognition they stared at each other in wet-eyed and open-mouthed astonishment.

"Where in the world are you going?" they both questioned.

"New York!" shouted the girls in feminine enthusiasm.

So they departed in the happiest spirits that comediennes have ever enjoyed and the tall buildings will be viewed in joint bewilderment.

CAMERA'S WEEKLY WAKE-EM-UP

SPECIAL NEWS SECTION

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1923

Law Confiscates Movie Cameras Griffith Set

Galleries may be invited to the king of all big scenes in motion ctures according to an under-anding recently reached by lead-g producers of the east.

The purpose of inviting the pub-c is to combat the prevalent impres-on of "faking" in production. So uch discredit has been cast upon e reality of scenes by various riters that theater owners com-ained their patrons did not be-ve any scene in a film was legiti-ately photographed without "doc-ring."

So the producers have partially cided to invite the public at all enes where their presence does ot interfere with the work, and is policy is being first put into ffect with the larger spectacular enes for D. W. Griffith's next roduction, "America." For this riffith is reproducing all the more nportant battles of the Revolu-ionary War. Unusual efforts have en made that all details of this ction be made with absolute fidel-y to history.

The first test of inviting the pub-c, has been unusually impressive, s galleries varying from a thou-and to fifteen thousand have fol-owed the action day by day. The illside near Somers, where the enes are being staged offer a per-ect stadium for the gallery to iew the thousands of soldiers and layers in action.

The privilege, however, is being lightly abused by pirate photog-aphers who take the action with mall motion picture cameras, and awk it to smaller companies for ig scenes in minor productions. aturday afternoon, the State Po-ice confiscated seven small motion icture cameras. Capt. French, of he State Police made no arrests t Griffith's request, the film and amera being held in the custody f the police until, "America" is eleased.

FIDLER HOME

The name of the producing com-any has come to mean more to he motion picture fans than ever efore in the history of the indus-ry, according to a report brought ack to Hollywood by James M. Fidler, member of the Famous Players-Lasky publicity depart-ment, who has returned from a our of the United States. Trav-elling for the interests of William de Mille and that producer's pic-tures, Fidler visited nearly thirty cities, stopping at the branch of-fices of the company and meeting the leading theater and newspaper men everywhere.

Meet Edna Wallace Hopper, Just 63

Can a star of "Floradora" enter a 1923 beauty contest? Yes.

Can old faces be made new? Yes.

The questions are natural ones. The answers are those of Miss Edna Wallace Hopper, famous 63 year-old actress-flapper, who has the face and figure of a nineteen-year-old girl, and the mental attitude of a twenty-six-year-old woman.

Miss Hopper is famed for other reasons than her striking beauty. She was a member of the cast of the original Floradora which stirred New York twenty-three years ago. She took the principal part in the stage production "Whang," which followed soon afterward. She was one of the early David Belasco favorites, and was the fourth wife of De Wolf Hopper.

After such a career she went overseas during the war, to serve as a nurse, and after seven years of service, found herself looking old in the eyes of the world. She was nearing sixty. But she didn't feel old. She wanted to look like she felt.

In Paris she placed herself in the hands of a noted plastic surgeon. She entered his establishment an old woman in looks. She left it a young girl. She had a face and a figure of a youthful beauty, curly bobbed hair and a springy step, and a smile.

Back in New York, Miss Hopper created a furore. Stage door Johnnies who had waited for her after the performances of Floradora were faded and grey. Everything had changed.

L. B. Mayer Home Plans Busy Season

With several new plays and books in his possession and plans perfected for one of the busiest production seasons in the history of his studio, Louis B. Mayer has returned from New York after several weeks spent in important conferences with his sales organization and officials of the Metro and First National distributing organizations.

Accompanying the producer on the journey westward were Robert W. Frazer, popular leading man, and Percy Hilburn, cinematographer, who have spent the past three months filming thrills for Reginald Barker's next picture, "Cape Cod Folks"' along the rugged New England coast where they had the advantage of thousands of fishing schooners as background for their scenes. Production of "Cape Cod Folks" will be resumed in California, San Francisco and its environs having been selected as the locale for the balance of the action.

Helene Chadwick, who has been characterizing the "Home," and not the "Why" in the John M. Stahl production for Mayer, entitled "Why Men Leave Home," completes her engagement this week and returned to the Goldwyn studio where she is under contract.

During the filming of the Stahl picture, which has taken six weeks to photograph, Miss Chadwick has been married twice to the same man, Lewis Stone, and has gone on as many cinematic honeymoons.

According to the rule that "The first shall be last," their first wedding scenes were the last shots taken for the picture.

Lesser Returns From France Shortly

Sol Lesser, visiting European capitals in the interests of Principal Pictures Corporation, will leave France this month. He will spend only a day or two in the New York offices of the company.

Immediately upon his arrival at the studio here, final selection of Baby Peggy's first vehicle for this company will be made, and the scenario department will go to work on the story, which Edward F. Cline will direct.

Lesser will also supervise such changes in the editing and titling of Principal Pictures' film version of Harold Bell Wright's "When a Man's a Man," as are deemed necessary to make it the worthwhile drama that it is bound to be. Associated First National Pictures will release. "When a Man's a Man" some time in December.

The trip East via Santa Fe of Elliott Dexter, Bryant Washburn, Mabel Forrest, together with Samuel V. Grand, president of Grand-Asher, through which their pictures will be distributed, and others, was one long triumphal procession, according to wires received at the Grand Studio.

At every city or town where they stopped for any length of time at all, such as Albuquerque, Chicago, Kansas City, etc., reporters from local papers met them at the train and a throng of admirers strove to shake hands with their favorites.

Besides those mentioned, Ben Wilson, producer; R. William Neill, who made the Dexter picture, Mrs. Dexter, Mrs. Grand, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bishoff, Jo Sternberg and others were in the party.

Allen Holubar Has Nashville Up In Arms

Motion pictures have caused Nashville, Tennessee to rise up in arms. All the soldiers that middle Tennessee can muster, from hoariest rebel to youngest Guardsman are preparing for bloody conflict. Not since the days of '61 has there been such an atmosphere of tense excitement.

For Allen Holubar is in Nashville at the present time filming a number of big scenes for "The Human Mill," his first production for Metro. And Nashville is turning out en masse to witness and assist in the taking of the first motion picures ever made in that fair Southern city.

"The Human Mill" is a screen version of "The Bishop of Cottontown" by John Trotwood Moore. This story is hailed as a leaf from Tennessee's song and story. In order that an authentic historical as well as pictorial background might be obtained, Metro dispatched Mr. Holubar and his entire staff to Nashville for a period of film making on the exact locale of the story.

Among the important scenes to be filmed in the South are the Battle of Franklin, which will be staged on the actual scenes of that fateful and bloody conflict, with half the population of Franklin assisting.

An old sulky race will be filmed at a long-deserted race track at Murfressboro, which has been rejuvenated for the purpose.

Throughout the making of those southern scenes Mr. Holubar will have the assistance of the author, who is one of Tennessee's most famous historians.

HOW LONG IS A SCENARIO

There may be those who think that writing a scenario means merely sitting down at a typewriter and dashing off a few palpitating pages. With such persons Waldemar Young, who prepared the script for Mary Pickford's "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," desires to pick a quarrel.

"I wonder," said he, "If most folks realize that about the same number of words are required for a scenario as are included in the average novel. By that I mean for both the detailed synopsis and the continuity. Oh, yes, you must have both. You first do the synopsis to get the story properly arranged from a dramatic standpoint. Then you break the story into scenes for the camera. This means a continuity. And believe me, much midnight oil is burned in the process. About 75,000 words are pounded out before the job is complete."

Fate Altered His Ambitions For The Better

Rockliffe Fellowes, leading and character man of stage and screen, always wanted to be a soldier.

He comes from a family of soldiers and statesmen on both sides of the house.

And the only reason Rockliffe wasn't a general, or a corporal, or something, was because he flunked on his exams for the Royal Military Academy in his home country—Canada.

"But," consoled his father, "It's time somebody in the family got into a profession that makes pay day an event—not an occurrence."

Consequently young Fellowes was sent to college. The first time it was "St. John the Evangelist's School" at Montreal. What did he study? "Nothing," in "Rocky own words.

The next school tackled—Bishop's College, Lenoxville, Canada. What course did he study? "Of course," says Fellowes, "nothing."

Then he took up "acting" as a profession. "I got by so well acting like I was studying in school that I knew I must have a natural bent toward the profession," says this well-known artist.

During eleven years on the legitimate stage he played the leads in Bernard Shaw's "Man and Super Man," Mrs. Fisk's "Erstwhile Susan" and for two years had the leading role in "Within the Law." He was playing the principal role in "Under Cover," when he was enticed into the films.

"They wanted somebody who looked like a gangster to play the lead in "The Regeneration" says Fellowes," and I took it. I've been in films ever since and I never expect to return to the stage unless conditions change."

Fred Thomson known as 'a man's man', because of his big all-American type is now being starred in "Running Wild", which is being produced by the H. J. Brown Productions, and is one of those big stories of the great romantic west. Thomson while a perfect horseman and a natural son of the west is not a two gun hero, but the skillful athletic type loved and feared for his bigness. Playing opposite Thomson is Hazel Keener, international beauty, represent a unique combination of Brawn and Beauty. Miss Keener was recently proclaimed the most beautiful girl by the International Society of Photographers at London, and more recently was victor in the challenge contest.

Other well known players in the cast are Frank Hagany, David (Red) Kirby, Wilfred Lucas, Dot Farley, Dick Southerland, Bob Reeve, Peewee Holmes and Silver the thorobred trick horse owned by Mr. Thomson.

"Running Wild", is the first of a series of twelve features scheduled for production this year. The series will be relleased through the Monogram PiPctures Corp., of New York, a new independent organization

Passes Through Catastrophies

Mary Pickford's field publicity representative, John D. Howard, who has just returned to Hollywood from an 8500 mile trip through the states west of the Mississippi in the interest of Miss Pickford's newest release, "Rosita," tells a glowing story of the thrills along the way.

More than half the journey was made via auto over roads which ranged from paved highways to desert trails and through an assortment of weather which included sunshine, snow and torrential rainstorms.

An accurate check on the auto licenses along the way showed that he encountered cars from every state in the union except Rhode Island and Vermont.

In addition to the variety of weather and roads, Howard also came in contact with other kinds of excitement. He was in Tulsa, Okla., during the recent riots when both city and state were put under martial law. He was in St. Joseph, Mo., when the re-enacted Pony Express ride started. While passing through Utah, he encountered the washout and cloudburst at Brigham, being fortunate to escape injury. Then on the Nevada desert, he witnessed the recent eclipse of the sun. And to cap the climax, he dropped into Berkeley, Calif., just in time to see 10,000,000, worth of houses, covering 50 blocks, go up in smoke.

"Which is about as much excitement as I ever expect to witness in six weeks," said Howard.

Goldwyn Co. Returns From Gotham City

In the past few months, Helen Ferguson has accomplished a remarkable number of things. She has played so many roles that she has stacked up three unreleased performances ahead of her—"The Right of the Strongest," "The Unknown Purple," and "The Vital Question," the latter a story by William Conselman just finished by the Laval Photoplay company at Universal City.

Beside this, she has managed to keep up pretty well with her writing for which she is noted, in addition to her histrionic ability. After writing interviews, features, articles, verse and general newspaper material, she is now making a determined attack on the field of the short story.

But most important of all to a woman's viewpoint, perhaps, is the fact that she has had her hair bobbed. It takes a girl weeks of hard thinking to make up her mind to do a thing like that.

Al St. John, whose muscular dexterity has been proved on the beach as a life guard, on the top deck of an airplane as a stunt man and in gymnastic comedy before the camera, burst into the strong man class with a bang on the Fox lot where he is doing preliminary work in a new two reel comedy.

The script called for St. John to tumble from a merry-go-round, strike a wall, and instead of falling to the floor, to stick in the air, straight out from the wall with only his hands touching. The first scheme was to break the fillm, and then catch St. John in his aerial suspension, after he had been fixed there with wires that wouldn't photograph.

Al had a couple of handholds put put in the wall, and in his tumble from the merry-go-round, caught them and held his body perpendicular from the wall. It is a stunt that only a very few of the world's professional strong men try.

Helen Undergoes Operation And Recovers

Emmett Flynn, Goldwyn director, and his film company, which includes Claire Windsor, Lew Cody, Mae Busch, Edmund Lowe, and Raymond Griffith, have returned to the studios after an extended location trip to New York City.

Flynn is filming "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," from the famous stage success by Owen Davis.

Traffic on the New York Elevated lines was held up for several hours recently by Flynn during the filming of sensational scenes. Fifth avenue, Broadway and the tenement districts also served as settings.

In one spectacular episode, the director became his own "stunt man" and drove an automobile travelling thirty-five miles an hour into a taxicab. Both cars were completely wrecked, but neither Flynn, Edmund Lowe, who was riding with him, or the driver of the other car were injured.

Mae Busch was slightly injured in the filming of another automobile wreck, but her injuries did not hold up work on the picture.

Hobard Bosworth, Will Walling, Lillian Tashman, Dorothy Cummings and several other players will join the cast of the picture.

ENGAGED BY NIBLO

Ben Carre, one of the world's best known film art directors has been signed by Fred Niblo.

He has been busy for several weeks designing sets and properties for the colorful Spanish story Fred Niblo will produce with Barbara La Marr and Ramon Navarro in the leading roles.

A Frenchman by birth, Carre is thoroughly familiar with the Spanish Pyrennes which play an important part in the background of "Thy Name Is Woman."

East Newspaper Strike Hits Movieland

The recent Gotham newspaper strike has hit the movies. Not because the strike has caused a curtailing of the publication of stories about plays and players but because eight New York papers combined their editions and printed them all in one plant. Making exterior scenes for "Black Oxen" in front of a theatre, Frank Lloyd employed a newspaper boy to stand on the curb and sell papers to the crowd which poured out of the theatre at the conclusion of a supposed first night performance. As the scene was to be laid in New York, New York morning newspapers were a necessity and J. W. Delfino, master of properties went out to fill Mr. Lloyd's order for "eight or ten New York morning papers." At most of the newspaper stands the supply of New York editions was exhausted, but finally at a street stand, Mr. Delfino asked for eight New York papers and received one paper. "Say" shouted Delfino at the proprietor, as he rang up the price of the edition "I said I wanted eight New York morning papers, didn't I?" "Well," replied the news vender, "you've got eight New York papers. Take a look at the heading; you've got all the papers combined in one. I think you're pretty lucky to get so many for the price of one." So Delfino had to go to the public library and get a bundle of New York papers a month old to make the showing Mr. Lloyd demanded. And, that's a fact.

COLLEEN MOORE SCREEN'S POPULAR "TOMBOY"

Rodolph Valentino can claim the title—"The screen's greatest lover."

Norma Talmadge is accorded the distinction of being the greatest of all emotional actresses.

To William S. Hart goes the title—"The screen's greatest portrayer of Western roles."

But to Colleen Moore must go the title—"The screen's one and only tomboy."

Miss Moore stands so far ahead of her competitors for this distinction that there is really no competition at all.

She has been "tomboy" representative of almost every nationality

She was "tomboy" Irish in "Come on Over", an Indian "tomboy" in First National's "The Huntress"; a typical society "tomboy" in "Flaming Youth", and in her next picture "The Swamp Angel", she is again to portray an American "tomboy" but one essentially different from her "Flaming Youth" characterization.

In this picture, to go into production soon under the direction of Clarence Badger, she will play the leading role, that of a hoydenish girl of the poorer sections of a typical American town, the ring leader of all the scalleywaggery of the neighborhood and the best baseball player of the district.

ilm Chiefs Have Busy Season Ahead

One of the fastest growing pro-ction organizations of the mo-n picture industry is Associated ctures Corporation, sponsored by erbert Lubin, Arthur H. Sawyer d Marcus Jacobowsky, respec-ely Secretary, General Manag- and President. Organized less an one year ago by Sawyer and ubin, producers of S-L pictures r Metro Pictures Corporation, ssociated has rapidly established elf in the foremost ranks of portant film organizations, hav-g been responsible for one of e most successful "specials" of e past year, "Quincy Adams awyer."

Following several months of anning on the part of the three ecutives mentioned above, Her-rt Lubin is authority for the tement that Associated Pictures rporation will considerably ex-nd its activities, as per the fol-wing:—"In view of the amazing ogress made by Associated dur-g the past ten months, we have cided to enlarge our producing ope. In addition to the series special features which we are w making for Metro Pictures rporation, we will also produce other series of four special pic-res each year, Due to the phen-nenal success of Clarence Bad-r, director of "Quincy Adams awyer" and "Potash and Perl-utter," and whose services we ntrol exclusively, we also con-mplate a series of Clarence Bad-r Productions. Badger has es-blished himself with the exhibit-s of the country as a director surefire film successes and I be-ve showmen everywhere will elcome a series of pictures car-ing the guarantee of "Badger erit" with them. In keeping with e increased scope of our activi-es in the field of production, Ar-ur H. Sawyer, supervising direc-r of Associated, has enlarged ir headquarters in Hollywood, nd has surrounded himself with complete staff of production ex-rts.

IDOR FINISHES "WILD ORANGES"

King Vidor, youthful Goldwyn rector, has completed the final enes for his picturization of Jo-ph Hergesheimer's popular nov-, "Wild Oranges."

Although he encountered many fficulties in making the picture, idor lost only ten days on the me scheduled. The majority of e scenes for the picture were lmed in the actual locale described y the author in the story. Vidor ent six weeks in the swamp nds of Florida.

The cast, which consisted of only ve players, was dismissed with a Wild Orange" party given by ing Vidor in the Goldwyn cafe-ria. Orange juice, orange salad, range pie and candied orange peel-gs were listed on the menu.

The players were Frank Mayo, irginia Valli, Ford Sterling, Ni-el de Brulier and Charles A. Post.

Syd Chaplin Gives Producers Idea

One school of critics of the screen holds that the producer is ever alert for innovation and new thought, the other side claims that he is wont to follow in the paths others have successfully trod before him. Whichever faction has the truth on its side, it is now conceded throughout the industry that Syd Chaplin—in his present return to active work before the camera has given producers food for thought.

Said premise is the need for comedy relief in dramatic pictures.

At first glance, this doesn't sound revolutionary; it isn't, for all the older plays and pictures were so constructed. The recent trend, however, has been toward less intensely emotional appeal in the dramatic fare offered to theater-goers; hence, the need for comedy relief has not been so strong. We got our laughs from straight farces and slapstick, with an occasional thriller comedy from Harold Lloyd.

Comedy relief for dramatic films, according to Syd Chaplin, is one of the most important thoughts for the producer to-day. Our "serious" pictures require it now; and it's a great boon to the comedian, also, for it gives him more logical and reasonable wedge for his work.

Such was Syd's recently completed role in Marshall Neilan's morbid Russian story, "The Rendezvous" and his delineation has been the talk of the film colony among the favored few who have seen this picture.

Fitzgerald Will Direct Irving Production

Dallas M. Fitzgerald, one of the best known directors in the business, has been engaged by I. W. Irving to handle the megaphone on "The Dawn of Love," a picturization of a novel by the same name, written by Irving himself. This is the first of a series of four Irving Productions which will be made at the Hollywood Studios for Selznick release. Fitzgerald and Irving are now casting for this romance of the Southern mountain country, and the company will work in the mountains near San Diego when doing their exteriors.

POPULARITY OF DEXTER PROVED

Testifying to the popularity of Elliott Dexter, now making his own pictures for Grand-Asher release, thousands of letters and shoals of manuscripts have poured in upon him since the first published annnouncements of his new organization.

Naturally, being very busy he hasn't had time to answer many of the letters or read all the manuscripts. Ultimately the latter will be attended to and as many as possible of the letters cared for.

But a picture star is a busy individual, especially when he is also head of his own company. He is in much the same fix as the actor-manager of a stock theater.

Mr. Dexter appreciates the evidences of esteem, however, and is gratified by the kindly tone of every letter—without exception; congratulations in many cases for his success in finally achieving his ambition—to be able to make pictures the way he wants to make them.

"The Way Men Love," his first, produced by R. William Neill, is a very good example, he says, of what his pictures are to be. It is intensely dramatic and carries a message that will be an inspiration, it is believed, and furthermore, it is declared, there is entertainment in every foot of the film.

Niblo-La Marr Production Gets Under Way

Barbara La Marr is appearing for the third time under the direction of Fred Niblo. She has started work in the leading role, that of Guerita, a Spanish girl in the Louis B. Mayer feature, "Thy Name Is Woman" which is to be released through Metro.

Miss La Marr first worked in "The Three Musketeers," which Mr.. Niblo directed and in which Douglas Fairbanks was starred. Just recently, in fact in the last production Mr. Niblo directed for Mayer, Miss La Marr played the part of a wicked Russian dancer. The picture was "Strangers of the Night," adapted from the stage play "Captain Applejack."

In "Thy Name is Woman," Miss La Marr will be given the most exotic—the most dramatic, the most colorful part she has ever portrayed in her interesting picture career.

"Mr. Niblo was wonderfully kind and gave me a chance before anyone else," Miss La Marr says. "He is my favorite director and I would rather work in a production of his than in any other."

Miss La Marr reached Hollywood just in time to start work, after a journey to Rome and New York where she appeared in the leading role in the film version of "The Eternal City."

Virginia Brown Faire, featured First National player, will shortly be seen in her first picture under her new contract, "The Thundergate," work in which was completed a few weeks ago. Miss Faire has the role of the white girl who was brought up by Chinese parents, so the atmosphere and setting is most intriguing for the scenes that have plenty of heart throbs as well as delightful comedy. Especially becoming to her style of beauty are the lovely Chinese costumes, of which there is a great variety including a lovely wedding robe.

Keaton To Sell His Railway Interests

Buster Keaton is retiring from the train running business, and has a road consisting of one engine, a tender, baggage car and three coaches, with almost a mile of rails thrown in—all of which will go under the hammer at a great sacrifice.

This announcement should be of more interest to a museum or circus side-show than any of the big traction corporations, as Buster's road is a trifle antiquated. Figuratively speaking it is 100 years old, as it is a replica of the "Rocket," the first railroad train ever built, now on exhibition at Darlington, England.

Buster's replica was built for use in "Hospitality," his new six-reel travesty on early 19th century American life, which Jack Blystone is directing for Joseph M. Schenck-Metro release this winter. At the present-day price of materials Buster's "Rocket" cost more than its prototype by several thousands of dollars, but its value as junk is estimated by the president of the B. K. & J. M. S. at about $4.97. Unless some historic organization with an appreciation of the greater-than-dollars value of its sentimental significance comes to the rescue, the "Rocket" which "Hospitality" will soon make famous to the American public will pass into limbo with nothing but scrap-iron dealers at the obsequies to bid for its metal carcass.

BUSY BEES

Bess Meredyth who so cleverly adapted "Strangers of the Night" to the screen is again working with Fred Niblo on "Thy Name is Woman." She not only is responsible for the script on this newest Niblo feature, but during the filming of the aforesaid play is searching for material for the next production.

Most scenario writers find their work ended when a successful script has been written. Not so with Miss Meredyth. She follows through the entire production—offering valuable suggestions as to interpretations and costumes. Then when the actual "Shooting" has been completed she follows the picture into the projection room and goes with it through the cutting and editing process.

Carl Miller, romantic male lead in Chaplin's "A Woman of Paris" whose work has won interesting laudations, has just signed for the leading male role in a Ben Wilson production for Grand-Asher and will begin his work Tuesday at the Berwilla Studios. Arthur Rosson, who will direct the picture, is now conferring with Mr. Miller on the role which will be invested with certain screen values that will make it a big characterization and a departure from the ordinary male leads. Mr. Miller plays opposite Mildred Davis and is cast as a rich philanthropist.

Pickford Train Arrives With Company

Mary Pickford and 115 members of her company are back in Los Angeles, having returned by special train from San Francisco where they went to make scenes for "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," which will be the star's next feature.

The work in the Bay City was the first production activity in connection with this picture, and incidentally the most extensive location work Mary Pickford has ever done. The "Dorothy Vernon Special," as the train was called, consisted of ten cars, four of them loaded with properties and equipment. Several horses specially trained for the picture were taken along, and amongst the properties were 250 saddles, 850 Elizabethan costumes, 20 carriages and wagons, and 50 fuse-type rifles, each valued at $100.

In addition to the special train, a motor caravan consisting of seven trucks was called into service.

The scenes taken in San Francisco represent one of Queen Elizabeth's "progresses," as her travels were called. It was customary in those days for travelers to take along all their servants, household goods, and chattels.

To supplement players taken from Hollywood, 500 extras with enough horses to mount them were engaged in San Franciso by Marshall Neilan, director, thus making the largest movie contingent ever to invade that city.

HISTORY REPEATS .....

Psychologists will doubtless watch with interest an experiment that will take place within the next few weeks. The outcome of the demonstration,, it is anticipated, will answer the question—"Does a human being's outlook on life change within a period of eight years?"

George D. Baker, who directed Madame Nazimova in a screen version of "Revelation,' 'eight years ago, is to film the same picture now, with Viola Dana in the stellar role. The well-known director will "shoot" the production without the aid of a script. So well does he know the story, its action and sequences, that he will depend entirely upon his memory to transcribe the play to the silversheet.

Just what effect eight years of additional experience will make in Baker's treatment of an old story, is the question that psychologists are anxiously awaiting the answer to.

"Revelation" will be produced at the Metro Studios.

FIRST NATIONAL GETS "JEALLOUS HUSBANDS"

Negative of Maurice Tourneur's latest picture, "Jealous Husbands" has been shipped from Hollywood to the First National offices in New York and will soon be ready for distribution.

Fate Deals Kindly with Mary Alden

Mary Alden, one of the screen's leading portrayers of sympathetic roles, of toil worn mothers, neglected wives and enslaved servants, has never had a hardship in real life.

Miss Alden, in addition to being one of the best character actresses, is one of the youngest.

Hardships of the material kind have passed Miss Alden by. Having reached the decision early in life that she wanted to be an actress she studied at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York and completed her education in Paris. Returning to New York she secured a fairly good part in a stock production without difficulty. She was promoted rapidly until she entered motion pictures with Biograph as one of the highest salaried leading women of that time.

She has never wanted for the comforts of life, never known the feeling of having to postpone meals, experiences gone through by a majority of successful screen artists. Yet she admittedly gives some of the finest and most sincere characterizations.

One of the recognized definitions of genius is "the infinite capacity for taking pains" and it is this that is responsible for Miss Alden's success in delineating characters. She studies people constantly. She analyzes the character of each person she meets. According to Miss Alden, she fell into the habit as a girl and has found it not only fascinating but a negotiable asset.

"Motion picture cameras register thoughts as well as gestures and facial expressions," she said. "For that matter, thoughts control a person's every movement. 'As a man thinks, so is he.' If you don't play a role from within as well as from without you're just a manikin in greasepaint and costume. If you don't know how all manner of people think and act under all manner of conditions in real life, you can't portray those people on the screen. That's all there is to it."

Miss Alden is adding to her list of portrayals as Myra, maid to Enid Bennett in "The Living Past," Tom J. Hopkins' adaptation of William J. Locke's novel, "The Tale of Triona," which Harold Shaw is directing for Metro.

Pretty Jane May Join the Ranks Of "Bobs"

The lovely blonde tresses which form a halo for Jane Novak's delicate beauty are doomed to an early encounter with the shears!

No, the fair Jane is not going to assume a masculine role—by no stretch of imagination could she be cast for such a part. It is a matter of expediency and not of art that prompts her to consider such a sacrifice.

The disadvantages of long hair were forcibly brought home to Miss Novak during the filming of one of the most dramatic scenes of "The Man Whom Life Passed By."

The action called for Hobart Bosworth, as her father, to crush her to him, and in his intense paternal affection, to cuddle her much as he did when she was a little child. The scene was immensely effective—both as to dramatics and as a means of wrecking her carefully arranged coiffure.

Two rehearsals and four "takes' were necessary before the director was completely satisfied. After each time, Miss Novak was forced to spend some thirty-five minutes with a hairdresser on the set before the action could be repeated.

It it any wonder that she threatens to bob her hair?

B. McGill, who photographed "The Optimist," Lloyd Hamilton's first comedy of the 1924 series, is doing the camera work on Hamilton's second two-reeler, directed by Gil Pratt. Ruth Hiatt is again leading woman.

Now Casting For New Tourneur Production

M. C. Levee has purchased the motion picture rights to William Dudley Pelley's story, "Torment," as the next production to be staged by Maurice Tourneur for First National release.

The story will be brought up to the minute by the producers and will present a stirring melodrama of timely interest, it is announced. The adaptation by Fred Myton will offer various spectacular scenes in which hundreds of players will participate. These scenes will be taken in Northern California, where arrangements for the building of several immense sets are to be made immediately.

Casting for this picturization has started at the United Studios where the opening scenes will be taken within the next week. Negotiations for the services of various players whose recent work on the screen has made them the leading favorites, are now under way.

What does grace mean before a motion picture camera?

Everything, answers Lela Sue Campbell,, beautiful young ingenue whose name and face have become familiar in Hollywood in less than one year.

"The ability to walk, to handle one's hand gracefully, is an absolute essential," says Miss Campbell. "Since I was a child I studied dancing and learned to walk and handle my body smoothly and gracefully. That knowledge has helped me a great deal in my motion picture career."

Clamor For Big Cast Names By Producers

"In the craze for big names," says J. K. McDonald, producer of "Penrod and Sam," for First National and who is now producing "Misunderstood" also a Booth Tarkington story, many producers and directors have gone wild.

"The result has been a lot of big names but not always a lot of big pictures. It is very difficult to place a lot of film celebrities in the same picture without permitting the cast to sag in the middle or at one end—or both. A miscast is less valuable than a well-cast player of much less fame.

"In 'Misunderstood,' which I am now producing for First National release, I have succeeded in obtaining a perfectly balanced cast. The number of principals is very small—in fact, only four. These are Henry B. Walthall, considered by many the world's greatest screen actor; Irene Rich, who has so largely contributed to many big screen successes; Rockliffe Fellowes, whose fame as the father in 'Penrod and Sam' has won favorable criticism where the film has been shown and Ben Alexander who so artistically interpreted the role of Penrod in the same production.

"This cast maintains a perfect balance and each principal plays a role so important that without him the magic of Booth Tarkington's wonderful story would be entirely lost. The smaller parts are interpreted by players chosen in utter disregard of famous names but with great care for fitness and dramatic ability.

"William Beaudine, whose directorial ability so largely contributed to the success of 'Penrod and Sam,' is responsible for bringing out the very best interpretative ability of the cast of 'Misunderstood.'"

LOIS ZELLNER WRITES UNIVERSAL PLAY

Lois Zellner, clever scenarist, who built up an enviable reputation writing for Charles Ray, Dorothy Gish and Mae Marsh, is responsible for the script of "The Right to Love," Baby Peggy's last production under her Universal contract.

Miss Zellner, who has written several of the recent Peggy features as well as other Universal plays "broke into" the scenario field in the days of "two reel productions" and has followed pictures through their various vogues inevitably making a success of every type of photoplay. Several years as head of the scenario department at the American was followed by a long association with Metro Many Ince productions, such as "Bill Henry" and "Happy Though Married," have borne the Zellner label; and Goldwyn has presented "Money Mad," "Friend Husband' and "As Men Love," by the same brilliant authoress.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

WILL WORK ABROAD

Andree Lafayette, whose work the title role of Richard Walton ully's "Trilby," sent the critics rambling for new adjectives, has mpleted work on her next pro- uction, and is planning to leave r Paris to make a picture there r American producers. She will turn to Hollywood in about three onths.

An interesting coincidence ap- ears in the fact that the illustra- ons for the Rex Beach novel, Flowing Gold," which is Richard Valton Tully's next production for he First National program, were one by W. H. D. Koerner, a rother of Chas. Koerner, mana- er of the First National exchange n Portland, Ore.

Following an absence of almost hree years, Earl Kenton, who ormerly directed several very good Mack Sennett comedies, particular- y "A Small Town Idol," in which Ben Turpin was the featured play- r, is again on the pay roll of the ig comedy organization.

While making scenes at Big Bear Lake, in the high Sierras, nembers of Frank Lloyd's produc- ion company making "Black Ox- n," featuring Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle, enjoyed the mar- vels of radio. As guests of A. J. Burke, noted radio wizard at his mountain top sending and receiving station, a symphony concert in Antwerp was first heard, and then a military band in Honolulu was brought into the program via the air. Also while at Mr. Burke's large radio station Mr. Lloyd, un- able to send a message by telegraph due to the early closing of the tel- egraph station, broadcasted a re- quest to Harry E. Weil, his gen- eral manager, in Los Angeles via the Los Angeles Examiner station, and obtained a much needed sup- ply of negative stock by automo- bile the first thing next morning.

POOR JOHN!

John Jay Grey—better known, unfortunately, as John Grey—wants the whole wide world to know that he is not responsible for bills incurred by the John M's or John W's Grey.

John Jay Grey, be it known, is a member of the scenario depart- ment of Principal Pictures Cor- poration, 7250 Santa Monica Boul- evard; he writes stories and titles and—checks. He owes no man, he says! Before joining Sol Les- ser he was with Mack Sennett for a long time, and these two af- filiations constitute his motion pic- ture history.

For the last three or four weeks he has been annoyed with bill col- lectors, and his middle name not being Job, his patience has finally given out and he has caused this notice to be published.

WHO WILL LEAD?

What will the picture colony have as a subject for conversation after the leading roles for "Ben Hur" and Richard Walton Tully's "Bird of Paradise" have finally been decided upon? Mr. Tully is already deep in preparation for the filming of "The Bird of Paradise," his famous international stage suc- cess.

It has been rumored that one of the most interesting missions which took this producer to New York recently was a desire for confer- ences with some of the ladies who became famous through their por- trayals of the role of Luana. Le- nore Ulric, Charlotte Monterey, Laurette Taylor, and Bessie Bar- riscale all scored triumphs in the part on the stage. Will one of these actresses secure the plum, or will Tully, with his character- istic keen showmanship discover some obscure performer and ele- vate her to stardom, as he recent- ly did so successfully in the case of Andree Lafayette in "Trilby"?

Paul Johnston, head of the paint department at the United Studios, has compounded a house paint, that will dry to sandpaper in five min- utes instead of the usual fifteen allowed on motion picture sets. It takes from 24 to 48 hours for or- dinary commercial house paint to dry. "Of course, our paint will not stand the weather, but it looks as well for a short time, as the bet- ter wearing paint," Mr. Johnston explained.

Fred Caldwell announces the re- engagement of Chas W. Mack, who recently severed his connec- tions with the "Principal Pictures Corp. as production manager. Mr. Mack will again don the grease paint for the forthcoming produc- tions, under the direction of Mr. Caldwell.

"Heads Up," is the title given to the second Cameo comedy. It was directed by Norman Taurog, and the cast includes Cliff Bowes, Ruth Hiatt, George Ovey and Mark Jones.

The current Mermaid produc- tion, supervised by Jack White, is a comedy of errors in aviation. Fred Hibbard directing, with a cast including Lige Conley, Olive Bor- den and Peg O'Neill.

Finis Fox has just wired from New York that he had arranged for the release and distribution of his production "Bag and Baggage," featuring Gloria Grey and will soon return to Hollywood.

The world's largest portable elec- trical sub-station, made by West- inghouse for the United Studios was first used on the Algerian street scene for Norma Talmadge's "Dust of Desire." It is the most complete station ever constructed for motion picture work, and cost over $12,000 to build.

HOME TOWN BOY MAKES GOOD

These famous old lines above a small town newspaper story have gladdened the heart of many a suc- cessful actor.

But they shall never be for Lar- ry Fisher, one of the members of the cast in Victor Schertzinger's "The Man Whom Life Passed By," a new Metro special.

You see, Larry hails from New York City!

Jack Richardson accompanied by his wife Florence Stone has re- cently returned to Hollywood af- ter an absence of two years and are again active in Cinema circles.

Jack while in New York work- ed for Famous Players and Fox with the exception of the last four months which was spent on the spoken stage of the Ambassador Theatre.

Looking none the worse for hav- ing gone through two cold winters Jack exclaims:—"The boys were right, there is only one place to live after all—I'm glad I'm home."

An interested observer of the premiere of "The Courtship of Myles Standish" was Al Ray, cousin of the star. Mr. Ray, who is now Jack White's scenario chief, wrote the screen version of John Alden's love story.

Viola Vale has twelve changes of wardrobe in her role with Baby Peggy in "The Right to Love."

Spottiswoode Aitken will play one of the big roles in Fred C. Kusse's next production to follow "Superstition" with Martha Mar- shall.

Chester Bennett has received a cable from a big British producing organization wanting to star Jane Novak in three productions to be made in England.

P. A. Powers has wired Ralph Lewis, suggesting that he appear in the starring role of a baseball player for the next commercial hero production to follow "The Mail Man."

DIRECTOR BROADCASTS "PERSONAL"

"DOLLIE: Please come home. The children are hungry and cry- ing for you. Give up the movies and come back to EARLE."

This is the message which Earle Montgomery, director for Jack White, would like to get to his beautiful collie, who deserted her five babies, only a month old, and disappeared from the Fine Arts studio last Saturday night. As Dollie has just finished work in her first comedy there is a strong suspicion that, like many another young mother, she has tired of domesticity, and decided to look for another engagement in pictures.

HAS LONG HAIR

Time was when Malcolm Mc- Gregor was one of the most famil- iar faces at the Cocoanut Grove, the Montmartre and other of Hol- lywood's exclusive dance rendez- vous.

But of late he has been notice- able by his absence.

The reason?

For two months, this Metro fea- tured player has been letting his hair and beard grow their worst for the role he will portray in "The Human Mill," Allen Holubar's first Metro production.

And "Mac" is as sensitive as he is good looking.

So figure it out for yourself.

INHERITED ABILITY

There are three young players in the cast of "The Man Whom Life Passed By," a new Metro all- star special which Victor Schertz- inger is directing, who undoubted- ly inherit their talent.

Ralph E. Bushman is the son of Francis X. Bushman.

Lincoln Steadman is the son of Myrtle Steadman.

And Gertrude Short comes from a family of stage folk, two of her brothers being Antrim Short, the comedian, and Hazzard Short, the playwright.

Victor Schertzinger, director, author and composer, who is now directing his own story for Metro, wrote the first music score ever used in connection with a motion picture. The picture which enjoy- ed this distinction was "Civiliza- tion," one of Thomas H. Ince's greatest productons.

Hobart Bosworth comes from a race of sailors. His father was a naval officer during the Civil War. He is a first-class seaman himself.

Ralph E. Bushman is giving ev- ery promise of achieving the lead- ing man build of his famous fath- er. At the age of 20 he stands six feet two and one-half inches in his stocking feet and weighs slightly over 200 pounds. At the present time he is appearing in a Metro all-star special.

Cullen Landis is an excellent ex- ample of how to become a movie star. Starting as a property boy at the old Balboa Studios, he took his career as a serious undertaking instead of the overnight success the usual screen aspirant conceilves.

Victor Schertzinger has one of the finest private music libraries in America. "Just An Old Love Song" and "Marcheta," two of his compositions which have earned his small fortunes in royalties, hold positions of special honor in the collection.

Lige Conley, comedian for Jack White, has bought a cottage at La- guna Beach, and expects to spend most of his winter week-ends there.

Who's Who and What's What in Filmland This Week

"THREE WEEKS" CAST COMPLETE

With the addition of John Sainpolis, Robert Kain and Claire de Lorez, the cast of "Three Weeks," the famous Elinor Glyn novel which Alan Crosland is filming for Goldwyn is complete.

The complete cast is: Aileen Pringle, Conrad Nagel, Stuart Holmes, Mitchel Lewis, Joan Standing, Nigel de Brulier, Dale Fuller, H. Reeves-Smith, Helen Dunbar, Charles Green, William Haines, and the last three additions.

Work on the picture is now entering the fourth week, and four complete sequences have been filmed, two with a locale of the English home of Paul, one of "The Queen's" suite in Lucerne, and the last, a huge interior setting of a Lucerne cafe.

More than a dozen sets, after the impressionistic designs by Cedric Gibbons, are being constructed.

John McDermott has finished "Her Temporary Husband" for First National. Exterior scenes for the comedy were taken in Long Beach, Calif.

Lila Leslie, Sidney Bracey and E. H. Calvert have been added to the cast of "Why Men Leave Home." John M. Stahl is directing this picture at the Mayer studios. Sol Polito is grinding the camera.

Bradley King has finished her adaptation of Vaughan Kester's "The Just and the Unjust," for Thomas H. Ince and has left for New York. She will spend a few weeks in the Metropolis and then set sail for Europe.

Russell Simpson and Charlie Murray are the newest additions to Clarence Badger's company interpreting "The Swamp Angel." Colleen Moore is featured in this First National picture.

John Francis Dillon is to direct Its title has not yet been announced.

John M. Stahl's "The Wanters," his latest feature for First National release, has made the journey across continent.

Cutting and editing the film was another picture for First National. completed at the Louis B. Mayer studios. At an unannounced preview at a Los Angeles theater the film was accorded a tremendous ovation. Indications point to a success for the picture, paralleling Stahl's recent notable feature "The Dangerous Age."

"The Wanters," a delightful comedy with a New York society background. is released by First National. Its cast included Marie Prevost, Norma Schearer, Robert Ellis, Gertrude Astor, Lincoln Stedman,. Hank Mann and several other favorites.

HEDDY BUSY

Hedda Nova the noted Russian artiste, has been doubling in brass, as it were, playing in the series of animal pictures Col. W. N. Selig is making at Selig's zoo, and in the Indian stories with John Fox, Jr., which Paul Hurst is directing at the National Studios.

Carl Anderson, president of the Anderson Pictures Corporation and chairman of the advisory committee of the Theatre Owners Distributing Corporation, has returned to New York, leaving William Alexander as his personal representative on the Pacific Coast.

POLICE

Not content with his own knowledge of what situations should be, King Baggot, who is directing "Blackmail" out at Universal City, has called on the city of Los Angeles to help him make the production absolutely true.

Baggot has invited Captain of Detectives George Home to witness the making of the picture. If Home, or any of the experienced officers he has been invited to bring with him, detect any unfaithfulness to life in the crook scenes, Baggot will embody their criticisms in the producton. He feels that a thoroughly experienced detective, more than any other man, should know just how the several characters in the big crook situations would act.

MONG MAY PLAY FAMOUS ROLE

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," twice adapted to the screen from the great story of Robert Louis Stevenson, is to be done again.

An independent producing company has been sounding out William V. Mong on his willingness to take the title role. Mong can't make an answer just yet, as he is already working in two pictures, and the matter of renewal of contract for an extended term will come up in the near future.

The success of the film from the Stevenson story of dual personality, depends on the title role. In Mong, the new producers feel they would have an actor who could interpret the two parts with a faithfulness that would make the film version in which he stars, an outstanding success, even against the background of two previous and entirely artistic productions.

Reginald Barker is one of the best known directors in moviedom and yet he is one of the most modest and reticent of them all. He positively refuses to discuss himself or his work with anyone outside of the Louis B. Mayer Studios and he at no time seeks publicity of any sort. His latest Mayer-Metro release. "Pleasure Mad," is described as a brilliant adaptation of Blanche Upright's novel, "The Valley of Content."

That an evolution of policy in the motion picture industry has been forced through the avalanche of big productions which will divide the army of screen patrons throughout the country into two distinct classes before the end of the current season, is the assertion of Conway Tearle.

"The motion picture industry is rapidly adopting the 'big time' and 'small time' policy of vaudeville and the end of the present season will see a distinct division of two classes of film patrons in this country," says Mr. Teorle.

Lillian Rich has fallen victim of the painful studio malady, "Kleig-eyes" again. This time while playing the feminine lead in the current Jack Hoxie feature, "Wyoming," at Universal. Recently Miss Rich suffered with her eyes while working on "The Love Master," the latest Strongheart feature, directed by Laurence Trimble.

Arthur Jell, leader of the orchestra playing for Mae Murray's latest Metro film, "Fashion Row," gathered a number of well-known local musicians and entertained the old soldiers at their Sawtelle home.

Has Written 111 Scenarios

Thirty-six produced photoplays and seventy-five scenario continuities have been accomplished by Lois Zellner, one of filmdom's foremost writers, over a period of seven years in the studios. Miss Zellner is particularly noted for her cleverly handled human interest stories.

Clark Murray, promising juvenile, has signed a contract with the Mary Pickford company to play in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall."

CHAMPION LOVER

That William Haines, new screen discovery is the "greatest lover" of the screen, is the declaration of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, professed connoisseur of the art in the recent interview.

Says Miss Joyce:

"The most marvellous kiss I've ever seen, the most marvelous kiss I ever hope to see, is the one delivered by Bill Haines in "Three Wise Fools." He puts Rudie in the amateur try-outs. That kid just grabbed the girl (Eleanor Boardman) and kissed her..... kissed her as any flapper longs to be kissed. Yes, even as I would like to be kissed."

The picture, by the way, is one of the few in which Haines ever has appeared, and the first in which he has played a leading part. He is under a long-term contract with the Goldwyn studios.

A new kind of night photography invented by Tony Gaudio, cameraman for Norma Talmadge, was tried out during the filming of Miss Talmadge's latest photoplay, "Dust of Desire," and proved successful.

"An infallible test for a perfect make-up," says Cecil Holland, noted character actor now under contract with Goldwyn, "is to try it out on a child." If the youngster is deceived, and believes the characterization real, then the make-up is O. K. But if the child says "Aw gee, I know you," then something is wrong.

MOTHER HERE

Lloyd Hamilton's mother has come down from Oakland for a stay of a month or longer with her screen-famous son, following his return from several months in New York, to make a picture which, by the way, had as a working title "Mammy's Boy."

Although Lloyd has just taken a large place in Laurel Canyon, he didn't feel that this was quite near enough to the center of things for "Mother," so she is occupying a comfortable apartment in Hollywood, not too far from the Fine Arts studio, where she can run in and see Lloyd at work on his current comedy, directed by Gil Pratt.

Jean Riley who has just cut her blonde hair says, "Bobbing the hair is as bad as getting married. Before you try it you're crazy to, and after its done you're always sorry, and it takes about as long for hair to grow in, as it does to get a divorce."

Julanne Johnston, leading lady for Douglas Fairbanks' new film, "The Thief of Bagdad," is seriously ill, having been confined to her bed for eleven days. This illness, however, has not interfered with the making of the picture, according to Raoul Walsh, director, due to the fact that it is a malady called for by the script.

NOT SO BAD!

"To what one thing do you attribute the spirit of harmony which seems to pervade your entire studio?" asked a visitor of Douglas Fairbanks the other day.

Doug replied: "I always try to make friends of my business associates, but not business associates of my friends."

Something to think about, eh?

TEARLE VACATIONS

Conway Tearle has finished his last scene in "Black Oxen" at the United Studios, signed a new contract at the Lasky Studio and has left for a week's vacation at Arrowhead Lake.

Mr. Tearle will return to the Lasky Studio shortly to appear at the head of a prominent cast of players in "The Next Corner," a Sam Woods production adapted from the novel by Kate Jordan.

"Shooting" on this picturization, to be one of the big Paramount specials of the year, will be started shortly and in the meantime Mr. Tearle will take a well earned rest. Accompanied by his wife, Adele Rowland, of vaudeville fame, he will endeavor to hook some of the elusive rainbow at Arrowhead.

Niblo To Direct Actors' Fund Benefit

Fred Niblo, well-known motion picture director, will direct the staging of the monster benefit performance to be given by the Motion Picture Branch of the Actors' Fund of America on the night of October 29 at the Philharmonic Auditorium. He will be assisted by Miss Winifred Kingston and Miss Marian Fairfax.

The entertainment is to be in the form of an extravaganza combining both vaudeville and dramatic features made-up entirely of the most prominent stars of stage and screen. An imposing array of players is already lined and the benefit promises to be the outstanding theatrical event of the season. Names of various stage, screen and operatic luminaries who will participate in the big show are to be announced within a few days.

A number of exchange tickets have been printed and will soon be placed on sale by a special committee. These tickets will be exchangable for the regular coupon tickets at the Auditorium box-office on and after Monday, October 22, when the tickets may be purchased at the box-office. This committee on seat reservations consists of Mrs. Abraham Lehr, Mrs. Jesse L. Lasky and Mrs. Antonio Moreno.

The forthcoming benefit performance is the first of a series of annual events to be held by the motion picture branch of the Actors' Fund. The entire industry is rallying to the benefit and it is expected to be a huge success and 100 per cent benefit.

HE'S PROUD TO BE CALLED "CRY BABY"

It happened recently in a local studio. In the center of a group of serious-faced men and women was a golden haired baby boy about two years old crying as tho' his little heart would break, great gobs of tears running down his cheeks. Not a hand was stretched forth to comfort him.

An elderly little English woman, an extra, viewing the scene from the outskirts of the crowd, wondered in a rather confused state of mind why "Scotland Yard" was not notified. At that moment, however, Irving Cummings, directing the scene in "My Mamie Rose," at the Universal Studio, gave the high-sign to Edythe Ingraham, mother of the child, Little Paul Ingraham, Jr. She in turn looked around the side of the camera and gave Paul, Jr. a nod and a smile and the little face was all sunshine and roses in the twinkling of an eye. That is Paul, Jr.'s forte; from tears to laughter without the loss of a turn of the crank.

By an odd coincidence he has been called upon to perform similarly in his last four pictures, "Ponjola," "Jealous Husbands," "My Mamie Rose" and "Oh Baby," the latter one, a Jack White comedy, filmed at the Fine Arts Studio, featuring Neeley Edwards and directed by Norman Taurog.

Slow But Sure---His Motto

Gifted with the essential requisites which go to make the greatest of success in the film world. Lewis Dayton, noted English actor of the stage and screen is rapidly climbing to stardom in the drama of the silent art.

He has been a member of the theatrical profession since the age of sixteen when he played the waif in the English stage production of "Lost in London." His successes on the speaking stage include the most noted of English plays wherein he became London's favorite leading man.

Dayton made his debut in motion picture endeavor with the beginning of the industry, but was lured back to the footlights, and returned to the silversheet with Famous Players in the first picture they made in England, chosen from 40 players to portray the role of Lord Medway in "The Great Day." Subsequently he appeared in pictures in Europe, Egypt and India.

Nature has been generous to Lewis Dayton. He is a distinguished appearing six-footer with clean-cut features and dark good-looks. Added to this, he is a regular fellow making friends wherever he goes and these facts together with his dramatic experience has placed him from the first, in filmdom's leading roles.

Since his arrival in Hollywood, Dayton has portrayed leading roles in five film productions, the latest being the judge in "Maud Muller" which has just been completed.

Local Merchant Returns From Trip East

William Hepner, head of the well established firm of Hepner, Inc., of this city has just returned from a two months business trip in the east where he closed a contract with D. W. Griffith to furnish all the wigs for his new production, "America," now in the making. Between two and three thousand wigs will be used and it is estimated the production will be nine months in the making. Mr. Hepner who is well known along the New York Rialto furnishes about eighty per cent of all the large eastern shows with hair goods, some of them being Sam Bernard, Willie Collier, Florence Reed, the Fellies of 1923 and others.

While in New York he was present at the opening of the "Hunchback of Notre Dame," at the Astor Theatre and was also present at the premiere of "Scaramouche" at the Shubert-Belasco Theatre in Washington. "Business activities in eastern professional circles are very brisk," states Mr. Hepner, "and my visit was quite enjoyable, especially while with the Griffith organization.

"D. W. Griffith is the 'Tiffany of Cinema Men.'"

Fred Cavens has been selected by the Mary Pickford organization as the fencing master to instruct the various members of the cast in the use of the dagger and the rapier for Miss Pickford's forthcoming production "Dorothy Vernor of Haddon Hall."

Film Star Seeks Revenge On Comrade

Revenge!

That is what Frank Mayo seeks in a new wager he made last night with Lew Cody.

The two actors made a freak bet on the recent Dempsey-Firpo bout, the looser to act as the winner's chauffeur for one week. Mayo lost, and has been driving about town in livery with Cody reclining in the back seat of the car.

"I have been terribly humiliated, Lew," said Frank, "And just for this little trick I'll make you another wager. The world series starts today. I'll bet that the New York Giants win the series. If I lose I'll act as your valet for one week—press your trousers, sew on buttons, darn your socks and do anything along that line. BUT, if the Giants win, you'll be my valet for one whole week."

"Great!" exclaimed Lew. "You're a handy man to have about the house. I just returned from New York, and I have the low down on Babe Ruth and the whole Yankee team. I'll take that bet.

"Frank!" Cody shouted to his chauffeur, "You owe me $100. You know our agreement stipulated that any unchauffeurly act would cost the loser that amount, and you have become altogether too familiar with your master."

Mayo dug deep in his pocket and produced a $100 bill.

"Thanks. Now wash the car and call for me at eight."

Metro Mechanics Hold Building Record

Speed, a malady to which carpenters, painters and plasterers are supposed to be immune, was displayed in large quantities by a force of these men at the Metro studio when they constructed a huge interior setting covering all of one of the large enclosed stages in 26 hours. This work under ordinary good working conditions would extend over a week's time and might last two weeks.

The setting included a library, entrance hall, stairway, den and dining room done in old English for "The Living Past," which Harold Shaw is directing. Illness of one of the principal players made it impossible for him to work in settings already constructed and to avoid costly delay speed was emphasized in the construction of the new setting.

Despite the haste with which the work was done no detail was slighted. The drawing of the plans and making of the blue prints took half a day. That night the mill began turning out the material and at six o'clock the following morning the first nail was driven. Just as many workmen as could find elbow room on the stage were put to work. There were three shifts and at six o'clock the next morning, construction, painting and papering had been completed.

The dressers and electricians were ready to do their part and in two hours drapes had been hung, carpets laid and furniture put in place. The electricians had placed the overhead and side lights and spotlights. At eight o'clock, Mr. Shaw and his players took possession.

William Clifford, popular stage and screen luminary who recently returned from New York, and who was prominent in the cast of "Ashes of Vengeance," featuring Norma Talmadge, has just completed a week's engagement in his new sensational melodrama playlet "The Intruder," written especially for him by Garrison Force and shown as a try-out at the Dome Theatre in Ocean Park.

Mr. Clifford the featured player, was supported by the well-known cinema stars, Grace Cunard and Sherman Bainbridge.

The play was received by tremendous applause and should be a headliner over a two-a-day circuit.

Mr. Clifford recently managed the eminent actor Henry D. Walthal in his last road show.

Frank Freytag, Jr., has recently resigned his position as editor of a well-known California newspaper, to join the farces of the Roy Hughes Productions, who are leaving this week for Arizona to film "Ashes of Waste."

Freytag is well-known nationally in newspaper circles, and his combined knowledge of publicity and advertising will add greatly to the welfare of the Production Co. Co-Starring in the picture are Miles A. Leavens and Donna Hale.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, Oct. 15, 1923

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 3130
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Rosson	Mildred Davis	Linden-Stevens	McGaugh	Jules Furthman	Feature	1st Week
Dearholt Productions.
Neva Gerber Productions
Dick Hatton	Neva Gerber	Nobles	La Mece		"The 7th Sheriff"	Editing
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-146
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Drexel 1900
H. & B. Film Co.
Tenny Wright	All-Star	Bill Beckway			"Tango Trails"	Preparing
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						593576
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stern, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 0096
Century Comedies (Universal release).
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 4070
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd.						439-764
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 3100
Al Christie	Bobbie Vernon	Nagy	Hagerman	Frank Conklin	2-Reel Comedy	5th Week
Scott Sidney	Dorothy Devore	Peterson-Garnett	Clemens	Robt. Hall	2-Reel Comedy	1st Week
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr.						Drexel 2115
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.						Culver City 546
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General. Frederick Bond, Asst. Managing Director
Frederick Bond	All-Star			Staff	"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
				Harry A. Swart	"Purple Bath Tub"	Preparing
DARRELL-MOUNIER STUDIO. J. F. Mounier, Gen. Mg						Washington and Ince Blvds., Culver City
Darrell-Mounier Productions
Darrell	Robt. Ramsey	Allen Davie	Chas. Kerr		Feature	Preparing
H. Davey	Edna Mae Cooper		Sturtevant	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Preparing
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd. E. H. Allen, Gen. Mgr. Scotty Cleethorpe, Casting.						598-165
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Mermaid Comedies)
Taurog	Neely Edwards	Meehan	Cullen	Staff	Special	Editing
Hibbard	Lige Conley	Corby	Sharpless	Staff	Comedy	6th Week
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Novelty Juveniles)
Lloyd Hamilton Corp. (Educational Release)
Pratt	Lloyd Hamilton	McGill	Dewar	Staff	Special	2nd Week
FOX STUDIO. James Ryan, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 3000
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Jim Summerville	Stock	J. A. Schmidt	Arthur Cohn	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Roland V. Lee	All-Star	D. Keefe	Geo. Post	Don Lee	"Gentle Julia"	6th Week
Noel Smith	Earl Rodney	Byrn Hauck		Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Tom Buckingham	All-Star	Sid Wagner	Kingling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Seiler Carruth	Chimpanzees	R. Tennant	Mark Sanderich	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Lambert Hillyer	Tom Mix	Van Clark	Manter		"Eyes of the Forest"	3rd Week
Edmund Mortimer	John Gilbert	J. Short	W. Mayo	Harrison Jacobs	"The Beast"	3rd Week
David Soloman	Shirley Mason	Schneiderman	Birnoudi	Fannie & Fred Hatton	"With the Tide"	3rd Week
Wm. Wellman	Chas. Jones	Joe August	Horace Hough		"Andy McGee's Chorus Girl"	2nd Week
Geo. Archainbaud	All-Star	Jules Cronjager	Hollingshead	Fannie & Fred Hatton	"The Shadow of the East"	1st Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 2632
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 0051
GOLD SEAL PRODUCTIONS. A. Rosetti, Studio Mgr.						7405 Roseberry Ave
Greville Hughes	Leavens	Hale	R. C. Hughes	Emile Greville	"The Man From Thunder Gap"	Preparing
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.						Holly 269
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	Wm. Fairbanks	Rolland Price	A. Tenbrook		"The Doctor"	Editing
Duke Worne	Wm. Fairbanks	Rolland Price	A. Tenbrook		"Thicker Than Water"	1st Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 016
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Joe Rock Productions.
Bryant Washburn Productions.
Elliott Dexter in R. Wm. Neil Production.
Thornby-Newman Productions.
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						76171
King Vidor	All-Star	John Boyle	James Dugan	King Vidor	"Wild Oranges"	Editing
Emmett Flynn	All-Star	Lucien Audriot	Ray Flynn	Carey-Wilson	"Nellie, the Cloak Model"	3rd Week
Alan Crosland	All-Star	Jory Mescall	Lynn Shores	Carey Wilson	"Three Weeks"	3rd Week

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6640 Santa Monica Blvd. Wm. Sistrom, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Taylor-Newmeyer	H. Lloyd	Lundin	Bud Golden		"The Girl Expert"	9th Week
Creative Productions. Wm. H. Carr, Production Mgr.
J. K. McDonald Productions.
Wm. Beaudine	All-Star	H. Thorpe	Geo. Webster		"Misunderstood"	6th Week
Lenand Hoffman Productions.
Renaud Hoffman	All-Star	Mackenzie	Glen Belt		"Maud Muller"	4th Week
Cosmopolitan Productions.
Beverley Productions.
Irving Productions. Jas. Dent, Prod. Mgr.
Dallas Fitzgerald	All-Star			Harold Shumate	"Dawn of Love"	2nd Week
Halpern Productions.
[illegible] Wallace				Halperin	"Souvenir"	Preparing
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.						438-740
Bob Horner	Geo. Chesebro	Elmer Dyer			"The Isles of Paradise"	Editing
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Sanford Productions.
Mattison	Mattison—V. Rich	E. Dyer	R. Sanford	Staff	"The Lone Wagon"	Editing
Mattison	Mattison-V. Rich	E. Dyer	R. Sanford	Staff	"The Ragged Robin"	Preparing
The KINEMART PRODUCTIONS. B. Schrader, Casting.						439-561
Byron Schrader	AllStar	Jim Clansey			Playlets	Schedule
ROY HUGHES PRODUCTIONS. 840 S. Olive. SHADOWLAND RELEASE.
Roy Hughes	Leavens Hale	J. MacFarland			"Ashes of Waste"	Arizona Location
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Gene Stratton Porter Productions.
J. Leo Meehan	All-Star	Howard Anderson	Jeanett Porter	Gene S. Porter	"The Girl of the Limberlost"	2nd Week
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
Del Andrews	All-Star			Will Lambert	"The Galloping Fish"	Preparing
Bruce Mitchell Productions.
Mitchell	Kirkwood Lee	Steve Norton	Erickson	Elliott Clawson	"Painted Women"	3rd Week
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
LASKY STUDIOS. Tom White, Casting. 1520 Vine St.						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Herb Brennon	Pola Negri	Jos. Howe	H. Schwartz		"My Man"	4th Week
Wm. DeMille	All-Star	Guy Wilky	Geo. Hippard	Clara Berangee	"Every Day Love"	4th Week
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Chas. Clark	Fred Robertson	Jack Cunningham	"Flaming Barriers"	5th Week
Clifford S. Smith	W. S. Hart	Warren Reeves	Dick Rush	J. G. Hawks	"Singer Jim McKee"	1st Week
Zane Grey Productions.
Victor Fleming	Dix-Wilson	James Howe	Gilroy	Doris Schroeder	"The Call of the Canyon"	10th Week
James Cruze Productions
James Cruze	All-Star	Vernon Keays	Karl Brown	Walter Woods	"To the Ladies"	Editing
Irvin Willat Productions.
Irvin Willat	All-Star	Chas. Schoenbaum	Otto Brower	Albert S. LeVine	"The Heritage of the Desert"	2nd Week
McNAMARA STUDIOS. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
L. B. MAYER STUDIO. 5360 Melrose Ave.						431-171
Fred Niblo Productions.
Fred Niblo	All-Star	V. Milner	Dorian Cox	Bess Meredith	"Thy Names Woman"	3rd Week
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Capitol 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro Release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star		Harry Schenck	J. G. Hawks	"Cape Cod Folks"	8th Week
John M. Stahl	All-Star	Percy Hilburn	Sidney Algier	A. G. Younger	"Why Men Leave Home"	7th Week
B. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Harold Shaw	All-Star	Georges Rizard	Nat Watts	Thos. Hopkins	"The Living Past"	5th Week
Victor Schertzinger	All-Star	Chet Lyon		V. Schertzinger	"Man Whom Life Passed By"	6th Week
Oscar Apfel	Viola Dana	J. Arnold			"Angel Face Molly"	Editing
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Allen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar	All-Star	Haskins			"The Human Mill"	5th Week
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	18th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford		Helm	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	12th Week
Marshall Neilan	Mary Pickford	Rosher		Staff	"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall"	1st Week
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Louis Tolhurst				Walter Anthony	Microscopic Motion Pictures	Schedule
Benny Zeidman Productions.
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	"The Merchant of Menace"	Schedule
Chester Bennett Productions.
Douglas MacLean Productions
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr. 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Jackman	All-Star	Floyd Jackman	W. L. Guthrie	Staff	Feature	Schedule
P. Pembrooke	Will Rogers	Robt. Doran	Ross Letterman	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Geo. Jeske	Harry Pollard	J. Roach	Clark Hennecke	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Editing
Len Powers	Animals	B. Currigan	Greeland	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Bob McGowan	Our Gang	Harry Gerstad	C. Morehouse	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
J. Howe	Stan Laurel	Frank Young	Cruze	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Editing
James Parrot	Chas. Parrot	Ed Willatt	Leon McCarrie	Staff	1-Reel Comedy	Schedule
ROCKETT-LINCOLN COMPANY. R. R. Rockett, Pres. Chas. Huber, Casting.						Holly 2176
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSELL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945
Al. Nietz	Franklin Farnum	Al Mohr	Fred Allen	Hively	Feature	Preparing
Logan-Baynham Productions.
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. B. Seitz	Murphy Miller	Walker Cooper		Bob Dillon	"The Deer Slayer"	1st Week
Hercules Film Prods., Inc.
Jack Nelson	Jack Pollo	McManigal	Joe Kane	Staff	"Pals"	Casting
H. J. Brown Productions
Al. Rogell	Fred Thompson	Ross Fisher	Curley Dresden		"North of Nevada"	3rd Week
Maloford Productions.
Granada Productions.
Howard Davies Productions.
Leo Maloney	Leo Maloney	Bataracca	Robin Williamson	Ford Beebe		Preparing
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
Roy Delruth	All-Star			Staff	"Look Pleasant"	2nd Week
Earl Kenton	All-Star			Staff	"The Lighthouse"	2nd Week
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
Reaves Eason	J. B. Warner	Longenecker	Ernest Van Pelt	Jefferson	"Treasure Canyon"	Editing
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres. Nan Collins, Casting.						Holly 4080
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Edwin Carewe Productions. (First National release).
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
Marion-Franklin	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	David Fisher	Mack-Sullivan	"Dust of Desire"	11th Week
F. Borzage	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	O. O. Dull		"Secrets"	Preparing
Sam E. Rork Productions.
First National Productions.
C. Badger	Coleen Moore	Berquist	O'Brien	Montagne	"The Swamp Angel"	2nd Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Frank Lloyd Productions (First National Release)
Frank Lloyd	Griffith-Tearle	Norbert Brodin	Billy Retter	Fred Myton	"Black Oxen"	Editing
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig, Casting.						433-131
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Wm. Craft	Desmond-Sedgwick		McDonough Koehner		"Beasts of Paradise"	Schedule
Jay Marchant	Morrison Morris		Ray Taylor		"The Ghost City"	4th Week
King Baggott	All-Star		Joe Berry		"Blackmail"	Editing
Harry Pollard	Reginald Denny		F. Messinger		"The Spice of Life"	8th Week
Irving Cummings	Mary Philbin		Woolstenhume		"My Mamie Rose"	7th Week
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson		Don Clark	Duncan	"The Fast Express"	3rd Week
Ed. Sedgwick	Hoot Gibson	Miller	Wm. Tummel	Sedgwick	"The Hook and Ladder"	3rd Week
C. Brown	All-Star		Ernest Laemmle		"Signal Tower"	Preparing
Jess Robbins	Baby Peggy		J. Sullivan		"Right To Love"	7th Week
Hobart Henley	All-Star		A. Smith		"The Turmoil"	8th Week
Eddie Cline	Reginald Denny				"Love Insurance"	Preparing
Perley P. Sheehan	All-Star				"Innocent"	Preparing
H. Blache					"The Thrill Girl"	Preparing
Robt. Hill	Herbert Rawlinson		I. Ashey		"Jack O'Clubs"	Preparing
Robt. B. Bradbury	Jack Hoxie		V. Nordlinger		"Hard Rock"	Preparing
Laval Photoplay, Ltd., of Montreal, Canada. L. Ernest Ouimet, Pres and Mgr.
P. Cazeneoye	Andre Lafayette	Gene Benoit	Harry Webb		"The Vital Question"	Editing
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen. Mgr.						598-131
Dave Smith Productions.
Larry Semon Productions.
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 4181
Warner Brothers Productions.
Wm. A. Seiter	Marsh-Gillingwater	John Stumar	Tenny Wright		"Daddies"	3rd Week
Harry Beaumont	John Barrymore	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Beau Brummel"	2nd Week
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernst Lubitsch	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Flood Blanke		"The Marriage Circle"	9th Week
Harry Rapf Productions.
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WALDORF STUDIOS. 6070 Sunset Blvd. Harry Cohn, Mgr.						Holly 7940
E. J. Le Saint	All-Star		Geo. H. Reehm		"Innocence"	3rd Week
WORLD EDUCATIONAL FILMS CINEMATOUR. Box 818, Station "C," Los Angeles
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	26 1-Reel Globe Trots	Preparing

DR. W. L. SCHUSTER
Chiropractor—Nerve Specialist
"Where the sick go to get well"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

CALLS DAY AND NIGHT
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
6548 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD
430-205; 431-339; or Holly 102-82.

SUNSET TAXI TOURING CARS $2 PER HOUR
SPECIAL RATES ON STUDIO TRIPS AND TOURING

Universal City	$1.00	Club Royal	3.00
Mayer Studios	2.50	Culver City	2.00
Holly-Fairbanks	.75	United Studios	1.00
Fox Studios	.75	Robertson-Cole	.75
Lasky Studios	.75	Metro Studios	.75
Santa Monica	3.50	Ambassador Hotel	1.50
Pasadena	4.00	Venice	4.00
All Stations	2.50	Center of Los Angeles	2.00
		Plantation	3.00

578-307 1720 Hudson Ave. 430-258

"Phon-O-Grams"

Edited by Gene Woolway

Alton Brown

Juvenile Leads

Holly 6988

Charlotte DuPuis

Ingenue-Characters

439-869

J. C. (Jack) Fowler

Characters

438-501

Kenneth Gibson

Juvenile Leads

578-311

Mary Ruby

Ingenue

594-774

Donna Hale

Starring in

Roy Hughes Prod.

Bert Sprotte

Characters

741-64

BOB REEL
McKEE

Hollywood 9780

POSSIBLY ABOUT U

Jimmy Aubrey wants to take part in a prize-fight picture ever since he read the returns of the Firpo-Dempsey scrap, and is trying with the aid of his scenario writers to hit upon a good idea along these lines, so that he can take part in a fistic-fun-film, for a two-reel comedy. "Joimes" has just completed his third of a series of twenty-four subjects he is signed to make in two years.

PARLOR FIGHT ENDS DISASTROUSLY

For four years Jack Perrin, featured screen player, fought all kinds of villainous "heavies" through countless serials without ever sustaining even a scratch. But his first "parlor fight," which occurred in a drawing room set in the Laval Photoplays' production of "The Vital Question," netted him a nasty gash on the forehead, which sent him to the hospital. In "The Vital Question," Perrin's antagonist was Barney Randall, and they went through one of the toughest rough and tumble battles that was ever staged for a picure. Both had succeeded in escaping without hurting one another when Perrin slipped and fell against a heavy table, cutting his forehead so severely that several stitches were required to repair the damage. "The great outdoors for me after this when I am fighting before the camera, "'resolved Perrin as the surgeon stitched up his wound.

Pity the poor comedian!

Here is the way Hank Mann, now appearing in support of Lloyd Hamilton, describes his plight!

"The comic finishes a hard day's work at the studio. Maybe he's been falling downstairs all day in order to get a fall that looks painful enough for the directors. They're perfect gluttons for punishment, those directors.

"The comedian has dinner and drives to the club, or gets a taxi if he's too bruised to drive, and settles down in a corner for a nice quiet evening. He barely gets his breath, when along comes a gang of fellows he knows, looking for entertainment. Our comic tries to hide, but it's no go. They drag him, protesting, to his feet and shout, gleefully:

"Attaboy, Hank, here's an audience for you! Show something! DO A FALL!"

Marjorie Daw whose illness held up the Renaud Hoffman Company at the Hollywood Studios for a short time, is again at work and excellent progress is reported on the picturization of "Maud Muller." This story was adapted to the screen by Harry Bucquet. Miss Daw, who has the title role, is supported by an excellent cast.

Buster Keaton's latest comedy, "Hospitality," which was directed by Jack Blystone for Joseph M. Schenck—Metro release, is the only feature length comedy to date without a foot of trick photography.

It is also an interesting fact to note that Buster used no "doubles" for the most dangerous of scenes.

The constantly increasing audiences here attest to the supremacy of our programs. We are exerting every effort to give you clean, snappy boxing.

Hollywood Stadium

Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

R. K. EARLE
CONSULTING ENGINEER
LICENSED SURVEYOR
619 Citizens National Bank Building
Phone 823-681

B R U N O

Publicity Photos
Professional Photos
Casting Director Photos

6412 HOLLYWOOD BLVD.
Telephone 431-929

LOCAL — SEMI-NATIONAL — FULL NATIONAL — INTERNATIONAL

YOUR PERSONAL PUBLICITY AR-EXCELLENT

POSITIVELY PUTS PICTURE PEOPLE IN PERMANENT PUBLIC FAVOR

STAR FOR A DAY — WANT TO BE STARS — NO DESIRE TO BE STARS — HAVE BEEN STARS

Write for particulars, or see

GENE WOOLWAY
P. O. Box 176, Hollywood Station
Or, in care of
Camera!
2nd. Floor, 6318 Hollywood Blvd.,
HOLLYWOOD Calif.
PHONE 439-869

Rare Antiques from the Far East

Oriental Costume Co.

6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law

JACK P. LEONARD

340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

ANNOUNCEMENT

Dr. A. L. Jester

Famous chiropractor, just returned from 3 years chiropractic missionary service in Germany offers his services to the movie people of Hollywood at reduced rates.
No charge for first consultation.

5558 Hollywod Blvd., Rm. 202-203
Hours 10-12—2-5, Evenings 7-8.

COY WATSON, JR.

CHILD LEADS

Age 10. Drexel 3616

Hugh Hoffman

Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip." "Crossed Wires." "The Town Scandal." "Sawdust." "The Untameable." "The Wild Party."

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography

LITTLE

Commercial Photographer

Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

ART LEE

SPECIALIST ON MAKE-UP
Will teach you how to Make Up Correctly. Read my references
Telephone 598-207
1712 St. James Court, Hollywood, at Western

MARION WARDE

Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films

Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing

423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

Walter Frederick Seely

Shadowed Photography

1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

FROM U TO YOU

(Continued from Page 5)

mass he battles his way, breaks up a gang, and finally wins out over his crowd of enemies.

The story, a recent magazine feature, is laid around the famous old Howard Street gangs of San Francisco. Much comedy enlivens the sequences.

Adapting a novel to motion picture needs is a common feat in picturedom—and adapting a motion picture for a novel has been done—but to hold up producing on a motion picture until the novel is on the bookstore stands is something new in the picture industry.

This is the situation in the case of "Pony Express," a novel purchased for picture rights before it was off the publisher's presses. Edward Sedgwick, Hoot Gibson's director, is the author of the book, which will be on the market in a few weeks.

Following completion of his novel, Universal negotiated the rights for the picture, and it has been prepared for the screen. Plans were made to produce the picture at once, but on the author's suggestion the work was delayed to allow the novel to appear first, that the picture might have the benefit of the popularity the book would give it.

"Pony Express" will be produced as one of the big features of the year. A virile story of the West, it will have a huge cast, headed by Gibson, and will rank as one of the important releases on the studio schedule. Sedgwick is the author of several Gibson plays, as well as magazine stories. The new story is his first long novel. Eastern publishers who have taken over the novel rights predict that the book will be one of the big sellers of the year.

I is a common thing for popular motion picture stars to have dresses, perfumes, hats and such things named in their honor. But, for the first time on record, clubs have been established in nearly two hundred American cities in honor of a favorite cinema twinkler.

The young and accomplished star who has been accorded this distinction is Baby Peggy, whose name shines forth under the Universal and Century Comedies banner. This wee young lady has won the hearts of countless youngsters with her remarkable ability. Children, ever sensitive to realism, at once sensed the absolute naturalness of her acting and clambered for admission wherever her pictures were shown.

Some wise parents in a large southern city decided that it would be a good idea to form a Baby Peggy club for their admiring youngsters. Membership cards were printed accordingly and distributed. Weekly dues of one cent were decided upon, the money to go to a worthy local charity. It was not long before children in other communities heard of the happy rollicking Baby Peggy club that met every week under the guidance of a chaperone and listened to her stories; or if a picture of Baby Peggy was being shown, enjoyed the droll comedy of the dark-eyed infant star. These children, too, wanted a club of their own. Every day new clubs of enthusiastic children are formed and before long it is expected that practically every important city and town in the country will have a Baby Peggy Club. All the members wear a button with Baby Peggy's picture.

Turning night into day with three bits of glass is the striking feat in photography perfected by Virgil Miller, cameraman at Universal City and inventor of a number of important effects in camera technique. Miller has perfected a "panchromatic filter" which, by reversing rays of light entering a camera lens, can turn noonday sunshine into a moonlight, on the film, so real that the effect is uncanny.

Primitive "night photography' was made by aiming the camera against the sunlight, and then staining the film blue. From this trick night photography under lights developed, but it never duplicated moonlight; for years photographers studied the problem. Miller finally solved it.

The new invention is a series of glass ray-filters which break up light into its component parts. When it is applied, strange tricks occur. For instance, red, which photographs as black in the ordinary film, comes out as white; blue, which appears as white in ordinary photography, tends to black. The blue sky becomes black, but without "reversing the colors of actors in the foreground, this resulting in a perfect moonlight effect.

Miller is the first man to use the actual moon in motion picture photography, and is also the inventor of a color-filter by which absolute color values may be transformed into light and shadows on the screen with accuracy. This device has done much to remove the necessity of make-up for actors.

Nervy Ned, the comical hobo first invented by James Montgomery Flagg, the celebrated artist, is again doing his comical tricks before the camera.

All of which means the return of Neely Edwards, the comedian, to Universal City, following an absence of some weeks to play a feature part in another studio. The comedian who varies his "Nervy Nat" pictures with straight roles in features, has resumed comedies under the direction of William Watson. Tommy Gray is supervising the new pictures.

Edwards, famous in vaudeville for years as one of the team of Flanagan and Edwards, entered pictures a number of years ago, and leaped into fame as a comedian through his "Nervy Ned" pictures, the idea being based on a series of comic cartoons which appeared for a time in a national comic magazine.

Besides playing in Universal comedies, his regular calling, Edwards has appeared in straight and character roles with Mary Miles Minter, in Jack White educational features, and other feature pictures.

"Wyoming" has been completed.

The William McLeod Raine novel, adapted to the screen by Isadore Bernstein, has reached the completion of its film transcription under Robert North Bradbury's direction. It is a starring vehicle for Jack Hoxie.

Lillian Rich, leading woman of many Universal pictures of a year or more ago, William Welsh, Claude Payton, Lon Poff, Emmett Corrigan, Ben Corbett and George Kuwa have the supporting roles. The edge of Death Valley and ranch country near there were the chief locales of the filming.

Joseph Dowling, famous as "The Miracle Man" of picturedom and one of the best known character men in the business, has joined forces with the screen's most youthful ingenue.

He has been cast by Fred Datig, Universal casting director, to play the role of Judge in Baby Peggy's newest Jewel production, "The Right to Love," now being filmed at Universal City under the direction of Jess Robbins.

The picture, adapted by Lois Zellner from an original story by Bernard McConville, is the third of a series of multi-reel features starring Baby Peggy under the Universal banner. The pictures are produced jointly by Universal and Abe and Julius Stern of the Century Film Company.

Dowling started his dramatic career in grand opera and after spending many years on the operatic and legitimate stages entered the motion picture field. He has had prominent roles in some of the biggest screen plays of the past few years.

Others in the Baby Peggy picture are Winifred Bryson, Robert Ellis, Eleanor Faire, James Corrigan, Anna Hernandez, Ned Sparks, William E. Lawrence, Eva Thatcher, Victor Potel and Buddy Messinger.

POSSIBLY ABOUT U

SWEET'S WORK PRAISED

Before returning to the cast, Richard Rowland, General Manager of Associated First National Pictures, viewed the completed reels of "Anna Christie," Thomas H. Ince's picturization of Eugene O'Neill's big stage success which will be released by First National. Both Mr. Rowland and John McCormick, First National's Western representative, expressed the greatest enthusiasm over the new production which they believe will score one of the big dramatic successes of the screen season. The work of Blanche Sweet in the title role and of George Marion as "Chris," the father, was said to be exceptionally fine.

CALDWELL PREPARING

Director Fred Caldwell and staff are collaborating with James Dent, Myron Selznick's newly appointed West Coast representative, on stories for Caldwell's forthcoming Hollywood pictures to be given international distribution by Selznick Distributing Corporation.

Theodore Von Eltz is now well established in the new role he is creating in "The Turmoil" for Universal, the introductory scenes taking place in his office where he directs his big business undertakings. As "Jim Sheridan" in this Booth Tarkington story, Mr. Von Eltz is a young captain of industry and the pride of his father who laid the foundation of the business. The actor will shortly be seen in his biggest role, that of male lead opposite Lenore Ulric in "Tiger Rose," Warner Brothers, for Sidney Franklin who directed the picture announced that he has just finished cutting the picture and that it will be shown in preview for the first time this week. In this picture Mr. Von Eltz plays a young engineer.

Creighton Hale has begun the delicious love making scenes in Warner Brothers "The Marriage Circle," which Ernst Lubitsch is directing and since the comedy element in the situation was highly enjoyable to Mr. Lubitsch as he posed for the lady in the case, a marvelous time was had by all. Mr. Lubitsch, with kind forethought allowed the lady the entire osculatory rehearsals — and they were a-plenty, so Mr. Hale wasn't heard registering any complaint. Creighton is playing a young society surgeon, mistaken for the lady's husband in the above chronicled scenes!

Harry Gribbon, the "Man of a Hundred Expressions," who is being featured in Mack Sennet comedies, has been given a new title, that of "The Big Fool," for he is always up to some sort of a tom-foolery on and off the screen.

John R. Ralesco has deserted comedies for a dip into the more serious line of acting, he has gone to work at the Douglas Fairbanks studios, in "The Thief of Bagdad" and is getting quite a kick out of his work, which is a great deal different than being a comic actor.

POSSIBLY ABOUT U

DOUBLE DUTY

Edwin Carewe will film some of the exterior scenes of a second story during his stay in Algiers. In addition to making "A Son of the Sahara," the producer-director is to film some atmospheric scenes for "Snake Bite." This latter story will be finished when Carewe returns to Los Angeles.

Preparation of the scenario of "Snake Bite" is in the hands of Madge Tyrone, who has written several scripts in collaboration with the director. This is the first time that Carewe has entrusted the preparing to anyone without his help.

RECEIVES FOREIGN FILM OFFER

Edward Burns, one of the best known juveniles of the screen, has just received an offer from Henrik Ottoman, the famous German film director, to go to Germany and appear in the leading masculine role opposite Liane Haid, in a series of six productions.

The offer would necessitate Burns' absence from the local film colony for at least a year, and as Burns' programme contains several forthcoming productions to be made here, it will, of course, be impossible for him to accept this unusual offer.

Charlie Murray has been in the land of the flickering pictures for twelve years and yet has only held five jobs.

The average screen player does a regular job jumping set, trotting from -one lot to another. But Charlie Murray is content to stay put for a while.

Starting his film career in the dim distant past of the one-reeler, Charlie held his first job with Griffith's Biograph for two years. Then he went with Sennett and for eight years he was as necessary to a Keystone comedy as were the bathing girls.

A year ago he left Sennett and went to New York where he appeared in a series of 13 two-reel comedies. Then, returning to the Pacific coast he played the father to Mary Philbin, in her first Universal starring vehicle "Mamie Rose."

His most recent job is with First National. He has another father part. This time as Colleen Moore's father in "The Swamp Angel."

Billy Sullivan has been taking a dip in the ocean these days and swimming away out, just to get his wind in proper shape for some trying scenes in the water that he is to do in his next vehicle in which will make his second starring picture on the Big U. lot in a H. C. Witwer story of the Leather Pushers series.

Norma Talmadge's next photoplay, "Secrets," which will be directed by Frank Borzage, is a romantic story of the same period of "Smilin' Through," one of Miss Talmadge's greatest successes.

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS GET RESULTS

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell Camera, long term, reasonable rent or will trade for high grade used car. Box J. C. 2, Camera!

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell Camera, 170 Shutter. Phone Hollywood 4070; ask for Mr. Wilson.

I WANT a 5 or 6 room house, small court or flats, Hollywood preferred. If you must sacrifice for quick action, call Drexel 1259 and save agents' commission. Money ready.

FRENCH LESSONS— Succeeds with those who have never succeeded. Box J. C. 4. Camera.

FOR RENT—Bell & Howell camera, 170 degree shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Telephone Met. 4686 days; 829-573 nights and Sundays.

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell Camera. 170 degree Shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Phone Met. 4686 days; 13173 evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell Howell Camera. 170 degree. Telephone 599-464.

BOOKKEEPER—Expert, typist, wants four hours' work daily. $16 per week. Humboldt 3493W. Call after 6, evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell camera, 170 degrree shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Phone Met. 4688 days; 13173 evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell Howell Camera, 170 *degree. Tel*ephone 599-464.

TINTED PORTRAITS

of a beautiful velvet-like tone can be made from your regular photographs. The cost is low and there are special rates on fan photos.

EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38

YOUR PHONOGRAPH

will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a

Deflexograph

Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles.

Play after hours —will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.

GOLD PLATE.....$1.50 (See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE....$1.00

VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

Learn a
Motion Picture Trade
Make big money as a Cameraman, Electrician, Etc.
Get particulars of classes NOW!
1107 NORTH WESTERN AVE.
At Santa Monica Blvd.

Gustatory Genius
John's New Cafe
6382 Hollywood Blvd.

Brown,
Caldwell
& Ladd

317 South Hill St.

100 Per Cent Titles
100 Per Cent Service
At the Right Price!

Dress up that next production with artistic Hand Lettered Titles made by IRVING W. BUNZE.

If you want Perfect Symbolic Art Backgrounds, let us make them! Neil E. McQuire, formerly with Ince and Prizma, does our art work.

For perfect black-and-white titles, try our PROCESS SYSTEM. A telephone call will bring our representative with samples.

Quality Title & Film Company

1442 Beechwood Drive. Holly 4850

FOR PICTURES
PLAYS, BOOKS, ORIGINALS

The
Hollywood Play Bureau
Emmett Corrigan, Mgr.
6404 Hollywood Boulevard
Near Cahuenga. Hollywood, Cal.

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660

KWIK LUNCH

SERVES U RITE

1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

WE MOVE THE MOVIES
and Shine on Service

Hollywood 2677 • SAMUEL C. SHINE • 6568 Santa Monica Blvd.
General Trucking and Hauling

POSSIBLY ABOUT U

Remember the "Collapsible" automobile that was "hendled" by Abie Kabibble in the comic strips of several years ago?

Well, it has come to life again, with some up-to-date improvements, in the current Jack White comedy which Fred Hibbard is directing, with Lige Conley, Peg O'Neill and Olive Borden.

Yes, it has the "lines" that made Detroit famous—and the rest of the world nervous.

Peg O'Neill, character comedienne for Jack White, who had an important role in the Pilgrimage Play, season before last, is now appearing with Lige Conley in "Neck and Neck." directed by Fred Hibbard.

Mattie Peters, "colored mammy" of the screen, is working in the current Jack White production, directed by Fred Hibbard.

HAS UNLUCKY FALL

Wallace MacDonald thought himself lucky when his fall from a wrecked automobile during the filming of "Angel Face Molly," Viola Dana's newest Metro picture was broken by a thick clump of bushes. And his onlv injury was a deep but not serious cut in his right leg.

The following day McDonald's leg was swollen so badly he was unable to go to the studio. Examining the injured member he suspected the truth but refused to believe it until he called a doctor and was informed that he had a thriving young case of poison oak.

POSSIBLY ABOUT U

PREMIER SUCCESS

The world's premier showing of Harold Bell Wright's "When a Man's a Man," was given last week in Tucson, Arizona, the author's home. According to telegraphic reports from Walter Anthony, who is in Tucson in the interests of Principal Pictures Corporation, the opening was an immense success.

Ripples of applause were drawn from the crowded house as the familiar Arizona scenes flashed by on the screen. The shots of the Prescott Frontier Dav called forth exclamations of recognition from many in the audience. The picture was filmed in the exact locale of the story in Arizona, and the actual Fourth of July Rodeo Celebration was photographed.

A pre-release showing is also scheduled for Prescott, Arizona, in hte near future, as a mark of appreciation to the people of that vicinity to whom Principal Pictures Corporation are indebted for cheerful and valuable cooperation given the company while on location there.

"When a Man's a Man" will be regularly released in December by Associated First National Pictures, Inc.

Chester Bennett, who will soon start producing and directing a new series of Jane Novak starring vehicles, has been a camera man, an assistant director, an art director and is also an expert in film laboratory work.

THIMMEWAY TITLES

Culver City, Calif.

RENALLES, INC.
WE DO WHAT WE SAY WE'LL
KEEP FAITH
DISTINCTIVE
CINEMA and LEGITIMATE
ATTRACTIONS

Culver City 546

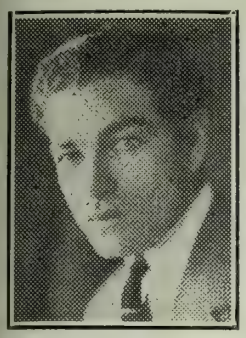
Now in Preparation: "The Elk's Tooth"

I WANT SOME REAL PICTURES!

. . . productions from $50,000 to $100,000. I can sell them outright. See me for a quick release.

H. and B. FILM COMPANY

Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275 or Drexel 1900



CULLEN LANDIS:
"Put Me In Great Condition."

WHERE THE SICK GO TO GET WELL

Literature pertaining to any disease mailed on request

75 PER CENT

of the

MOTION PICTURE STARS IN HOLLYWOOD

BILLIE DOVE
Says: "Chiropractic Keeps Me Well."

ASK ANY STAR

are using my Scientific Method to regain and keep their health.

ARE YOU ONE OF THEM?
IF NOT, WHY NOT?

You will be agreeably surprised to find there is no discomfort in taking these Scientific Adjustments, and gratified with the results obtained.
Bring all your Health Troubles to the only Chiropractor catering to the Motion Picture Profession.
Each patient receives my personal attention.

Dr. W. I. Schuster

SCIENTIFIC CHIROPRACTOR AND NERVE SPECIALIST
(Palmer Graduate)

ASK ANY STAR

CLAIRE WINDSOR.
Attributes Her Health To Chiropractic.

Office Hours:
10 to 12 and 2 to 5

Monday, Wednesday and Friday
6 to 8 P.M.

203 Bogardus Building
Cor. Sunset and Western
Hollywood, California

Telephone 436-724

LADY IN ATTENDANCE. PRIVATE DRESSING ROOMS.

Ample Parking Space

WHERE THE SICK GO TO GET WELL

Licensed in California

CHARLES "BUCK" JONES
"Chiropractic Is My Best Pal."

Announcement

The "STANDARD" DIRECTORY

will open permanently a

Registration Department

Starting Monday, October 15th

for the convenience of Producers, Directors, Assistant Directors and Casting Directors in locating players.

Our office will accept registrations from 9:30 A. M. until 4 P. M.

We would like every individual connected with the Motion Picture Industry to register.

Due to the fact that we have so many inquiries daily from studios wishing to locate people in every branch of the business we are taking this means of rendering an efficient service.

OUR OFFICE REGISTRATION WILL MAKE NO CHARGE FOR THIS SERVICE.

THE STANDARD

Casting Directors

DIRECTORY

6404 Hollywood Boulevard

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

"Camera!"

Los Angeles, Calif. Saturday, Oct. 20, 1923 Price 10 Cents

NAIDA CARLE

Photo by Val

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A.HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

New York Washington, D. C.

Phone 52220

Phone 54847

Hepner
INCORPORATED

1001-1005 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles California

Permanent Waving Hair Coloring Bleaching
Hair Dressing Scalp-Facial Massage
Marcel Waving Water Waving Shampooing
Manicuring
Wigs Toupees Switches Transformations
Wig Rental Beards and Moustaches
Cosmetics
Professional Makeup Service

Special Attention to Theatrical and Motion Picture Profession

No Parking Restrictions

JACK POLO

Juveniles

222 East 80th St., Los Angeles

R. E. O'Neil

who enjoys the distinction of being both actor and author. He has a number of unusually interesting copyrighted stories which he will be glad to place at the disposal of production companies.

PHONE 623-358

"Camera!"

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

Established 1918

A Film Magazine and a Film Newspaper in One

6318 Hollywood Boulevard
Hollywood : California

olume VI | SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1923 | Number 27

Publisher's Note—With this issue the managing editorship of "Camera!" passes into the hands of Fred W. Fox, who is the author of the five recent editorials entitled "The Man at the Gate," "Art and the Independent," "The Enemy Within," "The Zero Hour" and "Thine Alabaster Cities Gleam," and who has, for some time past, been associated with this publication in its advertising department. Presented below is his message to you.

"Camera"!, The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry, is entering upon the last half of its sixth year of publication. This, in itself, is significant, but it is also noteworthy that at this time it is entering an unprecedented period of growth and expansion, made possible by the healthy condition of the film industry and its recognition of the status of this publication.

In accordance therewith we are inaugurating several changes in editorial make-up and introducing new departments, which, while not actually pertaining to motion pictures, are designed to meet the literary demands of the cosmopolitan mass who earn their livelihood in the film field. In due time these various departments will be placed under writers who have established a reputation for themselves in their particular phases of editorial work. Any suggestions that you may have for the improvement or revision of these innovations will be cordially welcomed and given every consideration.

We would like to take this opportunity to reiterate our desire to be of the utmost service to the profession, which has accorded us such splendid support in times gone by; to assure that in the future, as in the six years since "Camera!" made its debut, your welfare will be our first thought. We want you to feel that it is your own paper, undominated by any alien interests, and ready to champion any and all of your just causes and grievances. We stand four-square to the sunlight. We have no axes to grind. We want you to be our friends, even as we want you to know that we are your friends. Fraternity . . . sincerity . . . goodfellowship . . . these are the motivating powers behind us. We are going toward the pinnacle of the pyramid which your confidence in us has built. We will work together, always.

In my new position as editor I will be supported by an energetic and efficient personnel, ready to serve you at all times. Each department will function with machine-like precision, but the personal touch will not be subdued or lost. Every one will strive to make "Camera!" in deed as well as thought, The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry.

S. W. LAWSON
Publisher and Manager

FRED W. FOX
Managing Editor

JOHN CORNYN
Advertising Director

GENE WOOLWAY
Studio Representative

PAULINE THOMPSON
Pulse Editor

The Girl
on the cover

Naida Carle, though young in years, is one of the real veterans of the motion picture industry, starting in stock at Universal in its early days, playing with such present-day notables as J. Warren Kerrigan, Tyrone Powers, Harry Carey, Herbert Rawlinson and Jack Holt.

Always a keen student of books and plays she was an excellent writer, and later joined the publicity staff of D. W. Griffith when he was making pictures at the Fine Arts studio. Here she worked for three years, in fact until Mr. Griffith left for New York, when she was engaged as special publicity writer for Marshall Neilan. This was followed by an engagement as continuity writer for Lottie Pickford, and then Naida turned her attention again to acting.

Even now when she is not bnsy on the set she continues with her literary work and her two latest stories are to run serially in the newspapers, with the possibility she may later be featured in the film versions.

"CAMERA!", The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry, issued on Saturday morning of each week, at 6318 Hollywood Boulevard in Los Angeles, California, Telephone 439-869. Entered as second-class matter, Aug. 11, 1918, at the Post Office at Los Angeles, Calif., under Act of March 3rd, 1879. Published by S. W. Lawson Publishing Co., with executive and editorial offices at 6318 Hollywood Boulevard, Los Angeles. National advertising representatives H. H. Conger Co., New York, Chicago, San Francisco. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $3.50 per year in Los Angeles County; $4.00 per year in outside zone; 4.50 per year to Canada; $3.50 per year to foreign points. Address all communications to the company.

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Gold Diggers"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

"So this is London"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

"Getting Gertie's Garter"

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

Pete Morrison
in
"West vs. East"

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

"Is Divorce a Failure?"

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

E. Lincoln—Hedda Hopper
in
"Women Men Marry"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Road Together"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

"If Winter Comes"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

Harry Carey
in
"The Miracle Baby"

This Week's Theatre Notes

It's easier and safer to "stunt" with an airplane up in the clouds than down on the ground!

This was discovered by Douglas MacLean while making his first independent comedy production, "Going Up," which is having its first Los Angeles showing at Grauman's Metropolitan this week. The script called for the plane to stand on its head while taxi-ing over the ground. At 10,000 feet, this would have been easy. On terra firma, however, it was a dangerous maneuver, assures Doug.

"Going Up," is a delightful aviation farce, adapted from the musical comedy success. Marjorie Daw is leading woman and Edna Murphy, Francis McDonald, Hallam Cooley, Hughie Mack and others are in the cast.

The remainder of the program includes a second week of the famous "Lousiana Five," syncopators and Ham Crawford who are said to have stopped the show regularly last week.

"Getting Gertie's Garter" finished its remarkable run at the Egan Theater Saturday night, giving exactly 135 times in Los Angeles, which is the longest time it has ever played in one city with the exception of New York. The theater will be closed for two weeks to permit of renovating and redecorating and the regular winter season will open Thursday, November 1, with the first performance on any stage of a new comedy by Frederic and Fanny Hatton entitled, "The Waning Sex," which boasts a cast of distinguished players.

Opening its fourth week of showing, Charles Chaplin's first directorial effort, "A Woman of Paris," is attracting crowds that are taxing the capacity of the new Criterion Theater. The picture, which has proved a revelation to Los Angeles playgoers, places Chaplin among the great directors of the motion picture world.

Edna Purviance is a revelation in the role of Marie St. Clair, the small-town girl about whom the story centers.

The prologue, "Nocturne," conceived and supervised by Mr. Chaplin himself, has scored a tremendous hit, calling forth outburst after outburst of spontaneous applause at every performance. The Criterion Symphony artists, with Adolf Tandler conducting, have already established a firm place for themselves in the hearts of local music lovers.

Charles Ray's production of "The Courtship of Myles Standish," remains a fourth week at Grauman's Million Dollar Theatre, thereby proving the popularity of his first venture into the ranks of actor-producer.

Ray has embraced in this picture the entire adventure of the Pilgrim Fathers, making it worthy of its historic importance, and might be well titled. "The Founding of a Nation." The famous love story of John Alden and Priscilla is the binding element in the picturing of a thrilling chapter in our national career. A brilliant cast supports Charles Ray which includes Enid Bennett, Sam De Grasse, E. Alyn Warren, Joseph Dowling and William Sullivan.

The prologue to the feature, "The Days of the Mayflower," with its miniature operetta presented by 50 people will be retained.

Dancing of every style, singing and plenty of comedy are the features at the Hillstreet Theatre. Heading the aggregation of entertainers will be "Stars of the Future," a unique production featuring Jesse Fordyce, Pearl Hamilton, Violet Hamilton, Arnette Creighton, Joan Page and Helen Schroeder. These six little starlets recently left Broadway shows to become feaures in vaudeville and a gorgeously staged act has been woven about their singing and dancing numbers which have proven popular everywhere. Also on this same bill will be those two popular musical comedy stars John T. Murray and Vivien Oakland, whose comedy and singing, in their act, "Songs and Satires" has made them always welcome in every theatre. Maude Powers and Vernon Wallace will offer "Georgia On Broadway," a neat little skit comprising quiet humor and harmonious songs. Bob Carleton and Julia Ballew will be present—Bob at the piano playing some of his own songs and dainty little Julia singing them in the most approved manner. Pepita Granados, with Frances Drager, Marian Dale and Grace Muroff, will appear in a "Spanish Oriental Novelty," offering a number of daring dances. Completing the vaudeville will be Willie Rolls who tells no more about himself than just adding under his name "He Does."? The exclusive photoplay showing will be "Women Men Marry," with E. K. Lincoln nad Hedda Hopper. Other features of the bill will be Allan Hall and the Tiny Symphony Orchestra, the William Duncan Chapter-Play "The Steel Trail," a comedy "Snookey's Treasure Island, Hillstreet International News and Aesop's Fables.

Moving briskly through its romance and thriling adventure. "The Spanish Dancer," with Pola Negri as its scintillating star. continues to delight at Grauman's Rialto.

It is a tale of old Spain, redolent with the picturesque settings and colorful characters in which a disgraced nobleman and his merry king, fight for the favor of a lovely Gypsy girl. There are intrigues, love scenes and duels and through it all is the magnetic personality of the young Polish star.

Others in the cast to distinguish themselves are Antonio Moreno, Wallace Beery. Kathlyn Williams, Adolphe Menjou, Gareth Hughes and Robert Agnew, with Herbert Brenon, director, touching it with his genius.

California
Main at Eighth

Marion Davies
in
"Little Old New York"

Miller's
Main at Ninth

Corinne Griffith-
Frank Mayo, in
"Six Days"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

Douglas MacLean
in
"Gniog Up"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Anna Q. Nilsson
in
"Ponjola"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

Pola Negri
in
"The Spanish Dancer"

Criterion

Charles Chaplin's
"A Woman of Paris"

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

Charles Ray
in "The Courtship
of Myles Standish"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

"Merry-Go-Round"

Hollywood Egypt n
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden

"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mabel Normand
in
"The Extra Girl"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

"The Broken Wing"

Memories and Meditation

he other day we chanced to stroll past th Fine Arts Studio on Sunset Boulevard an stopped for a few moments to gaze upon th scene of bustling activity attendant upon th rebuilding of this motion picture landmk. As we stood in the warm noonday su and idly observed the proceedings, memies of what used to be were wafted to us ba across the distant years. Fond reminiscces of the many happy days spent here wn this studio was in its first days; thghts of the many friends we had known th. Meditation .. .. .. smiles .. .. .. laughter .. .. tears in our eyes .. .. .. a lumpy feeling in ur throats.

ames that had been part of our daily existence, names of people who have since gone farther along the trail to great achievement, of some who have trod the Eternal Path. Here it was that D. W. Griffith made his first big motion picture, here the big stars and directors of today were tutored by this master in the art of making fine cinema plays. And now, as then, he is still supreme, but three thousand miles from "home." Henry Walthall, forever famous as the "Little Colonel" .. .. .. Mae Marsh .. .. .. Miriam Cooper .. .. .. Robert Harron .. .. .. Richard Barthelmess .. .. .. Blanche Sweet .. .. .. Owen Moore .. .. .. Irene Hunt .. .. .. Wallace Reid .. .. .. James Kirkwood .. .. .. George Seigmann .. .. .. Josephine Crowell .. .. .. Spottiswoode Aitken .. .. .. George Walsh .. .. .. Fay Tincher .. .. .. Mary Alden .. .. .. Ralph Lewis .. .. ..Fred Kelsey .. .. .. and last, but not least, Dorothy and Lillian Gish.

Do you remember the phoney comedies Dorothy used to turn out here? Things like "Boots," "I'll Get Him Yet" and those really nonsensical endeavors? Nobody thought she'd ever be anything but a mugging artiste, doomed forever to comedy. Yet in recent years, "Orphans of the Storm" and "The Bright Shawl" have changed this opinion. She can act; she gets her stuff across! With Dorothy it was simply the idea of suddenly turning to something else, although she does frequently break out in one of her old-time farces like "The Country Flapper."

As to Lillian, well it's just been a refining process there. She always did have a light and ethereal touch to her work, and while her acting in those first pictures was conceded to be above the general trend it could not, in any sense, compare with her portrayals in "Way Down East," "Orphans of the Storm" and "The White Sister." As for her work in "Broken Blossoms," there are those who contend that no other motion picture actress has ever come near such a splendid interpretation of a role of that unusual type. The Gish girls have attained their success on the steady, slow-but-ABSOLUTELY SURE basis. Theirs was no overnight sensation. It was built by years of conscientious endeavor and the result is today they have an established value for all time to come.

At the present time they are under contract to Inspiration Pictures of New York, the company featuring Richard Barthelmess. These three, Richard Barthelmess and Dorothy and Lillian Gish are examples of what those friends of yesteryear on the Fine Arts lot have attained. With the passing of the old studio and the coming of the new the Griffith memories pass and hide away in our hearts.

The Universal Megaphone

By WILL C. MURPHEY

ing Baggot has completed the production of "Blackmail" at Universal City. "Blackmail" is an all-star production adapted from the Rita Viman play, "The Co-respondent." It is a sy of newspaper life, divorce and love.

uth Clifford, Niles Welsh, Charles Cleary, Hyden Stevenson, Herbert Fortier, William E Lawrence, Arthur Howard, Joseph North, Ely Fitzroy, Jane Starr, Carl Stockdale, Mry Kersch and John Merkyl played the pcipal roles in the picture.

he respectable daily newspaper which depds on the good will of the subscribing publ and lives up to the best expectations, and th scandal sheet that exists primarily for the pipose of "Blackmail," are contrasted in the sy. Editorial policies and newspaper traditns are presented in detail.

The Right To Love," third of the big Baby Iggy Universal-Jewel specials, has been completed by Jesse Robbins.

Many beautiful sets were constructed at Universal City for the backgrounds of the ation in Bernard McConville's story. Produced jointly by Universal Julius and Abe Stern of the Century Film corporation, "The Right to Love" was staged elaborately.

In this feature Baby Peggy had the support of such players as Robert Ellis, Eleanor Fair, Winifred Bryson, James Corrigan, Anna Hernndez, Ned Sparks, Eva Thatcher, Vic Potel, William E. Lawrence, Buddy Messenger and Joseph Dowling.

The other two Universal-Jewel features starring the pretty Peggy are "The Darling of New York" and "The Burglar's Kid," directed by King Baggot and William A. Seiter.

Nat Ross has completed a new western picture at Universal City called "Gold Digger Jones." The featured players are Meriwyn Thayer and Bob Reeves, both of whom have played in many western pictures and chapter plays before. Ross is preparing another picture.

"It's hot weather these days!"

Hoot Gibson's remark may seem at variance with the reports of the weather man and even with the reluctant details which the Los Angeles chamber of commerce may have been compelled to furnish for incoming train loads of tourists. But nevertheless, whatever the language of the thermometer, Gibson is right.

For much of his work lately has been around the hot regions of fires. He is starring in a Universal Gibson special, directed by Edward Sedgwick, "Hook and Ladder," which recounts the thrilling hazards of a fireman's life. Mildred June, Philo McCullough, Edwards Davis and Frank Beal have been playing in support.

The latest scenario work of James O. Spearing, former New York newspaper critic, now associated with the Universal Pictures corporation, has been the preparation of "The Signal Tower" for screening. "The Signal Tower" is Wadsworth Camp's short story included in O'Brien's "Best Short Stories of 1921" and is to be a Universal-Jewel special.

Clarence L. Brown will direct it. He has gained considerable distinction due to previews of "The Acquittal," an all-star filming of the Rita Weiman play in which Norman Kerry and Claire Windsor played the leads and which Brown directed. It has won exceptional comments.

Virginia Valli will be starred in "The Signal Tower," which is a triangle story, and the other two in the triangle will be Rockliffe Fellowes and Wallace Beery. J. Farrell McDonald, James O. Barrows, Dot Farley and Frankie Darro have other principal roles.

Harry A. Pollard is nearing completion of the Universal-Jewel special he has been making at Universal City, Del Monte, and Balboa Beach. The story is "The Spice of Life," written by Byron Morgan with the original title "There He Goes." Reginald Denny of "The Leather Pushers" and "The Abysmal Brute" is the star.

Opposite Denny in the picture is Laura La Plante, the winsome girl who went to Universal

(Continued on Page 20)

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

San Francisco, Calif.

Tom Mix came to San Francisco last week to have X-Ray pictures made of his leg, as he had been in an explosion a few days before, while on location, injuring himself and his horse. After a thorough examination it turned out that the hurts were not serious, so Tom returned to the company, which is working in the Santa Mountains. They expect to be near Santa Cruz for another week, and then leave for the Northern part of the State for further location work.

N. Dragomanovich, head of the West Coast Films, arrived in San Francisco on Friday, and will be here for several days, on business for the organization. While in the North he will also spend a week in Sacramento, the trip is to further the present plans of the company for going into production at an early date. Future pictures of the organization will be made in Los Angeles, but in which studio has not yet been decided.

Al and Ray Rockett, heads of the Rockett Productions, have returned to Los Angeles, after a business trip to San Francisco. While here they previewed their big, historical film, "The Life of Abraham Lincoln," at Burlingame, its first showing before an audience. The film will undergo a few slight changes, and be ready for a general release shortly.

Fred Kley, recently appointed general manager for Fox came to San Francisco last Saturday for a short stay on business for that organization.

Albert W. Hale, well-known director of the cinema drama, with at least a hundred pictures to his credit in the past, is a guest at the Hotel Whitcomb. Mr. Hale came to San Francisco a week ago to take treatments from a doctor, for a malady from which he has suffered for some time, already he has been much benefited, and expects to remain for several weeks in the hope of still further improvement.

The Mary Pickford company, making "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," worked all last week amid the beauties of Golden Gate Park. The screen version of Charles Majors' famous book is being made on a most elaborate scale, and on last Wednesday when the "Progress" of Queen Elizabeth was filmed, not only all the hundred people of the company brought from the South, but five hundred local extras, a whole troupe of real cavalry, borrowed from the Presidio, and five hundred horses were used, all of which, with the elaborate and colorful costumes, made a spectacle not soon to be forgotten by any one who saw it. All of the work here was done in the Park, and with the single exception of one cloudy day, the whole eight days of work were absolutely perfect in regard to weather. Mary Pickford herself, and Douglas Fairbanks who left his own picture, "The Thief of Bagdad" to come up with his wife, arrived on Sunday morning and having worked Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, finished her part of the scenes and returned to Los Angeles Tuesday evening. The company finished on Saturday, and left for the South that evening, where studio work will begin at once. Mr. W. W. Kerrigan, General Manager of the company is still in San Francisco closing up some of the business details.

Sigfrid Homquist, well-known in the silent drama is among the week-end guests at the Palace Hotel.

Colleen Moore, official mascot of the 91st Division, arrived in San Francisco on Sunday morning to be present during the American Legion Convention. She was given a rousing welcome at the Southern Pacific station by many of the officers and men of her special outfit, and will be the honored guest at many affairs given for the division during the coming week.

Fred Gaborie, who recently left the Buster Keaton Company to join the Frank Lloyd Company, spent most of last week in San Francisco, buying ships for Mr. Lloyd's next picture. The ships will be taken to some point near Los Angeles where the picture will be made.

Major H. G. Forester, business manager of the Golden Gate Films, returned to town last week after several weeks spent in the South on business connected with the organization. The company expects to go into production in the very near future in a southern studio, the full details of their plans will be ready for announcement in about another week.

When Eddy Eberly, auditor for Goldwyn, left for the South last week, after a few days spent here en-route from Colfax, it marked the end of the making of "Greed," as far as San Francisco is concerned. Eric von Stroheim and his company have been here so long and worked among us so much, and the whole organization has been so well liked, that San Francisco feels real regret at their going.

It lacks only six weeks of being a year since Ernest Traxler, production manager of the organization arrived the first of Dec. last to start making preparations for the filming of the picture, so it looks like the longest location on record.

Cullen Tate spent a few days here last week en-route to Seattle.

Pauline Starke was a guest at the St. Francis on Friday and Saturday last.

Casts of the Week

Wm. Fox Studios
present
"ANDY McGEE'S CHORUS GIRL"
Directed by Wm. Wellman
Photographed by Joe August
CAST:

Andy McGee	Chas. Jones
Agnes Evans	Marian Nixon
Elizabeth Stevens	Eileen O'Mally
Mother	Lucy Beaumont
Agnes' Husband	Brooks Benedict
Fire Chief	Al Freemont
Veteran	L. H. King
Old Man Turner	Chas. McHugh
Molly Turner	Mary Warren

Wm. Fox Studios
present
"THE SHADOW OF THE EAST"
Directed by Geo. Archainbaud
Photographed by J. Cronjager
present
CAST:

Barry Craven	Frank Mayo
Gillian Locke	Mildred Harris
Said	Norman Kerry
Kunwar Singh	Bertram Grassby
Lolaire	Evelyn Brent

Barbara Bedford will be seen in the forthcoming Rellimeo production, "The Yellow Stigma," under the direction of Colin Campbell. Others in the cast include Wyndham Standing, Raymond McKee, Tully Marshall, June Elvidge and Sam De Grasse.

Universal Studios
present
"INNOCENT"
Directed by Perley Poore Sheehan
Story by Perley Poore Sheehan
CAST:

Gladys Hulette	Norman N. Rankon
Edward Kennedy	Charles Cruz
Howard Truesdell	Robert Gordon

Lon Poff

Lasky Studios
present
WM. S. HART
in
"SINGER JIM McKEE"
Directed by Clifford Smith
Photographed by Dick Rush
Story by Wm. S. Hart
CAST:

Wm. S. Hart	Ruth Miller
Gordon Russell	Bill Dyer
Phillis Haver	Bert Sprotte

Fred Niblo Productions
present
"THY NAME IS WOMAN"
Directed by Fred Niblo
Photographed by V. Milner
Story by Bess Meredith
CAST:

Barbara La Marr	Wm. V. Mong
Ramon Novarro	Wallace MacDonald

The Burning Boughs

BY ALFRED NOYES

pipes to himself alone,
he child of Pan, where the woods are mellowing now;
his echo, the thrush, is flown;
nd the clouds of the sunset burn on the maple bough.
, stained with a golden tan,
ike a smooth-skinned, sun-kissed pear,
e boy-god shines thro' the shadows. O little god Pan, hat song are you piping there?

he wild grape purples the glen,
the lovers that followed the lilt of his pipes are fled.
re they lost in the cities of men?
s he summon the Oread throng?
r, leashed and lashed with the vine,
the panthers of Bacchus approach to the pulse of his song;
nd the white feet, splashed with wine?

I sing of immortal joy," warbling pipes of the young god cried like a bird,
The laughter of girl and boy,
all the kisses and whispers that once I heard;
the oak may darken and turn
o a smoldering crimson pyre;
the golden birch in her own bright tresses may burn;
ut I sing of the world's desire.

Though the wild grape shrivel and fall er boughs that are flaring like funeral torches here,
y joy shall outlive them all,
the bare bright seed that endures till the youth of the year.
I sang when the world began,
shall sing when the world grows old;
I am the fruit and the berry, the little god Pan,
he green leaf under the gold.

I am the lamp in the tomb;
little gold acorn alive in the drifts of decay;
he heart in the crumbling bloom;
hope that abides when the petals are winnowed away.
roses of life, at a breath,
reak; and your memories wane;
I am the magic insurgent! Through darkness and death shall lead you to April again."

he sumach burns in the brake.
e hills are a furnace of color and mellowing light
Where junipers flame and flake, d the blueberry dreams like a faint blue smoke on the height.
e pine cones fall below
n the sweet, red-needled earth;

But wilder and sweeter the pipes of the child-god blow
In a song of the world's rebirth:

"When the Phoenix fires her nest
I sing as the rose-red feathers consume and change,
And the rainbow plumes of her breast
Kindle with beauty and shine transfigured and strange;
And the world and your heart's desire
And the spice of a thousand springs
Awake with the bird reborn from the heart of the fire,
And mount on her radiant wings!"

It is all October now;
But he sings of a mellower harvest than any of ours.
He laughs at the burning bough
And pipes till the perishing leaves grow brighter than flowers.
While the pomp of the world goes by,
As age upon age it has gone,
Though the sun-swarms perish like leaves on the boughs of the sky,
The youth of the world sings on.

---

illy Joy, brother of Leatrice Joy, Paramount star, who resigned a directorship at Universal Studios to become associated with Douglas Fairbanks during the filming of "The Thief of Bagdad," is making preparations to leave for New York with his sister to attend the world premiere of DeMille's "Ten Commandments," in which Leatrice plays the leading feminine role.

Joy left Universal Studios and went with Fairbanks for the purpose of taking advantage of the experience to be gained with the noted star. From a minor position, Billy has worked himself up to where he has had charge of the script on the set, and it is a well-known fact in motion picture circles that the handling of the script for Doug's latest picture was a complicated task. Billy expects to direct his own some day, and he is busy gathering up as much experience as possible.

Kenneth Gibson, whose excellent portrayal of Larry Valentine, the tame cat role in "Daytime Wives," called forth favorable comment from critics and public alike, is now playing a similar part, that of Bobby Lamhorn, in Hobart Henley's "The Turmoil," with George Hackathorne and Eleanor Boardman at Universal.

Seldom does an actor have this opportunity of portraying roles so identical in general character, especially consecutively and while Kenneth's work in "Daytime Wives" was all that could be asked for and equal to that of many artists of far more years of training there is no doubt but that "The Turmoil" will show a still higher degree of artistry, gained through that never failing school, experience.

C. Gardner Sullivan is at work on a dramatic feature which will be Thomas H. Ince's next screen special. John Griffith Wray will direct the drama which has not yet been titled. Wray has just finished work on Ince's "Anna Christie" in which Blanche Sweet plays the title role.

Bruce Mitchell is filming "The Street of Painted Women," at the Ince studio. The cast includes James Kirkwood and Lila Lee.

Metro Makes Too Much Noise

The moral of this story is that if you decide to film a motion picture scene at night in the residential section of Pasadena, leave the portable motor generator at home or don't film the scene. Oscar Apfel, directing Viola Dana in "Angel Face Molly," her newest Metro starring picture, tried it and it didn't work at all.

The customary procedure of securing a permit from the city officials had been observed and at about nine o'clock at night Mr. Apfel took temporary possession of the grounds of one of Pasadena's many mansions. Lights were put in place and in the street the huge motor generator, mounted on a specialy constructed truck, began to roar, generating electricity.

The generator is rated the largest and most efficient of its kind. It is operated by a Liberty airplane motor and manufactures enough electricity to illuminate a town of 10,000 inhabitants. The only possible objectionable feature is the noise. It is reminiscent of all the bass voiced lions in Africa sounding mess call at once, and might be compared to a busy afternoon along the Marne a few summers ago.

Some people have proven their ability to sleep in a boiler factory during working hours but the good people in the houses surrounding the generator were different. Mr. Apfel was filming the last scene when a motorcycle appeared in the grounds and its rider, a sturdy gentleman attired in a brown uniform, puttees and a police badge, introduced himself with the terse query:

"Who's the boss here?"

Mr. Apfel was pointed out.

"You people can stay here as long as you want to," the officer declared, "but you'll have to muffle that thing or take it away."

"For the good of all concerned," he added, drawing forth his watch, "it ought not to take more than three minutes."

It didn't.

Hobart Bosworth has appeared as the father of Jane and Eva Novak in separate screen productions, but he appears as the father of them both in the same picture for the first time in "The Man Whom Life Passed By," a new Metro all-star special which Victor Schertzinger is directing.

Ralph E. Bushman, handsome young son of the famous Francis X., who is playing an important role in Metro's all-star production, "The Man Whom Life Passed By," started on his screen career at the age of eight, when he appeared as his father as a boy in an Essany picture, in which Francis X. Bushman was starred.

Although Percy Marmont, who is portraying the leading role in Metro's production of "The Man Whom Life Passed By," was formerly a great stage favorite in England, his screen appearances have been confined to America.

Happenings in the World of Sports

With the Dempsey-Firpo fight a matter of history and with the world's series baseball trophy in the hands of the Yanks, public interest is now focused on horse racing, football and the auto races.

It is interesting to note in this regard that many sporting events of national prominence are scheduled to take place in Southern California and particularly Los Angeles and its environs. The only counter attraction to the local program at this writing is the world championship turf classic slated for Belmont Park, N. Y., this Saturday between Papyrus, English Derby winner, and either Harry Sinclair'e famous colt Zev, or My Own, owned by Admiral Cary T. Grayson, who is the White House physician. There are those who claim that if the magnificent Man-O'-War was racing today the English horse would have no hopes whatsoever. As it is the entries are pretty evenly matched, whether Zev or My Own represents America. That for horse racing.

Notre Dame, one of the nation's most formidable football teams, is, according to report, coming here to play one of our local colleges. Knute Rockne's aggregation plays real football and Southern California folk will see some marvelous exhibitions of footwork, passing and fieldwork if they should come. Notre Dame was scheduled to meet Princeton Saturday at the latter's home field.

The Thanksgiving Day auto races at the Beverly Hills speedway is another event of local import that fans are looking forward to. There is always a tremendous showing of population at the speed rendezvous on turkey day, and it is expected that when this year's entries are announced interest in the events will assume greater proportions than ever before.

The lineup for Jack Doyle's Punch Palace at Vernon Tuesday night has been issued, with "Pepper" Martin and Frankie McCann in the main event. As follows:

"Pepper" Martin vs. Frankie McCann, 133 lbs.
Terry Martin vs. Eddie Macey, 120 lbs.
Joe Layman vs. Johnny Martin, 135 lbs.
Speedy Sparks vs. Tom Kelly, 158 lbs.
Packy McMullin vs. Sammy Santos, 128 lbs.
Paul Duarte vs. Jack Thompson, 145 lbs.
Eddie Conrad vs. Kid Sullivan, 128 lbs.

Looks like the Martins were going to be well represented in the fistic encounters!

The annual club championship golf tourney of the Hillcrest Country Club will begin Sunday. A good turnout is expected.

---

z

Fielding Yost, famous football coach at the University of Michigan will retire at the end of this season. He will be succeeded by George Little, who has been his aide during the past two years. Yost will remain at the sch[ool] as head of general athletics.

The regular soccer season opens this Sunc[day]

Dick Ferris is busy these days trying to [get] over the race track at Culver City. T[he] should go through, as it will be a wonderf[ul] thing for Los Angeles. With the Beverly Hi[lls] Speedway and the Culver City racetrack [we] couldn't want much more in the way of r[ac]e grounds. Ferris wants to open the tr[ack] this Christmas.

Nine bouts have been arranged for the [Los] Angeles Athletic Club Thursday evening. T[he] main eventers will be Eddie Gleason and N[ick] Slott, fighting at 130 pounds. The rest of [the] card is as follows:

Arthur Arsenault vs. Sailor Ciriaco, 115 ..
Joe McLaughlin vs. Bernard Henry, 128 ..
Jack Fields vs. Dan Conley, 118 lbs.
August Gotto vs. Joe St. George, 122 lbs.
Johnny Barry vs. William Gukle, 142 lb[s.]
Ad Allegrini vs. Sailor Huffman, 160 lb[s.]
Billy Burke vs. Mannie Kaplan, 170 lbs..
Joe Salas vs. Sailor Bryant, 125 lbs.

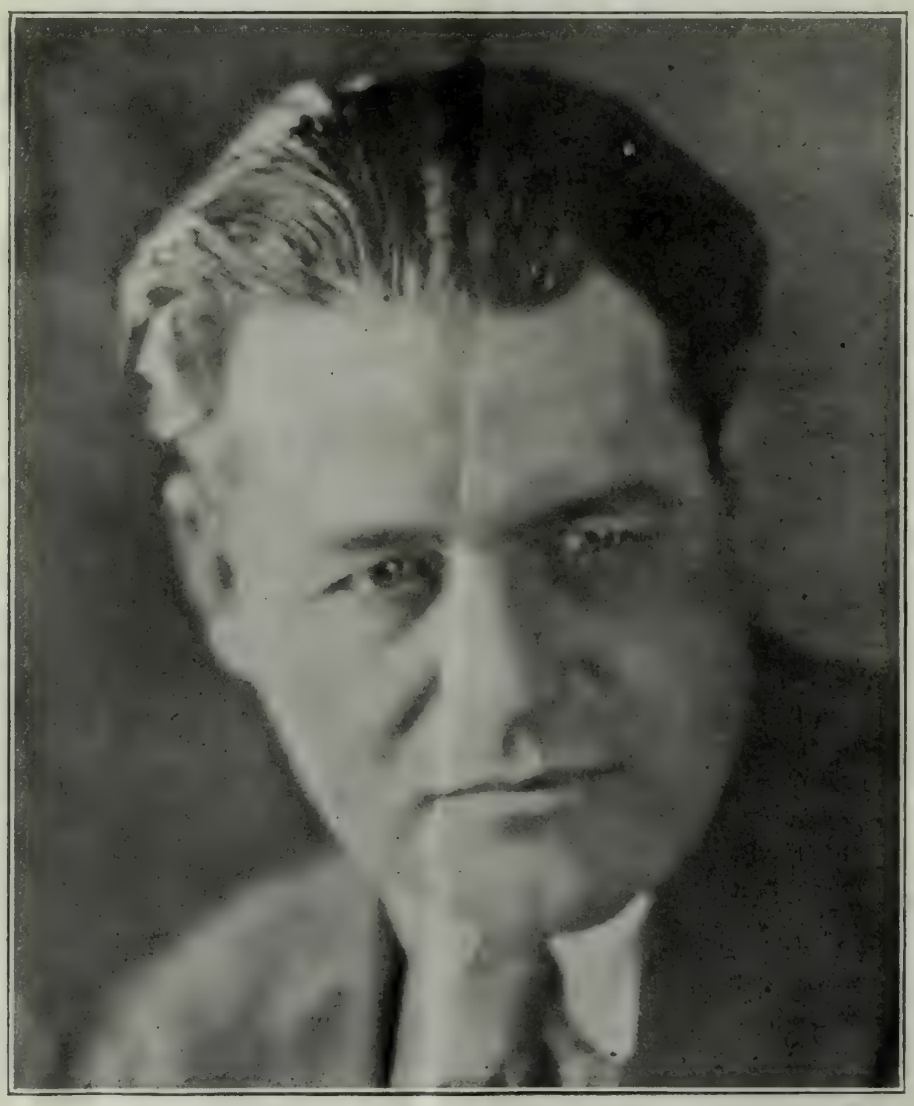
Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champ, is slated to meet Gene Tunney at Madison Square Garden in New York on December 10th.

The Chittenden Gun Club on Bunna Vista Lake is a very popular spot these days. Report has it that there are birds aplenty htere and limits are coming in fast and furious.

"Babe" Ruth has started out on another exhibition tour, with John Scott, Giant pitch[er]. Needless to say, however, the Colossus of Stat[e] has the permission of the Judge this time.



JACK CUNNINGHAM

Veteran scenarist who adapted "The Covered Wagon" to the screen. This film has enjoyed great success and has been acclaimed as one of the cinema's dramatic masterpieces.

NEWS SECTION

"Camera!" (The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry)

EIGHT PAGES

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1923

HOFFMAN QUITS AT METRO!

HUDSON ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR FILM EPIC OF WEST

First Nat'l Will Make Picture In Mexico

Earl J. Hudson, general production manager of First National, returned to the studios this week after spending several days in Mexico, where he made arrangements to use the largest fenced-in ranch in the world as "location" for First National's epic of the cattle country "Sundown," a picture now in production.

"Sundown," which is an original story by Mr. Hudson, is to be taken on locations more than 100 miles below the border. A company of more than fifty will go into Mexico to make the picture. Arrangements are now being made to care for the motion picture company on "location."

The housing and feeding of the movie people is proving no small problem, as most of the scenes will be "shot" in territory more than 100 miles from a railroad or a telephone, and in a section which in recent years has been excellent foraging ground for cattle thieves and outlaws.

The nearest point of contact with the United States will be Columbus, N. M., the small town which was the scene of Villa's famous raid in 1917. From there the company, camera, equipment and provisions will be taken over the rough desert trails into the interior.

The only communication that the motion picture players will have with the outside world will be by means of wireless telegraphy, for it is planned to install a huge receiving and sending radio station on the ranch for use during the taking of the picture.

"Sundown" is to be an epic of today, telling the story of the fast disappearance of the old cattle king. Its theme, for the most part, deals with the passing of the old west, which is fast disappearing with the division of the plains into small ranches and homesteads.

It will show how the big cattlemen whose ranches in the past covered a million or more acres in extent are virtually forced into Mexico to find grazing territories big enough to take care of their herds.

The earlier scenes for the picture are now being taken during the drive of 250 000 cattle from grazing lands in Utah and Northern Arizona into Mexico.

Frank Case Is Here Again

Frank Case, interrupted while acquiring a coat of tan in Hollywood recently, is back in the film belt as a guest of Doug and Mary again, and will pick up the tanning process where he left off a month ago when prosaic business called him to New York. Case is the owner and proprietor of the Algonquin Hotel in the Metropolis. With Mrs. Case he will remain in Hollywood for several weeks.

Flynn Had a Very Choice Selection

Emmett Flynn, Goldwyn director declares that while in New York City, photographing scenes for "Nellie, The Beautiful Cloak Model," in one district alone he heard eighteen brands of bad language. The last day in the metropolis, a Chinaman capped the climax by swearing in his native tongue at the intruders who insisted on filming the exterior of his chop suey palace.

BESTOW NEW NAME ON CARILLO

As a matter of fact Mario Carillo doesn't know whether he's himself or someone else these days. This despite the fact he has attained recognition as being one of the most picturesque character artists on the silversheet and as such well known to the majority of picture fans. For it seems that the colorful and romantic Mario has a twin, absolutely identical in appearance, by the name of "David Lamont," wandering about the town. Several weeks ago while walking along one of the main thoroughfares of Hollywood, Carillo was accosted by several passersby who nodded their heads and greeted him as "Mr. Lamont." Amusedly puzzled at first, thinking that they must have confused him with some popular acquaintance, his wonderment soon changed to genuine confusion as more and more people began to greet him similarly. Then he suddenly solved the mystery.

While glancing through one of the local papers he came across a novel by one of Hollywood's most prominent authors and screen writers, which was being published in serial form. There, sitting snugly beside that day's installment of the story was one of his favorite photos, autographed however by a strange hand and with a strange name. David Lamont! Where in samhill did they get that name! His name was Carillo, Mario Carillo, or so it had been, at any rate, until he picked up that newspaper and chanced across the novel. M-m-m, certainly sounded queer, alright! Back issues of the paper revealed a comment by the author anent the forthcoming writings. It seems that "Mr. Lamont" was a character of real life whom the writer met in Paris and decided to incorporate in the tale as being the personification of ideal manhood. He had the attributes, both physical and mental, of the hero of a real novel, one that would strike a responsive chord in the hearts of all women readers. Not a "sheik"; he was too serious, too contemplative for that. Not a "yokel," for he had all the charm and courtly manners of a continental nobleman. He was a man that would arouse admiration and respect among his fellowmen, and would readily win the favor of the el appeared in a newspaper thousands of miles from gay Paree. The author was in Hollywood where the movies were made. Perchance she did not know her hero was there, too!

Thus Mario Carillo found himself the central figure of this tale. Why his true identity was not made known to the readers is a matter for questioning. The author did not make him known, and report has it that the editor of the newspaper refused his request for recognition. Be it as it may, the true facts are these; Carillo came to America four years ago and twelve months ago arrived in Hollywood. He was born in Naples, Italy, and was known there as the Count Mario Caracciolo. He was not, as the author averred, an American. Not that his title meant anything for he abandoned it for the more simple name he now has, when he entered pictures. He only believed some recognition was due him and we are inclined to agree. So here it is!

Resigns Because Of Ill Health

Milton E. Hoffman, production manager for Metro Pictures Corporation for the past two years, has officially announced his resignation to take effect next month when he will leave for an extended ocean voyage.

Mr. Hoffman has been in ill health for several months due to the constant strain of business affairs, and finding it necessary to choose between his work and his health decided to give up his duties and step out of the motion picture business for at least three months.

He is one of the film industry's pioneers, starting his career as a salesman for the old World Film Company in the days when he not only sold pictures but also had to repair the projection machines along his route and do many other odd jobs that are now attended to by specialists. Later he was general manager of the Hollywood studios of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, later going to London where he established the present Famous Players studios.

Vidor Is Cutting "Wild Oranges"

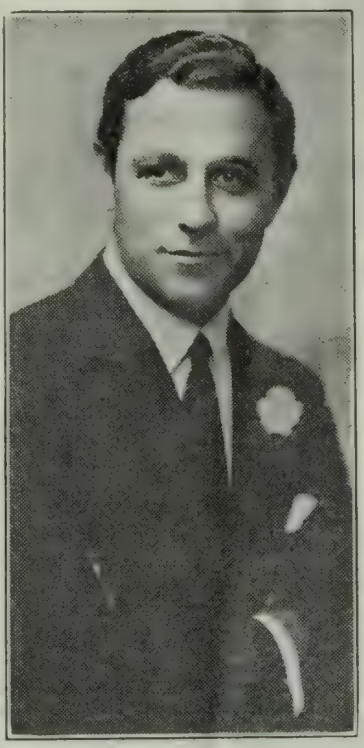
King Vidor, youthful Goldwyn director has finished actual camera work on his picturization of Joseph Hergesheimer's "Wild Oranges" for the Goldwyn company. Vidor is now spending his time in the cutting room and expects to have the negative in final form before the end of next week. He will leave shortly for New York where he will start work on the next Laurette Taylor picture for the Metro company.

"Humming Bird" Acquires Burns

Edward Burns, one of the most popular of the younger screen actors, and leading man for Valeska Suratt, Constance Talmadge, Mae Murray and other stars, has been signed by Famous Players-Lasky to play the leading masculine role opposite Gloria Sanson in the screen version of Maude Fulton's stage success, "The Humming Bird."

The production will be filmed at the Lasky Long Island studios and Burns will leave immediately for New York to commence work on the picture which will be produced under the direction of Sidney Olcott, director of "Little Old New York."

Burn's role in this picture is that of a newspaper reporter who is assigned by the French government to locate the whereabouts of a gangster known as "The Humming Bird." It is said the role offers many opportunities for dramatic development and it is expected that Burns will make his greatest success opposite Miss Swanson.



We have a little letter from Mrs. E. G. Medine, mother of Walter Medine, well known in local film circles, which was sent to us with a copy of a song she has just written. It is entitled "When The Twilight Comes" and the music was composed by Jean Navarre. In addition to this lyric Mrs. Medine has written several poems and stories which were published in one of the newspapers of her home town, New Orleans. At the present time she is visiting in Hollywood with another son, a hero of the late war who has come to this sunny clime to recuperate from the effects of wounds and severe gassing, and it was while caring for him that she found time to arrange the words for her song, which has been endorsed by Leatrice Joy, famous film actress, who also claims New Orleans as her home town.

WALLACE WORSLEY recently returned from San Fransisco where he witnessed the coast premier of his picture, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

EULALIE JENSEN will start work in a new production shortly having finished her role in "The Yankee Consul," a Douglas McLean special.

OSCAR APFEL has completed a series of these pictures starring Viola Dana for Metro and it is rumored that he will sign a new contract.

Americanize Villains, Says Tearle

Foreign looking movie villaine must become naturalized Americans.

The die has been cast—according to the casting directors, it is pointed out by Conway Tearle, popular leading man.

The time is not far distant when all screen villains will either be definitely Americanized or they will be out of business, says Tearle.

"Producers are rapidly reaching the point where they do not dare attribute the dark deeds of the flickering drama to an individual of foreign appearance, unless they invite foreign entanglements at the box offices of theatres in countries outside of the three-mile limit of the U. S. A.," says Mr. Tearle.

"With the exception of the natives of Borneo, all races have registered with the American producer, the fact that they do not favor the appearance on the screen in villainous parts, of persons who resemble their countrymen.

"The Mexicans, the Japanese, the Chinese, the negroes and other races do not want their countrymen shown to disadvantage in pictures—and far be it from me to blame them. Producers in Hollywood have learned that it does not pay to ignore these diplomatic relations.

"The objections sustained by foreign countries in this respect are now practically unanimous. Reports are in from nearly every county—and country.

"Producers will have to Americanize the looks of their favorite 'heavies' and no doubt, will have to label each villain: 'This is an AMERICAN villain,' so there can be no misunderstanding.

"The naturalization of foreign looking villains is already under way. Woe be unto those who cannot naturalize their looks!"

WILLIAM V. MONG is enacting one of the featured roles in a Fred Niblo production now nearing completion, titled "Thy Name Is Woman."

Von Stroheim Hides in "Greed" Editing

Erich von Stroheim, dynamic film director, has barricaded himself in his cutting room at the Goldwyn studios.

With the completion of actual camera work, the picuresque director has commenced the colossal undertaking of editing "Greed," his film version of Frank Norris' famous novel, "McTeague." He sees no one, has his meals served in the tiny, overcrowded cubicle, and does not come up for air until he has completed at least sixteen hours work.

The cans of film, forming an impenetrable barrier on the tables around the noted director, hold what von Stroheim feels is his best work in his motion picture career, and that the assembling of the film into the completed story calls for unusually close application.

To von Stroheim the cutting and editing of his picture is by no means second in importance to the physical production. He has visualized the story with the same care for detail and utter realism for which he is famous, and he has begun the task of assembling this material into a picture which tells the story with the directness and dramatic value of the original novel.

The long hours and the insisence of being undisturbed secluding himself with only a corps of cutters and film "patchers," is a repetition of what occurred while he was filming the picture in San Francisco, Oakland, Placer County and Death Valley, the actual locations described by the author.

Bryant Washburn, Grand-Asher star in his own productions, recently drove home in his big car from the golf links. On the way, something went wrong with the motor and the star got out to fix it. While thus engaged a chap in a flivver drove up and halted.

"What's wrong, mister?" he asked.

Bryant looked up and smiled: "I've got one of those things you're driving caught in the carburetor, I guess," he replied.

The other scratched his ear and looked reflectively at the actor:

"Best thing you can do," he finally volunteered, "is to get it out an' let it tow you home!"

Turn Tables On Producers

There has been a great deal of comment by writers, story readers and all the publishing clan on the alleged "mutilation" of published stories adapted for the screen. Now Doubleday, Page and Company, in reversing the "adaptation" process by publishing a novel taken from the original screen play, "Judgment of the Storm," produced by the Palmer Photoplay Corporation, announce that the film story is to be followed exactly!

This will be an interesting experiment, for the vital "first impression" that psychologists talk about will be made by the film, and not, as has been the case hitherto, by the published story. It has been claimed that films are robbed of entertainment value by first appearing in published form. According to both the publishers and the producers of "Judgment of the Storm," however, neither the film nor the novel will suffer in this reversed adaptation process.

The film play is to be novelized by Roy Mason, the novelist. It will be published in full book length and illustrated by photographs from the picture. The novel will be in the book stores and libraries of the country at about the same time the picture is released. Now we shall see if the book publishers can put the spirit of a story written directly for the screen into their medium, more effectively than the film producers have been able to translate novels and magazine stories!

Has Played 20 Cop Parts

De Witt Jennings said "twenty" this week when he completed a police inspector role in Metro's "Angel Face Molly," which made the twentieth time he had been similarly cast on stage and screen following his first notable achievement on Broadway, when he created the role of "Burke" in "Within the Law," which ran three years. Mr. Jennings makes 'em all different. In a recent role for Grand-Asher in "The Way Men Love" he was the most human he has ever been—really quite benign!

Etiquette Expert Aids Lloyd

That details of several Austrian court scenes might be authentic and the actions of various players in these scenes correct, from a military viewpoint, Frank Lloyd has enggaed William von Brincken, filmdom's best known authority on European court etiquette to assist in the technical direction of this phase of "Black Oxen" now being filmed for release as a First National Picture.

Prior to coming to America, Mr. von Brincken was social aide to King Albert of Saxony, then aide to the King of Wurttemburg, and while serving in such a capacity acted as guide to the present King George of England (then Prince of Wales) on a tour of Austria, Wurttemburg, Saxony and Bavaria. Later von Brincken served as an aide in the Austro-Hungarian court and following a tour of the world, came to Hollywood where the fascination of the motion pictures caused him to establish a permanent residence. Because of his training and his fame as an artist, von Brincken is one of the most sought technical advisors in Hollywood.

Author's Tales Have Human Quality

Of all modern fiction writers Booth Tarkington's tales are most fitted for the screen without change of original plot because they are human.

Tarkington understands children; he understands adults—he has a vast knowledge of the innermost thoughts of people.

He can peer beneath a grouchy exterior and know that the chronic grouch is human, pliable, easily moved when properly appealed to.

Tarkington's stories are filled with human interest and therefore are of general appeal.

Because of this superb quality in this writer's stories, J. K. McDonald, producer of "Penrod and Sam," is to give the picture-going world another story from Tarkington's pen—"Misunderstood," a story even more human than was "Penrod and Sam."

Like its predecessor "Misunderstood" is directed by William Beaudine and scheduled for First National distribution.

Rockliffe Fellowes, who so wonderfully interpreted the stern father in "Penrod and Sam" will play the role of a man most kindly disposed toward children; the very antithesis of his first characterization.

Ben Alexander who interpreted the role of Penrod, will play the part of Bill Latimer.

The leads are to be taken by Henry B. Walthall and Irene Rich.

So pleased was Tarkington with the production of "Penrod and Sam," that he wrote "Misunderstood" especially for McDonald's laest production. The author expressed a desire to journey to California to assist in titling the picture.

Director Robert McGowan has finished another "Our Gang" comedy at the Hal Roach Studios and the film has been shipped to Pathe headquarters in New York. The mischievous youngsters are shown running amuck in the amusement zone at Venice. McGowan is also completing camera work on a pirate picture in which the "gang" threatens the entire Pacific fleet.

"Family Life" is the title which has been given to the sixth Mermaid comedy, directed by Bob Kerr, and supervised by Jack White.

It is a laugh-generator of the complications incident to the ownership of an unbalanced flivver, life in auto camps, and a husband addicted to—fishing! The cast includes Mark Jones, Ruth Hiatt, Sunshine Hart, Otto Fries and Tommy Hicks.

ALLEN HOLUBAR will shortly return from Nashville, Tenn.

BENGALS COME TO BAGDAD

Douglas Fairbanks has been working with a Bengal tiger every night this week. This animal is required in Doug's new film, "The Thief of Bagdad." In fact, he has several companions. all lithe, sneaky, striped and with excellent sets of teeth. They have become the chief citizens of the ancient city of Bagdad which stands on the Pickford-Fairbanks lot, and have been encouraged to stay in the town by wire fences twelve feet high.

Behind these barricades, the director, cameraman, Doug, the animals and their trainer have been disporting themselves in the glare of the huge bright lights of Hollywood. The tigers are the chained guardians of Bagdad and must be eluded by the thief, meaning Doug, who by the aid of his magic rope surmounts all insurmountable obstacles. The reason for all this energy on the part of the thief is that he desires to steal the Princess of Bagdad. Just whether he will succeed is one of the secrets of the scenario department. Night work will continue for some time, it is announced, as there are several sequences which call for nocturnal effects.

Bert Sprotte's Gamble Success

Back in 1915 Bert Sprotte after having spent twenty-nine successful years on the legitimate stage in the capacity of actor, stage-director and producer in many parts of the world, called upon L. M. Goodstadt at the Lasky Studio and asked his advice as to whether to take up the moving picture profession.

After receiving encouragement and having decided to cast his lot with the exponents of the silent drama and forsake the spoken, he was, of course, unaware that in the month of October, year 1923, he would be cast at Lasky's for the most important of the hundreds of roles which had fallen to his lot to portray.

In William S. Hart's second super-western, "Singer Jim McKee," to be filmed at the Lasky studio, Bert has been cast for the role of "Sheriff Dan McKettrick," an exceptionally strong character part and one in which it is expected he will bring out a superior style of dramatic talent. Critics have many times predicted this would occur when Bert Sprotte would be cast for a part requiring a portrayal by an actor long years in experience and with that certain finesse resultant only from the highest degree of effort and concentration for which Sprotte is noted.

Bill Hart will himself play the stellar role and other notables in tha cast including Bert Sprotte are Gordon Russell, Phyllis Haver, Ruth Miller and Bill Dyer.

Home Run Wins Her Gown

When Babe Ruth poled out his second home run in the second game of the World Series, he provided Miss Eulalie Jensen, featured screen player with any evening gown in Los Angeles she may select. The gown is "on" Jimmy Morrison, otherwise James Morrison.

Morrison, who was once a great Ruth fan, soured on him last year when, through suspensions and other causes, he failed to lead in home run hitting. He bet against him this year and won. He thought he could go on winning by betting against him. He wagered that Ruth would not even equal a single World Series home run record.

His second home run in the game did it. Only once before had two circuit clouts been registered by a single player in one game. Had Miss Jensen lost, Morrison would have been privileged to have gone to the best tailor in Los Angeles, ordered the best suit the tailor could make and to have sent the bill to Miss Jensen.

With the opening of the new home of Oscar Apfel, motion picture director, on Loma Linda avenue, Hollywood is enriched with one of the most complete personal collections of armor in the United States.

Over a long period of years Apfel has made the gathering of medieval armor a hobby, picking up pieces wherever he has traveled in Europe and the Orient. Until recently his collection was in New York.

In addition to the armor, and with it, the weapons of the days of chivalry, Apfel has several hunt trophies. One of these is the skin of a polar bear that measures more than ten feet. The new house has a gun room that contains every imaginable modern weapon from a tiny automatic pistol to an elephant gun.

A typical army "awkward squad" has been drilling at the Hal Roach Studios for several days. They appear in a new Roach Pathecomedy, with Stan Laurel in the leading role.

J. C. "Jack" Fowler, has just finished portraying the role of John Greenleaf Whittier, author of "Maude Muller," in the screen version of the same name and featuring Marjorie Daw in the title role as Maude Muller. Mr. Fowler before coming to Hollywood, spent twenty years on the legitimate stage and since casting his lot with the silent drama enjoys the distinction of portraying twenty-seven separate and distinct roles, no two of which were alike.

Lloyd Hughes wishes he were twins.

Since Lloyd left for the Flagstaff, Arizona location for the Lasky Company, his manager Fred Fralick, has had five offers for the young actor's services, which he has had to turn down.

Hughes is one of the most actively engaged leading men in Hollywood and holds the record for number of engagements during the past five months, among free lance leading men.

He is at present engaged in a leading role of Zane Grey's. "The Heritage of the Desert," for Paramount. By coincidence, he is working in his own home town in Arizona. This marks his first visit "among the folks" in several years.

John H. Richardson has been signed to play the part of Mr. Byng in Warner Bros. production of "Beau Brummel," with John Barrymore in the title role.

Creighton Hale, who is portraying a Viennese surgeon in Warner Brothers, "The Marriage Circle," has two weeks more work in the production and is already receiving offers for different productions. While the actor is considering the dotted line, he has come to no decision as to work or a much needed vacation, for since his arrival on the Coast the first of the year he has worked unceasingly in one picture after another with no rest between. Mr. Hale will soon be seen in Goldwyn's "Name the Man," for which he was accorded all praise by Victor Seastrom who directed it.

Russell Joy, who terms himself the "jovial juvenile," has returned to Hollywood after a six month's tour in the east in a vaudeville sketch. Prior to his departure for the other end of the continent, Joy played the heavy in Lloyd Hamilton's "Extra! Extra!" which was made at the United studios.

Sam Mogi, well-known throughout filmland as an expert cameraman and all-round director, has blossomed out for himself and is now the President of Independent Comedies, Inc., with offices in the Conlon Building, Hollywood. Mr. Mogi, who has just completed a two-reel comedy is planning to produce a series of eleven more for release by Shadowland, Inc.

MARY SHOOTS IN 'FRISCO

A real mutual admiration contest was on in San Francisco last week. "It's the greatest natural studio location in the world," said Mary Pickford about Golden Gate Park. "Our Mary is the greatest sweetheart the world ever knew —and we love and admire her," said the people of San Francisco, and just to prove it pretty much all the population tried to see her work during the filming of the scenes for "Dorothy Vernon Of Haddon Hall." The crowd was huge all the time, but during the three days that Mary herself was on the scene Marshall Neilan said that the crowd never at any time could have been under ten thousand people. Not that we blame them, we were there ourselves, safely tucked away back of the cameras, in front of the largest policeman in sight, to keep the crowd from stepping on us. And it was a sight to delight any heart, Mary, curls covered by a black velvet hat and in the picturesque riding habit of the days of good Queen Bess, mounted on a white horse, with rose and silver trappings, surrounded by knights and ladies faire, all against the lovely green vistas of Golden Gate Park, and under a sky of cloudless blue.

"Isn't it too thrilling" said Mary," it's just like the ovation Doug and I had in London," and she smiled sweetly at all the people with cameras, trying to take snap-shots of her, and at the children that always manage somehow to be in the front row, but there were times when in spite of the special police and the rope lines that it took a special body guard and Doug's strong right arm to save her from being overwhelmed.

The Pickford Company is the largest production company ever in San Francisco, and incidentally the most extensive location Mary Pickford has ever done. They came in a special train, "The Dorothy Vernon Special," with a company of 120 members, and four cars of the ten, which made up the train, loaded with properties and equipment. Several horses specially trained for the pictures, including Mary's own lovely white "Juanita" were along, and among the properties were 250 saddles, 850 Elizabethan costumes, 20 carriages and wagons, and 50 fuse-type muskets, each valued at $100.

The company worked for eight days in San Francisco, all the locations used were in Golden Gate Park and on Wednesday, the "Progress" of Queen Elizabeth was filmed, using beside the regular company five hundred local extras, with horses to mount them, a troop of regular cavalry borrowed from the Presidio, carts, and wagons galore. For when Queen Elizabeth went a-visiting she took not only her servants and knights, ladies-in-waiting and body guard, but all her own food, furniture, supplies and servants. So the filming of her progress was a really beautiful and colorful sight. Included in the players from Hollywood were Allan Forrest, Anders Randolph, Marc McDermott, Erich Mayne, Mme. Carrie Daumery, Lottie Pickford, Colin Kenny, and Malcolm White.

Writer Buys Home

Carey Wilson, associate editor of the Goldwyn studios, has joined the ranks of Hollywood home owners who recently purchased a home on Sweetzer Avenue, in Hollywood. Mr. Wilson recently finished the adaptation of Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks," and wrote the continuity on "Nellie, The Beautiful Cloak Model," from the adaptation by H. H. Van Loan.

Carl Miller has lived a long time to have a childish dream realized. Brought up in a country town, he longed as a child to ride on a train. His ambition was to be a conductor. Now in a Ben Wilson production which Arthur Rosson is directing for Grand-Asher, Mr. Miller, who is male lead in the picture, has been riding all day long for three days, to Englewood and back to a location in an observation car where the scenes he is enacting with Mildred Davis are being photographed. He is likewise a conductor, for he is taking Mildred back home!

Ruth Hiatt is not dependent upon her work as leading woman for Lloyd Hamilton in his comedies.

She's rather proud of the fact that she studied stenography for two years, and won a medal for speed in typing.

Niblo Particular About The Coin

Spanish gold, the real coins of Spain are to be used in the production "Thy Name Is Woman," which Fred Niblo is making for Louis B. Mayer.

Mexican gold coins were tried at first but it was found that Spanish and Mexican money are very different and Mr. Niblo, as particular of the minutest detail as he is in vital matters of the production, cabled his troubles to a friend who is at present living in Madrid and as a result fifteen hundred dollars worth of Spanish gold coins are now crossing the Atlantic bound for Hollywood.

R. Ernest Ouimet, President and General Manager of Laval Photoplays, has announced the completion of "The Vital Question," which was picturized from William Counselman's story. Mr. Ouimet will leave for New York in about ten days to complete arrangements for the distribution of the picture. Paul Casanouve directed the production, which was photographed by Georges Benoit. In the cast are Andree Lafayette, Helen Ferguson, Jack Perrin, Max Constant, Barney Randall, Edward Tilton and W. H. Turner.

Reel Thanks Due Famed Artist

Most famous screen artists claim someone as their "discoverer." Helene Chadwick credits the eminent artist, Harrison Fisher with having started her toward her prominent place on the screen today. It was while studying art with her that Mr. Fisher noticed the possibilities of her beauty. He persuaded her to be his subject for a magazine cover, and his painting brought Miss Chadwick immediate fame.

No Duncan Script

Max Graf, supervising director of the Graf Productions, writing of plans for the Duncan Sisters, whom the brothers have just signed for a series of pictures, says "spontaneity" will have full scope. The first vehicle "The Unheavenly Twins" by Rosetta Duncan, will be mapped out in briefest continuity and later built up in its sequences on the set in much the same way that comedies are fashioned. Fame has been won by the sisters through their naturalness and instinctive resourcefulness for they are highly inspirational. They "think of things" as they go along, so this asset will be seized upon by Max Graf who will supervise all their pictures.

Charles Cruz has been cast in "Innocent," at the Universal, an original story by, and under the direction of, Perley Sheehan. The cast includes Gladys Hulette, Edward Kennedy, Howard Truesdell, Norman N. Rankon, Robert Gordon and Lon Poff.

Jerry Farmer of the Trimble-Murfin Productions is thinking seriously of trying some long distance running in competition. The other day a ten-months-old police dog was brought to Strongheart's ranch home in the San Fernando Valley by a friend of Laurence Trimble, to get the director of the wonder dog to handle him a bit. The pup became frightened and bolted. Then ensued a chase of nearly an hour in which Farmer finally ran down the dog. Perhaps you don't believe this, but Strongheart's press agent vows it's true.

Screen Kid Vacations

Bruce Guerin is making the most of his between-pictures vacation, many happy hours being spent at the family ranch in the San Fernando valley, watching the erection of a new house where he, sister Marjorie, Mother and Daddy Guerin will spend their week-ends when work permits. "The Country Kid," in which Bruce appears in support of Wesley Barry, has been shipped to New York. Critics who have previewed the film predict that the clever four-year-old will be eligible for stardom when it is released, so realistic is his work as the pathetic little brother of the country urchin.

Globe - Trotting Cameraman on "Ben Hur"

John Boyle, considered one of the best cinematographers, has been engaged by the Goldwyn company to head the battery of cameramen who will go to Italy to film "Ben-Hur."

Boyle earned the commission by his excellent photography in two pictures which he has just completed at the Goldwyn studios—George D. Baker's "Slave of Desire" and King Vidor's "Wild Oranges."

Boyle has made several trips to the South Sea Islands, China and Java with William Alder, noted explorer. Since photographing "The Queen of Sheba" he has constantly been called upon to do the camera work with companies contemplating trips to distant locations. Boyle has had years of experience having been behind the camera long before the motion picture industry was in its infancy.

Upon completing his work as child lead in "Big Dan" at the Fox studios, Buck Black was engaged to play the part of six-year-old "Little Billy" in the Gene Stratton Porter production "The Girl of the Limberlost," now being filmed at the Ince studios.

Halperin Will Film Lyric "Souvenir"

Victor Hugo Halperin of the Halperin Productions, whose first picture, "Tea With a Kick," offered a cast of twenty-seven stars and scored a great success, has leased stage and office space at the Hollywood Studios and is getting ready to make his second picture, "Souvenir," also an all-star production, which will include at least twenty big names in the cast. This picture is laid in Russia at the time of the revolution, and the story is also being made into a stage play for presentation in New York City this Winter. C. R. Wallace will co-direct with Halperin and "Souvenir" is for Associated Exhibitors release.

Jack Polo, who a few years ago was playing at local studios has returned from the East and will again take up the art of acting. During his absence he has been connected with a number of Eastern film companies, especially the Universal at Fort Lee, N. J..

Hunt Stromberg has rented office quarters at the Hollywood Studios and plans to have three units in production at that studio within a short tme. Stromberg Productions, which introduced Bull Montana to the public, also now include the well-known Western star, Harry Carey. The third unit will be an all-star one.

n n a Q. Signs With Tully

Richard Walton Tully announc- the signing of Anna Q. Nilsson, ho is just about the busiest ung lady in Hollywood these ys, to play the part of Alle- eny Briskow, in Tully's next oduction, "Flowing Gold," an aptation of Rex Beach's color- l story of the Texas oil fields, d which will be a First National ture.

In this characterization, Miss ilsson will appear as a glorious ecimen of western womanhood, awkward, uncouth girl of the ains, of magnificent physique de- loped by years of toil on her ther's pitiful "dry farm," but th the tender heart of a woman. ter, when Providence, as com- nsation for the family's unequal uggle against the drought, saw to bring forth oil in great quan- ies on the nester's acreage, "Al- ," by a tedious course of study d training, spurred on by her ve for a man socially and in- llectually her superior, blossoms to a refined and beautiful wom- . The role is peculiarly suited Miss Nilsson's versatility.

The career of Anna Q. Nilsson most interesting. From the very ttom of the ladder, she has imbed, and for the past three ars has played countless power- l emotional roles, besides many out-of-door pictures calling for e most strenuous type of wom- . Two of such recent instances e in "The Spoilers," another ex Beach story, and in "Pon- la," a First National picture soon be released.

Both Mr. Tully and Joseph De rasse, who is to direct "Flowing old," are highly elated over hav- g secured her services.

Marie Walcamp, "the daredevil rl of the movies," has just com- eted the leading role in "Treas- re Canyon." The picture was di- cted by Breezy Eason.

Wheeler Dryden, who recently oined Margaret Anglin's Company San Francisco and created sev- al important parts in her produc- ons at the Curran Theatre there, turned to Los Angeles with her, will be remembered, and played r three weeks at the Mason Op- a House. Mr. Dryden was then ngaged by Miss Anglin to play e part of "Reginald Morton" in The Woman of Bronze," and left alifornia for a tour of Canada, orking back towards New York ity. After leaving Winnipeg, anitoba, the Compay went back the States, and are at present Des Moines, Iowa. The tour ill conclude in Fort Wayne, In- iana, from whence the Company oes to New York City and dis- ands.

CHARLES "BUCK" JONES completing his part in a forth- oming Fox special in which he ill appear as a fireman.

HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS EXPAND

So heavy has been the demand for plant facilities at the Hollywood Studios since it was purchased at a consideration of approximately $750,000, by a group of capitalists headed by S. M. Tompkins, president and John M. Nicholaus, vice-president of the Standard Film Laboratories, that the general manager, William Sistrom has commenced a building program which calls for an expenditure of $200,000 within the next six months. This program will double the stage and unit facility space.

When the property was purchased, there were four glass stages and work is now nearing compleion on the enlargement of stages No. 1 and No. 2. They are being extended and joined so that when completed they will become a single dark stage, 115 by 280 feet, probably the largest stage of its kind in the West. It is an all-steel structure, with solid glass roofing. Work is also well under way upon one complete new unit building, upon an addition to the mill, which will double its size and capacity, a new dressing room building with the most modern fixtures and conveniences, and a complete new storage building.

New production offices are already completed and occupied by George Berthelon, production manager, Robert J. Ellis, technical and art director and Harry D. Brown, plant engineer and lighting expert.

Further plans under Sistrom's building program call for three more stages of the same size as the giant one, now nearing completion, a building to house a commercial photographer and the art title department, and a new and much larger administration building.

Chill Hearts of Comic Villains

A novel little playlet was unwittingly executed by a group of Christie Comedians while returning from location yesterday. It so happened that the day had been spent in shooting some real hard-boiled Western scenes—scenes that called for such titles as "Stay off-'n these diggin's, stranger, or I'll pump you full o' lead"; and "I reckon I'm the meanest man in these parts, little gal."; and all the actors felt tough enough to bark at a pack of lions.

The first car to leave for the studio contained "Cactus Kelley" and "Rattlesnake Rodriguez" who are better known to the public as Bobby Vernon and Tom Murray; director Harold Beaudine, and the dainty little ingenue Charlotte Stevens.

As the car got into motion Bobby Vernon made a survey of his wild and wooly costume and in noting two huge 'gats' protruding from his belt he opened the brief dramatic skit by saying,

"Gee, if I go home in this outfit I'll scare the daylights out of my baby."

"Yes, and I look tough enough to scare anything that walks or crawls" wheezed Rattlesnake Rodriguez as he glanced around to see if any stray dogs had fainted with fright at the sight of his mean make-up.

Suddenly, as the car slowed down for asharp turn in the road, two masked men dashed up to the car and commanded,

"Hands up!"

The occupants of the car thot they were victims of a crude joke but were soon convinced of the bandits' serious intent when the latter fired several real bullets into the windshield.

The frail looking bandits were evidently too busy to be frightened by the tough looking actors and they proceeded to portray the parts that the actors were dressed for. Robbing the movie folk of their valuables was indeed a dramatic incident and when their loaded guns were added to the loot the actors felt at east in donating their services to a comedy-drama.

As the auto proceeded to the studio only a few feeble words were spoken by the passengers.

Director Beaudine turned toward the tonneau and addressed "Cactus Kelley" and "Rattlesnake Rodriguez"; "You boys," he said, "Can come out from under that laprobe now. The bandits are gone."

Club Wants Name

Virginia Brown Faire, president of the newly launched club of screen artists organized for self improvement, announces that since the name of the club "The Regulars" has not met with approval from various outsiders, that the girls have decided to change the name and are open to suggestions from anyone who will send in a name to 1714 Garfield Place, Hollywood, the home of the president. The best name will win a prize and also, if the prize winner is interested, autographed photographs of all the members which include Priscilla and Marjorie Bonner, Maryon Aye, Kathleen Key,, Pauline Curley, Menifee Johnston, Alberta Vaughn and Grace Gordon. Among others joining are Mary Philbin, Doris May, with still others to be invited. June Mathis was elected honorary president at the last meeting.

Contracts were signed yesterday by Maurice Tourneur and a trio of popular players to appear with Owen Moore in the next M. C. Levee-First National offering, "Torment."

Maude George, who has just finished her work in "Drums of Jeopardy," will appear in one of the leading roles. Miss George's other recent characterizations took place in "Six Days" and "Temporary Marriage."

Joseph Kilgour, who recently finished a leading part in "Ponjola" and George Cooper, who attracted considerable attention in Marshall Neilan's, "The Eternal Three," are the other two players to sign with Tourneur.

Visitor Lends Zoo Atmosphere to "Pleasure Mad"

The Louis B. Mayer Studios of Los Angeles are situated on a large plot of ground adjoining the Selig Zoo, in which is imprisoned one of the largest collections of wild animals in the world.

Until recently no effort was made to prevent visitors at the Zoo from wandering onto the Mayer "lot" to watch the various companies make motion pictures.

One day not long ago, a tall, gawky fellow, expensively overdressed, wandered out of the zoo onto a stage where Reginald Barker was completing the filming of "Pleasure Mad," his latest special photoplay production for Louis B. Mayer.

The newcomer had just come from an orgy of feeding peanuts to Anna, the famous screen elephant, and still possessed an abundant quantity of the goobers in his pockets.

Engrossed in watching Barker "do his stuff" behind the scenes, the fellow cracked and ate peanuts, carelessly tossing the shells onto the studio floor. The director observed this ill mannered proceeding for a few seconds and when it became evident that the visitor did not have sufficient good sense to quit, he addressed him politely, though caustically and in no uncertain tones:

"Sir," Mr. Barker said, "you have possibly been misdirected—the Zoo is next door. There is a rule against feeding the animals here."

A silly grin and an early exit followed.

Madge Bellamy, Sid Chaplin, Ford Sterling and John Steppling have been added to the cast of Thomas H. Ince's new comedy special "The Galloping Fish." With Louise Fazenda and Freddie, the seal, so human that he almost talks, occupying headline, the comedy is due for a flving start with Del Andrews handling the megaphone.

"I've supported so many queer animals lately," murmurs Louise plaintively. "It was a horse in mv last. Once before I supported a seal and he hit me. But Freddie looks like a gentleman and I think he will act like one."

We have a post-card from Frederick Peters who is at Quincy, Cal., playing the brute heavy in "The Beast" which Edmund Mortimer is directing for Fox with John Gilbert featured. Peters states the company expects to stay on this location three weeks, but he isn't sad because there is plenty, of fish, deer and bear there. Enough for a good time for anyone, we'd say!

Newton Hall, 10-year-old stage and screen character actor, has been signed by the Gene Stratton Porter Productions to enact the role of "Billy" in "The Girl of the Limberlost" now being filmed at the Ince studios in Culver City.

Flapper Flaps With Swamp Angel

Clara Bow, immortalized by Howard Chandler Christy as "The Spirit of Youth," and today considered among motion picture producers as "the ideal flapper," has been engaged by First National to portray an important role in "The Swamp Angel."

This is a picture of typical small town life. Clarence Badger is directing it and the leading role is in the hands of Colleen Moore.

Only eighteen years of age, Miss Bow came into pictures a few months ago to find herself a "type" and one very much in demand during the vogue for pictures of "flapperism and jazz."

Like Virginia Brown Faire and several other well-known screen stars, the young actress really made her debut in pictures through the winning of a beauty contest.

Her first pictorial efforts never reached the screen, however. Her part fell a victim of the cutter's shears. Her second venture was more successful. This was as "Dot Morgan," in "Down to the Sea in Ships."

Later she played opposite Glen Hunter in "Grit," then she appeared in "Maytime" and more recently portrayed a naive flapperish role in the Frank Lloyd production "Black Oxen," a picture now in production.

Clara is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y. She studied to be a secretary, but changed her mind very suddenly when her beauty attracted Howard Chandler Christy, who used her as a model for his painting "The Spirit of Youth."

A great future is predicted for the youthful thespian who, producers claim, is one of the most naturally gifted young players to reach the screen for many moons. One prominent director describes her as a composite of Lenore Ulric and Marguerite Clark.

The Fred Caldwell Co. has purchased another story by J. Stewart Woodhouse which has been approved by James Dent, West Coast representative of Selznick's, for the Hollywood series. The title for which has not yet been announced, but deals with rural life. Mr. Woodhouse centered the story around Muriel Reynolds, the embryo comedienne of the Fred Caldwell Company.

Creative Productions, working at the Hollywood Studios, has finished shooting on "Superstition," an all-star feature, which is now in the editing room being prepared for an early Fall release.

Although casting is practically completed, the Irving Production, "The Dawn of Love," is being held up by the continuity. This picture will be directed by Dallas M. Fitzgerald and will feature an all-star cast.

Cancels Trip; Goes To Work

Togo Yamamoto, prominent Japanese actor who recently returned from New York, and who portrayed an eccentric Chinese character in First National's production "The Lord of Thundergate," is now playing a similar role in "The Yellow Stigma," which is being filmed by the Rellimeo Film Company under the direction of Colin Campbell with a notable cast including Wyndham Standing, Barbara Bedford, Tully Marshall, Rosemary Theby, June Elvidge, Raymond McKee and Sam De Grasse.

Togo was planning to go back to Japan the coming Spring to direct pictures for the Matsutake Kinema Company, which is the largest film producing organization in that country, but due to the recent catastrophe he will be compelled to postpone this contemplated journey for at least two years. It is interesting to note that he is also the publisher of a graphic film magazine in Tokyo, having a 100,000 circulation. It is a monthly and by far the largest and best of its kind in the Orient. Today Togo is the premier screen player of his native land, and the significance of this position is brought out by the 1922 statistics of the United States Chamber of Commerce which reveals that Japan and England are the two best markets for American films. The picture market of the Orient is controlled, for the greater part, by Japan.

Concentration Vital Asset

Concentration.

A simple word, yet one of the most vital factors to the success of the actor or actress, according to Mae Murray, Metro star, who is now working on "Fashion Row," her new Tiffany production for Metro.

"Concentration is important in every art, but especially in the art of acting," states Miss Murray. "Concentration is the quality which permits us to direct all our spiritual and intellectual forces towards one definite object—sometimes for a time much longer than our physical strength can endure.

"I once heard of a fisherman, who, during a storm, did not leave his rudder for forty-eight hours, concentrating to the last minute on his work of steering his schooner. Only when he had brought his boat safely back to the harbor did he allow his body to faint. This strength, this certainty of power over ourselves is the fundamental quality of every creative artist. The actor must find it within himself and develop it to the very last degree.

"In the art of acting a special kind of concentration is necessary. The pilot, the architect, the scientist, the painter, the sculptor, the musician, the author—all have visible objects of concentration. With the actor it is quite different.

"To act one must know how to concentrate on something materially imperceptible. In other words, the actor and actress need a spiritual concentration on emotions which do not exist, but are invented or imagined.

Likens Films To Melodramas

"The famous old Drury Lane melodramas of King Edward's time were more closely akin to the motion pictures of today than any other form of past or present day stage entertainment."

So declares Percy Marmont, the Mark Sabre of the screen version of "If Winter Comes," and the portrayer of the title role in "The Man Whom Life Passed By," which Victor Schertzinger is directing at the Metro studio. Mr. Marmont, although a leading man in American screen productions for the past seven years, is an Englishman by birth and was formerly a popular member of the Drury Lane players.

"America, it seems, has a misconstrued conception of the nature of the Drury Lane melodramas," Mr. Marmont states. "Cheap imitations of them were produced in the English provinces and it is these, I feel, that have led the majority of the American public to form the opinion that Drury Lane productions were closely similar to the ten-twenty-thirty melodramas which were popular in the cheaper theatres of America a dozen years ago.

"Drury Lane had one of the largest stages in the world. The melodramas staged there were full of action, to be sure, but not the wildly exaggerated action that is imagined. The King and royalty were frequent attendants. There was always one big scene in each production, very spectacularly staged and not unlike the big scenes of present day motion picture spectacles.

"After all, the stage is a continuous 'long shot,' and the race scene in 'The Sporting Duchess' the thrilling scene in the Alps in 'Hearts are Trumps,' and the underwater scene in 'The White Heather,' were all staged at Drury Lane, a little more artificially but quite as effectively as they were later for the screen."

Viola Dana I Fast Worker

Viola Dana believes she ha qualified as a quick change arti as the result of her experienc during the filming of "Angel Fa Molly" her newest Metro sta ring picture which Oscar Apfel directing.

Miss Dana's wardrobe for th picture includes seven costum and during one day's filming sh wore six of them. In most of th cases a change of makeup accon panied the change of clothes an the little star rubbed greasepai on and off her face until her fin ers tired with the labor.

Some of the costumes wer coarse, strong garments. Othe were fine, thin things that requir careful handling.

The average person changes h attire not more than twice betwe the time he arises in the mornin and the time he retires for th night. With Miss Dana the com plications were far greater.

She arrived at the studio at o'clock in the morning and by o'clock was ready for work.

At 10 o'clock, Mr. Apfel tol her to change from the dress of denizen of Third Avenue, Ne York, to that of a wealthy youn society girl. She had to chang her costume and her makeup an have her hair dressed.

This operation was repeated fiv times before she finished the fina scene of the day at 6 o'clock. Be fore going home she telephone her sister, Edna Flugrath.

"Tell those people I can't g to the theatre tonight," she re quested. "Tell them I'm ill. Te them I've gone to Europe. Te them anything. I'm not going t change my dress again."

Symphonies

Factory stacks muttering smok to slander the sun.

Shanties that have collapsed in to an architectural embrace ma querading as a "duplex" house.

Tin cans, sparkling as beautifu ly as jewels on the diaphragm of dowager.

Goats posed as gracefully on as heaps as marble fauns on the ter race of a palace.

Such is the setting for "Th Swamp Angel," the rollicking com edy drama of pathos and humo which First National is producin with Colleen Moore in the feature role.

Richard Connell wrote the story Clarence Badger directs. Supporting Miss Moore are Ben Lyon Sam DeGrasse, Charlie Murray Mary Alden and a flock of kids.

ormer Cowboy Now Matinee Idol

Born on a Texas ranch, where learned as a boy the arts of ypunching, Carl Miller, the tal- ed young actor who plays the le lead in Mildred Davis' new and-Asher picture, directed by thur Rosson, used to spend his cations from the University of xas, keeping up his practice with rope and in the saddle.

He went to Mexico with a big ning corporation, where he ndled trucks. One day Beverly iffith, making a news weekly, nt down to get some mine stuff d Miller gave him every co-op- ation. They struck up a friend- ip and Griffith asked Miller, who s getting sick of the country, to me to Hollywood and try a fling pictures. This was in 1916. He nt to Universal, where he play- atmosphere for a while and then d seven westerns with Marie alcamp. Later he became ju- nile lead in Lois Weber pictures, ayed other leads and finally was afted. He entered the U. S. otor Transport Service where he mained for 27 months. After e war he played other parts, in- uding one of the leads in "The ride's Play," with Marion Davies d Wyndham Standing for Cos- opolitan.

Finally he did a part in "The id" with Chaplin and his good ork in this brought him the en- gement in Chaplin's recent pic- re, "A Woman of Paris" in hich Miller played his greatest le to date, working for more than ght months therein.

Lawrence Licalzi Joins Ranks of Screen Kids

A boy with a grand opera name ke Lawrence Licalzi should have ramatic talent.

Lawrence's father was a vaude- ille theatre owner in Chicago, New Orleans and Butte. Licalzi is talian and his wife is Irish. Law- ence was born in the atmosphere f the theatre and during the elev- n years of his life this close as- ociation with the theatre has add- d to his natural dramatic talent.

In "Misunderstood," the J. K. McDonald production which Wm. Beaudine is directing for First Na- ional, Lawrence interprets the dif- icult role of the juvenile hero's oil. He entered films five years go, and first drew the attention f the dramatic critics for his work n the Wm. Fox production, "Three Good Pals," later coming to the front as a child artist in "Rupert f Hentzau" and "Robin Hood."

Young Licalzi is a talented pi- anist and has a good tenor voice.

Lillian Leighton has completed her role in "The Call of the Can- yon" for Lasky and is preparing to start work on another big fea- ture.

Mickey McBan and Muriel Mac- Cormac, well-known screen kiddies, are playing in "Hard Rock," which is being filmed at Universal under the direction of Robert Bradbury. Jack Hoxie is the featured player. In two previous pictures, Gasnier's "Poor Men's Wives" and with Dustin Farnum in "The Man Who Won," these youngsters enacted roles as twins, but in the current production they simply appear together "untwinned."

Helene Finishes Stahl Film

Helene Chadwick, who has been characterizing the "Home," and not the "Why" in the John M. Stahl production for Mayer, entitled "Why Men Leave Home," will complete her engagement this week and return to the Goldwyn studio where she is under contract.

During the filming of the Stahl picture, which has taken six weeks to photograph, Miss Chadwick has been married twice to the same man, Lewis Stone, and has gone on as many cinematic honeymoons.

According to the rule that "The first shall be last," their first wedding scene will be the last shots taken for the picture.

Never before in motion picture history has an honor so distinguished been conferred upon any motion picture as that just bestowed on Richard Walton Tully's most recent production "Trilby," a current First National Picture.

Out of all the films made in all countries, Tully's "Trilby" was selected by the British government to be presented under the patronage of the King and royalty in every theatre in England for the purpose of assisting the $25,000,000.00 fund for the hospital for war veterans.

Mr. Tully, who is now deep in his preparation of the scenario for "Flowing Gold," the Rex Beach novel which is to be his next production, is being deluged with wires and letters of congratulation.

Cullen Landis, who has no such thing as watches in his young life, being engaged in two pictures at the same time, has a maturer cast of countenance in the Ince production, "The Girl of the Limberlost," for he has graduated from a university and has been in the unromantic business world for two years. It is the "oldest" straight role he has yet played. His nights are spent at the Metro Studios where he has the juvenile lead in "The Man Whom Life Passed By."

For the first time since completing her part in Mack Sennett's latest feature production, "The Extra Girl," Miss Mabel Normand, the star, returned to the big comedy lot for the purpose of exchanging ideas with F. Richard Jones, production manager for Sennett, and also Miss Normand's personal director.

"D. W." Wants To Know Horse's Color

America doesn't know the color of its best known horse, the one ridden by Paul Revere when he made his famous ride to Lexington and Concord to warn the Colonists.

Because of such inaccuracy in historical records, the motion picture industry has taken steps for the foundation of an independent historical research bureau, under the direction of Will H. Hays.

Historians have told the main events, but nowhere is there any authentic record of exactly how things looked. For instance, when D. W. Griffith wanted to know what sort of wagons were used with the northern armies during the Revolutionary War, not a single historical record described them.

As the motion picture industry is planning to make a great number of historical films with absolutely accurate details, the pictorial vagueness of the histories must be corrected, and it is for this purpose that the producers will jointly subscribe for the research bureau.

Griffith already has spent hundreds of dollars seeking to learn the color of Paul Revere's horse for the scenes in his next production "America." Mr. Edwin B. Worthen, president of the Lexington Historical Society declares there is no available record, although it is known the horse was not white as pictured in illustrations. Griffith's research department is now conducting search through personal correspondence of that period.

Gains Fame In Mother Roles

Mary Alden once more takes her place at the head of the ranks of screen mothers. Particularly impressive is her characterization in Mr. Mayer's presentation of Reginald Barker's version of Blanche Upright's novel, "The Valley of Content," which will be released by Metro under the title of "Pleasure Mad." In this feature production Miss Alden portrays the role of what many people will agree is the ideal type of American mother—the mother of unflinching fidelity to her family, the mother who clings to old-fashioned creeds when her loved ones are in danger from their own errors.

Miss Alden's career has been most interesting. She is a recruit from the ranks of journalists, having followed her writing bent in both New York and San Francisco. However, when a chance came to go on the stage, she embraced it without a moment's delay and this led to her winning the role of a mulatto housekeeper in David Wark Griffith's immortal production "The Birth of a Nation," to which the popular delineator of matronly roles owes so much of her success.

By the time the year 1920 had rolled around and she had supported Will Rogers in one of his notable screen successes, Miss Alden had won the distinction of being called "The foremost mother of the films." She has retained this reputation ever since, until now she is in demand every time a mother role of any kind comes up.

Some of her more outstanding successes were scored in support of Richard Barthelmess in "The Bond Boy," with Blanche Sweet in "The Unpardonable Sin" and in "The Old Nest." Later she was presented as a star in her own rights in "A Woman's Woman," and now she comes back to her great following of admirers in what is claimed to be even a greater mother role than any of its predecessors' This appearance in "Pleasure Mad" is said to be the zenith in artists characterization on her part.

Mae Murray Is Real Style Mentor

Mae Murray does not keep abreast of the styles.

She keeps ahead of them.

From four to six months, sometimes a year, separate the filming of the first scene of a motion picture production from its first public screen showing. This means that the people who are responsible for the clothes worn by the players in a picture must figure a long time ahead.

For "Fashion Row," her newest production for Metro as for all her previous pictures, Miss Murray designed all her gowns.

Keeping a half year ahead of the styles is no easy task but it is not as difficult for Miss Murray as it probably would be for anyone who had given the problem no previous thought. Designing gowns has been Miss Murray's avocation for years and she has arrived at the point where she can forecast with uncanny accuracy just what modes will receive the stamp of popular approval six months hence.

"Styles move in cycles as does almost everything," said Miss Murray. "A glance through the family album will show that the bodice effects and full skirts that are popular today were in style decades ago. During the last few years we have seen even modified bustles and hoop skirts come into fashion. By watching this thing closely one develops a sixth sense that guesses what will be next."

Theodore von Eltz in finding considerable humor in his role of a captain of industry in Universal's "The Turmoil." As "Jim Sheridan," whose empire is the business world, Mr. von Eltz in the four weeks since he began the new role, has worked one day. However, there are plenty of scenes coming up any day for him and also he can look forward to his death which is on the program. Since signing for "The Turmoil" Mr. von Eltz has had several offers from different producers.

Pulse of the Studios

For Week Starting Monday, Oct. 22, 1923

Camera! intends to keep the Pulse of the Studios accurate in every detail. You can help by reporting any error to Pulse Editor, 439-869

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
BERWILLA STUDIO. 5821 Santa Monica Blvd. Ashton Dearholt, Pro. Mgr.						Holly 313
Eddie Lyons Productions (Arrow release).
Eddie Lyons	Eddie Lyons	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Eugene De Rue	Bobby Dunn	Ramsey	Cooke	Collins	2-Reel Comedies	Schedule
Ben Wilson Productions (Federated release)
Rosson	Mildred Davis	Linden-Stevens	McGaugh	Jules Furthman	"Where is Polly	2nd Week
Dearholt Productions.
Neva Gerber Productions
BRENTWOOD STUDIO. 4811 Fountain Ave.						598-14
BRONX STUDIO. 1745-51 Glendale Blvd. Kenneth Bishop, General Mgr.						Drexel 190
H. & B. Film Co.
Tenny Wright	All-Star	Bill Beckway			"Tango Trails"	Preparing
BELASCO PRODUCTIONS, INC. 6912 Hollywood Blvd.
Jas. Young	All-Star	Special	G. P. Saum	C. O. Seessel	"Welcome Stranger"	Preparing
FRED CALDWELL PRODUCTIONS. 4513 Sunset Blvd.						59357
Fred Caldwell	All-Star	Hollister	Rounsaville	J. S. Woodhouse	"Hollywood 1900"	Preparing
CENTURY STUDIO. 6100 Sunset Blvd. Julius Stĕrn, Gen. Mgr. Bert Sternback, Casting.						Holly 009
Century Comedies (Universal release).
Al. Herman	Pal	Billy Williams	Sherry Pansey	Al. Herman	"The Rich Pup"	1st Week
A. E. Gillstrom	Buddy Messinger	Victor Sherrick	Leslie Goodwin		"Boys Will Be Boys"	1st Week
Bob Kerr	Earle McCoy	Wm. Hyers	A. Linkoff	Bob Kerr	'The Process Server"	1st Week
CHAPLIN STUDIO. Alfred Reeves, Gen. Mgr. 1416 La Brea Ave.						Holly 407
CHOICE STUDIO. 6044 Sunset Blvd.						439-76
CHRISTIE STUDIOS. Harry Edwards, Casting. 6101 Sunset. C. H. Christie, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 310
Al Christie	Bobbie Vernon	Nagy	Hagerman	Frank Conklin	2-Reel Comedy	6th Week
Scott Sidney	Dorothy Devore	Peterson-Garnett	Clemens	Robt. Hall	2-Reel Comedy	2nd Week
COSMOSART STUDIO. 3700 Beverly Blvd. J. E. Bowen, Gen. Mgr. Frank M. Willard, Studio Mgr.						Drexel 211
CULVER CITY STUDIO. Ralph M. DeLacy, Mgr. 6529 Venice Blvd. Culver City.						Culver City 54
Renalles, Inc. Clarke Renalle, Director General. Frederick Bond, Asst. Managing Director
Frederick Bond	All-Star		Staff		"The Elk's Tooth"	Preparing
			Harry A. Swart		"Purple Bath Tub"	Preparing
DARRELL-MOUNIER STUDIO. J. F. Mounier, Gen. Mg						Washington and Ince Blvds., Culver Cit
Darrell-Mounier Productions
Darrell	Robt. Ramsey	Allen Davie	Chas. Kerr		Feature	Preparing
H. Davey	Edna Mae Cooper		Sturtevant	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Preparing
FINE ARTS STUDIOS. 4500 Sunset Blvd. E. H. Allen, Gen. Mgr. Scotty Cleethorpe, Casting.						598-16
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Mermaid Comedies)
Hibbard	Lige Conley	Corby	Sharpless	Staff	Comedy	7th Week
Jack White Corp. (Educational Release) (Novelty Juveniles)
Lloyd Hamilton Corp. (Educational Release)
Pratt	Lloyd Hamilton	McGill	Dewar	Staff	Special	3rd Week
FOX STUDIO. James Ryan, Casting. 1401 N. Western Ave. Fred Kley, Studio Mgr.						Holly 300
Al St. John	Al St. John	Ernest S. Depew	Benny Stoloff	Al St. John	Comedies	Schedule
Jim Summerville	Stock	J. A. Schmidt	Arthur Cohn	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Roland V. Lee	All-Star	D. Keefe	Geo. Post	Don Lee	"Gentle Julia"	7th Week
Noel Smith	Earl Rodney	Byrn Hauck		Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Tom Buckingham	All-Star	Sid Wagner	Kingling	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Seiler Carruth	Chimpanzees	R. Tennant	Mark Sanderich	Staff	Comedies	Schedule
Lambert Hillyer	Tom Mix	Van Clark	Manter		"Eyes of the Forest"	4th Week
Edmund Mortimer	John Gilbert	J. Short	W. Mayo	Harrison Jacobs	"The Beast"	4th Week
David Soloman	Shirley Mason	Schneiderman	Birnoudi	Fannie & Fred Hatton	"With the Tide"	4th Week
Wm. Wellman	Chas. Jones	Joe August	Horace Hough		"Andy McGee's Chorus Girl"	3rd Week
Geo. Archainbaud	All-Star	Jules Cronjager	Hollingshead	Fannie & Fred Hatton	"The Shadow of the East"	2nd Week
FRANCIS FORD STUDIO. 6040 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 263
GARSON STUDIOS. 1845 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 005
GOLDSTONE STUDIO. 1426 Beechwood Dr.						Holly 269
Phil Goldstone Productions. (State Rights release).
Duke Worne	Wm. Fairbanks	Rolland Price	A. Tenbrook		"Thicker Than Water"	2nd Week
GRAND STUDIO. 1438 Gower St. Ben Verschleiser, General Manager.						Holly 016
Monte Banks Productions, Inc.
Sid Smith Productions, Inc.
Joe Rock Productions.
Bryant Washburn Productions.
Elliott Dexter in R. Wm. Neil Production.
Thornby-Newman Productions.
GOLDWYN STUDIO. R. B. McIntyre, Casting. Culver City.						76171
Emmett Flynn	All-Star	Lucien Audriot	Ray Flynn	Carey-Wilson	"Nellie, the Cloak Model"	4th Week
Alan Crosland	All-Star	Jory Mescall	Lynn Shores	Carey Wilson	"Three Weeks"	4th Week

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS. 6640 Santa Monica Blvd. Wm. Sistrom, Gen. Mgr.						Holly 1431
Harold Lloyd Corporation.—Wm. R. Fraser, Gen. Mgr.
Taylor-Newmeyer	H. Lloyd	Lundin	Robt. A. Golden		"The Girl Expert"	10th Week
Creative Productions. Wm. H. Carr, Production Mgr.
J. K. McDonald Productions.
Wm. Beaudine	All-Star	H. Thorpe	Geo. Webster		"Misunderstood"	7th Week
Renaud Hoffman Productions.
Renaud Hoffman	All-Star	Mackenzie	Glen Belt		"Maud Muller"	Editing
Cosmopolitan Productions.
Beverley Productions.
Irving Productions. Jas. Dent, Prod. Mgr.
Halperin Productions.
Halperin-Wallace	All-Star	A. Wyckoff	H. Young	Halperin	"Souvenir"	1st Week
HORSLEY OFFICE BLDG., 1442 Beachwood Dr.
Bob Horner Productions (Independent release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.						438-740
Bob Horner	Geo. Chesebro	Chas. Fetty	M. Pool		"The Isles of Paradise"	6th Week
Chas. R. Seeling Productions. (Aywon release). 1442 Beachwood Drive.
Sanford Productions.
Mattison	Mattison-V. Rich	E. Dyer	R. Sanford	Staff	"The Ragged Robin"	Preparing
Kinemart Productions. B. Schrader, Casting. 1442 Beachwood Drive.						439-561
Byron Schrader	All-Star	Jim Clansey			Playlets	Schedule
ROY HUGHES PRODUCTIONS. 840 S. Olive. SHADOWLAND RELEASE.
Roy Hughes	Leavens Hale	J. MacFarland			"Ashes of Waste"	Arizona Location
INCE STUDIO. Horace Williams, Casting. Clark W. Thomas, Gen. Mgr. Culver City						761731
Gene Stratton Porter Productions.
J. Leo Meehan	All-Star	Howard Anderson	Jeanett Porter	Gene S. Porter	"The Girl of the Limberlost"	3rd Week
Assoc. Authors, Inc.
Thomas H. Ince Corporation.
Del Andrews	All-Star			Will Lambert	"The Galloping Fish"	1st Week
Bruce Mitchell Productions.
Mitchell	Kirkwood Lee	Steve Norton	Erickson	Elliott Clawson	"Painted Women"	4th Week
BUSTER KEATON STUDIO. 1025 Lillian Way. Eddie Cline, Casting						Holly 2814
LASKY STUDIOS. Tom White, Casting. 1520 Vine St.						Holly 2400
Paramount Pictures. (Famous Players-Lasky Release.)
Herb Brennon	Pola Negri	Jos. Howe	H. Schwartz		"My Man"	5th Week
Wm. DeMille	All-Star	Guy Wilky	Geo. Hippard	Clara Berangee	"Every Day Love"	5th Week
Geo. Melford	All-Star	Chas. Clark	Fred Robertson	Jack Cunningham	"Flaming Barriers"	6th Week
Clifford S. Smith	W. S. Hart	Warren Reeves	Dick Rush	J. G. Hawks	"Singer Jim McKee"	2nd Week
Sam Wood Productions.
Sam Wood	All-Star		John Waters	Monte Katterjohn	"The Next Corner"	1st Week
Zane Grey Productions.
Victor Fleming	Dix-Wilson	James Howe	Gilroy	Doris Schroeder	"The Call of the Canyon"	11th Week
James Cruze Productions
James Cruze	All-Star	Vernon Keays	Karl Brown	Walter Woods	"To the Ladies"	Editing
Irvin Willat Productions.
Irvin Willat	All-Star	Chas. Schoenbaum	Otto Brower	Albert S. LeVine	"The Heritage of the Desert"	3rd Week
McNAMARA STUDIOS. 4011 Lankershim Blvd.						Lankershim 132-J
L. B. MAYER STUDIO. 5360 Melrose Ave.						431-171
Fred Niblo Productions.
Fred Niblo	All-Star	V. Milner	Dorian Cox	Bess Meredith	"Thy Name Is Woman"	4th Week
MAYER-SCHULBERG STUDIO. 3800 Mission Rd. Individual Casting.						Capitol 2120
Louis B. Mayer Productions. (Metro Release).
Reginald Barker	All-Star		Harry Schenck	J. G. Hawks	"Cape Cod Folks"	9th Week
John M. Stahl	All-Star		Sidney Algier	A. G. Younger	"Why Men Leave Home"	8th Week
B. P. Schulberg Productions (Preferred Pictures Release)
Vic Schertzinger	All-Star	Karl Struss	George Yohalem	Eve Unsell	"The Boomerang"	Preparing
METRO STUDIO. Romaine and Cahuenga Ave. Harry Kerr, Casting.						Holly 4485
Harold Shaw	All-Star	Georges Rizard	Nat Watts	Thos. Hopkins	"The Living Past"	6th Week
Victor Schertzinger	All-Star	Chet Lyon		V. Schertzinger	"Man Whom Life Passed By"	7th Week
Rex Ingram Productions. (Metro release)
Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.
Allen Holubar Productions.
Allen Holubar	All-Star	Haskins			"The Human Mill"	5th Week
NATIONAL STUDIO. 1116 Lodi St.						Holly 4470
Technicolor M. P. Corp. C. A. Willat, Mgr.
J. A. Ball		Ray Rennahan	Geo. A. Cave		Color Photography	Schedule
PICKFORD-FAIRBANKS STUDIOS. Individual Casting. 7100 Santa Monica Blvd.						Holly 7901
United Artists Release.
Raoul Walsh	Douglas Fairbanks	Arthur Edeson	J. T. O'Donahue	Staff	"The Thief of Bagdad"	18th Week
Geo. Hill	Jack Pickford		Held	Staff	"Valley of the Wolf"	12th Week
Marshall Neilan	Mary Pickford	Rosher		Staff	"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall"	1st Week
PRINCIPAL PICTURE CORP. 7250 Santa Monica.						Holly 2806
Louis Tolhurst				Walter Anthony	Microscopic Motion Pictures	Schedule
R-C STUDIO. Melrose and Gower. 780 Gower St.						Holly 7780
Individual Productions. (Film Booking Offices.)
Al Santel	Geo. O'Hara	Lee Garmes	Moreno	Beatrice Van	'Midsummer Night's Scream"	1st Week
James Horne	All-Star	Jos. Du Bray			'Jack of Diamonds"	1st Week
Chester Bennett Productions.
Douglas MacLean Productions
JEAN RILEY STUDIO. E. G. Walker, Mgr. 6701 Santa Monica Blvd.						579-440
Rynearson	All-Star	Bill Severin		Riley	"Light of the World"	Casting

Director	Star	Cameraman	Ass't Director	Scenarist	Type	Progress
ROACH STUDIO. Culver City. Warren Doane, Mgr.						761-721
Hal Roach Comedies (Pathe release).
Jackman	All-Star	Floyd Jackman	W. L. Guthrie	Staff	Feature	Schedule
Jas. A. Howe	Will Rogers	Robt. Doran	Ross Lederman	Staff	2-Reel Comedy
Len Powers	Animals	B. Currigan	Vreland	Staff	1-Reel Comedy
James Parrot	Chas. Chase	Ed Willatt	Leo. McCarey	Staff	1-Reel Comedy
Mark Goldaine	Our Gang	Harry Gelstad	C. Morehouse	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Fred Guiol	Stat Family	Nick Barrows	Floyd Frank	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
Geo. Jeske	Stan Laurel	Frank Young	L. E. Dill	Staff	2-Reel Comedy	Schedule
RAY STUDIO. Albert A. Kidder, Jr., Gen'l Mgr. 1425 Fleming St.						598-141
RUSSELL STUDIO. B. D. Russell, Mgr. 1439 Beachwood Dr.						Holly 7945
Logan-Baynham Productions.
C. W. Patton Productions. H. F. MacPherson, Mgr.
Geo. B. Seitz	Murphy Miller	Walker Cooper		Bob Dillon	"The Deer Slayer"	2nd Week
Hercules Film Prods., Inc.
Jack Nelson	Jack Pollo	McManigal	Joe Kane	Staff	"Pals"	Casting
H. J. Brown Productions
Al. Rogell	Fred Thompson	Ross Fisher	Curley Dresden		"North of Nevada"	4th Week
Maloford Productions.
Leo Maloney	Leo Maloney	Bataracca	Stratton	Ford Beebe		Preparing
Howard Davies Productions.
SENNETT STUDIO. 1712 Glendale Blvd.						Drexel 1550
Mack Sennett Comedies. (First National Release).
Roy Delruth	All-Star			Staff	"Look Pleasant"	3rd Week
Earl Kenton	All-Star			Staff	"The Lighthouse"	Editing
Del Lord	All-Star			Staff		1st Week
SUNSET PRODUCTIONS. 7425 Sunset Blvd.
Grover Jones	Kenneth McDonald	Longenecker	Murray Rock	Grover Jones	"The Trouble Breaker"	2nd Week
UNITED STUDIOS. 5341 Melrose. M. C. Levee, Pres.						Holly 4080
Frank Borzage Productions, Arthur H. Jacobs Corp. (First National release.)
Joseph M. Schenck Productions. (First National release)
F. Borzage	Norma Talmadge	Tony Gaudio	O. O. Dull		"Secrets"	Preparing
First National Productions.
C. Badger	Coleen Moore	Berquist	O'Brien	Montagne	"The Swamp Angel"	3rd Week
Maurice Tourneur Productions.
Frank Lloyd Productions (First National Release)
UNIVERSAL STUDIO. Fred Datig, Casting.						433-131
Universal Film Manufacturing Co. (Universal Release.)
Wm. Craft	Desmond-Sedgwick		McDonough Koehner		"Beasts of Paradise"	Schedule
Jay Marchant	Morrison Morris		Ray Taylor		"The Ghost City"	5th Week
Harry Pollard	Reginald Denny		F. Messinger		"The Spice of Life"	Editing
Irving Cummings	Mary Philbin		Woolstenhume		"My Mamie Rose"	8th Week
Wm. Duncan	Duncan-Johnson		Don Clark	Duncan	"The Fast Express"	4th Week
Ed. Sedgwick	Hoot Gibson	Miller	Wm. Tummel	Sedgwick	"The Hook and Ladder"	Editing
C. Brown	All-Star		Ernest Laemmle		"Signal Tower"	1st Week
Jess Robbins	Baby Peggy		J. Sullivan		"Right To Love"	Editing
Hobart Henley	All-Star		A. Smith		"The Turmoil"	9th Week
Eddie Cline	Reginald Denny				"Love Insurance"	Preparing
Perley P. Sheehan	All-Star				"Innocent"	1st Week
Robt. Hill	Herbert Rawlinson		I. Ashey		"Jack O'Clubs"	1st Week
Robt. B. Bradbury	Jack Hoxie		V. Nordlinger		"Hard Rock"	2nd Week
Sedgwick	Hoot Gibson		Billy Tummel		"Courting Calamity"	Preparing
VITAGRAPH STUDIOS. 1708 Talmadge. W. S. Smith, Gen. Mgr.						598-131
Dave Smith Productions.
David Smith	All-Star	Steve Smith, Jr.	Wm. Dagwell		'A Tale of Red Roses"	1st Week
Larry Semon Productions.
WARNER BROS. STUDIOS, 5842 Sunset Blvd.						Holly 4181
Warner Brothers Productions.
Wm. A. Seiter	Marsh-Gillingwater	John Stumar	Tenny Wright		"Daddies"	4th Week
Harry Beaumont	John Barrymore	Dave Abel	Frank Strayer		"Beau Brummel"	3rd Week
Sidney Franklin Productions.
Ernest Lubitsch Productions.
Ernst Lubitsch	All-Star	Chas. Van Enger	Flood Blanke		"The Marriage Circle"	10th Week
Harry Rapf Productions.
	All-Star				"Broadway After Dark"	Preparing
WALDORF STUDIOS. 6070 Sunset Blvd. Harry Cohn, Mgr.						Holly 7940
E. J. Le Saint	All-Star		Geo. H. Reehm		"Innocence"	Editing
Howard Mitchell	Jas. Kirkwood	King Gray	Roland Asher	J. Stormwasser	"Discontented Husbands"	1st Week
WORLD EDUCATIONAL FILMS CINEMATOUR. Box 818, Station "C," Los Angeles
Eliason	Baby Betty	Wm. Field	F. M. Abbey	Robinson	26 1-Reel Globe Trots	Preparing

DR. W. L. SCHUSTER
Chiropractor—Nerve Specialist
"Where the sick go to get well"
203 Bogardus Bldg., Sunset at Western
Hours 10 to 12; 2 to 5 Phone 436-724

CALLS DAY AND NIGHT
H. W. WALL, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
6548 HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD
430-205; 431-339; or Holly 102-82.

SUNSET TAXI TOURING CARS $2 PER HOUR
SPECIAL RATES ON STUDIO TRIPS AND TOURING

Universal City	$1.00	Club Royal	3.00
Mayer Studios	2.50	Culver City	2.00
Holly-Fairbanks	.75	United Studios	1.00
Fox Studios	.75	Robertson-Cole	.75
Lasky Studios	.75	Metro Studios	.75
Santa Monica	3.50	Ambassador Hotel	1.50
Pasadena	4.00	Venice	4.00
All Stations	2.50	Center of Los Angeles	2.00
		Plantation	3.00

578-307 1720 Hudson Ave. 430-258

"Phon-O-Grams"

Edited by Gene Woolway

Alton Brown
Juvenile Leads
Holly 6988

Charlotte DuPuis
Ingenue-Characters
439-869

Kenneth Gibson
Juvenile Leads 578-311

Mary Ruby
Ingenue
594-774

Donna Hale
Starring in
Roy Hughes Prod.

Bert Sprotte
Characters
741-64

BOB REEL McKEE
439-796

WINDSOR ART STUDIO,
SHAWLS,—large assortment.
Special Material for Costumes.
139 1/2 Larchmont Blvd.

Standard Adds Service

For several months we have noted, with growing interest, the progress of the Standard Directory. It is doing a big thing for the motion picture industry in the establishment of a central registration headquarters, announcement of which was made in the past fortnight. Here everyone in the business will be recorded, and their names, addresses and phone numbers kept on file, without charge, thus enabling producers, directors and all others interested to promptly and easily locate desired people.

Along with this service several new departments have been added to the Directory, affording representation to branches of the industry which have heretofore been neglected. Under their proper classifications will be found musicians, orchestras, film editors, title writers, continuity writers, scenarists, cameramen and electricians. In the next issue, which goes to press the 30th of this month, the assistant directors will be included.

The staff of the Standard Directory is headed by A. Ohmer Ridgway, Editor; Ellwood E. Hopkins, Jr., General Manager; and W. S. Bonnell, Publicity Manager. The efficient manner in which this valued index has been issued is most commendable, and speaks well for the continued progress and inevitable expansion of this publication.

Laurence Trimble, director, trainer and "pal" of the wonder dog, "Strongheart," is en route to New York City with his latest screen masterpiece, "The Love Master," which critics who have seen it declare is an even greater picture than "The Silent Call," or "Brawn of the North," Strongheart's first two features. Trimble, who was accompanied by Prof. Fred L. Wilson of the University of Nevada, will make a short stop at Las Vegas, Nevada, where he will look at some horses in which he and Prof. Wilson are interested.

With new bus lines every week, and trolley lines being extended, Jack White unintentionally adds his bit to the traffic confusion when he takes out on Vermont Avenue the street car which he had built in the studio for use in the current Mermaid comedy, directed by Fred Hibbard.

So realistic is the car, which is mounted on a gasoline truck chassis, that as it trundles to and from the location, with a few actors inside, it is constantly being hailed by persons who think it the newest addition to Los Angeles' transportation facilities.

Real street cars are also being used, but Mr. White built a car to make possible several comedy "gags" which could not be worked on a borrowed car.

David H. Thompson, First National production manager, goes East for conference with home office executives. He carries with him master print and negative of "Flaming Youth."

The constantly increasing audiences here attest to the supremacy of our programs. We are exerting every effort to give you clean, snappy boxing.

Hollywood Stadium
Hollywood Boulevard at El Centro Ave.

R. K. EARLE
CONSULTING ENGINEER
LICENSED SURVEYOR
619 Citizens National Bank Building
Phone 823-681

BRUNO
Publicity Photos
Professional Photos
Casting Director Photos
6412 HOLLYWOOD BLVD.
Telephone 431-929

LOCAL — SEMI-NATIONAL
PUBLICITY FOR PERSONAL APPEARANCE
POSITIVELY PUTS PICTURE PEOPLE IN PERMANENT PUBLIC FAVOR
Write for particulars, or see
GENE WOOLWAY
P. O. Box 176, Hollywood Station
Or, in care of
Camera!
2nd. Floor, 6318 Hollywood Blvd.,
HOLLYWOOD Calif.
PHONE 439-869
FULL-NATIONAL — INTERNATIONAL

Rare Antiques from the Far East
Oriental Costume Co.
6223 Santa Monica Blvd. Holly 5954

All Legal Matters
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law
JACK P. LEONARD
340 Douglas Bldg. Consultation Free
Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone 659-42

ANNOUNCEMENT

Dr. A. L. Jester

Famous chiropractor, just returned from 3 years chiropractic missionary service in Germany offers his services to the movie people of Hollywood at reduced rates.
No charge for first consultation.

5558 Hollywod Blvd., Rm. 202-203
Hours 10-12—2-5, Evenings 7-8.

COY WATSON, JR.

CHILD LEADS

Age 10. Drexel 3616

Hugh Hoffman

Scenarist and Production Supervisor
Gladys Walton unit, Universal.
Current production, "The Near Lady"
Herbert Blaché, Directing
Recent Releases, "Gossip." "Crossed Wires." "The Town Scandal." "Sawdust." "The Untameable." "The Wild Party."

Reproductions, Still Finishing Publicity Photography

LITTLE

Commercial Photographer

Phone 437902
5874 Hollywood Blvd. Corner Bronson

ART LEE

SPECIALIST ON MAKE-UP
Will teach you how to Make Up Correctly. Read my references
Telephone 598-207
1712 St. James Court, Hollywood, at Western

MARION WARDE

Acting and Make-Up for the Stage and Films

Classical, Character, Ballet and Step-dancing

423-4 MUSIC ARTS BUILDING
233 SOUTH BROADWAY
PHONE 821-181

Walter Frederick Seely

Shadowed Photography
1448 North Wilcox
(One-half block west of Cahuenga at Sunset.) Telephone 439-774

"Megaphone"

(Continued from Page 5)

City for one reel leading roles two years ago and has rapidly mounted the ladder of success. Other players are Hallam Cooley, Ed Kennedy, Leo White, Lucille Ward and C. L. Sherwood.

"The Turmoil," Booth Tarkington's classic being filmed by the Universal Pictures corporation as a Hobart Henley production, presents the atmosphere of the rich, the newly rich and the not-yet-rich. For the really wealthy homes Jack Lawton, location manager, picked out "shooting" sites for Mr. Henley in Pasadena.

George Hackathorne, Emmett Corrigan, Eleanor Boardman, Eileen Percy, Pauline Garon, Theodore Von Eltz, Edward Hearn, Bert Roach, Kenneth Gibson, Buddy Messenger, Johnny Fox and others are portraying the principal roles in the Jewel transcription of "The Turmoil."

Editing is nearing completion on "The Storm Daughter," the Universal-Jewel production directed by George Archainbaud with Priscilla Dean in the starring role. It is a spectacular story of the sea, written by Leete Renick Brown and scenarized by Edward Montaigne. Thomas Santschi, William B. Davidson, Cyril Chadwick, J. Farrell McDonald, Bert Roach, and other players handled remaining principal roles.

The old Bowery, quaint reminder of the romantic days of Chuck Connors, Steve Brodie and Barney Flynn, lives again. Its queer people, its stirring feuds and its bizarre customs have stepped from the pages of a book, and time's clock has turned back a quarter-century, at Universal City, where the old street has been built and peopled for Mary Philbin's new picture, "My Mamie Rose."

A visit to the street is an adventure. It recalls the old-time songs—"A Bicycle Built for Two," "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" and others that our parents used to warble. It recalls the quaint adventures of "Chimmie Fadden," one wanders along the street and gazes admiringly at the noble sign that proclaims the alcoholic emporium of Steve Brodie, who took a chance and thundered down the years to immortal fame. One may lounge before the queer resort where Owen Kildare held forth—where he dreamed his dreams and evolved the story of Mamie Rose, the girl who brought about his regeneration, and whose novel, the story of his own life, and almost a classic, is the motive power behind the queer illusion built at Universal City.

The old Bowery, thru song and story, has become a romantic myth, and all America looks back on it with affection. Its sinister side is forgotten;—lost in the glamor of romance are its dives and its gangsters, its feuds and gunmen, is vices and its tragedies. It has become a sort of romantic haze of old-time songs and old-time traditions of modern Robin Hoods and musketeers of Ala Dumas in brown derbies.

That's the Bowery one encounters at Universal City—for it stimulates the imagination.

The quaint street was built from old photographs and memories of many at the big studio who knew it of yore. Irving Cummings, the director, saw it as a boy. His memories augmented the photos. Perley Poore Sheehan, the novelist, when a youthful cub reporter on the New York World, used to buy beer in Flynn's and Brodie's His suggestions were added to the mass of material that Elmer Sheeley, who designed the huge set, used to lay out the street. The photographs were r-markably complete. The interior of Flynn's saloon, with its thousands of pictures of popular fighters and the redoubtable Benicia Boy in the central place of honor, its great Tom and Jerry bowl and the rest of the accoutrements, were reproduced exactly as they stood long before Volstead was dreamed of.

The Elevated—with the puffing little steam trains that antedated the electric trains of today. overhangs the street and purs its human cataract into the eddying crowds.

At night the windows are lighted—a delicate bit of electrical engineering by Arthur E. Shadur, chief engineer of the studio. It is interesting to know that the street requires more light than "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" did—for every window on the street is lighted while in the ancient Paris set flat light was thrown against walls with no interiors to illuminate.

The people of the street are more important than the street itself. Every type of the old Bowery had to be found and placed. There are odd pushcart venders, queer Semetic clothing merchants and pawnshop keepers, women of the period in their big sleeves and queer hats;—bloomer girls riding bicycles, then the ultra modern fad, and Bowery toughs in their short coats, big buttons and derby hats, swagger about the street.

In this nondescript population of several hundred the quaint characters of the story again enact the life Owen of Kildare. Pat O'Malley, as the gangster of the story, is the dramatic reincarnation of the author; Mary Philbin in her queer little costume of long ago, a frail, appealing wisp of humanity, crosses the street to the elevated station, and one marvels that all this is illusion, all this labor and all this thought was expended to center around this diminutive girl still in her teens, whose face on the screen can make millions smile or weep.

The Bowery at Universal City is primarily a technical triumph; it has enlisted every aid of modern science to reproduce a day long dead, and has done it so convincingly that its folk actually live again. In actuality the illusion is complete; those who have been privileged to see the scenes in the making are still marveling. On the screen it will be even more convincing.

It is interesting in that it is a bit of pictorial history of what is perhaps America's most romantic tradition. It marks a chapter in the growth of the largest city in the world; it shows one stage of the evolution of a metropolis.

And—it adds a new chapter to the history of the motion picture.

A daring departure in motion picture direction; perhaps one of the most daring in years, is under way at Universal City, where Perley Poore Sheehan, famous novelist, has started work on the production of "Innocent." The story is his own, he is to direct it, and—each actor in the cast will create his or her own role. Every member of the cast so far as possible, will be a college graduate, but this does not mean that the story is "highbrow." In fact the characters are the most elemental of people; mountain folk from the hills of Alabama, none able to read or write, and capable of only the most elemental mental processes.

"That is why college trained actors are needed," explains Sheehan. "They have to revert to the absolute primitive for this play; we of today are so far away from the elemental that the untrained mind cannot grasp it. It takes education to play a character absolutely without it."

But the plan to seek college trained actors is incidental to the plan for the production. The first thing to be done when the cast is assembled will be a reading of the play, just as Belasco does with a stage play. Sheehan will read and explain the story to the cast, then each member will receive a copy of the script. Each actor will then form a conception of the part to be played, work out the details or make-up and gradually work up a counterpart of the character as he or she sees it.

"This has been done on the stage for fifty years," said Sheehan, "And, so far the absolutely accepted procedure in drama has been ignored in pictures. Usually in pictures the actor does not know the story, he is brought on, scene after scene, told to 'look to left' or 'smile,' and go thru the routine like automatons.

"Megaphone"

"On the stage each artist analyzes the part and forms a conception of it; thus it is a convincing work. That is what we are going to do in the new picture; put the show business back into pictures."

The new picture will be a melodrama, but Sheehan plans to have it acted in such a manner that it will not smack of the usual in any manner. It is a story of primitive folk with a new twist, and considerable curiosity is being manifested by directors as to how the author of "The House With A Bad Name" and other noted novels will handle the tale. Sheehan is known to picturedom as the adapter of Hugo's "Hunchback of Notre Dame" to the screen, and as the scenarist of a number of other noted stories. Outside of the work of supervising " The Hunchback" this is his first adventure in production. He will have a remarkable staff in his new picture. Jack Sullivan, who assisted in the direction of the Hugo super production, and who personally handled er mob scenes, and who, as first assistant on "Merry-Go-Round," was the connecting link between Erich von Stroheim and Rupert Julian, will assist Sheehan at the latter's request. Martin Murphy, one of Universal's crack production managers, has been assigned to the picture, and Elmer Sheeley will design the settings.

The cast includes Ed Kennedy, Gladys Hulette and Howard Truesdale.

Howard Gaye, one of the original D. W. Griffith stock company, has recently returned from England, where he played the title role in the Gaumont Film Company's production, "Lord Byron," which was filmed in London. It is interesting to note that practically every member of the original Griffith stock company has achieved noteworthy success in screen history, many now being featured players and stars. Since his return, Mr. Gaye enacted the role of Pharoah in "Tut-Ankh-Amen," and played important parts in "Long Live the King" with Jackie Coogan, and in Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche." He is now playing in "Beau Brummel" at the Warner Bros. studio. This film has John Barrymore, noted stage and screen celebrity in the title role.

Have the movie folk gone real estate mad? Is there an "own your own home" movement afoot in the Hollywood cinema colony? These and other like questions are daily propounded by tourists touring through the film capital as the spieler on the sight seeing bus points out mansion after mansion recently acquired by some prominent screen luminary.

Among the stars and directors who have purchased new homes in Hollywood during the past few months are Charles "Buck" Jones who acquired a showplace on Haywarth street; Oscar Apfel, who but recently took possession of a fine mansion on Loma Linda; Al St. John, who purchased a Whitley Heights residence; William V. Mong, who owns one of the finest homes on Orchid Avenue and Wallace Worsley, who resides at Manhattan Place.

Never before have the motion picture people taken such an active interest in local real estate say the Hollywood dealers and they predict an even more active buying period among the members of the Hollywood picture colony during the ensuing winter months than heretofore.

Jackie Vernon, who recently finished parts in "The Noblest Roman," with Herbert Rawlinson under the direction of William Parke and in Noel Smith's "The Weakling" featuring Henry Murdoch, believes that Stanford University will win the Pacific Coast conference football title this year, giving as his reason the fact "Pop" Worner of Stanford has no equal among football coaches in the country, with the possible exception of the far-famed Knute Rockne of Notre Dame.

Doctors
FORD & FORD
Palmer Graduate
Scientific Spinal Adjustments
Individual Rest Rooms
Office Ground Floor

Anna Mae Ford D.C., Ph. C.
G. Henry Ford D.C., Ph.C.

CHIROPRACTORS
5911 Hollywood Boulevard
10 to 12—2 to 5
Mon., Wed., Friday Evenings, 6 to 8

Hoover Garden Studios
1616 Vine Street
JUST BELOW THE BOULEVARD
HOLLYWOOD

PRONOUNCE IT
"TIMMY-WAY"
THIMMEWAY TITLES
the speedy, economical, error-free process
Paul D. Hugon, General Manager
1123 Lillian Way, Hollywood Holly 1696

"CAMERA!" WANT ADS
GET RESULTS

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell Camera, long term, reasonable rent or will trade for high grade used car. Box J. C. 2, Camera!

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell Camera, 170 Shutter. Phone Hollywood 4070; ask for Mr. Wilson.

I WANT a 5 or 6 room house, small court or flats, Hollywood preferred. If you must sacrifice for quick action, call Drexel 1259 and save agents' commission. Money ready.

FRENCH LESSONS—Succeeds with those who have never succeeded. Box J. C. 4. Camera.

FOR RENT—Bell & Howell camera, 170 degree shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Telephone Met. 4686 days; 829-573 nights and Sundays.

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell Camera. 170 degree Shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Phone Met. 4686 days; 13173 evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell Howell Camera. 170 degree. Telephone 599-464.

BOOKKEEPER—Expert, typist, wants four hours' work daily. $16 per week. Humboldt 3493W. Call after 6, evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell and Howell camera, 170 degrree shutter. Complete Studio Equipment. Phone Met. 4688 days; 13173 evenings.

FOR RENT—Bell Howell Camera, 170 *degree. Tel*ephone 599-464.

TINTED PORTRAITS

of a beautiful velvet-like tone can be made from your regular photographs. The cost is low and there are special rates on fan photos.

EMMA G. HOFFMAN
907 Central Bldg. Phone 142-38

YOUR PHONOGRAPH
will reproduce in soft Mellow Tone Without Scratch and Surface Noises by using a
Deflexograph
Fits any Phonograph or Victrola
Using Changeable Needles.
Play after hours —will not disturb. Deflexograph attaches to needle holder, filters sound oscillations, prevents scratch and surface noises entering sound box. No metallic noises.

GOLD PLATE.....$1.50
(See Cut)
NICKEL PLATE....$1.00
VANTONE CO., Dept. 416
110 W. 15th St. New York, N. Y.

Learn a
Motion Picture Trade
Make big money as a Cameraman, Electrician, Etc.
Get particulars of classes NOW!
1107 NORTH WESTERN AVE.
At Santa Monica Blvd.

Gustatory Genius
John's New Cafe
6382 Hollywood Blvd.

Brown,
Caldwell
& Ladd

317 South Hill St.

100 Per Cent Titles
100 Per Cent Service
At the Right Price!

Dress up that next production with artistic Hand Lettered Titles made by IRVING W. BUNZE.

If you want Perfect Symbolic Art Backgrounds, let us make them! Neil E. McQuire, formerly with Ince and Prizma, does our art work.

For perfect black-and-white titles, try our PROCESS SYSTEM. A telephone call will bring our representative with samples.

Quality Title & Film Company

1442 Beechwood Drive. Holly 4850

FOR PICTURES

PLAYS, BOOKS, ORIGINALS

The
Hollywood Play Bureau
Emmett Corrigan, Mgr.
6404 Hollywood Boulevard
Near Cahuenga. Hollywood, Cal.

LOCATION LUNCHES Holly 7660

KWIK LUNCH

SERVES U RITE

1626 Cahuenga Ave.
1714 Highland Ave. 7560 Sunset Blvd.

WE MOVE THE MOVIES

and Shine on Service

Hollywood 2677 • SAMUEL C. SHINE • 6568 Santa Monica Blvd.
General Trucking and Hauling

Baby Peggy received the second highest rating of her age in a psychology test conducted by the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

This places her in the category of infant prodigies, which is a formidable title for a chubby little girl to carry around. But it does not weigh heavily on this sprightly infant. Baby Peggy is a child gifted with intelligence beyond her years, yes, but lacking in none of the graces of childhood. Hers is a well-rounded character, not abnormally developed in one line at the expense of all others. Such children as these—mathematical marvels and chess wizards—are not prodigies; they are freaks, and seldom reach maturity.

Negotiations for Baby Peggy's first story for Principal Pictures Corporation are being conducted with the publisher, and the title will be announced immediately upon their settlement. Edward F. Cline will direct.

Sigrid Holmquist of the Lasky fold is making her first visit to San Francisco. She left Friday night to spend the week-end there and to attend the California State Tennis tournament. Incidentally, Miss Holmquist is soon to join the ranks of free-lance players, having announced her intention of not renewing her contract which expires within the next few weeks. Her latest role was as the leading feminine character of "The Light That Failed."

Though it is not generally known, Lewis Dayton began his motion picture career with Mary Pickford. This was in the old Biograph days under the direction of D. W. Griffith with the now famous combination of Blanche Sweet, Owen Moore and Mack Sennett. Though he subsequently returned to the English speaking stage and European film productions, he has now returned to the American screen, having appeared during his sojourn here as leading man in five successful film productions.

Previous to her debut in pictures several years ago, Norma Shearer, one of the stars in Reginald Barker's new picture, "Pleasure Mad," was a Montreal society girl. Chosen by art critics as the most beautiful girl in Canada, she was later accorded further honors when she was selected to give a diving and swimming exhibition at one of the exclusive clubs for the Prince of Wales during his first visit to the Dominion.

"The Hunchback Of Notre Dame," is playing to such crowded houses at the Capitol Theatre that it is scoring one of the biggest hits ever made in San Francisco.

Louis H. Tolhurst, the inventor whose microscopic pictures of The Ant and The Bee are creating a sensation all over the country, declares that in his fourth production of the series he will show the world the most unusual motion picture ever screened. It is that of a caterpillar undergoing the transformation from its worm-like form into that of the cocoon stage.

Six hours of constant vigilance were spent by the scientist at his motion picture camera, equipped with its magnifying apparatus, so the complete stages of this transformation are shown—a veritable convulsion of Nature within the tiny limits of a cocoon. Every feature of this marvelous metamorphosis is revealed under the searching power of the Tolhurst "cool light" and magnified mightily on the screen.

This series called "Secrets of Life" is being made by Tolhurst for Principal Pictures Corporation.

Harry La Verne, well-known local actor, is now on his vacation, visiting his parents in Dowagiac, Michigan and friends in Chicago. Upon hs return in the near future he will play an important part in the Gold Seal production, enttled "The Man From Thundergap."

After completing the editing and titling of "The Wanters" and "Pleasure Mad" at the Mayer-Schulberg studios, Sada Cowan and Howard Higgins commenced similar operations on Warner Bros. "Lucretia Lombard." Before they had finished this William S. Hart sent for them to write his next script upon which they are working at the present time.

William V. Mong, who is enacting one of the stellar roles in the Fred Niblo picturization of the stage play, "Thy Name Is Woman," is one of the rare fathers in the acting profession, who is satisfied to let his son follow in his professional footsteps, if the youngster is so inclined.

"If my boy wants to be an actor and shows the proper talent when he is old enough to decide upon his career, I shall be happy to have him take up my line of endeavor," says Mong.

At the present time "Bill," Jr. has aspirations to become a motion picture director. Although but five years of age, the youngster already wields a mean megaphone and nothing delights him more than to strut about with puttees, shirt opened at the throat and direct the neighborhood kiddies in mob scenes which are enacted on the porch of the Mong residence in Hollywood.

Culver City, Calif.

RENALLES, INC.
WE DO WHAT WE SAY WE DO
KEEP FAITH
DISTINCTIVE CINEMA and LEGITIMATE ATTRACTIONS

Culver City 546

Now in Preparation: "The Elk's Tooth"

I WANT SOME REAL PICTURES!

. . . productions from $50,000 to $100,000. I can sell them outright. See me for a quick release.

H. and B. FILM COMPANY

Bronx Studio, 1745 Glendale Blvd. Wilshire 4275 or Drexel 1900

Your Question------ and its answer

QUESTION—"Six months ago yesterday I was examined for life insurance, and was rejected because of High Blood Pressure and hardening of the arteries. Another examination today again rejected me. I want to know if Chiropractic will reach this trouble successfully."

ANSWER—Many people do not know that they are suffering with high blood pressure until rejected by some life insurance company. These companies are exacting in taking risks. High blood pressure is one risk they will not take. Hardening of the arteries accompanied with high blood pressure is the result of deposits of calcerous matter within the walls of the blood vessels. The organs of elimination, liver and kidneys especially, and often the spleen, are involved. There is perhaps no condition handled more successfully under Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments. It is a rare exception to find a case that does not respond to proper Adjustments to correct the cause.

Residence Calls Day or Night.
Home Phone 598-222.

Bring all your health troubles to the only Chiropractor catering to the Motion Picture Profession.

Dr. W. I. Schuster

SCIENTIFIC CHIROPRACTOR AND NERVE SPECIALIST
(PALMER GRADUATE)
Licensed in California

A health service right at your door

Save your time and strength by avoiding the downtown traffic

Office Hours:
10 to 12 and 2 to 5

Monday, Wednesday and Friday
6 to 8 P.M.

203 Bogardus Building
Cor. Sunset and Western
Hollywood, California

Telephone 436-724

WHERE THE SICK GO TO GET WELL

ASK ANY STAR

Baby Peggy
ing of her age
the University
Angeles.
This places
prodigies, whic
chubby little gi
not weigh hea
Baby Peggy is

PHOTOGRAPHS
Or Fan Pictures

are the best medium of publicity there is

Your appearance on your photos should be as attractive as it is on the screen.

THE QUALITY OF PHOTOGRAPHS USED FOR THIS PURPOSE IS OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO GAIN THE DESIRED RESULTS.

No charge is made for the sitting for fan pictures and we finish two negatives with each thousand prints.

See our samples and get price quotations.

Evans Studio

6039 Hollywood Blvd. Holly 2560.

Lyman A. Pollard Ruth A. Dowdall

"Camera!"

[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

Los Angeles, Calif. Saturday, Oct. 27, 1923 Price 10 Cents

MARTHA MATTOX

UNO

Authentic Details and Photographs of Foreign Interiors and Exteriors of Every Description.

ASSOCIATE CORRESPONDENTS IN ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

INTERNATIONAL CINEMA RESEARCH
L.A.HOWLAND
Phone 438-761
300-301 HOLLYWOOD SECURITY BLDG.

Special Attention to Theatrical and Motion Picture Profession

Hepner
INCORPORATED

Hair Dressing
Permanent Waving
Hair Coloring
Marcel Waving
Massage Manicuring
Wigs Toupees
Beards Moustaches

52220 Telephones 54847
1001, 1003, 1005 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles California

No Parking Restrictions

AUTHORS SERVICE BUREAU

Scenarios, Continuities, Short Stories,

TYPED AND EDITED

Am thoroughly trained in the technique of screen writing.

Newspaper and Magazine Experience.

N. C. WRIGHT

Phone 431-971 ..... Box W3, Camera!

HERMAN BOOKASTA
CHARACTERS
434-306

"Camera!"
[The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry]

Established 1918

A Film Magazine and a Film Newspaper in One

6318 Hollywood Boulevard
Hollywood : California

Volume VI | SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1923 | Number 28

"LEST WE FORGET"

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

OCT. 27TH, 1858. JAN. 6TH, 1919

"There can be no divided allegiance here. Any man who says he is an American, but something else also, isn't an American at all. We have room for but one flag, the American flag, and this excludes the red flag, which symbolizes all wars against liberty and civilization, just as much as it excludes any foreign flag of a nation to which we are hostile. We have room for but one language here, and that is the English language, for we intend to see that the crucible turns our people out as Americans, of American nationality, and not as dwellers in a polyglot boarding-house; and we have room for but one soul-loyalty, and that is loyalty to the American people."

It would be well for us to pause a moment in the hurry and scurry of our daily existence and ponder over the words and deeds of that great American whose birth anniversary we commemorate at this time. A man of simple habits and of a rugged and dynamic character, he will ever be classed among the most distinguished personalities and great-hearted patriots that his country has ever had. The above words, an excerpt from his last public message, are worth serious and prolonged study for they reflect the frank and energetic qualities which Theodore Roosevelt possessed. He was never backward about the truth; with him a spade was a spade, and he never uttered sugar-coated nonsense or meaningless phrases. True, he was often censured, but what great man has not been subjected to censure? The big thing about him was the fact he commanded respect from friend and enemy alike. He was nationally beloved, and at times, internationally feared. Soldier, statesman, explorer; a cosmopolitan, yet always an American.

Motion pictures today need a man of the caliber of Theodore Roosevelt, a man who can command respect among the various branches of the industry in a way that will insure the co-operative efforts of them all toward one goal, which is, the perfection of the cinema. There are too many little Roosevelts running around here now. With motion pictures it shouldn't be a case of dog eat dog. Everyone should be striving the common cause, and if we had a man who possessed the dominating personality, the tireless energy, and far-sighted wisdom of Roosevelt these things could be achieved. We would find the grail. He states "there is room for but one soul-loyalty and that is loyalty to the American people." We can paraphrase and say: there is room for but one soul-loyalty and that is loyalty to the highest ideals of the industry. We have room for but one language, and that is the language of fraternity and good-will toward one another. For from the crucible of the yesteryears the great motion picture will arise, and we must exclude the flag of the alien interests who are in the business only for monetary gain, even as we would exclude the flag of those who have declared themselves hostile to us and our work. We need a man like Roosevelt to show us the way, who can establish more harmonious conditions within our walls so we can work undisturbed by internal dissension, and, unfettered, soar to the heights of worthwhile things. A man like Roosevelt could put team work into motion pictures. That is what we need.

S. W. LAWSON
Publisher and Manager

FRED W. FOX
Managing Editor

JOHN CORNYN
Advertising Director

GENE WOOLWAY
Studio Representative

PAULINE THOMPSON
Pulse Editor

Coming Features

An interview with JACK DEMPSEY, World's Heavyweight Champion Pugilist. Impressions of the man and the fighter. Soon!

"HOLLYWOOD AND NEW YORK." Some opinions from prominent film folk as to the status of the two as film centers.

A Review of the Best Photoplays of the Past Ten Years. An unbiased opinion by an ordinary "fan."

"CAMERA!", The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry, issued on Saturday morning of each week, at 6318 Hollywood Boulevard in Los Angeles, California, Telephone 439-869. Entered as second-class matter, Aug. 11, 1918, at the Post Office at Los Angeles, Calif., under Act of March 3rd, 1879. Published by S. W. Lawson Publishing Co., with executive and editorial offices at 6318 Hollywood Boulevard, Los Angeles. National advertising representatives H. H. Conger Co., New York, Chicago, San Francisco. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $3.50 per year in Los Angeles County; $4.00 per year in outside zone; 4.50 per year to Canada; $3.50 per year to foreign points. Address all communications to the company.

Morosco
744 So. Broadway

"The Gold Diggers"

Mason
127 So. Broadway

"Irene"

Egans
Pico and Figueroa

DARK

Hippodrome
320 So. Main

Vaudeville

Orpheum
630 So. Broadway

Vaudeville

Pantages
Hill at Seventh

Vaudeville

Hillstreet
Hill at Eighth

Dustin Farnum
in
"The Buster"

Burbank
Main near Sixth

Musical Comedy

Majestic
845 So. Broadway

Marjorie Rambeau
in
"The Valley Of Content"

Tally's Broadway
833 So. Broadway

Tom Mix
in
"Soft Boiled"

Symphony
Broadway near Sixth

Harry Carey
in
"The Miracle Baby"

This Week's Theatre Notes

Holbrook Blinn reaches stardom on the screen in Edwin Carew's First National picture, "The Bad Man" at Loew's State theater this week. It is a thrilling production of the stage play in which Blinn achieved great success here and for three years on the American stage.

Cleverly constructed, the comedy-drama is built along lines different from the average production and is marked by snappy humor, intermingled with thrills and surprise situations. "The Bad Man" is a mixture of laughs and thrills, a story of the Mexican border with Mr. Blinn as a bandit, a sort of Robin Hood of the desert, a type that is absolutely new to the screen. While the leading character is a "bad man" he is a "good bad man" with a unique philosophy of life and a deep sense of conceiving right and wrong.. Holbrook Blinn's characterization is one of the most fascinating the screen has ever seen. The cast includes Enid Bennett, Jack Mulhall, Walter McGrail, Harry Meyers, Teddy Sampson, and others of note.

In spite of the continued interest in Charles Ray's production of "The Courtship of Myles Standish," it is announced that, owing to existing contracts, this remarkable photoplay will give way to Harold Lloyd's laest comedy "Why Worry?" at Grauman's Million Dollar Theater.

"Why Worry?" is straight farce. Here are real characters and entirely probable situations exaggerated to a state of absurdity that yet remains within the realms of possibility. It is the story of an American youth, accustomed to luxury who seeks adventure in South America and promptly becomes enmeshed in a fierce, fiery, and flaming revolution. It is laid in a romantic atmosphere with thrilling adventure and is pronounced as a comedy of one laugh —and that from start to finish, with mirthful, hilarious situations overlapping one another. The picture introduces to the screen a new leading lady in the person of Jobyna Ralston who is young, pretty and spirited and proves a decided acquisition to the realm of the silent drama. Another prominent figure is John Aasen an 8 foot 9 inch giant who also makes his screen debut in this picture.

A banner week at the Hillstreet theater, Sophie Tucker, the premier innovator of the vaudeville stage, will return with a new act and the usual number of novel character songs presented as only Sophie can present them with the assistance of her two syncopators, Ted Shapiro and Jack Carroll. J. Rosamond Johnson, formerly of the famous team, Cole and Johnson, will present a musical chronology entitled "Syncopation." In his company will be E. (Peggy) Holland, Eddie Ransom, L. C. Langster, Leon Abbey and Eloise Bennett.

Dan Stanley and Al Birnes a clever pair of songsters and comedians will also be present. William Edmunds, supported by Gail White, will offer a comedy sketch entitled "Peg O' My Sole."

Jack Joyce, will offer a number of English stories, some dancing and singing.

Completing the vaudeville will be Adonis and company, a clever hand-balancing act.

The feature photoplay will be Dustin Farnum in "The Busters."

Other features on the bill will be Hillstreet International News, Aesop's Fables, a Carter De Haven comedy, and a William Duncan Chapter-play "The Steel Trail."

The Universal Super-Jewel, "Merry-Go-Round" which has been playing to tremendous houses at the Alhambra theater will be retained for a second week and which will be its final in Los Angeles. Its story of pre-war life in Austria with its scenes of gay revelry in the Prater, the Coney Island of Vienna, and with its tremendous love drama between the two leading characters gripping every onlooker, "Merry-Go-Round" offers one of the most dramatic stories the screen has ever known.

Authenticity is one of the many notable things in this picture which tells the love story of an Austrian nobleman for a little girl, an organ grinder at the Prater. The cast includes George Hackathorn, Marv Philbin, Norman Kerry, Caesare Gravina, George Seigmann, Al. Edmundson, Dale Fuller, Lillian Sylvester, Maude George, Edith Yorke and many others of note.

One of Rudyard Kipling's most colorful stories, involving drama of the highest order, has just been transferred to the screen. The story is "The Light That Failed."

George Melford produced the film version, which constitutes the feature attraction at Grauman's Metropolitan Theater this week. Jacqueline Logan, Percy Marmont, Sigrid Holmquist and David Torrence are featured.

By special consent from the author, the time of the story was changed to the period just preceding the great war.

The picture is accompanied by special feature acts.

California
Main at Eighth

Marion Davies
in
"Little Old New York"

Miller's
Main at Ninth

George Arliss
in
"Green Goddess"

Metropolitan
Sixth at Hill

Jacqueline Logan
in
"The Light that Failed"

Loew's State
Seventh at Broadway

Holbrook Blinn
in
"The Bad Man"

Rialto
Broadway near Eighth

Pola Negri
in
"The Spanish Dancer"

Criterion

Charles Chaplin's
"A Woman of Paris"

Million Dollar
Third and Broadway

Harold Lloyd
in
"Why Worry"

Alhambra
731 South Hill

"Merry-Go-Round"

Hollywood Egyptia
Hollywood Blvd. and McCadden

"The Covered Wagon"
with Lois Wilson and
J. Warren Kerrigan

Mission
Broadway near Ninth

Mabel Normand
in
"The Extra Girl"

Clune's Broadway
Broadway near Fifth

"The Isle Of Vanishing Me

Hollywood

By MALCOLM McINTYRE

T come in their thousands, the young and he old,
A with many a heartbreak their stories unfold,
H they threw up their jobs: left their kith and kin,
F a chance in the movies; for a chance to "ak in."
T self-possessed flapper with bright eyes of youth,
A the broken-down woman, half starved and uncouth.
T kid from the farmland: The girl from the store,
T y come in their thousands to knock at my door.
T Shakespearian actor and the grinning old clown,
T society girl and the man about town.
T grid-iron hero; the meal ticket pug,
W h his cauliflower ear and much battered mug.
T drug clerk; the hasher, the telephone girl,
T white man, the black; like an eddy they swirl,
A they trudge on my boulevard or sit in my park,
I m morning to evening; from noon until dark.
W th hope held in check, but with eyes all aflame,
T y surge at the wicket to enter their name.
W th fast throbbing pulse and quick-beating heart,
T ey plead for an opening: they beg for a start.
A t a few will I favour with stardom and fame;
W ose names will be blazoned, whom the world will acclaim.
B the others who strive to pass through my gate,
O ly the high gods know their ultimate fate.
S me go back boldly and loudly declaim,
"The movies are rotten, I'm through with the same.
Others return to their counter and store.
But thousands still knock at my tightly closed door.

An actress who gives great promise of attaining early stardom is Nola Luxford, who is prominently cast in "Rouged Lips" with Viola Dana. She also enacts principal roles in "The Flying Dutchman," "The Prince of Tonight" and "The Man of Wrath."

Lewis Dayton, film actor, has a dread of becoming marked for type. The public becomes accustomed to seeing a certain player in a particular style of portrayal, then the producers are afraid to offer him in any other way. Dayton has the aristocratic bearing and air of refinement which places him in the society leading man class, but he states that he would rather play villains and character roles than to become stereotyped which follows the playing of the same style of parts for picture after picture. He played a near-villain in "Cordelia the Magnificent" with Clara Kimball Young which contrasted with her later picture "A Wife's Romance," wherein he played opposite Miss Young.

Lillian Lawrence, who will best be remembered by her part in "The Girl I Love," with Charles Ray, has finished the characterization of Mrs. Wingate in Hal Roach's satire, "The Two Covered Wagons," featuring Will Rogers and Marie Mosquini.

Norman N. Rankow, who has been cast for the part of Horny Lefferts, a Kentucky mountaineer and around whose death the plot of the story revolves in Perley Poore Sheehan's "Innocent" at the Universal, has only recently joined the local film colony.

Mr. Rankow has been centered in Johannesburg for nearly twenty years, four of which he spent on the legitimate stage and was for six years with the African Film Trust. He gained quite a following among the fans owing to his athletic prowess, being called "the Douglas Fairbanks of South Africa."

For Laura Winston, stepping from the portrayal of She-Bear, an Indian hag, as was her part which she has just finished in the "Deer Slayer," a C. W. Patten Production directed by Geo. B. Seitz and featuring Murphy Miller, to that of an emotional mother role for which she has just been cast in the new Neva Gerber production under the direction of Dick Hatton at the Berwilla studio, is all in a days work.

Laura Winston is seldom idle. Her range of character portrayals is apparently unlimited and to her the overworked and much abused "versatility" can safely and conscientiously be applied.

The Universal Megaphone

By WILL C. MURPHEY

It was intended that Reginald Denny, Universay star, who was severely injured in an tomobile accident recently, should make anher of the humorous stories of prize fightg, "The Leather Pushers," as a farewell apearance in the series, in which he would inoduce his successor, Billy Sullivan.

"The Spice of Life," his Universal-Jewel arring vehicle directed by Harry A. Pollard, as completed last week and preparations were ade to start the short subject this week. Evything was ready to "shoot."

Now the story under preparation is being written in order that more of "The Leather ushers" starring Sullivan may be made with-t waiting for Denny's recovery.

Denny will be under the care of doctors for veral weeks.

If ever there was a production in motion icture history with a title which didn't fit e working conditions, it is "The Turmoil." "The Turmoil" is Booth Tarkington's novel hich is going to the screen as a Hobart enley production. In the cast are George ackathorne, Eleanor Boardman, Victory Bateman, Emmett Corrigan, Pauline Garon, Eileen ercy, Theodore Von Eltz, Kenneth Gibson, dward Hearn, Bert Roach, Buddy Messenger, ohnny Fox and others of note.

The Henley unit is a "one-man" company. Nearly everyone in the company, exclusive of the cast, has worked many times before with Henley. Arthur Smith, his assistant on several elaborate productions, is on this one. Even many of the players have worked with Henley before. So far the most perfect harmony has existed in the company, not only of spirit, but of coordinating abilities.

Reginald Denny has just finished the fastest picture of his career.

The famous "Leather Pushers" star did many a fast round in the squared-circle classics and galloped some fast furlongs in "The Kentucky Derby" but in his latest Universal feature he strode through thousands of feet of film at more than one hundred miles an hour.

Final shooting has been completed on "The Spice of Life," a screen version of the famous speedway story, "There He Goes," by Byron Morgan. In this vehicle Denny's craving for fast action was satisfied. The picture was a blaze of speed from start to finish.

It was produced as a Jewel feature under the direction of Harry A. Pollard and will be released in seven or eight reel lengths. Its completion marks the first of four big productions in which Denny will be starred annually under his new status as a feature star with Universal.

His next vehicle will be "Love Insurance," a comedy drama based on the novel of the same name by Earl Derr Biggers, to be directed by Eddie Cline.

The company making "The Signal Tower" for Universal under the direction of Clarence Brown spent Thursday of last week shooting some scenes in Oakland. They later spent a few hours in San Francisco, saw their friends and had dinner before leaving for Ft. Bragg that evening, where they expect to be on location for about three weeks. Wallace Beery, and Virginia Valli are playing the leading roles in the picture, with Ben Reynolds borrowed from Goldwyn for this one picture, at the camera.

Filmland is watching with interest the first efforts of Perley Poore Sheehan as a director.. He is making an all-star Universal picture, temporarily titled "Innocent." The players are Gladys Hulette, Ed Kennedy, Charles Cruz, Howard Truesdell, Robert Gordon, Lon Poff, Margaret Seddon and Norman Ranco.

Sheehan, well known as a novelist prior to his entering screen work, ras been for two or three years writing scenarios and making adaptations such as the adaptation of "The

(Continued on Page 20)

Flashes from Frisco

By AGNES KERR CRAWFORD

San Francisco, Calif., Oct. 24th, 1923.

Louis Graf, President of the Graf Films returned a few days ago from a week's visit to Hollywood on business for the corporation.

A. L. Rockett, production manager of the Rockett-Lincoln Co., spent most of last week in San Francisco arranging for an early showing of the recently completed film "The Life Of Abraham Lincoln," in this city at an early date. Mr. Rockett returned to the South on Saturday evening.

"The Yellow Stigma" last production of the Rellimeo Film Syndicate of this city is nearing completion at the leased studio of the company in Hollywood. Actual shooting was completed a few days ago, and Colin Campbell the Director is cutting and editing the film. The titles are being written by Grace Sanderson Michie, who wrote the scenario. The picture will be ready for release about Nov. 15th. and promises to be one of the outstanding productions of the year, and in it Rosemary Theby gives the finest performance of her career. Miss Theby is leaving for Algiers, to play in "A Son of the Sahara.' Camera work on "The Yellow Stigma" was done by Joe Brotherton.

Miss Grace Inglis drove to San Francisco last week-end to do some casting for the Fulton plete the final business details, and the company will go into production on a new series of pictures, to be shot at a southern studio at a very early date.

The Golden Gate Films of San Francisco have their re-organization plans just about completed. Herman Luftin, president of the company, Jack Dewey, production manager, and Benjamin Block, legal council, drove to Hollywood on Sunday. While there they will com- theater.

One of the leading technical directors of the business, now a partner in a San Francisco film organization, and a very well-known member of the Frank Lloyd productions, decided to celebrate the other night. Celebrate they did, and so thoroughly the job done that they had to stay at Coffee Dan's till four A. M., when the street cars stopped running so they would have room enough on the road to drive home.

Alice Lake spent most of last week in San Francisco, enjoying a short vacation from her labors on the silver sheet.

The Graf Films gave an invitation pre-view of their recently completed film, "Half-A-Dollar Bill," at the Warfield Theater on Sunday morning. Most of filmdom in San Francisco, as well as the special friends of the producers were there, and everybody was most enthusiastic about the picture. It has a fine thrillin story, mostly of the sea, with lots of hum appeal, and more than well played by an star cast of well-known screen stars. The ca included such well-known names as Anna Nilsson, Mitchell Lewis, William Carleto Raymond Hatton, Alec Francis, and litt Frankie Darrow. Last but by no means lea in the general interest of their parts are th well-known dog-star Cameo, and Irish, wh is a San Francisco dog,, wonderfully clev and making his film debut in "Half-A-Doll Bill." And at the preview one of the mo interested members of the audience was hin self seated beside his master, and watchin the screen with the greatest attention.

Harry Lauder returned from a sever months tour of Australia, New Zealand an the South Seas last week and opened a tw weeks engagement at the Curren Theater o Monday evening. As always his long-standin popularity is drawing big crowds that alway go away pleased not only by his own humo but by the capable vaudeville entertainers tha furnish the rest of the bill.

John Howard, publicity man with Mary Pick ford's company making "Dorothy Vernon o Haddon Hall," left San Francisco on Thurs day after being in town for a couple of week during the location work on the company i Golden Gate Park, and for afew days afte their departure.

Casts of the Week

Christie Comedies
present
BOBBY VERNON
in
"A PERFECT 36"
Directed by Al Christie
Story by Frank Conklin
CAST:

Bobby Vernon	Jimmie Harrison
Teddy Sampson	Lincoln Plumer
Patricia Palmer	Ward Caulfield

Christie Comedies
present
DOROTHY DEVORE
in
"KIDDING KATIE"
Directed by Scott Sidney
Story by Walter Graham
CAST:

Dorothy Devor	Eugenie Ford
Jimmie Harrison	Blanche Payson
Babe London	Felix Valle

Joseph Henabery Productions
present
"THE STRANGER"
Directed by Jos. Henabery
Story by Edfrid Bingham
CAST:

Betty Compson	Lewis Stone
Richard Dix	Tully Marshall

Goldstone Productions
present
"THICKER THAN WATER"
Directed by Duke Worne
Photographed by Rolland Price
CAST:

William Fairbanks	Edith York
Dorothy Revier	Robert Keith
Rhea Mitchell

The Gene Stratton Porter Productions
present
"THE GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST"
Directed by J. Leo Meehan
Photographed by H. Anderson
Story by Gene Stratton Porter
CAST:

Gloria Grey	Emily Fitzroy
Gertrude Olmstead	Alfred Allen
Cullen Landis	Newton Hall
Raymond McKee	Buck Black
Virginia True Boardman

Thos. H. Ince Productions
present
"THE GALLOPING FISH"
Directed by Del Andrews
Photographed by Max Dupont
Story by Del Andrews
CAST:

Louise Fazenda	Lucille Rickson
Sidney Chaplin	John Steptling
Ford Sterling	Curly Shatpuck
Chester Conklin	Alfred Hollingsworth

Waldorf Productions
present
"DISCONTENTED HUSBANDS"
Directed by Howard Mitchell
Photographed by King Gray
Scenario by J. Stormwasser
CAST:

James Kirkwood	Vernon Steele
Grace Darmond	Arthur Rankin
Cleo Madison	Carmelita Geraghty

Maurice Tourneur Productions
present
"TORMENT"
Directed by Maurice Tourneur
Photographed by Arthur Todd
Scenario by Fred Myton
CAST:

Owen Moore	Jean Hersholt
Bessie Love	Morgan Wallace
Joseph Kilgour	George Cooper
Maude George

Robert J. Horner Productions
present
"WHERE THE JOURNEY ENDS"
Directed by Bob Horner
Photographed by Chas. Fetty and Elmer Dyer
Written by Bob Horner

Alice Winthrop	EVA NOVAR
Douglas Dawson	GEORGE CHESEBRO
Helen Holt	Zenobia Emerson
Owen Sterling	Frank Clark
William Ellis	Ray Hanford
Cap'n Danny	David Dunbar
Big Tim Reynolds	J. Milton Stewart
Harvey Raymond	Rodney Hildebrand
Mike Shelby	Tom Ryan

Another satirical sketch has been completed under the supervision of Mack Sennett.

Though the characters are in seafaring garb the action is for the most part in and around a light house. Billy Bevan, Harry Gribbon and Madeleine Hurlock play the principal roles, while Kalla Pasha, the terrible turk, is the light-house keeper and Fred Spencer,, the ship's captain.

This new burlesque, which for originality of situations and humorous gags, will establish a higher level for which picurtes of this type must hereafter strive to attain, was directed by Earl Kenton.

"Inbad The Sailor," is Kenton's first directorial effort since returning to the Sennett lot, after an absence of almost three years.

PUBLIC OPINION

EDITOR'S NOTE—This letter, received in the mail this week is published here as an example of what feeling the so-called "scenario schools" have aroused among the people they have victimized. The bitter feeling of the correspondent is brought out in full in the language he employs in his missive. Remember, this is only one of hundreds of thousands of similar cases. What's the answer? What are you going to do about it?

San Diego, Calif.,
Nov. 10th, 1923.

tor "Camera!"
Los Angeles, Calif.

r Sir:

our editorial in issue of October 6th reding scenario schools, etc., is indeed an ortant and worthy article.
is impossible to estimate the harm done
the industry on account of false hopes ed by "fake" advertising. If it is true in consequence a million people have tried r hands (their very hearts and souls in e instances) at screen writing then I feel in saying that at least five million enemies e been made for the film industry by these ple who raised false hopes in the hearts
a too-trusting public.

Each disgusted, disappointed, heart-sore, would-be screen playwright has relatives, friends and loved ones who view the hopeless situation from the would-be writer's point of view. In my daily mingling with the public I find that most of the bitter feeling is directed against the producer and his staff.

In many ways the producer is to blame. He has not been honest or straightforward with his public. The honest way would be not to receive these thousands of would-be screen stories. As it is there is disgust within the studio with an occasional lifting of a plot, news of which is always broadcasted among the "author's" friends and relatives. More hate, and disgust among those on the outside. As it is now the whole thing is a vicious circle.

The practice of everybody writing for the screen so far has benefited only these trouble and hate creating "scenario schools." But as I see it the whole situation could be remedied if each producer were to issue a public statement that in order not to disappoint or falsely lead on their public the practice of receiving and reading unsolicited manuscripts, sent through the mail, was to be discontinued. I predict that within six months producers, directors, etc., would feel less disgust and contempt for the "poor boob" writing public and the public would no longer think of the man inside as a thief, etc.

Sincerely yours,
B. A. ALBERTS,
San Diego Hotel,

Fashions----by Lillian Rich

here seems to be quite a bit of the Russian about Gowns for street wear.

he proper shoes for morning are brown de inlaid with darker kid, or patent trim-l, with Cuban heel. There is something ut the medium toe that gives the shoe a nty appearance..

he shoes for evening wear all have the V heel. The style varies with these. How-r, the majority are of French brocade, of ied colors or silver and gold.

he fur coats are either very short or of three-quarter length. Chamois and beaver trimmings give them the Russian air.

ilk hoisiery is to match all Fall costumes.

he "tam" effect is very noticeable in the hats, and most of them are high crowned.

he cloche will again be popular this coming son.
he style of the hair "do's" are something
Frances White's well remembered style. is very simple, flat and brushed as smoothly possible.
he evening gowns are nearly all of brocade
l velvet.

ollywood—It is terribly warm, but still we e the Fall styles gradually working their y up in the fashion world.

he tailored mode seems to be sort of
." Most of them are rosewood charmeen h borders of embroidery and colored pips.

Paris is blamed for the tucks in the new ffon satin frocks. This doesn't seem to be ing so well.

Something clever in a hostess gown is a efully draped cordovan failles silk skirt a blouse of green chiffon. The skirt has cascade effect.

Harry Beaumont is directing "Beau Brummel" for Warner Bros. John Barrymore, renowned stage and screen star, plays the title role.

Three recently completed Warner Brothers classics of the screen are being edited and titled at the Warner studios in Hollywood. Sidney Franklin is editing his own production, David Belasco's Tiger Rose," starring Lenore Ulric; Harry Rapf is putting "Lucretia Lombard," the Kathleen Norris' novel with Monte Blue and Irene Rich, through the finishing process: and Johnny Hines is whipping into shape his latest vehicle, "Conductor 1492."

Fred Bond, who was to have directed "The Elk's Tooth," has affiliated himself with Monroe Salisbury in the latter's independent productions; a new director for the "Elk's Tooth" has not yet been chosen, although it is hinted that a prominent Culver City man will be named.

Chivalrous bystanders were restrained with difficulty from lynching a prominent actor at the Hal Roach Studios recently when the player, suddenly becoming angered, struck his leading lady unexpectedly during the taking of a scene in a hotel. The blow was not in the script, and it caused Director Len Powers the trouble of a retake. Rosie, the heroine, fled to the rafters of the huge stage, deeply humiliated and was only lured back to work with a bag of peanuts. The incident occurred in filming a new comedy with Hal Roach's "Dippy-Doo-Dads." It was forgotten when the house detective in the story waddled in and was assaulted by most of the principals of the cast. This new comedy is a stirring screen melodrama, with stolen jewels, et al, in which the principal roles are taken by the monkeys of the Dippy-Doo-Dad family. A rakish looking duck is the house detective.

Virginia Andrus, who played the feminine lead in the Darrell-Mounier picture entitled "Betsy Ann", came from New York City to take the part. Virginia is a decided blond, with large wistful eyes which, however, have a twinkle of devilment in them. Although only nineteen years of age, she has had considerable experience in the eastern studios.

With all its fervent upholders and its rabid enemies, the photoplay has no more staunch believer in its attainments and future capabilities than Winifred Dunn, Metro's scenario editor. Yet she denies that the movies are an art!

For the answer, turn to your own dictionary, she says, and you will soon realize, with her, that the films are no more an art than painting or music. The movies are a form of expression!

Only as such should they be judged and criticized; and, as such, they will be found to have reached a higher average of excellence than any other form of expression—and in an infinitely shorter space of time. Think how many years it took to evolve architecture to the point of the cathedral, to bring portraiture to the stage of Rembrandt or Franz Hals, to lift the dramatic form to Shakespeare's "Hamlet," and so on through all the related fields. Yet in about half a generation the motion has achieved its present plane of quality and entertainment powers.

Another highly optimistic fact which Miss Dunn points out lies in the statistics which prove that the percentage of worth-while films is higher than the percentage of similarly worth-while books, plays, paintings, poems or the other forms of expression.

The movies may not be an art—but they have achieved much that benefits the entire human race and they have just started!

Happenings in the World of Sports

There are rumors afloat to the effect Frank Chance, in days gone by one of the world's greatest players and formerly manager for the Chicago Cubs, may re-enter this field of activity as manager for one of the big league clubs again. It is understood the Chicago White Sox and the Washington Senators are putting up strong bids for the veteran's guidance, with the best chance for Chance on the side of the Sox. Naturally any offer on the part of this Chicago aggregation is only tentative for the managerial reins are still in the hands of Kid Gleason, who is reported to be considering entering his resignation. The Chicago club certainly needs a man like Frank Chance for interest on the baseball doings of the Windy City haven't been very keen since the scandal several years ago. With this old-timer at the helm they could put up a strong bid for popularity again with splendid opportunities for participating in next year's world series.

There isn't a day during the last few weeks when you cannot hear, while walking along the Boulevard, a shout, "Hello, Bull!", or some such remark as "There goes Bull"! "Is it possible that the Bull is loose, or what? Did he sell his car and does he now have to tramp the streets on foot?"

Nothing of the kind. This is not the so-called Bull of the Movies, nor even the Bull of the Pampas.

It is no one else but George D. Kotsonaros, the Greek light heavyweight champion wrestler. He is visiting Hollywood to confer with his younger brother, Dinos, regarding an offer they have had from a well-known film concern for an attractive part. Besides the many years that Kotsonaros has been on the stage as a wrestler, he has appeared in many screen plays in France, Italy and Greece. He has shown splendid ability as a comedian and as an actor of serious parts. He also has a lot of friends in the cinema world, such as Harry Carey, Buck Jones, Raymond Welsh and many others.

One of his chief reasons for visiting California was to take a crack at the Greek heavyweight champion, Jim Londos. Last week, after hard trying, he succeeded in getting Londos to accept his challenge and they met at Long Beach, but as Kotsonaros came all the way from New York, where he attended the big fight, he was all worn out, and the best he could do was to give his man a very toug bout. The match was a draw after a har slugging affair. Two hours was the tim Kotsonaros had never met Londos before an he didn't know his style, but now he is sur that next time it will be an easy task fo him to turn the keys. What will be the harc est is to get Londos to accept another challeng

Jack Dempsey, the world's champion boxe was the timekeeper that evening, while at th beginning, Chuck Reisner humored the aud ence with his famous jokes, using Bull Mor tana as his theme.

Kotsonaros says that he will be very glad t meet Montana, not only for the championshi of movieland, but also for a beauty conte for he thinks he is better looking than "Th Bool."

Adolphe Menjou contributes a fine interpretation to Charles Chaplin's "A Woman of Paris," now enjoying an extended run at the Criterion Theater here. Menjou has won a place as one of the screen's most convincing delineators of heavy roles of a society type.

Screen Scribbles

A rose might smell just as sweet by an other name, and Kalla Pasha, well known char acter-heavy actor, might be just as popular an earn the right to work in pictures under an other name, but it must be admitted that "Th Terrible Turk," is a most fitting affix.

Kal, as he is known to his playmates, is combination of everything, estimating the posi tions he has held. He was at one time well-known professional wrestler. He has bee in the show business for years, under the 'bi tops' and on the boards. He has doubled fo wild men in the side-shows, and goodness know what not. He is one of the greatest specimen of tatooed humanity known. There is hardl an inch of his body on which a picture ha not been inked.

Kalla Pasha is one of the best natured, big hearted men one could mee, yet he can loo fierce as an animal if necessary. His work i Sennett comedies is known the world over. Hi latest appearance is in "Inbad the Sailor," di rected by Earl Kenton.

Now, it's the trained clam in the movies!

For a long time we have had on the scree everything from trained fleas and bandolin trained masculine hair, to trained hippopotam One company is training a fish to gallop, an Dr. Tolhurst is teaching a class of bacteri what to do in a microscopic close-up. Behin the camera, ther have evolved a race of me trained to utter "Yes!", at the slightest stimulu from an interrogation point.

But none had trained a clam until Lloy Hamilton's current comedy. It was Lloyd Ba con's idea and it was then up to Director Gi Pratt to put a trio of the beach boarder through their paces; make them open and clos their shells, turn over, and play dead at th cry of "Chowder!"

Although the clam has reputation for taci turnity, and should therefore do well in th silent drama, it must be remembered that he i used to noise—when he appears in soup!

A squad of photographers has been put t work by Cecil B. DeMille, photographing th exteriors and interiors of some of the larges factories in Western America. Mr. De Mill is gathering this material together, in orde to make a choice for the locale of some o the most important scenes in his forthcomin Paramount Picture, "Triumph," adapted b Jeanne MacPherson from a Saturday Evenin Post story by May Edington. Leatrice Joy an Rod La Rocque have been named as feature players in this production.

The size and power of manufacturing opera tions is desired as a background for the drama of "Triumph." It is expected that the factor chosen for the scenes will provide a great dea of picorial material never before seen on th

NEWS SECTION

"Camera!" (The Digest of the Motion Picture Industry)

EIGHT PAGES

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1923

10-WEEK LASKY SHUTDOWN!

WILL STAGE BIG ACTORS' BENEFIT MONDAY NIGHT

Big Show At Auditorium

The local motion picture colony is never undertaken anything that oms up as great a success as the rthcoming benefit to be held at hilharmonic auditorium on Octo- r 29 by the Motion Picture ranch of the Actor's Fund of merica. Unusual interest has en evinced in this performance nd being the first of a series of nnual events planned by this en- getic organization it should prove desirable boomerang later on.

The executive committee and ther sub-committees have been ard at work for several weeks in reparation and a glittering arrav f first-rate stars of stage and creen is the result. The first part f the program is as follows:

Marjorie Rambeau, Carl Gantoort, Viola Dana, Shirley Mason, Enid Bennett, Edward Everett Norton, Florence Vidor, May Alson, Ethel Grey Terry, Marjorie Daw, Carmel Myers, Patsy Ruth Miller, Kate Price, Eddie Sutherland, Ramon Novarro, Louise Dressr, Ina Anson, Jose Padella, Lee Moran, Mrs. Reginald Denny, Cyril Chadwick, Charles Coleman, Lucille Cavanaugh, Grace La Rue, Sophie Tucker, The Four Nortons, and the one and only Mary Garden.

The second part of the program will be a pageant of Fimland which will serve to introduce the greatest aggregation of film stars ever got together in one theater. Those who will participate are: Douglas Fairbanks and 12 of his merry men from "Robin Hood"; Mary Pickford and 6 Spanish dancing girls from "Rosita"; Mae Murray as she was in "Jazzmania"; Norma Talmadge and guards as she was in the role of "Yolande" in "Ashes of Vengeance"; Jackie Coogan as he was in "Long Live the King"; Theda Bara as she was in "A Fool There Was"; Priscilla Dean as "Cigarette" in "Under Two Flags"; Dorothy Phillips as the Amazon queen in "Man-Woman-Marriage"; Dustin Farnum as "The Virginian"; Henry B. Walthall as the Little Colonel in "The Birth of a Nation"; Agnes Ayres is as she was in "Borderland"; Mary Carr, the Grand Old Lady of the screen as she was in "Over the Hill"; Barbara La Marr and 6 French officers as she was in "Trifling Women"; Betty Compson as she was in "To Have and to Hold"; Blanche Sweet as she was in "In the Palace of the King"; Anna Q. Nillson as she was in "Ponjola"; Nita Naldi, Colleen Moore and many others of equal note.

Donald Crisp is director of production assisted by Clarence Geldert. Fred Niblo is chairman of the entertainment committee which consists of Winifred Kingston and MaMrian Fairfax. The executive committee of the Motion Picture Branch of the Actors' Fund of America consists of the following: Frank E. Woods, chairman; Robert Fairbanks, treasurer; Rev. Neal Dodd, secretary; Marian Fairfax, Winifred Kingston, Joseph de Grasse, Charles A. Stevenson, Mitchell Lewis, Mark Larkin, Will T. Wyatt, Wedgwood Nowel, with Daniel Frohman as president of the Actors' Fund of America with headquarters in New York. Will T. Wyatt, formerly manager of the Mason Opera House was responsible for the capable business management of the benefit. George Foster Platt was in charge of the reading of plays. Miss Mary O'Connor and Miss Josephine Quirk are in charge of the sale of programs. Wedgwood Nowell is chairman of the propaganda committee which revived the war-time custom of having three minute speakers visiting all the big theatres talking on the Fund and its work and calling attention to the forthcoming benefit. The committee on box reservations consists of Mrs. Jesse L. Lasky, Mrs. Antonio Moreno and Mrs. Abraham Lehr. The design for the program cover, which has been drawn especially for this occasion is from the original by Joseph de Grasse.

This benefit inaugurates the beginning of a fund which will henceforth remain here for disbursement by the local Fund in its work among the needy and destitute members of the profession. All services were donated and even incidental expenses were carried by special subscriptions in the picture colony. This will be the first 100 per cent benefit ever held on the coast.

Thais Valdemar has been cast for a prominent part with Pola Negri in "My Man," under the direction of Herbert Brennon at Lasky's. Charles de Roche and Huntley Gordon have important roles.

Landis To Play On Stage

Cullen Landis will make his return to the foot-lights Sunday night at the Majestic theater where he will play the featured juvenile lead with Marjorie Rambeau in "The Valley of Content," his talents having been secured for a consideration never before offered to a stock actor of juvenile lead ranking, in a cast.. Miss Rambeau considers the selection of Mr. Landis from every standpoint including a most sympathetic speaking voice, ideal, while the young actor is intrigued with the role which Reginald Barker had wanted him to play on the screen, other engagements interfering to Landis' keen disappointment.

For the past two weeks Mr Landis has familiarized himself with the role in addition to his work in Gene Stratton Porter's "The Girl Of The Limberlost," under production at the Ince Studios and an engagement in Metro's "The Man Whom Life Passed By."

Kirkland Has Fine Record

Hardee Kirkland, who plays the uncle of Mildred Davis in her first stellar vehicle for Ben Wilson, boasts a stage career second to few actors.

He has been with the Frohman, A. M. Palmer, Belasco and Augustus Pitou organizations and has supported such noted stars as Clara Morris, McKee Rankin and Kitty Blanchard, Mme Rhea, George Arliss, Pauline Frederick, William Gillette, etc. Many of these engagements were for Broadway productions and he has also played many roles in big road shows emanating from New York such as "Jim the Penman," "Secret Service," "Shenandoah," etc.

His screen work has been extensive and he is regarded as not only a fine character actor but an exceptionally fine heavy.

Betty Blythe who is being featured in "The Recoil" now being made in France by J. Parker Read is scheduled to return to America immediately after the completion of that picture.

Overproduction Is Blamed

In accordance with orders issued late Thursday night the Lasky Studios will shut down for a period of ten weeks, reopening about January 1st. Activities will also cease at the New York studios. Exaggerated reports have been published in the newspapers regarding this move, and the basic cause for it is embodied in the statement given out by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation:

"On account of the mounting cost of production, a problem as yet unsolved, and the overproduction of the past several months in the industry as a whole, the studios of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in Hollywood and in Long Island will close Saturday the 27th inst., and remain closed for a period of about ten weeks.

"Productions now under way will be completed, but no new productions will be started during the period. It is our plan to reopen the studios early in January, following a readjustment and reorganization."

Tailors Will Be Wealthy

"Costume plays are the bunk—the public is sick of them."

Credit this statement to no less an authority than A. Minsk, Hollywood tailor and expert designer of men's modern apparel. Minsk's remarks are backed by fifty other men's tailors in Hollywood and vicinity catering chiefly to movie leading men.

Business at local tailor shops is getting back to where it was before the costume play strangled their lucrative trade with movie actors. New flat irons and novel sewing machines are taking the place of the ancient rusty paraphernalia and tailors are beginning to pay off their mortgages.

That the modern story is coming back into its own on the screen is clearly evident.

Ask any Hollywood tailor.

Frank Lloyd, who has just finished "Black Oxen" at the United Studios, his first independent production, will have as his next vehicle "The Sea Hawk," a pirate tale of the Mediterranean adapted from Rafael Sabatini's famous novel of the same name. Sabatini is also the author of "Scaramouche" which was brought to the screen by Rex Ingram and is now showing in eastern cities. Frank Lloyd has a long and brilliant record, and has directed many of our foremost stars such as Norma Talmadge and Jackie Coogan.

CHRISTIE TWELVE YEARS OLD

Cinematically speaking, Hollywood will be an even dozen years old Saturday of this week, for that is the twelfth anniversary of the day when Al Christie—then manager and comedy producer of the Nestor company—brought the first caravan of moving picture people to Hollywood from the wilds of Staten Island, New Jersey.

Various suggestions have been made to Mr. Christie, as to how the event should be celebrated. One of these is that he should put on a full beard, dress as a pioneer and ride up and down Sunset Boulevard in the replica of the Covered Wagon.

———Or that a lawn fete should be given on one of the original acres of ground which real estate men say could have been bought then for a song. Or the entire Christie Comedy troupe could band together and sing the well-known song that would have bought the acre.

———Another idea is that there should be an unveiling of a stone image of the custard pie which went into the discard some years back when comedies began to be polite.

However, none of these suggestions have been adopted and instead a dinner dance will be given, attended by all of the Christie Comedy stars and prominent officials as guests of the Christie brothers.

Immediately upon completion of "The Signal Tower," which has been selected as her next starring vehicle for Universal, Virginia Valli will leave for New York with her husband, Demarest Lamson to spend the holidays with Mr. Lamson's parents and attend the New York premiere of "The Lady of Quality."

This picture signalizes Miss Valli's return to the screen after an absence of over a year due to a severe attack of double pneumonia. Critics who have viewed the picture consider it the best work Virginia Valli has done in her career.

While in New York she will spend considerable time at the fashionable shops, purchasing advance styles for Spring wear.

She will start work within a week on "The Signal Tower," which Clarence Brown is directing for Universal.

Frances Primm, popular young stage and screen actress, has been cast as the adventuress in Benj. D. Roth's new stage production, "The Fatal Necklace."

Miss Primm has been appearing with the Hollywood Players and scored quite a success in two of their recent productions, "Untangling Tony" and "The Master of the House."

Fantine Larrymore, who recently did a series of Broadway productions and lately closed with the "Passing Show" at the Mason has just finished her first part with Buck Jones at the Fox Studio. This marks her return to the screen after an absence of two years.

Miss Larrymore is a classical dancer of great ability and though young in years can lay claim to many years of stage and screen experience having opened the original "Chin-Chin" show with Montgomery and Stone at the age of fourteen and worked for the Universal Vitagraph and Lasky companies for two years while in the East.

Robert Ober, celebrated stage star and screen performer, left last night for Oakland with his wife, Maud Fulton, where he will personally direct the opening of the latter's newest play "Punchenello" at the Fulton Theater. This production by the woman who wrote "The Humming Bird" and "The Brat," presents a circus story in which the leading role, a clown, is played by Mr. Ober.

After a short run at the Fulton, the company will move to San Francisco, where it will fill an engagement at the Columbia before Mr. Ober returns to his interrupted picture work in the Hollywood studios.

Creighton Hale will be ready shortly for another profession when he completes his work as Viennese surgeon in Warner Brothers "The Marriage Circle" which followed his work as a lawyer in Goldwyn's "Name the Man." If he could make out a few bills, he'd just as soon be a dentist in his next professional screen "job!"

Fred Esmelton may play the featured role in a film version of the late Frank Bacon's great stage play "Lightnin'" if the plans of an eastern syndicate are carried out.

Esmelton played the featured role on the stage in England and Australia before returning to the films about a year ago. If the deal is consummated, the play will be filmed in Los Angeles.

Thomas Dixon, Jr., Dramatic Editor for the Shadowland Productions, Inc., has finished the second story for the Roy Hughes Productions, titled "The Stolen Valley." Dixon will write the story and continuity for the series of five-reel Western pictures that the Roy Hughes Productions will produce for distribution by the Shadowland Productions, Inc.

Stone Is In Love Mixup

If the public gets as much fun out of the screening of "Why Men Leave Home" as Director John M. Stahl and his cast are having in the filming of it, the picture will be one of the outstanding successes of the year.

The story starts off with a laugh-provoking episode and holds the merry pace throughout its length. It is not farce but just clever, irresistible comedy built about domestic life.

Lewis Stone, as the central character, is presented as an average husband—a man who likes to read his newspaper without interference, who wants to enjoy the privilege of staying home evenings when he is tired and who does not want to run a gamut of petty orders and objections the moment he steps into the house. Helene Chadwick, as his wife, is affectionate and loyal, but she can't understand why her husband never wants to do the things she wants to do.

Little irritations and differences creep into their marital bliss, until finally, inflamed by her imagination and prompted by jealousy, the wife throws her better judgment to the winds and secures a divorce.. The husband marries his pretty little secretary, but the same day is quarantined with his first wife in the home of her grandmother who has sought to bring about a reconciliation.

Then the fun begins. The new wife can't join her husband, and he can't get away from his divorced wife. And grandmother, seeking to fix everything up only gets things in a worse mess. The husband comes out of it a bit battle-scarred but happily divorced and enroute to a second honeymoon with his first wife.

Ralph Lewis has just received a wire from the New York officers of the F. B. O. organization, stating that a preview of the Mail Man, in which he plays the starring role, had been held at the Waldorf Astoria and that the various writers, dramatic critics and trade paper critics in the eastern metropolis hailed it as one of the biggest pictures of the year.

